Triple Assault Forces Stalk Last Germans Along Waterway.

BERLIN CLAIMS ONE SHIP SUNK

Flushing Reported Almost Entirely in Allied Hands —Bulk of Germans Escape.

By Howard Cowan

LONDON, Thursday, Nov 2 (AP) — Allied shipping already has entered the three-mile-wide Schelde river estuary with supplies bound for the great Belgian port of Antwerp, the Berlin radio said early today.

This reported movement of shipping toward the important port which is expected to supply future Allied thrusts into Germany came as triple assault forces stalked the last Germans within gunshot of the vital 50-mile long inland waterway.

"German E-boats attacked enemy shipping in the Schelde estuary," was the way the Berlin radio stated the situation, "and destroyed one vessel of 2,000 tons and a small gunboat.

First Indication of Supplies

The enemy broadcast was the first indication that supplies had started moving into the estuary to build up stores for the eventual great offensive against the Reich itself.

The front lines facing Germany, and at many places lapping into the fatherland, are but 75 miles east of Antwerp. Until now Allied supplies have come 400 miles by road and rail from Cherbourg or a slightly shorter distance from prefabricated beach harbors on the Normandy channel coast.

It appeared likely today, in view of the three cross-estuary amphibious operations of Lt. Gen. H. D. Crear's troops, that probably half of the Schelde, as far west as Hansweert, already had been cleared of enemy mines.

Big Guns on Walcheren Silent

Field dispatches last night said the bigg uns on Walcehren island, at the western tip of the North rim of the Schelde, had been silent throughout the day. The gun positions have been repeatedly attacked by heavy bombers and dive bombers, some of which made raids yesterday.

The island itself is under attack from the west, south and east.

Royal Marines landed at Westkapelle yesterday morning after a violent naval bombardment from the British battleship Warspite, which used eight 15-inch guns, and the Monitors Roberts and Erebus, each equipped with two 15-inchers.

Canadian infantry earlier had crossed the estuary from Breskens, after a heavy artillery barrage, and landed in the flooded streets of Vlissingen (Flushing' largest city (21,000 pop.) on the island of about 80 square miles. Other Canadian troops to the east crossed the causeway from south Beveland and established a bridgehead four miles east of the island's capital, Middelburg.

An NBC broadcast from Holland at midnight said "the town of Flushing is almost entirely in our hands." The German garrison there has been estimated at about 600.

Making Good Progress

Headquarters of Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery reported the Walcheren operations making good progress.

Information from Supreme Allied Headquarters at Paris said flooding of the island through air attacks had turned it into four separate tiny islands with only the high points at Vlissingen, Westkapelle, the end of the causeway from the South Beveland and another mound to the north still above water.

The threat to Antwerp from the north definitely had vanished.

Troops of the British Second Army broadened their foothold on the Maas river in south central Holland to more than a mile and maintained relentless pressure against German rearguards.

Bulk of Germans Escapes

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey, commander of the British Second Army, tactitly admitted that a skillful withdrawal from the Breda pocket had saved the bulk of some 40,000 German troops who for several days were threatened with entrapment. He said only enemy rearguards were left south of the Muas and that the main German 15th Army now was fortifying a new Rotterdam-Arnhem defense line.

British commandos swarmed ashore on the southern and western coasts of Walcheren island—which measures only 8 by 10 miles square—in the early dawn and were reported making good progress last night. Canadian troops at the same time fought their way through a virtual wall of Nazi steel in storming across a causeway from South Beveland island on the east and establishing a firm foothold on Walcheren.

One commando force made a direct assault on the harbor and town of Vlissingen (Flushing) in 50 or 60 landings boats. The German radio said a "heavy battle' was raging for the town, which sits at the southern tip of Walcheren Island and commands the three-mile wide entrance to the Schelde from the North sea.

A second landing was made at Westkapelle at the extreme western tip of Walcheren and eight miles northwest of Vlissingen. A heavy fog obscured the landing boats from German shore batteries. When the weather cleared after noon Allied medium and fighter bombers swarmed over the island and battered every enemy position they could locate.

Naval Gunfire Supports Commandos

Heavy naval gunfire supported the seaborne landing. Berlin said that Nazi fliers had seen a British battleship of the King George V (35,000 ton) class, four cruisers and numerous landing vessels standing offshore, "which indicates that other attempts on Walcheren are to follow."

Late frontline dispatches last night said all Germans guns on Walcheren were silent, perhaps knocked out by naval gunfire. The only German guns on Walcheren which escaped the floding of the litle island last month when Allied bombers breached protecting North sea dikes were believed to have been at Vlissingen and at Middelburg, four miles to the north. Almost all the remainder of the island was reported to be under water except at low tide.

Approximately six miles of largely-flooded terrain separated the Britsh force fighting for Vlissingen and the Canadians who fought across the 1,100-yard causeway from South Beveland against withering mortar and small arms fire.

With Walcheren Island finally freed of the Nazis, who were said to be putting up only nominal opposotion there, the long Schelde waterway to Antwerp will be cleared to Allied traffic except for a job of minesweeping.

Hold Out In Battered Spots

Some 2,000 battered Germans still held out in tiny pockets on the Belgian coast outside the entrance to the estuary, but they had lost fortifications near Breskens, across from Vlissingen, which commanded the big waterway. Tuesday these Germans were being driven back through the streets of the little coastal village of Knocke, four miles east of Zeebrugge, and were about ready for the clean-up.

Since they opened their campaign Oct. 6 to clear the Schelde the Canadians had captured 18,000 prisoners and liberated more than 850 square miles.

Boggy terrain and scarcity of good roads held back the surge of American, British, Canadian, Polish and Dutch troops to the Maas north of Antwerp as much as German resistance. One Allied column striking northwest from captured Raamsdonk fought into the outskirts of Geertruidenberg, where a bridge crosses the Maas, but there was no report of important progress from that point west to the coast. Stiff fighting was in progress along the Mark river, four to five miles south of the Maas.

British Reach Another Canal

On the eastern flank of the Dutch corridor, British Tommies reached a canal nearly two miles east of the recaptured town of Lieseel and advanced another two miles southeast down a road to Meijel. Slowly grinding the Germans back over bogs and marshes, the British took 160 prisoners during the day. The Nazis, who launched a heavy counterattack on this front last week, appeared to have pulled back their armor.

Weather again grounded Allied fighter planes until late afternoon, and the troops fought under drizzling skies. Massed Allied artillery helped push the Nazis back toward the German border.

Acknowledging that the Germans had lost the battle for Antwerp, Capt. Ludwig Serterious, Nazi military commentator, said "it remains now to be seen whether Field Marshal Montgomery considers his base great enough to start his big offensive from the Nijmegen bridgehead to the northeast or whether he intends to push forward in central Holland to the Lek river between Rotterdam and Arnhem, or even beyond to the Zuider Zee."

Sertcrious mentioned the possibility that both drives might be launched immediately.

Town In Nancy Area Captured

The German radio reported that on the French front southeast of Nancy a strong American force of more than 100 tanks and an infantry division drove down a main highway toward Strasbourg and captured Montigny, 15 miles east of Luneville. The official German communique said French troops had entered Baccarat, 14 miles southeast of Luneville.

These attacks, the first of importance by the Allies in the cold and sodden southern sector of the front for several weeks, were not confirmed by official Allied sources. General Eisenhower's headquarters reported only local actions, including capture of Les Poulieres, a village east of Bruyeres, and a drive against stubborn resistance into St. Benoit, east of Rambervillers.

Some 17,000 Nazi troops holding out in the French port of Dunkerque were reported to have opened sluice gates and flooded more ground around the town, forcing besieging British troops to withdraw slightly. In an effort to sustain the morale of the Dunkerque garrison and encourage it to hold out as long as possible the Germans were said to be dropping mail into the town by plane at night.

More than 500 RAF bombers gave Cologne another heavy going-over last night, and a British air spokesman said the big Rhine industrial city was being turned into "more of a liability than an asset" to the Nazis.

TWO LANDINGS BY COMMANDOS ON WALCHEREN

FRYE

German Artillery Bastions Blocking Sea Lanes to Antwerp Are Goal.

CANADIANS CROSS CAUSEWAY

Heavy Fire Greets Montgomery's Troops as Pincer Tactics Are Put Into Play.

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.). — British Commandos stormed ashore today on the southern and western coast of Walcheren Island. They were making good progress tonight in a pincers drive to smash the last Germans barring the sea lane to Antwerp.

The seaborne forces landed as Canadians burst across the steel-torn causeway onto the eastern edge of the island, establishing a small beachhead there despite heavy Nazi resistance. A dispatch from Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters declared that the Commandos were biting inland across the flooded island.

Berlin earlier said that Allied amphibious forces had landed near Vlissingen (Flushing), Walcheren's biggest city, with strong aerial and naval protection. The Berlin radio said tonight that "German reconnaissance planes have observed a battleship of the King George class, four cruisers and numerous landing vessels, which indicates that other attempts on Walcheren are to follow."

The official German news agency said that the first wave of forces landing in Flushing harbor were wiped out, but reinforcements fought to the outskirts of the town. "The enemy used about fifty to sixty landing boats," the announcement said.

The Canadians cut out a foothold several hundred yards deep on the eastern edge of the island, eight miles northeast of Flushing, after crossing the long, narrow causeway from conquered South Bevelanda Island under a hail of bullets and shells. Resistance on the south shore of the Schelde estuary weakened perceptibly, Supreme Headquarters said, and Canadians, in a three-mile advance, fought into the coastal village of Knocke. Perhaps fewer than 2,000 Germans remained in this pocket, southwest of Flushing; 7,900 already had been captured.

The Allies landed on Walcheren after an artillery barrage from the south shore of the Schelde Estuary, only recently cleared of Germans, Berlin said.

Squeeze Attack Strategy.

Adjoining South Beveland Island also had been captured in the same kind of squeeze attack, with British forces landing on the southern coast while Canadians pushed across the land causeway. Three-quarters of Walcheren had been flooded by Allied bomb-breaching of its dikes, with sea water sweeping over some German batteries controlling the estuary approach to Allied-held Antwerp.

Below the Maas River, Allied columns struggled through knee-deep mud in pursuit of Germans escaping over the river behind a screen of stubborn rearguard actions. All field dispatches indicated that the Germans generally had succeeded in escaping an Allied trap.

Americans Capture Montigny

A Berlin radio broadcast declared that Field Marshal Montgomery never had drawn on the mass of his forces around Nijmegen for the battle to clear southwestern Holland, but was keeping them intact for an offensive aimed at reaching the north German plain.

The German radio also declared that on the front in France, a strong American attack, supported by more than 100 tanks, had captured Montigny, fifteen miles east of Luneville. The German communique said that French elements had entered Baccarat, fourteen miles southeast of Luneville.

It was expected that the Germans would make a major stand on a line extending from the great Dutch port of Rotterdam to Arnhem, along the north bank of the Neder Rhine. The Canadian First Army has taken 18,000 prisoners and liberated 850 square miles since crossing the Leopold Canal to begin the battle to clear Antwerp's approaches.

Bad weather, which grounded Allied aircraft and kept infantry men and armored forces strugling in knee-deep mud, contributed heavily to the failure to close the trap on the beaten German forces. On the east flank of the widening Dutch salient, however, British infantry units reinforced the hard-pressed Americans and hurled the enemy out of Liesel as bitter fighting continued in the Maas bulge west of the Dutch border city of Venlo.

Americans Take Three Villages.

On the American sectors of the front facing toward Germany, the activity remained confined to local actions. The United States Seventh Army made some small gains in the Vosges foothills in France.

Advancing against stubborn resistance, Seventh Army troops took the village of St. Benoit, five miles east of Rambervillers, and the villages of Laveline and Les Poulieres, just east of Bruyeres. North of Baccarat, there was a heavy artillery exchange, but no reports of any shift in the lines.

Pursuing Allied armored forces already have fought through to the Maas north of Tilburg and are within half a mile of the Geertruidenberg bridge, one of the enemy's main escape routes. These Allied units are approximately seven miles south of the Waal, southernmost outlet of the Rhine.

To the east the original Allied salient in the Netherlands, running from Eindhoven through Nijmegen to the vicinity of Arnhem, outflanks the lower Waal, but not the parallel Neder Rhine.

As a result of the triumph of the Canadian First and British Second armies in the southwestern coastal corner, the Allies have a broad front extending across southern Holland in place of the original narrow salient.

Belgians Stop Port Damage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—Serious damage to the big port at Antwerp was prevented by the Belgian underground, the Navy said today.

It added that British engineers are now repairing docks and that the port will be usable as soon as approaches from the sea are in Allied hands.

The report was contained in a despatch from Antwerp telling of the arrival there on October 23 of the first naval party consisting of Captain James C. Vandercarr, of Norman, Okla., Navy port officer for Antwerp; his aide, Lieut. Comdr Norman J. Gaynor, Bridgeport, Conn., and John F. Greenan, storekeeper, 106 Dunnell avenue, Pawtucket, R. I.

The port of Antwerp will be administered by the British but the Navy will maintain an office there t oassist U. S. naval and merchant marine personnel aboard ships coming into port.

DARING ENGINEER DESTROYS BRIDGE DESPITE GERMANS

GREENE

WITH U. S. TROOPS IN HOLLAND, Nov. 1 — (AP) A real life version of Gary Cooper's bridge-blowing feat in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" was enacted by a daring young American second lieutenant on this front in eastern Holland.

The Germans had just completed a bridge across the Wessem canal south of Weert, and its destruction was so vital that the American commander considered throwing a whole battalion into a daylight attack to wreck it.

"Give me five men to cover me and I'l do it alone," volunteered Second Lieut. Ira F. Peak of an engineer unit.

In the dead of night Peak and five volunteers crawled forward to the canal bank, and Peak, leaving the others to watch for the enemy, slipped under the bridge and went to work with his explosives.

In pitch darknes all went well until one of the men slipped on a rock and the rock splashed into the canal. The noise roused a German sentry who came running onto the bridge with a machine-gun, spotted Peak's half-hidden form amid the girders under the bridge and opened fire.

Peak cooly went on wiring his explosives to the underbelly of the bridge while bursts fired by his covering details kept the German from going after Peak.

At last the job was completed and Peak with the others made a dash down the road.

The German sentry ran back for reinforcements and came chasing back. Two hundred yards down the road Peak had charged his electric detonator with a wire leading to the explosives under the bridge. As the Germans raced across the bridge Peak threw the switch, blowing the bridge and the enemy sky-high.

Next morning America patrols inspected the bridge in daylight and found it demolished, with the bodies of six Germans scattered along the canal bank.

Train Explodes At Paris Siding, DeGaulle Saved

HILL

General Spoke Near By Just Before Blast; Sabotage Blamed, Sirens Sounded

NOV 2 1944

PARIS, Nov. 1 (AP).—A trainload of captured German munitions exploded at noon today on a suburban Paris siding not far from a cemetery where General Charles de Gaulle had made a speech fifteen minutes earlier.

The explosions, whose cause remained a mystery, continued during the afternoon as fire spread through the 140-car train, showering shell fragments into parts of two arrondissments (wards) and causing undisclosed casualties and damage.

In order to clear the streets police sounded air-raid sirens at the height of the explosions and word quickly spread that Paris was being raided from the air or subjected to an attack by flying bombs.

There were many rumors concerning the cause of the initial explosion, but the possibility that it might have been an attempt on De Gaulle's life was generally discounted. The munition train, captured during the liberation of Paris, had been left on a siding in an open area at the edge of the city about half a mile from the cemetery where De Gaulle spoke in honor of Frenchmen killed in the fight to free the capital. Authorities were investigating the possibility of sabotage.

In connection with the sabotage theory, there have been reports that as many as 10,000 Germans still are in Paris, hiding or disguised.

The Communist newspaper "Humanite" said only this morning that fifth columnists attacked a factory in the Paris area last night and were driven off by members of the leftist patriotic militia. No other paper carried this report, however.

BLAST FOLLOWS DE GAULLE SPEECH

Paris, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Part of a trainload of explosives parked on a suburban siding exploded today, a few minutes after Gen. Charles de Gaulle had made an All-Saints' Day speech at a nearby cemetery. The blast caused considerable damage and some casualties.

While it might have been an attempt against Gen. de Gaulle's life, French officials expressed the view that it was sabotage, and was only coincidental with the speech.

The explosion, followed by other blasts, heard for two hours, set off air-raid sirens. This caused a report that the blast resulted from a pickaback glide bomber from an enemy plane, but the United States Air Force declared that there had been no enemy planes in the Paris region.

A broadcast recorded here, said that Gen. de Gaulle spoke today at Vincennes. The explosion may have occurred there.

Cohoes Officer Wins Silver Star

United States Ninth Army Headquarters in Europe, Oct. 28 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut. John F. Kennedy of Cohoes, N. Y., a member of the Ninth Army public relations staff, received the Silver Star today. Lieut.-Gen William Hood Simpson, commander of the Ninth Army, made the presentation, citing Lieut. Kennedy's gallantry in action while serving as a platoon leader with the Eighth Infantry Division in Normandy on July 13.

"I'm proud that a good fighting field soldier like yourself is a member of my staff," Gen. Simpson said. During American attacks of La Kaye du Puits, Lieut. Kennedy received a bullet wound in the right knee, but continued in action with his platoon until he was wounded again in the right foot by mortar fire.

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP) — Miguel Maura, chief of the Spanish Republican Conservative party, has proposed in a formal personal message to Gen. Francisco Franco that his government step aside voluntarily in order to avoid a new civil war, it was reported reliably today.

Pioneer Fort Flyer Killed In Plane Blast

Paris, Nov. 1 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Jerrald Price, of Estes Park, Col., one of the pioneer Fortress pilots in the European theater, was killed August 23 when a fighter plane he was flying exploded over England.

Price was one of the pilots who took the Fortress "We the People" through its career of 50 missions without serious damage or injury to any of the hundreds of crewmen who flew on her.

On completion of his Fortress missions, he pioneered in the United States Eighth Air Force's leaflet raids, for which he was awarded the Legion of Merit. Recently he was engaged in secret experimental work.

Important RR Town Captured

Lajosmizse, Only 33 Miles From Hungarian Capital, Captured.

PROGRESS MADE FROM NORTH, TOO

Stalin Issues Order of Day On Petsamo Campaign—More Than 5,500 Captured in Hungary.

By W. W. Hechler

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Red Army thrust within 33 miles of Budapest yesterday in a great drive rolling rapidly northwestward across the Hungarian plain between the Danube and Tisza rivers.

Armored spearheads undoubtedly already were even nearer to the imperilled Hungarian capital as the midnight Moscow communique announced definite capture of the railway town of Lajosmizse, only 33 miles southeast, along with more than 100 other communities in the marsh-dotted flatlands between the rivers.

Among these was Kecskemet, great railway junction point and last major defense bastion 44 miles southeast of Budapest.

City Falls After Street Fighting

Kecskemet fell after 24 hours of heavy street fighting during which the Russians also pushed past the city on both sides.

The Germans contended this bypassing was what finally forced them to abandon Kecskemet, but the Russians also thrust straight through the city of 80,000 and northwestward another 11 miles up the river toward Budapest. They also announced the capture of Kerekegyhaza, 10 miles west of Kecskemet on a spur railway; and Ujecske, 17 miles northeast of the Kecskemet-Szolnok line.

Thus they had a firm grip on the rail and highway network for the continuing drive to Budapest.

The Soviet secondary drive in northeast Hungary, more than 100 miles from Budapest also made progress during the day. It swept up more than 40 communities, including the towns of Zsurk and Zahony at the Czechoslovak border opposite Cop, indicating a probable juncture with the other Russian armies that have moved westward across the breadth of eastern Czechoslovakia.

The Moscow communique which announced these gains also reported an earlier order of the day from Premier Stalin on final clearance of the enemy from the Petsamo region of Arctic Finland, but said nothing of the Polish, East Prussian and west Latvian sectors of the long eastern front.

Drive Across Plains Progressing

It made clear, however, that a big-scale drive across the plains of Hungary was progressing steadily towards its goal, Budapest.

Kecskemet was the last important barrier in that open country.

Another 1,500 Germans and Hungarians were captured in that campaign Tuesday, bringing the total bag to more than 5,500 since the offensive began, Moscow said.

While the Russians have not mentioned the starting date, Berlin has said it was Sunday.

An early morning supplement to the Soviet communique said the enemy lost 2,000 dead in the Kecskemet battle, 1,000 more at the rail town of Tedel, and 300 more at Kecel, besides losing 56 tanks and mobile guns.

The Germans lost another 300 dead in an unsuccessful attack on the Soviet positions south of Pulutsk on the Narew river in Poland, the supplement said in the only reference to fighting on that front.

Besides Kecskemet, which the Germans acknowledged in advance they had lost after a hard house-to-house fight, the Russians reported the capture of Keskoros, railway junction town 30 miles southwest of Kecskemet.

Indicating the speed with which the Germans fled the communique said that at the airdrome at Iszak, 17 miles southwest of Kecskemet and captured Tuesday, they had seized 48 enemy planes.

Reds Break Through

Kecskemet itself is 44 miles southeast of Budapest, but German military commentators admitted the Russians had broken through on both sides, indicating they were already well past that onetime barrier.

The Germans asserted the Russians had transferred all their southern front reserves to that sector in a determined drive across the plains between the Danube and Tisza rivers.

Moscow announced Tuesday night that Soviet troops, in a sweep across a 60-mile-wide front between the rivers, had broken into Kecskemet and were driving the enemy out of the fort-like stone houses.

Appeal to People to Revolt

The Paris radio appealed to Hungarians to revolt.

"Your hour has come," it said. "The fighters for Hungarian independence in France, Belgium, and Holland, the Hungarians who fought on the Paris barricades, send an urgent appeal to the workers of Budapest, to the students, the peasants and all strata of the people.

"To the barricades: Block the roads. Make every house a fortress. The Hungarian people cannot wait to be liberated. Free yourselves!"

The Germans asserted they were preparing to defend the capital in Warsaw fashion. Its fall would be likely to knock Hungary finally out of the war as Hitler's last fighting ally.

The Nazis had also to combat the drive from the northeast, still 100 miles away but pressing hard from the region of Nyiregyhaza.

Germans Race to Get Out Troops

Meanwhile the Germans were racing to get what troops they could out of the south Balkans. Having given up the big port of Salonika in the face of a British push, the Nazi high command said its men fought the Russians and Bulgarians in the Ibar river valley around Pristina and Kraljevo, Yugoslavia. This valley rail route is the secondary one through the Balkans to the sea. The primary one down the Morava river valley alaeady is denied the Germans by the Soviet advance across northeast Yugoslavia.

While the Germans claimed successes in counterattacks along the Ibar, they had small chance of getting many men or much equipment out by that perilous pathway.

Germans Claim Success

On the northern front, the Germans said their trapped troops in southwestern Latvia had sealed off a deep Soviet breach south of Priekule and held firm against another Russian thrust 30-odd miles southeast of Liepaja. But it was added that their lines at some points had been pulled back several miles and "a recognizable front line does not exist any more" in the whole devastated area.

In the Arctic, the Germans asserted their "movements in Finland progressed according to schedule," but an order of the day from Premier Stalin announced the entire Petsamo nickel-producing area had been fully cleared of the Nazis.

The comparative lull in East Prussia continued. The Germans, quickly accusing the invading Russians of all sorts of atrocities, announced creation of "an international commission for investigation of Russian crimes in East Prussia."

Nazis Quit Key Hungarian City

Russians Advancing on 60-mile Front in Big Drive on Budapest.

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Berlin radio said tonight that German and Hungarian troops had abandoned Kecskemet, fourth largest Hungarian city forty-four miles from Budapest, and a Moscow dispatch said Russian tanks were clanking over the flat Hungarian plain within forty miles of the capital.

The battle for Budapest is "reaching its climax," Berlin said. Cannon fire already has been reported audible in the twin cities of Buda and Pest, which lie on opposite banks of the Danube.

Earlier, Berlin acknowledged Russian breakthroughs on both sides of Kecskemet, an agricultural center of 83,000 which lies some twenty miles beyond the Tisza River, last water line before Budapest.

Marshal Stalin issued an order of the day tonight announcing the complete liberation of the entire Petsamo region, which Finland ceded to Russia under armistice terms. The region is one of the world's richest nickel regions and contains the port of Petsamo, taken last month.

of Kecskemet, the Russians were only 43 miles below Budapest.

Defense Zone Overrun

The army newspaper Red Star disclosed that the new offensive aimed at Budapest got under way at least three days ago and overran a defense zone where the enemy concentrated as many as 20 anti-tank guns to the mile.

The offensive has swept up 200 Hungarian cities, towns and villages, more than 4,000 prisoners and control of several hundred square miles of new territory, the Russians declared.

Nazi Division Chief Killed

Dispatches said the Hungarian 23rd Infantry Division was virtually destroyed, its commander killed and the deputy commander and most of the staff captured as Soviet forces broke into Kecskemet.

A correspondent for Izvestia reported that Soviet forces increased the fury of their assault toward Budapest "tenfold" after they discovered bodies of four Red army prisoners tortured and slain by the Germans and Hungarians. The prisoners' arms and heads had been cut off and their bodies showed traces of being tortured by fire, the correspondent asserted.

The Russians also pushed toward Budapest on a front 120 miles northeast of the capital.

Russ Recapture Nyiregyhaza

In the capture of Nyiregyhaza, a district center northwest of Debrecen, 1,500 Germans and Hungarians were killed while the Russians advanced 12 miles, the communique added. The Soviet forces retook the town after being pushed out of it.

The Soviet war bulletin said there were artillery duels in East Prussia and that German fighting reconnaissance forces were routed north of Grosstrakehnen.

'Big 3' Union Seen In Reich

Moscow, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Mikhail Kalinin told the people of the Soviet Union in a newspaper article today that "the day is not far distant when troops of the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States will meet on German territory—this will be the day of our complete victory."

Kalinin's summary of the war, written to herald the 27th anniversary of the Red revolution on November 7, recalled the German boast that the invasion of Russia was backed up by 250,000,000 people of Europe and pointed out that the Germans "now chatter about the superior numbers of Soviet armies."

Mentioning the quick liberation of France, Belgium, Luxembourg and part of Holland by Allied troops, Kalinin added: "The Germans now console themselves that the thin line of communications is shortened. Soon the Germans undoubtedly will be left without any communications at all."

Yanks Bomb Oil, Railway Nazi Targets

RAF Strikes at Several Places, Including Battered Cologne.

LONDON, Nov 1 (AP) — British-based U. S. heavy bombers attacked German synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and railway targets at Hamm and Coblenz today and Flying Fortresses and Liberators of the U. S. 15th Air Force in Italy bombed military objectives in the Vienna area.

The 300 heavy bombers and 200 fighter escorts from England shot down three ME-262 jet-propelled planes that tried to whip into the bomber formations. They reported that anti-aircraft fire, however, was only moderate. One fighter, which apparently collided with a jet-propelled enemy fighter, was lost in the operations. All the bombers returned safely.

Cologne Hit Twice

The RAF also was busy with a series of strikes at a variety of targets, including two raids on the battered city of Cologne.

By daylight Lancaster heavy bombers hit objectives in the Ruhr and Mosquitos dumped more explosives on Cologne. Early tonight a strong force of Halifax heavies bombed Oberhausen, an industrial and rail center of the Ruhr, and later another force of Mosquitos attacked Berlin and Cologne again.

The 15th Air Force bombers, which were accompanied by fighters, had to bomb by instrument. Returning pilots said they encountered a few German fighters and some flak. The attack on the Vienna area, the first since Oct. 10, marked the first anniversary of the creation of 15th Air Force.

Hamburg Raided

October's record aerial offensive against Germany was rounded out last night by another pounding of Cologne, both by Mosquitos and a force of more than 500 RAF heavy bombers. Other RAF planes attacked Hamburg and German air fields.

During October American and British bombers and fighters made more than 60,000 flights, at a cost of approximately 400 Allied planes. Cologne, in the northern sector of the Siegfried line, was bombed 18 times, lending weight to a terse statement today by the Air Ministry that "the aim of the strategic offensive is to make Cologne more of a liability than an asset."

Skip-bombing from below roof level, an RAF Mosquito squadron blasted out Gestapo headquarters in Denmark yesterday, the latest of the RAF exploits in jail-busting and Gestapo-busting missions.

In ten minutes the bombers shoved 24,000 pounds of explosives through two buildings in the University of Aarhus, which houses the Gestapo chiefs, and still managed to keep clear of a hospital within 100 yards of the targets.

AMERICANS BOMB RHINELAND CITIES

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—American heavy bombers from the west and south bombed Vienna, Gelsenkirchen, Coblenz and Hamm today after 500 of the biggest British aircraft rekindled fires among the ruins of the Rhineland city of Cologne before dawn. About 300 Liberators and Fortresses, with 250 escorting fighters, attacked a synthetic oil plant at Gelsenkirchen, 100 miles north of Cologne, and rail yards feeding the western front at Hamm and Coblenz.

The Austrian capital was shrouded in overcast, requiring the escorted bombers from Italian bases to attack by instrument. It was Vienna's first attack since October 10 and few German interceptors were encountered. Targets were not specified.

Lancasters and Halifaxes bombed Cologne, the most devastated city in the Rhineland, for two hours last night shortly after swift Mosquito bombers attacked the sprawling rail yards from low levels. Royal Air Force Mosquitoes, attacking yesterday from zero altitude, destroyed the two buildings of the University of Aarhus housing Gestapo headquarters in Denmark, where the Germans have kept documents which have been the basis for the persecution of many loyal Danes.

The RAF raids wound up a record month for American and British air forces—more than 60,000 flights by bombers and fighters. Approximately 400 planes were lost.

Cologne caught nearly 10,000 tons of bombs in four days and eight raids in 72 hours.

The Allied air forces plan to knock Cologne out of the battle for the northern sector of the Siegfried Line.

Cologne Supply Center

Hitler has been using Cologne "both as an arsenal—it has more than 30 large priority factories—and as one of his main traffic centers for supplying the Western front," the RAF said today. "Troops and arms could be assembled conveniently in Cologne and then sent forward to any part of the front which was being threatened."

In October the RAF was over Germany 29 nights and the Eighth Air Force was over the Reich 20 days. Cologne was bombed 18 times, lending weight to a terse statement from the Minister of Air today:

"The aim of the strategic offensive is to make Cologne more of a liability than an asset."

17,500 Bomber Sorties

American heavy bombers from the Eighth Air Force in Britain and the 15th Air Force in Italy attacked targets in Germany on all but six days of October.

The Eighth sent Flying Fortresses and Liberators out on more than 17,500 sorties during the month and fighters made almost as many. Total losses were about 200 bombers and 100 fighters, against 174 German planes shot down. The RAF, which operated on all but two nights, lost about 100 planes and destroyed 52 German craft.

NORWAY BUILDING SECURITY POLICE

NOV 2 1944

LONDON, Nov. 1—(AP) A Norwegian Security Police force of 11,000 has been built up in Sweden and permission for it to enter Norway as soon as a considerable part of the country is liberated is now under discussion in Stockholm, it was learned today.

Minister of Justice and Police in the exiled Norwegian government, Terje Wold, is now in the Swedish capital and Norwegian sources said he undoubtedly would review the Security Police before returning to London.

The question of sending the Security force into Norway before the country is entirely liberated is understood to be the most important of several technical matters under discussion.

Also participating in the discussions are Trygve Lie, Norwegian Foreign Minister, and Dr. Karl Evang, Norwegian Director General of Public Health.

The Police unit was created two years ago through an agreement with the Swedish government. It is composed of Norwegians who escaped and could not proceed to Britain to join the Norwegian armed forces.

With part of northern Norway freed by the Russians and with prospects that still more territory will be taken soon, the Norwegian government is said to be eager to move a part of this force into the country before it is completely free of the Germans.

Norwegian quarters here said they believed Sweden would have no objection.

A Norwegian government spokesman officially denied a German News Agency report from Stockholm that King Haakon's government would soon move to the Swedish capital. He added, "When it does move from London, it will go directly to Norway."

Germans Increase Defenses in Norway

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Underground reports reaching London from Norway declare the Germans there, apparently fearing an Allied sea-borne invasion linked with the Russian drive from the north, are hurriedly building additional defense works.

London, Nov. 1 (AP)—Maj. Gen. A. Carton de Wiart, Prime Minister Churchill's personal representative with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, has been promoted temporarily to lieutenant general, it was announced today.

End Of Restrictions On Lend-Lease Urged

London, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Leeds Chamber of Commerce recommended today an end to restrictions on the use of lend-lease materials which, it said, tend to "hamper England's export industries."

In a proposal presented to a meeting of the British Associated Chambers of Commerce, the Leeds chamber cited Britain's contributions in the form of reverse lend-lease as one argument to halt the restrictions.

Under the restrictions no British manufacturer of any articles which include lend-lease material is allowed to export them if the market can be supplied from America.

A review in the Yorkshire Post and the Leeds Mercury said "time and again British firms have had to hand their exports orders over to their American competitors." It also said the Americans never accepted any corresponding restrictions on reverse lend-lease materials.

BRITISH ARE COOL TO OFFER OF SHIPS

KASISCHKE

LONDON, Nov. 1 — (AP) The government was urged in the House of Commons today to reject as disastrous to the British shipbuilding industry a rumored American offer to turn over 1,000 Liberty ships to Britain.

The topic was raised in a shipping debate during which A. J. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, called for a post-war British Merchant fleet surpassing in size and efficiency the pre-war fleet.

He announced that British yards produced 634 major war vessels displacing 1,183,501 tons from the outbreak of the war until last December and, while warning that the peril from submarines and mines was not yet ended, said he believed "the worst of our shipping problems are over."

The warning against buying large numbers of Liberty ships from America came from Ctl. T. G. Greenwell, conservative member for Hartle-Pools and himself a shipbuilder. He was supported by laborite Emanuel Shinwell.

If Britain accepted 1,000 Liberty ships from America Greenwell said, "it would knock British building stone cold for ten years and, as these ships would all age together in about 15 or 18 years, there would be a sudden boom."

"That should be avoided," he added.

Greenwell said he doubted Britain need fear American competition in transport shipbuilding "because although the Americans build excellent ships, American building costs would not make them world competitors with us."

BRITISH NAVY ADDS 634 MAJOR SHIPS

NOV 2 1944

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Britain produced 634 major war vessels displacing 1,183,501 tons from the outbreak of the war until last December, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, informed the House of Commons today. They included battleships, cruisers, monitors, destroyers and submarines, he said.

Other naval vessels built during the period totaled 3,898, of 455,277 tons. During four years of the first world war, Mr. Alexander said, Britain produced 1,654 warships of 1,595,000 tons.

"While it would be wrong to assume we are at the end of real danger from attacks on our shipping, especially by U-boats and mines," he said, "I think we have now reached a stage of the war at which we have good reason to hope that the worst of our shipping problems are over."

Mr. Alexander said that "we could not have survived at one period, but for the persistent efficiency and continuity of our shipyards and had we not early placed an order for sixty merchant ships in the United States before her entry in the war and obtained the assistance of Canada in that most remarkable addition to the shipping of the United Nations which she had produced, starting from scratch."

MIKHAILOVITCH KIN DESERT

Son and Daughter Join Tito—Accuse Father of Treachery

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Marshal Tito's Free Yugoslav radio tonight broadcast a statement attributed to Branko Mikhailovitch, son of Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch, the former Yugoslav War Minister, that he had joined Marshal Tito's Partisans "to efface the shame I feel at my father's treacherous work."

The radio also broadcast a statement attributed to General Mikhailovitch's daughter, Grozdana, who also had gone over to the Partisans, denouncing her father as a traitor to their country's cause.

According to the broadcast, Branko accused his father and his Chetnik forces of "open cooperation with the Germans and the massacre of Moslem families."

CONINGHAM IN NEW POST

Becomes Commander in Chief of Second Tactical Air Force

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham received administrative control of all Royal Air Force units in northwest Europe and became commander in chief of the Second Tactical Air Force.

Marshal Coningham, a New Zealander, has been air officer commanding the Second Tactical Air Force in Great Britain since last January. Before that he commanded the First Tactical Air Force in the Mediterranean Air Command.

Otto Flies To Europe, Report

London, Nov. 1 (AP)—The London Daily Mail said today in a New York dispatch that Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the throne of Austria, has left the United States secretly by plane for Europe. The Mail did not give the source of its information.

BOMBARDIER HERO

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Bleeding from five flak wounds in his chest, Lieut. Thomas A. McKenzie fought off unconsciousness all through a bomb run, talking calmly over his plane's interphone so that his crewmates would not be alarmed.

The 21-year-old bombardier from Auburn, Ky., was over Munich when anti-aircraft struck the Flying Fortress. Sergt. McKenzie clung to his bombsight for seven agonizing minutes before he collapsed, but by then the bombs were away.

Crew members wondered what was wrong when the bomb bay doors remained open after the run and Lieut. Michael G. Kobasky of 146 Fifth street, Elizabeth, N. J., navigator, went forward and administered first aid while the co-pilot, Lieut. Timothy L. Crowley, Camp Hill, Pa., manned the nose guns and the pilot, Lieut. Harry E. Betha, Wilmington, N. C., brought the plane home.

Luxembourg Makes Steel For Allies

London, Nov. 1 (AP)—Joseph Bech, Luxembourg Foreign Minister, said today that Luxembourg's steel and iron industry now was producing thirty per cent. of its capacity for the Allied armies.

Freed from German occupation only six weeks ago, Luxembourg is supplying 50,000 tons of steel and 75,000 tons of iron monthly to the Allies, and Bech predicted these amounts would be doubled within a few months with increased coal supply.

Bech said that 4,000 Russians, removed from their homes by the retreating German army and placed in Luxembourg mines and steel works, were being used by the American army as paid workers to repair railways and replace electric and telegraph cables.

British Businessmen Invade Paris By Air

LONDON, Nov. 1, (AP)—Four British business men went to Paris today by plane, the British Press Association said, adding that they were "the advance guard" for others expected to go to the French capital.

A London newspaper several weeks ago stirred a controversy by asserting that American businessmen had gone to Paris, wearing U. S. Army uniforms. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden denied this report recently in Commons.

An official of the Overseas Trade Department was quoted as saying the Britons went to Paris "in the interest of this country and France."

Will Take British Post

LONDON, Nov. 1—(AP)—Sir Percy Mills has been appointed head of the economic division of the British division of the control commission for Germany, it was announced tonight. He has been controller general of machine toools and head of the production division of the ministry of production.

BRITISH DEMAND JOBS

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—About 1,000 London aircraft workers demonstrated outside Parliament today against being laid off at aircraft plants after certain quotas were completed.

"We want jobs," they chanted, waving banners inscribed "Jobs, not Doles," and "8,000 Sacked." The police escorted a delegation into the central lobby, where a protest was delivered to the House of Commons.

Church Asks Ousting of Brothels

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP).—The Church of England called on the government today for help to eliminate brothels allegedly existing on church-owned property in the Paddington district of London. The London Diocesan Conference, pleading the Church does not have legal authority over the leasehold buildings although owning the ground, adopted resolutions asking for a government investigation.

ROMANIAN CABINET IS OUT OF OFFICE

London, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The Rome radio reported today that the Romanian Cabinet had resigned.

The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press, gave no details but said that King Michael had accepted the resignations.

Earlier the Moscow radio made a detailed report of demonstrations in Bucharest. The broadcast said that the demonstrations demanded replacement of the Government of Gen. Konstantin Sanatescu by a National Democratic Front regime.

Quoting a Tass dispatch, the broadcast said that not less than 70,000 persons massed before the royal palace on Monday and demanded a new government capable of carrying out the people's wishes.

A delayed Associated Press dispatch direct from Bucharest reported that the nation's strongest party, the National Peasants led by Iliu Maniu, held a mass meeting Monday and outlined its program, which includes nationalization of industry, conversion of the country into a democratic workers' state and complete redistribution of large land holdings.

Workers Protest Lay-Off

London Plane Plant Employees Demonstrate Before Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP).—About 1,000 London aircraft workers demonstrated outside Parliament today against being laid off after certain quotas were completed.

"We want jobs," they chanted, and waved banners reading "Jobs, Not Doles," and "8,000 Sacked." Police escorted a delegation into the central lobby, where a protest was delivered to members of the House of Commons.

British Press Follows U. S. Campaign Closely

London, Nov. 1 (AP)—With the American Presidential campaign nearing its climax, British newspapers are devoting an increasing amount of space to it, including daily quotations on the betting odds as reported by their Washington and New York correspondents.

While the press refrains from editorial comment, British correspondents in America are not backward.

One of the most widely read, Don Iddon, New York correspondent for the Daily Mail, predicted that Mr. Roosevelt "will win—and win handsomely."

C. V. R. Thompson, of the Daily Express, said the campaign has been perhaps the bitterest since the Lincoln campaign in Civil War days and that "it is quite remarkable, therefore, that Britain has been kept out of it."

'Gen. Beck' Orders German Revolt

Stockholm, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Newspaper Dagers Nyheter said today that a radio speaker calling himself Col. Gen. Louis von Beck, former German chief of staff, told the German people and army last night that "I have decided to become your leader" and urged them to help overthrow Hitler.

The speaker, broadcasting on a wavelength not normally used by any German station, ridiculed Berlin reports that he had committed suicide after the abortive attempt on Hitler's life July 22.

Speaker Tells Of Escape

"A half hour after (Gestapo chief) Himmler gave orders to shoot me I escaped," the speaker was quoted as saying. He was said to have added that his former "comrades on the general staff" would "recognize my voice."

"When I give the signal you must take every Nazi a prisoner and assume operation of all railways, radios and newspapers," the speaker said, "I order you to organize into fighting groups and equip yourselves with weapons immediately. Prepare to take over the SS arsenals."

Swiss Criticize Soviet Air Stand

Berne, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The Swiss newspaper Tribune de Geneve said editorially today that it was hard to believe the true reason for Russian refusal to attend the United Nations air conference at Chicago was an unwillingness to associate with Spain, Portugal and Switzerland, because of their "hostility in the past."

The Tribune attributed the Russian refusal to an unwillingness to accept an "open door policy" necessary to an adherent of a world air organization.

Yanks Repulse Counterattacks Near Bologna

Nazis Aim at Positions Jutting Dangerously Into German Line.

ROME, Nov. 1—(AP)—American Fifth Army troops have hurled back several vicious German counterattacks south of Bologna in which Nazi infantrymen were supported by flame-throwers, Allied headquarters said today.

The fighting was termed costly for both sides.

The counterattacks were aimed at Allied positions which jut dangerously into the German line. The most determined enemy assault was launched against American units on a 2,000-foot hill five and a half miles southwest of Castel San Peitro, a junction point on the lateral Bologna-Rimini highway.

After laying down a mortar barrage, the Germans tried four times to break the American line. Flame-throwers sprayed the Yank positions. Heavy machinegun fire covered the advancing Nazis. The doughboys held in hand to hand fighting and the Germans finally withdrew.

British Patrols

British Eighth Army patrols on the Adriatic worked forward along the coast toward Ravenna and drove the Germans from two prepared positions north of the Bevano river. Other Eighth Army forces improved their bridgehead over the Ronco river and captured Meldola, where 40 prisoners were taken.

On the Italian west coast in the area east of Massa, Brazilian forces captured La Rocchette, Lama di Sotto and Pradoscello. A little farther west, other Brazilians took Mount San Quireco. German counter-attacks forced the Brazilians to withdraw slightly in the Castel Nuovo area.

Rain which has hampered both aerial and ground action on the Italian front for days continued in sufficient volume to keep the ground sloppy and small streams far out of their banks. Allied fighters and bombers were held to only a few scattered forays against Nazi communications.

8TH ARMY GAINS SOUTH OF FORLI

Rome, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Eighth Army forces have improved their beachhead across the Ronco River south of the Po Valley stronghold of Forli and have cleared the Germans from Meldola, on the stream's west bank, Allied Headquarters announced today.

German troops facing the Fifth Army on the central sector south of Bologna were thrown into a series of heavy counter-attacks yesterday in an effort to wipe out several Allied salients. American forces, sometimes fighting hand to hand, hurled them all back.

Only patroling and artillery duels occurred elsewhere.

Medium bombers attacked bridges in the Po Valley and lighter craft shot up enemy concentrations and communications. A small force of heavy bombers attacked targets in Yugoslavia.

Below Bologna the most determined enemy counter-attack was launched against Americans holding a 2,000-foot hill about five and one-half miles southwest of Castel San Pietro on the Po Valley highway.

The Germans stormed the hill four times, laying down murderous patterns of mortar and shell fire. At times they got so close that the Americans fought them hand to hand. It was a costly fight for both sides.

Along the Adriatic coast Eighth Army patrols worked their way forward toward Ravenna, driving Germans from the outpost positions north of the Bevano River.

Eden in Rome

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, who is in Rome, conferred today with Italian Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, the British Broadcasting Corporation said in a broadcast recorded by NBC tonight.

PRICHARD HEADS DIVISION IN ITALY

Rome, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, former captain of the Army football team and later coach at West Point, is commanding the First Armored Division in Italy. The division fought its way up Italy from Cassino and Anzio to the enemy's Gothic Line.

Gen. Prichard was born in Onawa, Iowa. His family lives in St. Louis.

As a cadet at West Point Major-Gen. Prichard gained lasting football fame for his exploits in Army's 22-9 upset victory over a heavily favored Navy team at the Polo Grounds in 1913.

Earlier in that season a little known Notre Dame eleven came to the Plains at West Point and startled the gridiron world by toppling the cadets through the unprecedented forward passing exploits of Gus Dorais and Knute Rockne.

Army football authorities were so impressed by the Notre Dame passing attack that they prevailed upon Dorais to remain at the Point for several days to teach the Cadets the secret. Gen. Prichard was selected to do the passing for Army and proved such an apt pupil that his tosses to Lou Merrillat, diminutive cadet, and later proved the decisive factor in a victory over a famous Navy team that took the field a ten-to-one favorite.

In later years Prichard served as a backfield coach at the Military Academy under head coaches John McEwan and Major Charles Daly.

SALONIKA FREED BY BRITISH IN

BALKAN CAMPAIGN

ROME, Nov. 1 — (AP) The Allied Command announced today that advance British patrols had reached Salonika, Greece's second city and the principal seaport of the Balkan peninsula, and Berlin said that Nazi forces had evacuated the port.

The Allied commuique gave no details as to whether British troops actually had entered the city, over which a heavy pall of smoke from German demolitions has hung for several days. The German High command's daily communique said Salonika "was evacuated in the course of our disengaging movements in the Balkans, unimpeded by the enemy."

Sixty-five miles west of Salonika in the area north of Kozane British troops and Greek guerrillas maintained pressure on other German troops attempting to flee from Greece. Last reports said these Allied forces were less than seven miles from the Yugoslav border.

Salonika, which had a pre-war population of 240,000, is situated at the northwest corner of the Aegean sea and is within 50 miles of the southern borders of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. In 1925 the Greeks made its sheltered harbor a "free zone" for the use of the other Balkan nations. Goods from the other Balkan nations were shipped to the port over the trunk railway that runs through the Vardar and Morava valleys south from Belgrade.

German troops who captured the city April 9, 1941, made up the seventh invading army to tread its streets since it was founded in 315 B.C. The population is mixed, 90 per cent Greek and the rest Turks, Jews, Bulgarians, Serbs, Italians and Frenchmen.

Salonika's important port facilities were targets of both Axis and Allied airmen. Frequent raids were made by the Italians and Germans in 1940 and the early part of 1941. After the city's fall to the Germans, Allied planes battered it intermittently.

Nazis Announce Evacuation Of Salonika

London, Nov. 1 (AP) — A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told Commons today the Royal Navy had sunk 31 enemy warships and transports and 40 small craft and severely damaged 16 warships and merchant vessels and 15 smaller craft around Greece in the last six weeks. Many of the ships, he said, were carrying German troops.

Rome, Nov. 1 (AP)—The German high command announced today its forces had evacuated Salonika, principal Balkan seaport and second city of Greece.

Allied headquarters disclosed earlier that British patrols had reached the city, which had a population of 240,000 before the war. A pall of smoke has hung over Salonika several days as the Germans carried out demolitions there.

The Germans said "Salonika was evacuated in the course of our disengagement movements in the Balkans, unimpeded by the enemy."

Berlin Radio Broadcast

The communique was broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Salonika lies less than 50 miles from the borders of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. Known also as Thessalonike, the Aegean port was used as a base by Allied troops in the last war. A pro-Ally revolution which broke out there helped impel Greece into that war in 1917.

It can be disclosed tonight that the Salonika-Athens railway was sabotaged throughout the four months before last month's British landing in force. Greek-speaking Americans and British landed by sea and parachute early in 1944 to mold Greek guerrillas into hard-hitting forces which slowed the German withdrawal from Greece. This advance guard brought in heavy arms, mortars and anti-tank guns.

Germans Head for Scutari.

Pressure is being maintained by Allied forward patrols against the enemy rearguards north of Kozane, the headquarters communique said. British troops and Greek Guerrillas pushing the Germans out of Greece were last reported within seven miles of the Yugoslav border in this section.

Previous advices indicated the Germans had engaged in extensive demolitions in Salonika, approximately seventy miles northeast of Kozane. An estimated 10,000 Nazis out of a force of 25,000 were said to be left in

Salonika.

Soviet pressure in Bulgaria and the increasing strength of Marshal Tito's Partisans in Yugoslavia have compelled the Germans fleeing Greece to head toward Scutari in the northwest corner of Albania. It appeared doubtful that many of the Germans in Greece would reach the Reich.

Money Worthless, Athens' Shops Close

Athens, Nov. 1 (AP)—Shops all over Athens were closing today as the last vestige of confidence in Greek money disappeared.

In the past 24 hours the value of the drachma slid from the fantastic figure of 10,000,000,000,000 to 22,000,000,000,000 for a British gold sovereign (nominally $4.87).

Yesterday's fall of the drachma followed a statement by Finance Minister Alexander Svolos that the depreciation was unjustified in view of the nation's gold reserve of £43,000,000, held abroad, and the fact that aid is forthcoming from the Allies.

Transit Breakdown

Gold is the only medium of exchange which holds its own and even the United States dollar has depreciated. Last week a gold sovereign would buy $8. Today it would purchase $18.

The fact that the Red Cross has been unable to distribute regular rations, except bread, because of a transportation system breakdown has caused a great rise in free market prices and the resultant panic to buy gold.

The Government apparently pins some hopes on remittances from expatriate Greeks to families in the homeland.

STILWELL RECALL MILITARY MATTER DECLARE CHINESE

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Nov. 1—(AP) The sudden recall to Washington of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell was called a purely military matter today by the Chinese Minister of Information, Lian Han-Chao, who said that for that reason there would be no Chinese comment on the action.

News of the reaction here to the resignation of U. S. Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss was held up by strict Chinese censorship.

Rumors purveyed as fact are current that the American attitude on the question of the over-all Allied command in China is unchanged and that Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, President Roosevelt's representative here, renewed the original proposals after Stilwell's departure.

(Writing the inside story of the Stilwell-Chiang Kai-shek affair, Associated Press Correspondent Preston Grover cabled from New Delhi, India, Tuesday that the American proposals included a request that Chiang reorganize his cabinet and eliminate reactionary obstructionists and anti-foreign members, and that an American general be placed in command of Chinese operations not only in Burma but elsewhere in major operations against the Japanese.

(Also, Grover said, Chiang was advised that there was much disappointment over the failure of the Chinese Central Government to come to an agreement with the Communists in the north so that both forces could be brought together against the Japanese in China.)

At a press conference of Foreign Correspondents today, Information Minister Liang said in reply to a question that Stilwell's recall "is a military matter—a change of military personnel—and we have no statement to make."

"There is no political issue, then?" a correspondent asked.

"No," injected Dr. K. C. Wu, foreign office spokesman. "President Roosevelt made that clear."

Strict Censorship

With Chinese censorship restriction increasing, Liang denied a suggestion, however, that the government had taken the position that if the correspondents did not like the situation they could get out of the country.

A 785-word Associated Press dispatch on Stilwell's departure had 515 words cut out by the Chinese censor after it had been passed in full by the American censor and the sense of one sentence was changed by the excision of four words.

Stilwell received word from Washington of his recall late in the afternoon Oct. 19. The next afternoon he formally bade farewell to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the next day left by plane.

Iron-clad American and Chinese censorship prevented Chungking correspondents from reporting Stilwell's departure and even after the announcement in Washington Oct. 28 of the General's recall, stories were sharply cut by censors. What innocuous sentences the American army censor permitted to pass were deleted by the Chinese.

The recall of Stilwell; which had been known for days to be impending, passed without a flurry here.

The crux of the dispute leading to the recall of Gen. Stilwell was that the United States in supplying China with military aid wanted to see it employed as efficiently as possible. This meant giving Stilwell much greater authority. Chiang, on the other hand, wanted Stilwell—or his successor—to serve in the role of a subordinate, taking orders without questioning their wisdom.

Censorship Hides Moves.

Chungking, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—It can be disclosed that Gen. Stilwell received his recall from Washington on Thursday, October 19. At 5 o'clock the next afternoon he took formal leave of Chiang Kai-shek. The following day, Saturday, Gen. Stilwell drove to the airport and left China. Brooks Atkinson, New York Times correspondent, left for the United States with him.]

The correspondents in Chungking knew that Gen. Stilwell had left, but were unable to say so. They expected to have an opportunity to give the background when Washington, on October 28, announced Gen. Stilwell's recall, but iron-clad censorship as relentless as any ever imposed by Chungking—both American and Chinese—clamped down.

The next day only eight words, broken from the context so as to be meaningless, remained of the Associated Press dispatches after the censors had finished with it. Even such innocuous sentences as the American Army censor permitted, the Chinese cut out.

[A total of 426 words of this dispatch, including most of the first section, was deleted by Chinese censorship, though American censorship at Chungking passed the story in toto.]

There was no response today to efforts to obtain a statement from Chiang. Rumors, purveyed as fact, are current that the American attitude on the question of overall Allied command in China is unchanged and that Major-Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, President Roosevelt's representative here, renewed the original proposals after Gen. Stilwell's departure.

Two Possibilities Discussed.

Gen. Stilwell's removal passed without a flurry in the capital, which knew days in advance that this development impended. The crux of the matter was that the United States, in giving military aid to China, wished to see it employed as efficiently as possible.

This would mean giving Gen. Stilwell a much greater say. On the other hand Chiang wanted Gen. Stilwell—or his successor—to fulfill the role of a subordinate, taking orders without questioning their wisdom. Two possibilities are being discussed here concerning future developments.

One thought is that Japan may be defeated elsewhere first and that then the Chinese will be given aid on their mainland. The contrary theory is that an American landing on the China coast is projected, but that all the American forces in China would come under the naval commander leading the expedition. However, more and more the belief is growing in this capital that Japan's drive in South China has altered conditions under which the landings were planned originally, necessitating the employment of an entirely different strategy.

Stilwell Recall Purely Military, Chinese Say

Chungking, Nov. 1 (AP)—Chinese Minister of Information Liang Hanchao told foreign correspondents today that the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell to Washington was purely a military matter and for that reason no comment would be forthcoming here.

"Inasmuch as this is a military matter—a change of military personnel—we have no statement to make," Liang replied in response to a query at a press conference.

"No Political Issue"

"There is no political issue, then?" a correspondent asked.

"No," interjected Foreign Office Spokesman Dr. K. C. Wu. "President Roosevelt has made that clear."

Liang denied a suggestion that the Chinese Government had taken the attitude that if the correspondents did not like the increasingly severe censorship they could get out of China.

NAZI PROPAGANDA TURNS TO CHINA

By Associated Press.

The Berlin radio, in a characteristic effort to make pro-Axis propaganda of events in Allied countries, broadcast today the following interpretation of the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell:

"The fundamental difficulties of an accord between Chungking, China and the United States, which by the sudden discharge of Gen. Stilwell are becoming known the world over in their full extent, found a wide echo in the world press. United States imperialism, which would like to rule Chungking China as it pleases, at last has been given the proper answer.

"The German attitude on the Stilwell case is defined by the Volkischer Beobachter with the following words: 'Washington tried to put the blame for the Chungking troops' defeats exclusively in the shoulders of Chungking's military command, in other words meaning Chiang Kai-shek. Washington is silent on the lack of any effective help, especially the failure to deliver heavy weapons.

"'Growing recognition is hidden behind Chungking's angry answers that China is no ally of equal rights for the United States, but merely a deployment area in the war against Japan, and an object of colonization after the war.'"

JAPS URGE CHAING TO JOIN WITH THEM

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP) A Japanese broadcast beamed to China last night urged Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to join his "kith and kin, the one billion peoples of Asia," in Japan's war against the United States and Britain.

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, followed announcement of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's recall from China, and declared "It might be easy to deal with Communists with Japanese aid."

Nelson To Go To China Despite Stilwell Affair

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Donald Nelson, President Roosevelt's production trouble-shooter, is slated to return to China soon to help step up munitions production. The White House evidently believes the Stilwell affair has not prejudiced his chances for success.

Previous Arrangements

In fact, it was learned today that some of the arrangements previously made for invigorating China's war effort are believed not to have been upset by the President's recall of General Joseph W. Stilwell at the request of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

That is the interpretation authoritatively placed on Mr. Roosevelt's emphatic assertion that the trouble was a clash of personalities on the part of the general and the generalissimo and that policy and strategy issues were not involved.

There are several such issues involved in the Chinese situation, however, and the progress made in solving them can be reported on the highest authority as developing along these lines:

Chiang Agrees

Before Nelson and Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley went to China two months ago Chiang Kai-Shek had fully agreed that his armies should have an American combat commander. He had agreed, despite a long record of past differences, that that commander should be General Stilwell.

Stilwell's recall did not change the principle but merely the man. Presumably, if the shifting strategy of the war still calls for major combat use of Chinese forces at this stage of fighting Maj. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer, or some one agreed upon by him and Chiang, will still take the command.

Hurley To China

The President sent Hurley to China as his special representative with direct access to the White House. The Chinese wanted it that way. The situation reflected a breakdown in the diplomatic functions which should have been exercised by Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss, whose relations with the Chinese were limited to formalities. Now as part of Mr. Roosevelt's clean sweep of top American assignments in Chungking Gauss is coming home to stay.

Hurley also had a specific mission. It was and is—since he is still in China—to bring together Chiang and the Chinese Communists in the north. The two factions have openly fought or covertly feared each other for many years—but the prospect of an agreement between them today is considered better than it has been at any time in the past.

Nelson's Mission

Nelson was sent to China to see what he could do about encouraging the Chinese to make better use of even their limited production facilities. He found much to be done, due chiefly to lack of organization experience on the part of the Chinese. He is said to believe that still more can be accomplished and he is going back.

With a political system based on outmoded warlordism and family supremacy, Chungking presents problems to such men as Hurley, Nelson and Wedemeyer which are unlike the intergovernmental problems found anywhere else in the world.

But the stake is large. If the Chinese can be persuaded to make full use of their potential against Japan, the United States will not have to fight a major war against the Japanese on the continent of Asia.

Otherwise it will either have to do the job itself at a great cost in manpower and time, as well as wealth, or hope that Russia can do it, which probably would lead to a postwar world of three instead of four great powers, with the United States and Russia having to share direct responsibility for order and peace in Asia.

SAYS ROOSEVELT 'WHITEWASHES' STILWELL CASE

Congressman Judd Pledges 'True' Explanation in 24 Hours.

CHINA CENSORS NEWS HEAVILY

Chungking Deleted Almost All Facts, Though General Left in Mid-October.

Minneapolis, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Representative Walter H. Judd (R.-Minn.), in a speech at a Republican rally here today, said that "certain essential facts which I know to be true which really forced the showdown in China and the withdrawal of Gen. Joseph Stilwell were skillfully omitted from the administration's statement." Promising a formal and complete statement within twenty-four hours, Dr. Judd declared:

"All we got from the White House was the official, regular whitewash of the American position, leaving practically all of the blame on China. I think it is deplorable that such a statement should be issued now, leaving practically all the blame on China when all of our hopes for an early victory over Japan depend on Chinese morale and her and our ability to work togetherr with maximum efficiency against the Japs on the mainland of Asia."

Dr. Judd returned from the Far East only recently.

Spur To China As Shakeup Aim

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt is making a clean sweep of top American personnel in China, including Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss, in a supreme attempt to reinvigorate the Chinese war effort under leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Doubt that the move will succeed is already apparent in military quarters here where strategists speak with less and less confidence about China's future war role.

Diplomatists are still hopeful that Chiang may be induced to shake up his government and army command and reconcile himself to the Communists in North China in order to strengthen his government. The whole issue within China should come to a head in the Kuomintang party's Central Executive Committee the middle of this month.

Roosevelt's Moves

Apparently to save what he can in line with American policy of building up China as a power now and a great post-war nation, President Roosevelt has made these moves thus far:

1. Recalled Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell from his triple China-Burma-India command at the request of Chiang and replaced him with Maj. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer.

2. Announced at yesterday's news conference the resignation of Ambassador Gauss. Close official associates of Gauss had said virtually up to the time of the announcement that they knew of no plans for him to come home.

3. Stated that Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, his special roving envoy, was still in China. Hurley, by most responsible accounts, went to China to try to help step up the war effort and get Chiang together with the Communists.

The fact that he is still there suggests a belief in the continuing possibility of some success.

Clash Of Personalities

The President told reporters there was no connection, evidently meaning no direct connection, between the recall of Stilwell and the resignation of Gauss. He said that Stilwell's return was purely and simply a result of a clash of personalities between the general and Chiang Kai-shek and had nothing to do with strategy or policies.

For himself, Mr. Roosevelt said, he thinks that Stilwell has done supremely well; he likes the general personally; he considers that he has an excellent record. The President left no doubt that while he heeded Chiang's request to replace Stilwell he did not thereby intend any reflection on the general.

Chiang Favors Caution

Mr. Roosevelt did not go into the background of differences between the general and generalissimo, but it is common knowledge among reporters who have served in China and military and diplomatic men here that the two had been at odds since the battle of the Burma road two years ago; that Chiang had ever since favored a more cautious strategy than Stilwell considered desirable.

Significant Move

The case of Ambassador Gauss is somewhat different. He and the Chinese leader have never been more than formally friendly. He has wanted to come home for a long time, expressing the wish to a friend here a year ago, when he was back for consultations. His wishes had been well known throughout the present period of disagreements, but usual diplomatic sources knew nothing about their being acted upon at last.

President Roosevelt's acceptance of his resignation at this time, therefore, was regarded as a significant move in relation to the entire problem of China. The circumstances around it implied that what is being done is at the highest levels of government, under the personal direction of Mr. Roosevelt.

Dispatches from correspondents recently returned from the China-Burma-India theater meanwhile reported deep-rooted Chinese-American differences over United States proposals to intensify China's war role.

An Associated Press veteran of Chinese reporting, J. Reilly O'Sullivan, wrote from New York that the Stilwell affair and the culmination of disagreements over China's war role "puts it squarely up to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to prove that his Government merits a leading place among the United Nations."

It was clear that the historic thinking of the war lord still was dominant. Planning was guided in the long view toward the situation that would exist after the war.

The tragedy of this planning and fighting is two-fold. It envisages a continuance of the sectional goverment by chieftains that so long has kept China dismembered. It is being done without the knowledge of a people, who already have proven the most patient, sacrificial, courageous and long-suffering of any free people on earth.

Reports of military, economic and financial fraternizing of Chinese with Japanese, were common in Chungking. This conduct was justified for reasons of strategy or economic relief by persons in both military and political positions.

At the same time, one was told of battles in which the Chinese showed themselves to be great fighters when given the incentive, the leadership and the equipment that soldiers of any country need to wage aggressive warfare.

Gloom In Chungking

How long the main features of this situation have existed is problematical. But long before the early part of this year there was evidence of discord in the whole atmosphere of the Chinese capital. General gloom, distress, frustration, dissatisfaction, dissension, disappointment and criticism were voiced or observed everywhere.

While the clash between Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell strikes at the core of the upheaval and much is being made of its significance, actually it seemed to be much more than a disagreement from a military standpoint or a difference in personalities.

Unchecked Inflation

The financial and the economic affairs of China were in a confused state. Inflation knew no bounds. Exchange hardly existed in the usual meaning of the word. Dealings in contraband, including open barter and sale between the Japanese and Chinese near the front, were going on with the knowledge of the Government and in some instances were actually being encouraged.

The encouragement was on the ground that the availability of this material to the Chinese people relieved their desperate need and that the Japanese, paid in Chinese gold or other currency, were accumulating a currency which in the end would be wholly valueless to them.

Communists Feared

There is no doubt that in the mind of Chiang Kai-shek and most of his advisers the Chinese Communists represent a critical threat to China and to the Central Government.

Undoubtedly the Central Government's decision to "safeguard" the Communist border has removed a very large number of trained Chinese troops from warfare against the Japanese.

The Chinese Communist was described to me by responsible residents of China as a different individual in belief and action than was associated with the meaning of the name in the early days of its use. On all sides it was stated that the Communists were of and for the Chinese; that there was little relationship with any other Communists except in connecting the name with a Chinese cause.

Whatever the merit of the political controversy, it seemed to representatives of some other governments that the policy of the Central Government toward the Communists had not been realistic.

Have "Embassy" In Chungking

The Communists have maintained a liaison with the central government in the form of an "embassy" in Chungking. There have been a number of Communist "ambassadors." These Communist representatives have emphasized that their patriotism and devotion to the Chinese military effort speaks for itself. They take pride in describing their tactics and strategy and point to the effectiveness of their army and guerrilla activities against the Japanese.

They assert that the Communist war has been carried on despite the added hardships of the need for embargoed food and equipment.

They speak freely of their lack of connection with Russian Communism and state that on a number of occasions they have given long and serious consideration to the question of changing the name of the faction to something more nearly reflecting its place in China.

Want "Fifth" Freedom

I asked a leader of the Communists if he could state clearly and simply what the Communists wanted in China. That would be quite easy, he said, because it was only the Four Freedoms enunciated by the President of the United States, plus a fifth—the freedom of economy.

By freedom of economy he said he meant the right of the Chinese people as a whole to fully enjoy the social, economic and security benefits granted the American people.

This same person stoutly denied that the Communists wanted or expected control of the Chinese Government, now or in the future.

He said the Communists realistically recognized that they were a minority—but a potent minority—and all that they wished the Government to do was adopt the social measures they desired for all the Chinese people.

Total Censorship

As a newspaperman, I was dismayed to see how little freedom there was in the exchange or publication of news in China.

Military censorship was of course to be expected, but I had not expected such total censorship.

In most countries wartime censorship applies primarily to news leaving the country for distribution abroad. News from abroad delivered to China is subjected to the same censorship.

In none of the foreign countries I visited did I find such efficient and thorough administration of censorship.

Government "Not Democratic"

Visitors to wartime China inevitably draw the conclusion that the present government of China is not democratic.

Allied representatives inside China say they have been keeping their governments constantly advised of developments leading to a serious eruption at the top.

I asked several of these authorities how their governments could support the existing Chinese regime. There were many answers, but they all simmered down to one theme—that the present head of the Chinese government was the only individual around whom unoccupied China would rally and support the continuing war against Japan.

Asia War Called Job For U. S. By Chinese, Writer Says

NOV 2 1944

By Lloyd Stratton

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—While I was in various parts of unoccupied China in January and February, the statement was made to me that it would be largely up to the American forces to win the war in China, with the aid of the British and the Chinese, in that order.

It was explained that this was not due to any lack of bravery, devotion or ability on the part of the Chinese armed forces. It was due chiefly to the inability to obtain for proper training and equipping the number of Chinese troops necessary.

Chiang's Fears Explained

But it was frankly stated that the basic reason why a relatively paltry amount of Chinese manpower was made available was Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's reluctance to permit any large number of Chinese to be foreign trained or commanded in fear that in the course of time these same Chinese troops might turn against him.

British Drive Toward Maylu

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 1. (AP)—British troops have driven two more miles down the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad in northern Burma to within one mile of Maylu, 65 miles southwest of Myitkyina, the Allied command announced today.

Units of the 36th British Division made this advance in the new Allied drive to open a land route to China, the daily bulletin said. In one small engagement they killed 27 of the enemy.

To the east Chinese units continued patrol action in the area of Myohit, 24 miles northeast of Bhamo, in other operations forming a part of the new campaign.

In northwestern Burma the Fifth Indian Division cleared a Japanese strongpoint which had been barring the Allied advance southeastward from Tiddim along the Tiddim-Fort White road.

Allied forces pursuing the Japanese in this region re-established contact 12 miles from Tiddim, the daily bulletin said.

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 1 (AP)—British troops in a two-mile gain down the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway corridor have advanced to within a mile of the North Burma town of Mawlu, 95 airplane miles southwest of Myitkyina, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

Chinese Lose Lingchwan, 13 Miles North Of Key City.

CHUNGKING, Nov. 1—(AP)—Three Japanese columns have forced their way into the suburbs of Kweilin, strategic Chinese base in Kwangsi province, and a fourth is within two miles of the city, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Describing the battle for Kweilin, site of a former U. S. air base, the high command said a reinforced Japanese column pressing from the east forced a crossing of the Kwei river and broke through Chinese defenses to the city's railroad station.

Another enemy column entered suburbs of the town, but was beaten back. A third column crossed the Li river south of the city and pushed to the outskirts. Still another column was reported within two miles east of the town.

Fierce Fighting

Fierce fighting was reported in progress.

The Chinese communique also admitted the loss of Lingchwan, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad 13 miles north of Kweilin.

On the West river front in southern Kwangsi, the high command said, reinforced Japanese troops made further advances from positions west of Pingnam. Both sides, the communique said, suffered heavy casualties.

The Japanese advance west of Pingnam carried the invaders toward Mosun on the Liu river, only 45 miles south of Liuchow, the enemy's grand objective in the westward offensive.

Fighter planes of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Chinese-American wing pounded Japanese positions in the Kweilin-Chuanhsien area heavily Monday and Tuesday, destroying 51 trucks and damaging 69.

Of the Yunnan province campaign to the west, the communique said mopping up of a Japanese position three miles east of the Burma road town of Mangshih was almost completed.

KWEILIN'S STATION CAPTURED BY JAPS

Chungking, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The Japanese have battled into the north railway station of Kweilin, key defense center for southeastern China, the Chinese High Command announced tonight. Heavy fighting also was in progress in the eastern suburbs of the Kwangsi capital, the Chinese admitted, as three enemy columns continued their drive on the city.

Fighter planes of Major-Gen. Claire L. Chenault's Chinese-American wing heavily pounded Japanese positions in the Kweilin area and during Sunday and Monday killed more than 475 enemy troops, an American communique said. Twelve bridges on Japanese supply lines leading toward Kweilin were bombed.

On the West River front, in Kwangsi, near Dosing, P-51 fighters hit river shipping in repeated missions, damaging barges and sampans. A radio station at Dosing was left burning.

The Tokyo radio said that Kweilin was ringed on all sides and the Japanese were tightening the encirclement.

Chungking, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Chinese troops have captured a Japanese position three miles northeast of the Burma Road town of Mangshih in Yunnan Province, after a two-day fight, a Chinese communique announced today.

B-29 Bests 79 Foes

A B-29 Base in Western China, Nov. 1 (AP)—A single American Superfortress met 79 Japanese fighter planes in a four-hour running battle, downed seven and damaged two, and emerged without a scratch, interrogation officers disclosed yesterday.

Over Kyushu, a flight of nine Japanese pursuit planes jumped the bomber as it was heading home. Three were shot down and the others broke off.

Ten new Japanese fighters showed up. Four were downed and the others gave up.

Off the China coast 60 fighters rose. The B-29 gunners, running low on ammunition, held their fire for the few who dared to close in. Two of these were damaged.

The B-29 landed unscathed on its home field during a Japanese air raid.

Tokyo's Radios Report Raiding By Superforts

Messages Conflict, Unconfirmed; First Bombing Since 1942.

(By the Associated Press)

Japan's radios blurred out confusedly that U. S. Superfortresses raided Tokyo yesterday and they hinted that they threw some parts of the capital into panic.

Some factories "lost their calmness" during the ordeal, one announcer reported. This presumably was due to fire or fear of fire in the readily combustible metropolitan areas.

The reports, conflicting and unconfirmed, were picked up by the Federal Communications Commission and reception was incomplete. The U. S. War Department said it had no word of aerial operations over Tokyo.

First Raid Since 1942

If substantially true, this outburst signified the first air raid on the Japanese capital since April 18, 1942, when Lt. Gen. James M. Doolittle's carrier based B-25s gave the city its first load of U. S. bombs.

It also apparently was the first visit of Superfortresses to Tokyo. They have attacked elsewhere in the Nippon homeland six times, mainly against naval and ship repair points.

The enemy reports at first said two Superfortresses raided Tokyo. Then they changed it to only one plane. Finally they announced that several of the big planes had appeared and that they remained over the area for about half an hour. One of them said the planes dropped no bombs.

One broadcast asserted the planes "fled hastily" during a counter-attack of some kind. Details were not given. Another said the Superforts did not attempt to attack. A third reported they were driven off by fighter planes.

Another version said no air raid warning was given. This was the one which tattled about the loss of composure in the factories. It also admonished the people to tighten up their air raid defense machinery and reminded them that their homes would burn easily.

Still another said an air raid alarm was sounded and that aerial defense headquarters issued instructions.

Pass Over Kanto

They agreed fairly well that the raiders passed over the Kanto region, which is the eastern section of Honshu island, including Tokyo and Yokohama, and that they probably came from the Marianas islands, where the Americans have moved in, on Saipan, Tinian and Guam.

Another announcer stated "several tens of large type planes made two raids in the morning on Truk island from the direction of the Marianas" and that it was almost certain they were B-29s.

A propaganda broadcaster termed the raid "a Roosevelt face-saving aerial stunt" and said it was staged as a pre-election gesture to cover up the "American debacle" in the recent naval battles off Formosa and the Philippines, which cost Japan more than 60 warships sunk or damaged. This broadcaster said the raid also was for reconnaissance purposes.

Reconnaissance Version

The Japanese today attempted to give the reconnaissance version official status through Kenichi Kumagai, vice chief of Nippon's air defense general headquarters.

He said no bombs fell but was quite critical of the people's conduct and the state of air preparations in the Tokyo area.

Kumagai's remarks to the people were as contradictory as Tokyo reports beamed to America. He said they were too jittery—then in the next breath, said they didn't take shelter fast enough. But then he added, there were not enough air raid shelters.

He catuioned Tokyo residents to keep more water on hand because there will be more raids.

Kumagai said the air raid alarm was sounded in the Kanto area, which embraces Tokyo and Yokohama.

U. S. Silent on Japs' Tokyo Raid Reports

'Several' American Warships Were Damaged in Great Sea Battle—MacArthur's Men Push Ahead on Leyte Despite Strong Enemy Resistance.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tokyo radio reported that U. S. Superfortresses bombers struck for the first time at Japan's sprawling and highly inflammable capital city yesterday.

There was no U. S. confirmation of the report, which said the bombers probably came from the Marianas islands, where there are American airfields 1,400 miles from Japan. It would be the first raid on Tokyo since Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's B-25s hit the city April 18, 1942, and the seventh Superfortress attack on the Nipponese homeland.

Damage to "several" United States warships of the Third and Seventh fleets during battles in Philippines waters Oct. 22-27, was reported by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz last night.

The Navy previously had announced that six American ships—the light carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, two destroyers and a destroyer escort—were sunk in the actions that cost the Japanese at least 60 warcraft sunk or damaged.

Names of the damaged American ships were not revealed for such information would be of interest to the enemy.

Nimitz' communique also reported American aerial attacks on Japanese bases from Paramushiro, in the Kurile islands of northeast Japan, to the Marshall Islands in the central Pacific.

Smash Counterattacks

Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported that the 24th division, moving toward Carigara from the south, smashed heavy enemy counterattacks while the First Cavalry made progress on the town from the east. MacArthur said the Japanese were fighting to keep open an escape route south toward Ormoc.

Fifth U. S. Air Force fighter planes and Navy PT boats struck at enemy supply and reinforcement activities at Ormoc, sinking a small freighter and a lugger and destroying a big ammunition dump in the area.

The Americans had the official help of Filipino guerrillas who were classified as a "recognized military force" in a proclamation by Sergio Osmena, president of the Philippine commonwealth.

In China, Liang Han-Chao, Minister of Information, told foreign correspondents the recent recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell to Washington was a "military matter," therefore Generalisimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government would have no statement on the subject.

Liang said there was no political issue involved in Stilwell's recall.

Raid On Tokyo Is Reported By Japs

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP)—Superforts bombed Tokyo today in the first American raid on the Nipponese capital in more than two years, unconfirmed Japanese radio reports indicated.

In a series of confused reports, Tokyo radio said a B-29, apparently from a newly developed base in the Marians Islands, appeared over the capital, but left "without attempting attacks"; that several four-engined planes were over the city; that at least one plane raided a factory district, throwing workers into confusion.

The reports all agreed that an enemy plane or planes were over the Tokyo area around 1 P. M. Wednesday (Tokyo time).

Plane Flees, Japs Say

One broadcast, recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission, giving detailed instructions on combating fires in inflammable Tokyo, said "an enemy plane suddenly raided part of the Kanto region," an important industrial area covering the entire area around the capital and embracing several prefectures.

"Several enemy four-motored bombers" roared over the capital at 1 P. M. but were driven off, the first Tokyo report said.

A later broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said:

"Latest reports disclose only one enemy plane, a B-29 bomber, and not two as believed earlier, appeared over Tokyo early this afternoon." Half an hour later, the broadcast continued, "without attempting attacks, the enemy plane fled in a southerly direction."

Confusion Recalled

The contradiction of succeeding reports recalled the confusion among Tokyo broadcasters when Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle's bombers struck the city, April 18, 1942. This is the first report of American planes over the city since then.

At the time of the Marianas invasion there was much speculation that engineers would build a huge base on Saipan for Tokyo-raiding B-29s. There has never been any confirmation that such a base was developed.

Neither China-based Superforts nor any other land-based bombers have previously been reported over Tokyo.

Fire Instructions

Tokyo announcers issued detailed fire-precaution instructions and warned "Japanese homes are firetraps."

An air-raid alarm was sounded, and the "air-defense central headquarters" issued instructions concerning an "enemy" raid," Tokyo said.

A series of broadcasts followed the first reports of the enemy flight and Japanese propagandists swiftly claimed the planes had been sent as a "Roosevelt face-saving aerial stunt" to cover the alleged "American debacle" off Formosa and the Philippines before the election.

One later broadcast quoted "reports" that "some of the factory workers lost their calmness." Then it became completely unintelligible for about two minutes, monitors reported.

Dogfights Reported

After becoming audible again, the announcer said "if one follows instructions, he will be able to put out the fire easily."

This indicated havoc had been caused, although none of the broadcasts reported that bombs were dropped, beyond the blanket implication of the "raid" by one plane.

Metropolitan Tokyo, said one broadcast, "witnessed the thrill of Japanese fighter planes in a catch-as-catch-can chase against several unidentified planes that soared over the capital shortly after 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon" (Tokyo time).

Jap Forces Land On Peleliu Isle, Tokyo Says

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP)—A Japanese imperial communique today claimed that Japanese assault troops landed on the north coast of Peleliu, an American-conquered island in southern Palau, at dawn Wednesday (Japanese time).

The communique, picked up in a broadcast recorded here, asserted "a special torpedo assault unit" attacked an American convoy east of Peleliu while the landing was being made.

It said four United States transports were sunk and two others heavily damaged.

No Allied Confirmation

The Japanese communique was wholly unconfirmed.

Most of the Palau Islands, some 500 miles east of the Philippines, were left in Japanese hands by United States invasion forces which took over the southern islands in the group in September.

Later Tokyo broadcasts said the counterinvasion occurred October 28.

Propagandists said the landings were made by "Japanese death-defying corps" from "Palau Island," presumably Babelthuap, largest island in the group.

"Coast Area Occupied"

The corps, Tokyo radio said, "occupied the northern coast of Peleliu and is now heavily attacking the invaders." It asserted landing parties were steadily driving south, while "Japanese defense units on the center" of Peleliu were "strengthening their counterattacks."

Japanese holed up on Bloody Nose Ridge, in the center of Peleliu, were the last units to be wiped out. Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported mopping up continued in this sector October 20, more than a month after the American invasion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP) — The latest Tokyo radio broadcast, recorded by NBC at 6:25 p. m., Eastern War Time, said regarding the air raid on Tokyo:

"The defense authorities, commenting on the flight of unidentified four-motored planes over metropolitan Tokyo shortly past noon Wednesday, disclosed that a few B-29 bombers soared over the city. The planes were greeted by a barrage from the capital's ground installations. Japanese fighter units, however, pursued the bombers which fled to the southeast without inflicting any damage. The planes are believed to have come from an American base in the Marianas."

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Thursday, Nov. 2 (AP) — Dismounted First Cavalry troops were locked today in a seesaw battle with a large Japanese force at Carigara for control of that town seven miles east of the only escape highway left open to the retreating enemy on Leyte.

Open Engagement

Maj. Gen. Verne Mudge's men, moving west along the Carigara bay coast from Barugo, opened the vital engagement yesterday just east of Carigara town.

Moving ahead after the skirmish, the troops encountered a larger enemy force and engaged it in the town itself whose fall would pave the way for a drive on Pinamopan, north terminus of the escape road to Ormoc.

While this fight continued, other Japanese strove with counterattacks, concentrated artillery and bridge demolitions to check another peril to Carigara town posed from the south by 24th Division troops of Maj. Gen. Fred Irving.

Heavy Mortar Fire

Heavy mortar fire pinned down the Yanks for hours. General Irving countered with an intense bombardment of the enemy positions. Still the Japanese held on. Sherman tanks tried to break through over broken terrain but failed in the face of point blank fire.

The Nipponese were dislodged only after the American infantrymen had outflanked the enemy positions.

Today's communique paced the 24th within six miles of Carigara but field dispatches put them much closer, one saying they were only two miles from joining up with the First Cavalry in the showdown fight.

Clarifying the military intentions of the enemy, today's communique said flatly the fighting around Carigara was intended by the Nipponese to hold open an escape route south toward Ormoc.

This would indicate the Japanese already have written off Leyte island as lost except for the usual delaying actions.

Jap Reinforcement

The Japanese, however, kept up [illegible] reinforcement of Ormoc.

First Cavalry units, which a few days ago actually entered Carigara from Barugo and then withdrew were once more approaching the stronghold.

The communique said the dismounted cavalry elements reported "sharp clashes around Carigara."

To the south where the Japanese have been so scattered that only cleanups remain, the erasure of holdout Japanese at Catmon Hill northwest of Dulag was reported.

Fifth Airforce fighters based on Leyte and speedy patrol torpedo boats constantly disrupted the Nipponese reinforcement activities at Ormoc, blasting barges and also blowing up a big ammunition dump in that area. A small freighter and lugger were sunk.

Harassing Attack

The weakened enemy airforce tried more harassing attacks. Six were shot down by fighters, a seventh by anti-aircraft fire at a cost of one American fighter.

Converging from the south and east, American ground forces battered through roadblocks and hurled aside enemy counterattacks in their drive pressing the Japanese defenders of northern Leyte Island against the Carigara coast for a showdown fight.

Infantry units of the 24th Division, advancing from the south, drove to within less than five miles of the coastal town of Carigara after smashing an enemy rearguard concentration. It appeared a decisive battle may be fought at Carigara.

(A late dispatch from Australia reported the Yanks of the 24th had narrowed the gap to Carigara to two miles.)

Toward Carigara

The dismounted First Cavalry Division pushed along the coast from the east toward Carigara. It was operating from Barugo, a coastal town five miles from Carigara.

Loss of Carigara probably would mean the collapse of Japanese resistance in northern Leyte as it is the last strategic base in enemy hands of the mountainous backbone running the length of the island.

As the encirclement shaped up to the north, patrols of the 24th corps in the central sector probed mountain trails leading to the west coast. The central forces had pushed half way across the narrow waist of the island. Their objective was to squeeze the enemy in that area into a last-ditch stand on the shores of Ormoc Bay.

Put Up Stiff Fight

The Japanese have been sending reinforcements to the Carigara area from Ormoc bay at night and were expected to put up a stuff fight for Ormoc's coastline.

Only possible escape route for the Japanese being cornered at Carigara was westward along the coast some 15 miles or more to Pinamopoan. A winding trail leads south from there to Ormoc bay, over which the Japanese reinforcements were being sent to Carigara.

Another mountain trail runs northwest 20 miles or more to Leyte, a municipal center on the Leyte river just above its mouth on Leyte bay. There is no good port, however, west of Pinamopoan on the north coast.

Capture Tunga

In driving coastward on the Jaro-Carigara highway, the 24th division doughboys captured the town of Tunga. The retiring Japanese delayed further advance for a time by blowing up a bridge at the north end of the town.

Between Jaro and Tunga the infantry ran into an important roadblock, reported Fred Hampson, AP war correspondent. The enemy subjected the highway to a concentration of heavy and light artillery, mortar and machine gun fire.

Once this strongpoint was eliminated, a swift advance of three miles was made before the next obstacle was encountered. There the Japanese had drawn up several tanks to contest the American advance. The enemy defense was being whittled down, Hampson reported, but progress was slow.

Only Two Miles From Carigara

NOV 2 1944 — MCDANIEL

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 1 (AP)—Doughboys of the 24th Division smashed another Japanese rear-guard concentration and advanced to within five miles of the strategic coastal village of Carigara today, as another American column on the coast braced itself for a possible climactic battle or Nipponese counterattack.

(Later Australian dispatches reported the 24th Division had driven within two miles of Carigara and the Seventh Division columns in the south had pushed halfway across Leyte Island.)

The infantrymen captured the town of Tunga, on the Jaro-Carigara highway which runs through northwestern Leyte Valley. Retiring enemy forces blew up a bridge at the end of the town, however, and further advance appeared to be halted temporarily. DAY

Japs Outflanked

Two miles eastward, along the highway, the doughboys broke the back of another Japanese delaying concentration. Associated Press War Correspondent Fred Hampson reported the Japanese raked the roads with heavy and light artillery, mortars and machine guns, exacting a "considerable toll."

The Nipponese withdrew only after Americans had hammered the roadside for hours with artillery and had thrown a flanking column around the enemy.

Poised At Barugo

The second American column, the First Cavalry Division, wasp poised at Barugo, a coastal town five miles from Carigara. The Japanese must stop both prongs of the American advance or lose their last strategic base northeast of Leyte's man-killing, heavily jungled mountains.

If they fail to stop the attacks the Japanese must drop back along a single escape route skirting the coast to Pinamopoan, only spot from which they might negotiate a winding trail over the mountains to the south.

This trail has been the route of Japanese reinforcements brought from Cebu via Ormoc Bay and the forces in the north must reverse their travel on the same treacherous road or face annihilation. No good port lies west of Pinamopoan, on the north coast, and only a trail leads even to the scattered villages.

Slowed By Road Block

The 24th Division moving northwest of captured Jaro was slowed when it met a strong Japanese road block, but later whittled down the desperate opposition and resumed its advance.

That a battle for Carigara was certain was indicated by the continued flow of Japanese reinforcements and by the strong stand the defenders were making with road blocks against both American forces.

The probability of a counterattack was stressed by Maj. Gen. Franklin C. Sibert, commanding the 10th Corps (of which the 24th Division is a part). He expected at least one Japanese attempt within the next few days to stop the American advance. This could even develop into one of the familiar Banzai charges met so often before when a Japanese force was compressed into a small area.

Marines Taking Part

(A delayed dispatch from Leif Erickson on Leyte disclosed for the first time that marine artillerymen are participating in the invasion of the Philippines. Artillery of the 24th Corps is made up of both army and marine battalions.)

In the rear of the American advance, some 1,500 to 2,000 Japs trapped near Dagami were killed in an artillery barrage and flame-thrower attack, adding them to a previous total of more than 24,000 enemy casualties.

Arms Dumps Blown Up

At Jaro, Americans and guerrillas blew up half a dozen Japanese ammunition dumps.

From Cebu, Japanese reinforcement barges were reported still moving toward Leyte. These troops could be sent to help the be[illegible] leagured forces at Carigara or might form a defensive position at Ormoc, south of the mountains and more than 30 miles by road from present American positions. American planes destroyed or damaged 20 barges off Ormoc last night.

In the southern area controlled by Americans, Japanese made small and unsuccessful attacks against the 24th and Seventh Division positions, while other American units concentrated their attention on building up a line of supply and intermediate positions behind the forward units nearing Carigara.

Eleven Planes Bagged

Throughout the American area enemy aircraft continued harassing raids, losing 11 planes.

MacArthur's communique outlining the day's developments, was supplemented by a headquarters spokesman who predicted either a fight to the finish at Carigara or Ormoc, with the added possibility that new enemy troops might be used to cover evacuation of the remnant of the 16th Japanese Division, organizers of Bataan's "March of Death" and original defenders of Leyte. As a sidelight, a prisoner told an American general that the 16th had "been here so long we are soft."

30-Plane Ace Paces 2,594 Navy Bag

San Francisco, Nov. 1 (AP)—Japanese warplanes were declared in a Manila dispatch broadcast by the Tokyo radio today to have sunk an Allied cruiser early this morning (Philippine time) in "an effective raid against enemy war vessels in Leyte Gulf." The dispatch was without confirmation from either the Allied command or the enemy's Imperial headquarters. MCMURTRY

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 1 (AP)—Navy flyers, paced by an ace who downed nine Japs on one mission to Manila, destroyed from 2,594 to 2,846 Japanese planes during the two months American troops invaded Palau and the Philippines and the navy battered the enemy's imperial fleet.

The August 31 - October 31 scourge of the foe's air power in sweeps extending from the Philippines north to within 200 miles of Japan virtually nullified work of the enemy's assembly lines for the period and cut deep into her store of battle-tested pilots.

Better Than Eight To One

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, issuing this "conservative recapitulation of enemy aircraft losses," said the cost was about 300 carrier planes—a ratio of better than eight or nine to one in favor of the Yanks.

These achievements are those of Third and Seventh fleet carrier flyers alone. They do not include for the same period the bag by army flyers, who found the hunting good over such hotly defended spots as the oil center of Balikpapan on Borneo.

Showing the way for the navy is Commander David McCampbell, of Los Angeles, with 30 planes to his credit, including nine he got in less than two hours October 24 when he helped ch se a numerically superior group of Japanese all the way to Manila.

Two Other Probables

His bag that day might even have been 11. Two were listed as probables.

The carrier raiders blew up 1,132 planes on the ground, even though they attacked such strongpoints as Formosa and the network of fields at Manila.

The 2,594 planes definitely were destroyed. The other 252 were listed as probably destroyed or damaged.

Helping the invasion of Peleliu in southern Palau, the Third fleet's raiders shot down 362 planes and destroyed 584 more aground between September 9-24 on Palau and the Philippines.

Tipoff On Foe

October 10 to 16, when Admiral William F. Halsey's fleet attacked the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines to prepare for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion of Leyte, 528 enemy planes were shot down and 304 more destroyed aground.

As a tipoff of the weak air opposition Japan had left to offer as MacArthur's transports moved in, Halsey's planes could find only 55 to shoot down and 31 to destroy aground October 17-18 in the Philippines.

From October 22, when submarines opened the second naval battle of the Philippines Sea—the first was won west of the Marianas last June—until October 27, when the remnants of the Japanese fleet were on the run, Third and Seventh fleet carrier planes shot down 392 planes and destroyed 31 aground.

Bonins Toll Included

Other planes in the big tota were accounted for in operation which included the opening of Halsey's forays with an aerial blast at the Bonins.

Many of the pilots and crew members of the American planes shot down were rescued.

Some Damage To U. S. Ships In Philippines

By Charles H. McMurtry

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 1 (AP)—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today that "several" warships of the American Third and Seventh fleets were damaged in the second battle of the Philippine Sea Oct. 22-27, in which 60 or more Japanese ships were sunk, probably sunk or damaged.

Damage Unrevealed

The extent of the damage and the names of the vessels will not be made public at this time, Nimitz raid. He added:

"Such information would be of value to the enemy in estimating accurately the size of our naval forces operating in Philippine waters and what ships are available for immediate action."

Loss of the American light carrier Princeton, to escort carriers, to destroyers, one destroyer and a number of smaller craft—all unidentified—was announced previously by the Navy.

Nimitz made no mention of Japanese landings on Peleliu island, in the Paulu group of the western Carolines, as claimed today by the Tokyo radio. American ground forces invaded Peleliu and nearby islands in September. In his last report on the Peleliu operation—Oct. 23—Nimitz said mopping-up operations continued.

Raids by Army or Navy planes on enemy positions from the far northern Kurile islands to the Volcanos south of Japan and to Nauru and the Marshalls of the central Pacific were reported in today's communique.

Japan lost 2,846 planes destroyed or damaged by American naval fliers in September and October, a blow to the enemy's air arm perhaps matching the stunning defeat of Nippon's naval might in Philippine waters.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said the 2,846 aircraft included 1,462 bagged in the air, 1,132 destroyed on the ground and 252 damaged or probably destroyed. The figures are conservative, he said.

American naval plane losses during the same period were placed at approximately 300, a ratio of about one Yank aircraft to nine Japanese.

"Naval Runt"

This destruction of enemy aircraft gave added weight to the opinion of American naval officers that Japanese ship losses in Philippine battles last week made a "naval runt" of Nippon. Sixty enemy war craft were sunk or damaged in the sea engagements—including four carriers and two battleships sunk and seven battleships damaged.

Japanese plane production has been estimated at 1,200 to 1,500 per month, about equal to the losses tabulated by Nimitz for September and October.

Nimitz' figures do not include the enemy planes destroyed or put out of action by U. S. Army Air Forces operating in the Pacific.

Figures Unavailable

These figures are not now available, but probably will total many hundreds, thus keeping Japanese plane production far behind battle losses alone, not counting replacements for training and general wear and tear.

Nimitz' figures covered the pre-Philippine invasion period. The tol lof planes was taken by fliers of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet, which includes Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's Carrier Task Force 58, and Vice Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet.

Most of the Japanese were victims of Halsey's blows in the Bonin Islands, only 550 miles from Tokyo; the Palaus, Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines, in preparation for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion, and in the naval battle off Luzon, Philippines.

Kinkaid's fliers got their portion in covering MacArthur's landings at Leyte and in the naval engagements off Samar and Leyte.

Volcano Islands Bombed.

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—American planes delivered their first attack of the war on Kita Iwo in the Volcano Islands Saturday during raids which extended to within 615 miles of Tokyo, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight.

Kita (meaning north) Iwo (meaning sulphur) was one of two islands hit by search planes of Fleet Airwing One, resulting in one cargo ship being sunk, a second damaged and third set ablaze. The northernmost blow was struck the same day by Army Liberators of the Seventh Air Force at the harbor of Chichi in the Bonin Islands.

Admiral Nimitz also recalled that Navy flyers, paced by an ace who downed nine Japs on one mission to Manila, destroyed from 2,594 to 2,846 Jap planes during the two months American troops invaded Palau and the Philippines and the Navy crushed the enemy's imperial fleet.

The August 31-October 31 scourge of the foe's air power in sweeps extending from the Philippines north to within 200 miles of Japan virtually nullified work of the enemy's assembly lines for the period and cut deep into her store of battle-tested pilots.

Admiral Nimitz, issuing this "conservative recapitulation of enemy aircraft losses," said the cost was approximately 300 carrier planes—a ratio of better than eight or nine to one in favor of the Yanks.

OSMENA ACTS IN PHILIPPINES

NOV 2 1944

Reopens Post Offices and Issues Currency.

Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 28 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Embarking upon a program to wipe out every vestige of Jap influence, President Sergio Osmena and his Philippines Commonwealth Government today reopened post offices and issued "victory" currency based on the American dollar, with each peso worth about fifty cents.

President Osmena and his Cabinet, who landed with the American troops, already have held their first Cabinet meeting on Philippine soil, and have made rapid progress in the solution of the many problems facing the Government.

"It will be my cardinal policy to see to it that the slightest vestige of Japanese influence is destroyed," said Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of the Department of Information and Public Relations.

Jap Schools Abolished.

"Japanese language instruction has been abolished," he said, "and American patterns of education, used prior to the war, will be reestablished."

President Osmena has decided to reopen the Leyte Provincial Hospital, with free public dispensaries and a center where Filipinos can come for social services.

There has been a further reorganization of the Osmena cabinet. The Departments of Interior and Finance have been combined under Secretary of Interior Ismael Mathay, who was budget finance secretary. Mr. Mathay will be placed in charge of reorganization of the provincial municipal governments in liberated territory.

War Damage Survey.

Already President Osmena has begun work on one of the foremost problems—that of public and private war damage. He assigned Col. A. Melchor, now military and technical adviser, to begin gathering data on such damage for submission to the Philippines Rehabilitation Commission in Washington. This commission, headed by Senator Millard Tydings, is composed of nine Americans and nine Filipinos.

Immediate reorganization of the Philippine Army, with guerrilla forces as the nucleus, will be started, Gen. Romulo said. Guerrilla bands on Leyte already have been made a part of Lieut.-Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army. Plans also are under way to reorganize the Philippine constabulary.

President Osmena is considering creating a board of inquiry to investigate all cases of so-called collaborationists. Thus far, Gen. Romulo said, only about fifty persons have been arrested, and some of them are not classed as collaborationists.

OSMERS FINALLY IN PHILIPPINES

NOV 2 1944

Leyte, Philippine Islands, Oct. 20 Delayed) (A. P.).—Oh, well, said the Army captain as he waded ashore with assault troops on Leyte today, he'd been planning a trip to the Philippines anyhow.

The captain, Frank C. Osmers Jr. of Haworth, N. J., is a former Congressman and member of the House Committee on Insular Affairs, and the committee was planning to visit the Philippine Islands—until war disrupted the itinerary.

"I seem to have trouble with my trips," the ex-congressman laughed. "I was going to travel around the world, and the European war broke out. Then our plans for visiting the Philippines in 1942 had to be canceled."

Married two years ago and the father of a son he's never seen, the former New York jeweler drifted into Republican politics at the age of 21—and has been in ever since.

Re-elected to Congress in 1940, he voted for declaration of war on December 8, 1941—the day after Pearl Harbor and then immediately enlisted as a private.

Now he is liaison officer with one of the Army corps in the Phillippine invasion. He never discusses the fact he served in Congress, and most fellow officers do not know it.

The captain refuses to be quoted on any political matter—but he did let slip the fact he hopes some day to visit Hastings, Neb., again. It was in Hastings, long before the 1940 election, that he made a successful wager. He bet that President Roosevelt would not only seek a third term, but also a fourth.

Now if he can just recall who it was who made that bet with him. . . .

HOLLYWOOD FILMS BACK IN LEYTE

Tacloban, Leyte, P. I., Oct. 29 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Hollywood came to Tacloban tonight. The first picture shown in Tacloban's reopened theater was "Double Indemnity," a film of intrigue, suspense and murder.

Just as the picture was ending gunfire rang outside. The crowd began getting up hurriedly, thinking there was an air raid.

"Keep your seats" some one shouted from the balcony where the Filipinos were seated. No one did.

Outside soldiers milled around, with their rifles ready, in a sniper hunt. Most of them finally came back to see the other half of the double feature—a movie of the 1943 world series.

Filipino Guerrillas Officially In Army

Tacloban, Leyte, P. I., Nov. 1 (AP)—Filipino guerrillas were blanketed into the Philippine army by proclamation of Sergio Osmena, President of the Commonwealth.

His order, indicating how closely Filipino guerrillas worked with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, gave official status to the rank given in the field to every man in "a recognized military force."

"Recognized Force" Defined

A recognized military force was defined "as a force under a commander who has been appointed, designated or recognized by the commander in chief of the Southwest Pacific area."

The order was broadcast throughout the Philippines today over the "Voice of Freedom" radio by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Information in Osmena's Cabinet.

Natives On Samar Hail U. S. Troops

With the United States First Cavalry on Samar Island, Philippines, Oct. 23 (AP—Delayed)—Filipinos, waving American flags, hailed the first American troops landing today on this island, a steppingstone to Manila.

Major Raymond King, of Tucson, Ariz., who led both the landing and yesterday's preparatory reconnaissance, asked a Filipino:

"Did you know that General MacArthur had come to Tacloban (capital of adjacent Leyte Island) and had turned the Government back to President Osmena?"

"You mean Douglas MacArthur?" the Filipino asked incredulously, with emphasis on "Douglas."

When the major nodded, the Filipinos cheered enthusiastically.

JAPS TURN TOMB INTO A PILLBOX

With Seventh Division, Leyte, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An eerie twilight battle in a Dagami cemetery, with some Japanese fighting from an old Spanish-type crypt, was described today by Capt. Charles T. Frazee of Gresham, Ore. The fight lasted one hour and a half before the ghoulish Japanese were wiped out with flamethrowers.

Capt. Frazee's troops were about half way across, wading through ten-foot high grass, when the lead scouts were killed by snipers. Two other scouts were wounded trying to recover the bodies.

Then Private Abraham Cohen of Brooklyn, spotted the snipers firing from a crypt, which they had broken open. Other Japs were dug in behind tombstones.

The flamethrower killed eighteen Japs, while others recovered the wounded.

While poking into holes along the trail, Sergt. Jack T. Lewis of Wilmington, Cal., flushed a Jap captain, who charged with his sabre. One soldier was wounded in the hip by the Jap before he was killed by Pfc. Harry Trahan of New Orleans, La.

"The man attacked with the sword got the Jap's pistol," said First Lieut. Charley Duddy of 219 St. Ann's street, Brooklyn, "and the man wounded with the pistol got the sword."

Armed Filipinos Fight Way To Yank Lines

With Seventh Infantry Division, Leyte, Nov. 1 (AP)—A Filipino guerrilla who looks like a small edition of Pancho Villa, came down from the mountains today with his band, bent on joining American invasion forces.

He is Capt. Jesus Olmedo, a scout for the regular army from 1918 to 1933. His squad was armed with tommyguns and carbines they said were smuggled by American friends.

110 Fighting Men

As the guerrillas marched through recaptured Burauen the Filipinos lined the streets and cheered. There were 110 fighters.

Said Olmedo: "I've been waiting a long time for you Americans."

Olmedo brought his men from the hills through enemy lines. His guerrillas fought the Japanese wherever they could catch them, he said. They started fights on the average of two or three times a month.

"Rarely Missed"

Bullets and guns were hard to get, but "we didn't waste many bullets," he said. "We generally got to within 20 to 50 yards and rarely missed."

Olmedo's band killed 200 Japanese and lost only eight men during their campaign. They used shotguns made from gas pipe before American arms were smuggled to them last June.

Olmedo said the Japanese were poor soldiers.

"They actually were babes in the jungles."

Soldier Directs Fire 40 Yards From Japs

With 24th Division in Leyte Valley, Oct. 28 (AP—Delayed)—Technical Sergeant Raymond Simmons, of Alto, Ga., an observer for a mortar section, had a ringside seat when his unit ran into a Japanese concentration in the Leyte Valley advance.

He crawled to within 40 yards of the Japanese and directed fire which fell so close to him that he was bounced by each explosion.

Returned A Bit Woozy

Simmons returned to his unit a bit woozy from concussion, but his direction destroyed 27 Japanese.

"He registered us in so close to himself," said First Lieutenant E. W. Schachameyer, of St. Louis, Mo., "that I didn't expect to hear his voice on the phone again. But he always came through and gave us perfect targets."

Marine battalions in the composite army-marine 24th Corps artillery are the only marine units participating in the initial reinvasion of the Philippines.

Veteran Of Tarawa

Bourke, whose home is in Severna Park, Md., is a veteran of the Second Division Tarawa assault. Like Bourke, his officers expected and wanted an artilleryman's chance to mass-fire all of their available guns on a single concentration of Japanese.

But fast-driving infantry spearheads cutting west from the Dulag beachhead apparently scattered the Japanese. Corps artillery batteries have been shelling these scattered groups wherever aerial observers could find them.

Enemy Folded Back

The 155 and 105 support fire in front of advancing American infantrymen has folded back virtually every Japanese attempt to make a stand in the first week of the invasion.

Lieut. Col. James Mills, of La Jolla, Cal., phoned to be sure of the forward positions of the fast-moving Seventh Division. Major Leo Unger, of Des Moines, Iowa, gave Mills a couple of map points and said, "You can fire anywhere west and south of there."

Unger hadn't put his phone down when a volley thundered from Mills' guns.

Jap Flyers Persist In 'Annoying' Leyte

By Leif Erickson

Dulag, Leyte, Oct. 27 (AP—Delayed)—Japanese air attacks on the Dulag beachhead area are nuisance affairs of one to four planes and they have settled into a persistently-annoying schedule.

Each evening as we prepare to bed down the anti-aircraft batteries open up six or seven times over a two-hour period. It seems wise to move out to the foxhole behind our tent to make sure that the anti-aircraft bursts and planes are not directly overhead. They have been more than once.

Jap Flyers Arrive Early

The first morning air alert is our alarm clock; and then the Japanese keep coming by twos and threes while we're cooking coffee for breakfast.

Marines Fight On Leyte

(This delayed dispatch is the first disclosure that marines are participating in the reinvasion of the Philippines.)

Twenty-fourth Corps Artillery Command Post, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 27 (AP—Delayed)—American artillery fire power on Leyte is so superior and the Japanese have scattered so fast that Marine Brigadier General Thomas Bourke complains his field guns don't have enough targets for a good workout.

Last night my tentmates, Capt. Bill Freehoff, of St. Louis, and Lieut. Donald Mumford, of Montclair, N. J., and I heard one bomb scream. With no time to scramble to our foxhole, we hit the deck in the tent.

Two bombs landed behind the army station hospital, about a quarter of a mile away, destroying two pallets loaded with blood plasma. A few cases of ether blew up with a flashing white flame.

Some Patients Injured

Major David Pang, Chinese physician from Honolulu, said a few hospital patients and personnel suffered shrapnel wounds, and concussion knocked some from their cots. But there were no fatalities.

Private Henry Joyce, of Vancouver, Wash., was driving in with an ambulance load of wounded men when the bombs hit. The blast and concussion knocked him out of the ambulance, but did not hurt him or any of the wounded men on the litters.

A welcome, new sight this noon was four American fighters which intercepted a Japanese bomber directly over Dulag. That proclaimed that fighters are now operating a protective covering from captured Leyte airfield.

The fighters shot down the enemy plane.

Australia to Aid Wool Growers

MELBOURNE, Nov. 1 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced a plan to spend $1,800,000 annually on wool research and publicity combating the threat of synthetic materials. The government will pay half the cost and wool growers will be asked to contribute the other half, Curtin said.

Dead Jap At Controls Of Plane Hitting Ship

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 1 (AP)—A dead man was at the controls of a Japanese bomber which damaged the cruiser Australia, killing the captain and 18 others, during the Leyte invasion.

This information came today from Alex Cann, Netherlands Government movie photographer, who was an eyewitness aboard the Australia, flagship of the Commonwealth warships in the Philippines waters.

Cann said it wasn't a suicide attack.

"The Jap Betty came through a terrific barrage out of control and with smoke already pouring out," Cann related. "The plane hit the forward funnel, bounced onto the bridge and skidded into the sea. The bridge went up in a sheet of flame."

Olivia de Havilland Gaining Rapidly

Army Headquarters, Pacific Ocean Areas, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Olivia de Havilland, motion picture actress, is making a rapid recovery from pneumonia in the Army Hospital at Suva, Fiji Islands, but has been advised by Army physicians to discontinue her U. S. O. tour of the South Pacific.

Miss de Havilland became ill ten days ago while visiting Army hospitals in Suva. She indicated that she would try to fly to Hollywood following her recovery.

Argentina Aids War-Ravaged Lands

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—Although not a member of the United Nations Relief of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Argentina has contributed foodstuffs valued at $3,600,000 to war devastated countries.

Argentina either has shipped or earmarked 370,000 tons of wheat, 5,000 tons of meat and the equivalent of about $1,200,000 in foodstuffs and medical supplies for relief purposes.

In addition to the 200,000 tons of wheat pledged in the Washington agreement, 50,000 tons have been delivered to Finland and 20,000 tons to Norway, bringing to 120,000 tons the amount already made available in war-stricken countries.

War-Born Fleet Boon To Argentina

Buenos Aires, Nov. 1 (AP)—Maritime-minded Argentines are worried over the future of their war-born merchant marine.

The fleet now is being eyed by the original owners, who have indicated they might like their vessels back.

Sixteen Italian freighters, immobilized in Argentine ports at the time Italy entered the war, formed the nucleus; four Danish vessels, three French and three German were acquired later. In all, they add up to about 250,000 tons, not counting tankers operated by the state oil monopoly or various privately owned vessels.

Economically and politically, the state merchant fleet has been a war-time treasure for Argentina. It has enabled this country to maintain a profitable export trade and, even more important, to obtain coal, for which Argentina is dependent upon foreign countries.

Argentina Veers To The Right

The prospect of greater tourist travel after completion of the Pan-American highway is the reason for the change. Except for Uruguay, Argentina is the only country in the hemisphere which has traffic on the left—an offshoot of early British influence.

Standardization of traffic rules will tend to reduce accidents involving foreigners accustomed to driving on the right and avoid the cost of equipping new cars with left-drive steering mechanisms. The new system starts June 10, 1945, a winter month when vehicular traffic is at a minimum.

35 Is Liberty Number

Buenos Aires, Nov. 1 (AP)—Lapel emblems bearing only the numerals 35 are being worn by many politically conscious students. The number corresponds to the exchange "libertad" on the telephone dials.

Bogota Offers Choice For Tourists

Bogoto, Colombia, Nov. 1 (AP)—Railway officials realize pleasure travelers out of Bogota's high, cold climate are mainly interested in low altitudes and high temperatures—so they make the search easy.

In the back of the timetable of the Government railroads is a list of all towns within a 150-mile radius, with their altitude, average temperature and distance from the capital. The intending weekender has only to look up his favorite line, choose an altitude or temperature he likes and buy his ticket.

Canada-Bermuda Air Service Planned

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 1 (AP)—Edward Goodeve, vice-president of Canadian Air Express, and three Bermudians—J. E. P. Vesey, A. J. Gorham and Morris Gibbons—have petitioned the Bermuda House of Assembly for the incorporation of Bermuda Airways.

The company expects to operate air service from Montreal or Ottawa to Bermuda, as well as from Montreal to New York to Bermuda.

Rumors Of Leaders' Arrests Held Nazi Ruse

By Louis P. Lochner
Former Chief of the Associated Press' Berlin Bureau

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Reports of the arrest of leading German industrialists which appear to be reaching neutral European countries in increasing numbers should be treated with greatest reserve. They may well prove to be Nazi propaganda intended to give these men the character of martyrs when in reality they may have been picked to pull Adolf Hitler's chestnuts out of the fire.

The first report concerned none other than Hitler's wily economic wizard, the former Reichsbank president and Minister of Economics, Dr. Hjalmar Horace Greeley Schacht. Reports of his arrest were filtered into neutral countries soon after the generals' purge of last July. It is significant, however, that nothing more has been heard of this arrest. The Nazis did not hesitate to follow the incarceration of Dr. Karl Goerdeler, former Mayor of Leipzig and for a short time German price commissioner, with notice of beheading. Goerdeler was a fanatic anti-Nazi.

Unqualified Support

Dr. Schacht, on the other hand, lent Hitler unqualified support. His guilt in bringing about World War II is outstanding. His clever barter schemes resulted in a veritable avalanche of raw materials into Nazi Germany previous to 1939, which gave the Reich those stock piles without which Hitler never could have waged war as long as he has.

Many of the world's bankers and industrialists were misled by the wisecracks and disparaging remarks with which the high-collared cynical Schacht regaled them on their visits to Berlin. They thought of him as a liberal in disguise when in reality he was all the time a well-camouflaged stooge of der Fuehrer.

Arrests Rumored

Recent rumors of arrest concern four of the most prominent industrial barons of western Germany; Hermann Roechling, outstanding heavy industries magnate of the Saar Valley, and Albert Voegler, Friedrich Flick and Florian Kloeckner, tycoons of the Ruhr Valley.

It would not be suprising in the

JAPS TURN TOMB INTO A PILLBOX

With Seventh Division, Leyte, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An eerie twilight battle in a Dagami cemetery, with some Japanese fighting from an old Spanish-type crypt, was described today by Capt. Charles T. Frazee of Gresham, Ore. The fight lasted one hour and a half before the ghoulish Japanese were wiped out with flamethrowers.

Capt. Frazee's troops were about half way across, wading through ten-foot high grass, when the lead scouts were killed by snipers. Two other scouts were wounded trying to recover the bodies.

Then Private Abraham Cohen of Brooklyn, spotted the snipers firing from a crypt, which they had broken open. Other Japs were dug in behind tombstones.

The flamethrower killed eighteen Japs, while others recovered the wounded.

While poking into holes along the trail, Sergt. Jack T. Lewis of Wilmington, Cal., flushed a Jap captain, who charged with his sabre. One soldier was wounded in the hip by the Jap before he was killed by Pfc. Harry Trahan of New Orleans, La.

"The man attacked with the sword got the Jap's pistol," said First Lieut. Charley Duddy of 219 St. Ann's street, Brooklyn, "and the man wounded with the pistol got the sword."

Armed Filipinos Fight Way To Yank Lines

With Seventh Infantry Division, Leyte, Nov. 1 (AP)—A Filipino guerrilla who looks like a small edition of Pancho Villa, came down from the mountains today with his band, bent on joining American invasion forces.

He is Capt. Jesus Olmedo, a scout for the regular army from 1918 to 1933. His squad was armed with tommyguns and carbines they said were smuggled by American friends.

110 Fighting Men

As the guerrillas marched through recaptured Burauen the Filipinos lined the streets and cheered. There were 110 fighters.

Said Olmedo: "I've been waiting a long time for you Americans."

Olmedo brought his men from the hills through enemy lines. His guerrillas fought the Japanese wherever they could catch them, he said. They started fights on the average of two or three times a month.

"Rarely Missed"

Bullets and guns were hard to get, but "we didn't waste many bullets," he said. "We generally got to within 20 to 50 yards and rarely missed."

Olmedo's band killed 200 Japanese and lost only eight men during their campaign. They used shotguns made from gas pipe before American arms were smuggled to them last June.

Olmedo said the Japanese were poor soldiers.

"They actually were babes in the jungles."

Soldier Directs Fire 40 Yards From Japs

With 24th Division in Leyte Valley, Oct. 28 (AP—Delayed)—Technical Sergeant Raymond Simmons, of Alto, Ga., an observer for a mortar section, had a ringside seat when his unit ran into a Japanese concentration in the Leyte Valley advance.

He crawled to within 40 yards of the Japanese and directed fire which fell so close to him that he was bounced by each explosion.

Returned A Bit Woozy

Simmons returned to his unit a bit woozy from concussion, but his direction destroyed 27 Japanese.

"He registered us in so close to himself," said First Lieutenant E. W. Schachameyer, of St. Louis, Mo., "that I didn't expect to hear his voice on the phone again. But he always came through and gave us perfect targets."

Marine battalions in the composite army-marine 24th Corps artillery are the only marine units participating in the initial reinvasion of the Philippines.

Veteran Of Tarawa

Bourke, whose home is in Severna Park, Md., is a veteran of the Second Division Tarawa assault. Like Bourke, his officers expected and wanted an artilleryman's chance to mass-fire all of their available guns on a single concentration of Japanese.

But fast-driving infantry spearheads cutting west from the Dulag beachhead apparently scattered the Japanese. Corps artillery batteries have been shelling these scattered groups wherever aerial observers could find them.

Enemy Folded Back

The 155 and 105 support fire in front of advancing American infantrymen has folded back virtually every Japanese attempt to make a stand in the first week of the invasion.

Lieut. Col. James Mills, of La Jolla, Cal., phoned to be sure of the forward positions of the fast-moving Seventh Division. Major Leo Unger, of Des Moines, Iowa, gave Mills a couple of map points and said, "You can fire anywhere west and south of there."

Unger hadn't put his phone down when a volley thundered from Mills' guns.

Jap Flyers Persist In 'Annoying' Leyte

By Leif Erickson

Dulag, Leyte, Oct. 27 (AP—Delayed)—Japanese air attacks on the Dulag beachhead area are nuisance affairs of one to four planes and they have settled into a persistently-annoying schedule.

Each evening as we prepare to bed down the anti-aircraft batteries open up six or seven times over a two-hour period. It seems wise to move out to the foxhole behind our tent to make sure that the anti-aircraft bursts and planes are not directly overhead. They have been more than once.

Jap Flyers Arrive Early

The first morning air alert is our alarm clock; and then the Japanese keep coming by twos and threes while we're cooking coffee for breakfast.

Marines Eight On Leyte

(This delayed dispatch is the first disclosure that marines are participating in the reinvasion of the Philippines.)

Twenty-fourth Corps Artillery Command Post, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 27 (AP—Delayed)—American artillery fire power on Leyte is so superior and the Japanese have scattered so fast that Marine Brigadier General Thomas Bourke complains his field guns don't have enough targets for a good workout.

Last night my tentmates, Capt. Bill Freehoff, of St. Louis, and Lieut. Donald Mumford, of Montclair, N. J., and I heard one bomb scream. With no time to scramble to our foxhole, we hit the deck in the tent.

Two bombs landed behind the army station hospital, about a quarter of a mile away, destroying two pallets loaded with blood plasma. A few cases of ether blew up with a flashing white flame.

Some Patients Injured

Major David Pang, Chinese physician from Honolulu, said a few hospital patients and personnel suffered shrapnel wounds, and concussion knocked some from their cots. But there were no fatalities.

Private Henry Joyce, of Vancouver, Wash., was driving in with an ambulance load of wounded men when the bombs hit. The blast and concussion knocked him out of the ambulance, but did not hurt him or any of the wounded men on the litters.

A welcome, new sight this noon was four American fighters which intercepted a Japanese bomber directly over Dulag. That proclaimed that fighters are now operating a protective covering from captured Leyte airfield.

The fighters shot down the enemy plane.

Australia to Aid Wool Growers

MELBOURNE, Nov. 1 (AP).—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced a plan to spend $1,800,000 annually on wool research and publicity combating the threat of synthetic materials. The government will pay half the cost and wool growers will be asked to contribute the other half, Curtin said.

Dead Jap At Controls Of Plane Hitting Ship

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 1 (AP)—A dead man was at the controls of a Japanese bomber which damaged the cruiser Australia, killing the captain and 18 others, during the Leyte invasion.

This information came today from Alex Cann, Netherlands Government movie photographer, who was an eyewitness aboard the Australia, flagship of the Commonwealth warships in the Philippines waters.

Cann said it wasn't a suicide attack.

"The Jap Betty came through a terrific barrage out of control and with smoke already pouring out," Cann related. "The plane hit the forward funnel, bounced onto the bridge and skidded into the sea. The bridge went up in a sheet of flame."

Olivia de Havilland Gaining Rapidly

Army Headquarters, Pacific Ocean Areas, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Olivia de Havilland, motion picture actress, is making a rapid recovery from pneumonia in the Army Hospital at Suva, Fiji Islands, but has been advised by Army physicians to discontinue her U. S. O. tour of the South Pacific.

Miss de Havilland became ill ten days ago while visiting Army hospitals in Suva. She indicated that she would try to fly to Hollywood following her recovery.

Argentina Aids War-Ravaged Lands

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—Although not a member of the United Nations Relief of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Argentina has contributed foodstuffs valued at $3,600,000 to war devastated countries.

Argentina either has shipped or earmarked 370,000 tons of wheat, 5,000 tons of meat and the equivalent of about $1,200,000 in foodstuffs and medical supplies for relief purposes.

In addition to the 200,000 tons of wheat pledged in the Washington agreement, 50,000 tons have been delivered to Finland and 20,000 tons to Norway, bringing to 120,000 tons the amount already made available in war-stricken countries.

War-Born Fleet Boon To Argentina

Buenos Aires, Nov. 1 (AP)—Maritime-minded Argentines are worried over the future of their war-born merchant marine.

The fleet now is being eyed by the original owners, who have indicated they might like their vessels back.

Sixteen Italian freighters, immobilized in Argentine ports at the time Italy entered the war, formed the nucleus; four Danish vessels three French and three German were acquired later. In all, they add up to about 250,000 tons, not counting tankers operated by the state oil monopoly or various privately owned vessels.

Economically and politically, the state merchant fleet has been a war-time treasure for Argentina. It has enabled this country to maintain a profitable export trade and, even more important, to obtain coal, for which Argentina is dependent upon foreign countries.

The prospect of greater tourist travel after completion of the Pan-American highway is the reason for the change. Except for Uruguay, Argentina is the only country in the hemisphere which has traffic on the left—an offshoot of early British influence.

Standardization of traffic rules will tend to reduce accidents involving foreigners accustomed to driving on the right and avoid the cost of equipping new cars with left-drive steering mechanisms. The new system starts June 10, 1945, a winter month when vehicular traffic is at a minimum.

35 Is Liberty Number

Buenos Aires, Nov. 1 (AP)—Lapel emblems bearing only the numerals 35 are being worn by many politically conscious students. The number corresponds to the exchange "libertad" on the telephone dials.

Bogota Offers Choice For Tourists

Bogoto, Colombia, Nov. 1 (AP)—Railway officials realize pleasure travelers out of Bogota's high, cold climate are mainly interested in low altitudes and high temperatures—so they make the search easy.

In the back of the timetable of the Government railroads is a list of all towns within a 150-mile radius, with their altitude, average temperature and distance from the capital. The intending weekender has only to look up his favorite line, choose an altitude or temperature he likes and buy his ticket.

Canada-Bermuda Air Service Planned

The company expects to operate air service from Montreal or Ottawa to Bermuda, as well as from Montreal to New York to Bermuda.

Rumors Of Leaders' Arrests Held Nazi Ruse

Arrests Rumored

Recent rumors of arrest concern four of the most prominent industrial barons of western Germany; Hermann Roechling, outstanding heavy industries magnate of the Saar Valley, and Albert Voegler, Friedrich Flick and Florian Kloeckner, tycoons of the Ruhr Valley.

It would not be suprising in the least to read one of these days that Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the gigantic Krupp munitions concern, had been arrested!

All of these men, like Hitler's one-time particular friend, Fritz Thyssen, lacked the courage to oppose Hitler and his mad plans for world conquest. When among themselves, most of these men vented their disdain at the meteoric rise of a lance corporal without breeding, without culture, without family background, without learning. Yet publicly they accepted him, rendered lip service and, what is more important, collaborated heartily with him.

Just to give one example: The Nazis no sooner had defeated the French in 1940 than Hermann Roechling was entrusted with getting the heavy industries of Alsace-Lorraine started again.

A year later the Nazis moved into Russia. One of Roechling's ablest engineers was dispatched to Odessa to start the smelters and other industrial plants and make them work for Germany.

If the captains of finance and industry who are now represented as under arrest were not Nazis, at least they were imperialists. As such they constitute a menace to any attempt to rear a post-war German democracy.

U.S. TOPS WORLD IN COMBAT PLANES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(AP) The Army airforces disclosed today that they now have 75,000 airplanes of all types, including 23,000 combat craft of which 12,000 are first line planes operating in overseas theaters.

"No other airforce in the world has ever reached such a total of combat planes," an AAF spokesman declared.

Earlier, the War Production board disclosed that the United States built 145,580 combat planes for all services between July 1, 1940, and Sept. 30, 1944. Of these, 74,953 were bombers and 70,627 were fighters. WPB Chairman J. A. Krug told a recent news conference that aircraft output of all types through October had reached 240,000.

(Thousands of planes have been destroyed in combat and accidents and many had worn out. The AAF recently disclosed that it had lost 42,000 craft at home and abroad since Pearl Harbor. This figure includes worn-out planes.)

The AAF official said that figures compiled as of October 31, showed, in addition to the 23,000 combat planes both at home and abroad, these major categories: trainers and miscellaneous craft, 23,000; transport and combat planes in the United States for defense and advanced training 14,000; military craft other than combat planes in overseas theaters 5,000; second line or "war weary" planes overseas 2,500 and in shops for repairs, 5,000.

U. S. Imports Italy's Goods

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—Imports from Italy valued at about $1,200,000 and including wine, perfume oils, briarwood, and rat poison have arrived recently. The Foreign Economic Administration reported today.

The shipments are by far the largest from Italy since the war. The FEA expressed belief they will be followed by increasingly larger shipments.

Private trade with Italy is not yet permitted. These goods, which came in three shipments, were bought in Italy by the Allied commission and shipped to the U. S. Commercial Company, an FEA subsidiary.

The U. S. Commercial Company will dispose of them, acting as agent for the Allied Commission. Private importers and private trade, FEA said, will be used "to the fullest extent that is possible and practicable" in distributing the merchandise.

Strategic imports included 96,000 pounds of red squill, a flower of the hyacinth family which is a powerful rat poison, and 224,000 pounds of argol, a base for chemicals. The War Production Board will direct their distribution.

Funds from the sale of the merchandise will be made available in this country for the use of the Italian government under an agreement between the United States and Italy.

TO AID FOREIGN TRADE

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Government officials say that, once Germany collapses, they intend to keep not more than a couple of dozen items of foreign trade under Federal export controls.

Official sources gave this estimate today, following disclosure that the number of commodities subject to export quotas and licenses may be trimmed from more than 1,000 to around 200 within about a month.

As a joint committee of Foreign Economic Administration and War Production Board officials buckled down to planning the relaxation of controls, both agencies appeared open to conviction that when industry reconverts it may be necessary to retain export curbs on some consumer goods to safeguard supplies for American households.

U. S. DELAYS REPLY ON ARGENTINE BID

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The United States will defer a decision on Argentina's request for a meeting of American foreign ministers until all the other republics have presented their views.

The State Department emphasized this to reporters today in presenting them with what it termed a reply to misunderstandings it said had arisen from Acting Secretary Stettinius's Monday news conference. Mr. Stettinius at that time said this Government would do nothing to discourage a meeting of American foreign ministers on general topics.

Today the department said the acting secretary had in mind suggestions that have been made from time to time for a meeting to discuss post-war problems. He did not, it was emphasized, refer to the Argentine request.

Stimson Sends Compton Letter To Pacific Gen.

To Study Possibility Of Bringing Long-Isolated Men Home.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson, acting on the urgent appeal of Cong. Ranulf Compton (R) Conn. has authorized the commander in the South Pacific war theatre to "give personal attention and take whatever action he may deem appropriate" ot return to this country New Haven and Connecticut boys who have been marooned on isolated islands for 34 months without relief.

"I shall also obtain from the theatre commander a report as to what action, if any, he is in a position to take, and when his report is available I will communicate further with you," the secretary of war wrote Congressman Compton yesterday.

Bring Home Men

Compton dispatched an urgent appeal to Stimson last week and suggested that one or more bombers be used to bring home the men who have been isolated nearly three years in the Japanese combat zones.

"These boys are not asking for their lives; they are merely asking for a brief sight of the homes they so bravely defend," Compton wrote Stimson requesting that the personal attention of the highest military authority in the land be given to their plight.

Today the congressman said he had been advised that an even greater number of men than he suspected were still marooned in the South Pacific without relief.

Difficult Problem

Declaring that he understood and sympathized with Compton's concern over the return of these soldiers, Secretary Stimson wrote that the problem is one of the most difficult the war department has faced "not only because in seeking its solution we are closely circumscribed by various wartime limitations which cannot be corrected without detriment to the war effort, but also because the return of these men has become a matter of increasing proportions to the families of the soldiers.

"We have found it almost impossible to return entire units from an active war theatre and I should anticipate that this would be the case with respect to the unit to which you refer," Secretary Stimson said. "However, we in the war department are not, of course, conversant with all the local factors (in the south Pacific) pertaining to this particular organization, nor is there information readily available as to its comparative status with similar organizations in the same theatre.

"I am therefore taking the liberty of forwarding your letter by airmail to the theatre commander with the request that he give your comments his personal attention and take whatever action he may deem appropriate in the circumstances."

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of eighty-nine casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 70,426 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 28,207 are reported dead, 28,309 wounded, 9,432 missing and 4,478 prisoners of war. Included in the list today are the following with their next of kin:

FERGUSON VISITS JUSTICE ROBERTS

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.), who has been demanding that all facts about Pearl Harbor be brought into the open, conferred today with Justice J. Roberts of the Supreme Court.

Justice Roberts headed a special commission appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate the Pearl Harbor disaster and the Senator has been critical of the resulting report.

After it was learned that Senator Ferguson had talked with Justice Roberts, the Senator told reporters: "I am getting the focts as a Senator, to permit the public to know the facts so that they may form their own opinion."

The Roberts report was made public by the White House in 1942. Recent reports by Army and Navy boards, which surveyed the Pearl Harbor case under a congressional directive, have not been given out.

Senator Ferguson has taken the position that the Roberts report may have been incomplete, or otherwise it, too, would have been kept confidential.

Kleberg Votes For Dewey, Hits 'Petty Tyrants'

Defeated Texas Democrat Casts Absentee Ballot, Scores New Deal 'Vermin'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP).—Representative Richard M. Kleberg, Texas Democrat, said today he had cast an absentee ballot for Governor Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican Presidential candidate.

Representative Kleberg said he was opposed to a fourth term for President Roosevelt and to "the host of petty tyrants" who, he said, serve in government bureaus and agencies. The Representative was defeated for renomination in the Texas Democratic primary after serving in the House since the fall of 1931.

Representative Kleberg made his views known in a letter to E. M. Dealey, president of "The Dallas News." Representative Kleberg said his ballot would show he voted for Republican Presidential electors, but for the state ticket nominees of the Texas Democratic primary.

Democratic electors chosen by the "regular" Texas convention, he said, had been replaced by "New Deal electors and by unusual high pressure machinations at the so-called Governor's convention." Representative Kleberg termed the Governor's convention an "undemocratic violation of the Democratic party without parallel."

"In my earnest and well considered judgment," Representative Kleberg wrote, "the electors in the so-called Democratic column on the ballot are considering a so-called party or their jobs in their expression of would-be fealty at the polls. Theirs is the party of the ever-changing New Deal, of regimentation, restriction of liberty and renunciation of the republican form of government and our Constitution. Theirs is the party of class which has ever borne the banner which heralds tyranny."

The Texan added that he was voting for a change, not only in the Chief Executive but in "the host of petty tyrants" who, he said, serve in government bureaus and agencies. As "head men" of this group, he named Sidney Hillman, chairman of the Congress of Industrial Organizations Political Action Committee; Earl Browder, Communist party leader; Judge Samuel Rosenman, adviser to President Roosevelt; Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, Harry Hopkins, Richard Gilbert, chief economist of the Office of Price Administration, and Mordecai Ezekiel, former chief economist of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"Neither Republican nor Democrat," he said, "they are composed of a host of maggot and termite-like vermin that are eating away the structure of the government."

Senate Group Studies Taft

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—The Senate campaign investigating committee which delved into charges by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) against the CIO Political Action Committee, announced today an inquiry into CIO complaints against him.

Chairman Green (D-RI) said a committee investigator is being sent to Ohio to look into charges by Jack Kroll, president of the Ohio State CIO Council, that Taft "has attempted to bar the CIO from making radio broadcasts, has made extensive expenditures and conducted a scurrilous and libelous campaign."

Green said in a statement that the committee inquiry would be confined to the question of broadcasts and expenditures and that the group had no intention of passing on campaign speeches or literature.

As a result of the Taft complaints, the committee heard testimony yesterday on the Ohio State CIO's distribution of a pamphlet attacking Taft. Afterward, the committee voted to submit its evidence to the attorney general with a suggestion that it be used for a test case of the meaning of the Corrupt Practices Act. The act forbids contributions to political campaigns by labor unions. CIO attorneys contend the pamphlets represents expenditures rather than contributions.

President Comments On Students Day

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today that the youth of America and the other United Nations are fighting victoriously and "discovering under fire their great common units of purpose."

His comment was in a statement noting that November 17 will be observed as Third International Students Day.

Expects Travel Bans Until War Is Won

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—The Office of Defense Transportation expects transportation restrictions until the last battle is won.

The wave of extreme optimism over victories in Europe seriously interfered with rail shipping during August and September, ODT Director J. M. Johnson wrote Representative Holmes (R.-Wash.) in a letter made public today at the Congressman's office. Mr. Holmes had transmitted complaints against the penalty demurrage rates imposed by ODT to reduce delays in loading and unloading freight cars.

Food, Clothing To Lublin

New York, Nov. 1 (AP) — The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee announced that 50 tons of food and clothing were being shipped from Teheran to the Jewish Relief Committee in Lublin, Poland, for distribution among the Jewish communities

Charge Ace Accepted Bribe To Keep Men Out of Combat

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP) Jerome Usdan, 32, a thread company executive, was held in $5,000 bail tonight by U. S. commissioner Garret W. Cotter on a charge that he conspired to keep two Army Air Forces privates out of combat by bribing Maj. Walter V. Radovich, described by the government as a flying ace of the China-Burma-India war theater.

U. S. Attorney John F. X. McGohey said Radovich, 24, of Los Angeles, was under detention at Mitchel Field, N. Y. The statement was confirmed at the field.

McGohey charged that:

Usdan, president of the Perfect Thread Co., Brooklyn, and two co-defendants now being sought by the FBI, entertained Radovich at Manhattan night clubs, made gifts to him, his wife and child, bought him several uniforms and paid him $7,000 to keep out of combat service his brother, Pvt. Morris Usdan, and also Pvt. Martin Bayer.

Radovich transferred the two privates out of an alerted Air Forces organization in June or July, 1943, into a medical branch of his own Air Commando unit.

In either December, 1943, or January, this year, Radovich's organization was assigned to the China-Burma-India theater.

McGohey said Radovich distinguished himself in the Far East, shooting down at least four Japanese planes, rescuing a number of wounded men by plane, and blowing up a Japanese ammunition train.

After several months of flying, McGohey continued, the Major told his commanding officer that his conscience was bothering him. He was placed under detention, McGohey said, and returned to this country last August.

The case was brought to the attention of the FBI and the U. S. Attorney's office by the Army, McGohey added.

Bayer, 22, is stationed in this country, McGohey said, while Usdan, 21, is overseas.

former Representative Will Rogers, Jr., now serving as a second lieutenant in the American army in Holland, sent back word that he was "astounded to hear that my newspaper back in the States printed an editorial indorsing Dewey."

Rogers' newspaper is the Beverly Hills (Cal.) Citizen. Hannegan said the message was sent to him by Mrs. Will Rogers, Jr., from Los Angeles and in it Rogers asked that the message be sent "to my friend President Roosevelt."

Mrs. Rogers' Message

Mrs. Rogers' telegram released by Hannegan said:

"Have just received the following message from my husband, Bill Rogers, fighting in the tank destroyers at the Holland front:

"'Will you please wire my friend, President Roosevelt that I have just been astounded to hear that my newspaper back in the States printed an editorial indorsing Dewey. This was done absolutely without my knowledge or consent and to attribute any such indorsement to me is utterly fantastic and absurd.'"

Will Rogers, Jr., 'Astounded' As Own Paper Backs Dewey

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, announced today that

Ickes Says Roosevelt Has Ended Discrimination in Army, Navy

NOV 2 1944

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP) Interior Secretary Ickes said tonight that President Roosevelt "had pressed steadily toward the goal of a Democratic army where there will be no segregation or discrimination."

"When President Roosevelt succeeded 12 years of Republican rule, he found an army and navy steeped in racial discrimination up and down the line," Ickes said in an address prepared for a Democratic rally in the Golden Gate Ballroom in Harlem.

"It was President Harding, a Republican, who had banned Negroes from combat jobs in the navy and limited all negroes who remained in the navy to the rank of messmen," Ickes said. "It was President Hoover, Governor Dewey's political godfather, who 'Jim-crowed' Negro Gold Star mothers, sending them to visit their sons' graves in France on a cattle boat."

Ickes said that for the first time in history there was a Negro general in the army, and negroes were admitted to the Marine Corps and commissioned as officers in the navy.

He said that under the Roosevelt administration the number of negroes owning farms had increased, there were more negroes in government positions, educational facilities were furthered, and housing made available for more than 500,000 of them.

Ickes, whose address was replete with criticism of Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey, said:

"Riding in the Trojan Horse which Mr. Dewey is trying to insinuate into the White House is a prize collection of the most Fascist-minded people in the United States."

WAR BALLOT RULING ASKED

Envelope Issue Put Up to Goldstein by Simpson.

NOV 2 1944

Albany, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Attorney-General Goldstein was asked by the State War Ballot Commission today for a ruling on the disposition of service men's ballots inclosed in plain envelopes or in envelopes on which the voters' oath was signed improperly.

William T. Simpson, commission chairman, said about 4,500 such ballots had been received from New York city residents in service and about 2,000 from residents of other parts of the State. He estimated, however, that "about 50 per cent" of the ballots had been sent back to the voters who corrected their errors and returned the ballots.

In some instances, Mr. Simpson said, the oath was filled out but not signed. Some service men signed the oath without filling it out and others failed to have the oath signed by an attesting officer.

Ruling Sought on 3 Points.

Mr. Simpson asked the Attorney-General to determine:

1. Whether the commission was required to forward the ballots to election boards...

2. Whether the boards of election were required to turn the ballots over to election inspectors.

3. Whether the inspectors could count such ballots as valid.

The oath states that the voter will have been a citizen for ninety days before the election, that he has not made or become interested in any bet depending on the result of the election, and that he has not been convicted of bribery or any infamous crime or if so convicted, that he has been pardoned or his right of suffrage restored.

CITES POLISH DANGER

Redding, Conn., Nov. 1 (A. P.).—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R.-Conn.) said last night that if Poland is deserted by her Allies and compelled by force to surrender a large section of her territory to Russia, without even an honest plebiscite or impartial arbitration, then there will never be another test of the Atlantic Charter."

Speaking at a dinner in her honor, Mrs. Luce, who is seeking re-election in her home Fourth Congressional district of Connecticut, said that "Russia has refused to permit the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration to feed the starving peoples in liberated Poland. I am sure the American taxpayers who must foot the bill in UNRRA would not want to have their money used to make the people of Poland accept Russian domination and Communism or starve."

Washington, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—A delegation of technical experts will be sent in the near future to arrange for the relief of liberated Polish people, UNRRA announced today.

Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said the delegation will be headed by John P. Gregg, formerly chief of staff for the operating divisions of the War Production Board.

Selling His Party

Highest Bidder Said to Be P. A. C. of Hillman, Communists of Browder—Warns Of Threat of Monarchy.

NOV 2 1944

By Gardner Bridge

BOSTON, Nov. 1 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey told a howling crowd of Bostonians tonight that President Roosevelt has offered the Democratic party for sale "to the highest bidder" in his fourth term drive and that the forces of Communism are taking it over.

Party Weakened

"Mr. Roosevelt has so weakened and corrupted the Democratic party," Dewey declared, 'that it is readily subject to capture."

Assailing both the President and what he called the latter's "violent supporters" Dewey said.

"Mr. Roosevelt, in his overwhelming desire to perpetuate himself in office for sixteen years, has put his party on the auction block—for sale to the highest bidder."

And the highest bidder is not the "notorious one thousand club," Dewey said, but the "Politcal Action Committee of Sidney Hillman and the Communists of Earl Browder."

Boisterous Crowd

The Republican candidate for President spoke before a boisterous crowd that jammed this 13,500 seat arena to the roof and spilled out into the streets for blocks around. Virtually all aisles were packed with standees when the doors were closed an hour and a half before Dewey appeared.

From the speaker's stand, the candidate looked out on a vast sign reading "Massachusetts Goes For Dewey" at the far end of an humanity-choked arena. The floor was filled in with dirt, in preparation for the opening tomorrow of Boston's 13th annual rodeo.

President Roosevelt speaks here Saturday night at an open air meeting in Fenway park.

Preceding Dewey, House Republican Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts declared:

"Summing it all up, do we want next January a coronation or an inauguration?"

Threat of Monarchy

Martin was aboard Dewey's campaign train when the New York governor told a Worcester station crowd earlier in the day that by a change in administration "we can forever remove the threat of monarchy in the United States."

As the time for Dewey's scheduled appearance approached, the crowd set up a chant—"We want Dewey—We want Dewey."

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, GOP nominee for the U. S. Senate, let the chorus mount in volume and then drowned it out over the loud speaker system by declaring:

"You bet, we're going to have Dewey."

An ear-splitting din greeted the nominee's appearance, with Mrs. Dewey. Showers of torn paper floated down from the galleries.

Frequent shouts of "Pour it on, Tommie" punctuated his speech, and loud boos welled up at his first mention of Sidney Hillman's name.

Re-Echoes Phrase

Re-echoing the phrase which he has attributed to Mr. Roosevelt—"clear everything with Sidney"—Dewey sa

"Sidney illman has become the biggest political boss in the United States, and in the words of David Dubinsky, Sidney Hillman is a front for the Communists'."

Dubinsky, president of the potent Interantional Ladies Garment Workers' Union, split with the American Labor Party last Spring over the Communist issue. He formed a right wing element of the party.

Dewey, addressing a Republican rally in the 13,500 seat Boston Garden, declared that with Hillman's aid "the Communists are seizing control of the New Deal, through which they aim to control the government of the United States."

"If they should succeed," he said, "the fundamental freedoms of every American would stand in gravest jeopardy."

Stalks Country

The former New York prosecutor said Hillman "stalks the country squeezing dollars for the fourth term campaign out of the working men and women of America, under threat that if they do not give the dollar, they will lose their jobs."

"But the working men and women of America are rising in protest all over the nation," Dewey said. "Letters have been pouring in to me denouncing this Roosevelt poll tax imposed by Sidney Hillman. As one of them said: 'They can force my dollar o t of me by threatening to take my job away, but they can't force my vote because it is secret . . .'"

Dewey's Boston speech climaxed a day-long train tour of Massachusetts with speaking stops at Pittsfield, Springfield and Worcester.

Speaks in Worcester

Addressing a crowd of several thousand from a speaker's platform in front of the Worcester station, the New York governor declared that by a change in administration "we can forever remove the threat of monarchy in the United States."

Dewey's reception here rivaled that he received recently in Chicago where, Republican Governor Dwight Green of Illinois estimated, 500,000 persons greeted him.

Today, Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon said a total of 400,000 persons viewed the New York Governor, at the railroad station, along the sidewalks and from windows and roofs of buildings.

Many of the throng cheered, but there was some booing.

The New Deal, he said in his Boston speech, has become a "collection of warring factions tied together only by a consuming passion for power."

Solicits Support

"That's why my opponent is compelled to solicit the support of bigoted reactionaries on the one hand and of Communists on the other," he added.

Describing Earl Browder as the "avowed leader of Communism in America," Dewey said "he stands for everything that would destroy America."

He repeated his charge that Browder was pardoned by Mr. Roosevelt, on a perjury conviction, "in time to organize the fourth-term campaign.

Asserting that "millions of Democrats are voting Republican this year to save their own party and their country," Dewey said there was danger to the future freedom of America if the voters leave "vast power in tired hands."

G. O. P. Not Perfect

"The Republican party is not perfect," he said, "but one thing at least is sure: Neither the communist group which Mr. Roosevelt professes to repudiate nor any other totalitarian group is making an effort to capture the Republican party. They know how useless it would be."

Citing the fact that Republicans now are governors of 26 states, the GOP nominee said his "young and vigorous" party is "prepared to assume the responsibilities of national government."

"Under a Republican administration," he continued, "there will be no danger that the power of government will slip through tired fingers into hands which would destroy that free America for which our sons are fighting and dying."

Great Influence

Dewey Says F.D.R.

30. 24 — 20081

It had been the fashion for a long time, Dewey said, to brush aside the communists as of little importance because of their small numbers. Yet the fact was, he added, that the communists wielded an influence "far out of proportion to their numbers."

"They are not themselves a political party," the candidate said. "They are a fanatical, secret conspiracy of well disciplined, highly trained zealots who work at their purposes every hour of the day. Falsehood, deception and smear propaganda are a part of their technique."

He had never hesitated, Dewey said, "to expose and denounce the cynical alliance of the New Deal and the corrupt big city machines which depend on the most criminal and degraded elements in our big cities."

"And I do not propose now to be silent when the New Deal, through the President's political lieutenant, Sidney Hillman, strikes up a cynical alliance with Earl Browder's communists."

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—(AP) Following is the prepared text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign speech here tonight:

Once in every four years, late in October, my opponent announces that he believes in the enterprise system. Then, for the remaining three years and 11 months, he wages war against the American enterprise system day in and day out. That is why there were still ten million Americans unemployed in the spring of 1940. That's why we had to have a war to get jobs. That's why it's time for a change.

Because of our magnificent military command, the heroism of our men in uniform, and the efforts of our war workers at home, victory is coming closer every day. And by installing a fresh and united administration in Washington, the day of total victory and the return of our fighting men will be speeded up greatly. Then, what do we face?

As I pointed out last night, if we go into the post-war period with nothing better than the New Deal has offered us in the past, we can expect no better results than we had under its peacetime years before.

But if we go in with a new and vigorous administration, pledged to a program of constructive action, we can and will succeed. With a government in which the President works in harmony and mutual respect with the Congress, we can unite America for effective world leadership in a world organization for lasting peace.

Now, one reason why the New Deal cannot provide jobs and opportunity after this war—one reason why it cannot give our country the unity we need—is because of the kind of people to whom it would owe its election. The New Deal is not a party. It is a collection of parties, all of which hate each other.

In my own state of New York, they hate each other so much that they won't vote except under their own emblems, and Franklin Roosevelt is running on three different party lines in the State of New York.

No, the New Deal has become a collection of warring factions, tied together only by a consuming passion for power. That's why my opponent is compelled to solicit the support of bigoted reactionaries on the one hand and of communists on the other.

For 12 years the great Democratic party has been under the crushing dominance of one man. As a result, it is weakened and divided. It is vulnerable to capture by forces hostile to every tradition for which that party has stood. Beyond that, Mr. Roosevelt, in his overwhelming desire to perpetuate himself in office for 16 years, has put his party on the auction block—for sale to the highest bidder.

1,000 Club

Who will buy it? Will it be the notorious One Thousand club, which sponsored and paid for Mr. Roosevelt's speech last Saturday? This is the organization, formed at the President's own suggestion, which offers "special privilege," a voice "in the formulation of administration policies" and a chance to visit with the President on Thursday afternoon, all for $1,000.

Will these purchasers of "special privilege" be the successful bidders for control of the captive Democratic party? I doubt it. The Thousand Dollar club members are being taken in. They will not get the "special privilege" or the influence they were offered. There are higher bidders in the market.

Those higher bidders are the Political Action Committee of Sidney Hillman and the Communists of Earl Browder.

In this campaign, the New Dealers attempt to smother discussion of their Communist alliance. They smear any discussion of this major question of our day. They insinuate that Americans must love communism or offend our fighting ally, Russia. But not even the gullible believe that. In Russia, a Communist is a man who supports his government. In America, a Communist is a man who supports the fourth term so our form of government may more easily be changed.

No, the question of Communism in our country has nothing to do with our Allies any more than it has to do with where a man was born. Every American—every one of us—traces his ancestry to some foreign land. As a nation, we owe our genius, our culture, our traditions, to nations all over the world. The keystone of the arch of American freedom is our opposition to intolerance. The foundation of our American system of civil liberties is an equal respect and an equal opportunity for men of every race, creed and color and regardless of national origin. The mighty bulwark of these liberties is the Constitution of the United States.

These are the things that have given American leadership in the world. These above all others are what America must continue to stand for if she is to give leadership to the world again.

The proof that Communism has nothing to do with national origin is the fact that Earl Browder, the avowed leader of Communism in America, was born in Kansas.

Now, who is Browder? He is the man who was convicted of draft dodging in the last war. He was again convicted—this time of perjury—and pardoned by Franklin Roosevelt in time to organize the fourth term campaign. Browder stands for everything that would destroy America.

Quotes Browder's Book

Every one knows that Communism is for state ownership of all property, including your house, your farm and the factory, the shop, the office in which you work. It stands for absolute dictatorship, the abolition of civil rights and total political and economic bigotry. It stands for something else.

A few years ago, Mr. Browder wrote a book called "What Is Communism?". He said: "We stand without any reservations for education that will root out beliefs in the supernatural. . ." He concluded: ". . .We Communists do not distinguish between good and bad religions, because we think they are all bad for the masses."

Now, Mr. Roosevelt in his recent speech from the White House very softly disavowed Communism. But the very next day, at a meeting right here in Boston, Earl Browder made a speech for Mr. Roosevelt and a collection was taken up for the fourth term. And not a voice in the New Deal was raised in protest. So much for Earl Browder.

Now—who is Sidney Hillman? He has held one official post after another in the New Deal, in addition to important duties as the head of a labor union. When the fourth term campaign came along, he went to New York to concentrate on politics.

There, in the primaries this year, he organized a movement to take over the previously respectable American Labor party. And he succeeded with the help of Earl Browder's Communists.

What is the American Labor party today—the party whose nomination Mr. Roosevelt has accepted and whose votes he hopes will give him 16 years in the White House?

Listen to the words of another set of my opponent's violent supporters. David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was one of the founders of the American Labor party. Here is what he said last spring about that party as of today: "I regard the former American Labor party as a Communist Labor party. . .Mr. Hillman can act as a front for the Communists, I never did and never will." So said David Dubinsky.

The New York Post, formerly the mouthpiece of the Laobr party says editorially that Mr. Hillman "fronts for the Communists by serving as chairman for their American Labor party."

The last candidate of that party for governor, who polled 400,000 votes in 1942, is another violent supporter of my opponent. But it was he who said last spring that he intended "leaving Mr. Hillman and his fellow travelers to stew in their own juice."

"Political action by coercion is repugnant to our form of government. . . ," he also said, "Liberals throughout the country should beware of dealing with Mr. Hillman for he no longer comes to them with clean hands. He has set himself up as a new and dangreous type of political boss."

"Clear Everything With Sidney"

Just four months after that statement was issued my opponent ordered the Democratic National Chairman to "Clear Everything With Sidney." The prophecy has come true. Sidney Hillman has become the biggest boss in the United States, and in the words of David Dubinsky, Sidney Hillman is a "front for the Communists."

In addition to being chairman of the Communist-controlled American Labor party of New York, Mr. Hillman is also chairman of the Political Action committee. This is the committee which summarized the degradation of New Deal politics in a pamphlet, two million copies of which were sent out in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. That pamphlet, put out by Sidney Hillman's P.A.C., began with the words: "Politics is the science of how who gets what, when and why."

Under that cynical motto, Mr. Hillman today operates the National Citizens Political Action Committee with his lieutenants who have taken leave of absence from high federal posts. He stalks the country squeezing dollars for the fourth term campaign out of the working men and women of America, under threat that if they do not give the dollar, they will lose their jobs.

But the working men and women of America are rising in protest all over the nation. Letters have been pouring in to me denouncing this Roosevelt poll tax imposed by Sidney Hillman. As one of them said: "They can force my dollar out of me by threatening to take my job away, but they can't force my vote because it is secret. I am going to vote Republican to save my own freedom."

It is not just his freedom that man will save when he goes into the secrecy of the voting booth. He and millions like him will exercise their precious right of a secret ballot and save the freedom of the American people.

Now, American liberty means that every man has a right to believe and vote as he will, even to vote Communist. But liberty involves a corresponding duty to defend our country from what we consider evil. I have never hesitated to expose and denounce the cynical alliance of the New Deal and the corrupt big city machines which depend on the most criminal and degraded elements in our big cities. And I do not propose now to be silent when the New Deal, through the President's political lieutenant, Sidney Hillman, strikes up a cynical alliance with Earl Browder's Communists.

Influence of Communists

For a long time it has been the fashion to brush aside the Communists as of little importance because of their small numbers. The Communists themselves have cunningly played upon our respect for the very civil liberties which they themselves hold in such contempt. Yet the fact is that the Communists wield an influence far out of proportion to their numbers.

They are not themselves a political party. They are a fanatical, secret conspiracy of well disciplined, highly trained zealots who work at their purposes every hour of the day. Falsehood, deception and smear propaganda are part of their technique. They are adept at working behind the false front of those they contemptuously describe as "innocents." They love to fish in troubled waters. They place their members at strategic points where they can seize control of large organizations. Millions of Americans have seen this happen time after time. Liberal, intelligent organizations suddenly turn out to be Communist propaganda fronts.

Similarly, millions of workers have seen their union organizations captured by compact minorities who attend all the meetings, vote in a bloc and thereby seize the union machinery. Once in control, they cannot be dislodged. It was by just such tactics last spring that the Communists were able to seize possession of the American Labor Party of New York which in 1940 provided the balance of power that carried New York for Mr. Roosevelt.

Now, by the self-same tried and familiar tactics and with the aid of Sidney Hillman, the Communists are seizing control of the New Deal, through which they aim to control the government of the United States. If they should succeed, the fundamental freedoms of every American would stand in gravest jeopardy.

Struggle to be Free

Throughout the ages man's greatest struggle is the struggle to be free—free to worship God; to have a family and family life; free to educate his children; to live in economic security in his own home; to be able to have work of his own choosing; and to have a government which is a servant not a master.

Our nation was founded by men and women who came here to achieve these things. They built their institutions in a deeply religious pattern and, by the bill of rights, they bound their government to respect freedom of religion and the dignity of the individual. Because of what they did, we call America "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

But we cannot take our freedom for granted, nor can we afford to stop being brave. There always have been and always will be, those who seek to destroy our freedoms.

Nazism and Fascism are dying in the world. But the totalitarian idea is very much alive and we must not slip to its other form—Communism. All of these concepts are enemies of freedom and we must equally reject all of them. They would make the state supreme, give political power only to those who deny the supremacy of God and use that power to force all men to become cogs in a great materialistic machine.

Under these systems, the individual cannot worship, vote, or think as he would, or conduct his life as his own. Slavish obedience to the will of the state is the first great command and the price of non-conformity is liquidation, either through violence or slow economic strangulation.

Pagan Philosophy

Today that pagan philosophy is sweeping through much of the world. As we look abroad we see that in country after country, its advocates are making a bid for power. We would be fools not to look for that same danger here. We have not far to look. Even Mr. Roosevelt has felt he must say that he does not welcome the support of any person or group committed to Communism. That is as may be. The important facts are, first, that Mr. Roosevelt has so weakened and corrupted the Democratic party that it is readily subject to capture, and, second, that the forces of Communism are, in fact, now engaged in capturing it.

That danger can be surely met only by ending a situation which leaves vast power in tired hands. The Republican party is not perfect. But one thing at least is sure: neither the Communist group which Mr. Roosevelt professes to repudiate nor any other totalitarian group is making an effort to capture the Republican party. They know how useless it would be.

The Republican party is young and vigorous. In 26 states, Republican governors are bringing alert, progressive, competent and honest administration to the affairs of two-thirds of the American people. First in local governments, then in the states, the people have turned to our party. Now it is prepared to assume the responsibilities of national government. It is rich in able leaders steeped in the American tradition. It is close to the people. It wants to continue the American way of life and to perpetuate American institutions founded upon the God-given right of individuals to be free. Millions of Democrats are voting Republican this year to save their own party and their country.

Under a Republican administration there will be no danger that the power of government will slip through tired fingers into hands which would destroy that free America for which our sons are fighting and dying.

I have a letter from an American soldier fighting in the far Pacific. He says: "When we come home there will be flags waving and people will exult in victory and cheer. But the greater effort will only begin then. We here are only securing the bridgehead to freedom. Will our generation forget that fact? If we do, this victory will be only the beginning of defeat for us and our children."

Let us tonight resolve that we will be equal to the duty we owe that soldier and his comrades. Let us at home seize and hold that bridgehead to freedom. Let us install on January 20 a government which, under God, will dedicate its purpose to the preservation of the individual dignity and freedom of every American.

Weir Says He Tried to Halt Scrap for Japan

Tells of His Futile Effort to Bar U. S. Exports in Bitter Answer to Ickes

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1 (AP).—E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, declared in a statement today that "almost three years before Pearl Harbor" he made a "number of efforts, without result, to persuade the Administration to stop all shipments" of scrap iron and steel to Japan.

Mr. Weir made the statement in reply to remarks which he said were made by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, "giving the entirely false inference that others and myself in the steel industry were in some way responsible" for the export of materials to Japan in years prior to the war.

He said Secretary Ickes made the remarks in the broadcast of the "Town Meeting of the Air" program of Oct. 26. On the day following the broadcast, said Mr. Weir, he wired Secretaray Ickes giving him "the facts concerning my record of the export of scrap iron and steel" and requesting a retraction. So far, he said, the Secretary had neither replied nor retracted.

Mr. Weir also made public his telegram to Secretary Ickes, which stated in part:

"It would be natural to expect you to alibi the shameful record of the Roosevelt administration which by permitting the export of millions of tons of scrap steel to Japan helped Japan prosecute its war against China and prepare for its war against the United States. Even from you, however, the public has a right to expect something better than the cheap demagoguery to which you resorted in an attempt to shift part of the blame to business." . . .

In his telegram Mr. Weir said the transcript of the program showed "you were asked the following question and made the following answer:

"'Mr. Secretary, if the President knew the war was coming, why did he not prohibit the shipment of scrap iron to Japan?'

"Secretary Ickes: 'Well, that is a pretty broad question. . . . I think the scrap iron should have been barred long before the war, but how about your big industrialists supporting Dewey today? How about Illinois Steel? How about Weir? How about Grace, of Bethlehem Steel? What is their record on scrap? As far as oil was concerned, we did stop it in the summer of 1941.'"

Mr. Weir's statement asserted:

"The inference created by Secretary Ickes was entirely in error for these reasons: first, no company with which I am connected has ever shipped a single ton of scrap iron or steel to Japan, and second, I was among those who objected to the export of scrap iron and steel to Japan before the war.

"Almost three years before Pearl Harbor I made a number of efforts, without results, to persuade the Administration to stop all shipments of these materials to Japan." Mr. Weir said that "when it became apparent these efforts were unsuccessful," he "decided to do what I could to acquaint the public with the scrap export situation, and gave a statement to Pittsburgh newspaper men to the effect that all export of scrap iron and steel should be stopped until the United States had built up reserves to meet any emergency."

Truman Calls Dewey 'Faker' and 'Scoffer'

NOV 2 1944

Denounces Governor's Use of Reports By Senate War Investigating Committee To Prove President Failure.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 1 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was described tonight by Senator Harry S. Truman, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, as a "political faker" and "scoffer."

Investigating Committee

In an address prepared for a Democratic rally, Truman reviewed the work of the Senate War Investigating committee, which he formerly headed, and declared:

"Mr. Dewey has tried to blacken and misrepresent the President by citing the Truman committee's reports. He has quoted only such phrases or sentences which suited his purpose."

Truman quoted from the committee's third annual report a finding that the nation's "astounding performance" brought results which "are the best answer to critics of the home front," and added:

"At the polls you will have your choice between electing the scoffer who said the President's proposal to build 50,000 planes was fantastic ,and would require at least four years, or you can reelect Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the man who not only had the vision and the courage and the leadership to make that proposal, but actually doubled it. We are now building planes at the rate of 100,000 a year.

To Win War

"To win this war and bring our fighting men back home we must have a leader who can act and not a political faker who first scoffs at the program as fantastic and impossible and then, when the impossible has been accomplished, tries to make you believe that it was a failure."

Truman credited Senator Kilgore (D-WVa) with a very great contribution to the work of the Truman committee.

Truman said that when the committee of five Democrats and four Republicans was formed "this administration said in effect: 'We welcome an investigation into the facts. We think constructive criticism will prevent many mistakes and will be helpful to the war effort'."

"It is an everlasting credit to the President and the Democratic administration," he continued, "that the Truman committee was armed with the authority necessary to enable it to act in the public interest."

Republicans Sign

Truman said every Republican member signed a committee report from which he read quotations which included these statements:

"Industry, labor and government deserve credit for the job of providing war material of excellent quality and quantity worthy of the use which the fighting forces are giving it x x x

"This astounding performance exceeds anything of its kind ever achieved in the history of the world. The results obtained are the best answer to the critics of the home front. They do not indicate perfection, but they do evidence accomplishment of a high order."

Truman told his audience they must judge for themselves "the motives Mr. Dewey had when he cited the records of the Truman Senate committee as proof of the President's failure," and added:

"Such political trickery will deceive very few. You will prove that to Mr. Dewey on November 7."

Soldier Formerly in 4-F Wins Medal of Honor

Knocks Out 2 Nazi Units; As a Boy He Was Afraid of Dark

FORT MEADE, Fla., Nov. 1 (AP).—A Fort Meade soldier who was once classified 4-F by his draft board and who as a boy was "so afraid of the dark it was pitiful," now wears the Congressional Medal of Honor for heroism in Italy.

He is twenty-one-year-old Private James H. Mills, whose mother, Mrs. Lassie Mills, commented, "It doesn't sound like him at all, knowing him the way I do." Dispatches from Rome said Mills was awarded the nation's highest military honor for knocking out two German machine-gun nests, killing four Germans, capturing seven more and playing decoy target while his platoon surrounded and captured twenty-two Nazis without a casualty.

Mrs. Mills, who drives a Polk County school bus, said "He probably couldn't have done all this without the experience he gained in the woods," and added, "I guess I was wrong in telling him he hunted too much.

"All this is hard to believe because James used to be so very timid," the mother said. "He was so afraid of the dark it was pitiful. But he wasn't nearly so bad after he started to high school. Maybe it was the girls he met."

She said James, who worked on the forty-acre family farm while going to high school, was "the baby of the family" and when his father died in 1932, "We babied him more.

"I guess it was that babying that made him so determined to make good," she explained.

Mrs. Mills said her son did not mention his heroic exploits in his letters and only recently told her of winning the Purple Heart in June following wounds that still confine him to a hospital.

GI Hangs From Plane To Dislodge Bomb

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 1 (AP)—Dangling by his feet through an open bomb bay 3,000 feet in the air, with no parachute to save him if he fell, First Lieutenant Normal L. Palmer dislodged a jammed 500-pound bomb that would have prevented his bomber from landing.

For this feat, accomplished on the way back from a mission in northern Italy in June, the 22-year-old Rochester (Ind.) Mitchell bomber pilot was awarded the Soldiers' Medal.

Lieutenant Palmer, who is now undergoing reprocessing at the AAF station here, also wears the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

Roosevelt Calls For World Air Commerce

Implies U. S. Can Supply Aircraft for All—Warns Against Creating Restricted Areas Of Traffic — Adolf Berle Opens International Aviation Conference.

By James J. Strebig
Associated Press Aviation Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt called today for action to make the air a world ocean of peaceful commerce and backed his plea with a strong implication that the United States would supply aircraft for all when they are freed from war traffic.

Welcome Message

In a message of welcome read at the opening session of the International Civil Air Conference, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I hope you will not dally with the thought of creating great blocks of closed air, thereby tracing in the sky the conditions of possible future wars. I know you will see to it that the air which God gave to everyone shall not become the means of domination over anyone."

With the defeat of one of the Axis countries, he said, transport aircraft should be released "in numbers sufficient to make a beginning.

"When both enemies have been defeated, they should be available in quantity. Every country has airports and trained pilots; and practically every country knows how to organize airlines.

Open Air Routes

"It would be a reflection on the common sense of nations if they were not able to make arrangements, at least on a provisional basis, making possible the opening of much needed air routes."

The significance of this lies in the fact that today no other country is building airplanes capable of world commercial traffic. The United States has been supplying transports for military routes for all the United Nations. It would be difficult for other countries to fly international routes for some time without the use of American planes.

Mr. Roosevelt's message was read by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chairman of the host delegation and temporary president of the 51-nation conference, the largest and, in subject matter, the broadest in aviation's brief history.

Conference Task

Opening the meeting, Berle told the hundreds of delegates that their task was to find a working basis for "making the air serviceable to mankind x x x and thereby to open the highways of friendship, of commerce, and of thought."

He recalled that the Versailles peace conference had not regarded aerial navigation as a subject for consideration.

"This time we shall not make that mistake," Berle said.

"The air has been used as an instrument of aggression. It is now being made a highway of liberation. It is our opportunity to make it hereafter a servant of peoples."

Mr. Roosevelt said that the task of the conference was of the highest importance.

Europe Reclaimed

"We can soberly hope that all Europe will be reclaimed for civilization before many months have passed," he said. "Steadily the great areas of the Pacific are likewise being freed from Japanese occupation. In due time the continent of Asia will be opened again to the friendly intercourse of the world.

"The rebuilding of peace means reopening the lines of communication and peaceful relationship. Air transport will be the first available means by which we can start to heal the wounds of war, and put the world once more on a peaceful basis."

The President said he did not believe that the world of today could wait several years to open air routes as had been done in the past and "there is no reason why it should."

Meetings Open

As a provisional rule pending action at a second general meeting tomorrow, Berle announced that all plenary (full) sessions of the conference and of committees would be open to the press in an effort to keep the public as well informed as possible.

He said the United States intended to state the substance of its thesis for a world air plan at the next general session. This will be the first formal public statement of this country's position.

Berle said that Canada, the United Kingdom, France and "some other" countries also desired to state their positions at the same meeting. Canada and Britain previously have outlined their ideas.

Roosevelt's Aviation Plea

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1—Here is the text of President Roosevelt's message to the International Civil Aviation Conference:

On behalf of the United States I offer a hearty welcome to the delegations of the fifty-one nations represented at this international conference on civil aviation. You were called to undertake a task of the highest importance. I am sure that you will succeed.

The progress of the armies, navies and air forces of the United Nations has already opened great areas to peaceful intercourse which has been closed for more than four black years. We can soberly hope that all Europe will be reclaimed for civilization before many months have passed.

Steadily the great areas of the Pacific are likewise being freed from Japanese occupation. In due time, the Continent of Asia will be opened again to the friendly intercourse of the world.

The rebuilding of peace means reopening the lines of communication and peaceful relationship. Air transport will be the first available means by which we can start to heal the wounds of war, and put the world once more on a peaceful basis.

Can't Wait Years This Time

You will recall that after the first World War a conference was held and a convention adopted designed to open Europe to air traffic; but under the arrangements then made, years of discussion were needed before air routes could actually be flown. At that time, however, air commerce was in its infancy. Now it has reached maturity and is a pressing necessity. I do not believe that the world of today can afford to wait for several years for its air communications. There is no reason why it should.

Increasingly the airplanes will be in existence. When either the German or the Japanese enemy is defeated, transport planes should be available for release from military work in numbers sufficient to make a beginning. When both enemies have been defeated they should be available in quantity. Every country has airports and trained pilots; and practically every country knows how to organize airlines.

It would be a reflection on the common sense of nations if they were not able to make arrangements, at least on a provisional basis, making possible the opening of the much-needed air routes. I hope, when your conference adjourns, that these arrangements will have been made. Then all that will be needed will be to start using the air as a great peaceful medium instead of a battle area.

Counsels Against "Closed Air"

You are fortunate in having before you one of the great lessons of history. Some centuries ago an attempt was made to build great empires based on domination of great sea areas. The lords of these areas tried to close these seas to some and offer access to others and thereby to enrich themselves and extend their power. This led directly to a number of wars, both in the eastern and western hemispheres. We do not need to make that mistake again.

I hope you will not daily with the thought of creating great blocks of closed air, thereby tracing in the sky the conditions of possible future wars. I know you will see to it that the air which God gave to everyone shall not become the means of domination over anyone.

As we begin to write a new chapter in the fundamental law of the air let us all remember that we are engaged in a great attempt to build enduring institutions of peace. These peace settlements cannot be endangered by petty considerations or weakened by groundless fears. Rather, with full recognition of the sovereignty and juridicial equality of all nations, let us work together so that the air may be used by humanity to service humanity.

Air Delegates Housed In 600 Stevens Rooms

Furniture Trucked From Bretton Woods for 150 Offices

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP).—The huge Stevens Hotel, which reopened to the public last November after more than a year of Army occupation, is host to an international conference of delegations from fifty-two nations—and handling it in stride.

Two entire floors have been turned over to the International Civil Aviation Conference for office use, while more than 600 sleeping rooms were held vacant all last night so that delegates could move in today.

Furniture for the more than 150 separate offices established in the hotel by the State Department was moved here by motor van from Bretton Woods, N. H., where it had been used for a preceding global conference on monetary affairs.

Lewis O. Doty, hotel resident manager, traveled to Washington so that he could register the delegates on the train to assure them rooms.

Besides the delegates, military police, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, translators, secretaries, clerks and advisers also checked in today. Alphabetically, the travelers hail from Afghanistan to Yugoslavia; culinarily, their tastes range from aquavit to yetcomein.

But there's a war on, and Mr. Doty said no attempt had been made to provide native chefs or elaborate national dishes for the transplanted dignitaries.

"These men are all cosmopolitans," he said. "Since the war, people need pretty much to take food as they find it. Our cooks are drawn from so many nationalities I'm certain some one among our staff could dig up any dish requested—if he could get the ingredients."

HE ADVOCATED THAT THE UNITED STATES FURNISH RAILWAY EQUIPMENT AND MOTOR TRANSPORT TO FRANCE AND OTHER COUNTRIES AS THEY ARE LIBERATED, ALONG WITH MATERIAL TO REBUILD BLASTED BRIDGES AND CANAL LOCKS.

"WITHOUT THAT AID," HE SAID, "THEIR PROCESS OF RECOVERY WOL

BE IMMEASURABLY DELAYED.. AND DELAY IN TME RECOVERS OF THESE COUNTRIES INEVITABLY WILL MEAN DELAY IN GENERAL ECONOMIC RECOVERY UPON WHICH OUR COUNTRY DEPENDS FOR MAINTENANCE OF A HIGH LIVING STANDARD."

"SO," HE SAID, "IT'S NOT JUST A QUESTION OF RELIEF, NOT JUST

A QUESTION OF PROVIDING THE MEANS OF TRANSPORTATION FOR BRINGING IN THE SUPPLIES WHICH THE POORLY-CLOTHED, HUNGRY PEOPLE OF MANY SECTIONS OF EUROPE WILL NEED THIS WINTER.

"IT'S A QUESTION OF RESTORING A VITAL PART OF THE WORLD'S SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION. AND, UNLESS WE GET THAT SYSTEM OPERATING SOON, WE WILL HAVE HUGE SURPLUSES OF MANY THINGS IN THE STATES.

"SURPLUSES MEAN UNEMPLOYMENT. THEY MEAN BAD TIMES FOR THE FARMER AND THE FACTORY WORKER."

WITHIN LITTLE MORE THAN AN HOUR THEY WERE REINFORCED BY BRITISH INFANTRY, AND TWO HOURS LATER OTHER COMMANDOS MADE A SUCCESSFUL LANDING NEAR WESTKAPELLE.

THE NAZIS' ISLAND FORTRESS, FULLY THREE-QUARTERS OF WHICH IS UNDER WATER, IS THUS UNDER ATTACK FROM THREE DIRECTIONS. AS CANADIAN INFANTRY THIS MORNING CROSSED FROM SOUTH BEVELAND ISLAND AND ESTABLISHED A SMALL BRIDGEHEAD ON WALCHEREN.

THE ASSAULT QUICKLY CLEARED THE BEACH, BUT AS LATE AS THIS AFTERNOON THERE WAS NOT MUCH PROGRESS INTO THE TOWN ITSELF, WHICH CIVILIANS REPORTED WAS HELD BY ABOUT 600 GERMANS. THE UNITED STATES IS RAISING NO OBJECTIONS TO THE POSTPONEMENT AND ONLY REQUESTS THAT INTERESTED AMERICAN OIL COMPANIES BE INFORMED WHEN THE GOVERNMENT OF IRAN BEGINS NEGOTIATIONS ON THE GRANTING OF CONCESSIONS AFTER THE WAR, MORRIS SAID.

--DASH--

THE BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION, IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION TONIGHT, SAID SIR READER BULLARD, BRITISH MINISTER TO IRAN, ALSO HAD NO OBJECTION TO THE POSTPONEMENT OF OIL CONCESSION NEGOTIATIONS UNTIL AFTER THE WAR.

THE BROADCAST RELATED THAT A RUSSIAN MISSION HAD ARRIVED IN TEHERAN LATE IN SEPTEMBER WITH THE OBJECT OF GETTING CONCESSIONS IN NORTHERN IRAN BEFORE THE WAR'S END, BUT THE IRANIAN GOVERNMENT HAD REFUSED TO RESCIND ITS DECISION TO POSTPONE NEGOTIATIONS WHICH IT ANNOUNCED SEPT.2.

THE NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY STATED THAT IT HAD RECORDED AN EARLIER BROADCAST BY BBC IN WHICH RUSSIA WAS CHARGED WITH "BAD FAITH" IN ATTEMPTING TO OBTAIN OIL CONCESSIONS BEFORE THE END OF THE WAR AND DECLARING THAT THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS SUPPORTED THE IRANIAN GOVERNMENT IN REJECTING THE RUSSIAN OVERTURES. NBC SAID IT ALSO HAD RECORDED THE SECOND BBC BROADCASTAS REPORTED BY THE OWI.

THE TEHERAN NEWSPAPER, DAD, WAS QUOTED IN MOSCOW AS SAYING THAT ONLY THE GOVERNMENT'S RESIGNATION COULD IMPROVE RELATIONS WITH THE U.S.S.R. BY MORRIE LANDSBERG (600)

ABOARD FLAGSHIP, U.S.CARRIER TASK FORCE, PHILIPPINE SEA, OCT.28-DELAYED)-(AP)-THE AMERICAN ABILITY TO MAINTAIN CONTROL OF THE AIR AND MEET ATTACK WITH ATTACK, IN THE FACE OF ADVERSITY, WERE DECISIVE FACTORS IN THE OVERWHELMING NAVAL VICTORY OF THE THIRD AND SEVENTH FLEETS.

THE JAPANESE STRATEGY WAS NEATLY PLOTTED, BUT POORLY EXECUTED. NIPPONESE FLEET COMMANDERS FAILED TO CARRY OFF THEIR MANEUVER AND SUFFERED A DEFEAT THAT WILL PLAY A VITAL ROLE IN THE FUTURE COURSE OF THE PACIFIC WAR.

THEIR USE OF THREE SEPARATE FORCES, TOTALLING 58 TO 60 WARCRAFT, REMINDED PACIFIC VETERANS OF SIMILAR TACTICS EMPLOYED IN THE BATTLE OF MIDWAY IN 1942.

FROM THE JAPANESE STANDPOINT, THE SUCCESS OF ANY ONE PHASE WOULD HAVE ACCOMPLISHED THEIR PURPOSE. THE PLAN WAS CONCEIVED SO AS NOT TO DEPEND ENTIRELY ON THE SUCCESS OF ALL THREE GROUPS WHICH WAS AS THEIR ULTIMATE MISSION THE STOPPING OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN THE PHILIPPINES.

THE ADVANTAGE TACTICALLY WAS WITH THE JAPANESE. THEY KNEW WHERE THEY WERE GOING AND WHAT THEY WANTED TO DO.

ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY, COMMANDER OF THE THIRD FLEET, ALSO KNEW WHAT HE WANTED TO DO--PROTECT THE INVASION BEACHHEAD AND FIGHT IT OUT WITH THE JAPANESE FLEET--BUT HE HAD TO GUESS PRECISELY WHERE THE JAPANESE WOULD STRIKE.

THREE MAJOR DEFECTS BOGGED DOWN THE JAPANESE--POOR EXECUTION, LACK OF VITAL AIR SUPPORT AND APPARENTLY INCOMPLETE INTELLIGENCE ON THE SIZE AND DISPOSITION OF THE THIRD FLEET.

IT WAS EVIDENT THEY HOPED TO DRAW WHAT THEY MAY HAVE BELIEVED WAS A CRIPPLED AMERICAN FORCE TO MEET THE MOST POWERFUL IMPERIAAL CARRIER UNIT, STEAMING SOUTHWARD FROM FORMOSA.

THERE, THE JAPANESE USING BOTH CARRIER AND LAND-BASED AIR-CRAFT, EVIDENTLY EXPECTED TO DISSIPATE AMERICAN AIR STRENGTH. MEANWHILE, THE ENEMY HAD TWO OTHER FORCES IN THE SIBUYAN AND SULU SEAS TO EXECUTE A SQUEEZE ON THE TRANSPORT, CARGO AND AUXILIARY SHIPS OFF LEYTE.

IF THE NORTHERN FORCE SUCCEEDED IN SMASHING THIRD FLEET UNITS, IT WOULD ADD 17 MORE WARSHIPS--INCLUDING FOUR CARRIERS AND TWO BATTLESHIPS--TO THE FINAL ASSAULT AGAINST MACARTHUR'S INVASION ARMADA.

BUT THE JAPANESE LOST THE INITIATIVE TO THE AMERICANS EVEN BEFORE THEY GOT THE CHANCE TO CARRY OUT ANY PART OF THE MANEUVER, EXCEPT AN ATTACK ON AMERICAN CARRIERS DEPLOYED OFF NORTHERN LUZON AGAINST JUST SUCH A CONTINGENCY.

THIS UNITED STATES FORCE BEGAN HITTING THE SIBUYAN CONCENTRATION, EVEN AS THE NORTHERN JAPANESE FORMATION WAS SIGHTED. AMERICAN CARRIER PLANES FLEW NEARLY 300 MILES TO REACH THE ENEMY.

THE JAPANESE CLEARLY PLANNED TO SHUTTLE BOMB THE AMERICANS, USING CARRIER AND LAND BASES, THEN CLOSE IN FOR THE FINAL KILL. INSTEAD, THE ENEMY LOST THREE FOURTHS OF THE PLANES SENT OUT, AND AMERICAN SHIPS FORCED THE CARRIER FORCE TO RETIRE NORTHWARD.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST RAIDS WAS ATTEMPTED TUESDAY MORNING, BUT 40 FIGHTERS, 20 BOMBERS AND TORPEDO PLANES DIDN'T GET THROUGH ENTIRELY.

THREE AMERICAN PILOTS TOOK ON FORTY JAPANESE, SHOT DOWN AT LEAST 19 AND CHASED THE REMAINDER BACK TO MANILA.

NINE OF THEM WERE DESTROYED BY CMDR.DAVID MCCAMPBELL, THE NAVY'S TOP ACE. (HE NOW HAS 30 PLANES TO HIS CREDIT.)

IN THE NEXT TWO DYNAMIC DAYS THE SEVENTH FLEET BEAT OFF ONE ARM OF

THE JAPANESE PINCER WHICH SWUNG INTO MINDANAO SEA AND DIRECTLY THREATENED MACARTHUR'S FLOATING SUPPLIES.

THE OTHER ARM VENTURED THROUGH SAN BERNARDINO STRAITS IN PURSUIT OF LIGHT AMERICAN CARRIERS ASSIGNED TO PROVIDE AIR COVER FOR THE LEYTE OPERATIONS. THIS FORCE WAS ENGAGED EAST OF SAMAR.

THEN THE JAPANESE LEARNED THEIR TIMING HAD FAILED AND THEIR OWN REPORTS OF DAMAGE TO CARRIERS, FROM PREVIOUS AIR RAIDS, WERE FAR FROM THE TRUTH.

THE NAVY BATTLE IS REMARKABLE IN RETROSPECT BECAUSE THE AMERICANS WERE REQUIRED TO DEFEAT ALL THREE JAPANESE ELEMENTS.

ON THE OTHER HAND, IF ONE ENEMY UNIT HAD SUCCEEDED IN CARRYING OUT ITS ASSIGNED JOB, WHATEVER ITS LOSSES, THE RESULTS MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORTHWHILE TO THE JAPANESE.

THE PAPER IS PUBLISHED IN A PLANT WHERE THE "LEYTE-SAMAR SHIMBUN" HAD BEEN ISSUED UNDER JAPANESE SUPERVISION. IT WAS A WEEKLY BEFORE THE JAPANESE CAME.

PAPER IS A MAJOR PROBLEM. THE PLANT WAS LOOTED AFTER THE JAPANESE FLED. THE PUBLICATION IS TRYING TO LOCATE THE PAPER AND BUY IT BACK.

WASHINGTON, NOV.1-(AP)-ADMIRAL SIR JAMES SOMERVILLE, NEW HEAD OF THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY DELEGATION TO THE COMBINED CHIEFS OF STAFF COMMITTEE, SAID TODAY HE LOOKED FORWARD TO BRITISH AND AMERICAN COMBINED FLEET OPERATIONS IN THE PACIFIC BECAUSE "WE WANT TO BE PARTY TO THE FORCES THAT ARE GOING TO KNOCK OUT JAPAN."

AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE BRITISH EASTERN FLEET FOR THE PAST TWO AND A HALF YEARS, ADMIRAL SIR JAMES CHAMPIONED BRITISH AND MERICAN COMBINED NAVAL ACTION IN REFERRING TO AMERICAN NAVAL UNITS WHICH WERE ADDED TO HIS "RATHER ANTIQUATED AND MUCH REDUCED FLEET" IN THE CRITICAL DAYS OF JULY AND AUGUST 1943 IN THE BURMA-INDIA THEATRE.

"WE LEARNED MUCH FROM OUR AMERICAN NAVAL FRIENDS," THE ADMIRAL SAID IN HIS FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE HERE COMMENTING ON CERTAIN U.S. PLANE CARRIER UNITS WHICH HAD JOINED HIS BRITISH EASTERN FLEET.

HE SAID THE AMERICANS GAVE WELCOME HELP, BECAUSE "NOWADAYS, WE CAN'T DO ANYTHING VERY MUCH WITHOUT CARRIERS." IN CITING THE EASE WITH WHICH THOSE AMERICAN NAVAL UNITS HAD FITTED INTO THE BRITISH FLEET, ADMIRAL SOMERVILLE SAID HE FELT THAT THERE WOULD BE NO GREAT DIFFICULTY IN COMBINING BRITISH AND AMERICAN NAVAL UNITS AND THAT NO MORE THAN A WEEK WAS USUALLY NEEDED FOR THE ACTUAL COMBINATION OF SHIPS.

IN REPLY TO QUESTIONS ABOUT THE NEED FOR A BRITISH FLEET IN THE PACIFIC AFTER THE SUCCESSFUL INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES, THE ADMIRAL SAID:

"NO MATTER HOW MANY SHIPS ARE AVAILABLE, IN THE UNCERTAINTIES OF NAVAL BATTLES ADDITIONAL UNITS ARE ALWAYS WELCOME. SPEAKING AS AN ADMIRAL, I SHOULD SAY 'YES' TO ANY OFFER OF ADDITIONS. IAM SURE ADMIRAL NIMITZ FEELS SO, TOO.

"IT'S UP TO THE CHIEFS OF STAFF TO DECIDE HOW THIS WILL OPERATE, OF COURSE," ADMIRAL SOMERVILLE SAID, "BUT WE LOOK FORWARD TO JOINING THE FORCES WHICH ARE GOING TO KNOCK OUT JAPAN. WE BRITISH HAVE INTERESTS IN THE PACIFIC. WE FEEL VERY STRONGLY ABOUT TAKING PART IN THE BATTLE."

ADMIRAL SIR JAMES RECITED THE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EASTERN FLEET BEGINNING EARLY IN 1942. HE EXPLAINED THAT HIS FLEET WAS "DISPROPORTIONATELY REDUCED IN COMPARISON WITH OTHER NAVAL FORCES WHOSE UNITS WERE NEEDED FOR THE BATTLE IN THE ATLANTIC AND THEN IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

"BUT TODAY," ADMIRAL SOMERVILLE SAID, "THE EASTERN FLEET CONTROLS ABSOLUTELY THE SEAS BETWEEN AFRICA AND AUSTRALIA, SEAS IN WHICH NO JAPANESE SHIP DARES SHOW HERSELF."

"HOWEVER, AT THE TIME," HE SAID, "WHEN THE QUESTION WAS ASKED 'WHERE THE HELL IS THE BRITISH EASTERN FLEET', I WAS INCLINED TO REPLY, 'WHAT THE HELL IS THE BRITISH EASTERN FLEET.'"

ASKED ABOUT THE RECENT WITHDRAWAL OF GEN.STILWELL FROM THE BURMA-INDIA-CHINA THEATRE, ADMIRAL SIR SOMERVILLE DECLINED ANY COMMENT OTHER THAN TO SAY THAT "OLD VINEGAR AND I ARE VERY GOOD FRIENDS AND I HOLD HIM IN VERY HIGH REGARD."

AS FOR THE JAPANESE NAVAL BATTLE OFF LEYTE, THE NEW HEAD OF BITISH ADMIRALTY DELEGATION SAID IT WAS HIS PERSONAL OPINION THAT "THE JAPS HAVE GAINED VERY LITTLE: THEY'VE BEEN LICKED AND THE LANDINGS IN THE PHILIPPINES REMAIN A SUCCESS."

"I AM SURE," HE SAID, "THAT THE COMPLETE LIBERTY OF THE FILIPINOS PEOPLE WILL BE ONLY A QUESTION OF A FEW MONTHS."

THE JAPANESE RADIO SAID SUPERFORTRESSES RAIDED TOKYO TODAY AND EVIDENTLY STARTED PANICS IN SOME PARTS OF THE ENEMY CAPITAL. THERE WAS NO ALLIED CONFIRMATION OF THE REPORTS. THE U.S.WAR DEPARTMENT SAID IT HAD NO INFORMATION ON ANY SUCH OPERATIONS.

SOME FACTORIES IN THE RAIDED AREA "LOST THEIR CALMNESS," THE ENEMY BROADCASTS SAID.

A TOKYO DOMESTIC BROADCAST, ONE OF SEVERAL PICKED UP BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID ARTLESSLY THAT "NO AIR RAID WARNING WAS ISSUED AT THE TIME OF THIS SUDDEN RAID."

THAT PARTICULAR ANNOUNCER TOLD THE JAPANESE PEOPLE THAT "NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS IN THE FUTURE, THE DETERMINATION TO RENDER YOUR SERVICE AND DEFEND THE IMPERIAL LAND WITH THE AIR DEFENSE FIGHTING SPIRIT MUST BE FURTHER STRENGTHENED."

HE LECTURED HIS PUBLIC ABOUT TAKING FIRE PRECAUTIONS IN FUTURE RAIDS "BECAUSE JAPANESE HOMES BURN EASILY."

THE REPORTS AGREED THAT THE PLANES PASSED OVER THE TOKYO METROPOLITAN AREA. ONE VERSION SAID THEY ALSO APPEARED OVER YOKOHAMA. ANOTHER REPORTED THAT "SEVERAL TENS OF LARGE-TYPE PLANES TWICE RAIDED TRUK ISLAND." AT LEAST TWO BROADCASTS REPORTED THE PLANES CAME FROM THE MARIANAS, WHERE THE U.S.HAS AIR BASES ON SAIPAN, TINIAN AND GUAM.

ASSUMING THE REPORTS WERE SUBSTANTIALLY CORRECT, IT WAS THE FIRST TIME AMERICAN PLANES HAD RAIDED THE JAPANESE CAPITAL IN MORE THAN TWO YEARS. THE OTHER OCCASION WAS THE EPIC BOMBING OF TOKYO BY LT.GEN. JAMES H.DOOLITTLE APRIL 18, 1942.

ALL THE REPORTS NEGLECTED TO SAY WHETHER THE RAIDERS DROPPED BOMBS.

THEY SAID VARIOUSLY THAT TWO OF THE BIG U.S.PLANES APPEARED; THAT THERE WAS ONLY ONE; THAT THERE WERE SEVERAL; THAT AN AIR RAID ALARM WAS SOUNDED AND THAT AIR DEFENSE HEADQUARTERS ISSUED INSTRUCTIONS; THAT NO ALARM WAS SOUNDED AND SOME FACTORIES "LOST THEIR CALMNESS!" THAT THEY FLED BEFORE A JAPANESE "COUNTER ATTACK;" THAT THEY DID NOT ATTEMPT TO ATTACK, AND THAT THEY WERE DRIVEN OFF BY FIGHTERPLANES BEFORE THEY COULD DO "ANY MISCHIEF."

JAPANESE PROPAGANDISTS IMMEDIATELY TERMED THE RAIDS A "ROOSEVELT FACE-SAVING AERIAL STUNT" TO COVER THE "AMERICAN DEBACLE" OFF FORMOSA AND THE PHILIPPINES. THIS REFERRED TO THE RECENT NAVAL BATTLE WHICH COST JAPAN UPWARDS OF 60 WARSHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED.

THE NIPPONESE CONTINUED TO CLAIM SUCCESSES IN AERIAL AND NAVAL BATTLES OFF FORMOSA AND THE PHILIPPINES.

PRIVATE AND CONFIDENTIAL NOTE TO MEMBERS

THIS REFERS TO MATTERS CONNECTED WITH THE CENSORSHIP CLEARANCE OF THE PRESTON GROVER STORY FROM NEW DELHI, DESCRIBING EVENTS LEADING TO THE WITHDRAWAL OF GENERAL STILWELL.

GROVER SENT HIS STORY ORIGINALLY BY COURIER TO THIS COUNTRY WITH THE EXPLICIT UNDERSTANDING IT WOULD BE SUBMITTED TO CENSORSHIP IN WASHINGTON. HE DETERMINED ON THIS COURSE IN CIRCUMSTANCES WHEREBY TWO OF HIS CONTEMPORARIES--SERVING AS CORRESPONDENTS IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER AND HAVING ACCESS TO THE SAME INFORMATION--WERE RETURNING DIRECTLY TO THE UNITED STATES, THEIR INTENTION BEING TO WRITE THEIR STORIES AND SUBMIT THEM PERSONALLY TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON FOR CENSORSHIP.

FAR FROM ANY THOUGHT OF CIRCUMVENTING CENSORSHIP, I FELT THAT GROVER'S ENTERPRISE SHOULD FACILITATE ACTION UPON HIS STORY BY THE HIGHEST MILITARY AUTHORITIES. HOWEVER, THE WAR DEPARTMENT RULED THAT IT MUST BE REFERRED BACK TO THE THEATER CENSOR. THIS WAS DONE, RESULTING IN A DELAY IN CLEARING GROVER'S DISPATCH.

FOLLOWING TELEGRAPHIC EXCHANGES WITH MAJ. GEN. A. D. Yank Fliers Destroy 208 German Planes In Great Aerial Battle Over Merseburg; Troops Gain Two Miles South of Aachen

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID DUSSELDORF IN HEAVY ATTACK

EUNSON

Americans Lose 41 Heavies, 28 Fighters in Big Dogfight.

NOV 3 1944

MEET FIERCE RESISTANCE

Set New Record of Enemy Losses, Encounter Thick Flak.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 3—(AP) American fliers destroyed 208 German planes yesterday when the Luftwaffe made its long-promised reappearance and was whipped in one of the great all-time aerial battles—a savage, whirling dogfight of 2,400 U. S. and Nazi planes over Merseburg in central Germany.

Following quickly on this decisive Allied triumph, more than 1,000 RAF bombers roared out over western Germany after nightfall and delivered one of their heaviest blows at Dusseldorf, Rhineland industrial city behind the Western front.

Blast Oil Plant

In the huge daylight raid, 1,100 American heavy bombers blasted the Leuna synthetic oil plant at Merseburg and rail yards at Bellefield and Rheine. Yank fliers in 900 escorting Mustangs and Thunderbolts set a new fighter record of 155 planes destroyed in the air and on the ground. Another fighter record of 130 shot down and a new combination bomber-fighter record —208—in planes destroyed this year during one day were compiled.

Officials reported that, of the 2,000 American planes, 41 bombers and 28 fighters failed to return. The pilots flew through the heaviest flak they have encountered in months—"it rattled like hail" on the wings and fuselage, one pilot said—and met upwards of 500 German fighters, including many green and black jet planes which, fliers said, "climbed straight up off the ground."

In shooting down the 139 Nazis, the American fighter pilots surpassed the previous mark of 117 kills in aerial combat. They were opposed by many jet planes, four of which officially were reported shot down.

The Americans, apparently anticipating fierce opposition, sent out the second largest fighter escort ever dispatched by the Eighth airforce to shepherd the 1,100 bombers to their targets. The Germans, making a major attempt to save the synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, ordered up their biggest force of interceptors against the Americans over that sector.

Face Jet-Propelled Planes

The heavy bombers were attacked by waves of jet-propelled planes as they thundered over the oil plant. The Nazi fliers slashed at the U. S. formations from the rear and sides during the bombing runs.

Today's large-scale appearance of the Luftwaffe was the first time that the Germans had come up in numbers to fight since Oct. 7. The German fliers—many of them apparently newly trained—were no match for the Americans. Officials, saying our fighter losses were expected to be light, did not report how many U. S. bombers were downed.

In an early count the figure of enemy planes destroyed in the air had surpassed by far the former Eighth airforce fighter plane record of 117 kills set September 11 and probably will approach 200 by the time intelligence officers finish interrogating the beaming, victorious pilots.

The record for Nazi planes shot down in one day by fighters and bombers was not expected to be bettered. This all time high was set at 307 planes Aug. 18, 1943, when Flying Fortress gunners bagged 287 and their escorting fighters accounted for 20 in a double-barrelled raid on Schweinfurt and Regensburg.

At Merseburg the raiders met intense antiaircraft fire as the bombers thundered over the battered Leuna oil plant in formation after formation. Thunderbolts and Mustangs slashed viciously at Messerschmitts, Focke Wulfs and jet fighters encountered on this run in a terrific battle. One Yank outfit was said to have knocked down more than 19 Nazis here.

Destroy Rail Yards

Moderate flak and some fighter opposition was met at Beilefield and Rheine. Destruction of the rail yards at these points would snip off the last two remaining main rail routes between central Germany and the Western front lines. Yards at Hamm and Munster already have been knocked out by Allied bombings.

The American units also hammered at smaller targets in Western Germany, including another oil plant in the Ruhr valley. Meanwhile, RAF Lancasters headed for Homberg this afternoon and blasted a synthetic oil plant there. This oil center had a pre-war monthly production figure of 16,000 tons but recent raids have lowered this figure about 75 percent, air officials said.

Summing up its October raids by Lancasters and Halifaxes, the RAF announced today it had plastered German targets with 131,000,000 pounds of explosives during the past month, an average of 3,000 pounds a minute night and day. U. S. Eighth airforce figures—not yet compiled—are expected to be of similar size.

The Second British tactical airforce, based on the continent, flew 23,930 sorties during October. This group launched 17,618 rockets, dropped 16,797 bombs, shot up more than 80 German aircraft, destroyed 445 motor transport vehicles and 13 tanks. These fliers also hit enemy airfields, ammunition dumps, field targets, oil centers, canals and ferries.

Nazi Air Force Goes Up in Strength to Resist Raid by U. S. Bombers.

EUNSON

London, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Fighters of the Eighth United States Air Force shot down more than 117 German planes today, setting a new record.

Final figures are not complete, but the day's total is well over the previous high mark of 117 Fighters shot down on September 11, it was announced officially. It was also indicated that the record of fifty Fighters shot down by a single group, which had stood since April 8, also would be broken by a Mustang group, officials said.

American fighter losses are expected to be comparatively light. Estimates of German fighters encountered range as high as 400.

The American force—more than 900—was the second largest fighter force ever sent out by the Eighth Air Force. The complete figures may go as high as 150 Nazi planes destroyed by American fighters.

More than this number of German fighters have been shot down on one day, but they fell to the combined guns of our fighters and bombers.

By night R. A. F. heavy tankers had switched from disintegrating Cologne to Oberhausen, until now the least bombed city in the Ruhr.

Some 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators convoyed by 900 fighters bombed the vast Leuna synthetic oil plant at Mersburg in central Germany and other oil plants in the Ruhr. They bombed railyards at Bielefeld and Rheine and struck other targets in the west which were not specified.

The weather was bad.

R. A. F. Mosquitoes, however, kept up the assault upon Cologne during the night and other Mosquito forces went for Berlin, the fifth raid on the capital in six nights.

An industrial city of nearly 200,000 population 35 miles north of Cologne, Oberhausen has so far escaped with a minimum of heavy raids of the type that have wrecked large sections of Essen, Duisburg, Dusseldorf and other cities in the Ruhr.

Seven Records Smashed In Day's Battle in Sky

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 3—Seven new American Eighth Air Force records were set over Germany yesterday:

1. Fighters — Destroyed 155 German planes, beats previous record, 117, set Sept. 11.

2. Fighters—Shot down 130 Germans, beats previous record, 117.

3. Fighters and Bombers—Combination strike total 208, highest for 1944. Next highest, 176, at Berlin March 6. All time high set Aug. 18, 1943, at 307.

4. Fighter Group — Mustangs commanded by Col. Joe L. Mason of Columbus, Ohio, shot down thirty-eight planes, breaking old record of thirty-one for single day.

5. Fighter Squadron — More Mustangs commanded by Col. George E. Preddy of Greensboro, N. C., set new squadron record at twenty-four in one day. Old record was eighteen.

6. Fighter Pilot—Colonel Preddy shot down one plane to become highest ranking ace now operating in this theatre with 23½ in air and 6 on the ground for 29½. He now tops Col. Hubert Zemke of Missoula, Mont., who has 28.

7. Fighter Pilot—Lt. William J. Cullerton of Chicago, Ill., destroyed eight airplanes, two in the air and six on the ground, for highest combination made in one day.

BATTLESHIP TIRPITZ HIT BY BRITISH 'FIREFLIES'

LONDON, Nov. 2—(AP) The British Navy's newest aircraft, the Firefly, scored its first successes in a recent attack on the German battleship Tirpitz, it was disclosed today.

While naval bombers were working over the battleship, the Fireflies —heavily-armed, folding-wing fighter-reconnaissance monoplanes—engaged enemy aircraft attempting to break up the attack. Several German planes were shot down. Later in the same operation the new fighters attacked enemy shipping.

The Firefly has four 20-mm. cannons and a 12-cylinder, liquid-cooled Rolls Royce engine. It carries a pilot and an observer.

First Army Smashes Ahead After Big Guns Blast Path in Forest.

FALL OF FLUSHING IS NEAR

British Commandos Occupy Most of That Fortified Dutch City —Capture Nazi General.

London, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—American infantry, fighting through the dense Hurtgen Forest southeast of Aachen, advanced from one to nearly two miles in a new attack today, overran two villages and reached a third.

With heavy preparation by artillery, stealthily placed the last two weeks, infantrymen of the United States First Army hopped off to the attack through Hurtgen Forest this morning. They overran the village of Germeter and reached the town of Hurtgen, seven miles southwest of Duren on the road to Cologne for a gain of a mile. The village of Vassenack was overrun in another advance of nearly two miles.

British Commandos and Canadian infantry assaulting dike-girded Walcheren Island were in the last phase of the battle to uncover Antwerp. They fanned out rapidly along the two to three-mile-wide dune zone and drove the Germans out of all but the northern outskirts of the port of Flushing (Vlissingen).

Meeting stiffened rear guard resistance in the drive toward Rotterdam, however, Americans and Poles were forced to give up their narrow hard-won bridgeheads over the Mark River, last barrier before the Maas (Meuse) and Hollandsch Diep bridges.

British Commandos who invaded Walcheren near Westkapelle early Wednesday had bypassed the village of Domburg and knocked out at least two of the five big German guns left in action.

Although the Americans and Poles yielded their Mark River bridgeheads in the drive toward Maas, they had forced the Germans to destroy the Geertruidenburg Bridge north of Tilburg. The Allies had the remaining two bridges at Moerdijk under artillery fire and one of these was considerably damaged.

German General Captured.

South of the Schelde Allied troops captured Sluis and were well inside the coastal village of Knocke after the capture of the German commander, Major-Gen. Eberding of the Sixty-fourth Division and 2,500 more of his men. This division was counted as knocked out.

The month-old battle below the estuary came to a virtual finish tonight as the Canadians overran Knocke and Heyst, last German strongholds, and captured an additional 1,700 Germans, bringing the total Allied bag in the pocket to 11,700.

On Walcheren the value placed by the enemy on the approaches to Antwerp was measured by the fanatical fury with which the German garrison, cut off from all hope of escape, contested every foot.

Hold Small Bridgehead.

The Canadian attack across the 1,000-yard-long causeway from South Beveland was disclosed to have been pulled back yesterday out of ruinous Nazi crossfire from the Walcheren side, but overnight the Canadians drove back and this morning once again held a small and fiercely contested bridgehead a few hundred yards deep.

Below the Maas in south central Holland, enemy rearguards were fighting off Allied attacks on the escape bridges with the same bitter determination. Resistance was savage on the approaches to the Moerdijk bridge over the Hollandsch Diep. Farther east, the Allied troops held four and a half miles of the south bank of the Maas, and were fighting in Geertruidenberg.

In eastern Holland, where the enemy last week struck out with a heavy attack west of Venlo in an unsuccessful attempt to relieve pressure against the crumbling front above Antwerp, the British counter-attack rolled up fresh gains, advancing two miles beyond Lieseel, which was recaptured yesterday. With tank support, British infantry also cleared the enemy from a stretch along the banks of the Deurne Canal.

Seventh Army Advances.

In southern sectors of the long Allied front, local gains were made in the American sectors, including the capture of Letricourt and Abaucourt, northeast of Nancy, and twenty-six miles southeast of Metz.

In the region of the northern Vosges, units of the Seventh Army captured three villages—Buriville, Hablainville and Azerailles—southeast of Luneville, and north of Baccarat. New gains in the wooded country southeast of Rambervillers also were scored.

Ludwig Sertorious, Nazi military commentator, acknowledged last night that the Germans had lost the battle for Antwerp. A dispatch from Allied headquarters in Paris emphasized, however, that considerable time would be required to clear mines from the 50 miles of the Schelde river up to the port and permit a flow of supplies to begin.

Fighter-Bombers Active

Over Holland the weather hampered air operations, although fighter-bombers attacked communications in the area, and RAF planes went out to support the Walcheren landings, operating at times with visibility as little as 500 feet.

U. S. First army shattered the Siegfried line lull today with a new drive on a front of 4,000 yards southeast of Aachen that swept nearly two miles to within eight miles of the big German road center of Duren — 20 miles beyond which lies Cologne and the Rhine.

The drive rolled through the German villages of Vessenack and Germeter, 13 miles southeast of Aachen, and up to the fortified village of Hurtgen, often attacked but not yet conquered by Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' Doughboys.

Follows Artillery Barrage

The attack, whose scope and objectives have not yet been disclosed, exploded in the face of hastily strengthened German defenses in the morning after a heavy artillery barrage that resounded through Hurtgen forest.

By evening American infantrymen still were slogging forward against stiffening resistance, it was announced at Supreme headquarters.

Three hundred prisoners were rooted from pillboxes and foxholes as the Americans broke clear out of the eastern fringes of the battle-chewed forest, across the road leading south from Duren to Lammersdorf, and on into a smaller woodland beyond.

The battle was bulging into country behind the old prepared positions of the main Siegfried belt, but it was by no means in the open.

Germeter and Vossenach, adjacent villages, both had been reached before by patrols of the First army, but the new thrust had carried beyond this area

The country is rough and wooded, and mile by mile it has been turned into a strong defense zone—though hastily improvised—by civilian pick and shovel brigades.

The strength of the attack has yet to be weighed, nor is there any way of telling this early whether the full force of the powerful First army has been committed.

From the width of the front in such heavily-defended country it appeared to be an assault of fair size, but it was pointed out at Supreme headquarters that there was no indication yet that it was anything like an army offensive.

Progress is Announced

Thet attack on the gun-studded rim of dunes on western and southern Walcheren has made "satisfactory progress," it was announced.

At Supreme headquarters it was believed the town of Westkapelle was now in Allied hands along with a three-mile coastal strip to the north and south. More than half of Vlissingen (Flushing) also had been occupied, but up to 10 p. m. fighting was still reported continuing in the streets of the remainder.

The Germans held firm along the Mark river throughout the day, but in the eastern Holland corridor the Allies regained another mile and a half taken by the Germans in a counterattack last weekend.

On the Seventh army front east of Lineville, in a sector three miles north of Baccarat, the Americans captured three more villages, Fremenil, Ageviller and Pettonville, on the road to Schirmeck pass.

Northeast of Rambervillers the Seventh pushed ahead in the forest of St. Barb for limited new gains toward Saales pass.

The U. S. Ninth air force bombed bridges across the Moselle on both sides of Trier.

While the final hour of reckoning neared for the 7,000 to 10,000 Germans holding out on Walcheren island, enemy defenses across the Schelde estuary to the south collapsed.

3 Strongholds Fall

The Germans' last three strongholds, the Belgian seaside towns of Knocke and Heyst and the Dutch frontier village of Sluis, five miles east, fell in swift succession, and 1,700 more prisoners swelled the Canadian total of captives in the Schelde pocket to 11,700.

Among the captives was Major Gen. Eberding, commander of the now-destroyed 64th division, who admitted the German's day was done on the swampy southern banks of the Schelde.

British in Eastern Holland, eating up at least half the ground taken by the Germans in an abortive offensive east of the Allied base at Eindhoven, drove more than three miles southeast of Lieseel. It was announced the Germans lost 49 tanks in this futile counterblow.

In northern France, the German communique asserted the U. S. Third army was attacking on a broad front between Metz and Nancy and gained ground in fierce fighting.

A field dispatch mentioned only that the Third had driven the last German from the Seille river bend, 13 miles northeast of Nancy, to put an end to further infiltration attacks.

The U. S. Seventh army, pushing units of Hitler's "Peoples' army" before it, hammered out substantial gains and pulled up to within three to eight miles of six fog-shrouded passes which lead through the formidable barrier of the Vosges mountains to the Rhine and Germany.

chute troopers crossed the lower Rhine, captured 31 German soldiers and marched them back through enemy-held territory early today.

The six-man patrol slipped across the Rhine and marched inland before dawn Tuesday.

They reached an apparently deserted house at 4.15 A. M., found two German soldiers asleep and took them prisoner. Fifteen minutes later they wirelessed a report on their mission to the regimental command post across the Rhine.

Four Taken Next Day

The next day four more German soldiers were taken when they poked their noses into this American "outpost" to see what had happened to their two captured comrades.

Just before dusk, the patrol left one man to guard the prisoners and went off to set a vehicle trap which within a few minutes snared an army truck, an amphibious jeep and a motorcycle along with 16 more prisoners—most of them SS (Elite Guard) troops.

With the truck jammed with prisoners, the patrol went merrily down the road until the vehicle bogged in the mud.

They got out to walk and a German SS captain tried to escape in the darkness. He was sent sprawling by a former football player's tackle.

Captives Lined Up

Nearing the river, the Americans lined up their captives two abreast and marched them through the blacked-out streets of the town without being challenged by German sentries, who took the party for six American prisoners under guard.

At the river's edge the six Americans charged a series of German slit trenches, capturing nine more prisoners for a total bag of 31. Outnumbered, 5 to 1, the Americans made several round trips to ferry the prisoners across the Rhine.

knocked out the giant German "ghost gun" of Metz, it was disclosed today.

They did the job with the enemy's own artillery, 88s and 105s, which they had captured.

Lieut. Donald R. Lynch, 22, a Ninth Air Force pilot from Royal Oak, Mich., was the aerial spotter. He said the captured artillery, taken out of Maginot Line positions, pumped 140 rounds squarely into a repair shed in a Metz railyard where the 280-mm. German railway gun had been hidden. It was learned later, he said, that the gun was destroyed.

To keep the gun from sight the Germans had been switching it from one position to another and firing only a few rounds from each spot, mostly at night.

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Lieut. Charles A. Hunter Jr., fell 250 feet from his disabled light bomber recently with his parachute only partly open, landed in a tree and escaped injury.

The pilot, who comes from Blytheville, Ark., was helped to the ground by a Frenchman who expected to find him dead.

VESSELS LIMP FROM BATTLE

Walcheren Fight Is Greatest Short-Range Duel Of War

Aboard a Headquarters Ship in North Sea, Nov. 2 (AP)—With her hold plugged and her deck dented, this vessel was led back to port from Walcheren Island today by a straggling convoy of battered ships which survived what probably was the greatest short-range ship-to-shore gun duel of this war.

They were not great warships, but small, thin-hulled amphibious support vessels, bristling with guns. They went into fixed and powerful shore batteries with a frontal assault and stayed to die shooting or come out triumphant.

Security prevents detailing the losses of these vessels, which engaged at least nine German guns ranging from 98 to 290 millimeters. But they fought unflinchingly.

More Lightly Armed

British sailors who survived Dieppe and Normandy never saw a battle like this. The vessels, including various types of gunboats, rocket ships and a number of miscellaneous craft, were more lightly armed than the ships in the previous battles. Their mission was to engage, and knock out if possible, fixed German gun emplacements lining dikes and high ground near Westkapelle on the western edge of Walcheren Island.

They closed in, then fanned out with all guns roaring yesterday morning as troop-laden craft came up from behind to discharge their loads ashore. Germans, sitting behind shore guns, waited coolly amid the ever-increasing rain of gunfire from the warships farther back.

Then, when rows of ships reached a point about 1,000 yards from shore, the German guns began functioning. Spurts and geysers in the water marked places where big shells were landing with ear-splitting cracks.

One In Flames

Not a craft wavered or faltered—not even those that were hit. Suddenly fire belched aboard one of the vessels and she swung sharply in the water. Another received a square hit. Another pushed in, all guns roaring, and then turned out again with only a single officer on her bridge and holes through her superstructure. Another gunboat went in to shore and was hit. It foundered and settled in the water and then, in a last burst, ran for shore.

This headquarters ship alone was the objective of at least four direct attempts to blow her out of the water. One attempt failed by a lucky turn of the vessel; another did slight damage without causing casualties and two others chased her twisting and turning line through the rolling sea while fragments of shrapnel and showers of water splashed over the bridge, where men ducked for their lives.

Four-Hour Fight

The fight lasted at least four hours, while the vessels' shells bounced off the thick German gun casements without effect. Finally, commandos went ashore and got to the German guns, cutting them open with flame-throwers and grenades.

One commanding officer was urged to abandon his ship, which was filling with water through holes below deck.

"I'm gaining on her," he called out to this ship. "And I'll get her back."

He was one of those who did.

Communists Continue Supp

Brussels, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Communist party announced today it would continue to participate in the Belgian Government of Premier Hubert Pierlot in view of the Premier's answers to Communist demands for more energetic action against collaborators and toward reconstruction.

The Communists have one member in the Cabinet.

De Gaulle Faces Showdown On Communism

NOV 2 1944

Paris, Nov. 2 (AP)—The de Gaulle Government faced a showdown today on one of the most difficult issues raised in its relations with French Communists—whether to permit the return from Moscow of Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the French Communist party.

Through pamphlets, posters, speeches and newspapers the Communists are putting new emphasis into an old campaign demanding that charges of army desertion against Thorez dating from 1939 be quashed.

Fled To Escape Roundup

Thorez fled France in 1939 to escape a roundup of French Communist leaders. At that time the Russian-German non-aggression pact was in effect. He was sentenced in absentia to a six-year prison term. Early in 1940 he was deprived of his French citizenship.

In a new maneuver the French Communist party has designated Thorez as one of its delegates in the consultative assembly opening November 7.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle must consent by then to permit Thorez to return or face a Communist accusation that he is throttling free choice of representation in the assembly. Thorez was one of the party's deputies in the old chamber.

Other Dilemma

Conversely, if the de Gaulle Cabinet drops the charges, it can be accused of sanctioning desertion—against all army codes and discipline—for political advantage in the face of partisan pressure.

Thorez continues to influence the French political scene by remote control through Moscow radio broadcasts beamed to the homeland and widely publicized in the Communist press.

His recent statements have called for total mobilization of French resources for war, asserting that France should place more than a million men on the battle lines instead of "only two or three divisions."

Lost Immunity

Thorez had accepted a commission in the French army and was on a one-hour pass when he heard the decision of the Daladier Government lifting the immunity given legislators and ordering the arrest of all Communist leaders.

Thorez left the country instead of returning to his barracks.

21 Killed In France When Train Blows Up

Paris, Nov. 2 (AP)—Explosion of a captured German ammunition train yesterday near a spot where Gen. Charles de Gaulle had spoken earlier killed 21 persons and injured 95, it was learned today. Exploding shells landed in five suburban communities and two wards.

The Communist newspaper Ce soir blamed fifth-column activities. The National Writers Committee hinted that Vichites or enemy agents were responsible.

Frenchman, Arrested, Denies Slaying Of 60

Paris, Nov. 2 (AP)—Dr. Marcel Petiot, accused by Nazi propagandists of some 60 murders during occupation, was arrested in a subway today by national judiciary police. He denied the killings.

A bearded man with deep, piercing eyes, he said he had been active in the resistance movement. Police quoted him as saying:

"I never killed anybody. I am the victim of a terrible mistake. No one was more surprised than I to learn that I am accused of having drugged 60 people, cut them into pieces and thrown them into a bed of quicklime. Since 1940, I have belonged to the resistance movement and, as a captain of the French Forces of the Interior during the whole battle of France, killed Germans."

French May Get U. S. Vessels

Paris, Nov. 2 (AP)—The French Marine Ministry announced tonight that the American Navy had ceded 60 small vessels to the French navy, including 11 patrol craft, 21 submarine chasers, 20 mine sweepers and six tugs.

Don't Bank On New Weapons, Nazis Told

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—Rudolf Rahn, German Ambassador to Benito Mussolini's puppet Fascist Government in northern Italy, warned in a speech at Venice yesterday not to rely too much on "new weapons," declaring that "we must guard against hoping for miracles other than the miracle of faith, will-power and unshakable resolve."

Rahn's speech was quoted today in a Berlin broadcast recorded here by the Federal Communications Commission.

GOEBBELS SEES VICTORY

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP) Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels declared today that the German people would be victorious in this war, which he said would see a triumph of the "virtues of national socialism" over the various "burgeois class-ruled states."

As broadcast by the German Agency DNB and recorded by the Associated Press, Goebbels asserted in his weekly newspaper, Das Reich: "Nothing has been won and nothing lost in this war. The last battle alone will decide."

RED FORCES SWEEP TOWARD BUDAPEST

NOV 3 1944

Strike Within 23 Miles of Capital, Gain on Tisza River.

HERCHER

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 3—(AP) Russian troops fought their way to within 23 miles south of the Hungarian capital of Budapest yesterday, swiftly rolling back a shattered foe on a 60-mile front in their big drive aimed at knocking out the last big Axis satellite, Moscow announced last night.

Northeast of Budapest other Soviet forces cleared the enemy from a 65-mile section of the east bank of the middle Tisza river on a front between Csap on the Czechoslovakian border down to Polgar, 93 miles from the imperilled capital, the Moscow bulletin said.

The flash of the battle on the plains outside Hungary's first city and major Nazi arsenal was visible by night in Budapest, and the roar of approaching guns also could be heard, dispatches said.

German and other European broadcasts last night and early today strengthened a belief that Russian troops might smash into Budapest or invest the city over the week-end. DNB, German News agency, said four strong Soviet armored columns were converging on the capital and that it had been "impossible" for Axis troops to halt them.

The Soviet communique announced seizure of 60 more towns and villages and the capture on Wednesday alone of 2,000 prisoners, including Col. Gen. Janus Voeroes, former Hungarian chief of staff. This made a total of 7,518 German and Hungarian prisoners in the first three days of the offensive which began last Monday.

Russian columns were attacking northward toward Budapest on a wide front between the Danube and Tisza rivers, and in one area advancing at a mile-an-hour clip.

On the west flank along the Danube the communique announced the fall of Domsod rail station, 23 miles south of Budapest. This Soviet column now was beyond the southern tip of Csepel island, former royal domain, which is a 30-mile-long piece of land lying immediately below the capital.

A midnight Soviet supplement said the Germans, desperately trying to stop the steamroller drive, were "flinging in fresh forces straight from the march." During the day, it said, more than 2,000 enemy troops were killed and 58 tanks and mobile guns knocked out.

The Soviet midnight bulletin made a brief reference to the deadlocked East Prussian front, saying 200 Germans were killed in repulsing a Nazi counterattack south of Gtldap.

Russian bombers were said to have sunk nine German transports and damaged two in raids on Liepaja and other German-held Baltic ports. The attack on transports at Liepaja suggested a German withdrawal in Western Latvia where a large number of enemy troops have been pocketed.

In northeastern Hungary, where other units of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army were pushing westward just below the Czechoslovak border, the Russians hurled the Germans across the middle Tisza river on a winding 25-mile front.

Completely clearing the enemy from the east bank of the river, the Russians seized Tiszadada, 20 miles northwest of fallen Nyiregyhaza; Tiszadob, three miles to the southwest; and Polgar, 27 miles west of Nyiregyhaza and only 93 miles northeast of Budapest.

In taking Tiszadob one Soviet column drove to within 17 miles southeast of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth city and a large communications center. This column also was only four miles from the Csap-Miskolc-Budapest trunk railway, threatened Axis supply artery running into Slovakia, where Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukraine army was hacking its way westward beyond Csap and Ungvar.

Berlin acknowledged a Russian breach in Axis lines at Kunszentmiklos, 27 miles outside Budapest; admitted that German troops had been withdrawn to the west bank of the middle Tisza, and also reported "very heavy fighting" west of Ungvar in Czechoslovakia.

November 7 Deadline

The Germans said fresh Nazi troops were being rushed into the great conflict outside the Hungarian capital, but also said that Russian reserves constantly were entering the battleline.

Neither Berlin nor Moscow reported any important action on the German East Prussian front where a lull has existed all week after the Russians had stabbed 20 miles inside Reich territory.

It also had grown quieter on the western Latvian front, where powerful Russian forces were attacking in an effort to eliminate a huge Axis pocket of perhaps 100,000 troops cut off from East Prussia.

A German front correspondent was quoted by the Nazi news agency Transocean as saying that renewed Russian attacks were expected on a large scale shortly, and that many Russian prisoners carried orders by Marshal Stalin for the capture of the entire west Latvian coastline by November 7, the 27th anniversary of the Soviet revolution.

BULLETIN

London, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Russians have completely cleared the left bank of the Tisza River in their drive on the Hungarian capital of Budapest, Moscow announced tonight. The broadcast communique said that the Red Army had captured the former chief of the Hungarian General Staff, Col.-Gen. Janus Veresz.

London, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—The Red Army's lightning Hungarian offensive has cracked German defenses at Kunszentmiklos, twenty-eight miles south of Budapest's outskirts, the German radio said today.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, Nazi commentator, described the Kunszentmiklos action as a breach in the German defenses.

The broadcast German High Command communique told of further retreats in Hungary. Nazis were reported "detached" to the north bank of the middle Tisza River, last water barrier before the old capital.

The Germans asserted they had frustrated repeated attempts of several Soviet armies to break through their Narew river front between Warsaw and East Prussia in hard defensive battles within the last few weeks.

Germans Weakening.

Moscow, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Russian armored spearheads were reported within thirty miles of Budapest today and advancing steadily against stiff but gradually weakening resistance on the rolling plain southeast of the city.

Soviet field dispatches said that advance elements of the Red Army had penetrated beyond Lajosmizse, thirty-three miles from the Hungarian capital, following an advance in which more than 100 occupied places were captured. Among the latter was the important railway center of Kecskemet.

The Germans and their Hungarian allies were reported falling back upon defenses which the people of Budapest have been forced to dig outside the city. Budapest was said to be in a turmoil.

The pace was surprisingly swift at some points, however, as evidenced by the fact that forty-eight planes were reported abandoned by the enemy Tuesday in their hasty flight from the Izsaj airfield seventeen miles southwest of Keoskemet.

Kecskemet Valuable Prize

Kecskemet, a city of 80,000, which fell after 24 hours of street fighting, represented the biggest prize in the renewed offensive that has brought confusion to the enemy defenses. It was the last important barrier before Budapest.

Russian forces in this sector increased the total of enemy prisoners taken in the drive to 5,518, having captured 1,500 Germans and Hungarians in the last 24 hours, the communique announced. The bulletin also said the enemy lost 2,000 dead in the Kecskemet battle, another 1,000 at the rail town of Fedel and 300 more at Kecel.

Another Town Taken

The capture of Kerekegyhaza, 10 miles west of Kecskemet on a spur railway, and Ujkecske, 17 miles northeast of the Kecskemet-Szolnok line, also was announced.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's army scored important gains in northeast Hungary, taking more than 40 communities along a front about 100 miles from Budapest. His troops linked up with the Fourth Ukraine Army of Gen. Ivan Petrov between Csap and Mandok

That the first V-2s carried about a ton of explosive, and that larger V-2s have been designed.

That the quantity of explosive is governed by the distance the V-2 is to travel.

That V-2s, propelled by gasoline or some other liquid, shoot 15 to 50 miles into the air and, after reaching their maximum height, glide back and hit the ground at 800 to 1,000 miles an hour.

Concentrating On Britain

Farr quoted his informant as saying that, although the Germans could reach the United States with the rockets, they appeared to be concentrating on production of V-2s for Britain.

"There is no doubt that the Germans have a half dozen sizes of V-2s, and are experimenting to decide which is the most effective," Farr said he was told.

Nazis Admit Area Lost

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—British troops and Partisans have cleared 100 miles of the Yugoslav Dalmatian coast, including the major harbors of Split, Metkovic and Dubrovnik (Ragusa), the German communique announced today.

After the landings, the communique said, "our protective formations detached themselves to prepared mountain positions in the coastal strip according to orders."

Split (Spalato) is the tenth city of Yugoslavia, with 35,000 inhabitants. It lies 74 miles southeast of Zara and has a spacious harbor north of the big island of Brac. Marshal Tito, of the Partisan armies, said the city was captured October 28. Metkovic lies inland on an arm of the Neretva river about midway between Split and Dubrovnik.

The Germans said Bulgarian troops were fighting them in the Vardar Valley of Yugoslavia and that the Bulgars were "smashed with heavy losses."

The Free Yugoslav radio announced last night that an agreement for formation of a "united Yugoslav national government in the shortest possible time" had been reached between Marshal Tito and Dr. Ivan Subasic, Premier of King Peter's royal government. The scene of the conference was believed to have been Belgrade, the liberated capital.

Germans Could Send Rockets To U. S. Soon, Writer Hears

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—Walter Farr, Daily Mail correspondent, said today in a Stockholm dispatch he had been informed the Germans soon could "certainly" launch rockets against the United States.

Farr said he was told the Germans had completed a new series of experiments and were satisfied they could send V-2 rockets against England "on a fairly large scale."

His informant was termed an authority in a position to know what progress the Germans had made with secret weapons. Farr said he was given the following additional information:

Larger V-2s Designed

That the V-2—a long, fairly fat projectile, with tail fins like an ordinary bomb—had been fired on England from experimental stations in Germany and Norway and that bases in Holland and Denmark also could be used.

Says Many Yugoslavs Have Starved To Death

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, Yugoslav Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said today that tens of thousand of Yugoslavs will freeze to death or die from starvation this winter unless supplies reach them immediately.

"Many people have already died through want of food," Gavrilovic said in an interview. "Others are being fed on grass and roots. In many places peasant women have been working naked on the land, with just a small bit of cloth around their waists."

CHURCHILL, EDEN TO VISIT PARIS

LONDON, Nov. 2 — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will visit Paris soon at the invitation of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the British foreign office announced tonight. The date will be arranged later.

Except for Churchill's inspection trips in Normandy, this will be the first time that he has gone to France since the tragic days of 1940 when he flew to the headquarters of the French government and sought to persuade the French to remain in the fight.

The Foreign office announced

"The French ambassador has transmitted to the Prime Minister on behalf of General de Gaulle and of the French minister of foreign affairs an invitation to visit Paris in the near future; with the secretary of state for foreign affairs; as the guest of the provisional government of the republic. The Prime Minister has accepted this invitation with great pleasure in his own name and that of Mr. Eden.

"The date of the visit will be arranged later."

Eden, now visiting the Italian front, is expected to return to Britain within a few days. He has been away since the last Moscow talks began. Before going to Italy he visited Cairo and Athens.

There was a strong possibility that Churchill and Eden would be in France at the time of the Armistice Day celebrations.

It was understood the visit would be principally an occasion for rejoicing over the liberation of France although Churchill and Eden undoubtedly would avail themselves of the opportunity to discuss matters of common interest with De Gaulle and his minister of foreign affairs, Georges Bidault.

Aerial Gunners Turned M. P.'s Awarded D. F. C.

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—Distinguished Flying Crosses have been pinned on two military policemen here.

The recipients, Staff Sergeants Virgil Garcia, 22, of Salt Lake City, and Theodore Gollenbeski, 26, Pitcairn, Pa., wore aerial gunner's wings as well as MP brassards.

They had completed their operational tours and, awaiting return home, were among 72 combat crewmen who volunteered for 30 days MP duty in London. Awards caught up with them here, and Col. Walter F. Graham pinned on their crosses in a ceremony Saturday.

British Paper Hits U. S. Worry On Peace Trade

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Manchester Guardian said editorially today that "Americans are shouting too loud and too soon" about British-American competition for post-war foreign trade.

The newspaper commented on an editorial in Business Week, American business publication, which said United States salesmen cool their heels in Washington until someone decides which of half a dozen agencies is really responsible for returning foreign trade to private channels" while Britain's go after orders all over the world.

"American Hotheads"

The Guardian said:

"Perhaps it is too much to expect these American hotheads to study things as they really are."

The Guardian declared that British manufacturers were really at a disadvantage compared with the Americans.

American industry already is producing for civil consumption and export while "we in this country have not yet even begun to turn over," it said.

Election News For Troops

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—American troops will hear results of the Presidential election all next Tuesday night through broadcasts by the American forces network of the European theater of operations. The British Broadcasting Corporation will broadcast returns regularly on Wednesday.

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—Reports reaching here from Madrid today said Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the thrones of Austria and Hungary, had arrived in Lisbon, Portugal, by plane from New York.

U. S. ITALY LOSS PUT AT 90,000

Gen. Alexander Says Germans Show No Signs Of Pulling Out

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—American troops alone have suffered at least 90,000 casualties in the 14-month-old Italian campaign and there still is no sign the Germans are pulling out of the war-torn country, General Sir Harold Alexander, Allied ground commander, said today.

[This apparently represented an increase of nearly 8,000 in the United States casualty toll in Italy since the September 21 figure by Secretary Stimson.]

In acknowledging that the Allied assault on the enemy's Gothic Line had come to an almost complete halt in the mud of the Po valley and the peaks of the Apennine Mountains, General Alexander said, "I can't tell how long it will take to drive them out, but it will be done."

Nazis Get Reinforcements

The Germans have continued to send reinforcements into Italy, despite their reverses on the Eastern and Western fronts, the Allied commander disclosed. He admitted puzzlement at this enemy strategy, pointing out that Hitler already had suffered 194,000 casualties in Italy, including 34,000 killed and 104,000 wounded.

General Alexander said the original plan for attacking the Gothic Line had to be altered because of the withdrawal of all French divisions and some American divisions for the invasion of southern France.

Armies Always Nearly Equal

"Only those who are responsible for the conduct of the war as a whole can decide what is best for the strategy as a whole," he said, "and we have to carry out our tasks with what we are given.

"At no time during the Italian campaign have we had any but a slight superiority in numbers."

Though declining to guess when the Italian fighting would end, General Alexander said he could not imagine the war in Europe continuing beyond 1945.

Roads Favor Enemy

In their present defense of Bologna and the Po valley the Nazis are taking full advantage of an excellent road network to supply their troops. The Allies have extremely limited road facilities and have been additionally hampered recently by almost continuous rains.

Front dispatches today reported that Canadian troops of the British Eighth Army, sloshing through country dotted with great expanses of flood water, were only five miles from Ravenna, Adriatic coastal center.

Polish and Indian troops, pushing northward from captured Predappio — Mussolini's birthplace — toward the highway junction of Forli southeast of Bologna, joined a bridgehead won by other Eighth Army forces across the Ronco river above Meldola. Fighting was reported at a corner of the airport two miles southeast of Forli.

Fifth Army In Sharp Clashes

Waterlogged and mudbound American Fifth Army troops kept the hilly front below Bologna fluid with probing patrols, resulting in several sharp clashes. In one such engagement near Imola, Yank units drove the Nazis out of the village of Casetta. German artillery poured shells into American positions.

A fierce German counterattack in the vicinity of Catagnina near the west coast forced Brazilian troops to withdraw from hills overlooking the Serchio river.

Nazis Won't Quit Italy, Says Alexander

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP) — The campaign which has ground 500 miles up through Italy and cost at least 90,000 casualties in American forces alone was slowed in the mud of the Po Valley and peaks of the Apennines today. Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander, said he saw no signs of the Germans pulling out of Italy.

He made no effort to conceal the fact that the powerful offensive launched against the Gothic Line in August has now halted almost completely.

Sees End In '45 Or Before

"I can't tell how long it will take to drive them out, but it will be done," Alexander told correspondents. He declined to hazard any dates on the Italian or any other campaign but remarked that he could not imagine the war in Europe continuing beyond 1945.

Alexander said the original plan for attacking the Gothic Line had been altered because of the withdrawal of all French divisions and some American divisions for the invasion of southern France.

He said he could not explain why the Germans left so many troops in Italy as the Allied ring around Germany tightened from the west and the east, or why the Nazis continued to pump reinforcements into the enemy line in northern Italy.

Reviews Campaign

Alexander traced the course of the campaign from the time of its planning in Tunisia in April, 1943.

In the 14 months since the first landing, the general said, 51,000 square miles of Italian territory have been liberated. He said the equivalent of 15 of the 30 German divisions engaged since May 11 has been totally destroyed. He added there were 194,000 enemy casualties, including 30,000 dead and 104,000 wounded.

Alexander told of great feats of Allied engineers in building 15,000 feet of bridging and lifting 2,200 mines in a period of 42 hours at one airfield and 16,800 mines at Livorna.

8th Army Forces Merge In Italy

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—Polish and Indian troops, advancing several miles northward from captured Predappio toward the Po Valley highway junction of Forli, have joined a bridgehead won by other Eighth Army forces advancing westward across the Ronco river above Meldola, Allied headquarters announced today.

Meldola is seven miles south of Forli. Steady progress in expanding the bridgehead just to the north has been reported since it was won early in the week. Other Eighth Army troops some days ago were reported only two miles from Forli, along the Ronco, immediately eastward.

Casetta Captured

South of Bologna, on the central sector, American troops cleared the Germans from Casetta, the communique said.

German field guns continued to pour shells into Allied positions along the Fifth Army front, but there was a marked decrease from the intense shelling of recent days.

In the west coast region a heavy German counterattack in the vicinity of Catagnana forced a withdrawal of Brazilian troops.

Overlooks Highway

Casetta is less than two miles from the branch highway to Imola and overlooks the important Rimini-Bologna highway seven miles away. Imola is 20 miles northwest of Forli along the main highway.

On the Adriatic sector, Canadian troops of the Eighth Army reached the main Fosso-Ghiaia crossing on Highway 16 less than five miles from Ravenna.

At the Ronco river crossing in the Coccolia area halfway between Ravenna and the Rimini-Bologna highway, there were sharp clashes with the Germans.

Infantry and armor of the Eighth Army secured a crossing in strength south of the highway, and fighting was reported at the northeast corner of the Forli airfield.

Duce Holdings To Be Seized

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—Benito Mussolini's personal property and real estate were ordered confiscated by a Rome court today at the request of the custom superintendent's office.

The order also provided for seizure of the property of Mussolini's immediate family.

Rome newspapers said the greater part of Mussolini's goods had been transferred previously to Brazil by planes of a transatlantic airline, of which Vittorio Mussolini, son of the former dictator, was president.

Norwegian Police Force Ready To Leave Sweden

Stockholm, Nov. 2 (AP)—Part of the Norwegian security police force specially trained in Sweden will depart for liberated northern Norway soon, it was officially announced today.

Representatives of the Norwegian Government in Exile from London have been in Sweden negotiating with the Swedish Government for return of the police force of 11,000 men, built up in this country in the last two years and consisting of Norwegians who escaped from Norway but who could not get to London.

Norwegians Say Nazis Are Evacuating Nation

Stockholm, Nov. 2 (AP)—Norwegian informants estimated today that "at least several thousand Germans" already had evacuated southeast Norway and said the movement was continuing.

The Nazis were reported leaving by ship for Germany and Denmark, especially from the Oslo fjord area. The withdrawal was termed only a partial evacuation.

GEN. KESSELRING WOUNDED IN ITALY

BERN, Switzerland, Nov. 2—(AP) Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, German commander-in-chief in Italy, was reported tonight to have been wounded in Italy during an attack similar to the one that eventually cost Field Marshal Erwin Rommel his life in France.

Kesselring's automobile, according to information from Italy, overturned when it was machine gunned by an Allied plane near Bologna. The extent of his injuries is not yet known here.

Kesselring, 58-year-old Bavarian who was counted among the great victors in the German conquests of Poland, Belgium and France, has had several narrow escapes in the last year and a half.

Last July 25 the German news agency DNB reported that he had been wounded slightly during front line operations in Italy.

Kesselring began his military career as a lieutenant in the 2nd foot-artillery regiment and was a captain in the First World war.

Subsequently becoming interested in aviation he switched to the German air force and by 1937 was made a general of aviation.

In the Polish campaign in 1939 he was commander in chief of the air arm, and his bombing fleets participated in the attacks on London and Coventry.

Kesselring next appeared in Italy as German commander. He narrowly escaped death or injury when Allied airmen leveled his headquarters at Frascati, near Rome.

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, commander of German forces in Italy, was reported wounded today in an Allied strafing attack similar to the one which cost Marshal Erwin Rommel his life in France.

Information from Italy said that the Marshal's automobile overturned near Bologna after an Allied plane machine - gunned it. The extent of his injuries was reported not yet ascertained.

Allied troops have been fighting on the southern approaches of Bologna for several weeks.

British In Greece Ambush Enemy

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—British patrols harassing withdrawing German forces north of Salonika in Greece have ambushed one enemy column and inflicted 25 casualties in a sharp fight, Allied headquarters announced today.

Allied headquarters announced capture of Salonika, 190 miles northwest of Athens and the most important port in the southern Balkans, which was entered by British troops yesterday.

There was no immediate report of the extent of damage in Salonika, whose pre-war population was 240,000. The Nazis announced Wednesday they had evacuated the city.

The enemy's retreat corridor from the lower Balkans became further constricted, today's German high command communique disclosed, by withdrawal of Nazi forces from a 100-mile stretch of the Yugoslav Dalmatian coast.

Populace Welcomes British In Salonika

Rome, Nov. 2 (AP)—British forces have entered the Greek seaport city of Salonika, where they were received enthusiastically by the populace, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Germans announced yesterday they had evacuated the city, Greece's second largest and the principal seaport on the Balkan peninsula. It is approximately 190 miles northwest of Athens.

Previous advices said the Nazis engaged in considerable demolitions before withdrawing from the city, whose pre-war population was 240,000.

Allied patrols pushing north of Salonika ambushed the withdrawing Nazi columns, an Allied headquarters communique said. Fire engines were among the vehicles used by the Germans in their northward flight.

Greek Banks Expected To Be Nationalized

Athens, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Greek Government is expected to nationalize leading banks Sunday in an effort to combat inflation and stabilize the drachma, which has sunk to fantastic levels.

It is understood that the drachma will be tied to sterling instead of the gold sovereign. Government price fixing went into effect today and some commodities became even scarcer, particularly salt, kerosene and matches. (The drachma once was worth 19½ cents. It now takes more than 16,000,000,000 to equal 1 cent.)

Minister of Economy Tairimokos announced grants of import permits for foodstuffs, live stock and raw materials for restarting industries. Most imports are expected from Turkey and eastern Mediterranean countries.

The barter system already is the only means of trade in the provinces and has become more firmly established in Athens. Single cigarettes have become important media of currency, more valuable than paper money. Housewives usually shop with packets of cigarettes, chocolate or garden produce.

BUCHAREST OUSTS JAPS

Bucharest, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Romania has broken off relations with Japan following a communication to the Romanian Government from London.

The breach will be of considerable service to the United Nations inasmuch as the Japanese had a military attache in Bucharest to gather information, particularly on the results of bombing raids on the Ploesti oil fields. This information might be of value in protecting similar installations in the Japanese-held East Indies.

CHINESE WPB, NELSON'S JOB

Industry To Be Remade; Mission Leaves U. S. Next Week

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—An American mission under Donald M. Nelson was ordered to China today to undertake a vast reorganization of that country's war industries.

Nelson was asked to proceed at "the earliest possible date," the White House announced after a long conference between President Roosevelt and the former War Production Board chairman. He is expected to leave some time next week.

The special talents of those to accompany him indicated that particular emphasis will be laid on stepping up output of explosives and steel—the chief components of aerial bombs which are among the simplest to manufacture of all modern war weapons.

Alcohol-Base Truck Fuel?

The fact that the mission includes a distillation engineer led to speculation, too, that one task will be to produce an alcohol-base truck fuel since China has no petroleum.

Accompanying Nelson will be:

HOWARD COONLEY, as chief deputy. Presently a War Production Board official, Coonley is a former president of the National Manufacturers' Association with experience in industrial engineering and various types of manufacturing.

EUGENE M. STALLINGS, a technical expert on alcohol production. Alcohol is the base for many explosives. A distillation engineer, Stallings has been a WPB consultant at Louisville.

HERBERT W. GRAHAM, chief metallurgist of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, and four other steel experts.

The White House said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had urged that Nelson return. Nelson went to China this summer to discuss with the Chinese leader the project he now is undertaking.

No Frictions Appear

"As the President's personal representative," the announcement said, "Mr. Nelson will continue his work with the Generalissimo on measures aimed at strengthening the Chinese war effort, and notably in organizing a war production board to increase the output of China's war industries."

Thus, no particular frictions appeared to have developed on Nelson's assignment on what started out as a three-point American program to reinvigorate China's war effort.

The other points, as related in well-informed quarters here and by American correspondents fresh from China, were:

To bring together the Chungking Government and the Chinese Communists in the north who have each expended energies opposing each other which the American Government believes should be turned against the Japanese. This was the particular assignment of Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley, who still is in China.

To reorganize the Chinese armies and bring them under an American commander. This was entrusted to Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell. His recall, which President Roosevelt attributed to personality clashes between Stilwell and the Generalissimo, presumably has not changed this principle.

Stilwell's recall, together with the resignation of Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss, continued, meantime, to be a subject of wide discussion.

'Harry Hopkins' Butting In'

In Minneapolis, Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), a former medical missionary who was visiting in China in September, said Stilwell was relieved because Chiang refused to accept "a White House ultimatum," delivered by Stilwell, that Stilwell be made commander of all Chinese armies.

"Stilwell didn't make the mistake," Judd said. "He was merely the goat of personal government in Washington."

Representative Francis Case (R., S. D.) said in a political speech at Murdo, S. D., that "it was (Harry) Hopkins' butting in that was responsible for the whole fiasco."

He referred to published reports that H. H. Kung, Chinese Minister of Finance, conferred here with Hopkins and then cabled Chungking that if Chiang "held out" in negotiations with American representatives there he could get his way. Kung has denied this report.

Talking with reporters here, Chairman Connally (D., Texas), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he felt sure "the high command and the President will work out the matter so as to keep unity of action in the area."

Asked if he thought China remains one of the "big four powers," Connally replied: "Certainly. We expect to use Chinese bases in attacking Japan. She's got to stay in the war until it's over."

President Orders Aid to Leave at Earliest Possible Moment to Set Up a Chinese WPB.

Washington, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today directed Donald M. Nelson to return to China at the earliest possible date to organize a Chinese War Production Board.

Following a long conference between Mr. Nelson and the President, the White House issued a statement which said: "As the President's personal representative Mr. Nelson will continue his work with the Generalissimo (Chiang Kai-shek) on measures aimed at strengthening the Chinese war effort and notably in organizing a War Production Board to increase the output of China's war industries."

The announcement said that Mr. Nelson's return to China had been urged by the Generalissimo.

Today's White House visit was Mr. Nelson's first since Mr. Roosevelt announced the recall from China of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell because of what the President later described as a clash of personality with Chiang, and the resignation of Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss. Gen. Stilwell was chief of the Burma-China-India Command.

Mr. Nelson, former chairman of the WLB, was accompanied on his first trip by Major-Men. Patrick J. Hurley, who has since remained in China. On his return there Mr. Nelson will take with him, as his deputy, Howard Coonley, a WPB executive. He also will be accompanied by Eugene M. Stallings, a technical expert on alcohol production, and a mission of five steel experts, headed by Herbert W. Graham of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Meanwhile today, in discussing the recall from China, Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) said that it "presents rather a serious situation," adding:

"Large policies are involved and the details are not known, but I feel sure the High Command and the President will work out the matter so as to keep unity of action in that area. Gen. Stilwell is a magnificent officer and has had many difficulties since he was sent to China."

Asked whether in his opinion China remains one of the "Big Four Powers," Mr. Connally replied: "Certainly. We expect to use Chinese bases in attacking Japan. She's got to stay in the war until it's over."

CHINESE OFFICIAL SUPPORTS RECALL OF GEN. STILWELL

NOV 3 1944

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP) President Roosevelt's removal of Gen. Joseph Stilwell as commander of the China-Burma-India theater was "the only correct thing possible in the circumstances," Dr. C. L. Hsia, director of the Chinese News service said in a statement issued tonight.

The statement by Dr. Hsia, chief representative of the Chinese ministry of information in the United States, was the first discussion by an official Chinese source of Stilwell's recall.

The text:

"In explaining General Stilwell's recall President Roosevelt said that it was due to a conflict or personalities. We have had several instances of this in recent months within the Washington war cabinet. When it happens someone has to give way or be relieved of his position. In this instance when an American general serves as the chief of staff to a Chinese Supreme commander, who also happens to be the head of a state, President Roosevelt has done the only correct thing possible in the circumstances.

"In the reports or conjectures which have so far appeared in the American press there are actually three distinct issues—the Stilwell issue, the Chinese Communist issue and the need-of-Chinese-government-reform issue. Being separate issues each would be considered on its own merit. Many of the writers have mixed all the three issues as if General Stilwell held the magic key to all of China's political economic and military problems. As a result the public has been confused and injustice has been done.

"Concerning the first issue it has been stated by President Roosevelt that it was a clash of personalities. If that clash reached its climax, as reported, over the question of appointing General Stilwell as commander in chief of all Chinese ground and air forces, it is quite understandable to the Chinese people here.

Even if the Chinese government had agreed in principle to the appointment of an American commander in chief, it seems reasonable to assume that the Chinese government should have something to say about the selection of a general. In war time the military authorities touch civilian life at every point and the commander in chief in China practically supersedes the President of the Chinese Republic and the whole civilian administration. It is not difficult to see that the Chinese national government would be held responsible to the Chinese nation for all the acts of this foreign commander in chief and yet would be powerless to direct him unless there was absolute accord between him and the president of China.

"Concerning the second issue—that of the Chinese Communists—the Chungking government has been making every effort to solve it. If it is true that General Stilwell demanded that the Chinese Communists be fully armed he may not have fully realized the possible consequences of such a step. But the responsible government in Chungking must take full cognizance of the future complications of such a proposition until the Chinese Communists have come to some fundamental understanding with the national government. The leaders of the Chinese government must be given the benefit of the doubt that they know what they are doing.

"As to the third issue concerning reform within the Chinese government, good counsel is welcome. There is always, of course, room for reform and the Chinese government has been making continuous effort in that direction. But such reform should not be made a condition of wartime cooperation between the two countries. If so it would be tantamount to a threat or ultimatum which any self-respecting government or nation would naturally resent and resist. It should be the last method of presenting good counsel by the best of our friends."

Congressman, Just Back From Chungking, Tells 'Inside' Story.

SAYS HURLEY WAS BY-PASSED

Ex-Missionary Declares Stilwell Delivered White House Threat That Was Flatly Rejected.

NOV 3 1944

Minneapolis, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Representative Walter H. Judd (R.-Minn.) declared in a statement today that Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell was relieved as American commander in the Far East because Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had refused to accept a White House ultimatum, delivered by Gen. Stilwell, demanding that Gen. Stilwell be made commander of all of China's armies.

The Congressman—a physician and surgeon—said the ultimatum threatened withdrawal of American military support from China.

Dr. Judd, who had been a medical missionary in China from 1925 to 1931 and again from 1934 to 1938, was in Chungking last September when the situation came to a head, and his knowledge of it was gained, he said, from the highest Chinese sources in Chungking.

Text of Statement.

Following is the complete text of Dr. Judd's statement:

"The stories of returned correspondents and from Washington, purporting to tell the 'inside' Stilwell story, are true as far as they go, but their sources of information skilfully omit the thing that precipitated the action. They tell of Chiang's 'ultimatum' demanding Stilwell's withdrawal, but if there is to be talk of ultimatums let it be on the record that Chiang's act was the result of an ultimatum presented by Stilwell as the agent of the White House.

"The situation had been brewing for many months. There had been, as President Roosevelt said, a personality clash between Stilwell and many Chinese leaders, including Chiang, but it was not insurmountable. All Chinese, as well as Americans, recognize Stilwell as a great personal soldier and a great leader of troops in the field. But what Eastern Asia has needed desperately was not so much a soldier who knows all the jungle trails of Burma, as a general who could do what Eisenhower has done so superbly in Europe—get all to work together.

"The President had sent Gen. Hurley into this situation, to try to restore good relations and increase military efficiency. Hurley proved very successful in getting prompt agreement with Chiang on most of the major difficulties in asia, including agreement on an American as over-all commander in China. Chiang was even willing to appoint Stilwell as that commander.

Why Chiang Blew Up.

"Why, then, did Chiang change his mind? Because a few hours after he had reached a tentative agreement with Hurley as the President's representative, Stilwell entered Chiang's office with fresh orders direct from Washington, utterly ignoring and bypassing Hurley. Stilwell brought an ultimatum demanding that Chiang appoint Stilwell, who was Chiang's own Chief of Staff, as overall commander in China with military authority even over Chiang himself.

"Chiang blew up. He had reached an agreement in good faith with the officially accredited representative of the President of the United States, and here came a subordinate demanding to be put above Chiang in Chiang's own country.

"No head of any self-respecting government could accept such an ultimatum. If Chiang had done so his people would have driven him from power—and no one has suggested or can suggest any other man who could lead China.

"The ultimatum threatened that unless this was done, the United States would be unable to continue to support the Chinese militarily. Chiang said in substance: Then the United States will have to withdraw its support. This put President Roosevelt in a position of having either to withdraw the United States from the war against Japan on Chinese soil, to order American troops to invade China, or to withdraw Gen. Stilwell.

Naturally he did the only thing he could do—he withdrew Gen. Stilwell.

Issue of 1861 Recalled.

"In the midst of this delicate situation, Ambassador Gauss had come in with the strongest demands from the American State Department that Chiang cooperate with the Chinese Communists. Chiang could do this only on their terms. We fought a four-year civil war in the United States rather than cooperate with a rebel government. There could be no unity in China with two governments.

"Here, then were three sets of un-co-ordinated demands from three United States channels, all official and all dealing with the same general subject.

"Stilwell didn't make the mistake. He was merely the goat of personal government in Washington. We had to back down from an impossible position, into which we should never have put ourselves.

"At a time when American hope of early victory over Japan depends so much on mutual confidence and effective co-operation between China and the United States, do these stories releasing only those parts of the truth which are unfavorable to a tried but gallant ally serve the real interests or the United States?"

London Star Asks China Changes

NOV 3 1944

London, Nov. 2 (AP)—The London Star declared in a leading editorial today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek must be persuaded to recast his Government so the Chinese armies could be drawn into combined action.

"First, toward that," the editorial said, "is to remove General Ho, Minister of War for 14 years, whose attitude toward the Chinese Communist army of 400,000 men has long been the leading obstacle to Chinese unity."

Other editorials, breaking British silence on the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, said internal unity was needed in China.

"Marshal Chiang Kai-shek lays claim to statesmanship, and now friends of his country look to him to prove it," said the London Daily Mail: "He must do his utmost to heal the tragic differences which divide his people, who have borne the heat and burden of war longer than any other of the Allied nations."

U. S. Reaction Told

On Page 1 the Mail ran a lead dispatch on the reaction in the United States under a banner headline "China Denounced by U. S. Press."

While asserting that capture of the Philippines would bring the American forces as near to Japan as they are now in western China and that the Japanese "could no doubt be defeated by Britain and America alone," the Mail said:

"But obviously the existence of a well-trained and equipped Chinese army, backed by a united Chinese people, would be of enormous help to the western democracies. It is not too late for Marshal Chiang Kai-shek to form such an army, with Allied assistance, to uphold the honor and prestige of China when the time comes to destroy Japan."

The London Times, referring to General Stilwell, said: "This distinguished, if sometimes difficult, commander's recall is due to differences with the Chinese generalissimo. But whatever failure there may have been in their relations there can be no question of General Stilwell's ability.

The Yorkshire Post said: "Undoubtedly there is a strong case for reform in the Chinese army, but the question of supplies remains a governing factor in China's conduct of the war. Critics in this country and in the United States must not let disappointment turn into sour suspicion."

No Russian Comment

Moscow, Nov. 2 (AP)—Russians have showed a lively interest in the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell from China but so far no editorial comment has been expressed.

Stilwell In Farewell Praises Chennault

Chungking, Nov. 2 (AP)—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell in an official farewell message to Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault today commended the commander of the United States 14th Air Force for "great success under discouraging conditions" and said he had "cut down the Japanese air arm in China to the vanishing point."

The message as received here said: "I have followed your fortunes closely and take great pride in your achievements. You have carried the ball with great success under discouraging conditions. You have cut the Japanese air arm in China to the vanishing point. You have hurt him in the sea and on the ground. You have gained the respect and admiration of the Chinese."

Mountbatten's Message.

Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Admiral Mountbatten's headquarters disclosed today that the Allied Southeast Asia commander had received the following message from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell upon the latter's recall to Washington:

"It is a disappointment not to be able to finish my job in this theater, but I am glad to have had an opportunity to play a small part in the undertaking. I offer my best wishes for the success of your forthcoming operations. When news of that success reaches me I shall be the first one to throw my hat in the air."

Admiral Mountbatten dispatched the following reply:

"You are leaving behind you the reputation of being a great fighting general and I know just how much you will miss the opportunity of continuing your drive south and of being in at the finish. I always have had the greatest admiration for your fighting qualities. Your telegram and your good wishes were very much appreciated and I want to wish you the best of luck whatever your new assignment may be."

British Capture Mawlu In Burma

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Ceylon, Nov. 2 (AP)—British troops spearheading the new Allied drive in northern Burma to clear a land route to China have captured the town of Mawlu, on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railway 65 miles southeast of Myitkyina, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's command announced today.

The town was taken by troops of the British 36th Division under Maj. Gen. F. W. Festing, "with but few casualties," the daily communique stated. The bulletin stressed that Mawlu was just 16 miles north of the railway junction of Naba, from which a spur line leads eastward to Katha on the Irrawaddy river, backbone of the Burmese transportation network.

In northwestern Burma, Indian troops along the road to Fort White east of Tiddim are attacking enemy positions near a bottleneck stretch of highway, aided by fighter-bombers which made heavy attacks in the enemy, the communique said.

British Seize Key Junction In Burma

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 2 (AP). The 36th British Division, driving southward in northern Burma, has captured the important junction of Mawlu, 92 miles southwest of Myitkyina and 180 miles north of Mandalay, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

Mawlu is 16 miles north of Naba junction, where a 15-mile railway spur leads eastward to Katha.

On a parallel thrust 80 miles to the east, Chinese troops continued to patrol in the area of captured Myothit, 18 miles northeast of Bhamo, the communique said.

In the Chin Hills of western Burma Allied troops seized control of extensive enemy defenses near a "vital corner," the communique said.

JAPANESE DRIVE TO FLANK KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, Nov. 2—(AP) Stalled after four unsuccessful frontal attacks on Kweilin, the Japanese have sent a column sweeping around 12 miles to the south in an attempt to envelop this Kwangsi province gateway city, the Chinese High command announced tonight.

The Japanese stormed the northwestern suburbs of the city and fighting raged in the north railway station, but the enemy was driven back after pulling up to the south railway station.

The envelopment move from the south came after Japanese forces rolling up from the east attacked four times unyielding Chinese, the high command declared. Hard fighting was in progress in an attempt to check the westward movement to the encircling column.

Some 50 miles to the southeast, the Japanese laid seige to the important communications center of Pinglo, from where they could threaten the city of Liuchow, in the heart of the province 95 miles to the west.

The extended Japanese lines yielded 90 miles east northeast of Kweilin under pressure of a Chinese counterattack that recaptured Ningyuan, the War bulletin said.

But more trouble was building up for the Chinese defenders 85 miles southeast of Kweilin, where Japanese forces scored a 12-mile gain southeast of Funchwan in what may be a drive to join up with other columns invading the province along the West river.

Japs Drive Deeper Into Kweilin

Chungking, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Japanese drove wedges deeper into the suburbs of Kweilin from the north, south and east today in the battle for that Kwangsi province defense center in South Central China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's high command announced.

To the south, the enemy made six attacks against Chinese positions 16 miles east of Mosun, 45 miles south of Liuchow. All these assault were beaten back, the communique said, with heavy losses for the invaders.

Strongpoint Recovered

On the coastal front of Fukien province the Chinese threw back attacks six miles west of Foochow and recovered a strongpoint.

Brisk fighting was in progress in the vicinity of Kweilin's north railway station.

Fifty miles southeast of Kweilin the Japanese laid siege to Pinglo, a communications center, and advanced 12 miles to the southeast from Funchwan, 85 miles southeast of Kweilin, in an apparent attempt to link up with the invaders on the west river front before Liuchow.

Town Recaptured

The Chinese, however, recovered the Hunan province town of Ningyuan, 100 miles east-northeast of Kweilin.

(The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded in New York, said today that the Chinese defenders of Kweilin were entrenched in "hastily constructed pillboxes, made by smashing down the city walls," and that the Japanese troops anticipated "fierce resistance.")

2 YANK COLUMNS JOIN IN CARIGARA

MacArthur Says End of Leyte-Samar Campaign in Sight.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, Friday, Nov. 3—(AP)—American forces have made a juncture in Carigara, coastal town on Leyte's northwest coast, and are driving enemy remnants west and south toward Ormoc, Gen Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The "end of the Leyte-Samar campaign is in sight," the communique reported, and Japanese casualties have risen to more than 30,000.

Crush Jap Forces

Elements of the 24th division crushed final Japanese delaying forces in northwestern Leyte valley to effect the juncture with elements of the First Cavalry division.

Meanwhile, advance forces of the 7th division cut entirely across the lower portion of Leyte, reaching the west coast, 26 miles south of Ormoc.

Disorganized Japanese remnants were being driven toward Ormoc from the north, where American control of Carigara bay was assured, and from the east, where Yank infantrymen pursued enemy groups through the mountains.

The Japanese had made a surprise withdrawal from Carigara, last maneuverable area of strategic Leyte Valley, giving one of several indications they were abandoning the defense of Leyte.

Powerful American forces immediately struck out in pursuit of the retreating Japanese who evidently were attempting to reach an escape highway to Ormoc.

On the south, elements of the 7th division broke through to the West coast, capturing Baybay, 26 miles south of Ormoc.

Yanks Surround Ormoc

Ormoc was surrounded on all three land sides by determined American forces and shipping in the bay was hammered ceaselessly by fighters and bombers.

Returning pilots reported that heavily-laden Japanese barges were moving out from Ormoc toward larger vessels in the bay and returning empty—another indication the Japanese were attempting to save whatever troops survive the coordinated Yank assaults.

Japs Land Reinforcements

Reinforcements previously had been landed at Ormoc from Cebu, and some of them were known to have been sent over a mountain highway to bulwark Japanese forces along Carigara bay.

The Nipponese withdrawal from Carigara town, evidently made at night, climaxed bitter delaying battles for both the community and supporting points deeper in Leyte valley.

Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's 24th division, driving toward Carigara from Jaro, crushed the last Nipponese rear guards, then moved rapidly across the final six miles of highway to complete its juncture with the cavalrymen.

Filipino guerrillas marched in the American ranks as Carigara was entered.

Dismounted cavalrymen of Maj. Gen. Vern D. Mudge meanwhile had pressed Carigara from the east, and the day before the entry had met stiff artillery and mortar fire.

Heralding a possible imminent last battle, the communique said:

"Final remnants of the enemy's forces are now being driven into the small and confined Ormoc sector where they are enveloped on all three land sides by our ground forces."

YANKS TAKE CARIGARA, GO ON UNOPPOSED

Push 3 Miles Farther; End Of Leyte Campaign Termed "In Sight"

By FRED HAMPSON

With the 24th Division at Carigara, Nov. 2 (AP)—The two-week battle for Leyte Valley ended anticlimactically today as this division occupied Carigara almost without firing a shot and sent unopposed patrols three miles beyond.

[Editor's Note—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported that "the end of the Leyte-Samar campaign is in sight," and that Japanese casualties have risen to more than 30,000. Advance forces of the Seventh Division were reported to have driven through to the west coast of Leyte at Baybay, 26 miles south of Ormoc.]

The division artillery laid a shattering 18-hour barrage on the town before the infantrymen began their last three-mile advance, and when the troops arrived, all but a few of the defending Japanese had fled.

Casualties Not Light

Carigara was paid for in American blood. The casualties were not heavy but neither were they light for this "victory" division which bore the brunt of the whole Leyte Valley battle and fought with courage and tactical brilliance.

The battle exacted a terrific toll from the Japanese. Known enemy dead number around 3,000, and there is no estimate of the number of artillery victims lying in swamps, fields and wooded hills.

I walked over many a bloody smear on the road to Carigara today—red evidence of the evacuation of Japanese dead and wounded; men killed in the 12 bloody days of fighting when the Nipponese felt the fury of American arms in a smashing battle fought in the jungles, fought through placid vales of corn fields, rice paddies and palm groves, fought through one typhoon storm and many an hour of crucifying heat.

The Japanese was routed from his dugouts, stalked over the hills and slaughtered at the edge of roads.

'A Bloody Go'

And today the blood of his dead and the blood of his wounded colors the dust of the road to Carigara.

Brig. Gen. Kenneth Cramer, deputy division commander, said, "we must have broken their backs in the Jaro fight. It was a bloody go and I thank God we didn't have to fight like that all the way."

[The division took the village of Jaro, nine miles southeast of Carigara, several days ago after a particularly vicious engagement.]

Maze Of Village Roads

The battle for the valley began 12 days ago amid artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire on the Palo beach. Ever since then, the division has been pushing forward along the maze of village roads—and all the way it was hot, dirty, sweaty and bloody.

Japanese road blocks were encountered every few miles; and the division had to fight its way across streams where the retreating Japanese had blasted the bridges.

Even yesterday, final enemy efforts to hold the town slowed the advance to a walk and for a while stopped it entirely with anti-tank guns and heavier artillery commanding a vital section of the highway. This block was removed only when the infantrymen clawed their way through the jungles and took the Japanese last-ditch crews on the flank. A direct assault by tanks had failed earlier.

Patrols Reach Capoocan

Today, the forward units raced the last three miles into Carigara, where they made contact with units of the First Cavalry Division, moving west along the coast.

The joint forces then moved west along the coastal highway—having found only a few enemy remnants in the smoking village—and advance patrols reached Capoocan, two miles west of the Japanese escape route toward Ormoc Bay.

They reported this village also abandoned by the enemy, thus indicating that all enemy attempts to cling to a foothold in Leyte Valley were ended with the loss of Carigara.

Both Cramer and the division commander, Maj. Gen. Fred Irving, had expected a finish fight in Carigara and on the coastal road. As the battle developed, the only remaining job in the valley is to "go squirrel hunting," as General Irving put it, for small enemy units still wandering in the jungles.

Key Leyte Town Totters Under Yank Drive

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 2 (AP)—The village of Carigara tottered today, with elements of one American force actually in the town and another probably less than two miles away.

The last Japanese concentration east of the Leyte Mountains was on the verge of falling to units of the First Cavalry Division, reported already battling for control of the town; and its southern defenses were being pressed tighter by the 24th Division, moving northwest from the Jaro area.

Japs Blast Bridge

The cavalrymen first entered Carigara from the east more than a week ago during a patrol action after their amphibious landing on the north coast, but had to retire when more powerful Japanese forces appeared.

The 24th Division, its advance slowed by a series of road blocks, met a new obstacle beyond Tunga, where the retreating Japanese blew up a bridge.

Victory at Carigara would open the coastal road to the town of Pinamopoan and thus permit closing of the enemy's only vehicle route across the mountains from his reinforcement point at Ormoc Bay, on the southwest coast.

Halfway Across Isle

Far to the south of this twin-pronged advance, units of the 24th Corps were pushing west straight across the jungled hills. Some were reported half across the island, their objective of attacking the Japanese at Ormoc Bay, now mostly downhill. Terrain, rather than the enemy, apparently offered most of the obstacles there. No important fight had been reported by these units since the last strong pockets of Japanese were wiped out in the Dagami and Catmon Hill areas.

Nearing Mountain

The southern forces were neafing the area of Catmon Mountain, 16 miles away from the hill of the same name.

In the air, the Leyte battle centered over Ormoc Bay with American fighters based on newly won island airfields blasting at the Japanese reinforcements point (one ammunition dump was exploded) and at small freighters, luggers and barges. The air attack, coupled with PT boat raids, resulted in the sinking of one freighter and one lugger.

Seven Planes Bagged

The enemy's air force scored a single victory over an American fighter in a continuation of harassing raids. American fighters downed six Nipponese aircraft and American anti-aircraft accounted for another. A light naval unit sank a troop-laden Japanese barge off the west coast.

The hottest fight of the day was that of the 24th Division below Carigara. Maj. Gen. Fred Irving's units ran into new Japanese positions. Mortar fire pinned the Americans down on the Jaro-Carigara road for hours. An intense American bombardment failed to dislodge the enemy gunners, as did a tank attack. Eventually, the 24th sent out flanking parties and dislodged the Japanese.

BULLET HITS WALL NEAR MACARTHUR

SPENCER

Japanese Slug Passes Foot Over General's Head.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Friday, Nov. 3—(AP) Gen. Douglas MacArthur had one of his closest escapes from death today when a Japanese strafing attack put a .50 calibre bullet into a wall just a foot from his head.

Hearing the bullet hit, Col. Lloyd Lehrbas, the general's aide, rushed into the room to find the American commander examining the hole.

Unconcernedly nodding to the hole just above his head, Gen. MacArthur said:

"Well, not yet."

The general has had many close brushes with death. The closest also was in the Philippines, from a bombing attack shortly after the war began.

He was in the open when some Japanese planes appeared. One bomb exploded only a few feet away and wounded one of his Filipino orderlies standing by his side.

Tanker, Freighter Sunk

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Friday, Nov. 3 (AP). Far-ranging American bombers sank a 7,000-ton tanker and a 1,000-ton freighter and slashed at targets from Cebu, in the central Philippines, to the Solomons, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today in a supplement to his main communique.

Night patrols bagged the tanker off Tawitawi in the Sulu archipelago. Other night patrols sank the freighter and damaged two others northeast of Sandakan, Borneo.

Bombers hit Bacolod airdrome on Negros and installations at Del Monte, Mindanao, as well as other long-hammered targets on Celebes, Halmahera, Amboina, Timor, New Guinea and the Bismarck-Solomons sector.

Heavy bombers hit Cebu Island with 90 tons of bombs, destroying nine planes on the ground and downing one of seven interceptors.

SLAIN REPORTER'S LAST WAR STORY

[This is Asahel Bush's last story. He was killed in his sleep by a Japanese bomb on October 25 The date of the story was not given.]

Babatngnon, Leyte, Philippines, (Delayed) (A. P.).—In this secluded fishing village on the north coast of the Gulf of Leyte, war has destroyed just one building. It must have been the town's finest building in its day. Its rare cement foundations—all that remain—seems to indicate that. While it stood, it was occupied by the Japanese, who as conquerors, demanded the best.

Three weeks ago, said Ramon Rapaldo, school teacher and former municipal treasurer, the Filipino guerrillas came out of the hills and put a torch to it. Next day its tenants—a small Japanese garrison, varying from six to fourteen soldiers—left Babatngon and never returned.

Hence, when units of the Seventh American Cavalry landed today they were spared the necessity of inflicting further damage on the settlement, virtually untouched by war. It was the first South Pacific beachhead I ever have seen without a single shattered palm tree or shell crater or a single thatched hut in devastated disarray and that was a welcome delight.

Babatngon, nestling in a quiet cove, ringed by forested hills, was just what a peaceful, well ordered fishing village should have been—a shady, somnolent and peaceful village.

Jap Ammunition Ship Is Blown Up

American Army Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 2 (AP)—On the flanks of the American advance into the Philippines, the air war still goes on.

A headquarters announcement today listed these activities:

Off Borneo, United States fighter planes dived on a 10,000-ton Japanese tanker carrying a deck load of explosives. The tanker blew up. Two other tankers were heavily damaged and 12 enemy planes parked on the Borneo airdrome of Sangakan were destroyed.

Makassar Pounded

At Manado on Celebes, other fighters touched off a large explosion, and at Makassar, on the southwest Celebes shore, Liberators dropped 36 tons of bombs to set off a whole series of explosions.

At Halmahera, medium and light bombers attacked enemy fields within range of the American base on Morotai. Seven Japanese planes replied with a raid on Morotai, where anti-aircraft gunners shot down four of them.

At Ceram, west of Dutch New Guinea, Mitchells and fighter-bombers loosed 38 tons of bombs, destroying numerous buildings.

Enslavement Held Jap Aim In Philippines

Leyte, P. I., Nov. 2 (AP)—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Commonwealth said today that he is convinced "the Japanese intended to enslave the Filipino people and condemn them to misery and chaos."

He added in a Spanish language broadcast to South American countries:

"When the Japanese hordes invaded the Philippines in December, 1941, they tried to dazzle the Filipino people with glittery promises of independence and prosperity," he declared. "It seems to have been a deliberate plan of the Japanese to destroy the basis of our Christian and democratic civilization and to turn our people into a blind instrument of Japan's sinister design of aggression and aggrandizing."

He said the Americans would neither abuse the Filipinos nor deprive them of individual rights because as Christians they have a lofty conception of human dignity and love their own freedom too much to deny it to others.

LEW AYRES GIVES AID TO FILIPINOS

HAMPSON

AN AMERICAN EVACUATION HOSPITAL, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 25—(Delayed)—(AP) A little Filipino girl, with a bullet through her cheek and tongue, gave the hospital attendant a bit of a smile that had the fortitude of ages in it.

The attendant ran his hand over her black hair as he ministered gently to her. He looked around and said "they need us much in all this carnage. We are at least doing something constructive."

The attendant was T-Sgt. Lew Ayres, former star of the films.

As a chaplain's assistant Ayres came ashore with an early wave of Yank liberation forces and joined the workers in a hospital for natives. During the past 48 hours he and the staff, including eight native girls, heroically aided a pitiful caravan of wounded Filipinos as shells burst, machineguns chattered and aerial bombs roared nearby. They went about their work even as the Japanese staged a counterattack on this palm shaded village.

Many of those aided in the evacuation hospital are victims of skin ulcers brought about by scanty food during the Japanese occupation.

Ayres said "they are brave, these simple people. My hardest task is taking care of little kids with bullet holes in them."

The former movie star smiled as he said he already had been recognized by some of the natives who called him "Dr. Kildair" and sought his autograph. He added "it gave me more of a thrill to be recognized by these tortured little people than by movie fans in the United States."

Ayres is working in the hospital under Capt. Ray Hohman of Chicago.

Son Of Preacher Harassed Japanese

With Sixth Ranger Battalion Off Leyte, Oct. 17 (AP—Delayed)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters officially credits a preacher's son, Capt. Truman Heminway, Jr., with helping to destroy scores of Japanese ships.

As American Rangers approached Dinagat Island today to pave the way for the landing of American invasion forces in the Philippines (the invasion started three days after this was written) Heminway related how he had fought the Japanese since Pearl Harbor.

Heminway, son of the Reverend and Mrs. Truman Heminway, of Sherburne Center, Vt., fought with anti-Japanese guerrillas throughout the Philippines.

For 18 months he operated a powerful, secret radio station, guiding American submarines, surface ships and planes.

He was an aerial photographer at Clark Field, near Manila, when the Japanese struck in December, 1941. He fought with MacArthur on Bataan and escaped to join the guerrillas of Mindanao.

Heminway joined a bolo battalion which has become famous for its prowess with the bolo, a big, razor-edged knife.

Once, Heminway said, the bolo men stripped off all their clothes, crept into a Japanese barracks and beheaded everyone wearing clothes.

The Japanese tried to make some of the natives tell where the radio was by staking them down and forcing water through their mouths and noses, but none talked, Heminway said.

Lone Vessel Braves Mines Near Leyte

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—The first American merchant ship to reach Leyte harbor traveled the last 150 miles unescorted through mine fields.

The War Shipping Administration's representative in the Southwest Pacific, reporting the incident today, credited Capt. Albion M. Burbank, of the Liberty ship Dudley Field, with performing a "miracle of navigation."

Parted In Heavy Squall

Although he had never been in Philippine waters before, Burbank volunteered to take his ship into Leyte alone when some of the convoy became parted in a heavy squall. Passing through a treacherous, mine-strewn strait into Leyte Gulf, Burbank dropped anchor at the "precise spot" where his ship was supposed to be, Lieut. John A. Macauley reported.

The ship carried combat troops, anti-aircraft batteries and mortar shells which were urgently needed on the beach. The vessel's crew, aided by the navy armed guard, then unloaded the cargo into lighters.

Japs Attack Shipping

Macauley also reported that almost all air attacks have been concentrated "on the teeming shipping which has been crowding into the harbor."

Ships have been strafed and received near misses from bombs. Two Libertys, objects of Jap suicidal sinking attempts, succeeded in killing the pilots before they hit.

Japs Claim Sinking Of 4 Warships

San Francisco, Nov. 2 (AP)—A Japanese communique claimed today Nipponese planes sank four Allied capital ships and damaged three battleships in Leyte Gulf off the Philippines.

The unconfirmed broadcast, recorded here, said "one battleship or cruiser" and three cruisers were sunk. For two days Gen. Douglas MacArthur has reported decreasing Nipponese air raids over Leyte Gulf.

The Tokyo communique also boasted of nightly raids on Morotai Island, American base 300 miles south of the Philippines. It said "many enemy planes" were destroyed Tuesday in a "surprise attack" from which three Japanese aircraft failed to return.

MacArthur said seven planes made the raid and four were shot down. He reported the attack caused "only minor casualties."

Trapped Japs Eat Horses

San Francisco, Nov. 2—On invaded Leyte in the Philippines, the Japanese fortified a 1,400-foot peak up which they had to bring equipment by pack horse, George Forster, NBC correspondent, reported today.

"When they were isolated by the American drive," Forster added, "the Japanese ate their pack horses."

U. S. Ship Damage To Be Kept From Japs

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Japanese admirals guessed wrong on America's naval strength off the Philippines last week, resulting in disastrous defeat for Nippon's fleet—and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is going to keep them in the dark.

Yesterday, amplifying a previous acknowledgment that six United States warships were lost, he announced that several other units of the Seventh and Third fleets were damaged.

The names of the damaged warships will not be made public and the extent of damage will be withheld for the present.

Value To Enemy

"Such information," a Nimitz communique said, "would be of value to the enemy in estimating accurately the size of our naval forces operating in Philippine waters and what ships are available for immediate action."

Admiral Nimitz previously reported loss of the light carrier Princeton, two escort carriers, two destroyers and a destroyer escort. At least 24 Japanese warships were sunk, 14 probably sunk and 22 others were damaged.

Jap Boat Sunk Off Peleliu

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—A single Japanese torpedo boat, attempting to attack American vessels unloading cargo, was destroyed off Peleliu Island in the Palau group, the navy reported tonight.

The enemy attacked with torpedoes and machine guns, the navy said. No damage was caused by a torpedo launched at the beach, but some American troops were injured by machine gun fire in the night attack last Thursday.

(The Japanese, in radio broadcasts, have asserted that a heavy counterattack was launched against the American position in the Palau Islands.)

The navy said that the torpedoed boat was [illegible]

boat was destroyed as it attempted to escape to the north after the single assault on the beach.

The Tokyo radio reported Wednesday that a "special torpedo assault unit" launched a close-range attack against an American convoy east of Peleliu on November 1 and "sank four enemy transports and heavily damaged two others."

The Private Stands Guard In Reverse

With Americal Division, Southwest Pacific, Nov. 2 (AP)—Men of this division who trained at Camp Wolters, Texas, say this really happened:

A private was standing guard late one night and a first sergeant, returning from town, approached his post.

Private—Halt!

There was a long pause. He had forgotten what to say next. The sergeant, to be helpful, prompted him.

Sergeant—Who's there?

Private—Friend.

Sergeant—Advance, friend and be recognized.

The private advanced.

Sergeant—Recognized. Proceed.

The private proceeded.

oil, is said to kill every insect on contact.

DDT also has been used here in great quantities on more than 7,000 corpses. It is being used, too, in hand sprays around mess halls and latrines.

Spraying Apparatus Devised

The DDT is sprayed from pinhole nozzles in a short length of gas pipe attached beneath each wing of the plane. The make-shift gadget was devised a short time prior to the operation by Navy Commander Winslow T. Tompkins (M. C.), of Iowa City, Iowa, and Marine Lieut. Col. Walter T. Brownell, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. First Lieutenant William W. Ballew, of Grosse Point Woods, Mich., piloted the plane.

The torpedo bomber was found to be the best plane for spraying the fluid. Flying at 125 miles an hour at an altitude of 150 feet, it sprays 10 gallons of the DDT solution per minute. This island is approximately 6,400 acres and it is estimated two quarts of the solution are sufficient to cover an acre.

Sprayed On Entire Isle, DDT Kills Pests

(This is the first dispatch from Pacific combat areas on the use there of the Swiss chemical DDT, which stopped typhus in Naples last winer. The dispatch was written by two Marine Corps public relations officers, Capt. Earl J. Wilson, of Chevy Chase, Md., formerly of the Washington (D. C.) Post, and Capt. James A. Kelly, of Washington, D. C., formerly of the Miami (Fla.) Daily News, and is distributed by the Associated Press.)

On a Pacific Island—For the first time in medical history, an entire island is being sprayed with DDT, the magic insecticide.

A Marine Corps torpedo bomber, especially rigged, is systematically ridding the island of disease-carrying insects which, in the past, have claimed more casualties than bullets in the Pacific war.

Plane Sprays DDT

Twenty-two hours after the first planes landed on this battered airfield, a nearly invisible mist of DDT solution was settling over the rubble-strewn island and its mosquito-breeding mangrove swamps.

Results already have proved so successful that medical men here think that in future landings similarly equipped planes may rid beachheads of insect-borne disease even before D-day.

Bomber Duel

Brisbane, Australia, Nov. 2 (AP)—A duel between a Jap dive bomber and two American PT boats in the Philippines seas was described today by Blaine Fielder, Australian war correspondent just returned from Leyte.

He was aboard one of two PT boats engaged in attacking barges carrying enemy reinforcements from Cebu Island to Leyte. His boat was spotted by enemy dive bombers.

One dove straight in.

"Every gun opened up," Fielder said, "but we had no chance. The courage of those United States Navy boys was heart-stirring. Though all saw the bombs falling every man kept firing his gun until one bomb exploded teh feet away.

"It killed eight and wounded ten of the crew, and knocked out all of the guns.

"The commander rallied what was left of his crew as the plane returned for another strafing run. The other PTs came up and drove it off."

Later He Saw Stars.

U. S. Army Air Base, Marshall Islands, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—A Second Lieutenant ordered three men to "get the hell off this landing strip." They did. Then the shavetail noticed a General's stars on the shoulders of each.

CANADIAN CRISIS BELIEVED ENDED

OTTAWA, Nov. 2—(AP)—A cabinet crisis over the Canadian government's compromise conscription policy, resulting in the resignation of Defense Minister J. L. Ralston, apparently was weathered today by appointment of Lt. Gen A. G. L. McNaughton, widely regarded as the country's most popular soldier, as his successor.

The crisis capped a controversy which has persisted since the beginning of the war over the question of drafting men for overseas duty.

Under the policy of Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, draftees may not be sent outside the Western Hemisphere unless they volunteer to go.

Ralston is known to have been personally opposed to this policy for some time.

Since returning from a battlefield tour three weeks ago, however, Ralston was believed to have insisted that needed reinforcements abroad should be made from the group of between 70,000 and 80,000 men in the home army who have declined to serve abroad despite a publicity campaign conducted by the Army this summer to get them to go.

The issue had become heated in the past few weeks with reports that the government was planning to demobilize the home army first. Soldiers at the front however feared that those who served abroad would be handicapped in getting available civilian jobs.

In McNaughton, King has the man who built the Canadian army popular with enlisted men and staff officers alike.

McNaughton is believed to favor sending only volunteers to serve abroad on the military ground that they make better fighters.

Canada Official Quits in Protest On Draft Policy

NOV 3 1944

Ralston Defense Minister, Backed Overseas Duty; Gen. McNaughton in Post

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (AP).—Canada's Defense Minister, J. L. Ralston, resigned today, protesting against the government's refusal to compel military conscripts to serve overseas. General A. G. L. McNaughton succeeded him.

Use of the Home Defense Army, numbering about 70,000 men, has been an issue in Canada for several years and brought on the crisis in Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King's Cabinet. Under the government program, men called to compulsory military service may not be sent overseas unless they volunteer. In general, opposition to total conscription has come from French-speaking Quebec Province.

McNaughton, until last December commander of Canadian forces abroad, is expected to support the government's program.

The resignation of Angus L. Macdonald, Navy Minister, was also believed possible.

Ralston, a Montreal lawyer, had been in the Cabinet since September, 1939, taking office three days before Canada declared war on Germany. He recently made a tour of European battlefields, and was reported to have returned with the conviction that Canada must use all available man power as needed, whether overseas or at home.

The Canadian Press said today that call-ups for compulsory military service were lagging behind quotas set by Ralston's Defense Department. Last February Ralston said the army would require 60,000 men this year, with 48,000 of these available for duty anywhere. The army now contains about 470,000 men.

In prolonged sessions in recent weeks the Cabinet has discussed suggestions for changes in the home-defense setup. One section has favored release of about half the Home Army for work in civilian jobs connected with the war and the retention of the remaining 35,000 for coastal defense and similar duties. Under an order-in-council passed a month ago the government was empowered to place personnel of the Home Defense Army in civilian jobs regarded as essential to the war.

A 1942 plebiscite released the government from all its previous commitments against the use of conscripts overseas. King, however, announced then that the government would not use its authority without first taking a vote in Parliament.

The Prime Minister declined to discuss Ralston's resignation, saying "everything speaks for itself."

More Resignations Hinted

The Toronto Globe and Mail said today that three more Ministers probably would follow Ralston: Navy Minister Angus MacDonald, Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley and State Secretary Norman McLarty.

Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian army overseas, who agrees with the King policy of compromise, was expected to succeed Ralston.

Underlying King's policy is the fact that Quebec comprises nearly one third of Canada's population and provides a vital bloc of the Prime Minister's Liberal party support in the Dominion Parliament.

Ralston Quits Canadian Cabinet On Draft Policy

NOV 3 1944

By Harry T. Montgomery

(Associated Press Correspondent)

A Canadian Cabinet crisis over Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King's conscription policy has resulted in the resignation of Defense Minister J. L. Ralston and may lead to further defections, it was disclosed in Ottawa today.

As a concession to the predominantly French-Canadian province of Quebec, traditionally opposed to fighting in overseas wars, King's policy has provided that men of Canada's armed services may be sent overseas only if they volunteer.

70,000 Decline

Out of a total of nearly 1,000,000 men in all of Canada's armed services, between 70,000 and 80,000 have detclined to serve overseas.

Around theseh men there has ranged since the start of the war a heated controversy in which—in general—English-speaking Canada has been ranged against French-speak ing Quebec.

In pursuing his goal of a maximum war effort, the Prime Minister has followed a policy of compromise.

May Hasten Election

The Cabinet crisis is expected in Ottawa to bring nearer a general election which by statute must take place before expiration of the present Parliament's term next April. King may law the entire issue before the public for a ruling.

Ralston is understood to favor making all Canadian troops available for service anywhere.

The Cabinet debated the issue for more than a week, with the majority siding with the Prime Minister.

Percentages Called

Quebec's role in the war has frequently been under fire by King's opponents outside the province.

They lay to King's policy the fact that the Canadian services have taken only 22.1 per cent. of Quebec's men in the military 18-to-45 age groups, as compared with a Dominion-wide average of 36.9 per cent.

Gen. Connell Praises His New Command

St. John's, Newfoundland, Nov. 2 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Samuel A. Connell, of Warrington, N. C., has assumed command of the United States military in Newfoundland, succeeding Maj. Gen. John Brooks.

After his first inspection the 48-year-old commander declared that from the standpoint of appearance, discipline and soldierly qualities of the personnel this is "the finest command I've ever seen."

Yugoslav Leader Is Dead

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—The free Yugoslav radio heard by the FCC, said today Lieut. Gen. Ivan Milutinovic, a member of the supreme headquarters of the Yugoslav National Army of Liberation, "died recently while executing his duties."

San Francisco, Nov. 2 (AP)—Japan melted down a confusing and contradictory series of reports today into one account that American Superfortresses reconnoitered over Tokyo Wednesday, dropped no bombs but panicked some of the people before flying back to bases presumably in the Marianas.

The account, except for identification of the planes as B-29s, was given official enemy status by Kenichi Kumagai, vice-chief of Japan's air defense general headquarters today.

U. S. Headquarters Silent

Headquarters of the 20th American Air Force, which previously has announced all B-29 raids within a matter of hours after the bombs fell, said nothing. This would tend to indicate, if the big bombers were over Tokyo, that they were engaged in reconnaissance.

Kumagai, in a statement broadcast to the Japanese people and recorded here, said:

"The enemy activity at this time was confined to a reconnoitering flight. However, it is cognizable that the tendency to carry out air raids against Japan is ever increasing."

Air-Raid Alarms In Tokyo

Obviously, he was referring to a blistering series of B-29 attacks on Japanese industrial areas, principally on Kyushu.

Kumagai said appearance of the planes caused air-raid alarms in Tokyo and at its port of Yokohama.

He reprimanded some of the people because they "lost their calmness."

At the same time he urged extensive steps to keep water on hand, because "houses in Japan are easily set afire."

He complained that "the number of air-raid shelters is still far from sufficient."

Estimates Vary

About all the Tokyo broadcasts for American consumption could agree upon was that the planes were B-29s and probably came from the Marianas.

Tokyo radio varied the estimates of the number of planes from several to one. It varied the length of their stay from a few minutes to a half hour. It once said the important industrial area on Tokyo

Superforts Dropped No Bombs, Japs Now Say

...area on Tokyo's southeast side was "raided," but later said no bombs fell.

Invasion Fear In Japan

San Francisco, Nov. 2 (AP)—A Tokyo broadcast today said indirectly that the Japanese expect an American invasion of northern Nippon.

A Domei dispatch quoted a tank commander "at a front-line base in the northern tip of Japan" as saying "training before the enemy landing is more important than sacrifice after the enemy landing."

The occasion was the delivery of several tanks, made partially of scrap iron and copper donated by the "boundless benevolence" of Emperor Hirohito.

"If the enemy approaches," the tank commander promised, "we will destroy him at the beach and ease the mind of his Imperial Majesty."

New Puppet Governor Of Kiangsu Named

San Francisco, Nov. 2 (AP)—The puppet Nanking government has named Jen Yuan-Tao, present navy minister of the post of governor of the province of Kiangsu on the eastern seacoast of China, the Japanese Domei news agency reported today.

The appointment was made because of "the strategic importance" of the province, according to the report recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

487,692 U.S. Casualties

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—United States battle casualties have risen to 487,692, an increase of 14,913 over the number reported last week.

The War Department said today the latest army total is 417,121 as of October 21, an increase of 14,047 since last week's report, which covered the period through October 14.

The latest navy compilation placed the figure at 70,571, an increase for the same interval of 866.

Army casualties, compared with those a week ago: Killed, 80,666 and 78,522; wounded, 229,212 and 220,529; missing, 53,622 and 51,009; prisoners, 53,621 and 53,014.

Navy casualties: Killed, 28,231 and 27,831; wounded, 28,441 and 27,857; missing, 9,421 and 9,537; prisoners, 4,478 and 4,480. (Decreases apparently are accounted for by transfers of names to other categories.)

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 1,820 casualties in the European and Mediterranean areas. Included in the list are the following with their next of kin:

PAN-AMERICAN TALK SEEN DUE

NOV 3 1944

Will Probably Be Held Before New Security Parley

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—It now appears likely that American Foreign Ministers will hold a conference before the United Nations get together to discuss the Dumbarton Oaks world security project.

It is the United States' hope to make it a peace agency meeting and soft-pedal the issue of Argentina's virtual exclusion from American councils.

The main question is whether Argentina will attend as a full-fledged member of the conference, appear as a special pleader, or be excluded altogether.

Without Argentina?

Some Latin-American diplomats have come up unofficially with the suggestion that a conference be called without inviting Argentina, but that Gen. Edelmiro Farrell's Government be asked to present its case before the court of the other 20 republics. Sponsors of that plan propose the following agenda in this order:

1. World security plans and how Pan-Americanism shall be meshed into an international organization.
2. Hemispheric development and defense, including economic plans, post-war defense measure and return to peace.
3. Continental unity, including Argentina's failure to participate in the anti-Axis effort and the future position of the Buenos Aires Government in inter-American affairs.

Pressure for an inter-American meeting has increased since Argentina caught most American diplomats unawares with a request to the Pan American union for a conference to discuss the virtual diplomatic quarantine raised against the Farrell Government.

Murder Will Out

It would seem extremely difficult to prevent the touchy Argentine question from being raised even though security were the primary issue of the conference.

All the American capitals now are considering the Argentine proposal, and Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela have backed the plan publicly.

20 American Nations Ponder Request Of Argentina

NOV 3 1944

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—Argentina's struggle to fight her way out of diplomatic quarantine began formally in 20 other American capitals today.

Delegates of the other members of the Pan-American Union were sending to their Governments the Buenos Aires' request for an inter-American Foreign Ministers meeting to consider the touchy Argentine situation.

U. S. Delays Taking Stand

The United States, Acting Secretary of State Stettinius said yesterday, will not make up its mind on a meeting until it has heard the other republics' opinions.

Three—Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela—have indorsed a conference. Mexico's Foreign Minister, Ezequiel Padilla, reacted favorably to the idea in a press statement.

It is no secret that Washington hopes Argentina will be unable to convince enough other republics to force a meeting, although there is a likelihood that American Foreign Ministers, perhaps excluding the Argentine, will call a meeting on post-war problems.

"Caught Flat-Footed"

Officials, both United States and Latin, say openly that the Argentine request for a conference caught them flat-footed, and some time may elapse before any decision is reached on the Buenos Aires appeal.

The United States Government has branded the Argentine Government as Fascist and has held the position that it wants no diplomatic dealings with the present Buenos Aires regime.

All but four of the other American republics and Great Britain have followed Washington's lead in refusing to recognize the Government of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell.

U. S. Flyers In England Raise 70 Tons Of Food

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—A group of American airmen who cultivated a 65-acre produce farm in England during their spare time harvested 70 tons of vegetables and fruits this year and won a silver trophy from Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commanding general of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe.

The group, commanded by Col. Henry W. Terry, of Ossining, N. Y., turned the produce over to the airfield's mess and saved the army $8,000 worth of rations, the War Department said in announcing the unique trophy award.

Capt. Floyd M. Marshall, Lincoln, Neb., organized and directed the gardening project. Assisting him were Sergt. J. D. Berry, North Bangor, N. Y., and Sergt. Floyd Wilkins, Indiana, Pa. The announcement did not specify the airfield near which the truck farm was located.

Officer's Sword Found In Saipan Building

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—A search for souvenirs in the ashes of a Japanese headquarters building on Saipan will result in the return of a marine officer's sword held by a Japanese since the capture of Guam in December, 1941.

Marine Corporal James R. Martin, of Nashville, Tenn., found the sword last July after flame-throwers had destroyed the building.

He pulled the blade from its fire-blackened scabbard and found the name "Walter Nevins Flournoy" engraved on the steel. Flournoy is Captain Flournoy, 29, Raleigh, N. C., prisoner of the Japanese since the enemy captured Guam.

Martin, now back in the United States, the navy said, plans to deliver the sword to Mrs. Muriel Blackwood Flournoy, the captain's wife, who lives at Raleigh, N. C.

200-Million Aid For Italy Seen By Year's End

United Nations Relief Total Set at 155 Million to July in O'Dwyer Report

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP).—The Allied Military Commission in Italy reported tonight that by the end of this year 2,300,000 tons of food and other supplies will have been furnished to war-stricken civilians.

Describing details of a United Nations relief program, the report estimated an expenditure of more than $200,000,000 was represented.

In a memorandum made public by the War Department, Brigadier General William O'Dwyer, vice-president in charge of the Economic Section of the Allied commission, placed at $103,205,000 the value of supplies shipped by the United Nations to Italy up to July 1 of this year—in the first year of Allied occupation. Including shipping, this represented a cost of $155,000,000.

General O'Dwyer said that, in addition, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration had budgeted $50,000,000 for its separate operations in Italy, principally for welfare work among children and mothers and medical supplies.

Food has made up the bulk of the relief shipments, accounting for $86,073,000 up to July 1. Other items included clothing, $8,095,000; medical and sanitary, $2,535,000; agricultural, $2,953,000, and coal, $2,500,000.

These were not the only forms of aid, however. General O'Dwyer's report said 3,000 miles of railroads in liberated Italy had been repaired and reactivated by the Allies as well as 4,000 miles of main highways. He said 230 highway bridges had been completely reconstructed or were in the process of rebuilding, and that some 500 other bridges had been repaired or replaced.

While power, fuel and transport facilities have been restored to some extent, a large scale revival of industry has not yet been possible, the report continued. However, governmental control machinery is being reorganized to prepare for the 1945 agriculture production season.

One phase of the relief program was the reopening last month of schools for between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 children in liberated Italy.

AMERICAN ENVOYS ARE EXPECTED TO HOLD CONFERENCE

NOV 3 1944

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — (AP) It now appears likely that American foreign ministers will hold a conference before the United Nations get together to discuss the Dumbarton Oaks world security project.

It is the United States' hope to make it a peace agency meeting and soft-pedal the issue of Argentina's virtual exclusion from American councils.

The main question is whether Argentina will attend as a full-fledged member of the conference, appear as a special pleader, or be excluded altogether.

Some Latin American diplomats have come up unofficially with the suggestion that a conference be called without inviting Argentina, but that General Edelimor Farrell's government be asked to present its case before the court of the other 20 republics. Sponsors of that plan propose the following agenda in this order:

1—World security plans and how Pan-Americanism shall be meshed into an international organization.

2—Hemispheric development and defense, including economic plans, post-war defense measures and return to peace.

3—Continental unity, including Argentina's failure to participate in the anti-Axis effort and the future position of the Buenos Aires government in inter-American affairs.

Pressure for an inter-American meeting has increased since Argentina caught most American diplomats unawares with a request to the Pan-American union for a conference to discuss the virtual diplomatic quarantine raised against the Farrell government. It would seem extremely difficult to prevent the touchy Argentine question from being raised even though security were the primary issue of the conference.

All the American capitals now are considering the Argentine proposal, and Colombia, Ecuador and Venezuela have backed the plan publicly.

Mexico had been pressing for a foreign ministers' conference for some time, and other Latin American republics have made it clear that they favor the idea.

Unofficial speculation places the session at Mexico City or Santiago, Chile, either late in December or early next year, depending in part on when President Roosevelt confers with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill to fill in the gaps in the World Security plan.

Contrary to its previous position, the United States now appears agreeable to a conference on post-war problems, in view of the overwhelming wishes of the other American republics. But that does not apply to any Argentine-requested meeting primarily on the Argentine issue.

Assault-Ship Production Rises

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—Production of high priority assault ships increased "very materially" in October, the Maritime Commission disclosed today.

Refusing to reveal actual figures for security reasons, the commission said the upturn brought production almost up to sharply increased schedules.

Foresees Meeting Quotas

In future months, the commission predicted, it will be possible to meet production schedules provided the 12 shipyards building the assault transports and cargo vessels fill their labor requirements.

The assault ships, known as APAs (troop transports) and AKAs (cargo carriers), are equipped with landing craft and tank lighters to carry troops and tanks directly onto beaches.

High navy officials have described the assault-ship program as "the key to the early success of the war in the Pacific."

Liberties To Be Named Willkie, Smith, Norris

Washington, Nov. 2 (AP)—Liberty ships will be named for Wendel L. Willkie, Alfred E. Smith and George W. Norris.

Assignment of the names of the three political figures who have died within recent months to ships now under construction was announced today by the Maritime Commission.

The George W. Norris is being built at Brunswick, Ga.; the Alfred E. Smith at South Portland, Maine and the Wendell Willkie at Panama City, Fla.

C.A.B. Report May Defer Export Airlines Purchase

Examiners Hold American Lines Offer 'Inconsistent' Now

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP).—The Civil Aeronautics Board received a recommendation from two of its examiners today that further consideration of American Airlines' application to obtain control of American Export Airlines be deferred.

The examiners said American Airlines' proposal to acquire 51.4 per cent of American Export's stock for $3,000,000 was "inconsistent with the public interest" in view of Export's temporary license, and suggested that nothing more be done about it until it is determined whether Export will have a temporary or a permanent license.

The American Export Steamship Company, organizer of American Export Airlines, has been directed by the C. A. B. to divest itself of Export Airlines control under a ruling that no surface carrier may control an air carrier except under certain conditions.

30. 24 — 20105

Export Airlines has a temporary certificate to operate between New York and Lisbon and between New York and Foynes, Ireland. The New York-Foynes certificate is valid only so long as the needs of the national defense require. The company has pending a number of applications to expand its service.

FLY RESIGNS POST AS FCC CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP)—James L. Fly, storm center of controversies over radio policy, is stepping out as chairman of the Federal Communications commission.

He announced today that he has resigned effective Nov. 15 and will practice law in New York. William Benton of Benton and Bowles Advertising agency is understood to be seeking Fly's aid in establishing a proposed "subscription" radio service.

Fly's resignation had been rumored a long time. Speculation on a successor has centered on Paul Porter, publicity director for the Democratic National committee. J. Leonard Reinsch, radio director for the committee, also has been mentioned.

With Fly's departure there will be two vacancies on the seven-member FCC. No successor has yet been named to T. A. M. Craven who left June 30 to enter the radio business.

A six-foot, three-inch Texan, Fly has been chairman of the FCC since September, 1939. He is an Annapolis (1920) Harvard Law school (1926) graduate who first entered the government in the Hoover administration as a special assistant to the attorney general.

Under President Roosevelt's administration Fly became known as a New Deal "trouble shooter." One of his accomplishments was besting the late Wendell Willkie in a legal battle over the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority. Fly was TVA general counsel when appointed FCC chairman.

As head of the FCC, Fly became embroiled in controversy with some elements in the radio industry. There were charges, which he denied, that he wanted to "dictate" types of programs.

Currently, the FCC is under investigation by a special House committee. Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) proposed the investigation.

Cox, advised of Fly's resignation, said it "should be encouraging to those who want a free radio."

"But," he added, "it does not satisfy the need for complete reorganization of the Commission and a revision of the law under which it operates."

Roosevelt's Re-election Is Urged by Stettinius

He Declares the Country Needs 'Wise Leadership'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP).—Edward R. Stettinius jr., Acting Secretary of State, called for the re-election of President Roosevelt today in his first statement on the current campaign.

When a reporter commented at the Acting Secretary's press conference that Mr. Stettinius had not "made any statement on politics, with the campaign drawing to a close," Mr. Stettinius authorized direct quotation of this reply: "From where I sit I am convinced that the country needs the continued leadership, the wise and experienced leadership of President Roosevelt to bring about a speedy victory and a sound peace."

He prefaced this by saying he had had his hands more than full helping Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

Mr. Stettinius told the reporters that Mr. Hull, who is ill at Naval Hospital, is doing very well but that he didn't know when the seventy-three-year-old Secretary would return to his duties at the department.

Thanksgiving Is Set for Nov. 23 By Roosevelt

4th Thursday Proclaimed Holiday, but Some States Plan Nov. 30 Observance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 (AP).—President Roosevelt today proclaimed Nov. 23, the fourth Thursday of this month, as Thanksgiving Day, thus following the law enacted by Congress Dec. 26, 1941.

Because this month has five Thursdays, however, the complication of two Thanksgiving Days is continuing this year, despite Congressional action to end the Roosevelt experiment of an earlier Thanksgiving, started in 1939.

Forty states and the District of Columbia have fixed Nov. 23 for the holiday in line with the Federal statute, but Florida, Idaho, Nebraska, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia plan to observe Nov. 30. In Arkansas and Georgia, there is a possibility that both dates will be recognized.

The complete text of the President's proclamation:

"In this year of liberation, which has seen so many millions freed from tyrannical rule, it is fitting that we give thanks with special fervor to our Heavenly Father for the mercies we have received individually and as a nation and for the blessings He has restored, through the victories of our arms and those of our allies, to His children in other lands.

"For the preservation of our way of life from the threat of destruction, for the unity of spirit which has kept our nation strong, for our abiding faith in freedom and for the promise of an enduring peace, we should life up our hearts in thanksgiving.

"For the harvest that has sustained us and, in its fullness, brought succor to other peoples; for the bounty of our soil, which has produced the sinews of war for the protection of our liberties; and for a multitude of private blessings, known only in our hearts, we should give united thanks to God.

"To the end that we may bear more earnest witness to our gratitude to Almighty God, I suggest a nation-wide reading of the holy Scriptures during the period from Thanksgiving Day to Christmas. Let every man of every creed go to his own version of the Scriptures for a renewed and strengthening contact with those eternal truths and majestic principles which have inspired such measure of true greatness as this nation has achieved.

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in consonance with the joint resolution of the Congress approved December 26, 1941, do hereby proclaim Thursday, the twenty-third day of November, 1944, a day of national thanksgiving; and I call upon the people of the United States to observe it by bending every effort to hasten the day of final victory and by offering to God our devout gratitude for His goodness to us and to our fellow men."

RIVALS THREATEN PEACE WITH 'SPITE' FENCE, F.D.R. SAYS

NOV 3 1944

President Also Strikes Out at What He Terms 'Wicked Whisperings.'

DISCUSSES U. S. SUCCESS

Hopes to Provide Employment for Veterans and War Workers.

NOV 3 1944

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP) President Roosevelt accused the opposition camp tonight of threatening "to build a party spite fence between us and the peace," and also struck out at what he termed wicked whisperings.

In a campaign broadcast from the White House, the President said the threat consisted of statements that unless the Republican presidential candidate is elected Congress will not cooperate in the peace.

"I do not know who empowers these men to speak for the Congress in uttering such a threat," he said.

"Certainly the United States Senate and the House of Representatives showed no reluctance to agree with the foreign policy of this administration when, almost unanimously last year, they passed the Connally and Fulbright resolutions which pledged this nation to cooperate in a world organization for peace."

In speaking of "whispering and rumorings," the President did not go into details. Asserting that he did not "propose to answer in kind," he declared the American people pay little attention to whispering campaigns.

Nor are they panicked, he said, by "hysterical last minute accusations or sensational revelations" any more than they were panicked by Pearl Harbor.

Cites Production

The President devoted much of his speech to a discussion of military successes abroad, the "tremendous productive achievements" on the home front, and of postwar affairs.

He declared that by carrying out plans already made, the nation can:

"Provide employment for our veterans and our war workers—we can achieve an orderly reconversion.

"Above all, we can avoid another false boom like that which burst in 1929, and a dismal collapse like that of 1930 to 1933."

Won't Go To Cleveland

Mr. Roosevelt said he was disappointed that work in Washington prevented him from speaking in Cleveland or Detroit but said "As I told the American people when I became President I follow the principle of first things first; and this war comes first."

The President said the presidential campaign "has been marred by even more than the usual crop of whisperings and rumorings" and declared "I do not propose to answer in kind."

"As we approach election day, more wicked charges may be made with the hope that someone or somebody will gain momentary advantage.

"Hysterical, last minute accusations or sensational revelations, are trumped up in an attempt to panic the people on election day.

"But the American people are not panicked easily. Pearl Harbor proved that.

"This election will not be decided on a basis of malignant murmurings or shouts. It will be settled on the basis of the record."

Sees "Spite" Threat

Mr. Roosevelt said the public has been told that unless the Republican presidential choice is elected "the Congress will not cooperate in peace. This is a threat to build a party spite fence between us and the peace."

The President reviewed briefly the military developments of recent days and said "Our success has been the result of planning and organization and building."

Calling for what he termed a continuance of national teamwork, the President said he looks forward "to an era of expansion and production and employment—to new industries and increased security.

"I look forward to millions of new homes, fit for decent living; to new low-priced automobiles; new highways; new airplanes; to television; and miraculous new inventions and discoveries, made during this war, which will be adapted to the peacetime uses of a peace loving people."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — (AP) Following is text of President Roosevelt's White House speech:

I had hoped that during the earlier part of this week, I could have gone in person to some of the nearer midwestern cities, such as Cleveland and Detroit, and I had hoped that I could visit some of my old friends in upstate New York.

Speaks from White House

However on my return to Washington from Chicago, I find that I am not free to spare the time right now. Therefore, I am speaking to you from the White House.

I am disappointed about this—but, as I told the American people when I became President, I follow the principle of first things first: and this war comes first.

We have all been overjoyed by the news from the far Pacific, 8,000 miles away. Never before in all of history has it been possible successfully to conduct such massive operations with such long lines of supply and communication.

Warns Against Setbacks

In the Pacific theater, even while we are fighting a major war in Europe, our advance toward Japan is many months ahead of our own optimistic schedule, but we must remember that any military operation conducted at such a distance is a hazardous undertaking. In any long advance, progress may be interrupted by checks or setbacks However, ultimately our advance will stop only in Tokyo itself.

Our success has been the result of planning and organization and building; it has been the result of the hardest work and the hardest fighting of which our people are capable.

On the other side of the world, in Europe, the Allied forces under General Eisenhower are pounding the Germans with relentless force.

No Winter lull in Europe

We do not expect to have a Winter lull in Europe. We expect to keep striking—to keep the enemy on the move—to hit him again and again—to give him no rest—and to drive through to the final objective—Berlin.

It Italy against the handicap of rugged mountain obstacles and against bitter German resistance—the Allied armies are steadily moving forward, wearing down the German fighting strength in a slow, hard slugging match.

In winning this war there is just one sure way to guarantee the minimum of casualties—by seeing to it that, in every action we have overwhelming material superiority.

Great Force in Europe

We have already sent to Europe—just one of our many fronts—a force greater than the entire American expeditionary force of 1918. American troops now are fighting along a battle line of 300 miles in France and about a hundred miles in Italy.

Within ten weeks after the first landings in France last June, the Allies had landed on the Normandy beaches nearly two million men, more than two million tons of supplies and nearly half a million vehicles.

Think of all that vast mass of material for one operation—think of the war factories and ships and planes and railroads and labor required to produce and deliver the right supplies to the right place at the right time.

Long Road Ahead

Then think of the tasks that lie ahead of us—all the long, tough miles to Berlin—all the major landings yet to be made in the Pacific—and you will have a conception of the magnitude of the job that remains to be done. It is still a job requiring the all out production efforts to all our people here at home.

Delays in the performance of our job at home mean prolonging the war. They will mean an increase in the total price we must pay in the lives of our men.

All of our able commanders in the field know this. And so do our soldiers and sailors. And we at home must never forget it.

All Americans at home are concerned in this—the fulfillment of an obligation to our fighting men.

Women Profoundly Concerned

The women of America are most profoundly concerned. Today women are playing a far more direct more personal part in the war than ever before.

First, and I think rightly first are those women who have gone into the WACs and the WAVES and the Marines and the Coast Guard, the nursing services of the Army and Navy, the Red Cross—serving in all kinds of places, in and out of the United States—all of them performing functions which definitely relieve men for combat work.

Then there are the millions of women who have gone into war industries. They are greatly responsible for the fact that the munitions and supplies to our men at the front have gone through to them on time.

FDR Praises Women

And, finally, the women who uncomplainingly have done the job of keeping the homes going — the homes with service flags in the window — service flags with blue stars or gold stars.

And we do not forget those women who have volunteered with the men in the difficult and important work of the ration boards all over the nation—doing the job of apportioning the necessities of life equitably among their neighbors—rich and poor.

Everyone who has made a sacrifice in this war — and that includes one hundred and thirty-five million Americans—is determined that this must not happen again—that the disastrous mistakes of the past shall not be repeated — that this nation shall be committed to play a leading part in a world organization which shall be strong and effective and enduring.

Raps Dewey Statement

We have been told during this political campaign that unless the American people elect the Republican presidential choice, the Congress will not cooperate in the peace. This is a threat to build a party spite-fence between us and the peace.

I do not know who empowers these men to speak for the Congress in uttering such a threat.

Certainly the United States Senate and the House of Representatives showed no reluctance to agree with the foreign policy of this administration when, almost unanimously last year, they passed the Connally and Fulbright resolutions which pledged this nation to cooperate in a world organization for peace.

These are high and serious matters to those who know how greatly our victory in this war and our ability to establish a lasting peace depend on maintaining unshaken that understanding which must be the core of the United Nations.

Talks with Smaller Nations

It is heartening for me to have known and to have talked with the statesmen of the smaller nations as well as our larger Allies—men like Benes of Czechoslovakia, Mikolajczyk of Poland, Nygaardswold of Norway—and leaders of Democratic thought from Yugoslavia and Greece and Denmark and Belgium and the Netherlands — and, of course, the great leaders of our neighbor countries in this hemisphere.

I have spent many fruitful hours talking with men from the more remote nations — such as Turkey, Persia, Arabia, Abyssinia, Liberia, Siam and others—for all of them are part and parcel of the great family of nations. It is only through an understanding acquired by years of consultation, that one can get a viewpoint of their problems and their innate yearnings for freedom.

And all of them have this in common — that they yearn for peace and stability, and they look to America with hope and faith.

World Rising from Past

The world is rising from the agony of the past, the world is turning with hope to the future. It would be a sorry and cynical thing to betray this hope for the sake of mere political advantage, and a tragic thing to shatter it because of the failure of vision.

There have been some other aspects of this campaign which have been distasteful to all of us.

This campaign has been marred by even more than the usual crop of whisperings and rumorings. Some of these get into print, in certain types of newspapers; others are traded about, secretly, in one black market after another. I do not propose to answer in kind.

The voting record proves that the American people pay little attention to whispering campaigns. They have paid little attention to all the malignant rumors of enemy origin which have flooded this country during this war — and I am sure they will treat the present whispering with the same contempt.

Expects More Charges

As we approach Election day, more wicked charges may be made with the hope that someone or somebody will gain momentary advantage.

Hysterical, last minute accusations or sensational revelations, are trumped up in an attempt to panic the people on Election day.

This election will not be decided on a basis of malignant murmurings—or shouts. It will be settled on the basis of the record.

We all know the record of our military achievements in this war.

And we all know the record of the tremendous production achievements of our American farmers, our American business men, and our American labor.

Works For World Peace

And we all know the record of our team-work with our Allies. Immediately after Pearl Harbor we formed with the other United Nations the greatest military coalition in world history. And we have steadily gone on from that to establish the basis for a strong and durable organization for world peace.

The America which built the greatest war machine in all history, and which kept it supplied, is an America which can look to the future with confidence and faith.

I propose the continuance of the team-work that we have demonstrated in this war.

By carrying out the plans we have made we can avoid a post-war depression—we can provide employment for our veterans and our war workers—we can achieve an orderly reconversion.

Must Avoid False Boom

Above all, we can avoid another false boom like that which burst in 1929, and a dismal collapse like that of 1930 to 1933.

With continuance of our team-work, I look forward, under the leadership of this Government, to an era of expansion and production and employment—to new industries and increased security.

I look forward to millions of new homes, fit for decent living; to new, low-priced, automobiles; new highways; new airplanes and airports; to television; and miraculous, new inventions and discoveries, made during this war, which will be adapted to the peace-time uses of a peace-loving people.

Have Established Great Record

The record that we have established in this war is one of which every American has a right to be proud—today and for all time.

We do not want the later record to say that the great job was done in vain.

We do not want our boys to come back to an America which is headed for another war in another generation.

Our post-war job will be to work and to build—for a better America than we have ever known.

Polls Indicate Close Race In Presidential Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP) Four nation-wide polls were agreed as of today that the race between President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was too close to warrant trying to pick the winner.

Three of the four opinion-samplings gave the President a slight lead. The fourth, the latest Gallup poll, indicated that his Republican opponent had the edge. All four were careful to point out that the margins were not conclusive.

Final results of the Crossley poll give Roosevelt 52 per cent of the major party vote on the basis of late October polling in 23 pivotal states, adjusted by estimates of the armed services vote. (Actual sampling of the service vote is prohibited by law—a factor, all four polls noted, adding to the difficulty of trying to estimate which way the total vote would go.)

An analysis accompanying the Crossley poll adds that the President's plurality "in several important states is so narrow that it is quite possible for Dewey to capture a majority of the electoral votes merely by minor changes, or increased Republican voting in these states."

A semi-final poll conducted for Fortune magazine by the Elmo Roper firm gives Roosevelt 53.5 per cent of the civilian vote. The magazine's Survey of Public Opinion emphasizes several possibilities of an upset.

Dr. George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion reports Dewey leading as of last week in 22 states with 255 electoral votes and Roosevelt ahead in 21 states with 206 electoral votes. (It takes 266 to win). The remaining five states, with 70 electoral votes, are listed as "on the line."

In the fourth poll, a Newsweek magazine survey representing State-by-state estimates of 118 political writers, Roosevelt is found leading in 27 states with 249 electoral votes and Dewey in 20 states with 247 electoral votes. Newsweek regards Pennsylvania (35 electoral votes) as the state of decision.

Fortune does not break down its poll by states. Here is what the other three find in what they consider "pivotal" states. (Electoral votes in parentheses):

All three polls find Roosevelt leading in these 20 states, which have a total of 198 electoral votes: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, North Carolina, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia and Washington.

Dewey is given the edge in these 12 states, whose combined electoral vote is 115: Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Hillman Foresees GOP 'Lie'; Foresight Wrong — Brownell

NOV 3 1944

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—A charge by Sidney Hillman today that Republicans intended to accuse him of receiving money from Harry Bridges to use his influence to prevent the West Coast labor leader's deportation drew from Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., the reply: "What's that—a confession before a charge has been made?"

Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, told a press conference he had word the Republicans intended to accuse him of getting $15,000 "each week or month" from Bridges, and he added: "That would be the most damnable lie."

Mentions Telegram

He said he had been informed that a telegram purportedly sent to him by Bridges was being photographed in a Fifth avenue studio for the Republicans.

Harry Smith, operator of the studio, said he had received no order for a photostat "from the Republicans or anyone else."

Brownell, when asked to comment on Hillman's assertions, said in reference to such a telegram:

"If we have anything, we will give it to you (reporters) ourselves, not through Mr. Hillman."

Brownell declared that Bridges "Of course has been active in the PAC along with other Communists and Communist-tainted persons. He was strong enough to veto a Western director of the PAC and force in his own henchman."

Asked if Bridges or his union had contributed to the PAC, Brownell said the question should be directed to Bridges, then added: "Mr. Hillman seems to know something about it."

Refers To Communists

The Republican national chairman said Bridges was to have been deported as a Communist before the Presidential campaign but that certain deportations had been halted and reentry of Communists had been permitted.

Commenting on Dewey's speech in Boston last night, Hillman said "Governor Dewey's utterances charging me with using Communist support to capture the American Labor party in New York State and then seeking to capture the Democratic party, is a piece of barefaced political hypocrisy."

GOV. BRICKER REPORTS ENCOURAGING TREND

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, Republican vice presidential nominee, said today he found "a very encouraging" trend to the Republican ticket on his recent cross country swing.

Asked at a press conference at headquarters of the Republican National committee whether he would make any prediction on the number of electoral votes he expected the Republicans to get in next Tuesday's election, Gov. Bricker said, "I haven't counted them up. There will be enough."

"I came back from my Western swing encouraged that the Republican states which we have now will stay Republican and we will pick up some of the border states," Bricker said.

Discussing the border states, he said "West Virginia is coming across. Kentucky and Missouri are already Republican and will remain in Republican ranks."

He said that Ohio would go Republican and that he had been assured that Pennsylvania and New York would do likewise.

Man Denies Supplying Information To Nazis

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—Simon Emil Koedel, 62, of Huntington, W. Va., indicted a week ago with his foster daughter, Marie, pleaded innocent today to Federal charges concerning six overt acts of supplying information to Germany on ship movements and lend-lease shipments.

Arraigned before Federal Judge Robert A. Inch, Koedel was held in $25,000 bail for trial November 13.

Marie Koedel, 26, pleaded innocent to the indictment last week and was taken to the Federal prison for women to await trial on that date.

Koedel was arrested in Huntington, where he waived a removal hearing and was brought to New York. The indictment against the Koedels charges the acts were committed between October, 1939, and October, 1941.

60,000 SOLDIERS SAVED BY MEDICAL ADVANCES

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—Sixty thousand American soldiers are alive who would have died since Pearl Harbor of they had been wounded in World War One.

An additional 9,000, who would have died, but who would have been armless, legless or otherwise maimed wrecks, are whole men, walking, talking and leading their normal lives.

These reports of the advances of war medicine were given today by Major General Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the Army, in a report to the association of military surgeons of the United States.

Churchmen Ask Delay In Post-War Arm. Plan

New York, Nov. 2 (AP)—The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America asked today that Congressional action on post-war conscription be deferred until after the war in the interests of establishing "a permanent system of general security."

A statement, approved by the council's executive committee representing 25 national denominations with 26,000,000 members, said that the council was not "pronouncing judgment for or against conscription, but we are pointing out that for the United States to change now its historic policy might be so interpreted as to prejudice the post-war settlement."

Wallace Calls Mrs. Luce Sharp-TonguedGirl of 40

Says29-Year-OldOpponentCan Beat Her at Debate or Tennis

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov.2 (AP). —Terming Representative Clare Boothe Luce "a sharp-tongued glamour girl of forty" and her Democratic opponent, Miss Margaret Connors, a "solidly built Irish girl of twenty-nine," Vice-President Henry A. Wallace brought the national Administration into the 4th District Congressional battle here tonight.

Speaking at a rally on the Old Mill Green, the Vice-President, who earlier in the day had toured Fairfield County in the interests of Miss Connors, said: "This Congressional race is between a sharptongued glamour girl of forty and a solidly built, solidly educated Irish girl of twenty-nine. Both girls play tennis, but if there were to be a match between them I would advise those of you who want to bet to lay your money on Maggie. If there were to be a debate between them, I would back Maggie. Maggie is Irish, and no Clara Brokaw Luce can beat the fighting Irish."

Mr. Wallace described Mrs. Luce as "this glamour woman of Broadway and Sunday magazine and wise-cracking fame who sometimes when running around the country without a mental protector puts her dainty foot in her pretty mouth."

DEMOCRATIC HEADS SAY WALSH INCIDENT OVER

BOSTON, Nov. 2 — (AP) Massachusetts Democratic leaders tonight expressed satisfaction that the "Walsh situation had apparently been settled" when the State's senior senator accepted an invitation to join President Roosevelt when he comes here for his Fenway Park speech Saturday.

Senator Walsh, who had retorted sharply on Monday after Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Truman referred to him as "an isolationist," today declared:

"President Roosevelt telephoned and invited me to join him when he speaks in Boston Saturday. I have accepted the invitation."

Until this announcement by Walsh, chairman of the Senate committee on naval affairs, there had been some doubt in political circles as to whether the Senator would appear with the President for Saturday night's speech at Fenway Park.

GOV. BRICKER RAPS NEW DEAL RECORD

By E. E. EASTERLY

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 2—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker asserted tonight that President Roosevelt's expression of belief in free enterprise was contradicted by the New Deal record and the attitude of its advisers.

The Republican candidate, invading the populous New Jersey-New York vicinity in the windup of his campaign for the vice presidency, pegged a nationwide radio (CBS) address on this statement made by the President last Saturday in Chicago:

"I believe in free enterprise and always have."

The statement, Bricker said in a prepared speech released by his campaign staff, "was in the very shadow of a non-war business (Montgomery Ward) which he took over with armed troops. This was the situs of the Attorney General's Fascistic remark that 'no business in this country is immune from presidential order'."

Bricker, referring to Mr. Roosevelt's current radio broadcasts as a "preelection appeasement program," added:

"If Mr. Roosevelt believes in free enterprise, in exceptional rewards for business risks, he takes strange and devious ways of showing his belief."

The Ohio Governor described the system of government-owned war plants now in operation as "the nucleus of state socialism," and remarked:

"The big question is: When is Washington going to get out of business after the war? Mr. Roosevelt said nothing about that in Chicago."

Taking up another recent statement in which Mr. Roosevelt said he foresaw an expansion of peacetime productive capacity requiring "new facilities, new plants and new equipment," Bricker quoted the President as saying in 1932: "Our task now is not discovery or exploitation of natural resources, or necessarily producing more goods. It is the soberer, less dramatic business of administering resources and plants already in hand."

TRUMAN APPEALS FOR LABOR'S VOTE

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 2.—(AP) Winding up an 8,000-mile transcontinental tour with an appeal for labor's vote in disputed Pennsylvania, Senator Harry S. Truman declared tonight that Congress Republicans had fought "nearly all" of the Democrats' "liberal reforms" and "you are foolish, indeed, if you believe that the leopard can change his spots overnight."

The Democratic vice presidential candidate told a capacity crowd, estimated by Police Lt. Henry Piefer at 5,000, in Pittsburgh's Syria Mosque that the bankers, "the first people who went on WPA," have forgotten.

He said Republican opponents who formerly praised his work as chairman of the Senate Truman committee have, since the campaign, "called me almost as many names as they have the President." He called upon the voters to defeat Senator James J. Davis (R-Pa.) for re-election.

Former Republican Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who preceded Truman, told the crowd that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential candidate, "is not fitted to be President of the United States."

Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, a daughter-in-law of former President Theodore Roosevelt, said she was supporting the fourth term campaign because "I don't want my grandsons to fight in World War III."

NOV 3 1944

In a broadcast speech that followed his off-the-cuff remarks to a Democratic rally at which the speakers included Orson Welles, the actor, Truman declared that Congress Republicans had fought "nearly all" of the Democrats' "liberals reforms" and "you are foolish, indeed, if you believe that the leopard can change his spots overnight."

Rocket Engines Termed Basis for New Industries

Reported Able to Cover 260 Miles in Six Minutes

CINCINNATI, Nov. 2 (AP).—Rocket-engine power forms the basis of vast new post-war industries, a pioneer in the field said tonight, reporting that engines already developed could cover the 260 crow-flight miles between here and Pittsburgh in five or six minutes.

Speaking before Cincinnati members of the American Institute of Electric Engineers and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, G. Edward Pendray, assistant to the president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, declared however that other factors such as projectile or plane design and adequate control preclude realization of such service "for mail, express or other cargo" for at least ten years. He is secretary and a founder of the American Rocket Society.

40 MILLION CARS NEEDED AFTER WAR

ATLANTA, Nov. 2. — (AP) At least 40,000,000 Americans will want new automobiles after the war, Henry Ford, 2nd, told newsmen here today.

That is 10,000,000 more car owners than there were before the war. Ford, who assists his grandfather and the man for whom he is named in running the vast Ford industrial empire, discussed here with regional managers the Ford Motor company's $150,000,000 post-war expansion and reconversion program.

"The wartime increase in families, the amount of money earned during the war, and the number of youngsters who have come of age during the no-car era will account for many of the new millions who will own and drive their own automobiles," ford said.

And what will the post-war car be like?

The immediate post-war cars, Ford said, probably will resemble the 1942 models. There won't be any super-streamlined "tear drop" automobiles at the start. For one thing, the War Production board won't permit any functional changes.

Time to End Secret Deals, Dewey Says

NOV 3 1944

Hits FDR for Not Taking People into His Confidence on Foreign Policy.

ENROUTE WITH DEWEY, Nov. 2—(AP) Declaring President Roosevelt has "never yet taken the American people into his confidence on matters of foreign policy," Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said tonight:

"I think it is time to put an end to secret deals, both at home and abroad."

The Republican candidate for president, addressing armory crowds in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, renewed his assertion that the Democratic party was being taken over by Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee and by subversive elements.

He appealed directly for Democratic support at the polls next Tuesday, declaring:

"This is a contest between x x x those who believe in our system of government—Republicans and Democrats alike, and x x x those who have kidnaped the Democratic party in order to change our system of government."

Motoring the 18 miles from Wilkes-Barre, the New York Governor was alternately booed and cheered as he passed through mining towns along the way.

"It's good to be here tonight," Dewey told his Scranton audience, "but I've never seen 18 miles that were so long. We must have seen half of Pennsylvania in the dark."

Regardless of their attitude toward the nominee, the miners and their families turned out in large numbers to watch his motor procession of more than a score of cars. Reporters heard scattered cries of "Where'd you get the gas?" but the banter appeared good natured.

In a hotly-worded reply to President Roosevelt's self-acknowledged membership in the $1,000 club, Gov. Dewey declared he had learned the society offers something more than "special privilege."

Something, he said, that it "doesn't dare put in writing."

The Republican presidential nominee, denounced what he called the "very brazenness" of the "most corrupt offer ever made by any political party" and said:

"Mr. Roosevelt admitted last Tuesday that it was he himself who thought up the idea of the notorious One Thousand club. This is the organization which offers in writing 'special privilege' and a voice 'in the formulation of administration policies' together with a chance to visit with the President on Thursday afternoons — all for $1,000.

"I now have another letter, sent out by Mr. Roosevelt's 'special privilege' in government society. It was written on the stationery of the Democratic National committee to a select list in Kansas and tells us a little more about this $1,000 club. It ends up by saying 'membership in this group will be a badge of distinction forever. There are other advantages which I can explain to you when we meet. Instant action is necessary."

Without identifying the author of the letter, he went on to say:

"Mr. Roosevelt's club offers in writing to give 'special privilege' to a select group of men who can afford a thousand dollars for a campaign contribution. Then it offers something more — something it doesn't dare put in writing."

Declaring that "we can only guess what that is," Dewey said:

"Has this special privilege to do with war contracts? Or is it special concessions on income taxes? Or is Mr. Roosevelts' club peddling special influence with the War Labor board or the National Labor Relations board?"

"One thing I do know, however," he added. "We are not fighting a war for freedom in order to have a government of special privilege by a select few contributors or for the Communists."

Hits "Secret Deals"

The New York Governor, traveling through Pennsylvania in what some of his aides called a "mopping up" campaign for that state's 35 electoral votes, declared "it is time to bring an end to government by secret deals."

"We want no secret deals either for special influence in the government at home or in our foreign policy abroad."

Dewey, who earlier in the day had received a rousing reception during a quickly arranged visit to Baltimore, planned to motor from Wilkes-Barre to Scranton before boarding his special train again for an overnight ride to Albany.

Dewey was cheered along a torch-lit parade in Wilkes-Barre from the railroad station to Kingston armory. There he found a crowd estimated by State Police Commissioner C. M. Wilhelm at 15,000 overflowing the armory into an adjacent ball park, all noisy and flag-waving.

The New York Governor's mention of Sidney Hillman's name as among the "higher bidders" for the Democratic party brought loud boos.

Calling for an end of the New Deal "secrecy," both in domestic and foreign affairs, Dewey declared "it has been left to the Prime Minister of England to tell us what has happened" at Mr. Roosevelt's conferences with Premier Stalin and other Allied leaders.

It was the Republican presidential candidate's third sortie into Pennsylvania since his nomination, and followed a fourth term campaign trip to Philadelphia by President Roosevelt last Friday.

Says New Deal "Failed"

Dewey, declaring Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal regime had "failed miserably for eight peacetime years," told a cheering Baltimore theater audience this noon that the President, "in his desperate desire for 16 years in the White House, is straining every conceivable effort, including offering to sell our government for a thousand dollars to any man."

"The offer is being peddled in every state in the Union," he declared, "that for $1,000 you may have special privilege in our government. You may help to shape its policies and have tea on Thursday afternoons with the President."

But, as he said last night in a major broadcast from Boston, Dewey went on, "they are being taken for a ride."

"They won't get what they think they are going to get," he said, "because the higher bidders are Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder and the P.A.C. and the Communists.

"The deal is made and it is time that we decide that we here in America are going to go forward to preserve freedom and not accept any form of totalitarianism however much desperate men may be willing to use its methods to achieve perpetual power."

NOV 3 1944

Speaks in Theater

Dewey addressed an overflow audience in a Baltimore theater seating 3,000 after a five mile motor parade through downtown streets. Boos mingled with cheers along the route, but reporters got the impression that most of the derisive shouts were directed at Baltimore's former Mayor Howard W. Jackson, a Democrat, who has joined the Dewey ranks.

Later, during a brief stop at York, Pa., however, Dewey himself received as many boos as cheers when he appeared on his train platform.

From Baltimore, the New York Governor rode to Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, and then planned to return to Albany for a day of rest before his wind up rally in Madison Square Garden, New York city, Saturday night. Mrs. Dewey, who has accompanied her husband throughout his campaign, left the party at Baltimore and went to New York for a reception in honor of her and Mrs. John W. Bricker, wife of the G. O. P. vice presidential nominee.

Dewey told his Baltimore audience that unless a new administration is elected next Tuesday, which his campaign staff has come to refer to as "E-Day", there is danger that the program for setting up a world peace organization will be "wrecked upon the rock of one man's arbitrary will."

He appealed directly for Democratic support, declaring:

"This is not a contest between Democrats and Republicans. It is a contest between, on the one hand those who believe in our system of government—Republicans and Democrats alike — and on the other, those who have kidnapped the Democratic party in order to change our system of government.

"The only way for the real membership of the Democratic party to win in this election, the only way for the Democrats to recapture their party," he said, "is to join with the Republicans in defeating the New Deal, the Political Action committee and the Communists."

Gov. Edward Martin and former Lieut. Gov. Samuel Lewis boarded the Dewey campaign special at York for the swing thrugh Pennsylvania. It was in Philadelphia that the G. O. P. nominee opened his campaign on Sept. 7. Later he journeyed to Pittsburgh for his major labor speech.

Following are excerpts from Governor Dewey's speeches yesterday as reported by The Associated Press:

NOV 3 1944

Baltimore

We are all agreed on a few things in this campaign. The major thing that means most to all of us is that we shall speed victory on every fighting front. Now how do we do that? Do we continue with secret diplomacy? Do we continue with quarreling and bickering and chaos in Washington? Do we continue with Harry Hopkins, Madam Perkins, Harold Ickes and all the rest?

It seems to me that we can do better than that. Certainly, with an Administration which stops the quarreling and bickering, which brings unity to our people, and backs up our fighting command to the limit, we can and we will speed victory on every front.

And then we all want an international organization which will bring lasting peace to the world. Again, do we want one achieved by secret diplomacy or do we want one achieved out in the open by the representatives of the American people with all the nations of the world participating so that it will rest on the firm rock of everybody's support. I am sure we can better achieve the latter by an administration which is willing to and which knows how to work with the people's representatives in the Congress and the Senate of the United States.

We cannot work out the problems that lie ahead under a President who wars with Congress. We have made a good start toward the establishment of a world organization to prevent future wars. But much remains to be done. In the end it will be Congress that must approve the terms and scope of our participation in this world effort to maintain peace. In the working out of that program, there must be mutual confidence and team work between the President and Congress.

If we are not to run the grave danger of seeing this whole program wrecked upon the rocks of one man's arbitrary will, we must install next Jan. 20 an administration that wants to work with a Congress that knows how to work with Congress, and that deserves the confidence of the people and their elected representatives.

For many years every national election in this country has been primarily a contest between Democrats and Republicans. Much of the strength of our system of government has been owing to the existence of two major parties, evenly matched and equally equipped through leadership and traditions to provide the people with good government. Although they divided at election time on the political issues of the moment, they had in common one essential thing: Both Democrats and Republicans had an abiding faith in our system of representative government. The country was safe in the hands of either party.

Today that two-party system stands in danger. The Democratic party, weakened by twelve years of one-man rule, is being taken away from the Democrats. It is being captured by a coalition of subversive forces including New Dealers, members of the Political Action Committee and Communists.

In past elections when the Democrats won—the Republicans lost. And when Republicans won—Democrats lost. But it will not be so in this election. If the Republican party were to lose this election, the Democrats would irrevocably lose their party.

This is not a contest between Democrats and Republicans. It is a contest between on the one hand those who believe in our system of government—Republicans and Democrats alike—and on the other, those who have kidnaped the Democratic party in order to change our system of government. The only way for the real membership of the Democratic party to win in this election, the only way for the Democrats to recapture their party, is to join with the Republicans in defeating the New Deal, the Political Action Committee and the Communists.

Last Saturday night my opponent took out and dusted off all the broken promises of '32, '36 and '40 and then doubled them. He promised jobs for every American, but look at the record. The first seven years fifty-eight billions of money spent, more power than all previous Administrations put together, and 10,000,000 Americans still unemployed in 1940. We had to have a war to get jobs. We have 11,000,000 Americans coming home at the end of this war. We have 20,000,000 people working in war industry. The best this Administration ever did was in the spring of 1940 before war saved it, was 10,000,000 millions unemployed. I don't want to bring 11,000,000 heroes home to that kind of a country. And we don't need to.

My opponent last Saturday night suddenly discovered—it must have been a blinding revelation—he suddenly discovered that the working men and women of this country had been choked and surrounded and borne down by twenty-five different agencies that he himself has created. So he promised to restore free collective bargaining after the war. And that promise is no better than the promises we have had before.

So it seems to me that if all we are offered after this war is over is the same program which failed, and failed miserably for eight peacetime years before, it is time we followed a new and a good program, it is time for a change.

But my opponent, in his desperate desire for sixteen years in the White House, is straining every conceivable effort, including offering to sell our Government for a thousand dollars to any man. By letter after letter, letters which have now come to me from Arkansas, Tennessee and several other States from the Midwest, the offer is being peddled in every State in the Union, that for $1,000 you may have a special privilege in our Government. You may help to shape its policies and have tea on Thursday afternoon with the President.

But, as I said last night, they are being taken for a ride. They won't get what they think they are going to get, because the higher bidders are Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder and the PAC and the Communists. The deal is made and it is time that we decide that we here in America are going to go forward to preserve freedom and not accept any form of totalitarianism, however much desperate men may be willing to use its methods to achieve perpetual power.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 2 (AP)—Partial text of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's speech delivered at West Side Armory, Kingston, across the Susquehanna river from Wilkes-Barre, tonight:

Governor Martin and fellow-Americans:

You are not here to see one man, or any six men; you are not here to pay any tribute to anybody; you are here because you believe with me and with, I believe, the majority of the American people, that if we can clean the quarreling, bickering and chaos out of Washington we can speed victory and get our young men home sooner.

You are here because you believe with us that we can bring a lasting peace, because we will have harmony between the President and Congress restored once more. You are here because you believe with us that if we have a change of Administration we have to change it fast if we are going to have a hope for the future of this United States as the country we know, we love and we grew up in.

Promises Dusted Off

Last Saturday night my opponent dusted off a lot of broken and very stale promises that had been used three times before, and then he added a few new ones, and then he said, by inference, these weren't any good when they were made before, but I expect you to believe them now and give me 16 years in the White House. He promised jobs to everybody at the end of the war, but the record shows that after eight years of the New Deal and $58,000,000,000 spent, and more power than all previous administrations put together, we still had 10,000,000 Americans unemployed in 1940. That promise was no good, and, as I have stated before, it will still be no good, even though it is repeated again and again and again.

I made a speech in Philadelphia, our own State, on September 7, and from that speech my distinguished opponent apparently discovered that we needed new houses in the United States; that we needed new housing as we have never needed it before, so he found that I had said we need a 1,000,000 houses a year for 15 years. He promised that too. The fact of the matter is during all his Administration from the beginning to this moment, including all the houses built at your expense with Government money, we only had 38,000 units a year, while we needed a 1,000,000 new houses to get back up to the condition of housing in 1930. That new promise is no better than the rest of them, whether it is repeated again and again and again.

Promised Social Security

He promised to carry on Social Security, and to extend it. Well, the fact of the matter is that the old-age pension laws and unemployment insurance laws have been on our books now for nine long years, and there are still 20,000,000 Americans who are entitled to the benefits of those Social Security laws, and they are left out. They are left out because this Administration didn't have either the confidence or the political courage to put them in. So that promise too, is no good, however often it is repeated.

Now my opponent also discovered from listening to what his opposition has been saying that there were 25 different agencies hung around the necks of the working men and women in this country, so that nobody can find out what his rights are, and when he does find out they aren't there. It takes months, and sometimes years, to get an adjudication of a thing a man has a right to, with 25 different agencies giving different rulings. Government has taken over collective bargaining. In the light of that record my opponent promised to stop that. I leave it to you whether that promise is any good either.

Now, while the mightiest war in history is being fought to victory on every front, the nation is engaged in a great decision over whether it shall continue down the New Deal road to totalitarianism or go upward on the road to freedom at home. With these great problems before us it has been a tragic circumstance to find the leadership in our national Government viewing with cynical satisfaction the most corrupt offer ever made by any pjolitical party. Yes, the very brazennes of the One Thousand Club is just more evidence of the corrupting influence of too many years in power.

Now to get to this sordid story. My opponent admitted last Tuesday that it was he himself who thought up the idea of the notorious 1,000 Club. This is the organization which offers—yes, offers it, mind you—special privileges and a voice in the formulation of Administration policies, together with a chance to visit the President on Thursday afternoons, all for $1,000.

Has Another Letter

Well, I have now got another letter on that subject. This one was sent out by Mr. Roosevelt's special privileges in Government society. It was written on the stationery of the Democratic National Committee to a select list in Kansas, and it tells us a little more about this $1,000 Club. It ends up by saying—and I quote it—membership in this club will be a badge of distinction forever; and there are other advantages which I can explain to you when we meet.

Mr. Roosevelt's club offers the rifiht to give special privileges to a select group of men who can afford a thousand dollars for a campaign contribution. Then it offers something more which it doesn't dare put in writing. We can only guess what this is. Has this special privilege to do with war contracts, or is it special consideration on income tax, or is Mr. Roosevelt's club offering special influence with the War Labor Board or the National Labor Relations Board to members who can afford a thousand dollars? One thing I do know. We are not fighting a war for freedom in order to have a Government of special privilege by either groups of special privilege or by Communists. It is time to bring an end to government by secret dealings. We want no more secret deals either for special interests in government at home, or in our foerign policy abroad. My opponent has never yet taken the people of this country into his confidence on vital matters of foreign policy. He has never told us where we have been, or where we are going.

Secret Conference With Stalin

He has not told us the nature of his secret conference with Marshal Stalin. We have been left to learn from the Prime Minister of England how much happens between him and the head of our Government. The small nations of Europe are being disposed of without the American people being told about what is happening to them. We in the United States want a good, sound, and honest, and a lasting peace. We want an organization for peace that will achieve it, and we do not want an alliance of a few strong and powerful nations to rule the small and the weak nations in it. The time has come to put an end to secret treaties, or to secret deals at the expense of the American people everywhere in the world. The New Deal we find—and it is all in the record now—we find that it is offering itself for sale to a few men who can contribute $1,000, but as I said last night they are being taken to the cleaners.

"They Won't Get It"

They won't get it. There are higher bidders in the market. The higher bidders are Sidney Hillman's Political Action Committee, and Earl Browder's Communist party. They have been in cynical alliance with this Administration, and the whole conduct of this campaign has in effect been placed in their hands. What do they expect in return? Why are they so violent for the fourth term? You know what Communism is. Communism means that the government owns your home, the place you work in; it tells you where you can work and when and for what wages, and it tells you what you may do from the beginning of your life to the end, and if you disagree you are quietly liquidated, either by force or by economic strangulation.

Enemy Of Religion

Moreover, Communism is specifically and publicly committed as an enemy of religion, and the head of the Communists in the United States writes publicly that we consider there is no difference between good and bad religions, they are all bad for the masses, and we propose to educate the people away from them.

Those are the people who are now fighting for the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and he repudiates them with very soft words, indeed.

This election is going to decide every major questions about our future, and one thing we do know, the Democratic party has been crushed by one man rule for 12 long years, until it is easily subject to capture, until as a result of this election its machinery will successfully be taken over by that cynical alliance of the PAC and Communism. The Democratic party is in such weakened condition that we must consider very strongly the prospect of this country slipping into tired hands, into the hands of those who will make it over to suit their own devices. I can give you one assurance which will be very, very good for a long time to come; no Communism, no Fascism, no totalitarian group is trying to take over the Republican party, and they never will. Our party brought 26 fresh, competent liberal progressive administrations to this country, governing two-thirds of the people of the United States. It is now prepared to give that same kind of government to the country which your good Governor, Ed Martin, gives to the State of Pennsylvania, and this is not a party contest.

Says It's Contest

For many years every national election in this country hae been primarily a contest between Democrats and Republicans. Much of the strength of our system of government has been owing to the existance of two major parties, evenly matched and equally equipped in leadership to provide the people with good government although they are divided at election time on political issues, they both have one essential thing in common.

Both Democrats and Republicans had an abiding faith in our system of representative government. The country was safe in the hands of either party. Today that two-party system stands in danger. The Democratic party, weakened by 12 years of one-man rule, is being taken away from the Democrats. It has been captured by the coalition I have described.

Past Elections Compared

In past elections, when the Democrats won the Republicans lost, and when the Republicans won the Democrats lost; but it won't be so in this election. If the Republican party was to lose this election, the Democrats also will irrevocably lose their party. This is not a contest between Democrats and Republicans; it is a contest on the one hand between those who believe in our system of government, Republicans and Democrats alike, and on the other hand those who have kidnapped the Democratic party in order to chang eour system of government. . . .

U. S. Post-War Air Outline Is Awaited

NOV 3 1944

Chicago, Nov. 2 (AP)—Interest in the International Civil Aviation Conference centered today on an exposition of the main issues to be met in deciding on post-war use of the skies.

Thus far only British Empire countries have defined their aims. They want an international authority with economic controls over global air service equivalent to that exercised by the Civil Aeronautics Board over domestic airlines in this country.

The United States view—generally described as favoring a limited authority having control over rates and economic practices, but not over routes and schedules—has been known informally for some time. There has been no official statement.

Formal Outline Promised

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chairman of the American delegation, promised yesterday that one would be made, along with formal outlines by the United Kingdom, Canada, France and probably others.

The conference, bringing together 51 nations for three weeks of deliberation, opened formally yesterday with a message from President Roosevelt reminding delegates that they were "engaged in a great attempt to build enduring institutions of peace."

Declaring that air commerce "has reached maturity and is a pressing necessity," Roosevelt said:

"I do not believe that the world of today can afford to wait several years for its air communications. There is no reason why it should

"Even Provisional Basis"

"It would be a reflection on the common sense of nations if they were not able to make arrangements, at least on a provisional basis, making possible the opening of the much-needed air routes. I hope when your conference adjourns that these arrangements will have been made. Then all that will be needed will be to start using the air as a great peaceful medium instead of a battle area."

The President held out an implied promise that American-built air transports, now flying military routes, would be available "in numbers sufficient for a beginning" when either Germany or Japan falls, and "in quantity" when the second enemy is beaten.

"I hope you will not dally with the thought of creating great blocks of closed air, thereby tracing in the sky the conditions of possible future wars," he said. "I know you will see to it that the air which God gave to everyone shall not become the means of domination over anyone."

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—Here are the highlights of the speech before the International Civil Aviation Conference in which Adolf A. Berle Jr. outlined the United States' position with respect to post-war world air ransport:

The use of the air has this in common with the use of the sea: it is a highway given by nature to all men. It differs in this from the sea: that it is subject to the sovereignty of the nations over which it moves. Nations ought therefore to arrange among themselves for its use in that manner which will be of the greatest benefit to all humanity, wherever situated.

The United States believes in and asserts the rule that each country has a right to maintain sovereignty of the air which is over its lands and its territorial waters. There can be no question of alienating, or qualifying, this sovereignty.

Consistent with sovereignty, nations ought to subscribe to those rules of friendly intercourse which shall operate between friendly states in time of peace to the end that air navigation shall be encouraged and that communication and commerce may be fostered between all peaceful states. * * *

Reciprocal Permission

It is the view of my Government that, in the matter of passage through the air, we are in a stage in which there should be developed, established and settled customs of friendly permission as between friendly nations.

Indeed, failure to establish such customs would burden many countries and would actually jeopardize the situation of most of the smaller nations of the world, especially those without seacoasts. For, if the custom of friendly nations did not permit friendly communication and commerce and intercourse through the air, these countries could at any time, or at all times, be subjected, even in peace, to an air blockade.

Clearly this privilege of friendly passage accorded by nations can only be availed of, or expected by, nations which themselves are prepared to accord like privileges and permissions.

No greater tragedy could befall the world than to repeat in the air the grim and bloody history which tormented the world some centuries ago when the denial of equal opportunity for intercourse made the sea a battleground instead of a highway. * * *

Perhaps no greater misfortune could befall the world than to set up a scheme of things by which new, shadowy barriers are traced in the air, marking out for the future huge invisible frontiers, certain to become high future battle lines.

U. S. Against Discrimination

The United States, accordingly, will propose that there shall be an exchange of the needed privileges of intercourse between all friendly nations and, in such exchanges, no exclusion or discrimination against others.

The right of communication by air with friendly countries, in the view of this Government, is not a right to wander at will throughout the world. In this respect traffic by air differs materially from traffic by sea, where commerce need have no direct connection with the country from which the ship may come. In air commerce there appears at present to be little place for tramp trade.

In point of fact, the great air routes are not as yet sources of profit to the carriers, or indeed to nations fostering them, but rather have been developed at large expense by subsidies and other assistance.

It would seem neither equitable nor just that routes so developed should be claimed by other countries, not for the purpose of maintaining their own communications, but merely for the purpose of speculating in the possible profits of a commerce worked up by others among themselves. In this respect the air routes of the world are more like railroad lines than like free shipping. * * *

Would Put First Things First

These problems may well be left for later conferences. It is probably best not to try to see too far into the unknowable future. The business we have in hand now is the business of establishing the means by which communications can be established between each country and another, by reasonably direct economic routes, with reasonably convenient landing points connecting the chief basins of traffic.

So far as this country is concerned, the United States has made public the routes which it will endeavor to obtain by the friendly exchange of permissions of transit and landing between it and the countries concerned. It is prepared to discuss like permissions with other countries seeking intercourse with the United States, and it hopes that similar agreements may be worked out between the other countries here present to take care of their own needs for communication.

In respect of establishment of routes which do not affect the United States, this Government disclaims any desire to intervene; and it does not believe that countries not interested in the routes sought by the United States will wish to intervene.

Form Sought for Tentative Basis

Rather, by common counsel, we should work out the general form of the friendly permissions here to be exchanged on a provisional basis and then avail ourselves of the opportunity here presented to bring together all the countries interested in any route which may be proposed at this time for the purpose of reaching now the relevant arrangements.

As the United States conceives it, this will be the work of the Committee on Provisional Routes. If its work is well done, I hope that we shall be able at the close of the conference to report a great number of agreements between the interested countries, which, taken together, will thus establish a provisional route pattern capable of serving the immediate needs of the world and ready to be put in effect where and when the military interruptions of war shall have ceased.

Thus handled, no existing route or rights will be prejudiced or need come into discussion. The desire of any nation to obtain routes in the future which it may not at present be able to use will not be foreclosed. The pressing necessities of the situation will be taken care of and the customs and practices will have ample room in which to grow as experience makes us wiser.

There is, in the view of the United States, a basis for attempting now, in addition to the route agreements proposed, an air navigation agreement which will modernize and make effective the rules of aerial navigation.

Differences on Powers Cited

Intimately connected with the problem of routes and that of rules of the air is the problem of international organization. * * * The preparatory conversations for this conference have revealed two schools of thought on this subject, both of which are entitled to be examined with respect.

All agree that an effective form of world organization for air purposes is necessary. This does not exclude regional organizations having primary interest in the problems of their particular areas. But no regional organization or group of regional organizations can effectively deal with the new problems resulting from interoceanic and intercontinental flying.

But while there is general agreement on the need of organization, there is difference as to the extent of powers to be accorded a world authority or commission such as has been forecast.

It is generally agreed that, in the purely technical field, a considerable measure of power can be exercised by, and indeed must be granted to, a world body. In these matters, there are few international controversies which are not susceptible of ready solution through the counsel of experts.

Some brave spirits have proposed that like powers be granted to an international body in the economic and commercial fields as well. One cannot but respect the boldness of this conception and the brilliance and sincerity with which it has been urged.

But—and this, to the Government of the United States, is the cardinal difficulty—there has not as yet been seriously proposed, let alone generally accepted, any set of rules or principles of law by which these powers would be guided. Thus it is proposed that an international body should allocate routes and divide traffic; but a great silence prevails when it is asked on what basis shall routes be allocated or traffic divided; or even, what is "equitable" in these matters.

Vague Rules Called Dangerous

Under these circumstances, imprecise formulae mean in reality arbitrary power, or petty deals to exclude competitors where one can, and divide traffic and profits where one must.

For this reason, the opposite school of thought, which is shared by the United States, believes that international organization at this time in economic and political fields must be primarily consultative, fact-gathering, and fact-finding, with power to bring together the interested States when friction develops; with power to suggest to the countries possible measures as problems existing and unforeseen come up; and designed to set up a system of periodic conferences which may lay out and agree upon and continuously develop the necessary rules as experience and prudence shall indicate their possibility and gathering custom shall make them feasible.

After a reasonable period of experience and the development of ever-growing areas of agreement through processes of consultation and mutual agreement, we may then re-examine the possibilities of entrusting such an organization with such added powers as experience may have shown wise and as prudence and well-being may dictate.

No one in the English-speaking world is unfamiliar with the real and poignant hopes which lie behind the position of our friends from New Zealand and from Canada, who have been most active in propounding the doctrine of an organization with power as a solution.

Sees "Splendid Dream" Nearer

I would not willingly close any door to the ultimate realization of that splendid dream; and I believe that, painfully, and point by point, we are perhaps beginning to approach an era in which it may be realized. But it would be neither statesmanlike nor practical to pretend that the situation has presently arrived.

For that reason the United States will support an international organization in the realm of air commerce having power in technical matters and having consultative functions in economic matters and the political questions which may be directly connected with them under a plan by which continuing and collected experience, widening custom and the growing maturity of its counsel may establish such added base as circumstances may warrant for the future consideration of enlarging the functions of the consultative group.

Certain specific matters remain to be dealt with. It is the view of the United States that each country should, so far as possible, come to control and direct its own internal air lines.

For this reason this country reserves, and believes that every country will insist on the right to reserve to itself, the internal traffic known as cabotage, so that, if it chooses, traffic between points within its borders may be carried by its own national lines.

Clearly, the right of reserved cabotage can be exercised by one country only; for if a number of countries were to combine to pool their cabotage as between each other, the result would be merely to exclude nations not parties to the pool, and it is the firm conviction of this Government that discriminatory or exclusive agreements are raw material for future conflict.

U. S. Willing to Supply Planes

Partly as a result of the turn which has been taken by war production, the United States has, at the moment, substantially the only supply of transport planes and of immediate productive facilities to manufacture the newer types of such planes. * * * Far from using this temporary position of monopoly as a means of securing permanent advantage, we feel that it is against the interests of the world to try to use this as a means of preventing others from flying.

Consequently, this Government is prepared to make available, on nondiscriminatory terms, civil air transport planes when they can be released from military work, to those countries which recognize, as do we, the right of friendly intercourse and grant permission for friendly intercourse to others.

No country can expect at present to have wide-flung aviation lines without subsidies, as matters now stand; but while a subsidy is legitimate and useful to keep needed planes in the air, it is certainly noxious if designed to knock the planes of others out of the air.

For this reason the United States is prepared to discuss ways and means by which minimum rates can be agreed upon and by which the subsidies which are involved in all transport trade shall be used for the purpose of legitimate air communication, but not for the purpose of assisting rate wars or uneconomic competition.

Oppressing none, considering all, establishing law where we can, and taking common counsel where the law has yet to emerge through custom and experience; liberating the wings whose line goes out to the ends of the earth, we shall succeed if our decisions are informed by that honor, and vision, and common kindness, which, now and always, are the great content of wisdom.

BY C. YATES MC DANIEL

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, FRIDAY, NOV 3-(AP)-THE "END OF THE LEYTE-SAMAR CAMPAIGN IS IN SIGHT," GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED TODAY.

AMERICAN FORCES COMPLETED A JUNCTURE AT CARIGARA, KEY TOWN ON THE NORTHWEST COAST OF LEYTE, AND ANOTHER COLUMN THRUST ACROSS THIS CENTRAL PHILIPPINES ISLAND IN THE SOUTH TO TIGHTEN A GIGANTIC CLAMP ON ORMOC--LAST JAPANESE ESCAPE PORT.

THE JAPANESE APPEARED TO BE ATTEMPTING HASTY AND BOMB-BLASTED WITHDRAWL FROM ORMOC.

ESTIMATED NIPPONESE BATTLE CASUALTIES EXCEEDED 30,000, INCLUDING 12,000 COUNTED DEAD ON LEYTE.

THE ENEMY'S COASTAL FLIGHT WAS SO PRECIPITATE THAT FRED HAMPSON, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WITH THE 24TH, SAID ADVANCE PATROLS ALREADY HAD PENETRATED CAPOOCAN, THREE AND ONE-HALF MILES WEST OF CARIGARA, AND FOUND IT UNOCCUPIED. THE ONLY ESCAPE ROAD TO ORMOC TURNS SOUTH FROM THE COAST AT PINAMOPOAN, FOUR MILES BEYOND CAPOOCAN.

ON THE SOUTHERN END OF THE ALLIED SWEEP, THE 7TH DIVISION WAS PURSUING "DISORGANIZED ENEMY PARTIES" INTO THEMOUNTAINS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

YANK INFANTRYMEN REACHED BAYBAY ON THE WEST COAST, THUS COMPLETING THE SOUTHERN ARM OF THE GIANT SQUEEZE AGAINST THEJAPANESE WHO MAY STAGE THEIR FINAL DITCH FIGHT AT ORMOC.

JAPANESE AIR ACTIVITY, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, WAS DIRECTED "PRINCIPALLY AGAINST OUR SHIPPING, WHICH SUSTAINED SOME DAMAGE." AMERICAN FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN 27 ENEMY PLANES IN NUMEROUS INTERCEPTIONS.

THEJAPANESE ALONG CARIGARA BAY FOUGHT SAVAGELY TO HOLD OPEN THEIR ESCAPE HIGHWAY, HURLING MORTAR, ARTILLERY AND LIGHT ARMS FIRE AT THE CONVERGING YANKS.

UNITS OF THE DISMOUNTED FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION, ADVANCING FROM THE EAST, CLASHED SHARPLY WITH ENEMY OUTPOSTS AT THE SUBURBS OF THE TOWN OF PROBABLY 20,000 OR MORE POPULATION. FORWARD ELEMENTS THAT HAD PENETRATED THE TOWN EARLIER WITHDREW AFTER DETERMINING THE ENEMY'S STRENGTH.

DESPITE STUBBORN REARGUARD RESISTANCE AND COUNTERATTACKS, THE DOUGHBOYS OF THE 24TH DIVISION CLOSED IN FROM THE SOUTH AND WERE LAST REPORTED NEAR THE TOWN'S PERIMETER DEFENSES.

CAPTURE OF CARIGARA WILL ROUT THE LAST NIPPONESE CONCENTRATION IN THE EASTERN HALF OF LEYTE AND GIVE THE YANKS CONTROL OF THE ENEMY'S COASTAL ESCAPE ROUTE WEST TO PINAMOPOAN AND THENCE SOUTH TO ORMOC BAY. IT IS FROM ORMOC BAY, ON LEYTE'S WESTERN SHORES, THAT JAPANESE REINFORCEMENTS HAVE BEEN SENT TO CARIGARA.

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED THURSDAY THAT THE ENEMY CONTINUED TO REINFORCE THE ORMOC AREA BY BARGE. THE ENEMY TROOPS WERE BEING BROUGHT IN FROM CEBU ISLAND, SOME 25 MILES WEST ACROSS THE CAMOTE SEA. THE ENEMY TRAFFIC WAS SUBJECTED TO CONSTANT ATTACK BY LEYTE-BASED FIGHTER PLANES AND DARING PT BOATS.

ELSEWHERE ON LEYTE AMERICAN PATROLS FANNED OUT EXTENSIVELY. MINOR CONTACTS WITH FLEEING ENEMY GROUPS WERE REPORTED FROM THE CENTRAL AREA. THE PENETRATION WESTWARD OVER MOUNTAIN TRAILS TOWARD ORMOC BAY CONTINUED.

INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE ENEMY'S FINAL STAND ON LEYTE MIGHT BE IN THE ORMOC AREA. REMNANTS THAT ESCAPED ANNIHILATION IN THE EAST-CENTRAL AND SOUTHEAST SECTORS OF THE ISLAND WERE HEADING TOWARD ORMOC, WHERE THEY WOULD BE REINFORCED BY STRENGTH FERRIED OVER FROM CEBU.

JAPANESE BASES TO THE SOUTH--ON MINDANAO, BORNEO, CELEBES, THE MOLUCCAS AND OTHER ISLANDS--MEANWHILE WERE HAMMERED STEADILY BY ALLIED WARPLANES TO KEEP THEM NEUTRALIZED. IN A LOW LEVEL STRIKE OVER THE SANGAKAN AIRDROME ON BORNEO 12 ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND, A 10,000-TANKER SUNK AND FOUR OTHER SHIPS, INCLUDING TWO TANKERS, DAMAGED.

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR,NOV.2-(AP)-A JAPANESE PT BOAT WAS SUNK WHILE ATTEMPTING TO ATTACK PELELIU BEACH IN THE PALAU ISLANDS WHILE CARGO WAS BEING UNLOADED OCT.26, ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE ENEMY CRAFT APPARENTLY LAUNCHED A TORPEDO AT THE CARGO VESSEL BUT FAILED TO INFLICT ANY DAMAGE.

THE PT BOAT'S MACHINEGUN FIRE CAUSED SOME AMERICAN PERSONNEL CASUALTIES.

THE ENEMY VESSEL WAS SUNK AS IT TRIED TO ESCAPE NORTHWARD.

THE TOKYO RADIO REPORTED WEDNESDAY THAT A "SPECIAL TORPEDO ASSAULT UNIT" LAUNCHED A CLOSE-RANGE ATTACK AGAINST AN AMERICAN CONVOY EAST OF PELELIU ON NOV. 1 (OCT. 31 U.S. TIME) AND "SANK FOUR ENEMY TRANSPORTS AND HEAVILY DAMAGED TWO OTHERS."

IT ADDED THAT ASSAULT TROOPS, IN A COORDINATED OPERATION, "SUCCEEDED IN EFFECTING A LANDING ON THE NORTHERN COAST" OF PELELIU, WHICH IS IN THE PALAU GROUP OF THE WESTERN CAROLINES.

THERE HAS BEEN NO AMERICAN CONFIRMATION OF THESE ENEMY CLAIMS.

A RAID BY MARINE FIGHTER PLANES ON SHIPPING, INSTALLATIONS AND OIL STORAGE AREAS ON KOROR ISLAND, NORTH OF PELELIU, ON OCT. 30 WAS REPORTED IN TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE. THE RAIDERS ALSO HIT TRUCKS AND BARGES ON NEARBY BABELTHUAP ISLAND.

OTHER AMERICAN PLANES TOOK THE RAIDING TRAIL THE SAME DAY INTO THE MARIANAS, VOLCANOS AND MARSHALLS AND SMACKED YAP ISLAND, IN THE CAROLINES NORTHEAST OF PALAU.

WORKING WITH GUERRILLAS SOUTH OF TACLOBAN, MISS FERNANDEZ ROUNDED UP NATIVE MEN TO RESIST THE JAPANESE. THESE MEN, SHE SAID, HAD THREE AMERICAN RIFLES. THE REST THEY MADE THEMSELVES OUT OF GAS PIPE. THEY LOADED THEM WITH GUNPOWER AND OLD NAILS.

THEY ALSO MADE GRENADES, AND SOMETIMES THEY GOT HOLD OF JAPANESE WEAPONS.

U.S. INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS SAID THE JAPANESE OFFERED 10,000 PESOS FOR HER HEAD. SHE WAS WOUNDED ONCE. THERE IS A BULLET SCAR ON HER RIGHT FOREARM.

(MANY FILIPINOS ARE EXPERT AT MAKING EFFECTIVE GUNS OUT OF GAS PIPE. THE WEAPONS ARE AS DEADLY AS ANY FIRST RATE SHOTGUN. THE HOMEMADE GUNS ARE CALLED "LATONGS" IN THE VISAYAN DIALECT OF THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES AND "PALTIKS" IN THE TAGALOG DIALECT OF THE MANILA AREA.

(IN SOME OF THE TOUGHER AREAS OF THE MANILA DISTRICT RESIDENCES MUST BE GUARDED NOT BECAUSE HOUSEBREAKERS WANT MONEY OR JEWELS BUT BECAUSE THEY WILL STRIP A HOUSE OF GASPIPE FOR THE ILLICIT SHOTGUN INDUSTRY.)

SENT INTO THE PHILIPPINES BY SUBMARINES 20 DAYS BEFORE THE INVASION OF LEYTE TO COORDINATE GUERRILLA ACTIVITIES, JOHNSON SAID THE "HOSPITALITY OF THE GUERRILLAS WAS ALMOST OVERWHELMING." HE CONTINUED:

"FOR A WHILE IT WAS ONE FEAST AFTER ANOTHER. WE ATE SO MUCH AND SO OFTEN WE WERE EMBARRASSED WHEN WE COULDN'T EAT ANY MORE.

"ONCE THEY HAD A DANCE IN OUR HONOR. A THREE-PIECE STRINGED ORCHESTRA PLAYED WHILE WE DANCED BAREFOOT ON A SPLIT BAMBOO FLOOR."

HIS CLOSEST CALL, JOHNSON SAID, CAME WHEN HE WAS SAILING FROM SAMAR TO SOUTHERN LEYTE AT NIGHT AND WAS WITHIN 200 YARDS OF A JAPANESE MOTOR LAUNCH.

LEYTE,PHILIPPINE ISLANDS,OCT.20-(AP)-(DELAYED)-AD LINDSEY OF KANSAS IS COACHING AGAIN -- AND THE GAME THIS TIME IS FOR KEEPS, WITH NO REFEREES AND NO RULES.

THE FORMER K.U. FOOTBALL COACH IS LT.COL.ADRIAN H.LINDSEY, OF THE 96TH DIVISION.

"IT'S JUST LIKE FOOTBALL," HE ACKNOWLEDGED. "YOU HAVE TO FIGURE WHAT THE OPPOSITION IS CAPABLE OF DOING. IF YOU GUESS OR DEDUCE RIGHT YOU'RE A HERO. IF YOU'RE WRONG, YOU BETTER START LOOKING FOR ANOTHER JOB."

AND, LIKE FOOTBALL, IT'S MORE THAN GUESSWORK, HE SAID. EVERY TIP OFF FROM EVERY SOURCE IS STUDIED. PREPARATIONS ARE DETAILED AND ARDUOUS, FOR ONCE THE GAME IS UNDER WAY IT'S TOO LATE FOR THE COACH TO DO MUCH ABOUT IT.

THERE WERE PLENTY OF MORTARS BURSTING ON LEYTE TODAY AS ASSAULT TROOPS POURED ASHORE, BUT LINDSEY, WITH YEARS OF COACHING EXPERIENCE TO DRAW FROM, MANAGED TO LOOK COMPLETELY UNWORRIED. WAR, TOO, IS FAMILIAR TO HIM; HE WAS EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF A FIELD ARTILLERY BATTERY OF THE 89TH DIVISION IN THE FIRST WAR, AND WEARS BATTLE STARS FOR ST.MIHIEL AND THE MEUSE-ARGONNE OFFENSIVE.

LINDSEY'S NAME IS FAMILIAR TO ALL MIDWESTERN SPORTS FANS -- HE COACHED FOOTBALL AT THE UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA FROM 1927 TO 1931, AND WAS COACH AT HIS ALMA MATER, THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS, FROM 1932 TO 1939. BEFORE THAT HE HAD DIRECTED ATHLETICS AT BETHANY COLLEGE, LINDSBORG,KAS., FOR FIVE YEARS. HE HAS NO DESIRE TO RETURN TO COACHING AFTER THE WAR, HE SAID. HE'LL GO BACK TO HIS JOB AS KANSAS STATE AGENT FOR AN INSURANCE COMPANY.

"COACHING IS NOT FOR OLDER MEN," HE EXPLAINED. "YOU CAN SEE THEM EVERYWHERE, RUNNING INTO TOUGH BREAKS AND LOOKING FOR NEW JOBS, ONLY TO WIND UP IN SMALLER AND SMALLER SCHOOLS."

INSURANCE, HE ADDED, IS DEFINITELY THE MORE ABUNDANT LIFE.

EDITORS: ASAHEL BUSH, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT, KILLED IN A JAPANESE BOMB OCT.25, SLOGGED THROUGH MUDDY BATTLEFIELDS AND RODE SMALL LANDING CRAFT ON DANGEROUS MISSIONS IN ORDER TO KNOW FIRST HAND WHAT THE ORDINARY SOLDIER--THE JOE BLO--WAS DOING AND THINKING. THERE FOLLOWS ONE OF THE LAST STORIES HE WROTE, IN LEYTE GULF. THE DATE WAS NOT GIVEN.

--DASH--

BY ASAHEL BUSH NOV 3 1944

IN LEYTE GULF--(AP)--AS PEACEFULLY AS IT DEPARTED LAST NIGHT, DAYLIGHT RETURNED TODAY TO THIS SECLUDED INLET ON LEYTE'S NORTH COAST, BUT WITHIN TWO HOURS A PAIR OF JAPANESE ZEROS CAME OVER AND WITH THEM BROUGHT EXCITEMENT, DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.

IT WAS 7:45 A.M., AND I WAS EATING HOT CAKES AND BULLY BEEF ON DECK WITH SEAMAN JOHN GROH OF (1643 STUART) YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, WHEN THE ZEROS APPEARED. THEY CAME WITHOUT WARNING AND AT A TIME WHEN A THIRD OF THE CREW WAS BELOW DECKS. THEY CAME IN AT US STRAFING.

BUT WE WERE LUCKY. WE WERE LYING CLOSE IN UNDER A HILL AND THE JAPANESE COULD GET IN ONLY A FEW BURSTS BEFORE THEY PASSED US. ONLY THE RUNNING LIGHT ON OUR PORT YARDARM WAS CLIPPED.

TROUBLE WAS RESERVED, HOWEVER, FOR A GUNBOAT LYING CLOSE BY BUT TO SEAWARD--A SPOT WHICH WE HAD LEFT BUT A FEW MINUTES BEFORE TO TAKE OUR LIBERTY PARTY TO THE BEACH. THE JAPANESE PICKED HER FOR THEIR PRIME TARGET. THEY BOMBED HER AND SCORED WITH WHAT OFFICIAL REPORTS LIKE TO CALL "A NEAR MISS," THE EXPLOSIVE FALLING ABOUT 50 FEET OFF HER STARBOARD BOW."

NEAR MISSES CAN HAVE A DEADLY EFFECT. INSTEAD OF THE SHRAPNEL GOING OUTWARD FROM THE SHIP, AS IT DOES IN A DIRECT HIT, THEY SPRAY IN TOWARD THE VESSEL.

THAT IS WHAT HAPPENED TODAY TO THE GUNBOAT, SKIPPERED BY LIEUT.(J.G.) MORRIS RUSSELL, CALDWELL, IDAHO. HER PORT SIDE WAS HONEYCOMBED WITH SHRAPNEL AND HER MAST WAS NEARLY CUT THROUGH, HER ENGINE ROOM WAS SET AFIRE, A NUMBER OF HER GUNNERS WERE KILLED AND MANY WERE WOUNDED BY THE SHRAPNEL.

OUR ROCKET SHIP IMMEDIATELY PULLED ALONGSIDE TO HELP PUT OUT THE FIRES WITH OUR PUMPS. ROBERT SHAPLEN, NEWSWEEK WAR CORRESPONDENT, AND I LIFTED THE BROKEN BODIES OF THE DEAD INTO WIRE LITTERS AND PLACED THEM IN A LANDING BARGE TO BE TAKEN ASHORE.

ONE GUNNER, COXSWAIN FRANCIS KIRKBRIDE OF FREEMONT, OHIO, WHO HAS A SPECIAL GRUDGE AGAINST THE JAPANESE--HE SAID HIS WIFE AND CHILD WERE KILLED IN MANILA--HAD A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

"MY GUN, 'KEVIN'--NAMED AFTER MY ADOPTED SON, WHOSE FATHER WAS KILLED BY THE JAPS AT SHANGHAI--WASN'T TOUCHED," KIRKBRIDE SAID. 'KEVIN' HAS ACCOUNTED FOR TWO NIP PLANES AND I AM NOT SURE HE DIDN'T HELP GET ONE OR TWO THIS MORNING."

THE JAPANESE ALREADY WAS SMOKING WHEN HE CAME AT US AND DROPPING FAST AS HE WENT OUT OF SIGHT OVER THE HILL.

ALMOST EQUALLY PHENOMENAL WAS THE GOOD FORTUNE OF AN LCM LYING CLOSE BY WHEN THE GUNBOAT WAS HIT.

"I COULD SEE SHRAPNEL KICKING UP WATER ALL AROUND US BUT ONLY ONE SMALL PIECE STRUCK THE BARGE ITSELF AND NO ONE WAS HURT," SAID FIRST LIEUT.ALBERT CAPELLI PROVIDENCE, R.I., OF THE ARMY'S AMPHIBIOUS ENGINEERS, A BROTHER OF A RHODE ISLAND STATE SUPREME COURT JUSTICE. HE WAS "COMMODORE" OF A FLOTILLA OF LCM'S WHICH TOOK PART IN THE INITIAL LANDING.

30. 24 — 20117

THE CREW OF CAPELLI'S BARGE, COXSWAIN T/4 ORVILLE CONLEY, GARRETT, KY., AND GUNNERS EUGENE MARKU (63 ELIZABETH AVE) NEWARK, N.J., RALPH MAYHEN, CLEARFIELD, PA., SAID FORTUNATELY FOR THEIR NERVES, THEY WERE TOO REOCCUPIED WITH THEIR JOBS TO NOTICE MUCH OF WHAT WAS GOING ON.

AFTER THE INITIAL ATTACK THERE WERE LONG MINUTES OF CONCERN LEST THE JAPANESE RETURN OR NEW ONES FOLLOW.

BUT IN TIME THE U.S.NAVY FIGHTERS APPEARED AND TENSION SLACKED. THEN IT WAS FOUND THAT THE GUNBOAT, ALTHOUGH SEVERELY RIDDLED, WAS NOT DISABLED. ONCE THE FIRES WERE EXTINGUISHED THE "BLACK GANG," UNDER ENGINEERING OFFICER ENSIGN JACK MARTIN (1918 HARSHMAN BLVD) SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, GOT THE ENGINES GOING.

HER GREEN PAINT BLENDING AGAINST THE FORESTED BACKGROUND, SHE PULLED INTO THE LEE OF THE HILL TO LAY BY, PENDING HER RETURN DOWN SAN JUANICO STRAIT TO A REPAIR SHIP."

SEVEN FREIGHTERS AND THREE DESTROYERS HEADING NORTH NEAR PALAWAN ISLAND IN THE WESTERN PHILIPPINES.

"EVEN BEFORE WE COULD MAKE OUR TURN, JAPANESE ACK ACK WAS BURSTING ALL AROUND US, RUSSELL SAID.

"TWO OF OUR MEN WERF INJURED BY FLAK SPRAYING THROUGH THE COCKPIT."

THE PILOT,LT.(JG) NEARL TYLER, OF WYOMING WIPED HIS YES AND STEADIED THE PLANE TO MAKE A BOMB RUN.

A DIRECT HIT WAS SCORED ON A 5,000-TON FREIGHTER. AT 100-FEET HE STRAFED A VESSEL AND LEFT IT BURNING.

THE CREW BROUGHT THE BOMBER TO THIS BASE WITH ONE ENGINE SHOT AND ANOTHER NOT FUNCTIONING. JUST AS THE PLANE LANDED, THE SECOND ENGINE CAUGHT FIRE. IT BARELY WAS EXTINGUISHED IN TIME TO PREVENT AN EXPLOSION.

JUST BEFORE HIS BOMBS BLASTED AT BARRACKS SURROUNDING THE HUGE AVIATION GASOLINE REFINERIES ON THE EASTERN COAST OF BORNEO, WOLFE'S LIBERATOR WAS JOLTED BY A DIRECT BURST OF FLAK THAT RUINED EVERYTHING IN THE NOSE OF THE BIG BOMBER.

DESPITE THE DEVASTATION ONLY ONE MAN, THE CO-PILOT (NAMES CENSORED) WAS INJURED. HE WAS STUNNED BY SHRAPNEL THAT CUT AND NUMBED HIS RIGHT ARM. THEY WERE IN THE THICK OF A FIGHT WITH 30 TO 40 JAPANESE FIGHTERS AT THE TIME, AND HE WAS AT THE CONTROLS. HE CONTINUED TO FLY FORMATION WITH ONE HAND UNTIL HE COULD SAFELY TURN OVER THE CONTROLS TO HIS PILOT.

Heavy Reinforcements Landed in Attempt to Avert Disaster.

American Fighters Disrupt Huge Motor Convoy to Front.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS Philippines, Saturday, Nov. 4—(AP) Under slashing American aerial attack, the Japanese Imperial army landed strong mechanized reinforcements and began its first potentially formidable attempt Friday to avert disaster on Leyte island.

The Japanese counterattack, which began with an attempt to break out of the Ormoc trap, presages a flareup in the battle for Leyte. But the overwhelming American superiority in men and guns leaves little doubt of the final issue.

Tighten Hold on Ormoc

Yank infantrymen moved five miles westward along Carigara bay and tightened their encirclement of Ormoc, 25 miles to the south, as the Japanese suddenly halted their ostensible withdrawal from Leyte and shot large new forces into the battle.

The reinforcements landed at Ormoc Wednesday night and Thursday morning from four large transports and escorting destroyers.

American Lightnings and bomb-carrying Warhawks fought their way through a strong Japanese fighter screen and heavy flak to attack the convoy in Ormoc bay.

The bitter battle cost the Japanese two transports and 25 of the estimated 50 first-line planes they threw into action.

The reinforcements landed in the darkness, however, and immediately were dispatched northward along the winding highway leading north to Carigara bay.

Lightnings, returning from the Ormoc bay conflict, discovered the Japanese column of trucks and tanks, extending for several miles through narrow Ormoc valley.

The Yank fighters attacked the convoy, destroying 30 trucks and two tanks.

Yanks Disrupt Column

"The column was disrupted," said today's communique, "with enemy troops sustaining heavy casualties" and the loss of much equipment and supplies.

Richard Bergholz, Associated Press war correspondent, was told by returning fliers the 10-mile-long convoy was attacked from tree top level.

"We couldn't miss," said Maj. Thomas B. Maguire, of San Antonio, Tex.

"Japs who drove into the ditches were riddled and we could see the bodies blown into the air. The road was so narrow and the swamp so bad there was no place for the trucks and equipment to go so we had a field day, drilling everything along the road and pausing only to gain a few feet altitude so we could nose down again."

Maguire called the attack, which was led by Maj. Wallace Jordan, Long Beach, Calif., a "strafer's dream."

Blast 10-Mile Convoy

In all the 10 miles under attack the road made only one sharp turn. Troops, trucks, light, medium and heavy tanks and field artillery felt the fury of the air attack. The convoy was spotted despite the fact the enemy made extensive efforts to camouflage it.

Yanks of the 24th division pushed westward along Carigara bay to Culasian point, five miles west of American-held Carigara and some two miles east of Pinamopoan, northward anchor of the road from Ormoc.

Elsewhere, American forces were consolidating and establishing intermediate bases and lines of communication, the communique reported.

Along Carigara bay, the Yanks brought up heavy artillery to bottle Ormoc valley, the only northward escape route from Ormoc bay. Massed batteries of 155s and eight-inch howitzers of the 24th division and the First Cavalry division, augmented by the 10th corps artillery, pulled away from the assault on Carigara. This key town was occupied Thursday.

These guns now cover the opening of Ormoc valley at Carigara bay.

Apparently timed with the new thrust on the West coast, the Japanese air force last night intensified what the communique described as "harassing" raids over Leyte.

From dusk until daylight, no less than 35 low-level bombing and strafing runs were made on airfields and dock areas.

Attack at Roof-Top Level

The assaults provoked an American pyrotechnical display which caused interested spectators to duck as a fusillade from every kind of weapon — from .30 caliber machine guns to heavy ack-ack — swept the air at roof-top level.

One American merchantman at the dock burst into flames when hit. The fire was extinguished. Explosions in a small ammunition dump added to the ear-splitting din. The Japanese lost five planes to antiaircraft fire and five to interceptors. One American plane was lost.

The Yanks exerted pressure from three directions on the restricted Ormoc area while Allied warships and PT boats tore into enemy craft. The Japanese called on its best fliers to protect shipping in Ormoc bay, AP War Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported. One group of enemy airmen flying cover for a convoy off Ormoc refused to break formation, although 27 of their number were shot down during an eight-hour sky battle. Not a single American plane was lost in this melee.

Japs in Dwindling Pocket Retreat Toward Escape Port of Ormoc.

SPENCER

Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, from a room where an enemy flyer's bullet missed his head by twelve inches, announced today the near end of the Leyte campaign as his land, sea and air forces set a death trap for Ormoc, last port of flight for the Japanese.

Just two weeks after he returned to the Philippines, Gen. MacArthur's four divisions were cornering bewildered Nipponese on Leyte's west coast, pressing for a kill which would swell enemy casualties, already past 30,000.

Associated Press War Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported the Japs were throwing in their finest flyers as they battled to stave off the onrushing Americans. Mr. Bergholz described a bitter aerial dogfight at Ormoc yesterday, in which twenty-seven of the enemy were shot down without breaking cover over the convoy they were protecting.

DAY

"The Japanese flyers were definitely above the average," he reported returning flyers as saying. "They had a tight formation over the ships and refused to break under repeated passes."

No American planes were lost in the eight-hour melee.

Today's communique suggested attention was swinging to other islands of the central Philippines, reporting attacks by Liberator bombers on Cebu and Negros, west of American holdings on Leyte and Samar.

Carigara Is Captured.

The General issued the communique after a close brush with death. A strafing Jap plane sent a bullet into the wall of his room, just missing him.

Disaster fast engulfed the fleeing survivors of Japan's Sixteenth Division which once so arrogantly tortured the American and Filipino heroes of Bataan.

Carigara has fallen. The Twenty-fourth Division of Major-Gen. Frederick A. Irving, in the thick of action from the time it landed October 20 at Palo on the east coast, crushed the enemy's last big stand south of the town yesterday and swept out of Leyte Valley to the northwest shore.

Climaxing twelve days of the bloodiest fighting, the Twenty-fourth advanced to a juncture with the First Cavalry Division of Major-Gen. Vern D. Mudge which battled into Carigara from the northeast.

Japs Flee in a Hurry.

The Japs were in such haste to reach Pinamopoan and turn south down the one escape highway to Ormoc that they abandoned Capoocan west of Carigara. Ormoc is about twenty-five miles south.

Below Ormoc on the west coast, the Seventh Division of Major-Gen. Archibald V. Arnold, which has been teamed with the Ninety-sixth Division, was disclosed today to have cut all the way across from Abuyog and reached Baybay. From there a coastal road leads twenty-six miles north to Ormoc.

At Ormoc the Japs frantically loaded troops on barges and ferried them to larger escape vessels, but these were under attack by American PT boats and Leyte-based fighter planes.

Within the past twenty-four hours the Jap air force inflicted some damage on American shipping off east Leyte but paid for it with twenty-seven planes shot down in sky battles.

Japs Make More Claims.

A Jap communique today claimed six American warships were sunk and four damaged in Leyte Gulf and Surigao Strait Wednesday and Wednesday night. The ships claimed sunk were listed as two cruisers, three destroyers and a transport. Yesterday an Imperial communique claimed four cruisers were sunk and three battleships damaged in the gulf.

MacArthur Misses Death By A Foot

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 3 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur missed possible death by a margin of a foot today.

A strafing Japanese plane sent a .50-caliber bullet into the wall of the room where the general was at work. It bored a hole 12 inches from MacArthur's head.

When the general's aide, Col. Lloyd Lehrbas dashed into the room, MacArthur calmly nodded toward the hole and said:

"Well, not yet."

The general has had numerous close brushes with death. The closest also was in the Philippines.

Shortly after the war began, a bomb from a Japanese plane exploded a few feet from where the general was standing in the open. The bomb wounded a Filipino orderly standing at MacArthur's side.

Jap Troop Train On Luzon Derailed

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Saturday, Nov. 4 (AP) — American planes bombed and derailed a Japanese troop train on Luzon, main Philippine Island, during widespread attacks on Philippine and Southwest Pacific targets, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in a supplementary communique today.

Five Japanese planes were destroyed aground on Cebu Island, when hit by medium bombers on patrol. Cebu is believed to be the staging base for Nipponese reinforcements sent to Leyte.

Heavy units dropped 26 tons of bombs on Alicante airdrome, Negros Island, hitting supply and personnel areas. Five of an unspecified number of Japanese interceptors were shot down, and four American bombers were lost.

Other planes hit objectives on Celebes, Timor, New Guinea and the Bismarck-Solomons area.

JAP PLANES BOMB U.S. THIRD FLEET

Damage Several Ships of Third Fleet, Nimitz Reports.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 3—(AP) Japanese planes attacked one of the carrier groups in the U. S. Third fleet Nov. 1, damaging several ships and inflicting light personnel casualties, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The attack was reported in a communique which also told of the first enemy aerial offensive in the Marianas islands since the occupation of Saipan by American ground forces last spring.

Japs Raid Saipan

Nine Japanese planes raided Saipan and nearby Tinian islands the night of Nov. 1, Nimitz said, killing four men. Three of the planes were shot down.

Thirteen of the Japanese planes carrying out the two assaults were shot down, the Navy reported. Big twin-engined bombers attacked the airfields while dive bombers and fighters carried out the assaults on units of the Third fleet.

Another enemy sea plane was destroyed in an attack on American-held Peleliu island in the Palau group.

In addition to "minor damage" to Isely airfield on Saipan and the northern airfield on Tinian, the Navy said the raiding planes killed four men there and wounded another seriously.

Casualties Are Light

No indication was given of the extent of damage caused by the enemy dive bombers and fighters attacking part of the Third fleet Wednesday. Personnel casualties, aboard the damaged ships, were reported light.

The attack seemed to indicate that the enemy is making major use of the chain of airfields established from the Southern Philippines northward to the Japanese homeland.

The big bombers which attacked American land bases, the Navy said, presumably flew south about 850 miles from the Bonin islands. There was no indication of where the carrier units were attacked, or the base of operation for the enemy planes making that assault.

Americans Sink Jap PT Boat

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 3 (AP)—American guns sank a Japanese PT boat in the Palau Islands after it fired a torpedo in an unsuccessful attempt to sink a freighter being loaded at the Peleliu beach, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday.

The Japanese version of the same incident, reported by Tokyo radio Wednesday, said a "special tropedo assault unit sank four enemy transports and heavily damaged two others" in action coordinated with a Nipponese landing on American-held Peleliu.

AMERICAN FORCES SMASH TWO MILES PAST VOSSENACK

Push Ahead in Hard Fighting Through Heavily-Mined Woodland.

SCHELDE BATTLE ENDS

Last Germans on Walcheren Island Being Mopped Up by Allies.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 3.—(AP) The southern flank of the U. S. First army assault swept two miles south-east of captured Vossenack today, overrunning the German village of Schmidt only three-quarters of a mile from the river Roer, next enemy barrier on the way to the Rhine 28 miles to the east.

The Doughboys gouged out their advance in hard fighting through heavily-mined woodland under leaden clouds so low that close air support was virtually impossible.

Nazi Tanks Destroyed

But fighter bomber pilots of the Ninth Air Force, flashing out of the clouds, dealt what blows they could, knocking out three tanks and probably destroying three others of the German armored supply.

Although the impact fell heaviest on the German home front there, fighting as fierce was going on in last hours of the battle for Walcheren island, which will open the docks of Antwerp to a flood of Allied shipping.

The tempo of battle also rose along the Mark river line, five miles south of the Maas in western Holland, and beyond Vaccarat in France, where Allied armies are battling toward the passes which lead through the Vosges mountains to the Rhine and Germany.

The swampy south Schelde pocket was liquidated as the last Nazi sniper nests were cleaned out late in the afternoon, and for the first time since the Canadian offensive broke there 28 days ago that front fell silent.

Last Guns Fall Silent

On nearly-drowned Walcheren island to the north, the last of the port-blocking big guns of the Germans fell silent too — most or possibly all of them by now knocked out or captured.

Vlissingen (Flushing) was captured. Its garrison commander, Lt. Col. Reinhardt, and a good many of his men surrendered. The rest fled to the east into a triangle menaced by a British-Canadian bridgehead broadening on the east shores of the island around the causeway from South Beveland island.

Just south of the causeway, other troops of the Canadian First army were ferried across the mile-wide inlet and won a second foothold inside the last-stand triangle, where collapse of the German defenses seemed near.

Along the Mark river rearguard line—perhaps the last firm German stand short of the Dutch Rhine from Rotterdam east to Arnhem—the Poles drove a third bridgehead across the stream.

Others were won earlier in the day by Americans and British to the west.

Supreme Headquarters had no new information on gains wiping out ground gained by a German counterattack in eastern Holland.

British Reach Meijel

But front line dispatches of the Associated Press said British patrols reached Meijel, one of the towns the Germans rewon, and found it apparently undefended. That seemed to indicate the Germans had pulled back to their original positions, licking their wounds.

In the south, Americans of the Seventh army slashed forward on the north flank of the French drive which captured Baccarat, liberating the villages of Vaxainville, four miles north of Baccarat, and Reclonville, six miles north.

The weather was bad for flying on the entire front, but it was better over the Canadian army sector. The RAF in 400 flights strafed German troops trying to form up north of the Mark river and plastered remaining strongpoints on Walcheren.

British mediums bombed a bridge at Venlo, German base on the Maas in Eastern Holland from which the enemy's surprise offensive was launched a week ago.

Mediums of the Ninth Air Force attacked five bridges, two near trier, in the Siegfried line, one at Coblenz and others near Badmunster and Maiserslautern. Clouds prevented observation of results.

Yanks Push Two Miles Deeper Into Germany

Enemy Radio Predicts Big American Offensive—British On Walcheren Capture Vlissingen

London, Nov. 3 (AP) — A United States First Army drive rolling out of the forests southeast of Aachen smashed two miles deeper into Germany today and enemy broadcasts declared a grand American offensive soon might explode along a restless 30-mile front.

German accounts said only two regiments so far had been committed to the push, which swept through the village of Schmidt, two miles beyond fallen Vossenack and 15 miles southeast of Aachen, but added that powerful forces were massed behind them ready to strike.

The final shots were being fired to clear the approaches to the port of Antwerp, as Vlissingen (Flushing) fell and most of the rest of Walcheren Island, with its blockading big guns, was overrun.

Retreating In East

The enemy was falling back before British and Americans in eastern Holland, apparently to positions which would be less exposed by such an offensive, and was giving ground grudgingly in western Holland as Allied infantry threw three bridgeheads across the Mark river, some five to six miles south of the water barrier of the Maas.

The pressure was on all along the 500-mile Allied front, with the United States Seventh and the French First armies making five-mile gains in two days, which overran a half dozen villages and carried to within six miles of St. Die, commanding one of the passes through the Vosges Mountains to the Rhine. Local gains were scored on the United States Third Army front.

Driving through pillboxes and barbed-wire entanglements, the Americans who seized Schmidt 28 miles west of the Rhine took high ground commanding the small Roer river, but the Germans were dug in strongly across the stream and were well armed with artillery and mortars.

Young Prisoners Taken

A front dispatch said hundreds of prisoners, many young or physically unfit of the type usually left to man outposts, were taken.

A German high command spokesman said the Americans were jabbing at Field Marshal General Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt's lines all the way north to Waldenrath, 30 miles from the focal point of fighting.

"A major action on the part of the American First Army seems to be impending," Berlin said, adding that the various local thrusts "can be interpreted as forerunners of the forthcoming offensive."

Four miles north of Schmidt, artillery and mortar fire kept other elements of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army out of the town of Hurtgen, which was reached in the opening phases of the assault yesterday.

The plight of the German garrison on Walcheren Island was growing more desperate as the Allies who took Vlissingen neared a junction with other forces which seized the strong points of Domberg, nine miles northwest, and Westkapelle, and cleared the west coast for a distance of more than nine miles.

At last reports these two forces, which took 600 prisoners during the day, were less than two miles apart.

The core of German resistance was in eastern Walcheren, where the Germans fought back fiercely before the causeway bridgehead from South Beveland Island to the east.

But even here the Canadians expanded their foothold, while British reinforcements made a new landing two miles south. Troops were locked in desperate fighting waist deep in water and mud.

Open City Declared

The Germans declared the village of Arnemiuden, one mile west of the bridgehead, an open city because their wounded are hospitalized there, and supreme headquarters agreed to respect it.

It was disclosed that Canadians had cleared the two Dutch islands of North Beveland and Tholen, to the north, and had taken 250 captives.

Across the Schelde estuary to the south the last Germans were routed from Belgium save for a few stragglers in the marshes. The windup of the 28-day-old Canadian First Army offensive came with the routing of the last snipers from Zeebrugge. The entire offensive netted 12,000 prisoners.

In eastern Holland, British patrols ranged through the village of Meijel, one of the towns recaptured by the Germans in their surprise counterattack a week ago, without encountering resistance.

Withdrawal Reported

A front dispatch said the enemy seemed to be withdrawing toward the Maas and Venlo, 12 miles east, from whence the drive came.

German rear guards holding back the Allies south of the Maas in Holland were taken by surprise before dawn as Americans in the moonlight moved across the Mark river north of Oudenbosch and six miles south of the vital enemy escape bridges at Moerdjik.

They dug in and held on against heavy artillery fire, succeeding in linking up with the British, who held another bridgehead to the east. Poles some 15 miles farther east also fought across the Mark north of Oosterhout, within five miles of the Maas.

The Allied communique confirmed that the French captured Baccarat, 30 miles southeast of Nancy in the northern foothills of the Vosges. Forty-five miles east lies the big French city of Strasbourg on the Rhine. The Germans said two days ago and they had pulled out of the crossroads town.

French Take Gelacourt

Broadening this drive to a front of about 12 miles, the French captured Gelacourt, two miles north of Baccarat; Deneuvre, one mile south, and Bazien, Nossoncourt and Menil sur Belvitte, from three to four miles south.

These gains placed the Allies within four miles of Raon l'Etape, first town inside Schirmeck pass to Strassbourg.

Farther south, Americans captured La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Die, first town inside the Ste. Marie pass.

Gains also were made in the bend of the Moselotte, where the Allies were within six miles of Gerardmer in the Schlucht pass.

Allied forces were within three miles of Moyenmutier in the Saales pass, eight miles from Fraise in Bonhomme pass; and five miles from Bussang in Bussang pass, north of Belfort.

German losses in men and tanks was reported heavy in these slugging matches, and one force was trapped and was being cut to pieces.

Allied headquarters in Paris reported that the United States First Army to date had taken 199,834 prisoners, and the Third Army 102,340.

NEW AMERICAN DRIVE REACHES RIVER ROER

FRYE

Nazis See Big U. S. Offensive Shaping Up—Battle to Open Antwerp Is Virtually Won as Allies Sweep Schelde Isles.

London, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—The First United States Army today thrust forward by another two miles from Vossenack, southeast of Aachen, and the Berlin radio said that the jabs Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges was making along a thirty-mile front were forerunners of the forthcoming offensive.

The drive, which has netted a four-mile gain in two days after the push through the Hurtgen Forest, resulted today in the capture of the village of Schmidt overlooking the Roer River, whose muddy clay banks interpose the next major barrier to the Rhine.

The new drive, in a sector about fifteen miles southeast of Aachen, was aimed in a southeasterly direction from captured Vossenack, and carried to the hills overlooking the Roer at a point about ten miles south of Duren.

British Capture Flushing.

A spokesman for the German High Command said that the Americans were probing the German defenses all the way from Waldenrath, above Aachen, to Hurtgen, including the Geilenkirchen and Wurselen sectors, north of Aachen. These attacks, he said, were to be interpreted as forerunners of the forthcoming offensive.

Gen. Hodges's men, who broke the concrete crust of the Siegfried Line at Aachen in the first two weeks of October, jumped off as the battle to open the supply port of Antwerp came to a virtual close with the capture by British Commandos of the ancient Dutch port of Vlissingen (Flushing) and Domberg on Walcheren Island.

Two more islands north of the Schelde Estuary—North Beveland and Tholen—were cleared of the enemy. German resistance flickered out south of the Schelde. In the drive north of Antwerp toward Rotterdam and the Maas, British and American troops restored and consolidated three bridgeheads across the Mark river and canal from five to six miles south of the strategic Moerdijk Bridge.

DAY

The few German guns remaining on flooded Walcheren Island on the north side of the Schelde mouth after the capture of Flushing were rapidly running out of ammunition. Only a few scattered snipers remained to harass the Allies on either side of the river mouth, entrance to Antwerp port.

Meanwhile, American and French troops battling deeper into the Vosges slopes, on the southern sectors of the Allied front, captured eight towns, including Baccarat, and approached to within three to eight miles of the first towns inside six passes to the Rhine frontier.

Americans and British smashing against the hard circle of German defenders holding south of the Maas (Meuse) on the road to Rotterdam, restored a bridgehead over the little Mark River within six miles of the Moerdijk Bridge.

The Americans attacked in moonlight a few hours before dawn in gaining their bridgehead to the left of the British, and dug in while waiting for reinforcements.

All the vital part of Walcheren Island was in Allied hands with the fall of Flushing, a city of 22,000 and third port of Holland. Supreme Headquarters announced that the Allied amphibious forces on the Dutch island which landed Wednesday at Westkapelle on the western tip and at Flushing had come to within two miles of a junction. Thus the coastal belt of dikes and dunes on the southwestern edge of the island where German guns were stationed, as well as the northwest corner, had been seized.

Battle on the Causeway.

Canadians still battled forward under a crossfire at the western end of the narrow granite causeway connecting Walcheren with South Beveland. They were aided by a newly won British foothold two miles southwest of the causeway.

Some hard fighting evidently remained before every German is driven from Walcheren, an island eight miles long. But Allied capture of some of the enemy's 250-mm. guns left those remaining harmless to Allied shipping.

Some of these Germans were in Domburg, at the northwest corner of the island where there was street fighting, and at Middleburg in the center of the island. Arnemuiden, between Middleburg and the causeway, was declared an open town. A hospital is located there.

Last Snipers Cleared Out.

Capture of Flushing, formerly a great fortress in the Dutch battles for independence, placed at the disposal of the Allies three harbors, a commercial port and shipbuilding and machine building facilities.

The battle for the Schelde mouth, which began October 6 when Canadians crossed the Leopold Canal, also saw the clearing of the last snipers out of Zeebrugge, the capture in rapid succession of Knocke, Sluis and Heyst, and the liberation of the last inch of Belgian territory. Here, too, the battle was over with the capture of a total of 12,244 Germans—more than were estimated in the entire German force when the battle began.

The Canadian First Army's total bag since D day had now climbed to just over 100,000 prisoners. Included were 250 taken in a heretofore unannounced invasion of North Beveland. This island, just off captured South Beveland Island, is now clear of the enemy also.

Second Crossing of River.

The two new bridgeheads over the Mark were forced just north of Oudenbosch. It was the second time the Allies had been across, but Poles and Americans had been forced to relinquish their hold twenty-four hours previously because of inability to get heavy equipment across.

Dug in on the north bank they were under heavy artillery fire from the north side of the Maas and Hollandsch Diep. The nature of the terrain, close-laced by canals and dikes, however, was the main reason for the slow progress in this sector.

At the eastern fringe of the Allied front in Holland, British troops sent patrols into the outskirts of Meijel, twelve miles west of the Dutch border town of Venlo, and found the enemy had pulled back toward the Maas after several days of exhausting counter-attack. Meijel and Lieseel, since recaptured by the British, were taken by the Germans at the highwater mark of this thrust, aimed at distracting Allied attention in western Holland.

Patch's Men Drive Forward.

Infantrymen of Lieut.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army and Poilus of Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny's French First Army battled forward on a fourteen-mile front southeast of Nancy and northeast of Epinal on the approaches of all three of the northernmost Vosges passes. They had advanced five miles at places in the last twenty-four hours.

Baccarat, thirty-two miles southeast of Nancy, was seized in a tank battle along with the villages of Gelacourt, Domjevin, Deneuvre, Bazien, Mossoncourt and Menil-sur-Belvitte on either side of Baccarat. This placed the Allies within four miles of Raon l'Etape, first town inside Schirmeck Pass to Strassbourg.

Farther south, Americans captured La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Die, first town inside the Ste. Marie Pass. Gains also were made in the end of the Moselotte, where the Allies were within six miles of Gerardmer in the Schlucht Pass.

Allied forces were within three miles of Moyenmutier in the Saales Pass, eight miles from Fraise in Bonhomme Pass and five miles from Bussang in Bussang Pass, north of Belfort.

The German radio said Gen. Patch had committed five divisions to his drive and identified them as the American Forty-fifth, Thirty-sixth and Third, the French Third Algerian and French Second Armored.

Offensive Near Aachen

The new American assault below Aachen began yesterday on a 4,000-yard front and quickly blasted its way forward for nearly two miles, overrunning the villages of Germeter and Vossenack, south of Hurtgen itself. The Allied communique reported that "our drive is continuing against stiffening resistance."

The scale of the attack was not immediately apparent, but the German radio reported it was opened with two infantry regiments. The Berlin broadcast said "the Americans have strong reinforcements immediately behind their lines, and an intensification of the fighting must be expected."

The Hurtgen sector battle bulged into Germany behind the old prepared positions of the main Siegfried belt, but it was by no means in the open. It carried within eight miles of the big German road center of Duren—20 miles beyond which lies Cologne and the Rhine.

Latest reports placed the doughboys on the edge of the town of Hurtgen, often attacked but never conquered by Lieut. Gen Courtney H. Hodges' troops. Hurtgen, astride a main highway running northeastward to Duren, lies 12 miles southeast of Aachen.

Follows Long Lull

The significance of the attack, which came after a long lull on the First Army front, still was to be assessed. A dispatch from supreme headquarters in Paris said there were no indications there that the ful strength of Hodges' army had been committed.

A front dispatch said the First Army is receiving warm clothing and other equipment for the rigors of a winter campaign at the rate of 225 tons daily. Frontline doughboys and tankmen already have been outfitted with overcoats, mackinaws, knit caps, gloves and heavy woolen underwear. Galoshes, tight-necked heavy woolen sweaters, calf-high leather combat boots and warm sleeping bags are being distributed as fast as they are received.

Farther south French civilians were pouring through the Allied lines in the Jussrupt area, three miles southeast of Bruyeres, after the Germans had ordered them out of the neighborhood.

Path to Rhine Is Blocked by Tough Barriers

LONG

Field Defenses Are Believed Harder to Breach Than Siegfried Line Pillboxes

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Nov. 3 (AP).—The hastily dug field defenses and natural obstacles behind the breached concrete and steel of the Siegfried line above Aachen are likely to prove tougher than the crust, in the opinion of officers planning the next move.

Some of the men who breached the defenses of concrete and steel in the two weeks from Oct. 2 to 16 told today how it was done with the normal assault tactics of the American tank and infantry team.

There were no new devices, no secret weapons, used in drilling the hole eleven miles wide and four miles deep in the "concrete zone." Five hundred pillboxes were knocked out, and 6,000 Germans were captured in them. Those pillboxes, in the view of the men who broke them, were little better than death traps.

But here is what lies ahead, according to Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Crystal, of Miami Beach, Fla., of the 19th Corps, which made the break-through:

NIGHT

"The rest of the way to the Rhine is open, cultivated, gently rolling farmland of beet and turnip fields—every one in this part of Germany must live on beets and turnips. It is cut by two more main valley the Roer and Erft, each tougher than the Wurm, which we crossed just inside the border.

"The rivers are wide enough to form tank barriers, but their valleys are worse than the streams themselves. They are mud and clay, and are impossible to cross without bridging.

"To guard this, in the last few weeks since the first real threat to the line, the Germans turned out whole communities, including some Dutch, to dig everywhere possible with every tool at hand—digging 'V' and zigzag trench lines, anti-tank ditches and gun positions.

"Behind us is the breached concrete pillbox line—the last of the concrete between us and the inside of Germany, but not the last of the defenses."

FLOODS REMAKING FACE OF HOLLAND

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—The war-torn map of Holland will have to be redrawn when peace returns, for flooding is rapidly undoing the work of centuries in winning the lowlands from the sea.

Big Walcheren Island, one of the oldest diked and most important crop lands, has been two-thirds lost as a result of the hard necessity of Allied aerial attack which breached the dikes. German defensive flooding has done nearly as much damage to adjacent Beveland.

But of even greater consequence is the possibility that final liberation will disclose the loss of the entire forty-mile long, twenty-mile wide reclaimed belt from the lower Maas and Dutch Rhine to Ijssel Meer, formerly the Zuider Zee, through Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

The heart of Holland and most of Amsterdam and Rotterdam are well below sea level.

It will be a gigantic task to reclaim this land. For one thing the rising salt water will ruin the electric pumping systems, and the work of reclamation cannot even begin until they are replaced.

AMG ACQUITS TWO GERMANS

Civilians Cleared On Charge Of Harboring Enemy Troops

Verviers, Belgium, Nov. 3 (AP)—Two German civilians accused of harboring German soldiers, the first to face trial under Allied occupation law on charges serious enough to provide the death penalty, were acquitted tonight—on the plea that they had merely been carrying out directions issued by the Allied propaganda organization.

The defendants were Robert Michel Hogen, 47, formerly a manufacturer in Aachen, and his cousin, Karl Packbier, 37, owner of a farmhouse, with whom Hogen lived after being bombed out.

The pair admittedly had sheltered five German soldiers, but they pleaded succesfully that Allied propaganda, both in leaflet broadcasts and by radio, had repeatedly asked the German people to give aid to all who were prepared to desert the German army and thus shorten the war.

Told They Helped Allies

An American psychological warfare officer, Lieut. Albert U. Salvatori, of Los Angeles, testified that all those giving shelter to German deserters and to foreign labor escaping from Nazi press-gang work had been told that they were aiding the Allied cause, so long as the German deserters were turned over as soon as possible.

This left the prosecution with the single real contention that Hogen and Packbier had not acted to deliver the five German soldiers—of whom only three were actually involved in this case and one of whom was Packbier's brother home on leave—from their farmhouse near Horbach, Germany.

Hogen's wife testified that her husband had once taken a fleeing Russian worker in for shelter from the Nazis and in consequence had been blacklisted ever since by the Nazi labor exchange.

AMG Court

The trial was before an all-American bench of a general Allied Military Government court, and was conducted in the open, but the court reached the verdict in secret. It deliberated only five minutes.

The court's president was Col. Hurley Fuller, of San Antonio, Texas, a regular army man for 28 years. Chief defense counsel was Capt. Robert McKeever, of Westchester, N. Y., and the chief of the prosecution was Capt. Stanley Gaines, of Brookline, Mass.

Packbier was asked by a correspondent what his opinion of American justice was. He replied:

"As a long-standing Democrat and worker in the peace party, I knew the high ideals of democracy of the American command, and had no fear."

ARMY COURT FREES GERMAN CIVILIANS

Verviers, Belgium, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—The first German civilians ever to face trial under Allied occupation law on accusations so grave that the death penalty might have been imposed were acquitted tonight. They had been charged with hiding Nazi soldiers from Allied troops.

Although they had sheltered five German soldiers, the two defendants successfully pleaded that Allied broadcasts had acked the German people to aid all who were prepared to desert the German Army, and thus shorten the war.

The defendants were Robert Michel Hogen and Karl Packbier, cousins. They were arrested September 18 in a German farmhouse near Horbach, from which a German officer and four soldiers wearing civilian clothes were dragged.

Former Manufacturer

Hogen, 47, formerly was a manufacturer in Aachen. After being bombed out, he went to live with Packbier, 37, and owner of the farmhouse.

Packbier thinned his lips furiously when Private Alvin Chapman, of Tremont, Pa., gave star testimony for the prosecution.

Except for the fact that the judges and lawyers and everyone except the defendants were in uniform, the trial proceeded very much as any trial in a criminal court at home. Many Germans have been tried on minor charges, but Hogen and Packbier are the only ones yet to face accusations for which the death penalty might result.

Charges Read In German

Charges were read in German through an interpreter who repeated in German every other word said in the courtroom.

The first objection offered by Capt. Robert McKeever, Portchester (N. Y.) chief defense counsel, was sustained by the court, headed by Col. Hurley Fuller, San Antonio. This was a protest against the reading by the chief prosecution counsel, Capt. Stanley Gaines, Brookline, Mass., of a section of the military law dealing with the responsibilities of civilians in occupied areas. Gaines later was allowed to read the section after incorporating it as part of his accusation against Hogen and Packbier.

Nazis Take Shoes To Foil Deserters

With the Second United States Armored Division, Western Front, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—An Austrian deserter told an American officer today that the Germans were taking the shoes from their foreign soldiers at night to prevent desertions.

The shivering, Austrian walked into the American lines in his stocking feet and surrendered, saying that he was "tired of it all."

Rapid-Firing GI Gets Nazi To Load His Gun

With the United States 30th Infantry Division on the Western Front, Nov. 3 (AP)—Private Raymond Wyant, of Momence, Ill., was with a platoon of 30th Infantry reconnaissance troops which ran into a hornet's nest of Germans.

Fellow GI's noted that Wyant was firing as fast as two men.

He had a newly captured German prisoner reloading his tommy-gun.

Germans Hold Near Bordeaux

Paris, Nov. 3 (AP)—Approximately 40,000 German soldiers are holding out in a pocket on both banks of the Gironde river near Bordeaux against French Forces of the Interior units. Members of the FFI have reported that a lack of armor and artillery has hampered them in efforts to clear out the Germans, although they have been able to pen in the Nazis with small arms.

Anti-Inflation Loan Is Issued In France

Paris, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Government, calling upon the French to meet the country's chaotic money situation in the same spirit as they fought the battle of resistance, announced today an unlimited Government loan designed to reduce inflation.

Unlike Belgium, France will not call in bank notes which were issued in astronomical figures under German occupation, but is asking the citizens to turn in a large part of them in exchange for bonds bearing three per cent. interest.

RUSSIANS REACH BUDAPEST SUBURB

Powerful Army Crushes Enemy Positions Before Capital.

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 4—(AP) A powerful Russian army converging on Budapest crushed Axis positions only seven miles outside the Hungarian capital yesterday, hurling reinforced German and Hungarian defenders into hastily-dug trenches on the edge of the prize city.

Berlin termed the situation "critical."

(The Budapest radio said last night that two mechanized Soviet divisions had reached the southern suburbs of the capital, but that Nazi SS elite guard and German Tiger tank reinforcements "warded off this acute danger temporarily." The broadcast was reported by the Federal Communications commission.)

Capture 100 Localities

A Moscow communique announced the capture of 100 localities on an assault arc between the Danube and Tisza rivers, including Alsonemedi, seven miles southwest of the city on a highway leading to its heart.

Amid unverified reports that civil warfare and widespread looting had broken out inside the queen city on the Danube, the Russians battled their way to within sight of its spires, and to within easy artillery range of Axis troops girding for a final stand.

A midnight Soviet supplement said the Germans and Hungarians, in a desperate effort to halt the Russians, had hurled all available reserves into the battle-security units, rear garrisons, and various other groups.

"They are taking away from various other sectors of the front artillery and tanks and hurriedly transferring them to the Budapest area," the supplement said.

Besides capturing Alsonemedi in a 19-mile advance along the highway from Kecskemet, the Russians also seized Szalkszentmarton and Dunavecse, on the Danube 31 and 35 miles south of Budapest. These localities had been by-passed in the surge into Alsonemedi six miles east of the river.

Enemy troops fleeing into Budapest along the east bank of the Danube were abandoning arms and much war material, the bulletin said, in their effort to escape entrapment.

On the eastern end of the Budapest front, along the west bank of the Tisza river, the Russians captured Toszeg, only four miles southwest of Szolnok, Axis stronghold on the Budapest-Debrecen railway 50 miles southeast of Budapest.

Fighting Rages at Szolnok

Berlin acknowledged bitter fighting around Szolnok, whose capture by the Russians would smash the lower anchor of the Axis line trying to hold the Russians along the Tisza river northeast of Buadpest.

Budapest is being bombed incessantly by Russian planes, said reports to the Turkish press from correspondents in the Hungarian capital. "Russian bombers are overhead constantly and air raid alarms are continually sounding," said one of these dispatches relayed from Ankara.

A Bucharest radio broadcast recorded by Reuters said "a revolution is in full swing" in Budapest, but there was no confirmation of this report, and the Budapest radio countered late last night by saying the Hungarian government still was in the city and that the Parliament had met during the day.

A "Red Star" front dispatch said panicky civilians were fleeing Budapest toward Austria, ninety miles to the west, and Stockholm reports said some personnel in Prime Minister Ferenc Szalasi's puppet government also had fled the city.

From Budapest, a city of 1,217,000, railways radiate into Austria, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and northern Italy. The city also is an important Nazi arsenal, with one of the biggest electrical works in Europe.

German Losses Heavy

In German East Prussia, where the first heavy snowfall of the winter was reported, the Russians announced that Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army invaders of the Reich had repulsed attacks by large enemy tank and infantry forces north and south of Goldap, 19 miles inside the Nazi province.

Heavy losses in men and material were inflicted on the Germans, the bulletin said.

Berlin described the flare-up on the East Prussian front, deadlocked for a week, as mere local fighting, but indicated it expected a renewed Soviet onslaught shortly. The Moscow radio also broadcast to the Red army this message:

"The moment has come to strike the death blow against Germany. We have entered the enemy's lair. Our job is to finish him off. The enemy is being pressed back from the east, west and south. The moment has come to strike the death blow."

REPORTS REVOLT IS UNDER WAY IN BUDAPEST

Bucharest Radio Broadcasts News---Reds 14 Miles From Capital.

ADVANCING ON WIDE FRONT

Two Armies Move for Juncture to Make Final Assault on Doomed City.

London, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—The Bucharest radio said tonight "a revolution is in full swing in Budapest."

The broadcast gave no details of the reported revolt.

The report came as the Berlin radio was admitting that Russian troops had driven to within fourteen miles of the Hungarian capital, reaching "the area south of Bugyi." Moscow dispatches reported that Nazi-held Hungarian capital in panic with the sound of Russian artillery clearly audible in the city.

The Moscow radio broadcast to the Russian Army that "the moment has come to strike the death blow" against Germany.

"We have entered the enemy's lair,' the broadcast said. "Our job is to finish him off. The final phase of the war has been reached, but it will mean fighting. Strike out at the Germans with all your might. The enemy is being pressed back from the east, west and south. The moment has come to strike the death blow.'

Battle Echoes in City.

Moscow, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Russian tanks, guns and men rumbled today toward the outskirts of Budapest, where front dispatches said panic prevailed as the noise of battle swelled a few miles away.

The Red Army already was smashing into the outer defenses of the ancient city of 1,162,800 on the Danube. At Domsod, the Russians were within 100 miles of the Austrian frontier and 140 of Vienna.

The Russians were pushing toward the Hungarian capital's southeastern limits. The main drive was along the concrete highway from Kecskemet, although other columns were converging from other directions.

[The German communique said a fierce battle was in progress against Soviet infantry and tank formations "advancing in the direction of Budapest" from northwest of Kecskemét and that difficult weather hampered air support.]

In five days, the Red Army had advanced fifty miles over the level Hungarian plain, one of Germany's greatest breadbaskets. The opposing German and Hungarian forces were reported to have lost half their trucks and a large share of their tanks as well as 8,000 prisoners recently.

Northeast of Budapest Russian columns cleared the enemy from a sixty-five-mile section of the eastern bank of the middle Tisza River, on a front between Csap on the Szecho-Slovakian border and reaching down to captured Polgar, ninety-three miles from the imperilled capital.

A Russian communique said the Germans were throwing in fresh forces "straight from the march" in an attempt to halt the drive, and that during the day more than 2,000 enemy troops were killed and fifty-eight tanks and mobile guns knocked out.

The communique in a brief reference to the East Prussian front said 200 Germans were killed as the Russians repelled a Nazi counter-attack south of Goldap.

Russian bombers sank nine German transports and damaged two in raids on Liepaja and other German-held Baltic points.

Sixty towns and villages were seized in the advance on Budapest from the south and the enemy was rolled back on a 60-mile front. The capture of 2,080 prisoners, including Col.-Gen. Janus Voeroes, former Hungarian chief of staff, brought the total for the first three days of the offensive to 7,518.

It was believed here that Red Army advance columns might already have speared across the Tisza northeast of Budapest in a drive to link up with forces to the south for an all out assault on the city.

[German broadcasts heard in London suggested that the Russians might smash into Budapest over the week end.]

In addition to Domsod the Russians, attacking on the wide front between the Tisza and the Danube, captured Kunszentmiklos, a road junction twenty-seven miles south of Budapest, and Tatarszentgyorgy, twenty-six miles southeast.

A Russian communique said the Germans were throwing in fresh forces "straight from the march" in an attempt to halt the drive, and that during the day more than 2,000 enemy troops were killed and 58 tanks and mobile guns knocked out.

E. Prussia Report Brief

The communique in a brief reference to the East Prussian front said 200 Germans were killed as the Russians repelled a Nazi counterattack south of Goldap.

Baltic Mop-Up Almost Over

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—The Moscow radio said tonight the Germans had been cleared from all the Baltic states "except for a patch around Liepaja, Latvian port, which is being mopped up." Germans who fled to the port "have a futile hope" of escape, the account added.

SNOW FALLS ON RUSSIAN FRONT

Moscow, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Snow is falling on the eastern front. Izvestia said this harbinger of the German-dreaded winter was the first heavy fall of the season.

Death Sentence Given To Polish Traitor

Moscow, Nov. 3 (AP)—Moscow papers published a Tass dispatch from Lublin today saying a Polish court had imposed the death sentence in the first of 50 cases of alleged traitors during the German occupation.

The first convicted was a former chief of a Lublin transit camp for Poles being sent to prisons in Germany. He signed a confession admitting he tortured women and children among other Poles attempting to escape German persecution.

YANKS CONTINUE RAIDS ON REICH

Mosquito Bombers Reported Over Berlin, Blast Dusseldorf.

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 4—(AP) A small formation of fast Allied bombers—possibly Mosquitos—were reported over Berlin early today by the German radio as the aerial assault against the Reich continued despite bad weather.

British heavy bombers numbering more than 1,000 dropped 4,000 tons of explosives on Dusseldorf, Ruhr armaments city, Thursday night in the wake of the smashing American raid on Merseburg in central Germany earlier in the day when 208 German planes were destroyed.

British Hit Dusseldorf

The British Halifaxes and Lancasters left "very large fires" burning at Dusseldorf Thursday, an Air Ministry communique said. Many enemy fighters were encountered and nine of the interceptors were destroyed.

The RAF onslaught on the Ruhr capital Thursday was the third successive heavy attack over Germany by moonlight. Strongest opposition over Dusseldorf came from big anti-aircraft guns that ring the city.

One of the main British targets was the Bersig plant on the city's outskirts, reported to be the largest armament works in Germany now that the Krupp plants in Essen have been ruined by air smashes.

British Mosquito bombers attacked the German rail center of Osnabruck Thursday. The total RAF loss in these night operations was 21 bombers.

American airmen were idle at their British bases yesterday. The Yank fliers were still jubilant over the results of Monday's decisive victory over Field Marshal Hermann Goering's newly reorganized Luftwaffe, which lost 208 planes.

Americans Decrease Losses

American losses were brought down to 40 bombers and ten fighters missing today when reports came in from pilots who had landed safely on the continent.

Air officials believed that another two or three victories such as the history-making one scored at Merseburg by 900 Thunderbolts and Mustangs and 1,100 heavy bombers over 500 Nazi fighters would completely wreck the air force Goering reorganized in October in an attempt to stem Allied bombing.

During October, American and British planes flew a combined total of 100,000 sorties and showered German targets with 125,000 tons of bombs. RAF heavies hit the continent with 67,200 tons and U. S. Eighth and 15th air force bombers dropped 57,700 tons.

R. A. F. Smashes at Dusseldorf

1000 Bombers Drop 4000 Tons After Yanks Destroy 208 Planes in Big Battle.

London, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—A thousand British heavy bombers laid 4,480 tons of explosives and fire bombs last night on Germany's greatest arsenal of Dusseldorf after a day in which American fighters of the Eighth Air Force won "their greatest victory of the war over the Luftwaffe."

A special communique from American Strategic Air Force headquarters gave this description today and told of the destruction of 208 German aircraft over the synthetic oil center of Merseburg. It scaled down American losses to forty heavy bombers and nineteen fighters. One bomber and nine fighters, previously listed as lost in yesterday's operations, landed safely at French bases. The communique said "still others probably landed behind our lines in Europe" and were unable to report immediately.

Fighter pilots destroyed 130 German interceptors in the air and twenty-five aground, some on Berlin airports 100 miles from Merseburg. Bombers shot down fifty-three while attacking the great Leuna synthetic oil plant, which once supplied Germany with 50,000 tons of petroleum products a month.

The German air force made one of its rare stands to protect its oil spring, sending 500 planes to battle the armada of 2,000 attacking craft, 900 of which were fighters.

Formations of speedy Mosquitos struck at the rail center of Osnabruck while the heavies were blasting Dusseldorf, whose Rheinmetal Bersig plant is the largest arms producer in Germany now that the Krupp works in Essen have been partially knocked out.

Enemy planes destroyed by American airmen yesterday represented a record single day's bag by fighters and bombers in 1944. The long-dormant Luftwaffe sent up 400 to 500 planes, including scores of jet propelled fighters, against a force of 1,100 American heavy bombers and 900 escorting Mustangs making a concentrated assault on the huge synthetic oil plant at Merseburg and railyards at Beilefield and Rheine.

When the dogfights were over the American Eighth Air Force had set six other records in combat at a cost of forty-one bombers and twenty-eight fighters which failed to return. The Americans destroyed 208 German planes, 183 in the air and twenty-five aground. Four victims were swift new jet-propelled craft. The victories fell ninety-nine planes short of the record of 307 destroyed in a lengthy running battle over and around Schweinfurt and Regensburg on August 18, 1943. The jet planes attacked in formation, but only a few were able to penetrate the fighter screen covering the bombers.

High-scoring Americans.

The new records were:

1. Fighters—Destroyed 155 German planes, beating previous record of 117 set on September 11.

2. Fighters — Shot down 130 Nazis, beating previous record of 117.

3. Fighter Group — Mustangs commanded by Col. Joe L. Mason of Columbus, Ohio, shot down thirty-eight planes, breaking old record of thirty-one for a single day.

4. Fighter Squadron—Mustangs commanded by Major George E. Preddy, Greensboro, N. C., scored twenty-four kills. Old record was eighteen.

5. Fighter Pilot—Major Preddy shot down one plane to become the highest ranking ace now operating in this theater with twenty-three and a half in the air and six on the ground for twenty-nine and a half. The record for this theater is thirty-one, held by Lieut.-Col. Francis S. Gabreski, Oil City, Pa., Now a German prisoner of war.

6. Fighter Pilot—Lieut. William J. Cullerton, Chicago, Ill., destroyed eight planes, two in the air and six on the ground, for highest combined toll made in one day.

Returning bomber pilots said the flak "rattled like hail" on their planes. Others told of the rapier-like stabs by the Nazi jet planes zooming "straight up" from the ground.

Meanwhile, the Air Ministry estimated that during October, American and British bombers dropped 100,000 tons of bombs on Germany, almost twice the tonnage of any previous month.

3 Nazi Planes Downed By Star In Dogfight

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Robert P. Montgomery, of Bethlehem, Pa., starred in one of the greatest aerial dogfights in history by shooting down three Nazi planes over Germany yesterday.

Last March he was shot down in occupied France and got back to American lines after D-day. The Eighth Air Force gave Montgomery an "R and R" (rest and recreation at home) and in a few weeks he was back. The first time out he was shot down under friendly territory and came back for more.

He had to quit flying Lightnings because they cramped his muscles. A Mustang's cockpit is just the right size for his 250 pounds.

Soviet Good-Will Gesture In Polish Dispute Urged

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Economist, British conservative weekly, said today that "it is high time in the Russo-Polish dispute that the one-sidedness of the concessions were balanced by a gesture of genuine good will from the Russian side."

The contention was advanced as Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's exiled Cabinet awaited reaction of the Polish underground to Russia's terms for settling the long dispute, which centers around the Soviet demand for a western border on the Curzon Line.

Saying that the British and United States governments already have committed themselves to the Curzon Line, the Economist added that "it is obviously in the Poles' best interest that Mikolajczyk should be ready to accept it."

ALLIED BLOCKADE SOFTENS UP REICH

Isolation Of Germany Will Be Coordinated With Offensive

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—An intensive Allied effort to blockade, bomb and starve Germany into submission will be coordinated with a western Front offensive during the coming months to defeat the Germans this winter or at least soften them for a spring death blow.

Prime Minister Churchill told Commons Tuesday he could not predict—"still less guarantee"—victory over Germany before spring or early summer. The President indirectly said the same thing, declaring Thursday that "we do not expect to have a winter lull in Europe."

On the military side, President Roosevelt's assertion that "we expect to keep striking" raised the possibility that Allied troops massed on Germany's border will mount a full-scale offensive soon to move on at least to the enemy's next natural defense line—the Rhine river.

Danger Level Reached

If the Germans, forced to retreat behind the Rhine, destroy the long suspension bridges, the Allied high command will have all the problems and preparations of an amphibious operation.

Economically, on the basis of official estimates by the British Ministry of Economic Warfare, Germany already has reached the danger level through loss of sources to feed and equip the military and civilian populations.

It is highly probably that the Germans will attempt to bring some foodstuff and some strategic metals in by submarine and an occasional ship. But the Allied sea forces now have their best chance of the war to seal off even that trickle.

There exists no overoptimism in London that Germany can be brought to her knees by starvation alone.

Those who advocate the bomb-and-blockade technique maintain it will leave Germany softened up for the final punch at a saving of thousands upon thousands of Allied lives.

SOVIET PRODS RUMANIA

Moscow Says New Regime Aids Fascists, Stalls on Purge

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio denounced the Rumanian Government early today and charged that it was protecting Fascists.

In a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor, Moscow asserted: "As long ago as Oct. 4, a decree on the purge of the government apparatus was issued, and yet nothing has been done. The State apparatus as well as the army has the same personnel as in [Premier Ion] Antonescu's time except for those army leaders who were demanded by the Allied Control Commission as war cricinals."

This was the strongest denunciation yet by Moscow of the Government of Gen. Konstantin Senatescu.

For a week, Moscow has been demanding a more democratic government in Rumania.

Campaign Of Terror Reported In Norway

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—A great new German terror campaign to crush resistance in Norway was reported by the Norwegian Government here as homeland patriots prepared increased activity in support of the Red army's invasion and possible Allied landings.

A Norwegian Government spokesman said the Germans were making mass arrests.

The Norwegians were told that "by careful thought, cool calculation, and discipline we shall smash the attack." The warning said it was "urgently necessary" that all patriots who might be caught should immediately go into hiding.

Lancaster Bomber Strike Is Called Off

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—A threatened strike of 30,000 aircraft employes of the A. V. Roe Lancaster bomber factory was called off tonight. Workers' representatives accepted an offer to arbitrate the wage dispute Monday.

Workers numbering 1,500 who left their jobs Wednesday against the advice of labor leaders agreed to return to work immediately.

Gen. Spaatz Decorated For Bombing Command

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz was presented today with an oak leaf cluster to his Distinguishred Service Medal for commanding the strategic aerial bombardment of German-held Europe since January 5.

Spaatz is commanding general of the United States Strategic Air Forces, which consist of the British-based Eighth and the Italian-based 15th Air Forces. The award was presented by Gen. Dwight D. Esien-

Troops In India May Get U. S. Tobacco Cigarettes

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, told the House of Commons today that experiments were being conducted with Indian made cigarettes containing 70 per cent. of American tobacco for distribution to British troops in India.

There will be a trial distribution of two different types of these cigarettes, he said, with "large scale manufacture as soon as it has been ascertained which of these types the troops prefer."

The best known brand of British cigarettes are being sold in canteens at 75 cents a hundred, he said, adding that American cigarettes are sold to United States troops in canteens at between 29 and 38 cents a hundred with the price varying "considerably according to brand."

Air Marshal Linnell Killed

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—Air Marshal Sir Francis John Linnell, 52, former commander of the RAF in the Middle East, was killed in a traffic accident today.

Appeal to Allies

LONDON, Nov. 3 (AP).—Representatives of France, Belgium and Holland, reporting suffering in their countries, appealed to the Allies today to provide shipping immediately to take food and clothing to their people before winter.

Speaking at a press conference arranged by the United Nations Information Organization, Commandant Leon Boury, representing the French government, said there were 600,000 homeless French who must be fed and clothed immediately.

"There is no coal or gas," he said "and wood cannot be cut, because the forests are mined. Food is but a memory. It is a case of life and death in some areas."

Commandant Boury said the French were negotiating with U. N. R. R. A. for food and clothing, but arrangements must depend on transport.

Holland's representative, the Rev. A. F. H. Monchen, had just returned from a tour of liberated areas there.

"For six weeks in the liberated area of Holland," he said, "people have not seen meat or fats, and the bread, what little there is, is terrible. Twice weekly they get six potatoes.

"German prisoners of war and quislings, fed by Allied military authorities, are getting good food.

"The clothing situation is more than acute. There are no shoes and no underwear. The world must realize that our people have gone through a tragic four years and have absolutely nothing."

In Belgium, the situation, on the whole, is much better than in either France or Holland, explained Maurice Guillaume, the Belgian representative.

"At present there is enough food for four months without depending on transport from England," he said, "but this food is in the country, and we do not have trucks or trains to bring it into the cities, where it is most needed."

Twin Soldiers With Twin Careers.

Folkestone, England (A. P.).—Pvt. Lloyd George Newman and Corporal George Lloyd Newman, 26-year-old twins—enlisted together, escaped together from Dunkerque in a coal boat, served together at Malta, were reported missing together and wound up in the same prison camp in Germany.

New Atlantic Air Service

Stockholm, Nov. 3 (AP)—The newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said today that a new American airline joining New York and Stockholm by way of Labrador and Iceland, is expected to start operations within a month or so.

The service will be strictly military, under the direction of Col. Bernt Balchen, famous Polar flyer, the paper said, will use Liberators, and may eventually stretch to Moscow.

British General Leese Heads New 11th Army Group In Asia

London, Nov. 3 (AP)—Lieutenant General Sir Oliver W. H. Leese tonight was appointed commander of the newly organized 11th Army Group, which includes some American troops formerly commanded by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, and will operate in southeast Asia under the direction of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

Leese has headed the British Eighth Army in Italy since January 5.

A group contains more than one army, but the only part of the 11th Group so far identified publicly is the British 14th Army, now operating in Burma.

McCreery Succeeds Leese

The American and Chinese forces in northern Burma, who were directed by General Stilwell prior to his recall to Washington, are a part of the 14th Army and, therefore, will be under Leese's over-all generalship.

Leese's appointment is the strongest indication to date of a buildup in Mountbatten's ground forces.

Lord Louis' Southeast Asia Command includes Ceylon, Burma, Thailand, Malaya and part of Sumatra. It does not include French Indo-China or China.

Lieutenent General Sir Richard L. McCreery, 46, was appointed Leese's successor as Eighth Army commander.

Leese directed the swift, secret transfer of Eighth Army divisions in the spring from the Adriatic side of Italy to the western slopes of the Apennines to reinforce the Fifth Army in the breakthrough to Rome. He is among the youngest of the higher commanders in the British army. He succeeds General Sir George Giffard in the 11th Group post.

McCreery, a cavalryman whose regiment was one of the first to be mechanized, started this war as a colonel, fought through the first battle of France and earned the DSO.

BRITISH BATTLE ON FORLI FIELD

German Tanks Hold Out; Fifth Army Stalled By Rain

Rome, Nov. 3 (AP)—British infantry and armor fought bitterly tonight for Forli airfield, two miles southeast of the highway junction of Forli at the edge of the Po Valley, while the season's most violent rains virtually halted action on the American Fifth Army front south of Bologna.

The British, pushing through deep Italian mud, reached a corner of the Forli airfield yesterday, and by tonight had a firm hold on two sides of the field. Intrenched Germans, supported by tanks, clung to the northwest and northeast corners. Only a demolished canal bridge separated the opposing troops at the northeast corner.

Forli, approximately one third of the distance from the Adriatic port of Rimini to the big communications center of Bologna, is the most important objective of British Eighth Army troops since they broke through the enemy's Gothic Line at Rimni.

Counterattacks Held

German troops made several counterattacks south of Bologna today, but the storm and fog-bound Americans maintained their positions. Many American forward units were unable to get a full quota of essential supplies because of washed-out bridges over streams that were swollen to torrents.

Canadian forces avdancing up the Adriatic coast were temporarily stalled about five miles from Ravenna by a combination of mud and determined enemy resistance.

The weather limited the Mediterranean air forces to fewer than 100 sorties yesterday. Brazilian airmen piloting fighter-bombers were disposed to have gone into action for the first time four days ago when they attacked targets far behind the German lines.

Storms Halt Action In Battle For Italy

Rome, Nov. 3 (AP) — Unusually heavy rainstorms have brought operations on the Italian battlefront once more to a standstill, Allied headquarters announced today.

A few gains were achieved by the Eighth Army, but there were no major advances.

The weathehr limited the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to less than 100 sorties yesterday.

A small force hit undisclosed objectives in Austria last night.

Battle For Airfield

British infantry and armor made an advance of nearly a mile south of the Rimini-Bologna highway in the Forli sector. The battle raged around the Forli airfield, two miles southeast of Forli, with the Germans holding two sides and the British two sides.

German guns and infantrymen blocked the advance up Highway 16 toward Ravenna on the Adriatic coastal sector. The British were approximately five miles from the city.

The Germans counterattacked during lulls in the violent weather on the Fifth Army front, but American positions remained virtually unchanged. Many forward units were unable to get their full quota of essential supplies because of the washed-out bridges, swollen streams and the mud.

British In Greece Near Yugoslavia

Athens, Nov. 3 (AP)—British units pursuing the withdrawing Germans in northwestern Greece have captured the town of Phlorina, only five miles from the Yugoslav frontier, after inflicting casualties on enemy rear guards, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the same area British patrols derailed a 60-car German supply train, which later was destroyed by RAF Beaufighters. The Germans were being harassed by every available means as they beat their way northward.

The leader of the first British troops to enter Salonika two days ago said today that the big Greek port was a "shambles," with more than 50 ships sunk in its harbor. The Germans carried out extensive demolitions among the docks and elsewhere.

British Welcomed

Testifying to the enemy's shortage of equipment in the Balkans, the citizens of Salonika welcomed the British with shouts of "the Germans came in tanks but they left on donkeys."

The British destroyers Wheatland and Avonvale sank three enemy destroyers off the Yugoslav coast in the Adriatic on Wednesday, Allied naval headquarters announced. Marshal Tito announced last night the capture of the Adriatic port of Zara, 90 miles south of Fiume, by his Yugoslav Partisans.

ADVANCE IN GREECE

Rome, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Allied patrols pursuing the Germans in northern Greece inflicted casualties in an attack on an enemy rearguard column entering Phlorina, within five miles of the Yugoslav frontier and forty miles northwest of Kozane, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The patrols derailed an enemy train of sixty cars, a headquarters communique said, and Beaufighters destroyed it north of Salonika, now in Allied hands.

Brazilian Airmen in Action

AN ALLIED AIRFIELD IN ITALY, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (AP).—Brazilian airmen, piloting fighter bombers, went into action for the first time on this front today, carrying out strafing attacks far behind the enemy line.

Three Nazi Destroyers Sunk

Rome, Nov. 3 (AP)—The British destroyers Wheatland and Avon Vale engaged and sank three enemy destroyers Wednesday west of Pag Island, off the Yugoslav coast in the Adriatic, naval headquarters announced today.

Marshal Tito announced last night the capture of the Adriatic port of Zara, 90 miles south of Fiume. The Germans yesterday acknowledge the loss of the sizeable Yugoslav ports of Split, Metkovic and Dubrovnik on a 100-mile stretch of the Yugoslav Dalmatian coast.

Blackout In Turkey Ended

Ankara, Nov. 3 (AP)—The wartime blackout in Turkey has been ended, effective tonight. Government officials estimated that all bombing dangers had been eliminated with the evacuation of the near-by Greek port of Salonika.

Jap Road Blocks In Burma Cleared

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Ceylon, Nov. 3 (AP)—Troops of the Fifth Indian Division driving southeastward from Tiddim, in northwestern Burma, have cleared Japanese road blocks 12 miles from Tiddim and are forming a three-pronged attack on enemy positions at the so-called "vital corner" of the Tiddim-Fort White road, it was announced today.

The Indian troops also captured Japanese strong points on the slopes of Sialam, an 8,000-foot mountain overlooking the highway from the northwest, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's communique announced.

The "vital corner" is a narrow stretch of road forming a bottleneck along the Allies' path in their drive toward Fort White.

In northern Burma, troops of the 36th British Division consolidated their positions in the Mawlu area along the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad and sent patrols south of the town in the new Allied drive to clear an overland route to China. To the east Chinese troops on the left flank patrolled along the Taping river near Myothit.

SOONG DECLARES ACCORD REACHED

30. 24— 20127

BY U. S. AND CHINA

M.OOSA

CHUNGKING, Nov. 3—(AP) T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, declared today that China and the United States have reached "complete agreement" on closer military, political and economic cooperation and denied reports that the U. S. had exerted pressure on China to settle her Communist problem.

In the first detailed statement from a Chinese government official since the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell as commander in chief of American forces in the China-Burma-India theater, Soong said the recall was "entirely a question of personality"—that Stilwell and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek simply did not like each other and could not work together.

"The recall of Gen. Stilwell was entirely a question of personality and has nothing to do with any difference of policy between China and the United States," the foreign minister said in a written statement, which he later supplemented in a talk with foreign correspondents.

"On the contrary," he said, "when Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley and Mr. Donald Nelson, as personal representatives of President Roosevelt, came to confer with my government on closer military, political and economic cooperation, complete agreement was reached between us. "Far from any rift developing between China and the United States, I believe that from now on relations between the two countries will be more understanding, more intimate and more fruitful than ever before."

Soong acknowledged that the matter of cooperation between Chiang's government and the Chinese communists, had been discussed at the meeting in Chungking, but said the discussion was held in the most friendly manner. The matter, he said, was an internal problem of China and was respected by the Americans as such.

In discussing what he called "L'Affaire Stilwell," Soong also denied that there had been any disagreement between Chungking and Stilwell over the campaign in Burma. Soong said the dislike between Stilwell and Chiang had existed from the first year of Stilwell's stay in China.

The foreign minister said the Chinese welcomed the appointment of Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer as Stilwell's successor in China, and that the impending return of Nelson to Chungking under Chiang's urging injected a hopeful note into the situation.

The Generalissimo is known to have a high regard for Nelson.

COMMUNIST ISSUE DISCUSSED

But Soong Says Americans Talked Over Question in Most Friendly Fashion.

Chungking, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister T. V. Soong today denied reports of American pressure for a solution of China's communist problem and predicted a new deal in relations between China and the United States. Soong opened an interview with a written statement in which he emphasized the assertion that the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell was entirely a question of personality.

In his discussion, he said that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the former commander in chief of American forces in the China-Burma-India theater did not like each other and could not work together. He said that this relationship dated from the first year of Gen. Stilwell's stay in China. He emphasized that no difference of policy between China and the United States was involved.

Soong said he believed that future relations between China and the United States would be "more understanding, more intimate and more fruitful."

Says Events Will Show.

Soong said that the Chinese heartily welcomed the appointment of Major-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, U. S. A., as commander in the China theater, and that the resignation of United States Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss was in no way connected with the Stilwell episode. He acknowledged that the Communist question has been discussed between the Americans and the Chinese but only, he said, in the most friendly manner.

Soong denied any disagreement between Chungking and Gen. Stilwell over the campaign in Burma. He said that the Chinese welcomed constructive criticism but that unfortunately a great deal of the criticism abroad was not of that type. He said that events would show whether the critics of China were right or wrong.

Text of Statement.

Soong issued the following written statement, the first official Chinese comment to be made here since Gen. Stilwell's recall:

"When Gen. Stilwell was recalled my Government did not consider making any explanation because it was purely a military matter. However, there have arisen many speculations on the cause of this development, particularly in the United States, many of which are unfounded.

"We have no intention of dealing with them now, because there is a war going on and it is felt that in time any wrong impressions will be corrected by events. The recall of Gen. Stilwell was entirely a question of personality and has nothing to do with any difference of policy between China and the United States.

On the contrary, when Major-Gen. Patrick Hurley and Mr. Donald Nelson, as personal representatives of President Roosevelt, came to confer with my Government on closer military, political and economic co-operation, complete agreement was reached between us. Don't know if Gen. Hurley or Mr. Nelson feel themselves in a position to speak publicly, but if they do I am sure they will agree with this statement.

"Far from any rift developing between China and the United States, I believe that from now on relations between the two countries will be more understanding, more intimate and more fruitful than ever before.

"Of course, this statement touches on the realm of prophesy and it will be future events that will either justify or falsify it. But I, for one, feel entirely optimistic."

Meanwhile, today the announcement that Mr. Nelson is returning to China to assist in stepping up the output of China's war industry was greeted here as injecting a hopeful element in Sino-American relations beclouded by the events leading to Gen. Stilwell's recall.

Nelson Expected To Buck Up China's War Effort

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Organization of a Chinese War Production Board by Donald M. Nelson can be expected to help Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek bolster China's war effort without losing face through a government shakeup.

This view was voiced in official quarters today as Nelson prepared to leave next week in response to President Roosevelt's request for his "earliest possible" return to China as Mr. Roosevelt's personal representative. He will take Howard Coonley, former WPB associate of ex-Chairman Nelson and past president of the National Association of Manufacturers, as deputy.

Coonley To Stay On

Nelson will return to America in a matter of weeks, it is said, but will leave Coonley as China's production mentor. American steel and alcohol experts chosen for the mission will stay on also to build up China's meager steel output and improve transport by developing the use of alcohol as a truck fuel.

This new development in Sino-American relations underscores a belief voiced in diplomatic circles that sensational events of recent days—recall of Gen. Joseph T. Stilwell from the India-Burma-China command and resignation of Clarence E. Gauss, United States Ambassador to China—had not eliminated hopes of keeping China in the fight against Japan.

Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, who accompanied Nelson on his first trip, is still in China continuing efforts to bring about military unity between Chiang's forces and the Chinese Communists, under an American commander. His negotiations broke down when the generalissimo demanded removal of Stilwell, who would have held the command.

A looseness of Chiang's central administration, it is felt, can be circumvented to a large extent by creation of a WPB which would cut across traditional lines and tight family connections.

Soongs Hold Power

Chiang appears inextricably linked with the Soong family—that of Madame Chiang—in which power in China substantially centers. Changes in official relationships involving the Soongs appear most unlikely, and shakeups involving any other key Chinese officials could hardly be made without loss of face for Chiang because of recent world-wide comment on the alleged inadequacies of his ministers.

Outsiders like Nelson and Coonley—obviously brought in with Chiang's approval and backed by the nation that is China's chief support—could perform their emergency services without undue regard for the old lines of authority, it is believed, much as the American WPB cuts across established Federal departments.

ROOSEVELT WON'T DISCUSS STILWELL

Washington, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—When questioned about published reports concerning Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell and Secretary Hull, President Roosevelt replied today with a reference to the campaign "whisperings and rumorings" he had criticized last night.

At his news conference, Mr. Roosevelt was asked about the statement of Representative Judd (R.-Minn.) that Gen. Stilwell was recalled from China because Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had refused to accept a White House ultimatum demanding that the general be made commander of all of China's armies. In reply the President said that that may have been one of the things he was talking about last night when he criticized "whisperings and rumorings" in the presidential campaign. He thereupon referred the reporters to last night's speech in which he had said that "hysterical last minute accusations or sensational revelations" may develop in the closing days of the campaign, trumped up in an attempt to panic the voters.

The President also said it may have been one of the things of which Robert E. Hannegan, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, spoke in his address that followed the President's. Mr. Hannegan had said that the Republican campaign strategy was based "upon a single word—hate."

Mr. Roosevelt gave the same reply when asked about a published report that Secretary Hull is planning to resign because of his health and that Vice-President Wallace would succeed him.

Stilwell In Capital, Arranges For Leave

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell reached Washington this afternoon, denied himself to reporters, and arranged to take a short leave of absence.

An announcement that "Vinegar Joe" would have nothing to say publicly concerning his recall from the Far East was made by the War Department.

The announcement:

"General Stilwell arrived in Washington this afternoon by air and after conferring with War Department officials will take advantage of a short leave of absence.

"General Stilwell stated he had no public statement to make and therefore would not give any interviews to press or radio."

Sees Hasty Judgments.

London, Nov. 3 (A. P.)—The Times declared editorially today that hasty and extreme judgments in connection with the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell cannot but do harm to the cause of mutual understanding between the Western Allies and China.

"The continued existence of free China," the newspaper said, "is due at least as much to the unflinching determination of President Chiang Kai-shek to resist the Japanese, even when resistance appeared hopeless, as to his skill in utilizing such material resources, domestic and Allied, as have from time to time been at his disposal."

CHINESE TAKE LUNGLING CITY

MOOSA

Burma Road Town Falls After Four-Month Campaign

Chungking, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Chinese campaigning to reopen a land supply route from India recaptured the Burma road bastion of Lungling today and extras on Chungking's streets proclaimed the triumphant news.

The Chinese command's announcement of recapture of the city dispelled rumors that Chinese commanders along the Salween river front were considering withdrawal of their forces, and it tended to offset word of reversals elsewhere in China.

Fighting had swirled around the strategic city for four months. The Chinese launched an offensive to retake it Sunday, badly battering the Japanese in vicious fighting. The enemy remnants were reported in retreat southwestward tonight, with the victorious Chinese in pursuit.

Barred Ledo Road Junction

Lungling, in Yunnan province 100 miles across the mountains from the Allies' north Burma base at Myitkyina, was the last major enemy strong point barring a junction of the Ledo road out of India with the old Burma road in southwest China.

It was with the avowed purpose of clearing the Chinese section of the old road that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies struck out May 11 in an offensive over some of the most difficult fighting country in the world—the gorges, cloud-shrouded passes and towering peaks of Yunnan province.

On June 10 the Chinese seized this largest city on the Burma road west of the Salween river, but the Japanese returned with strong reinforcements and forced them to withdraw.

On Sunday the Chinese, who had maintained menacing positions in the hills surrounding Lungling, uncorked a determined drive to recapture the city, and one hilltop strongpoint after another was seized.

Bombers Aid Drive

At 2.30 A. M. today the Central News Agency reported the conquering Chinese marched into the city and hoisted the flag of China over its walls.

Chinese and American fighters and fighter-bombers swarmed in for the final assault, blasting away at Japanese positions and ranging on along the enemy line of retreat.

They hit a bridge on the Burma road at Hsenwi, scored direct bomb hits on a Japanese-occupied village three miles southwest of Mangshih and strafed another village six miles to the north.

Kweilin Virtually Circled

Kweilin, a potential stumbling block for the Japanese effort to seal off free China from any American landings along the coast, virtually was incircled tonight.

The Chinese high command admitted that one Japanese column had swung around to a position only six miles west of this city in northeastern Kwangsi province, while another, moving around from the east, was 18 miles southwest of Kweilin. The enemy arc was anchored north of the city.

Despite these developments, an army spokesman appeared confident Kweilin could indure a long siege.

Japanese on the east were only two miles from the city, and on the north they threw in two tank-supported attacks near the railway station in the suburbs which the Chinese said were thrown back six miles.

The Japanese were moving ahead elsewhere in Kwangsi province, developing a multiple threat to Liuchow, important railway junction in the heart of the province 95 miles southwest of Kweilin.

The Japanese seized Pinglo, 75 miles southeast of Kweilin and pressed on west toward Laopo, some 65 miles east of Liuchow.

Last Major Jap Base On Burma Road Taken

Chungking, Nov. 3 (AP) — Lungling, principal remaining Japanese bastion on the Salween river front in southwest China, was recaptured today by the Chinese after a five-day assault, the high command announced. This removed the last major obstacle toward a juncture of the Ledo and Burma roads and reopening of a land supply route to China.

But in south central China the Japanese pressed hard against the pivotal Kwangsi province city of Kweilin. One column on the east was only two miles away. A Chinese army spokesman predicted Kweilin would be able to endure a long siege.

In Full Pursuit

Enemy remnants from Lungling retreated southwest toward Mangshih with the Chinese in full pursuit, the high command said. Mangshih, fortress point on the Burma Road, must be reduced before the Chinese can make effective use of portions of the highway they have cleared, but Lungling's recapture was the second greatest victory of the Salween offensive. The first was the capture of the prime enemy base of Tengchung, 35 miles northwest of Lungling, on September 14.

The American "Y" force prepared the Chinese for the offensive, which was launched May 11.

Jap Destroyer Sunk Off China By Liberators

Chungking, Nov. 3 (AP)—United States Liberator bombers, droning out over the South China Sea, sank a Japanese destroyer Thursday and left a large transport listing, it was announced today.

The bombers, underscoring that one of the enemy's sea lanes is immune from attack, pounced on a convoy steaming east of Hainan island, said a communique from the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States Army forces in China.

The four-engined bombers drove home their attacks in two separate actions. All returned.

British Ship Sinks, 45 Missing

Mantane, Que., Nov. 3 (AP)—Forty-five merchant seamen were missing today after a British freighter sank in the St. Lawrence river near Mantane. With the cause of the sinking obscure, there was speculation that Nazi submarines had again penetrated the St. Lawrence.

The ship went down last night after two explosions. Seventeen survivors who rowed across the swift St. Lawrence current for six hours in the only lifeboat known to have left the vessel landed at near-by petite Mantane this morning.

The St. Lawrence is 30 miles wide here.

The ship was outward bound. The crew, one of the survivors said, totaled 62.

Enemy Calls Tokyo Raids Inevitable

San Francisco, Nov. 3 (AP)—Nervous Tokyo radio warned the Japanese people today that the appearance of American Superforts over the capital Wednesday would inevitably be followed by bombing raids.

An almost simultaneous imperial communique said Nipponese planes raided United State airfields on Saipan and Tinian Islands in the Marianas, previously described by Japanese broadcasts as the probable base of Wednesday's reconnaissance flight.

Two-Way Blows Seen

The broadcasts typified Nipponese fears that bombers from the Marianas would strike at Tokyo from the south, while China-based Superforts would hit southern Japan from the west.

"It must be viewed as inevitable that the enemy will again raid Tokyo," Japanese broadcasts said, and "subsequently carry out bombings" on the crowded industrial areas along Honshu Island's eastern coast.

Today's imperial communique, unconfirmed by American sources, said ten planes were bombed on the ground and United States Marianas airfield installations left in flames.

Shifts Made In Jap Puppet Regimes

San Francisco, Nov. 3 (AP)—A general tightening of Japanese controls over puppet governments which began early this week was continued today with abolition of the Welfare and Publicity Ministry of Burma and substitution of two new ministries.

The Japanese Domei (news) agency announced creation of a Ministry of Religion, Welfare and National Organization to "guide the acivities of the Baha Bama Asiayone (Greater Burma Association) and a propaganda ministry to unify all propaganda organs.

Base In Tokyo

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said Bandoola U. Sein, head of the Abolished ministry, would be chief of the Religion, Welfare and National Organization Ministry, and Thakin Nu, a minister without portfolio, of the Propaganda Ministry.

This step followed the arrival yetserday in Tokyo of Subhas Chandra Bose, leader of the puppet "Free India" government, for conferences with Premier General Kuniaki Koiso and other government figures on "vital matters which will make for intensifying cooperationo in the present decisive stage of the war."

Bose's visit coincided with the arrival in Shanghai of Masatsune Ogura, supreme economic adviser to the Japanese puppet government of China.

New Vice-Minister

Jose P. Laurel, puppet President of the Philippines, joined the parade with appointment of a new Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, Teodora Evangelista, whose "loyalty and patriotism have been tested and not found wanting."

Yesterday the puppet Nanking Government announced the appointment of Jen Yuan-tao, present Navy Minister, to the post of Governor of Kiangsu province on the eastern China seacoast "in view of the strategic importance of the province."

Jap Vice-Admiral Nakamura Dies At 61

San Francisco, Nov. 3 (AP)—The death of Japanese Vice-Admiral Kamesaburo Nakamura, 61, from "liver complications," was reported by the Nippon Domei agency today in a Tokyo broadcast picked up by FCC.

The agency said the admiral, in his active career, served as naval college commander at the Maizuru Naval Station, as a member of the navy general staff and as commander of the Sasebo garrison headquarters. He was a retired president of the Kochi Prefecture Shipbuilding Company.

B-29s Carrying Record Loads Hit Rangoon

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Superfortresses carrying record bomb loads today raided railroad marshaling yards at Rangoon, in Japanese-dominated Burma.

No planes were lost as a result of enemy action, the War Department announced.

The B-29s took off from bases in India. The department followed up an initial communique telling of the raid with a supplemental announcement saying:

"There were no losses on this mission as a result of enemy action."

Damage Estimates Good

A 20th Air Force communique said the daylight attack was made "in substantial force" and that "preliminary estimates of damage inflicted are good."

The communique reported the B-29 raid was made in coordination with elements of the Eastern Air Command. This was the first report of the giant bombers working on a mission with smaller aircraft.

Word that the Superforts took off from Indian bases suggested that the planes from the Eastern Air Command may have been Flying Fortresses or Liberators of the Tenth Air Force based in India. The 10th and 14th Air forces, the latter with bases in China, are part of the Eastern Air Command.

The text of 20th Air Force communique No. 19:

"B-29 Superfortresses of the 20th Air Force today carried out a daylight bombing mission against the large Malagon railroad marshaling yards at Rangoon in Japanese dominated Burma. The attack was made in substantial force by elements of the 20th Bomber Command from bases in India in coordination with elements of the Eastern Air Command.

Weather Favorable

"Attacking by daylight the B-29's carried the largest bomb loads per aircraft so far known to be listed in aerial warfare. Reports from aircraft over the target area described the weather as favorable and preliminary estimates of damage inflicted are good. No further information is available at this time."

A communique today from Allied Southeast Asia Command headquarters said Eastern Air Command planes yesterday scored hits on the central Burma-Rangoon oil pipeline at Sinbaungwe. The important rail bridge at Dara, Siam, also was struck and was heavily damaged during a low-level attack Wednesday, the bulletin said.

Jap Destroyer Sunk

United States 14th Air Force headquarters in China announced two sweeps over the South China Sea by Liberator bombers yesterday in which a Japanese destroyer was sunk and a large transport was damaged and left listing. The attacks were made against an enemy convoy east of Hainan Island.

United States 14th Air Force planes also attacked in French Indo-China, hitting a barracks area at Lucdan and striking at river traffic. Fighters attacked the Galam airdrome at Hanoi and strafed rail targets.

DATA ON BUSINESS OPEN TO FRANCE

Free Exchange With United States Now Permitted

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—This country lifted its ban on free exchange of business and personal information with France today, as a preliminary step toward reopening trade with that nation.

Five-cent postal service will be started tomorrow, said the Post-office Department. The United States, in coordination with the British Empire, officially removed liberated areas of France from the category of "enemy territory."

To Use Frozen Funds

Treasury officials, announcing the restoration of commercial communications, disclosed that the de Gaulle Government now was being permitted to use freely its "frozen" funds in this country.

This is done through a liberal licensing technique. The United States still has not unfrozen the assets and can prevent their use any time it thinks best. The Treasury officials said a "number of problems" must be worked out before the actual unfreezing of the funds.

For the present, private French assets in this country still will not be accessible, generally speaking, to the French individuals and companies owning them.

Nor will private trade or financial transactions be allowed, except that remittances for the support of an individual may be sent to France through banking channels, not more than $500 a month.

Postal Channels Open

As for communications, starting tomorrow you can send a letter, up to one ounce, to any part of continental France except the territory of Belfort and the departments of Doubs, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Meuse, Moselle, Bas-Rhin, Haut-Rhin, Haute-Saone and Vosges.

The letter can be on either business or personal matters. You also can send a cable. Up to now only postcards, unillustrated and on personal and family matters, have been permitted.

Without a license, American and French firms now can establish business contracts, exchange information, financial records and commercial reports. Creditors may get in touch with their debtors.

French Assets In U. S.

However, Treasury licenses will not be granted for the present for sending powers of attorney, executed proxies, payment instructions and other communications which are transactional in nature.

French assets in this country are valued at about $1,400,000,000. Treasury officials declined to say how much of that is in the name of the French Government, but estimates range as high as $900,000,000.

EUROPEAN FOOD NEEDS DISCUSSED

Official Cites Russian, British Requirements After War

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Russia will need American food for about three years after the European war ends, Lieut. Col. Ralph W. Olmstead, Deputy War Food Administrator, predicted today.

Great Britain also will need continued food imports from the United States after the war, he told a press conference. Olmstead has just returned from Europe, where he went September 1 to determine food needs for the coming year.

Declined To Discuss Terms

"Russia could use ten times the food it is getting if we could find the shipping space to transport it," Olmstead said.

He said he had deliberately declined to discuss financial terms for post-war food imports with either the Russians or the British.

However, he said there is a large prospective food surplus here and he predicted this country would run into difficulty if it attempts either to "dump" the surplus or sell it abroad at domestic prices.

In his opinion, he said, the greatest potential post-war demand for agricultural products from this country will be cotton, because "nothing is short everywhere."

As to the present situations, he gave the experts:

That adequate food, although not comfortable diet.

It is impossible to know what French requirements will be next year.

Russia needs less grain next year, but will require animal products, animal fats, dairy products and sugar now and after the war.

U. S. MAY CUT AID TO BRITAIN

Lend-Lease Likely To Be Halved If Act Is Continued

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—American lend-lease to the British Empire would be continued in 1945, but on a reduced scale, under tentative proposals now under consideration, it was learned today.

The tentative plans, officials said, call for a cut of about 50 per cent., which would mean American aid of between $5,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000.

The officials said the British first estimated their needs at $6,500,000,000 but had since indicated this total might be scaled down by $500,000,000 or $1,000,000,000. Lend-lease to the British Empire currently is at a rate which would put it over the $10,000,000,000 mark for 1944.

Working On Details

The original British estimates were turned over to President Roosevelt by Prime Minister Churchill at their Quebec confer-

Britain's 1945 Lend-Lease Request Put at 5 to 6 Billion

Rule Barring Export Resale Is Reported to Have Been Reaffirmed at Recent Roosevelt-Churchill Meeting.

Washington, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—Great Britain is reported to be asking the United States for five to six billion dollars worth of essential civilian and military lend-lease supplies for 1945.

According to these reports, Prime Minister Churchill took with him to Quebec for discussion with President Roosevelt in September a rough estimate of $6,500,000,000 for Britain's projected needs for next year. In 1945, the Allied military effort will be devoted exclusively to defeating Japan, for as many months of the year as remain after Germany's defeat.

This is known as the "second phase" of lend-lease and American and British experts are now working out detailed supply programs. Indications are that the total finally to be agreed upon—which will then be subject to presidential approval and indirectly to congressional action—will be between $500,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 less than the British originally figured.

President oosevelt said at his press conference today, however, that he has never heard of a story that this country is considering giving Great Britain $2,500,000,000 of non-military supplies for export resale.

'Ground Rules' Reaffirmed.

A ranking lend-lease official said that the "ground rules" of lend-lease operations would remain unchanged and had in fact been reaffirmed "at a high level" by British and American agreement—presumably referring to the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at Quebec.

These ground rules are principally two:

1. No lend-lease article or any article similar thereto is to be exported. This rule has been in effect since the beginning of lend-lease operations. If the British desire to export any article they must shift it over to a cash payment basis.

1. Strategic decisions are to govern all shipments of supplies under lend-lease, including both military and essential civilian goods, since the only legal provision for shipping civilian goods abroad is that they should contribute to the war effort of an Ally in defeating the common enemy.

Mr. Roosevelt laid down earlier this year the principle that lend-lease should be continued to European Allies during the "second phase" of the war when only Japan remains.

British May Reduce Request.

The $6,500,000,000 estimated total of lend-lease which Mr. Churchill carried to Quebec included $3,500,000,000 of so-called essential civilian supplies which include raw materials to be manufactured into war goods; fuel, which includes fuel for the use of American forces in the European theater, and good. The other part of the total was $3,000,000,000 for finished munitions.

Responsible authorities said that the British have now indicated a willingness to scale down their civilian goods estimate to about $2,500,000,000, a cut of approximately $1,000,000,000.

It was said that earlier decisions not to supply Britain with such long-time equipment as machine tools, which would have more usefulness after the post-war than in the immediate future still governed in the current negotiations which probably will not be completed for some weeks.

ence. British and American experts now are working on detailed programs.

Whatever figures may tentatively be arrived at will be subject to revision depending upon whether the European war continues into the spring as Churchill has suggested is possible.

Indirectly, the program must be submitted, too, to the new Congress to be elected next Tuesday. The Lend-Lease Act expires next July 1.

A high lend-lease official said no change was contemplated in the basic lend-lease agreement, which includes a provision against re-export of any lend-lease article or article similar thereto.

Never Heard Of Report

At his news conference today the President was asked for comment on a report that Britain desired an amendment of this provision to permit sale of some lend-lease civilian goods to her export trade.

He had never heard of it, the President said.

The $6,500,000,000 originally proposed by the British was reported to be divided in this manner; $3,000,000,000 in finished munitions and $3,500,000,000 of so-called civilian goods, including food, raw materials to be manufactured into war goods, and fuel, including fuel for use of American forces in the European theater. It was the latter figure which the British indicated might be scaled down by one third or more.

Would Continue Lend-Lease

President Roosevelt recommended in a report to Congress last August that lend-lease to the European allies be continued while the war with Japan lasts. He reported at that time that American aid extended under the program begun in 1941 totaled $28,270,351,000 through September 30. Reverse lend-lease to this country was estimated at over $3,000,000,000.

A new quarterly report covering the program through September 30 is due to go to Congress soon after it reconvenes on November 14.

Franco Tightening Control

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—American and foreign diplomats here confirmed today that Generalissimo Franco has tightened his controls in Spain as an aftermath of recent disturbances in the northern provinces.

The possibility of a return of the monarchy has thus been delayed, said an informed source who, withholding the use of his name, reported Franco's aim to be reestablishment of royalty.

Information reaching Washington supports a middle course between first reports of large scale uprising along the Franco-Spanish border and later denials of any clashes between Spanish Republicans in the French Maquis and the Spanish army.

Frontier Closed

Some incidents did occur on the Spanish side of the border, it was learned reliably, with the result that Spain has closed the mountainous frontier, sent troops to the area, and established a safety zone of about 12 miles.

Diplomatic difficulties which threatened between Madrid and Paris because of the border fights now have apparently faded and it was learned that Spain is proceeding with plans to reestablish normal relations with France.

No Steps By French

The French Government, however, has disclosed no steps in that direction.

Among the measures reported taken by Franco to strengthen his hand in Spain is a number of "precautionary arrests." The State Department is watching the situation but has declined official comment.

Other diplomats regard it as a setback rather than an advance in the developments of Spain's relations with the United Nations.

Salvador Envoy Resigns

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP).—Dr. Hector David Castro, Ambassador of El Salvador, said today he had submitted his resignation as representative of his country to the United States. Ambassador Castro conferred this morning with Edward R. Stettinius jr., Acting Secretary of State, on what he described as a farewell visit. He declined to comment on his resignation, but disclosed that the new revolutionary government of El Salvador has requested that he continue serving as Ambassador in Washington. Mr. Castro confirmed his resignation by cable yesterday after this request, he said.

President Increases Italy's Bread Ration

Washington, Nov. 2 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt has asked military authorities to increase the bread ration for all areas of liberated Italy to 300 grams a day, the War Department announced.

Last summer Allied officials ordered the bread ration increased to 300 grams, but because of the supply situation this could not be accomplished in all the liberated territory.

Statue Of Liberty Asked For France

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Congressional support is being solicited for a project to give the French—donors of the majestic figure whose light shines out over New York harbor—their own statue of liberty.

"Now that the people of France are regaining their freedom, history renders us the opportunity of reciprocating," says a letter to all Senators and Representatives from "A Statue of Liberty for France, Inc."

It suggests that the statue stand at Cherbourg.

Robert Mernit, of New York, signed the letter as a director of the organization, which lists among its sponsors Govs. William H. Wills of Vermont, J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island and Lester C. Hunt of Wyoming.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Nov. 3 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today a list of 194 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 70,765 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 28,342 are reported dead, 28,614 wounded, 9,331 missing and 4,478 prisoners of war. The list today includes the following with their next of kin:

U. S. Gains 145 Ships, 7,429 Planes In October

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—The nation's aerial and ocean strength was swelled last month by 7,429 planes and 145 cargo and transport ships, the Aircraft Production Board and Maritime Commission announced today.

War plane production met the total October goal but was sharply below objectives for certain urgently needed types, said J. A. Krug, chairman of APB. It was 169 planes beneath September output.

The maritime report was brighter for it revealed a gain in output of large assault vessels for which the navy has been pleading. Fifty-three of the October deliveries were military vessels and more than half of those were combat-loaded transports, combat-loaded cargo ships and navy transports.

To Pay $2,150,000 For Four Lost Ships

Washington, Nov. 3.—The War Shipping Administration has agreed to pay the United Fruit Company $2,150,000 for the loss of four of its pre-war ships through enemy action while in war service under charter to the Government, it was announced today. The sum recommended by the WSA committee on vessel compensation and approved by Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, U. S. N., retired, WSA Administrator, covers all claims.

The vessels were the steamships Metapan, Partismina, Tivives and Sixaola.

The navy men said at the time of the affair that the fight started when they objected to being questioned as to whether they intended to vote for the Commander in Chief.

The teamsters' magazine's article included numerous affidavits from teamster members who said they engaged in or witnessed the disturbance which took place just outside the banquet hall but after President Roosevelt had left the hotel.

Navy shore patrolmen were called and the officers left the hotel with them.

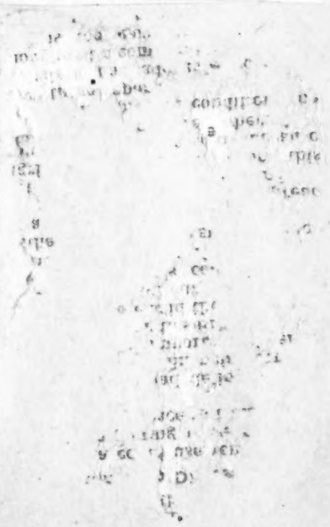
Forrestal Letter Made Public

During the furor which developed later over the incident, Representative Maas (R., Minn.) made public a letter from James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, which said the shore patrol's report "shows that no complaint or charge of misconduct was made against either of the officers involved and none is pending."

Congressional committees to investigate the elections made preliminary inquiries into the incident but decided it was none of their affair.

Officers Sue Teamster Union Over Statler 'Battle' Item

NOV 4 1944



Washington, Nov. 3 (AP)—Damage suits asking $400,000 from the AF Teamsters Union were filed today by the two naval officers involved in the now famous "Battle of the Statler."

Lieut. Randolph Dickins, Jr., and Lieut. Com. James H. Suddeth contended in a complaint filed in United States District Court that they were libeled in articles published by the International Teamster, union magazine, concerning the fisticuffs at the Statler Hotel September 23 after President Roosevelt addressed a teamsters' banquet.

Misconduct Charge Alleged

Each officer asked $200,000. Daniel J. Tobin, international president of the union, also was named a defendant.

The complaint said the union magazine's article accused the officers of numerous acts of misconduct, which, if true, would subject them to court-martial. It said the purpose was to destroy the good name and reputation of the officers and "to influence the election of the present incumbent in the office of President of the United States to another term in the same office."

President Urges Time Off for All to Vote; Asks Report by Any Worker Kept From Polls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a statement tonight, urged all employers to give to their workers "adequate" time off to vote Tuesday and asked that any employe who does not receive enough time off "inform me of the circumstances, together with the name of his company and any other pertinent facts."

He declared it important that "the mandate of the election should be as representative of the whole people as possible, irrespective of whom they vote for."

He preceded the statement with a news conference announcement that Government workers would receive reasonable time in which to vote and, if necessary, could take the whole day off to get to and from their polling places.

In the statement he said that some companies with Government contracts had raised the question whether pay to their workers would be allowed as "reimbursable cost" if time was given on Election Day. He answered in the affirmative.

The text of the President's statement was as follows:

"I urge that all employers allow such time off to their workers as is necessary to give them an adequate opportunity to vote on Election Day.

"It is important that the mandate of the election should be as representative of the whole people as possible, irrespective of whom they vote for.

"I am informed that certain companies having contracts with the Government have raised with procurement agencies the question whether, under such contracts, pay to their workers will be allowed as reimbursable cost if time off is granted on election day.

"The agencies have ruled that such payments are legitimate expenditures under cost plus contracts; that they may be considered for the purpose of making any computation or adjustment required by the provisions of fixed price contracts, and that they may also be appropriately allowed as such expenditures in renegotiation of lump sum contracts.

"Under these circumstances all firms having contracts with the Government are especially urged to allow their workers—who have done so much to help win this war—to have full opportunity to express their choice in this election, whatever that choice may be.

"And I ask that any employe who is not allowed enough time to vote inform me of the circumstances, together with the name of his company and any other pertinent facts.

"There has been much interest in the subject of soldier voting. I am sure that there is an equal interest in facilitating the vote of civilian workers, regardless of their choice. This point of view seems to be essentially American."

CROWLEY FAVORS FDR IN NOV. 7 ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — (AP) Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic administrator, tonight called speed victory, a just and lasting peace and greater productive employmen the only "real issues" of the presidential campaign.

Addressing himself specifically t "those who have been in doubt," Crowley recommended that before they cast their ballots Nov. 7 they "put aside all lesser considerations and meditate for a moment on who, as president, will do the most" towards those ends.

"Your choice will be Franklin D. Roosevelt," he asserted in an address prepared for delivery over the Mutual network under sponsorship of the Democratic National committee.

SENATOR GLASS BACKS ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 — (AP) Stephen Early, White House secretary, said today Senator Carter Glass had sent President Roosevelt his love and had confirmed a report that he would vote for a fourth term.

The 86-year-old Virginia Democrat's son, Powell Glass, asserted in Lynchburg, Va., last night that he had "every reason to doubt the truth" of a report that the elder Glass had telephoned James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, and said he was for Roosevelt.

Glass himself, ill at his hotel apartment here for many months, could not be reached by reporters. The hotel said the "Glass apartment does not answer" on the telephone. Byrnes' office declined to comment.

Early, calling reporters into his office this afternoon, told them:

"I have just had a telephone call from Senator Glass at his apartment in the Mayflower and he said he had noticed that Jimmy Byrnes' report of his conversation the other night had been questioned. He wanted to tell me that Jimmy's statement as transmitted to you by me was accurate. He wanted me to tell the President he is voting for him and to give the President his love."

Byrnes made a fourth term speech Monday night. On Tuesday Early told reporters that congratulatory telephone calls received by Byrnes' after the speech included one from the Senator, who stayed up past his usual bedtime to hear the speech. Early reported that Glass called Byrnes' speech one of the best of the campaign and said it expressed his own views on why the President should be elected again.

Senator Glass, often at odds with the Roosevelt administration on domestic policies, was a third-term opponent, and nominated James A. Farley at the 1940 Democratic national convention. He announced after Mr. Roosevelt won renomination, that he would support the ticket.

Brownell Identifies Hillman With Communistic Society

New York, Nov. 3 (AP)—Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman, said tonight that Sidney Hillman "was a founder of an organization that contributed almost $2,000,000 to Communist causes in America."

Brownell, saying that Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, in a radio talk last night had attempted "to prove that Mr. Sidney Hillman had no Communist connections," said the CIO-PAC leader was a director of the American Fund for Public Service, founded in 1922.

"A Democratic committee of the Congress has described this fund as a large project to finance Communistic subversive activities in the United States," Brownell declared in a formal statement.

Was Member Of Board

"The same Congressional committee stated that Sidney Hillman was mixed up with this project. He was more than mixed up. Sidney Hillman was a member of the board of directors of this project."

Brownell said Hillman later quit the organization but, he added, the fact remains that he was a founder of an organization that contributed almost $2,000,000 to Communist causes in America, including financing of the New Masses, Revolutionary Age, the Young Workers League of America and The Worker's School . . ."

The fund, he added, also contributed to the Daily Worker and the Communist federated press.

Among Directors

The Republican chairman said that among other directors of the fund were William Z. Foster, "then head of the Communist party in the United States," and Robert Morss Lovett, "so definitely a Communist that the Congress . . . passed legislation to remove him from the pay roll of the Federal Government."

Brownell declared that the fund contributed $500 to the Ferrer School, and, he added, the secretary of the fund wrote: "We gave to the Ferrer School for its educational work with children, which is certainly not sectarian although the auspices are, as you say, largely anarchistic."

The "Ferrer School" was not further identified.

Could Not Be Reached

"Of course," Brownell continued, "Sidney Hillman may protest that he was just sitting in to get some of the gravy of the One Thousand Club of that day, because the secretary in another letter said: 'When we contributed so heavily to the New York Call it was being backed up as a political organization by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.'"

Hillman could not be reached for comment.

'COMMUNISM' CHARGE DENIED

Catholic Papers Quoted In Defense Of Hillman

New York, Nov. 3 (AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, last night described as "another Dewey falsehood" the statement that "Sidney Hillman is a . . . front for Communists."

He quoted three Catholic publications, the Commonweal, the Liguorian and America, in refutation and said "the falsity of another Dewey charge is conclusively established by the accredited spokesman of the faith which he sought primarily to mislead."

At Oconomowoc, Wis., where the Liguorian is published by the Redemptorist's Order, the Rev. D. F. Miller, editor, said that an article, written by the Rev. Raymond J. Miller, an associate editor, had appeared in the October issue discussing the PAC and Hillman.

"Never Was A Communist"

The Rev. Raymond J. Miller wrote in the article that "the fact is that he (Hillman) is not and never was a Communist and his own union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, of which he is the 'czar' is one of the few which expressly and rigidly excludes Communists from position of control. . . .

"According to very trusted evidence, therefore—namely, the best evidence the Dies committee could find—neither Sidney Hillman nor the CIO-PAC is Communistic," Father Miller wrote.

The associate editor stated that "the Dies committee does not allege that Sidney Hillman is a Communist or a Communist supporter."

Other Opinions

In New York, Edward Skillin, editor of The Commonweal, said Hannegan's quotation from that publication was "100 per cent accurate," asserting:

"A question of fact is involved in the charge that the PAC and Hillman are Communists. The facts do not warrant such a charge."

Father John Lafarge, S. J., editor of the official Jesuit organ, America, said "we don't indorse the PAC, but we refute what seems to us an unjust charge."

MURRAY RAPS DEWEY FOR ATTACKS ON PAC

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 — (AP) Philip Murray, chairman of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, declared today that Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey and his running mate, Gov. John W. Bricker, had resorted to language that breeds "destruction and discontent."

Murray told a luncheon of the Women's division of the National Citizens' Political Action committee that "many hoods" had entered the campaign, and said "when you pick up a hood along the highway the day after election under it you will find a little man named Dewey."

"Dewey may go to Boston and burn a fiery cross and other leaders of the Republican party may resort to filth and dissension to confuse and divide the people," Murray said, "but organizations like this must think in terms of serving human beings. They must come first."

WALLACE ADMITS NEW YORK 'CLOSE'

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP) Vice President Henry A. Wallace, campaigning for a fourth day in New York city, declared tonight "New York is close" and indicated he was here at President Roosevelt's behest.

"Roosevelt is in, but I want to say to you the job you do here in New York is closer to the heart beat of your great President than any other state," Wallace said in an address at Brooklyn's traditional closing rally in the Academy of Music. "He has told me so. Otherwise I would have spent the last campaign week elsewhere. New York is close."

President Roosevelt spoke four years ago from the same platform in this strong Democratic borough where the Democrats are counting on a plurality in excess of 300,000 in their bid for New York's 47 electoral votes.

Wallace predicted that President Roosevelt and U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, who shared the same platform, would get an 800,000 majority in New York city's five boroughs, and added "you are going to show that Brooklyn can do a better job than the Bronx for Roosevelt."

cluded that Pennsylvania's 35 electoral votes will decide the election.

Starts November 22

In the event of such a close race the winner might not be known until Pennsylvania's tabulation of its 250,000 or more soldier votes is completed. The tabulation will begin November 22 and may take several days.

Should the election hinge on California's 25 electoral votes, however, as it did in 1916, the winner might not be known for an even longer period. California, which has mailed more than 250,000 GI ballots, will start counting the returned ones November 24, but the official total will not be announced until December 16.

North Dakota Plans

North Dakota will count soldier votes received by November 7 on that day, while late arriving ballots will be counted any time before the State canvass December 5.

Utah will count its State GI ballots election night, and its Federal ballots November 12. Nebraska will count State ballots November 13 and Federal ballots December 1. Washington's county canvasses will begin November 27 with the State canvass set for December 7.

Most counties in Florida will begin the soldier-vote tabulation November 8.

and withdrew to his study to polish tomorrow night's Madison Square Garden speech.

The Republican presidential nominee resisted eleventh-hour pressure to accept invitations to visit Connecticut and New Jersey before Tuesday's election.

The topic for tomorrow night's nationwide broadcast from Madison Square Garden, which will follow one by President Roosevelt from Boston, was a closely guarded secret. Speculative suggestions by reporters brought only arched eyebrows from members of Dewey's staff.

Although the Governor is known to have been advised by his managers that the election was "frozen" nationally two weeks ago, he has displayed a determination to keep swinging until the final bell.

His campaign, which began on what his aides described as a scholarly, academic plane, may end in a verbal slugfest. This was made manifest by the rising tempo of his attacks on President Roosevelt, whom he accused during a swing through Pennsylvania last night of so "corrupting" the Democratic party that it is for sale to "the highest bidder."

Addressing rallies in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, Dewey declared that the members of what he called the "notorious One Thousand club" were being "taken for a ride" and that the "highest bidders" were Sidney Hillman's Political Action committee and Earl Browder's Communists. He said the One Thousand club was made up of persons who donated $1,000 to the fourth term campaign in return for "special privilege" and a voice in shaping national policy.

Dewey Plans Major Address In New York City Tonight

Dewey returned to Albany this morning after campaign trips that carried him more than 20,000 miles back and forth across the country.

After his speech in New York city tomorrow, he plans to return to Albany, where on Monday night he will broadcast a final summation of his case for the presidency. On Tuesday, he and Mrs. Dewey will return to Manhattan, their legal residence, to vote.

Soldier Vote Might Decide Close Presidential Contest

New York, Nov. 3 (AP)—If the Presidential race is as close as four nation-wide polls predict, the winner may not be known until the soldier votes are counted—days or even weeks after election day.

Eleven States, with a total of 123 electoral votes, will not count all their military ballots election night. At least three of them—Pennsylvania, Maryland and Missouri—are classed by the polls as "doubtful." One opinion survey has con-

G.O.P. Nominee to End Campaign Without Visits to Conn., Jersey.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 3 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey decided today to confine the remainder of his campaigning to New York state, BOSTON, Nov. 3 — (AP) Asserting that the war "in the European area has been ably accomplished with complete disregard of partisan politics or advantage," John G. Winant, U. S. ambassdor to Great Britain tonight called for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

In a nationwide radio address, Winant declared "no one living can do so much to insure lasting peace as Franklin Roosevelt if he continues as President of the United States."

Winant three times Republican governor of New Hampshire, in a speech sponsored by the Massachusetts Independent Voters committee for Roosevelt and Truman, stated:

"It is impossible for me to believe the charge that there has been inefficiency at home. The competence of our armed forces, the limitless supplies of food stuffs and war materials, the extraordinary skill in coordination and command, which culminated in the channel crossing and the successful invasion of France, surpassed military feats of all times.

"Anyone who had the privilege of seeing any part of those stupendous operations was forced to recognize the careful planning that lay behind it, and no one who knows the problems of war, reaching way beyond the immediate area of battle, back into other countries and affecting other fronts, could help but realize the political statesmanship, as well as the miltary skill involved in that historic expedition."

Winant emphasized that he had "seen at close range the conduct of the war effort in the European area."

Answering charges by Republican speakers that the president had not prepared the country for war, the Ambassador declared:

"There are those who now say that the President did not give us sufficient warnings and not do enough to arouse us to our danger. But looking back, I am struck with his courage and vision.

"I remember how he took his political life in his hands when he sent a million rifles to England when France fell. And how when Great Britain was in imminent danger of invasion and had to have more destroyers, he worked out an arrangement for the exchange of destroyers for bases."

BRICKER HAILED IN PHILADELPHIA

Ambassador Winant Backs FDR For Fourth Term 'to Win Peace'

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3—(AP) In his final pre-election appeal to the nation Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight that Thomas E. Dewey, the Republicans' presidential candidate, was better qualified to "preserve representative government" and serve in these capacities:

1—Winning the war, 2—Constructing a lasting peace, and 3—Solving the domestic problems of postwar America.

On the other hand, said the G.O.P. vice presidential nominee in a speech broadcast to the nation, President Roosevelt "has repudiated free representative government" and "is not the man to serve representative government at home or abroad."

The Ohio Governor rolled into Philadelphia aboard his special train to receive his greatest welcome in nearly 16,000 miles of campaigning.

Guy Parsons, assistant police superintendent, estimated 7,000 persons were in the crowd that jammed the Broad street station and surrounding sidewalks.

His speech here followed addresses earlier in the day at Wilmington, Del., and Camden, N. J. Police Captain H. J. Wadman estimated 8,000 persons were massed in Rodney Square at Wilmington to hear Bricker.

At Wilmington he declared that the New Deal in soliciting campaign contributions had resorted "to downright political corruption" by demanding, "in cold and brazen terms, financial tribute for its favors."

The tall, gray-haired, three-term governor of Ohio will wind up his quest for the vice presidency tomorrow with four speeches in his home state.

Winchester Brothers Meet In New Guinea

Winchester, Va., Nov. 3 (AP)—Private Harry Murphy wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Murphy, of Winchester, that when he landed in New Guinea he asked the first GI he saw whether he knew where he could find his brother, Private Paul Murphy.

The GI was his brother. The two Winchester soldiers hadn't seen each other for 38 months.

Mississippi Governor Unconcerned Over Bolt

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3 (AP)—Gov. Thomas L. Bailey signed today a legislative bill providing for a supplementary list of nine pro-Roosevelt Presidential electors, and expressed unconcern over whether the legislative action in Mississippi's Democratic elector revolt would endanger the status of the State's members of Congress.

The Congressional issue was raised by John J. O'Connor, in charge of the New York office of the American Democratic National Committee (anti-fourth term), in a telegram to Bailey.

O'Connor wired the Governor that "your proposal to the Mississippi Legislature to change the rules in the middle of the game as to Presidential electors would unseat every one of your seven representatives in Congress, under Section 2 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

Cotton-Trade Journal Gives Support To Dewey

Memphis, Nov. 3 (AP)—The Cotton Trade Journal, magazine circulating principally among cotton merchants and handlers, announced it would publish tomorrow an editorial supporting Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Presidency.

The magazine said it would be the first political stand in its 24-year history. It lists a circulation of 5,000.

STRIKE CALLED NEAR TREASON

Patterson Denounces MESA Action In Detroit

Detroit, Nov. 3 (AP)—Strikes by mechanics closing 24 Detroit war plants today brought from Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, a statement that they were "striking our fighting men from the rear" and that "such conduct is equivalent to treason."

Patterson's demand that the strikes be halted at once was made in a telegram to Matthew Smith, national secretary of the Mechanics Educational Society of America, an independent union.

MESA leaders claimed the union's entire membership of nearly 20,000 in this area walked off their jobs at 10 A. M. in sympathy with the union's jurisdictional dispute with the United Automobile Workers (CIO) in the Toledo plant of the Electric Auto-Lite Company. However, some spokesmen of companies involved and officials of Government agencies placed the total idle at 7,000 to 11,000.

Inter-Union Dispute

"Your strikes are stopping the flow of ammunition, guns, trucks and tanks that are vitally needed at the front," Patterson's telegram said. "Your strikes have nothing to do with wages, hours of work or working conditions and represent no honest grievance. Such conduct is equivalent to treason when it paralyzes plants making munitions that must be speeded to General Eisenhower and General MacArthur."

The Toledo dispute centered in discharge by Electric Auto-Lite of six employes. Company officials said the dismissals were required under a maintenance-of-membership clause in the contract with the UAW-CIO. MESA officials claimed the men were fired at request of the CIO union because of their MESA membership. The dispute is before the WLB.

POSTS RESERVED FOR RUSSIANS ON AVIATION COUNCIL

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—(AP)—The United States made it clear to the international civil aviation conference today that it regards Russia as still an important factor in world aviation plans, and is holding open two places on the 15-member executive council which this country envisions.

The American view appeared to be that Russia, which withdrew three days before the meeting with the explanation that it could not sit with "hostile" countries such as Spain, Portugal and Switzerland, undoubtedly will enter international aviation some day, and when it does it will be entitled to a prominent position.

A development of parallel interest, since the Russian action took from the conference a nation expected to give powerful support to the United States plan, was the interpretation of the submission of three draft conventions by British empire countries as indicating disunity had been anticipated as a united front opposing America's views on the basic issue of the meeting—the nature of the world authority to be established.

The three plans, representing the views of Canada, the United Kingdom, and Australia and New Zealand, were entered at the initial meeting of the committee on multilateral agreement at the same time that the United States draft convention was offered. Briefly the fundamental differences were:

Canada proposes a world authority with power to allocate routes and govern practices, but would provide for a method of increasing schedule frenquencies as traffic of individual airlines indicated, and would permit the initial fixing of rates by the operators, as is done by Atlantic steamship lines.

Great Britain wants the world authority to have full control as to allocation of routes, schedules, division of traffic, and fixing of rates.

Australia and New Zealand are united in a plan for a world authority which own and operate international airlines.

The United States wants simply a broad agreement on the right to fly wherever is necessary in accordance with bilateral agreements and subject to obviously necessary limitations, such as the right of a nation to close its air space during emergencies.

Whatever the United States may have felt it lost in support when the Soviet Union failed to come to Chicago, it apparently felt may have been more than recovered in the differences which now appear to be clear cut among the leading aviation countries of the British commonwealth.

This difference was highlighted during a meeting of the full committee on routes, when, after agreeing to set up a subcommittee to work out a standard form for the bilateral agreements to be made provisionally outside of the conference, Canada raised the question whether such negotiations were the business of the conference.

H. J. Symington, president of Trans-Canada airlines, said such bilateral arrangements might "preclude a permanent convention."

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chief of the United States delegation, said he felt such agreements could be worked out in accord with the convention.

Canada's Stand Steps Up Hope Of Air Parley

NOV 4 1944

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP)—Predictions of success in the attempt to reach a world accord for air transport operations developed today in official analyses of the frank statements of position made by the leading countries at the International Civil Aviation Conference.

The Canadian stand, voiced by C. D. Howe, Minister of Reconstruction, represented a much nearer approach to the American position than some officials had expected, indicating a good possibility, these observers said, that the rest of the gap can be bridged in due time.

Differs From British View

By the same token, the Canadian position was regarded as having moved farther away from the British program, which remained one of complete control, even to the division of traffic and fixing of rates, to be vested in an international air transport authority.

While Canada has been far more aggressive in presenting its case than Britain, it has at the same time shown a greater disposition to compromise on some of the more difficult points.

These Canadian views were noted with interest:

Its suggestion that fares could be fixed first by the carriers, with an appeal to the international authority in case of disagreement, matches the United States Civil Aeronautics Board practice.

Closer To American View

The proposal that routes be awarded with an assurance of minimum operating rights, the increasing frequency of schedules to be based on load factors, comes much closer to the American view than anything previously outlined. And it is basically more acceptable than the British idea of allocating frequencies "in proportion to the traffic (passenger, mail and freight) embarked in the respective countries."

Howe made a major contribution to harmony by announcing that if the conference failed to reach agreement and it became necessary to continue the pre-war system, "Canada has no intention of pursuing an obstructive attitude in dealing with transit or landing rights."

U. S. Stand

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., United States delegation chief, made it clear that America will stick to its program for an international convention on technical matters, a world agency with consultative functions so far as economics are concerned, a basic agreement against interference with legitimate transit in the pursuance of treaties between nations, and continuance of the bilateral agreement plan.

Of the 12 nations' officials who spoke at the opening sessions yesterday, Mexico, Brazil and Panama supported the United States in opposition to a world agency with economic powers, and the United Kingdom, Canada, India, New Zealand and Australia supported some type of such agency. France indicated a leaning in that direction, and Norway and Poland avoided commitments.

GOVERNOR ARNALL CITES FARM POLICY

NOV 4 1944

Says "Farmers Prosperity Is No Concern" Of Dewey

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 3 (AP)—Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia said tonight that the supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, believe the factory and farm workers of America were "born with saddles on their backs and bridles in their mouths," and added:

"I do not believe that they are waiting anxiously for the touch of the spurs to send them cantering down the high road to starvation."

"No Concern Of Dewey"

The Governor, on a campaign tour in behalf of the Democratic ticket, which has taken him into Tennessee, Minnesota and Oklahoma, said in a prepared speech released at Atlanta:

"The farmers' prosperity is no concern of Governor Dewey. His concern about the farmer is that he shall kill his pigs and cows and deliver his corn promptly on schedule at his master's demand."

"Will Governor Dewey's philosophy permit him to countenance the minimum-wage guarantees and the social security and unemployment-benefit measures that the New Deal has provided for their protection?" he asked. "Perhaps—and perhaps not. These are not the people with whom Governor Dewey concerns himself."

New Deal Farm Policies

Arnall said the New Deal's farm policies redeemed nearly a million farms that had been lost through foreclosure during the Hoover Administration and increased the farm income fourfold—from five billion dollars in 1932 to 20 billion in 1939.

"And I'm using peacetime figures, instead of the greater figures of 1943, when we were at war," he added.

"The Roosevelt farm policies have worked so well that the farmer paid in interest only 44 cents out of every $10 he received in 1939, instead of $1.14 out of every $10 when Hoover was President.

"Consider the price of corn and pigs, of cotton and wheat, under the last Republican Administration and under the New Deal, and decide for yourself."

The Governor winds up his five-day speaking tour with a final speech at Sedalia, Mo., tomorrow night.

JAP HOMELAND NOW WIDE OPEN

NOV 4 1944

Admiral Mitscher Sees Foe As Fifth-Rate Naval Power

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 3 (AP)—Japan's homeland has been left pretty wide open by reduction of the enemy to a fifth-rate naval power and practical elimination of Japanese naval aviation, Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, Task Force 58 commander, said today on his return home on leave.

Despite the great successes on land and sea and in the air, the veteran officer said the Pacific war soon probably would shift from high to low gear because of the supply problem.

"Americans have no idea of the amount of effort it takes to get food and ammunition and other supplies out to the islands in the Pacific," said the admiral. "It means a lot more shipping than we have available now."

But It Won't Stop

Mitscher said that although the war in the Pacific may slow down, it will not stop.

"We will just have to cut a couple extra holes in our belt," he said.

Reciting publicly for the first time the plane and shipping destruction racked up by his mighty Task Force 58, Mitscher said the box score showed 795 naval and merchant vessels had been sunk or damaged from January 29 to October 27, and 4,425 Japanese planes destroyed.

The analysis listed:

Navy Ships—Sunk, 88; probably sunk, 25; damaged, 89, for a 202 total.

Merchant Ships—Sunk, 282; probably sunk, 78; damaged, 233, for a 593 total.

The merchant tonnage was conservatively estimated by the admiral at 1,425,000 tons.

2,568 Shot Down

Of the 4,425 planes destroyed by the task force, 2,568 were shot down in the air and 1,857 eliminated on the ground. This estimate the admiral also termed conservative.

Mitscher said Japanese naval aviation had been assigned the task of protecting the empire's island outposts and had been practically eliminated in the American drive across the Pacific. Defense of the Japanese homeland was assigned the army air force, the admiral said.

The Japanese have not been using expendables in defense of their island strongholds, Mitscher said.

"The toughest Japs are the marines whom we still are encountering in the islands, and I do not believe the quality of Japanese fighting men will improve as the battle moves westward."

Fifth-Rate Naval Power

Recent battles off Formosa and the Philippines reduced Japan to a fifth-rate naval power, Mitscher said, adding he didn't believe the enemy had more than a few battleshipse left, and only one or two major carriers and several baby-type carriers.

Four Japanese carriers definitely were sunk in recent engagements, and three others in earlier battles, Mitscher said, to almost put the finishing touches to the enemy's naval aviation.

Mitscher, a native of Hillsboro, Wis., said he was on 30 days' leave to get away from routine, but that his health was good.

DEMOCRATIC TRUCE NOTED BY WARREN

California Governor Predicts Discord If Roosevelt Wins

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 3 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren of California asserted tonight that an "armed truce" exists among supporters of President Roosevelt for the purpose of bringing about his reelection, and predicted there would be disharmony if Roosevelt wins.

Unable because of illness to broadcast at a studio for the Dewey-Bricker ticket, Warren's remarks were made by transcription prepared during the day at the executive mansion.

"The New Deal machine," the Republican convention keynoter said, "is being held together today by the domination of one man, not by a common philosophy of government or by any common program for the future of America.

City Machines Noted

"Chief among its constituent parts are the corrupt city machines of Tammany in New York, Hague in New Jersey, Kelly-Nash in Illinois and Pendergast in Missouri.

"These big city bosses, for the sake of expediency, ar eall making common cause with Browder and his Communists and with Hillman and his Political Action Committee.

"All of these incongruous elements are saddled on to the conservative Democrats of the South. This conglomerate New Deal machine advocates one doctrine in one part of the country, the opposion in another.

"Equality In North"

"It preaches political and economic equality to the Negroes of the North and West, where they already have such rights under Republican State administrations, and practices the opposite doctrine in the Southern and border States.

"It is neither a natural nor a workable alignment. The cogs of such a machine cannot mesh. The armed truce within the New Deal is one of expediency. It is not designed to achieve unity either within the party or within the nation. It is designed to win this election. If it succeeds, it will break open at the seams after election, just as certain as night follows day."

LONDON, NOV. 3-(AP)-BRITISH PRISONERS OF WAR WILL RECEIVE NO PREFERENCE IN DEMOBILIZATION, WAR MINISTER SIR JAMES GRIGG SAID TODAY IN A LETTER TO A.C. BOSSOM, MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT FROM MAIDSTON

THE LETTER, MADE PUBLIC BY BOSSOM, SAID TIME SPENT IN CAPTIVITY WOULD COUNT AS SERVICE BUT ADDED THAT "UNTIL JAPAN IS DEFEATED, PRISONERS OF WAR ON THEIR RETURN WILL HAVE NO ABSOLUTE RIGHT XE AS SUCH TO IMMEDIATE RELEASE."

NOV 4 1944

"IT WOULD BE PATENTLY UNFAIR," THE LETTER ADDED, "TO RELEASE A MAN WHO HAD BEEN PRISONER FOR A SHORT TIME AT THE EXPENSE OF A MAN OF MUCH LONGER SERVICE WHO HAD BEEN FIGHTING ALL THE TIME."

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE--FIRST ADD LONG'S SIEGFRIED LINE (TOP AYE) X X X OF THE DEFENSES."

HERE IS THE STORY OF SOME OF THE MEN WHO HELPED BREACH THE LINE:

30-24 — 20137

SECOND LT. FRED CLEMENT LENO, 29, OF 92 50TH ST., SALEM, N.Y., WHO STARTED THE ATTACK AS A SERGEANT AND WAS PROMOTED FOR HEROIC LEADERSHIP IN ACTION, SAID HE WENT IN WITH HIS PLATOON JUST WEST OF THE WURM ABOUT NOON, OCT. 2 AFTER TWO HOURS OF PRELIMINARY BOMBING AND SHELLING OF GERMAN POSITIONS.

NOV 4 1944

"WE PUSHED UP 200 YARDS, THEN CAME UNDER SHELLFIRE AND DEPLOYED. THEY WERE POPPING ALL AROUND US. IT LIFTED AND WE PUSHED ON TO THE WURM, WHERE WE CAME UNDER SMALL ARMS FIRE. THE BRIDGE WAS GONE. WE JUST GOT ACROSS THE BEST WE COULD.

"FROM THE EAST BANK WE HEADED FOR PALENBURG. WE CAME TO OUR FIRST PILLBOX IN ABOUT 100 YARDS, SHOT RIFLE GRENADES AT IT AND OUT CAME 11 GERMANS WITH THEIR HANDS UP.

"THE NEXT WAS 25 YARDS BEYOND. SONEONE JUST YELLED 'COME OUT'--AND OUT CAME 16 GERMANS AND AN OFFICER.

"WE ENTERED PALENBURG AT DUSK. THERE WERE GERMANS STILL IN THE HOUSES, BUT WE HAD TO GET ON THROUGH FAST AS WE HAD TO REACH OUR OBJECTIVE AT THE FAR SIDE OF THE VILLAGE. WE HURRIED THROUGH THE STREET WITH THE SOLDIERS IN TWO FILES HUGGING THE BUILDINGS ON EITHER SIDE BECAUSE OF THE SHELLFIRE."

THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED SOON AFTER DAYBREAK WITH TERRIFIC ARTILLERY AND MORTAR SUPPORT, LENO SAID, BUT THE DOUGHBOYS HELD ON UNTIL TANKS, WHICH WERE UNABLE TO BRIDGE THE WURM THE FIRST DAY, CAME UP.

SGT. FRANK L.MESHBERGER, 26, OF GENEVA, IND., SAID THE WURM WAS ONLY 20 OR 30 FEET WIDE, BUT ITS BANKS WERE TOO BOGGY FOR TANKS.

HIS PLATOON PUT DOWN A TREADWAY BRIDGE, AND IN HALF AN HOUR HAD A FEW TANKS ACROSS. BUT THE APPROACHES BECAME SO MUDDY THAT THEY HAD TO WAIT FOR DAWN IN ORDER TO PUT IN A MORE SUBSTANTIAL BAILEY BRIDGE.

"WE WORKED IN A REGULAR HAILSTORM OF ARTILLERY FIRE," HE SAID.

OF THE PILLBOXES, HE SAID, "WE LIKE TO SEE HOW HIGH WE CAN BLOW THEM. WE USE TNT. MOST PILLBOXES HAVE FOUR ROOMS, TWO FIRING ROOMS IN FRONT AND TWO LIVING ROOMS BEHIND. WE PUT TNT IN THE HALL BETWEEN AND IT LEAVES NOTHING BUT A WALL."

THERE IS ANOTHER STUNT THAT HAS THE GERMANS SURRENDERING AT THE FIRST SIGHT OF A TANK AND BULLDOZER TEAM. THE TANK FIRE COOPS THE NAZIS INSIDE AND THE BULLDOZER SCOOPS EIGHT OR TEN FEET OF DIRT OVER THE PILLBOX AND MOVES ON. THE INMATES ARE BURIED ALIVE UNTIL THEY ARE READY TO SURRENDER.

MESHBERGER EXPLAINED ANOTHER REASON WHY SOME GERMANS SURRENDERED WITHOUT A FIGHT:

NOV 4 1944

"WE JUST PLAYED HIDE AND SEEK WITH THEM. LIGHT ARTILLERY WOULD CHASE THEM FROM THEIR OUTER FIRING POSITIONS INTO THEIR PILLBOX. THEN HEAVY ARTILLERY WOULD CHASE THEM OUT. AFTER A FEW MINUTES IT WAS SIMPLY KAMMERAD."

SGT. HULON GARNER, WHOSE WIFE LIVES AT 1317 SNOWDEN AVE., MEMPHIS, TENN., AND WHOSE PARENTS, MR. AND MRS. JOHN C.GARNER LIVE AT JONESTOWN, MISS., WENT IN WITH THE TANKS AS THE COMMANDER OF A SHERMAN.

"WE PUSHED RIGHT THROUGH PALENBURG AND ON UP THE ROAD TOWARD UBACH UNDER ARTILLERY FIRE," HE SAID. "ONCE DURING THE NIGHT WHEN WE STOPPED WE HEARD WHAT WE TOOK TO BE GERMANS MOVING UP THE STREET TOWARD US. BUT JUST THEN ARTILLERY HIT THE BUILDING ALONGSIDE AND IT FELL IN ON US AND THE GERMANS TOO. WE HEARD NO MORE OF THEM. AND WE KEPT ON THE NEXT DAY UNTIL WE GOT TO OUR POSITION. THERE A BULLDOZER BUG US IN AND THERE WE STAYED TO GUARD THE FLANK."

THAT WAS HOW THE BREACH SEEMED TO THE MEN WHO MADE IT, AND CRYSTAL COMMENTED: "IT WAS A VERY REPRESENTATIVE SECTION OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE."

THE PILLBOXES HAD NO ADEQUATE GUNS, HE SAID.

"THEY THREW IN ALL THEY HAD, BUT IT JUST WASN'T ENOUGH. WE MET AND KNOCKED OUT EVERYTHING FROM BRAND NEW TANKS TO GRIZZLED OLD ONES THAT COULD BARELY STAGGER TO WHERE THEY FELL."

PVT.CHAPMAN, A THIN, EARNEST-LOOKING INFANTRYMAN WHO SPOKE WITH A PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH ACCENT, TOLD THIS STORY:

ON SEPT. 18, FIVE DAYS AFTER THE MORBACH AREA WAS OCCUPIED BY AMERICAN TROOPS AND ITS PEOPLE PLACED UNDER ALLIED MILTARY LAW, HE WENT WITH HIS PLATOON COMMANDER TO THE PACKBIER-HOGEN FARMHOUSE BECAUSE HE HAD BEEN TOLD BY "A LITTLE DUTCH BOY" THAT GERMAN SOLDIERS WERE HIDING THERE IN CIVILIAN CLOTHES.

HOGEN AND PACKBIER DENIED ANY GERMAN SOLDIERS WERE THERE. EVENTUALLY BOTH ADMITTED THEY HAD LIED, CHAPMAN SAID, AFTER HE THREATENED THAT IT WOULD BE "VERY TOUGH" FOR THEM.

"THE PEOPLE WHO FOUGHT FOR LIBERATION MUST NOW FIGHT THE MONETARY SITUATION," IT WAS ANNOUNCED AFTER A CABINET MEETING DEVOTED LARGELY TO A DISCUSSION OF ECONOMIC CONDITIONS.

THE GOVERNMENT SAID THE LOAN WAS BEING OBTAINED TO REDUCE THE AMOUNT OF CURRENCY IN CIRCULATION AND IT WAS NOT BORROWING MONEY TO MEET CURRENT EXPENSES. THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT HAS ASSUMED OBLIGATIONS OF THE VICHY REGIME AMOUNTING TO 1,200 BILLION FRANCS, HALF OF WHICH REPRESENTED BANK NOTES IN CIRCULATION.

IN TWO MONTHS THE BANK NOTE CIRCULATION HAS BEEN REDUCED BY 11 BILLION FRANCS, AND TAXES HAVE BEEN SUFFICIENT TO MEET CURRENT EXPENSES.

THE PLAN DECIDED UPON BY THE CABINET IS TO OFFER TO ALL, INCLUDING WAR PROFITEERS--OR THOSE WAR PROFITEERS WHO HAVE NOT BEEN ARRESTED AS COLLABORATORS AND HAD THEIR FORTUNES CONFISCATED--A CHANCE TO TURN THE MONEY BACK TO THE GOVERNMENT AND GET BONDS IN RETURN.

LAST-DITCH ENEMY DEFENDERS STILL HELD MIDDLEBURG, NEAR THE CENTER OF THE ISLAND, BUT THE FINAL LIQUIDATION OF THE ISLAND'S GARRISON IS BELIEVED NOW ONLY A MATTER OF DAYS.

KEEPING PACE WITH THE SWEEP TO CLEAR THE DUTCH ISLANDS, AMERICAN TROOPS FIGHTING UNDER CANADIAN COMMAND THREW A STRONG BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE MARK CANAL NORTHWEST OF OUDENBOSCH AND LINKED UP WITH BRITISH FORCES TO THE EAST, THEREBY SQUEEZING DEEPER INTO THE SACK OF GERMAN REARGUARDS STILL BLOCKING THE APPROACHES TO THE MAAS RIVER CROSSINGS.

POLISH TROOPS ALSO CROSSED THE MARK CANAL NORTH OF OOSTERHOUT, AND IT SEEMED CLEAR TONIGHT THAT THE GERMAN DEFENSES SOON MUST COLLAPSE.

THEN COMES THE BIG QUESTION. WILL THE GERMANS DESTROY THE MOERDIJK BRIDGE, REPUTEDLY THE GREATEST SPAN IN EUROPE?

ON THE EAST FLANK, LT.GEN.MILES C.DEMPSEY'S BRITISH TROOPS EDGED FARTHER INTO THE OUTSKIRTS OF GEERTRUIDENBERG, FORTRESS TOWN GUARDING THE FLANK OF FIELD MARSHAL WALTHER VON MODEL'S REARGUARDS SOUTH OF THE MAAS, BUT THE ENEMY STILL HELD THE TOWN ITSELF.

AT A LEYTE AIR BASE,NOV.3-(AP)-THE CRASH OF A FLAMING JAPANESE PLANE INTO THE SEA OFF THE PHILIPPINES COAST GAVE SECOND LT.MILBENE MATHER OF CEDAR FALLS, IOWA (828 GROVE ST.), A POSITIVE VICTORY AND MARKED THE FIRST TIME IN THIS WAR THAT AN AMERICAN FIGHTING PLANE GROUP HAS RUN UP A TOTAL OF 500 JAPANESE PLANES SHOT DOWN.

MATHER'S VICTORY WAS THE 500TH FOR THE 49TH FIGHTER GROUP AND BROUGHT FULFILLMENT OF A GOAL WHICH HAS SUSTAINED THE ORGANIZATION THROUGH MONTHS OF BATTLES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

BUT THE RECORD DID NOT STAND FOR LONG. THE GROUP'S TOLL OF ENEMY PLANES HAS MOUNTED TO 530, AS OF TODAY, BEFORE THE STORY OF ITS 500TH VICTORY COULD BE TOLD.

THE 49TH IS "UNSURPASSED IN THE AIR," GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR SAID IN A SPECIAL PRESS RELEASE, ADDING:

"THE 49TH IN AIR BATTLES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, HAS SET A RECORD FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF ENEMY PLANES WHICH I BELIEVE IS UNSURPASSED BY ANY GROUP OF FIGHTERS IN THE WORLD."

THESE ARE SOME OF THE 49TH'S ACHIEVEMENTS:

THEY WERE THE FIRST GROUP TO FIGHT THE JAPANESE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC;

THEY SHOT DOWN THE FIRST ENEMY PLANE OVER AUSTRALIA;

THEIR LEADER, CAPTAIN JAMES B.MOREHEAD, WASHINGTON, OKLA., WAS THE FIRST ACE OF THE WAR IN THIS AREA;

THEY FLEW THE LONGEST FIGHTER ESCORT MISSION IN HISTORY --

1700 MILES TO BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO, ON OCT. 10, WITHOUT LOSING A PLANE;

IN ALL THEY HAVE FLOWN MORE THAN 36,000 COMBAT SORTIES (SINGLE PLANE FLIGHTS).

TO PROVE THAT THE OUTFIT IS STILL "HOT," ITS PILOTS BAGGED 12 ENEMY PLANES IN LESS THAN 72 HOURS AFTER THEIR ARRIVAL ON LEYTE, SIX OF THEM IN THE FIRST SEVEN HOURS. THE UNIT CLAIMS A LOSS RATIO OF LESS THAN 1 TO 20 ENEMY SHIPS DOWNED; AND IN THE SIX MONTHS PRIOR TO OCTOBER, 100 ENEMY PLANES WERE BAGGED WITHOUT THE LOSS OF AN AMERICAN PILOT.

THE GROUP, FLYING P-38S, PRODUCED THE NATION'S LEADING ACE, MAJOR RICHARD I. BONG, OF POPLAR, WISC., WHOSE SCORE IS NOW 33 ENEMY PLANES.

ACES IN THE 49TH INCLUDE MAJ.GERALD JOHNSON, EUGENE,ORE. 17 PLANES; CAPT.JAMES A.WATKINS, CRYSTAL SPRINGS,MO., 11; MAJ.ERNEST E.HARRIS, MORRISTOWN,TENN. (443 W 1ST ST N.) 10; CAPT.JOHN G. LEYTE AIRBASE, PHILIPPINES, NOV. 3-(AP)-AMERICAN AND JAPANESE FIGHTER PLANES CLASHED IN AN EIGHT HOUR SKY BATTLE YESTERDAY OVER A JAPANESE CONVOY OFF ORMOC ON THE WEST COAST OF LEYTE. TWENTY-SEVEN JAPANESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN. NO YANK PILOTS WERE LOST.

A GROUP OF P-38 LIGHTNINGS FLUSHED A FLEET OF ENEMY MERCHANT

SHIPS, CONVOYED BY DESTROYERS, A CORVETTE, AND A STRONG FLIGHT OF PLANES.

ALL AVAILABLE AMERICAN FIGHTERS WERE THROWN INTO THE BATTLE, WHICH RANGED FROM MID-MORNING UNTIL DUSK. AT TIMES THE JAPANESE USED AS MANY AS 75 PLANES, PILOTED BY SKILFUL, EXPERIENCED AIRMEN.

RETURNING AMERICAN PILOTS SAID SOME OF THE EMPEROR'S BEST AIR FIGHTERS WERE SHEPHERDING THE CONVOY. THE JAPANESE FLIERS WERE DEFINITELY ABOVE THE AVERAGE. THEY HELD A TIGHT FORMATION OVER THE SHIPS AND REFUSED TO BREAK UNDER REPEATED ANTI-AIRCRAFT FROM THE DESTROYERS AND THE CORVETTE WAS INTENSE AND ACCURATE, AND SOME LIGHTNINGS WERE DAMAGED.

WITH THE 24TH DIVISION, LEYTE VALLEY, PHILIPPINES, OCT. 30-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE JAPANESE MAY NOT BE THE WORST ARTILLERYMAN IN THE WORLD BUT BRIG.GEN.WILLIAM GRUBER OF CINCINNATI DOESN'T KNOW OF A WORSE ONE.

"I'VE BEEN TAKING THE DAMNEDEST CHANCES AND GETTING AWAY WITH THEM ALL THROUGH THIS VALLEY CAMPAIGN," SAID THE BIG, PICTURESQUE DIVISIONAL ARTILLERY COMMANDER FROM HIS COMMAND POST IN THE SMASHED UP TOWNHALL AT ALANGALANG TOWN.

AMERICAN ARTILLERY HAS BEEN DEVASTATING THROUGHOUT THIS BATTLE ALONG THEROADS AND AMONG THE VILLAGES. GRUBER AND HIS MEN HAVE WORKED AROUND THE CLOCK IN THE MUD DUST, HEAT AND SWAMP TO KEEP THE HEAVY ORDNANCE ABREAST OF THE SWIFT MOVING INFANTRYMAN. NEVER ONCE HAS IT FAILED TO POUND AN ENEMY CONCENTRATION AHEAD OF THE DOUGHBOYS.

"I'VE EVEN LINED BATTERIES UP IN PARADE GROUND FORMATION FOR CONCENTRATED FIRE," SAID THE GENERAL. "THAT WOULD BE MURDER AGAINST THE GERMANS BUT YOU CAN GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING AGAINST THE JAPS."

UNDATED A , ELECTION
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WITH OTHER PREOCCUPATIONS THAN THE AMERICAN ELECTION, THE GERMAN AND JAPANESE RADIOS HAVE BEEN ALMOST SILENT ON THE ENEMY'S REACTION TO THE 1944 PRESIDENTIAL RACE.

RANDOM COMMENTS TODAY APPEARED GEARED ALMOST ENTIRELY TO THE NECESSITIES OF INTERNAL PROPAGANDA ON THE HOME FRONT. ONE EXPLANATION FOR THE PUCITY OF BERLIN AND TOKYO ECHOS TO THE CAMPAIGN MAY BE THAT THE ENEMY CAPITALS HAVE LITTLE OPPORTUNITY FOR DIRECT OBSERVATION OF ELECTION TRENDS.

IN CONTRAST TO 1940, WHEN THE BERLIN RADIO KEPT UP A LIVELY COMMEN A GERMAN-LAGUAGE BROADCAST FROM THE NAZI-CONTROLLED SLOVAK RADIO TODAY QUOTED THE DEUTSCHE ALLGEMEINE ZEITUNG THUS:

"IT WILL NOT HAVE ESCAPED ATTENTIVE READERS THAT WE IN GERMANY HAVE NOT TAKEN MUCH NOTICE OF THE U.S.A. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS. THAT IS SO BECAUSE WE REGARD ROOSEVELT'S RE-ELECTION AS A DEAD CERTAINTY."

THIS BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, ADDED THAT:

"THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT ROOSEVELT, CHURCHILL AND STALIN ORIGINALLY HOPED TO BE ABLE TO ANNOUNCE A VICTORIOUS CONCLUSION OF THE WAR IN EUROPE BEFORE THE ELECTION."

"THIS STRONGEST OF ALL POSSIBLE ELECTION TRICKS, HOWEVER, DID NOT COME OFF," IT SAID. "XXX CONSEQUENTLY ROOSEVELT, IN HIS CAPACITY AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF, HAS ORDERED TWO BIG MILITARY OPERATIONS TO BE CARRIED OUT TO MAKE UP FOR THIS FAILURE."

ONE OF THESE, THE RADIO SAID, WAS IN THE PHILIPPINES, WHILE IN WESTERN EUROPE "THERE ARE A GROWING NUMBER OF INDICATIONS THE PRESIDENT WILL LAUNCH A GREAT OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST INTENDED TO DOMINA THE FRONT PAGES OF THE U.S.A.PAPERS THE DAY BEFORE THE ELEC

WESTERN EUROPE "THERE ARE A GROWING NUMBER OF INDICATIONS THE PRESIDENT WILL LAUNCH A GREAT OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST INTENDED TO DOMINATE THE FRONT PAGES OF THE U.S.A.PAPERS THE DAY BEFORE THE ELECTION AT THE LATEST."

DOMEI, IN AN ENGLISH BROADCAST FROM TOKYO RECORDED BY THE FFC, YESTERDAY, ALSO PICTURED MILITARY AFFAIRS AS BEING GUIDED BY POLITICAL EVENTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

QUOTING THE NEWSPAPER CHUBU NIPPON, DOMEI DECLARED LEYTE GULF HAD BEEN TURNED INTO A "VERITABLE GRAVEYARD" FOR U.S.NAVAL FORCES AND THAT U.S.TROOPS ON LEYTE WERE "HOPELESSLY TRAPPED AND DOOMED," BUT ADDED THAT "ROOSEVELT IS IN FOR IT AND WOULD BY NO MEANS GIVE UP HIS COSTLY ADVENTURE AGAINST THE PHILIPPINES, AT LEAST UNTIL AFTER THE FORTHCOMING ELECTION."

30. 24 — 20,147

SAYING THIS WAS A RESULT OF "ABSOLUTE RECKLESSNESS" AND POOR TIMING, DOMEI DECLARED THE PRESIDENT WAS FORCED TO MAKE THE CHOICE OF THE TIME "WITH EYES ON HIS ELECTIONEERING CAMPAIGN, NOT ON THE REALITIES OF MILITARY DEVELOPMENTS."

"WHETHER OR NOT ROOSEVELT IS ELECTED ON NOV. 7," IT SAID, "THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN WILL GO DOWN IN AMERICAN HISTORY AS THE COSTLIEST ONE FOR AMERICAN CITIZENS IN TERMS OF BLOOD AND MONEY."

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 5.—(AP) The Germans slashed back today with a tank - led, artillery - support counterattack and recaptured the village of Schmidt to guard their Roer river stand before the Rhine, but almost as soon as they had won it American fighter-bombers ripped the town to pieces.

The German thrust gained a little more than a half-mile on a narrow front where capture of Schmidt the previous afternoon had carried the Doughboys within 1,000 yards of the Roer.

NIGHT

Bombers Attack Town

As the Americans pulled clear of the town a[illegible] the [illegible] surged in, 36 fighter - bombers screamed out of the clouds and in three attacks just before and just after noon hurled 48 tons of explosives into the streets and buildings.

The pilots reported good success. At least three tanks were destroyed and German troops were believed to have been pummeled badly.

There was no indication of how much additional force the Germans intended or had available to pour in.

Along the rest of the American First army's latest assault front north past Hurtgen, the fight had turned into a slugging match with both sides pounding away and no significant exchanges of ground.

The Canadian First army, which cleaned up 850 square miles and took 18,000 prisoners from Oct. 6 to Nov. 1, had the Nazis on flooded Walcheren island rocked back onto their heels and open for a knockout punch. The last cores of resistance were being sealed off and mostly squeezed back from the coast into an inundated zone.

South of the Maas the Germans also were pressed back into a belt only three to four miles wide and the fight there apparently was in its final hours.

Yanks Gain in Vosges

In France, the French First army within six miles of Gerardmer in the entrance to the Schlucht pass through the Vosges, capturing the villages of Rochesson, La Forge, Bouvochotte, La Tete de La Neuverche, Memaurupt and La Grande Pileifiang.

In a little over a month, the French First and the American Seventh armies pushed 15 to 22 miles east from Epinal and Remiremont, carrying them over a third of the way to the Rhine.

Through out the day, Allied medium and fighter bombers concentrated on blasting railyards and bridges along the whole northern half of the western battlefront.

The Second Tactical Air force scored 12 direct hits and started a fire in an attack on a factory at Utrecht, Holland, where the Germans are manufacturing their one-man human torpedoes. The fliers waited until after quitting time for Dutch workers before attacking.

Allies Gain in Holland

LONDON, Nov. 4. (AP).—Allied troops clearing the western flank in southwestern Holland pushed forward two miles today in a general advance that swept to within three miles of the last German escape bridge at Moredijk, now within easy artillery range.

A few thousand enemy rearguards were pressed into a strip three miles deep on the southern bank of the Maas River, and these were under aerial assault as their transport columns jammed the roads.

The battle spread along the Maas nearly twenty miles east to a point west of 's Hertogenbosch, where the British, under a violent artillery barrage, broke across Aftwatering Canal and fought north more than a mile in a new drive to unhinge the enemy's east flank and shove the last German across the river.

United States infantrymen in eastern Holland, defying mud and mortars, plowed ahead more than two miles and recaptured Ospel, 16 miles southeast of the Allied base at Eindhoven, thereby erasing almost all the gains ground out by the abortive enemy offensive a week ago.

Maintaining a mile-a-day clip, the U. S. Seventh and French First armies in the Vosges fought on east through the mountains, deepening a wedge driven into German lines blocking the way to the two vital passes of Bussang and Schlucht. Five hundred prisoners were seized yesterday.

The First German counterattack on the First Army front was broken, but the enemy came back a second time with tanks and shoved the Americans out of Schmidt and back to positions about a half mile west, a front dispatch said.

Later in the day the Germans mounted a third attack northwest of the town, supported by at least ten tanks. But the Americans held firm at Vossenack, two miles north, and in their lines before Huttgen, to the north. Seven enemy tanks were destroyed.

Allied fighter-bombers hammered German infantry and tanks while medium bombers prowled the Rhine valley to the east, attacking enemy communication lines.

German lines along the Mark river five miles south of the Maas were crumbling fast, as the Poles threw two more bridgeheads across, captured Terheyden, and fought two miles northward, capturing Wagenburg within three miles of the Maas.

Three miles east, Den Hout, also three miles from the Maas, likewise fell. Americans, British and Canadians to the west vaulted the water barriers and deepened bridgeheads.

In gains of up to two miles, Americans and British striking out from their bridgeheads on the Mark river seized Fijnaart, 4 1-2 miles south of the Willemstad ferry, a second main enemy route of retreat, and pressed on north a half mile, well within artillery range.

Patrols to the east were stabbing out within a mile and a half of Klundert, within three miles of Hollandsch Diep, seaward arm of the Maas, and within five miles of both Moerdijk and Willemstad.

Canadians advancing on the west captured Steenbergen, nine miles southwest of Willemstad, and broke across the river of the same name. They were within two miles of the Maas outlet here.

On the extreme west, in occupying Nieuw Vossemeer and Kladde, opposite the reconquered Dutch island of Tholen, the Canadians found the Germans had pulled out of the area.

To the southwest, on Walcheren all coast guns which can fire on the Scheldt Estuary approach to Antwerp have been knocked out except those on two sites northeast of fallen Flushing and these were under assault. Fighter bombers and Typhoons joined the assault on these last-stand positions.

The western coast of the island was cleared with the junction of commandos from Westkapelle and the Allies at Vlissingen, where some snipers still were being hunted in the dock area.

The Germans unmasked some long-hidden artillery and attempted to blast the British and Canadians from their beachheads on the eastern shores of the island, and this dying effort brought down the wrath of Allied artillery and warplanes flying in good weather.

One other holdout position north of Domburg, in the northwestern part of the island, was under attack by British troops who advanced about a mile.

While the Americans in eastern Holland were ironing out the enemy salient around Ospel, the British to the northeast were being held in check around Meijel by mines and heavy artillery fire.

ENEMY ATTACK RETAKES TOWN IN AACHEN ZONE

Americans Give Up Schmidt but Hold Fast in the Other Sectors.

ALSO GAIN IN EAST HOLLAND

German Defenses Along the Meuse Soften as Troops Fall Back to Reich.

London, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—German counter-attacks supported by tanks recaptured the village of Schmidt, fifteen miles southeast of Aachen, today and forced American troops to fall back half a mile to the west.

The town was lost during a day of bitter but local enemy counterblows all through the area where infantrymen had pushed through forest lands toward the Cologne plain. Americans seized Schmidt yesterday. They knocked back one German infantry assault, but gave way before a second one spearheaded by tanks.

Late today a third German attack behind ten tanks hit the First Army lines northwest of Schmidt. At least seven enemy tanks were wrecked in the Schmidt sector.

Despite the Nazi comeback, the Americans maintained and strengthened their positions at Vossenack, and a light German attack near Hurtgen was broken.

In the Schmidt area, the First Army had thrust within 1,000 yards of the Roer River, the next and hardest enemy barrier on the way to the Rhine twenty-eight miles to the east.

To the northwest in Holland, Polish, American and British troops pushed closer toward the Maas River, and stormed within three miles of the Moerdijk Bridge, main escape span for enemy rearguards.

Poles Get Two More Crossings.

Polish troops threw two more bridges across the Mark Canal, captured Terheyden, and pushed on two miles. Farther west near the coast Canadians captured Steenbergen, six miles above Bergen op Zoom, and patrols were said to have advanced farther to within two miles of the lower Rhine.

Canadians occupied Nieuw Vossemeer and Kladde across from Tholen Island.

In other advances, Americans pushed to within a mile south and southwest of Klundert, a mile and a half south of the Maas and midway between the Moerdijk and Willemstad bridges. American and British forces pushed on 1,000 yards from newly-captured Fijmaart. The Polish troops also seized Wagenberg.

On Walcheren Island, the Allies forged a link between the eastern area and the causeway, and the bulk of perhaps 2,000 to 4,000 Germans on the island were hemmed in east of Middleburg under heavy fire from Allied land and naval guns.

German resistance on the 500-mile western front was greatest against the American plunge beyond Aachen.

Having rolled beyond the thickest forests in this area the Americans were advancing against hastily dug field defenses and natural obstacles—barriers which American officers believe may be tougher to crack than the beachhead concrete and steel belt of the Siegfried Line.

Assault on Limited Scale.

The assault was on a limited scale on a front of a little over 4,000 yards. But in the first two days of the drive the Americans made gains totaling almost four miles.

Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's infantry apparently was shouldering its way up to a jumpoff line on the Roer out of the forest belt and onto the edge of the Cologne plain where every hour would be one of grim menace to the German Army's uneasy line.

In the Maas (Meuse) River bulge of eastern Holland, American troops swarmed over the south Willems canal above Nederweert and drove the enemy back 4,000 yards, capturing Ospel and reaching the vicinity of Groenwood, in thrusts toward the German border at Venlo.

In western Holland American, Polish and British troops drove two miles deeper into the dwindling German bridgehead below the Maas and its seaward arm, the Hollandsch Diep.

Resistance south of the Maas slackened yesterday and a spokesman for the Allied Twenty-first Army group said that the enemy was pulling back, his transport jamming the roads.

The Allies entered the town of Fijnaart across the canal which forms a continuation of the Mark river and were four miles south of Willemstad, a ferry terminal on the Hollandsch Diep.

Gains At Mark River

A few miles to the west the battle for the approaches to the Moerdijk bridge north of Breda appeared to be entering its final stages. The Allied communique reported the bridgeheads over the Mark river were being extended in spite of heavy opposition.

The Polish and American bridgeheads northwest of Oosterhout once knocked out by the enemy, were reestablished and have now been consolidated in a single attack gaining ground toward Moerdijk.

The Walcheren Battle

On Walcheren Island, where the last phase of the battle to clear the Schelde estuary approach to Antwerp is being fought, Allied units moving west of Vlissingen linked with comrades coming down the coast from Westkapelle.

Fighting furiously the Germans still held half of what remains of flooded Walcheren. However, they were largely confined to the eastern end of the island and the central area around Middleburg.

Although Vlissingen was counted as captured, fighting still raged with snipers in the dock area there.

Nazi Guns Open Up Again

Allied units landing on the east side of Walcheren bumped into stiff opposition as German guns, long silent to avoid destruction by bombing, opened up from the middle of the island.

The enemy's coastal guns on Walcheren which had commanded the Schelde estuary were silent.

British troops operating around Meijel in eastern Holland made limited attacks. The principal action in the Maas bulge west of Venlo was the American attack above Nederweert. The communique said this action cleared the enemy from an area between the South Willems and Noorder Canals.

German Version

Although the German radio reported last night that the United States First Army was probing the German defenses with local attacks all along a 30-mile front north and south of Aachen, the Allied communique mentioned only the attack below Hurtgen, now in its third day.

In addition to capturing Schmidt, infantry forces in this operation are clearing out pillboxes in the forest south of Vossenack.

The United States Third Army front was quiet, but the American Seventh and French First armies struck forward steadily in the Vosges foothills, on a fog-ridden front where there is daylight only between 8 A. M. and 4 P. M. One American division captured Reherry, Vaxainville and Reclonville, four to six miles north of Baccarat, and was maintaining a mile-a-day advance. This unit seized 300 prisoners and found several hundred German dead yesterday.

East of Remiremont to the south, the French lashed out at dawn yesterday in a new assault that deepened the wedge between the approaches to the Bussang and Schlucht passes through the Vosges.

In the Maritime Alps, Allied forces captured Sospel and several near-by villages overlooking the Italian frontier above Mentone.

Beheading Wire Used Again

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS, on the Western Front, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Germans are using on the western front the piano wire trick that they first pulled on the Americans in Italy. The wire is stretched tightly across roads at just the right height to decapitate American soldiers speeding by in jeeps. Troops reported that one, far behind the front lines, had probably been put up by civilians.

SOLDIERS WAGER TRENCHES ON VOTE

With the United States Fourth Armored Division, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Sergt. Kenneth V. Feaster of Lincoln, Neb., will sweat it out if President Roosevelt is re-elected Tuesday, but Sergt. George S. Morrow of Detroit will sweat it out four times as badly if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is the winner.

Feaster bet 100 slit trenches on the Republican candidate, against Morrow's 400 on the Democratic. If the President wins, Feaster must dig Morrow's next 100 slit trenches, and if Gov. Dewey is elected, Morrow must spade out the next 400 for Feaster.

It is agreed the bet carries over into the Orient if the unit goes that far, and if the war is over before the foxhole account is squared the loser must be the other's personal orderly on the homebound boat and work off the trenches at the rate of one day of service per trench.

DFC Awarded Wounded Private

With a United States Infantry Division in Germany, Oct. 19 (AP — Delayed) — Private Joe Marez, first aid man from Lamar, Col., who treated two American wounded despite a bullet in his head, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

In Normandy, under a hail of machinegun and rifle fire, Marez began to treat Sergt. Bert Murtha, of Exeter, Pa. Marez was struck in the head by a bullet. Ignoring his own wound, he finished applying a tourniquet to Murtha's leg, walked over to Pfc. Bert Weiss, of Averill Park, N. Y., and treated him, also. Then he collapsed

Third Army To Get News Of Election Wednesday

United States Army Headquarters, France, Nov. 4 (AP)—Most of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army soldiers will be asleep while the home folks are getting the returns from the Presidential election Tuesday, but they will get the reports by radio and army news sheets with their breakfast Wednesday.

Interest in the outcome does not appear to be intense, either along the static front or among real echelons, but tens of thousands of soldier votes have been cast.

The percentage of soldiers voting ranges from 20 per cent. in the Fifth Division, which has been overseas for three years, to around 60 per cent. in the Fourth Armored Division, which has not been away so long and has kept up better with home issues.

HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE

30. 24 — 20149

With the A. E. F. in France, Oct. 27 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This is the sad story of Pfc. John A. Davyak of Slickville, Pa., who recently received a package containing a jar of cherries.

The cherries seemed to be surrounded by some preserving liquid so John efficiently drained it out on the ground before eating. Not until it was all drained out did he eat the first cherry and recognize the taste—the preserving liquid was good whisky.

Private Hanged in France

Killed Sergeant Who Advised Him Against Drinking

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP).—An attempt to persuade a soldier not to take another drink cost First Sergeant Paul M. Robinson, of Birmingham, Ala., his life, and the soldier, Private First Class Paul M. Kluxdal, thirty-seven years old, of Chicago, was hanged Oct. 31 after being convicted by a court martial of the murder of the sergeant.

According to court records, Robinson, seeing Kluxdal drinking, warned him he had better stop or he would get into trouble. On Kluxdal's refusal the sergeant attempted to take the bottle from him and was shot fatally.

Holland Cities Polish Troops For Aid To Dutch

New York—The Dutch Government has cited Polish troops for making an "essential contribution" to the liberation of the Netherlands, a Polish Telegraph Agency dispatch from London reports.

In a message to Polish War Minister Kukiel, the Netherlands Minister of War, Johnheer Van Lidth de Jeude, referred to the special bravery of Polish airborne troops at Arnhem, and declared:

"Polish troops which entered Dutch territory have fought with conspicuous galantry and have been received by our population with the greatest enthusiasm. On behalf of the Royal Netherlands Government I wish to express my gratitude for the splendid achievements of Polish troops, who have contributed essentially to the liberation of the Netherlands."

Spanish Guerrillas Take 9 Towns, Report

NOV 5 1944

Paris, Nov. 4 (AP)—A correspondent for the newspaper Combat reported today from "inside Spain" that Spanish Republican guerrillas who struck across the French border had occupied at least nine villages of the Aran valley in the Pyrenees.

However, a dispatch from Barcelona, possibly later, said the military commander of the Catalonia region had just congratulated the 42nd Mountain Division on "their victory over Spanish Republicans, whom they recently expelled from the Aran Valley."

Combat published photographs purporting to show prisoners captured by the Republicans in Leis, one of the points reported captured, and Maquis pushing a mobile gun under a sign marking the village of Bosost.

Cut Budapest Route

Premier-Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the fall of Szoinok, whose capture cut the enemy's direct escape route into Budapest and secured another valuable Tisza crossing for Red army reinforcements flowing into the Budapest battle.

A total of 40 Hungarian localities were swept up during the day, and Berlin said both sides were throwing in fresh troops.

Dispatches relayed from Stockholm said street fighting had broken out between Hungarian workers and Nazi SS troops inside the capital, and that the German commander, Gen. Alfred Jacob, was having considerable difficulty in maintaining order.

The admitted Russian penetration to Soroksar put Red army tanks within six miles of the heart of Budapest. Soroksar is on the east bank of the Danube due south of the city.

One German front report broadcast late last night said: "For hours now the Russians have been rushing up the roads to Budapest and against the German Danube bridgeheads. The Russians have strong numerical superiority."

Berlin announced that the Russians temporarily had seized Vecses and Ullo, only five and eight miles southeast of Budapest, but said they were then thrown out of those rail towns in fierce counter-attacks.

French radio broadcasts said Red army tank spearheads already had broken into Budapest's suburbs, but this was not confirmed by Moscow. However, dispatches from the Soviet capital and Berlin broadcasts said Russian artillery and planes were pumping explosives into the capital.

A Budapest dispatch relayed by Berlin said Soviet planes roared constantly over the Danube city, bombing and machinegunning streets clogged with German troop, tank and gun columns and knots of frantic civilians.

Long caravans of vehicles jammed with fugitives and their scanty possessions flowed westward across the Danube bridges out of Budapest as German reinforcements passed them en route to the battle line in the city's outskirts, a German broadcast said.

"Other districts of the city, however, seem almost deserted," said this report. "Many are staying indoors except for some dozens in queues before bread and tobacco shops."

Soviet front dispatches said large German tank formations had been destroyed in the Red Army's northward push between the Danube and Tisza Rivers. Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's troops were engaged in an operation similar to that outside Warsaw—whittling down German resistance east of the Hungarian capital before hurling their full weight on Budapest.

Besides the capture of the west bank Tisza stronghold of Szolnok, the Russians announced capture of Abony, eight miles to the west and also Cegled, another major stronghold on the railway eighteen miles west of Szolnok and thirty-four miles southeast of Budapest.

In German East Prussia, the Soviet communique said, General Ivan Cherniakhovsky's 3d White Russian Army troops successfully repulsed enemy infantry and tank attacks north and south of Goldap, nineteen miles inside the Reich, and improved their positions in successful counter-thrusts.

Berlin also told of heavy Russian attacks on a narrow front west of Ungvar, in Czechoslovakia, where General Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine Army last was reported six miles inside Slovakia after conquering Ruthenia.

Tank Battle Raging Mile Outside City; Szoinck Captured.

LONDON, Sunday, Nov. 5—(AP) Russian tanks yesterday crashed into Soroksar, only a mile outside shell-torn Budapest, and then were hurled back in a great armored battle flaming along the edge of the imperilled Hungarian capital, Budapest radio announced late last night in a broadcast describing the Axis situation as critical.

Fifty miles southeast of Budapest other Soviet troops toppled the Tisza river stronghold of Szoinok in a great wheeling movement that sent Red army units charging across the Budapest-Szoinok trunk Smash Way Past Outer Line of Defense as Disorder Grips Capital.

THROWING RING AROUND CITY

Civilian Fugitives Are Reported Jamming Trains in Hope of Escaping to Vienna.

Moscow, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Russian troops laid siege today to Budapest and front-line dispatches said that the German and Hungarian defenders had fallen back into the Hungarian capital itself.

Red Army tanks were said to be battering at the outskirts of Pest, which is the eastern half of the capital, lying on the opposite bank of the Danube from Buda. The battle was raging well within Budapest's outer defenses.

[A Reuters dispatch said that the Russians had hurled an armored column around north of the city in an encircling move. This column was said to be storming the approaches of Ujpest, on the east bank of the Danube two miles north of the capital.]

The capital itself was reported unofficially to be enveloped in wild disorder as the Nazi remnants poured through the streets. Hundreds of fugitives were said to be jamming the railways and highways toward Vienna, 140 miles to the north.

Red Star reported that the "field army" formed by the Hungarian puppet government had been routed outside the capital and that a captured captain said that out of one division only 200 men remained after three days of intensive battle.

Calls Enemy Losses Immense.

The newspaper describes German and Hungarian losses in manpower as immense, particularly near the tributary of the Danube just south of Budapest where Red troops wiped out 20 tanks in a great slaughter last night.

The capture of Pest appeared imminent but the fall of Buda on the west side of the Danube was another matter. The Danube River is broad and there was no word on whether the Russians had been able to seize any bridges.

The Soviet communique last night reported the capture of Alsonemedi, seven miles south of Budapest, as the nearest point to the capital reached by the Red forces sweeping across the boggy plains between the Danube and Tisza. It was one of 100 communities enveloped in the fast-moving offensive.

Front line dispatches reported severe fighting just outside the perimeter of the besieged capital but for practical military purposes the city appeared lost. The reportedly disorganized condition of the city's defenders presaged an early capitulation.

There was no intimation that the Red Army had trained its big guns on the capital itself, the inference being that the Russians will seek to take the capital by storm rather than subject it to a steady bombardment.

To the southeast Germans and Hungarians sought any means of transportation available to pull out of a huge pocket near Szolnok. With their way blocked into Pest the Nazis tried to make headway across the plains north of Szolnok to a highway which runs on the east side of the Danube to Vienna.

Red Army units pouring across the Tisza on a long front also raced for the highway.

Nearer Reich Homeland

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Berlin today described the situation at Budapest as "critical." The battle for the Hungarian capital was for great stakes. Capture of the chief city of the last large Nazi vassal nation could raise the curtain on a Russian invasion of Hitler's homeland from the south over Austrain soil. Soviet troops at their nearest point were barely 90 miles from the Reich frontier.

A midnight supplement to the Soviet communique said the Nazis in a last-ditch effort to halt the Red army tide had hurled all available reserves into the battle—security units, rear garrisons and other groups, as well as artillery and tanks from other sectors of the front.

East Prussian Report

On the East Prussian front, the Russian communique said Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army had repulsed attacks by large enemy tank and infantry forces north and south of Goldap.

A Moscow broadcast last night said the Germans had been cleared from all the Baltic States "except for a patch around Liepaja, Latvian port, which is being mopped up."

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Romanian Government has resigned and has been reconstituted on a more democratic basis, the Bucharest radio said tonight. Gen. Konstantin Sanatescu remains at its head as president of the Council of Ministers and holds the additional portfolio of Interim Minister of War, the broadcast said.

Russia Denies U.S., Iran Have Pact on Troops

Protest Over Oil Renewed; Americans Built Supply Line to Reds in 1942

LUCE

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 (AP).—Renewing Soviet criticism of the Iranian government for refusing to discuss oil concessions to Russia until after the war, "Izvestia," government newspaper, declared here today that American troops were in Iran without any agreement with Iran.

[Presence of American service troops in Iran was disclosed in 1942. Their mission has been to supply war materials to Soviet Russia via the Persian Gulf route and the Trans-Iranian Railway, which American Army men operate and have virtually rebuilt, along with new highways. Immense quantities of American arms have gone to Russia over that route.

[Russia and Britain took over in Iran in the summer of 1941, dividing the country into northern and southern spheres of influence. Iran long has been regarded as potentially one of the world's rich sources of petroleum.]

"Izvestia" reviewed Iranian foreign policy throughout most of the twentieth century and asserted the Soviet Union took the lead in helping Iran abolish the old regime of capitulations.

The article said the Iranian newspaper published by Saed Zia-Zed-Din, identified by "Izvestia" as the Iranian Premier's chief parliamentary supporter, "has published a letter from the United States Ambassador to the Iranian government saying that the decision not to grant an American oil concession until the end of the war would not cause the American government regret or alarm because Iran is an independent country.

'Reactionary Elements' Attacked

"Izvestia" said the Soviet government "cannot fail to consider" that Iranian refusal of a Soviet oil offer "is a manifestation of reactionary Iranian elements which aim to prevent a rapprochement between the U. S. S. R. and Iran."

"The Saed government tried to explain that it is the same with regard to oil concessions proposed by Britain and the United States, but this is not convincing," Izvestia continued.

It said the British had extensive concessions in southern Iran and that in 1921, 1923 and 1927 Iran gave concessions in northern Iran to Standard, Sinclair and Delaware Oil Companies of the United States.

Yet, it continued, "when the Soviet Union made an offer Saed's government immediately adopted a negative attitude and desired not even to learn the conditions."

'Big Three' Talks On Iran Forecast

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—It was authoritatively reported in London tonight that the United States, Russia and Britain would hold special consultations to settle the question of Iranian oil concessions.

Thus far they have acted separately and there have been divergent views and actions.

Reports from Teheran indicated that an Iranian Government crisis resulting from refusal to grant Russia's request for oil concessions in northern Iran was fast approaching a climax.

Teheran correspondents reported that the Iranian capital was alive with rumors of the imminent resignation of Premier Mohammed Saed, who has been the target of Russian diplomatic and press attacks after his refusal to discuss the oil question.

Izvestia Hits Oil Stand Of Iran

Moscow, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia said today American troops were in Iran without any agreement with the Iran Government.

Izvestia said the Iran newspaper of Saed Zia-Zed-Din had "published a letter from the United States Ambassador to the Iran Government saying that the decision not to grant an American oil concession until the end of the war would not cause the American Government regret or alarm, because Iran is an independent country." Izvestia added:

"But nobody is fighting against the independence of Iran."

"Violent" In Attempt

The article said the newspaper, published by Premier Mohammed Saed's principal Parliamentary supporter, was "violent" in its attempt to connect the stay of foreign troops in Iran with the country's independence, and added:

"Beside the Soviet and British troops, whose presence is in conformity with the treaty of alliance, there are also American troops and these are in Iran without any agreement with the Iranian Government."

Izvestia said the Soviet Government considered rejection by Saed's Government of a Soviet oil offer a "manifestation of reactionary Iranian elements which aim to prevent a rapprochement between the USSR and Iran."

Concessions Cited

"We know that Britain has extensive oil concessions in southern Iran, why is the Soviet Union refused oil concessions in northern Iran?" Izvestia asked.

"We have seen that the Iran Government has willingly granted concessions in the past to American companies also, and has carried on negotiations with American and British companies for a concession in southern Iran.

"When the Soviet Union made an offer Saed's Government immediately adopted a negative attitude and desired not even to learn the conditions."

Negotiated for Two Years

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—It was learned in Washington today that the United States has been negotiating with Iran on a treaty regularizing the presence of American troops there. The Americans took over, at British request, the maintenance of the Middle Eastern supply road to Russia.

Just as the treaty was about to be signed last year, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Marshal Josef V. Stalin and President Roosevelt made the Declaration of Tehran, promising withdrawal of their troops from Iran six months after the end of hostilities.

The Iranians then delayed signing the treaty. Since then, they have indicated they want it to include clauses turning over gratis American military installations at the end of the war.

Two American companies, Standard-Vacuum and Sinclair, and Shell of Great Britain, had been negotiating for oil concessions in southeastern Iran since last January. Iranian Premier Mohammed Saed had just overcome parliamentary opposition to opening bids for these oil rights when the Russian request was presented.

The Iranian government's solution was to grant no concession during the war. Washington backed the decision.

Russia Rejects Swiss Bid for Diplomatic Ties

Says Policy Toward Soviets Remains Hostile; Break Followed Slaying in '23

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Russia has turned down Swiss proposals for re-establishment of diplomatic relations between the two nations, after more than a twenty-year lapse, because "The Swiss government, up to now, in no way has disavowed itself from its former policy hostile to the Soviet Union," the Moscow radio declared tonight.

The broadcast, quoting a Soviet government reply, said it was "a generally known fact that for many years the Swiss government, contrary to its ancient Democratic traditions, has been pursuing a hostile pro-Fascist policy toward the Soviet which, together with other democratic countries, has been consistently fighting against Hitlerite Germany in the interests of peace-loving peoples."

The Moscow radio, on Oct. 29, announced Russia would not attend the Chicago international conference on civil aviation because "countries like Switzerland, Portugal and Spain, which for many years have conducted a pro-Fascist policy hostile to the Soviet Union, have also been invited."

Switzerland was among the first nations to recognize the U. S. S. R. in 1918, but relations later were broken off. The killing at Lausanne, Switzerland, of Vaslav Vorovsky, Soviet delegate to the Lausanne conference of 1923, contributed largely to the break.

Tonight's broadcast said the Swiss proposal for re-establishing relations was submitted by the Swiss Minister Plenipotentary at London on Oct. 11 and that the negative reply was given to him Nov. 1.

Early in 1941 Switzerland negotiated a trade agreement with Russia in the first formal contact since the suspension of relations.

Reds, Swiss Still At Odds

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that the Russian Government had rejected Switzerland's proposals for restoration of diplomatic relations between the two countries because "the Swiss Government, up to now, in no way has disavowed itself from its former policy hostile to the Soviet Union."

Russia, in announcing a week ago that it was boycotting the International Civil Aviation Conference in Chicago, named Switzerland as one of the three "hostile" nations to whose presence it objected.

5,000 PLANES RAID REICH

11 German Industrial Cities Are Heavily Bombed

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—More than 5,000 Allied planes gave Germany a Blitz today, smashing at 11 Reich industrial cities and pouncing on Nazi troops along the Western front in day and night assaults.

The big day was rounded out by the attack tonight of more than 1,000 RAF heavy bombers against Bochum, important industrial city in the Ruhr.

During the day American heavyweights on widespread big-scale raids met no opposition from the Luftwaffe.

14 Planes Missing

United States Eighth Air Force bombers and fighters reported eight bombers and six fighters missing from a force of more than 1,900.

Through heavy clouds they bombed oil refineries in the Hamburg-Harburg area of northern Germany and at Misburg near Hanover, a synthetic oil plant at Gelsenkirchen and railway yards at Hanover and Saarbrucken. Intense anti-aircraft fire was encountered over Hanover and Gelsenkirchen.

Jet Planes Don't Attack

The Americans saw only a few German jet-propelled planes "which did not attack," a United States communique said.

In a coordinated strike, 800 bombers and 400 fighters of the Italy-based United States 15th Air Force struck oil plants at Regensburg and Augsburg and, banking off to the right, also hit rail yards at Munich and Linz.

RAF Lancasters during the afternoon attacked Solingen, city south of the Ruhr and famous for its light engineering industry.

Third In Four Days

Second Royal Air Force planes attacked German troops near the Moerdijk bridge in Holland; United States Ninth Air Force fighter bombers helped carve the way for American troops striking toward Cologne; Mosquitos gave Berlin its 182d raid of the war; and the German radio said more Allied planes were over Germany tonight.

Although the Eighth Air Force was idle Friday, the big Saturday punch was the third in four days, and already in November approximately 12,000 tons of explosives have been dumped on Germany by Liberators and Flying Fortresses alone.

Allies In 3-Way Air Attack On Reich

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Germany was caught in a three-way attack today by 3,100 American planes and a force of RAF bombers and fighters that smashed 10 important industrial cities in the Reich.

The United States Eighth Air Force staged a mass attack on German synthetic oil industries and railways.

One force attacked oil plants and refineries in the twin cities of Hamburg-Harburg.

Another hit an oil plant at Gelsenkirchen in the Ruhr. A third formation blasted military objectives in the Hanover region and a fourth flew southeast of Luxembourg against the railroad yards at Saarbrucken.

Raid On Berlin

The big daylight operation followed the sixth Mosquito raid on Berlin in nine nights.

The Mosquitos, usually operating in small forces and carrying one 4,000-pound bomb each for some specific target, again raced to the Reich capital and back without loss. Eighty-five of these 4,000-pounders were dumped on Berlin last month by the Mosquitos.

Small forces of Italian-based bombers, which flew through an Austrian sneak from part of the way, attacked targets in the Vienna, Munich and Klagenfurt areas yesterday.

Anti-aircraft fire was intense over some objectives, but only one German plane was sighted.

1,000 Sorties

Allied fighter-bombers based in France and Belgium, hampered several days by the weather, flew more than 1,000 sorties yesterday in support of troops in Holland and American forces charging deeper into Germany southeast of Aachen.

United States Ninth Air Force Thunderbolts broke up several enemy troops concentrations and sprayed a tank column. Havocs and Marauders attacked a score or more communications targets and bridges in the Rhine and Moselle valleys.

In Holland, British fighter bombers claimed two German tanks, nineteen motor vehicles, one locomotive, ten freight cars and one jet-propelled aircraft destroyed.

Mass Fighter Escort

One of the secrets of the RAF's reduction of heavy-bomber losses recently is the mass night fighter escort furnished by Mark VII Mosquitos.

The British heavies used to operate virtually without escort, but their losses mounted to a peak of 96 on one Nurnberg raid. The Mosquito escort was the answer. These plywood fighters have destroyed at least 130 German planes and damaged many more.

FLAK-TORN PLANE HAS WILD TRIP HOME

3 Engines Shot Out, 5 Of Crew Hit, She Makes It

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Flak shot out three engines, wounded five men and wrecked the plane so badly that three too kto their parachutes when an all-star crew of 10 veteran Eighth Air Force airmen led a formation of bombers over Merseburg Thursday.

Boasting 364 operational missions among them, the volunteers tok "Satan's Lady II" up for a four-star performance and everything was strictly on the beam until——

Coming off the bomb run, flak got three engines and wounded the pilot, Major Ernest C. Hardin, Louisville, Ky., and the copilot, Col. James W. Wilson, Bowling Green, Ohio, striking them in the legs and feet.

Wounded, Gives First Aid

The same burst wounded Sergt. Charles M. Few, Water Valley, Miss., engineer and top-turret man who, unmindful of his own bleeding arm, took off the pilot's shoes and gave him first aid.

Capt. Erno A. Michelson, De Kalb, Ill, one of the hottest bombardiers in the Eighth, was hit just after he dropped the bombs. Ice collected on the wings near the Dutch border and the plane went into a spin. Major Hardin rang the bail-out bell. After three men had jumped, the pilot was able to right the ship, still flying on one engine.

Guns and ammunition were jettisoned in the Channel and the crew finally made a crash landing on an RAF field.

Other members of the crew who returned included Sergt. Monroe E. Goldstein, Cleveland, Ohio radio; Sergt. Robert L. Davidson Sims, Mont., waist gunner, and Lieut. Frank L. Fabec, Girard Ohio, technical observer.

Briton Sees U. S. Losing Post-War Aviation Race

Asserts Americans Mistake Servility for Service

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP).—One of Britain's leading specialists in civil aviation told a group of his fellow experts today "we shall beat him (the American competitor) because we know how to look after our customers better than he does, and we have the men to do it."

The speaker was Brigadier General A. C. Critchley, director general of the British Overseas Air Corporation. The discussion was arranged by the Royal Aeronautical Society on Civil Aviation.

"In America," said Critchley, "service means servility and they have no real idea of service to the passenger as we understand it."

He said "in the American make-up they all want to be President after selling newspapers."

He urged an emphasis on personnel, especially station managers, saying they are "rather a race apart." These, he explained, have to meet "kings, ambassadors, governors and even American business men.

"In communities such as say, Khartoum, Cairo, Karachi, Baghdad, Tehran or Bahrein a stupid or ignorant station manager could almost bring the empire into war."

Nazis Claim Capture Of Slovak Commander

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Germans declared tonight they had captured Gen. Rudolf Viest, commander in chief of Czechoslovak forces in Slovakia.

A German broadcast said Viest and a Brigadier General Golian were taken during "mopping-up" operations in central Slovakia.

Czechoslovaks in London identified Golian as deputy commander in chief of guerrill aforces in Slovakia.

REPORT TITO WOUNDED

London, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—A German short-wave propaganda broadcast heard today by the Associated Press said that Marshal Tito had been wounded by Serbian nationalists.

Yugoslav forces are besieging Skoplje, south Serbian rail center, and Bitolj, thirteen miles north of the Greek border, a Yugoslav communique said today.

Perast, a village in Kotor Bay, and Vrlika, in the upper Cetina valley, were captured, the broadcast bulletin said.

NAZIS ERECT DEFENSES IN NORTHERN NORWAY

LONDON, Nov. 4—(AP) Elaborate German defense preparations to meet expected Allied attacks in northern Norway are being completed at Narvik, Bodo and Tromso, the Norwegian government said today.

Narvik has been turned into a fortress, according to Norwegian underground intelligence advices. Bodo was declared bristling with defenses to challenge a possible Allied invasion from the west.

Using thousands of Norwegian, Polish, Russian and French prisoners, the Germans were reported to have completed an anti-tank ditch right through the town.

A Norwegian government spokesman said the road from Tromso to Narvik was marked by powerful and strongly guarded tank barriers and pillboxes.

kun quisling, the Germans' puppet kun guisling, the Germans' puppet premier of Norway, had gone to the north to inspect civilian evacuation, ordered to facilitate German troop movements in the area threatened by the Russian invasion from Finland.

Foe Fortifies Narvik.

London, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—The Germans were reported by the Norwegian Government today to have fortified the northern Norwegian port of Narvik and strengthened their garrison in anticipation of a Russian drive and a possible Allied invasion from the west. Norwegian underground intelligence reports, a Government spokesman said, described Narvik as a single fortified camp, ringed with concrete barriers and heavily mined.

Arctic Convoy Escort Sinks Three U-Boats

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Three German U-boats which tried to break up a large convoy for England to Russia recently were sunk and several others were damaged, the Admiralty announced today, disclosing that the convoy reached port with the loss of one escort vessel.

One German aircraft, which attempted to shadow the convoy, was shot down.

All the sea and air engagements were fought within the Arctic Circle, and an Admiralty statement declared the fight "ranks among the greatest triumphs yet achieved by naval aircraft during an operation of this kind."

Post-U. S. Election Pole Move Seen

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Poland's exiled Government will delay a decision on accepting Russia's terms for accord until after the United States Presidential election and then may press Washington for a clear-cut statement on its position, a Pole close to Government circles said today.

Usually reliable Polish quarters said Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Cabinet was reported split on the question of accepting the Curzon Line as an eastern border, basic condition in the Soviet's bill of settlement.

Want Independence Guarantees

But complete solidarity within the cabinet was reported on obtaining iron-clad guarantees from the three big powers of Poland's post-war sovereignity and independence—regardless of the decision in the territorial dispute.

The Polish informant, who cannot be identified by name, declared that Poland was confronted at the moment by a "choice of being murdered or of committing suicide."

"The result is the same in either case," he said, "so nothing is lost by remaining silent for the time being.

"Unless Poland can be guaranteed her independence—and to be frank, be sure she will not have Communism imposed upon her—it would be foolish for the Government to act. It would be suicide."

Look To U. S., Britain

From other Polish quarters came indications that Mikolajczyk and the Cabinet were pinning their hope upon the possibility of American and British pressure upon Russia to withdraw her backing of the Polish National Liberation Committee at Lublin.

A chance that this pressure may be applied, perhaps at the next Big-Three meeting, was indicated this week by the Economist, British conservative weekly. It urged Britain and America to "bring all their influence to bear on Russia to secure the disappearance of the discreditable Lublin experiment."

Eden Returns to Britain.

London, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned home by plane today from Italy, where he had paused on his way back from Moscow.

Smearing Of 'America' Statues Irks Yanks

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Two eight-foot marble figures, representing America, at the Albert Memorial in London's West End, were found smeared with red paint today and on their pedestal was scrawled the word "hideous." Ons statue of a woman holding a laurel wreath and baton was completely smeared.

The British Press Asociation, reporting the defacement, said American soldiers were "furious." The press association quoted one soldier: "What is the point of it? If we could get hold of the fool who did it you wouldn't see him for red paint."

The press association said soldiers who attempted to photograph cleaners removing the stains were forbidden by police.

Lord Winster Demands Streamlined Diplomacy

Hull, England, Nov. 4 (AP)—The methods of traditional diplomacy need streamlining, Lord Winster said today, and the diplomat of the future will have to be more than a gentleman of high character with a knowledge of languages.

Insisting that Britain's Foreign Office must change its ways, he said "the circumlocution is tremendous" and the atmosphere is that of sand instead of blotting paper, of candlelight yielding reluctantly to gas, of dispatches copied by hand on paper with three-inch margins before being conveyed across Europe in a coach."

Britain Warned Nazis Will Use New Weapons

Hull, England, Nov. 4 (AP)—Britain must be prepared for use by the Germans of new weapons which will be militarily less futile than the flying bomb, Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair, said in an address today.

"The German beast is desperate," he said. "In the last six months the (RAF) bomber command dropped as big a tonnage of bombs as it had dropped in all the previous months of the war. . . .

"We are watching them, and they won't take us by surprise, as we have taken them."

ALLIES STALLED BY MUD IN ITALY

ROME, Nov. 4—(AP) The muddy battle line in Italy barely moved today, but behind it Allied engineers were performing prodigies of road and bridge building to keep open the lines of supply and communications for the forward troops.

Rope bridges, assault boats and ferries are being used to supply troops in some places on the front, which stretches across some of the most forbidding Apennine peaks into marshy ground in the southeastern corner of the Po river plain.

In one minor action in the Stefano area of the Adriatic coastal sector today 25 Germans were captured. Activity generally was confined to patrols.

It was announced officially that Allied casualties from May 11, start of the big push that took Rome, to Nov. 4 were 116,150. Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, told correspondents a few days ago that German casualties since May 11 had reached 194,000.

Allies Bomb Reich And Austria

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—Flying through a heavy overcast which obscured the targets, United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers attacked military targets in Austria and southern Germany today.

At the same time RAF Mustangs struck at rail centers in Zagreb, Croatian capital, and the Maribor area of Yugoslavia, while United States Thunderbolts took a heavy toll of Nazi rolling stock in Italy's Po Valley.

The Liberators which bombed Germany and Austria encountered few fighters. They struck at the Regensburg, Munich and Augsburg areas of the Reich and at Linz in Austria. Flying Fortresses attacking at Regensburg used pathfinder instruments to locate their targets.

Mud Stalls Troops

Aground, the battle of Italy, which it was announced has taken a total of 116,150 Allied casualties since the opening of the offensive at Cassino on May 11, was stalled in the mud of the Po Valley approaches.

An Allied communique said activity was confined to patrolling and a few desultory clashes in the rain.

General Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander, announced recently that German casualties dating from May 11 were 194,000.

Kesselring "Badly Hurt"

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Gazette de Laussane reported today in a dispatch from the Italian frontier that Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, German commander in Italy, had been "very seriously" wounded, requiring long hospitalization.

Information from Italy on Thursday said Kesselring was wounded when his automobile overturned near Bologna after being machine-gunned by an Allied plane.

More Interested In Warmth

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—American soldiers on the Italian front, more concerned with keeping warm than with the Presidential election, will get the returns Wednesday by Army newspapers and radios which are all set to get the news to them in a hurry.

The army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, plans an extra and has asked for facilities to fly copies to the front.

The voting officer of a division which bore the main burden in the drive toward Bologna estimated that 30 per cent. of his men had cast ballots. Voting has been light among all the troops in Italy.

Duce Looked 'Very Tired'

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—A Polish officer whose unit recently captured Predappio, in the Forli sector of Italy, said today Benito Mussolini last August visited the chapel there, where the Fascist leader's mother, father and son Bruno are buried. The officer quoted a priest as saying Mussolini looked "very tired, old, depressed and ill."

A fourth grave at the chapel is intended for Mussolini himself.

Monarchy Leaflets Starts Fights in Rome

Rome, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Fist fights broke out today as hundreds of pro-monarchy leaflets were showered on spectators at the conclusion of an Italian Armistice Day address by former Premier Vittorio Emanuel Orlando in a Rome theater. The disorders abated without police intervention.

Italy signed an armistice with Austria-Hungary in the first world war on November 4, 1918.

The leaflets credited King Vittorio Emanuele with freeing the Italians "from Fascist tyranny."

Rome Gives Roosevelt Honorary Citizenship

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—The municipal government of Rome announced today that President Roosevelt had been made an honorary citizen of the Eternal City as an Italian Armistice Day gesture of recognition for "his constant friendliness toward Italy."

"Even during the Fascist war," the citation said, Mr. Roosevelt "did not confuse our country with the tyrannical regime which oppressed it."

China Recognizes Italy Regime

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Italian Government announced tonight that China officially had informed Premier Ivanoe Bonomi that it had decided to resume normal diplomatic relations with Italy.

GREEK BLITZ OUSTS NAZIS

Hellas Cleared Of Invaders In 38-Day Campaign

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—British troops and Greek Patriots have driven the Germans completely from Greece in a whirlwind campaign that was little less speedy that the lightning Nazi conquest of 1941, Allied headquarters announced today.

An RAF officer said it was believed the last German rear guards crossed over into Yugoslavia Thursday night—38 days after British troops landed on the rocky western coast of the Peloponnesus September 26. It took the Germans 27 days to overrun the little country in the spring of 1941.

An Almost Bloodless Victory

It was an almost bloodless victory for Allied arms, for so anxious were the Germans to clear out and so well did the guerrillas do their work, that British ground forces were unable to bring the rear guards to battle until they overhauled the retreating columns in northern Greece.

Before that sharp, short engagement at Kozane, 58 miles southwest of the port of Salonika, British and Patriots had swept across the Peloponnesus and on October 14 seized the capital of Athens by a combined assault from sea and air in which American transport planes took part.

An Allied announcement today said additional British troops had landed near Salonika, which previously was freed by Patriots and other Tommies moving up to the northern Greek port by land, and these forces reported also that no German troops remained on the mainland except a few stragglers.

On Run In Albania And Serbia

Tonight the Germans, who may never get back to the fatherland in view of the strong Yugoslav and Russian army positions in Yugoslavia, were still on the run out of Albania and Serbia.

A German broadcast said Nazi troops had strong positions in northern Albania, and were engaged in street fighting with "Communist elements" in the capital of Tirana itself.

Those Germans who fell back into Yugoslavia were under attack from Yugoslav Partisans at Bitolj, 13 miles north of the Greek border, and at Skoplje, 70 miles farther north, Marshal Tito's headquarters announced. Both towns were declared under siege.

Not A Nazi Spotted In Greece

Reconnaissance pilots who went out looking for Germans in Greece were unable to find any, they reported, but in the last 24 hours small columns were spotted near Lake Prespa, just across the border in Albania.

"It is fairly certain that all Germans are now out of Greece," the RAF officer said. "We believe rear guards went over the Greece-Serbian border Thursday night."

Germans Leave Greece; British At Salonika

Rome, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Germans have been completely cleared from Greece and British troops have landed on the Greek mainland in the vicinity of Salonika, already freed by the action of Greek Partisans, it was announced today.

No German troops remained anywhere on the Greek mainland except a few stray parties, it was announced.

Pilots Report No Trace

RAF pilots on reconnaissance flights reported they were unable to find any traces of Nazis who occupied the country early in 1941.

The Germans, seeking to escape the closing Allied trap, have been fleeing into Serbia and Albania. In the last 24 hours small enemy columns were seen in the vicinity of Lake Prespa, just across the Greek border in Albania.

Nazis Blow Up Bridges

"We believe German rear guards went over into Serbi.. Thursday night," an RAF officer said.

In their retreat up the Vardar Valley toward the Serbian city of Skoplje the Germans blew up many road and rail bridges in an effort to delay the pursuing British. A communique from Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisan headquarters said the Patriots were besieging Bitolj, 13 miles above the Greek border, and Skoplje, 70 miles farther north.

Perast, a village in Kotor Bay, and Vrlika, in the upper Cetina Valley, were captured, the broadcast bulletin said.

Port Of Valona Captured

A German broadcast said Nazi forces had evacuated the port of Valona, on the Albanian coast, and had moved to "strong barrier positions in northern Albania to protect the road to Scutari, which is under constant threat from Bolshevist forces." Scutari is in extreme northern Albania.

The Germans said Nazi troops were fighting "Communist elements" which had infiltrated into Tirana, capital of Albania.

Greek Rule Facing Test In Salonika

Athens, Nov. 4 (AP)—Premier George Papandreou's Government may be facing its toughest political problem of the Greek liberation in dealing with the self-constituted authorities of Salonika.

Salonika is almost entirely in the hands of the extreme left wing Elas. Red flags dominate even the Greek blue and white. The problem is different from that at Athens, which was divided between political successors of rival resistance groups.

The Elas at Salonika are well disciplined, better armed and better equipped than elsewhere in Greece.

At present the Elas are actively engaged in restoring Salonika's port under direction of a small party of British experts. In Salonika Bay, Partisan fishing schooners already have begun to minesweep with ordinary trawling nets. Sponge divers remove explosive charges from mine fields.

Salonika's Parade Ruined—Nazis Also

Athens, Nov. 3 (AP—Delayed)—Chasing Germans with Salonika's fire engines ruined the citizens' triumphal parade, but added another fantastic episode to the adventures of the reconnaissance party which liberated the Greek port.

Maj. Andy Lassen, of the British Army's special boat service had other ideas than stopping at the town hall and replying to speeches of welcome when the city was freed last Sunday. He told the helmeted fire brigade drivers to step on the gas, and the procession went roaring through the city.

The Salonikans were celebrating the departure of the enemy, but Lassen had a hunch he could catch some Germans on the outskirts.

He was right. He found a convoy of 25 trucks with a German demolition party at a Socony Vacuum installation. Lassen went into action with ten of his special boat servicemen and the Germans suffered 22 casualties, mostly dead, before they could get away.

JAPS MAY QUIT NORTH BURMA

Rapid Allied Advances Hint Planned Withdrawal

New Delhi, Nov. 4 (AP)—Allied forces are advancing so rapidly in north Burma against so little opposition as to raise the question of when and where the Japanese plan to put up further resistance.

Points raised are:

1. Has the beating the Japanese have taken in Burma this year weakened them so that they must select a defense line farther south, where they would be less extended and their supply work easier?

2. Are they fearful of a sea strike by the British Eastern Fleet at Rangoon and are they pulling southward for that?

3. Has the whole Japanese situation deteriorated so badly on account of American successes in the Pacific that they are assembling in south Burma for a possible total withdrawal?

The Japanese long ago evidently accepted defeat in the air over Burma, but in recent months they have taken a land beating as well. Certainly the pounding of their supply lines throughout Burma has complicated their strategy.

Move Along Railroad

During the past month of steady advance the British 36th Division has moved southward from the Mogaung vicinity along the main railroad line until it now is at Mawlu, 35 miles northwest of Katha.

Katha is an important Irrawaddy river port and rail head 100 miles southwest of Myitkyina, which finally was taken from the Japanese August 4.

During the same time Chinese forces operating more directly southward from Myitkyina have reached within 15 miles of Bhamo, important Irrawaddy river station.

Bhamo and Katha are almost on the line east and west, but both are on the winding Irrawaddy.

Joined By Spur Line

From Bhamo the river swings westward in a big "S" to Katha, where it is joined by a spur line to the central Burma railroad. River and railroad then follow a parallel course down the Irrawaddy Valley to Mandalay.

Chinese and British forces advancing southward on roughly parallel lines about 70 miles apart have covered almost one third of the distance to Mandalay. Repeatedly they have crossed streams and other natural defense points where the Japanese might have put up a stout defense if they had been able or eager, but little opposition was found.

The Chinese walked into the town of Myothit and a small Japanese patrol fled. Thus the Chinese found themselves within easy striking distance of Bhamo.

Encounter No Outposts

The Japanese have an excellent river defense position directly across the lines of the Chinese-British advance, but nothing approximating outposts had been encountered.

The Japanese suffered heavy losses on the two Burma fronts this past spring and summer. The British estimated that approximately 50,000 were killed on the Imphal-Kohima-Tiddim front, while Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell estimated he got only slightly fewer in the north Burma campaign which cleared the Ledo road as far as Myitkyina.

Other Japanese were killed by Chinese advancing from Yunnan across the Salween river into northeast Burma. That represents the killing of six or seven whole divisions, without counting the number wounded or dying of disease. The number of prisoners taken would not change the total much.

Advance Along Chindwin

In addition the British forces which beat the Japanese back from Imphal now are advancing into Burma along the Chindwin river and a spearhead has reached a point about 200 miles southwest of Katha.

It is still a long way for British forces hoping to make it by way of Mandalay and Rangoon. Nevertheless, the Japanese swept Burma clean of Allied forces in a period of weeks. The British and Chinese then had almost no air support and few reserves.

Now the Allies have air supremacy, available reserves, and there are indications that the Burmese, who before were either apathetic or hostile, now are changing their attitude because they are convinced their friends of the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere are losing the war.

road runs on through Kalemyo to Kalewa on the Chindwin river and is the enemy's main escape route from this entire region.

In northern Burma British troops patrolled south of Mawlu on the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad and to the East Chinese troops continued patrol activity along the Taping river near Myothit.

Allied aircraft were active. They bombed airfields in central Burma and supported the Tiddim area ground action.

Superforts Take Biggest Load Yet

Colombo, Ceylon, Nov. 4 (AP)—Superfortresses flying the first mission with fighter escort from the Eastern Air Command dropped the greatest bomb load ever carried in this theater on enemy installations in Rangoon and the vicinity, it was announced here today.

[The attack was announced Friday by the War Department in Washington.]

The rolling aerial circus attack, carried out early yesterday pinned down Japanese aircraft on fields over almost all of lower Burma.

The bombing was concentrated in railway marshalling yards at Mahlwagon, two miles from Rangoon in the first B-29 operation against Burma targets. The Superfortresses made a comparatively short round trip of 1,400 miles and were able because of short distance to carry extraordinarily heavy bomb loads.

Few Japanese fighters were seen and none challenged the big bombers and their fighter escorts.

Preceding the Superfortresses, Thunderbolts dived from 25,000 and 11,000-foot levels shooting up hangars and shelters at Hmabi airfield, 24 miles northeast of Rangoon. Mingaladon airfield, eight miles north of Rangoon, was strafed from tree-top level.

ALLIES OVERRUN JAP POSITIONS NEAR TIDDIM

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 4—(AP) Indian troops overran strong Japanese defenses around the so-called "vital corner" on the Fort White road southeast of Tiddim in northwestern Burma yesterday and sent the defending garrison fleeing to the south and east, the Allied command announced today.

Units of the Fifth Indian division killed at least 100 of the enemy in the operation, the daily communique said, and then advanced along the road to within a mile of Kennedy peak. The Tiddim-Fort White

JAPANESE RETREAT ACROSS YUNNAN

CHUNGKING, Nov. 4.—(AP) The Japanese who lost the Burma road city of Lungling to the Chinese were fleeing across difficult mountain trails today with the Chinese in pursuit and pressing the enemy rear guard at Changchingshaw, three miles southwest of Lungling, the Chinese High command announced.

The Chinese command singled out for special mention the U. S. 14th Air force fighterbombers which it said gave "excellent close support to our attacking forces" in the wild country of China's Yunnan province near the Burma border.

Reviewing the campaign for Lungling, the Chinese command said the Chinese occupied most of the city on June 10 but withdrew June 17 in the face of heavy Japanese reinforcements, then resumed the offenive on July 5 and took positions on three sides of the stronghold.

In August, however, the Japanese again were heavily reinforced, recaptured several positions and regained control of the Lungling terminus of the road to Tengchung on the north.

"Fighting back," the communique said, "our troops took the old town of Lungling, just north of the city proper, as well as hill positions dominating the Tengchung road. On Oct. 29 our attacks were resumed in strength, resulting in the ultimate withdrawal of enemy forces from the sector on Nov. 3."

JAPANESE ENTER KWEILIN SUBURB

CHUNGKING, Nov. 4—(AP) There is fighting in the eastern, northern and western suburbs of Kweilin, strategic Kwangsi province city which the Japanese are striving to envelop, the Chinese high command announced today in a communique reporting worsening of the military situation in South China.

Besides the suburban fighting, a Japanese column from the east which had by-passed Kweilin made further progress down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway towards Liuchow, reaching a point 18 miles southwest of Kweilin and 90 northeast of Liuchow. Brisk fighting was reported in progress.

With Kweilin so closely invested, Liuchow now is the most important railway center in free China.

The Chinese announced one success against the invaders: Recapture of all the strongpoints in the western suburbs of Tungan, on the railway 90 miles northeast of Kweilin. The Chinese have been attacking there to try to disrupt Japanese supply lines to the Kweilin battle zone.

The U. S. 14th air force announced that P-40 and P-51 planes bombing and strafing the enemy around Kweilin Thursday and Friday killed more than 450 Japanese troops and 115 horses and damaged eight tanks. Weather reduced the air operations.

Japs Penetrate Suburbs Of Kweilin

San Francisco, Nov. 4 (AP)—Romania has decided to sever diplomatic relations with Japan, the Japanese Domei news agency reported today in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Chungking, Nov. 4 (AP)—Japanese troops have penetrated Kweilin's eastern, western and northern suburbs and intense fighting is raging there, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

An enemy column which bypassed that defense pivot in south central China struck down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway toward Liuchow and reached a point six miles from Yungfu, 33 miles southwest of Kweilin.

Main Rail Center

Liuchow now is the most important rail center in all free China, also the site of an advanced American air base.

In Yunnan province, where the Chinese Salween river offensive has overrun important Lungling on the Burma road, the Japanese retreated southwestward. Chinese troops were given close support by United States 14th Air Force fighter-bombers.

Active Over Kweilin

Fourteenth Air Force flyers also were active over the Kweilin area. Despite adverse weather conditions, P-40s and P-51s attacked advancing Japanese columns near Kweilin, killing more than 450 enemy troops and 115 horses and damaging eight tanks.

P-40s also struck a concentration of 1,500 enemy troops and 300 horses near Yungfu, on the railroad 20 miles south of Kweilin, killing 300 troops and 115 horses and damaging three tanks.

AMERICANS DRIVE FOR PINAMOPOAN

Japs Mass Around Ormoc For Last-Ditch Leyte Stand

MACARTHUR

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Sunday, Nov. 5 (AP)—Fifty-seven Japanese planes were wiped out on the ground and ten more shot down in sky battles as American planes stepped up their attacks on Cebu and Negros islands west of Leyte, headquarters announced today.

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Sunday, Nov. 5 (AP)—Veterans of the 24th Division drove by land and sea yesterday against Pinamopoan, key highway terminus on Carigara Bay, in preparation for a larger scale assault against Ormoc, 20 miles southward, where the Japanese have prepared new defenses for a last-ditch stand.

Hard-fighting "Victory" troops of the division smashed forward from Carigara, seven miles eastward, in the land assault, while small boats threaded the narrow San Juancio Strait, on the east coast, an dswept across the island's hump to the beach at Pinamopoan.

Japs Put Up Strong Resistance

The Japanese strongly resisted all attempts to break their stubborn road block at Pinamopoan, which stands guard at the northern end of the narrow Ormoc valley corridor. A highway runs through the mountains from Pinamopoan to Ormoc, where mechanized Japanese reinforcements have been landed and started north.

Earlier small-scale American attacks were repulsed.

The Nipponese struck back with a counterattack in some force at Capoocan, midway between Carigara and Pinamopoan, but they were repulsed "bloodily," today's communique reported.

Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th Infantry Division, said the fight was bitter there in hills flanking Capoocan village.

One Yank company weathered a Banzai charge killing ten Japanese who penetrated a company command post.

Two patrols of the same company descended into a gully where the Japanese had set up machine guns and mortars to fire on the coastal road. The veterans slugged it out in a draw 30 feet wide and 400 feet long.

NOV 5 1944

"Our Losses Severe, But—"

"Our losses were severe," Hampson said, "but more than 30 Japs died in their dugouts along the banks."

The 24th, victors in the bloodiest battle of the Leyte campaign just prior to their entry into Carigara town, were making a characteristic double time march toward Pinamopoan to meet the Japanese reinforcements.

The greatest difficulty faced was the rebuilding of bridges over two wide streams, necessary to get heavy artillery up to support the infantry.

"At midafternoon we had made no contact with the Jap reinforcements," Hampson said in a November 4 dispatch from the field.

Airmen Strafe Jap Convoys

Mechanized Japanese columns continued to move along the Ormoc Valley road, lashed continually by American fighter planes, evidently attempting to bulwark crumbling Carigara Bay lines around Pinamopoan.

American fighters continued low-level strafing attacks on these motorized convoys, the communique reported, "forcing continual dispersal of troops and vehicles and effectively preventing organized movement along the highway.

"The enemy has lost heavily in armored vehicles, trucks and artillery landed as part of his latest reinforcements," the communique said.

The Japanese also have "prepared hasty defensive positions in the hills fronting the plains north of Ormoc and is ende avoring to protect his last remaining foothold on Leyte Island," the communique added.

These plains curve in a semi-circle about four miles wide around American-threatened Ormoc, ending in the hills.

Erection of the Japanese positions appeared to be an attempt to prepare a last stand at Ormoc, the final major Japanese base on Leyte.

Fighting along Carigara Bay was on a local scale, despite its intensity, and does not mean the Americans have established contact with the potentially formidable Japanese mechanized column moving northward from Ormoc, reported Murlin Spencer, Associated Press war correspondent.

A headquarters spokesman said there has been no report the two forces have been in contact.

Newly arrived Warhawk fighters joined the intensive American aerial attack on the convoys moving through Ormoc Valley, strafing and dive bombing the Japanese.

Elements of the Seventh Division in the central Leyte Valley near the east coast readily repulsed Japanese infiltration movements west of Dagami.

Quiet In Other Sectors

Elsewhere the battle fronts were quiet. No report has been made for several days on movements of another Seventh Division element which reached the west coast at Baybay, 26 miles south of Ormoc.

The Japanese continued to launch what the communique called "harassing" night air raids. Damage was negligible but the assaults, aided by brilliant moonlight, were made at 15 to 40 minute intervals by from one to eight planes.

What these planes lacked in numbers they compensated in persistency and cunning, in assaulting shipping, airfields and shore installations from dusk until dawn.

JAPS REINFORCE TROOPS ON LEYTE FOR HARD BATTLE

SPENCER

Enemy Lands Tanks and Big Guns at Ormoc Despite Heavy Air Attack.

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—The aroused Japanese, defying superior forces of American men and guns on the move north and south of Ormoc, marshalled reinforcements today under a hail of aerial bombs for a finish fight on western Leyte.

Reports for the last twenty-four hours told of the enemy on the recoil. Nipponese airmen made more than thirty-five low-level attacks on eastern Leyte airfields and docks, blew up an ammunition dump and set a merchant ship afire. The fire was extinguished.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that Nipponese planes attacked an aircraft carrier group of the Third fleet, which has been supporting the Philippines reinvasion, and damaged several ships.

Enemy tanks, troops and artillery have been landed at Ormoc from a convoy which lost two transports and twenty-five covering planes in a fierce battle with the Forty-ninth Fighter Group, record-breaking squadron of the Far Eastern Army Air Force.

The Forty-ninth, which has shot down 530 Japanese planes during the war and boasts America's ace of aces in Major Richard I. Bong, of Poplar, Wis., with a bag of thirty-three, later spotted a ten-mile-long motor convoy rolling north from Ormoc.

The planes swept down to tree-top level over the mechanized reinforcements, blasting thirty trucks, at least two tanks, equipment and supplies.

"We could see the bodies blown into the air," Major Thomas B. Maguire, of San Antonio, Tex., told Richard Bergholz, Associated Press War Correspondent, at a Leyte airfield.

The bady cut up Japanese column was trying to reach Carigara Bay on Leyte's northwest coast by way of a twenty-mile road from Ormoc and bulwark Nipponese retreating before the Tenth Corps of Major-Gen. Franklin C. Sibert.

At the north end of that road where it emerges from Ormoc Valley, 155S and eight - inch howitzers were wheeled in position to lay down just such a withering fire as the eighteen - hour barrage which crushed the bloodiest resistance of the Leyte campaign before Carigara town.

[Capt. Robert W. Webster of Columbia, Tenn., returning from an Army observation mission on Leyte, told Charles H. McMurtry, Associated Press Bureau chief at Honolulu, that the Japanese particularly feared American heavy artillery.]

Sibert's Twenty-fourth Infantry Division and First Cavalry Division approached the road's terminus at Pinamopoan after rolling five miles west of smouldering Carigara.

The Japanese High Command risked sending the reinforcements up the Ormoc Valley despite the possibility of their being bottled up by the Seventh Infantry Division of Major-Gen. Archibald V. Arnold driving in behind them.

Crossed Central Leyte.

The Seventh was disclosed yesterday by Gen. MacArthur to have crossed central Leyte to Baybay, twenty-six miles down the west coast from Ormoc. Nothing more has been said about movements of the Seventh, which has a good coastal road ahead of it to Ormoc.

Indicating the determination of the enemy to stay on Leyte, fifty first-line planes, piloted by some of the ablest Nipponese airmen encountered in the Pacific, flew tight cover over the four large transports and escorting destroyers which carried in the re-enforcements.

American Lightnings and bomb-carrying Warhawks tore into the aerial screen and weaved through heavy flak to score a partial success, but the convoy got men ashore during the darkness Wednesday night and early Thursday.

Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor, without specifying the locale of the enemy divebomber attack on the Third Fleet carrier group, which occurred Thursday, Philippines time, said that the raiders caused "some damage to several ships and light personnel casualties." Ten raiders were downed.

Ten more were shot down during enemy raids on American Leyte airfields and docks, five by ground crews, which threw up the heaviest anti-aircraft curtain yet unloosed on Leyte. One American plane was lost as the Yanks bagged five.

Another ten enemy planes were accounted for by American raids west of Leyte—five on the ground on Cebu, five in the air over Negros. Four United States bombers were lost.

On Luzon, main Philippine Island, air patrols bombed and derailed a Japanese troop train.

GIs Find Leyte Island Most Miserable Yet

By Leif Erickson

Dulag, Leyte Island, Philippines, Oct. 31 (AP—Delayed)—Life for a "Joe Blow" in this flat, undrained eastern Leyte valley is just a continuous, miserable round of work—in rain, mud or dust—and flopping down in the dirt in the chow line every time a low-flying Japanese plane buzzes the tree tops.

It is difficult to imagine a form of discomfort that Leyte does not have. The GI Joes and navy beach party sailors will talk long and loudly about what a hell hole Leyte was.

When it rains here the wind lashes a torrent of water through the trees and tents with the force of a hose.

The typhoon winds circle the compass. They start from the west and swing to the south, then blow from the northeast. No corner in the tent will stay dry.

Rest Impossible

Rest is impossible. If the tent stays up you are worn out from the suspense of lying awake waiting for it to collapse.

If it does come down, you wrap the folds around you and try to sleep. It is futile to try a salvage operation while the gale howls.

If you have a shelter half over a slit trench, you likely will be sitting in three feet of water by morning.

And after the rain there is the mud. This valley, running northwest the length of the island, is covered with silt from countless years of floods. The one road west from Coastal Dulag approximates a second class American highway. It is the sector's only passable road inland.

Drive Through Soup

"Alligators," "Weasels" and trucks, trying to break through to supply the infantry, churn through a soupy mixture about the consistency of freshly poured concrete.

Around the camp the mud clings to your shoes like lead. Each time a Japanese plane approaches you dive into a foxhole knee-deep in mud or dust—depending upon the weather—and more dirt grinds into your skin and green fatigue suit.

A bulk of the supplies for the 7th and 9tl. Divisions through the valley campaign was moved inland over the Dulag-Burauben road which is barely wide enough for two-lane traffic. Actually it carried four lines of traffic. In addition to trucks, caterpillars and ammunition cars moving back and forth from the front there were two lines of civilians, in family files, complete with carabao (water buffalo), goats or pigs.

Refugees Return

As the Yanks captured Barrios (villages) in their westward drive, the Filipino refugees on the east coast started returning to their homes. At the same time civilians in battle sectors fled eastward to the coast.

Traffic congestion was stupendous. But the military kept it moving.

When it didn't rain for as long as two days a thick fog of dust rose up and settled gray layers of dirt everywhere.

Surfs Pound Beach

After a night typhoon the surf pounded Dulag beach where LSTs were unloading. To get the trucks in and out of the LSTs long lines of men tossed sandbags into the foaming water under the first ramps. The men on the outer edges of the sandbag lines were working shoulder deep in Leyte Gulf. Steel nets were laid on top of the sandbags to keep them from washing away.

None of this is nice work. But there's plenty of it for the Yanks of the Leyte invasion expedition.

Officer Earns Nickname

With the 24th Division, Leyte Valley, Philippines, Oct. 30 (AP—Delayed)—"Get the hell off this beach."

With those words Col. A. S. Newman, redheaded former Olympic athlete, rallied his men from artillery fire that raked the Palo end of the Leyte beachhead on D-day, October 20.

When Newman reached the beach his men were barricaded behind hummocks and palm logs. He strode forward upright, scanned the situation, walked through them and yelled:

"Come on, follow me. Let's get the hell off this beach."

To a man, the GI's arose and followed him against enemy positions at a coconut grove which commanded the beach. In half an hour the foe was cleaned out.

Newman, who was graduated from West Point in 1925 and represented the United States in the Olympics at Amsterdam in 1928, emerged without a scratch.

His nickname now is "Get the Hell Off the Beach" Newman.

Bulldozer Dumps Pillbox On Japs

With 24th Division, Leyte Valley, Philippines, Nov. 1 (AP—Delayed)—Using a commandeered bulldozer, its blade held high to shield him, Lieut. Robert B. Chapman, of Chicago, smashed a Japanese pillbox that had held up the Americans' advance for 24 hours and had exacted heavy casualties.

The pillbox was built of reinforced concrete and covered with palm logs and earth. It had with stood point-blank fire from a 75-mm. gun.

Makes Several Attempts

Lieutenant Chapman commandeered the bulldozer and worked it around to the rear of the pillbox. After repeated attempts he finally pushed it in on the Japanese occupants.

"Twice I backed away and crawled forward to determine how best to tackle the job," Chapman said. "When my engine was idling I could hear the Japs chanting a singsong chorus inside.

"Then I heard a succession of muffled explosions and there was no more singing," he said. "I went ahead and collapsed the fortification anyhow."

163 Japs Killed For Each American

With the 24th Division, Leyte, P. I., Nov. 1 (AP—Delayed)—This division's 19th Regiment, which spearheaded the powerful Leyte Valley drive, cutting across the mid-island, has an enviable record of killing 1,300 Japanese, while losing eight of its own men.

Commanded by Lieut. Col. G. H. Chapman, of Evaston, Wyo., the regiment distinguished itself during the Hollandia campaign with expert patrol work.

Strafing Of Japs Like Gunnery Practice

A Leyte Air Base, P. I., Nov. 3 (AP—Delayed)—First Lieutenant Charles McElroy, of Shreveport, La., said the strafing of a ten-mile-long reinforcement column of Japanese vehicles being brought up from Ormoc today "was like the gunnery practice we got during training."

"We formed a regular traffic pattern. Make your strafing run, wheel to the right, circle back and wait your turn to make another run," McElroy said. "Every vehicle in the convoy must have taken at least one hit."

The fighters ran out of ammunition just as about 20 enemy planes attempted interception, and the Americans withdrew.

Well-Seasoned Jap Troops On Leyte

Army Headquarters, Pacific Ocean Areas, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Japanese on Leyte in the Philippines are well-seasoned, well-trained troops who make only a few small scale Banzai (shouting attacks and then with good objectives.

That is the report made today at a press conference by Capt. Robert W. Webster, 25, of Columbia, Tenn., army observer.

The Japanese on Leyte appeared most to fear American heavy artillery which was made the chief objective of the Banzai charges, Webster said.

The Japanese attempted to blow up the artillery with magnetic mines.

"Unnerving To The Men"

Webster told of one such Banzai charge which reached the 24th Corps service area and "was unnerving to the men there, but the Yanks killed 28 out of the 50 attacking Japanese.

The next night the Japanese returned but the Americans repulsed them with more ease, while losing three men.

Webster said the Japanese sniper fire was accurate, which is unusual in the Pacific to date. Some snipers killed Americans at 500 yards.

The Nipponese used both dumdum and wooden bullets, Webster said. But wooden bullets generally were considered ineffective.

Very few men ever saw the Japanese on Leyte, Webster said. "They are masters of camouflage and concealment."

Rear-Guard Operation

He explained that the Leyte campaign was largely a rear-guard type of operation, in which the withdrawing Japanese tried to trap pursuing Yanks.

Webster compared the Leyte landing with that at Normandy because it was made on such a large scale along the 16-mile Philippine beach, but said resistance was slight and the invasion was not nearly as tough as those of other Pacific islands.

Filipino Guerrillas will continue to play a great role in future, and perhaps increasingly more difficult, invasions of other Philippine islands, Webster predicted.

Planes Blast Two Enemy Ships

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 4 (AP).—Marine Corsair planes heavily damaged two small Japanese cargo ships near Babelthuap Island, in the Palau group, Nov. 1, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The Corsair raiders also hit Yap Island, northeast of the Palaus. Enemy barges and trucks were destroyed by marine bombs and strafing at both places, Nimitz's communique said.

Army Thunderbolt fighter-bombers attacked Pagan Island in the Marianas Nov. 2 destroying a Japanese twin-engine bomber. Other marine Corsairs strafed enemy gun emplacements on Rota Island in the Marianas while the Army planes worked over Pagan.

Army Liberator heavy bombers blasted the airstrip on Marcus Island Nov. 1 and 2; a Navy Catalina patrol plane bombed Nauru, phosphate-producing island in the Gilbert group, the night of Nov. 1, and Corsairs strafed and bombed Japanese positions in the Marshall Islands Nov. 2.

Japs Raid U. S. Airfields.

United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Following closely unconfirmed enemy reports that Superfortresses flew over Tokyo this week from bases in the Marianas, a force of Japanese planes raided two American airfields in the Marianas Wednesday and Thursday.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a communique last night that nine twin - engined Nipponese bombers caused minor damage on Isely airfield at Saipan and another base on northern Tinian. Three enemy bombers were downed. One killed four Americans and seriously injured a fifth when it crashed.

There has been no Allied confirmation that the B-29s flew on reconnaissance over Tokyo or that any of the big bombers are based in the Marianas.

American air blows announced by Admiral Nimitz included the bombing of four cargo ships, all of them hit and one sunk, at Chichi in the Volcano Islands, 615 miles south of Tokyo, Wednesday.

Princeton Kayoed By Single Bomb

San Francisco, Nov. 4—A single bomb which landed on the flight deck of the Princeton during the naval battle off the Philippines caused damage which later forced the sinking of the carrier, survivors related on a National Broadcasting Company program originating at Guam today.

Charles J. Donovan, of Philadelphia, an aviation machinists' mate (first class), said some of the Princeton's planes had just landed when two bombs fell from an attacking Japanese aircraft. "One was a narrow miss; the other landed on deck," Donovan said.

Ammunition Explodes

"Smoke and flame rose on the flight deck and soon was so bad that men on the port side of the flight deck fighting the flames were given permission to abandon ship," Marine Captain Joseph Trumpeter, Rapid City, S. D., related. "Ammunition on our anti-aircraft guns exploded from the heat. Ten minutes later there was another explosion. It was apparent that both decks were aflame. A few minutes later there was another explosion and orders were given to abandon ship."

L. F. Moloff, Los Angeles, a gun captain, said he believed American pilots downed the attacking plane as it moved away from the carrier.

Withdrawal Orderly

The withdrawal of personnel from the ship was very orderly, Ensign Frank S. Goodrich, of Iron Mountain, Mich., reported. "I went over the side with the others," he said. "A destroyer was drawing alongside and I was caught between the two ships, but managed to get free."

A short while later the coup de grace was administered the badly damaged carrier by American ships, the man said.

Molina Seeks To Form Government In Exile

San Jose, Costa Rica, Nov. 4 (AP). Miguel Tomas Molina, proclaimed the legitimate President of Salvador by three members of the Supreme Court, was reported today to be meeting in Guatemala with Slavadorian diplomats in an effort to form a government in exile.

Riots which broke out in Santa Ana after Molina was proclaimed President were reported continuing.

Reports from Guatemala said Molina planned to seek recognition from the United States and several other American nations.

The revolutionary government of Col. Osmin Aguirre Salinas has not been recognized.

'Round-World Air Route Officially Open

Montreal, Nov. 4 (AP)—The British completed the official opening of a 'round-the-world military air route today with the arrival in Sydney, Australia, of an RAF transport plane from Montreal.

Opening a regular British ferrying service between Montreal and Sydney, the transport left here Tuesday on her journey of 11,520 miles, flying by way of California, Honolulu, Canton Island, Fiji and Auckland, New Zealand.

Several flights a week are planned.

The transport, a Liberator, was piloted by Commodore G. J. Powell, senior air staff officer at the Montreal headquarters of the RAF Transport Command.

Field Marshal Sir John Dill, Of Britain, Dies In Washington

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of the British Joint Staff Mission in the United States, died tonight in Walter Reed Army Hospital. He had been ill for several months with anemia.

The British Information Service issued the following announcement:

"The British Joint Staff Mission deeply regrets to announce that Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of the British Joint Staff Mission in Washington, and representative in the United States of the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, in his capacity as Minister of Defense, died tonight in Walter Reed Hospital.

Victim Of Anemia

"For some months the field marshal had been fighting a refractory type of anemia, for which no specific treatment is yet known to medical science.

"In spite of repeated transfusions of blood, in the long run the strain of this disorder proved too great for his constitution."

Sir John was 63 years old.

He retired as chief of the British Imperial General Army three years ago and served as governor of Bombay until his assignment to Washington.

He is survived by his widow, Lady Dill, one son by a previous marriage, Major John de Guerin Dill, of the British Royal Artillery, now serving in the central Mediterranean, and by a stepdaughter, Miss Sonia Furlong, of Washington.

Secretary of War Stimson, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, United States Army, and Gen. H. H. Arnold, of the Army Air Forces, issuel statements paying tribute to the British officer.

Sir John had been called by British admirers "our best general since Marlborough," and during the early days of the war a German commentator once referred to him as the only British general "worthy of our steel."

Recalled To England

An Irishman from Belfast, he was educated at Cheltenham College and Sandhurst, the British military college. He served in the Boer War as a junior officer and in World War I as a brigade major.

Peacetime tours of duty at posts in India and Palestine were followed by his recall to England in 1937 to take charge of the huge infantry base at Aldershot. The same year he was promoted to full general and knighted.

At the outbreak of the second World War he went to France as a corps commander, but before the German smash into France was recalled to England and made vice-chief of the imperial staff. In May, 1940, he was appointed chief of staff.

DeGaulle Is Given Use Of French Funds In U. S.

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—The newly recognized French Government will be allowed to dip freely into its own money bags in this country, Treasury officials said today.

Uncle Sam will keep hold of the draw strings for the present. French funds are still officially frozen. But the de Gaulle Government can use its assets under licensing by the Treasury. And the licensing will be liberal.

The liberality doesn't apply to funds owned by private French interests. Those assets are still tied up tightly.

Unfreezing Considered

Unfreezing of the French assets, which amount to $1,400,000,000—public and private—is under consideration by this Government. But Treasury officials said "a number of problems" must be worked out first.

There are problems to be met before private trade between France and the United States can be resumed. Some officials think it will be many months, maybe more than a year—even though the announced policy of the United States Government is to restore trade to private trade channels as soon as possible.

An important step was taken today when the United States began regular postal service (up to one ounce) with France. Until today, you could send only postal cards and write about personal matters—no business allowed.

Can't Send Money

Now you can exchange all sorts of business information with Frenchmen, just so you don't accomplish any financial transactions. You can't send a check or money order, but you can negotiate for future trade deals, send bank statements and documents such as birth and death certificates.

You can even send a cable (but don't expect fast handling, because facilities are limited). You can't yet send a letter air mail or registered mail, and you can't send anything parcel post.

The value of the French Government's assets in this country has never been announced. They have been estimated roughly and unofficially at somewhere between $800,000,000 and a billion dollars most of it probably in gold.

BRITAIN TO OPEN DRIVE TO BOOST FOREIGN TRADE

30. 24 — 20155

Informs U. S. Cash Is Needed for Imports Required by Her Civilians.

WOULD RELAX LEND-LEASE

Officials Say They Are Turning Down Orders for Goods Lest Borrowed Material Be Used.

Washington, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—British officials have informed the United States that the United Kingdom intends to drive vigorously for increased exports in the Pacific stage of the war, it was learned today.

To push up exports so cash can be obtained for needed civilian imports the British are discussing with American officials proposals for relaxing regulations which they maintain hamper their foreign trade.

Both British and American officials affirm that lend-lease or similar goods will not be re-exported for sale by the British. However, it is extremely difficult to trace the origin of all materials in finished products.

The British say they have been turning down possible foreign trade because of the possibility that some lend-lease material might be involved. With tentative lend-lease estimates for 1945 at about half this year's expected $10 billion mark, the London Government is said to feel it can be more lenient with its own manufacturers, without relaxing precautions against re-export of lend-lease.

Must Buy for Cash.

At present United Kingdom exports amount to 30 per cent of their pre-war level, and this percentage includes credits to Russia and some muntions. A British official said that the aim is to push them up to 70 per cent, although this must be gradual because reconversion has not yet begun in England and only 2 per cent of British man power is available to work in foreign industries.

The London stand is that exports are essential if Britain is to be able to obtain civilian supplies its population needs—beyond lend-lease.

These supplies must be bought for cash, officials said, adding that capital goods purchased by the United Kingdom, such as machine tools, have been paid for on the line.

Parallel to scaling down their lend-lease requests for next year to between five and six billion dollars, British officials said they believed about one-fourth of Britain's war production could be reconverted when the war shifts to the Pacific.

Present estimates are that twelve months after the defeat of Germany Britain still will have to maintain at least half her war production.

Toll In Transport Sinking Revealed

NOV 5 1944

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Details of the sinking of an American transport by an Axis submarine in the North Atlantic with heavy loss of life early in 1943 were revealed for the first time today.

The vessel, the liner Henry R. Mallory, which in peactime flew the Clyde-Mallory flag in the New York-Galveston run, was in a convoy carrying army, navy and Marine Corps personnel to Iceland when attacked during a snowstorm and heavy seas.

Nearly 300 servicemen were missing when survivors were rescued by the Coast Guard cutters George M. Bibb and Ingram. Thirty-eight members of the ship's crew of 71, including the master, also were lost.

Many servicemen were killed below decks by the explosion of the torpedo. The heavy weather made launching of lifeboats and rafts difficult and several were smashed while being lowered.

Details of the sinking were reported by the War Shipping Administration in announcing payment of $428,333 to Agwilines, Inc., New York, for the loss of the vessel.

The navy on February 22, 1943, announced the loss of two ships in the North Atlantic with heavy loss of life, but did not identify them. The Henry R. Mallory presumable is one of them.

U. S. DIPLOMATS TO GO TO RUMANIA, BULGARIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The State Department has decided to send political representatives to the former Axis satellites, Bulgaria and Rumania, it was learned today.

Maynard B. Barnes is slated to go to Bulgaria and Burton Berry, American Consul General at Istanbul, Turkey, is to go to Rumania. Each will have the personal rank of Minister.

The War Department is still working on appointments to the Allied Control Commissions.

No action has yet been taken on permitting Bulgarian and Rumanian representatives to come to Washington.

While dispatch of the two United States representatives does not mean establishment of formal diplomatic relations with Bulgaria and Rumania, it is an opening step in that direction.

UNRRA SOON TO SEND DELEGATES TO POLAND

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—UNNRA announced tonight that it would send a delegation into liberated Poland soon to arrange for shipment and distribution of relief supplies.

This is the first announcement of plans for the dispatch of a United Nations group—including non-Russian representatives—into that politically complicated area. It is interpreted here as meaning that the political conflict in which the Poles are living will not be permitted to bar them from receiving help from outside.

Although the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announcement made no mention of the fact, the decision to send the delegation was made in agreement with the Russian Government. Russia, which has military jurisdiction of the Eastern Front on behalf of all the Allied powers, is sponsoring the Lublin de facto administration of Poland.

The Polish Government in exile in London, which is recognized by Great Britain and the United States, is reported to have consented weeks ago to the relief mission's trip, even though it necessarily must work with the Lublin group.

The initial job will be to estimate needs. It is known that the need for medical supplies is acute, food and clothing are very short and substantial amounts of fertilizers and agricultural tools will be needed.

334,618 War Prisoners In U. S.

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—There were 334,618 war prisoners in this country as of November 1, the War Department announced today. German prisoners led the list with a total of 281,344. Japanese prisoners totaled only 2,242. Italians totaled 51,032.

Large U. S.-Soviet Trade After War Predicted

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Russia will be able to export on an average at least $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 in goods annually for ten years when conditions are normal, a United States official estimates.

The figures are those of E. C. Ropes, chief of the Russian unit of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, who predicts in "world economics" that American-Soviet trade after the war will be large.

GOAL MISSED IN MUNITIONS

September 4 Per Cent. Below Schedule, WPB Reports

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Munitions production fell 4 per cent. below the goal for September with only one major category meeting its schedule.

September output, valued at $5,300,000,000, was 2 per cent. below the monthly average for the year, the War Production Board reported today.

"Other equipment and supplies," which brings up the rear of the major categories, increased 4 per cent. over August and exceeded the September schedule by 1 per cent. Ammunition, up 3 per cent., was the only other category to increase from the preceding month.

By Major Classifications

September production compared with August and to September schedules, on a dollar basis, for the major classifications:

Aircraft (airframes, engines, propellors, spare parts, and equipment), down 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. below schedule.

Ships (value of work done on army, navy and Maritime Commission ships, including maintenance and repair), down 3 per cent., 11 per cent. below.

Guns and fire control, down 9 per cent. and 6 per cent. below.

Ammunition, up 3 per cent. and 1 per cent. below.

Combat and motor vehicles, down 4 per cent. and 9 per cent. below.

Communication and electronic equipment, no change and 5 per cent below.

Other equipment and supplies, up 4 per cent. and 1 per cent. above.

For the first time, both of the plants turning out engines for super-bombers exceeded schedule. Production of all plane engines, however, missed schedule by 6 per cent. and fell 12 per cent. below the record reached in August.

Heavy Field Artillery

The heavy field artillery schedule was met, but the WPB cautioned that the September rate must be maintained to meet requirements for the remainder of the year.

1945 Warplane Quota Cut Another 5 Per Cent.

NOV 5 1944

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—The aircraft production program for next year has been cut another five per cent., it was learned today, under a new schedule calling for about 75,000 planes, compared with this year's 100,000.

The drop was attributed to the continued lower-than-anticipated losses in all combat zones and to the general shift in production emphasis to air craft adapted to the Pacific theater of war.

Despite the overall cut in both tonnage and numbers, the adjustment was reported by informed sources to include a stepup in the planned production of super-bombers and at least one type of large transport plane.

October Output On Schedule

An October output of 7,429 planes was reported yesterday by J. A. Krug, chairman of the Aircraft Production Board. This was on schedule," Krug said. The output was 169 planes lower than in September.

Lags were reported in some of the most urgently needed types—including super-bombers and long-range transports.

Some plants "fell down badly," Krug reported, at a time when manufacturers' schedules have been trimmed so stringently that "below-schedule output on a particular model is bound to hamper planned military operations."

All-Out Effort Needed

"While the October production was good, continued all-out effort must be exerted to meet service requirements, particularly for the new improved types incorporating the improvements dictated by battle experience," he said.

The new 1945 schedule, it was reported, calls for a gradual decline as the year advances, having small effect on the aircraft industry for the first six months or so but tapering to around 6,000 planes a month by December, 1945.

The original objective for 1945, as drawn early this year, was around 120,000 planes. This has been pared down at least three times, the last previous schedule calling for output hovering around 8,000 a month throughout the year.

Ship Production Improved

Ship production for October, reported by the Maritime Commission, showed an improved output of the assault cargo ships and transports urgently needed for Pacific operations. Of the 145 ships delivered by merchant yards, 53 were military types; and of the latter, more than half were "combat loaders" or navy transports.

Total 1944 production of around 16,000,000 deadweight tons in merchant shipyards was indicated. Last year 19,000,000 tons were delivered. The difference is attributed to the higher proportion of fast vessels which are slower to build but better adapted to use in the Pacific war and post-war commercial operations.

$146,853,000 Surplus Property Sent Agencies

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—The War Department reported today that it turned over to Government disposal agencies during September surplus property valued orginally at $146,853,000.

Property still on hand at disposal centers at the end of September was valued at $407,553,000, the army said. The material ranges from non-technical aircraft to snowshoes.

Conflict Rises on Loans In 'G. I. Bill of Rights'

Amendment Held Probable on Compensation Attachment

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The "G. I. Bill of Rights" appears to be headed back to Congress for amendment even as the Veterans' Administration sends forms for G. I. loans to the government printer.

A conflict has developed on a critical point—whether a veteran's disability compensation may be attached by the Federal government if he is unable to keep up his payments on a home, farm or business for which he obtained a G. I. loan.

The Veterans Administration disclosed today that under its interpretation of the Law, such attachment is possible. The American Legion, which sponsored the measure, said the Legion never had planned, approved or had any knowledge that such action would be permitted.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark, (Democrat-Missouri), who was active in the Senate debate, said today such attachment was the intent of Congress. Senator Clark was reached at St. Louis. Representative Bernard Kearney, (Republican-New York), of the House Veterans Committee, said Congress had no such plan and that he will introduce counteractive legislation immediately after the election. He stated his position by telephone from Gloversville, N. Y.

Generally the V. A. interpretation is that if a disabled veteran becomes unable to pay a G. I. loan for a home, farm or business, the government may foreclose on the property and in addition, divert the veteran's disability payment to the debt until it has been paid. The interpretation was disclosed in a form to be read to or by a veteran-applicant for a loan.

Campaign Role Of Insurance Firms Studied

Senators May Also Inquire Into Talks by Sponsored Commentators on Radio

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee disclosed today it is making preliminary inquiries into allegations of partisan political activity by insurance companies and by radio commentators on sponsored broadcasts.

"Inquiries are being made at the present time into a complaint that insurance companies have been actively engaged in political activity, to determine whether or not the facts warrant a full-scale investigation," Robert T. Murphy, committee counsel, said in a statement.

"Similar inquiries are being made on a tentative basis to determine whether or not the committee would be justified in studying sponsored radio broadcasts purporting to be impartial news commentaries and which are alleged to be, in fact, highly partisan."

In a lengthy review of the committee's investigations, Mr. Murphy also reported that newspaper clippings were being gathered with a view to studying the objectivity of the campaign news coverage. His statement said:

"The committee has accumulated thousands of newspaper clippings which may later form a basis for an effort on the part of the committee to evaluate newspaper coverage of the campaign in terms of relative objectivity.

"This particular project has not yet been presented to the full committee and may not materialize because of the obvious difficulties, both in time and judgment."

Mr. Murphy declined to identify the radio broadcasters under committee scrutiny, but named several insurance companies and officials against whose activities he said complaints had been filed. They included:

The Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Casualty Insurance Company of Philadelphia, which Mr. Murphy said was asserted by a complainant to have distributed literature supporting Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee.

H. K. Dent, of Seattle, Wash., president of the General Insurance Company of America and two associated companies, said by Mr. Murphy to have distributed to stockholders and employees of the companies a letter declaring a Communist-sponsored "revolution by ballot" was under way. The letter mentioned no candidate or party, however, and bore a notation by Mr. Dent that he had written the letter as a private citizen.

The People's Committee to defend Life Insurance and Savings, with headquarters at 116 Nassau Street in New York City, which Mr. Murphy said had sponsored Dewey-Bricker rallies in various states.

Making it clear that the committee headed by Senator Theodore L. Green, Democrat, of Rhode Island, would continue to function after Tuesday's election, Mr. Murphy said it may recommend various changes in Federal and state corrupt practices laws.

Smith Expenses Probe Is Sought By Opponent

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Justice Department was requested today to look into campaign expenditures of Representatives Smith (D., Va.).

Mrs. Elizabeth Chilton Murray, independent Democratic candidate opposing Smith's reelection, wrote Attorney General Francis Biddle that Smith reported to the House clerk on October 28 he had made no campaign contributions to that date.

She asserted, however, that during a House campaign expenditures hearing this week Smith stated he had made a small contribution to the campaign treasurer of Charlottesville on October 26 and had mad commitments to "underwrite a portion of the campaign expenses in Arlington county and to underwrite all the expenses of a headquarters in Alexandria."

LABOR TO PLAY BIGGEST ROLE

Unprecedented Vote By The Union Man Is Seen

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—One thing about next Tuesday's election is certain right now: labor will be playing its biggest role, after a history of "bit" parts in amateurish support of the stars.

Labor organizations leaped into the middle of the campaign to goad the working man and woman to register and vote, at a time when ever-all balloting promised to drop sharply because about 10,000,000 citizens are absent from their usual voting places or are even far away from their native shores.

Estimates of the percentage of servicemen and women who will vote range from 20 to 50 per cent., leaving a sizable dent in the potential vote which could only be filled by making sure those left at home cast ballots.

CIO Has Biggest Part

The most insistent claim to credit for this vote drive is filed by the CIO's Political Action Committee. All labor elements, however, were galvanized into action.

The bigger unions, by speeches and through their official newspapers and publications, have been loudly imploring members to get to the polls.

Some of these advise their readers which candidates in the Presidential and Congressional contest to vote for, but all have one thing in common: they beseech labor to get that vote out.

The answer to how effective this drive has been will be found in the size of the vote cast. PAC's chairman, Sidney Hillman, predicts it will be at least as great as in 1940. In a speech before the National Press Club last Monday he indicated a belief that the 50,000,000 mark may be passed.

Something New

This is something new for labor. In the past some great labor organizations have indorsed candidates and gone through the motions of supporting them. But never before have these same organizations, plus others which traditionally keep hands off politics, been so intent on getting their members to enter the polls.

The labor vote, like the soldier vote, might swing the election. The fact that a majority of union leaders have swung behind the President for a fourth term does not make it safe to predict that labor will vote overwhelmingly for President Roosevelt.

Some leaders, notably John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, have supported Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Lewis supporters claim to have broken the hold the New Deal had on coal miner votes in the past.

Among the topflight AFL leadership, Secretary-Treasurer George Meany has maintained an eloquent silence while those about him, like President William Green, Dan Tobin of the Teamsters (602,900 paying members) and Harvey Brown of the Machinists (350,000) are shouting support for Roosevelt.

Says Troops Back Roosevelt

Louisiana Representative Tells of Overseas Interviews

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Representative Henry D. Larcade jr., Democrat of Louisiana, just back from oyerseas, said today he believes American soldiers on front-line duty in the European theater overwhelmingly favor re-election of President Roosevelt.

Representative Larcade said he interviewed hundreds of American service men of all ranks and believes "at least" 75 per cent have cast their ballots for their present Commander in Chief. If the Presidential election turns on the soldier vote, the Louisianian said in a statement, "it is my opinion President Roosevelt will be re-elected without doubt."

DEWEY CONTENDS VICTORY DELAYED BY NEW DEAL RULE

NOV 5 1944

'Incompetence in Washington' Costing Lives in War, He Says.

SPEAKS IN NEW YORK

G. O. P. Nominee, Wildly Cheered at Garden, Blasts Morgenthau Plan.

(Address on Page 5, Third Section)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Nov. 4—(AP) Declaring the war must be won on the home front as well as on the battlefields, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said tonight that incompetence in Washington "is costing the lives of American men and delaying the day of final victory."

The Republican candidate for President returned to the city of his racket-busting triumphs to address a wildly cheering crowd in the closing phase of his campaign.

Swinging verbal blows that brought shouts as thunderous as those that ever cheered on a prize fighter in this vast arena, Dewey assailed what he called the "capricious, personal government" of his opponent and said:

"For 12 years we have watched the shifty, slippery nature of the present national administration. It has stood for no principle except self-perpetuation in power."

Streets Blocked

Streets around the Garden were blocked off by police long before Dewey's appearance on the flag-bedecked platform. In addition to the approximately 22,000 persons inside, Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., estimated there were 10,000 outside.

Babe Ruth and Adolphe Menjou were among the celebrities who shared the speaking program. Ruth, who registered as a voter in New York this year for the first time, rumbled out that "some people put scripts in front of people to say what they want them to say, but I don't have to do that—I can say what I think myself." Then he called for Dewey's election.

Menjou, fingering a pair of horn rimmed spectacles, drew thunderous applause when he declared he had "converted a half a dozen New Dealers" in his two days here.

Growing restless as the time for Dewey's appearance approached, the crowd surged to its feet and beban chanting "we want Dewey—we want Dewey."

Then there was an ear-splitting din that rose and swelled for nearly five minutes when the candidate emerged into view, waving and grinning. An almost solid bank of policemen formed in front of the big stage at the rear of the arena.

The New York Governor declared publication of what he called the "private plan" of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau "for disposing of the German people after the war" was "as good as 10 fresh German divisions" to the enemy.

"It put fight back into the German army," Dewey declared. "It stiffened the will of the German nation to resist. Almost overnight, the headlong retreat of the Germans stopped. They stood and fought fanatically."

On Sept. 1, Dewey said, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "renewed his earlier prophecy that Germany could be beaten in 1944 if everyone at home would do his part. Yet last Thursday, Mr. Roosevelt decided to tell us that the war had still a long way to go."

"What has happened in two months to cancel General Eisenhower's prediction?" the governor asked. He said the President "has not told us the whole story, but part of it we know."

Instead of the Secretary of State or Secretary of War, Mr. Roosevelt took to the Quebec conference Secretary Morgenthau "with his private plan for disposing of the German people after the war," Dewey said.

'Plan Was Clumsy'

"That plan was so clumsy," he continued, "that Mr. Roosevelt himself finally dropped it—but the damage was done."

The Morgenthau plan was described in published reports as calling for reduction of Germany to an agricultural state. It raised a sharp issue between Morgenthau and Secretaries Hull and Stimson.

President Roosevelt was asked about this split at his news conference Sept. 29 and called it a newspaper story. Asked whether he meant there was no foundation for the report of the split, he said no, that every story that had come out about it was essentially untrue in basic facts. He emphasized basic but did not name the facts he considered untrue.

"The publishing of this plan while everything else was kept secret," Dewey said, "was just what the Nazi propagandists needed."

Alluding sarcastically to Morgenthau as "that master of military strategy and foreign affairs, the candidate asserted there had been "tragic consequences of this blunder."

Dewey quoted published stories to the effect that American troops overseas had found stiffened resistance by the Nazis and wondered if this had been caused by announcement of plans at home of what might be done with a defeated Germany.

"What does this mean?" Dewey demanded. "It means that the blood of our fighting men is paying for this improvised meddling which is so much a part and parcel of the Roosevelt administration."

"And at the very moment when his own confused incompetence has thus prolonged the war in Europe," the nominee continued, "Franklin Roosevelt goes on the radio and claims for himself the credit for everything our engineers, our war workers, our industry, our farmers and our fighting sons have done.

"We are advancing and shall reach our goals. Once rid of capricious, personal government, once we give our whole, our united thoughts to victory, we shall reach Berlin and Tokyo quicker—with less cost."

Sums Up Credo

Dewey summed up the credo of his campaign in these words:

"Openly and in plain words John Bricker and I, in the name of the Republican party, are dedicated to these propositions:

"1. To speed total victory and the prompt return of our fighting men by putting energy and competence in Washington behind the magnificent effort of our military command.

"2. To provide American leadership in the world for an effective organization among all nations to prevent future wars.

"3. To direct all government policies in the peacetime years ahead to achieving jobs and opportunity for every American."

To these ends, Dewey pledged:

"We shall restore honesty and integrity to our national government.

"We shall put an end to one-man rule.

"We shall unite our people in teamwork and harmony behind a president and a Congress that can and will work together to realize the limitless promise of America."

He said these objectives could never be obtained "under the tired and quarrelsome administration that has been in office for 12 long years" but only by "a new, vigorous administration that comes fresh from the people."

"That's why all over the country the people are saying it's time for a change," Dewey said.

Asserting that "as recently as Sept. 1 General Eisenhower renewed his earlier prophecy that Germany could be beaten in 1944 if everyone at home would do his part," the G.O.P. nominee continued:

"Yet last Thursday Mr. Roosevelt decided to tell us that the war still had a long way to go.

"What has happened in two months to cancel General Eisenhower's prediction? Mr. Roosevelt has not told us the whole story, but part of it we know."

Dewey then criticized the President for taking Morgenthau to Quebec instead of the secretary of state or secretary of war.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP) Following is the text of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's broadcast tonight from Madison Square Garden.

NOV 5 1944

All over the world tonight Americans are fighting for the right of free men to govern themselves. Here at home we are waging a political campaign to make secure the liberties for which they fight.

Openly and in plain words John Bricker and I, in the name of the Republican party, are dedicated to these propositions:

Speedy Return of Soldiers

1. To speed total victory and the prompt return of our fighting men by putting energy and competence in Washington behind the magnificent effort of our military command.

2. To provide American leadership in the world for an effective organization among all nations to prevent future wars.

3. To direct all government policies in the peace-time years ahead to achieving jobs and opportunities for every American.

To these ends:

We shall restore honesty and integrity to our National government.

We shall put an end to one-man rule.

We shall unite our people in teamwork and harmony behind a President and a Congress that can and will work together to realize the limitless promise of America.

30. 24— 20157

Objectives of People

These are no partisan objectives. They are in truth the objectives of the American people. They can never be attained under the tired and quarrelsome Administration that has been in office for 12 long years.

They can only be obtained under a new, vigorous administration that comes fresh from the people. That's why all over the country the people are saying it's time for a change.

America is determined to win a speedy and overwhelming victory in this war. All of us have perfect confidence in our military and naval commanders. But this war cannot be won alone upon the battlefronts. It must also be won at home. And each of us must play his part.

FDR Sees Long War

As recently as Sept. 1 General Eisenhower renewed his earlier prophecy that Germany could be beaten in 1944 if everyone at home would do his part. Yet last Thursday Mr. Roosevelt decided to tell us that the war had still a long way to go.

What has happened in two months to cancel General Eisenhower's prediction? Mr. Roosevelt has not told us the whole story, but part of it we know.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill held a conference in Quebec. Our Secretary of State was absent. Our Secretary of War was absent. In their stead Mr. Roosevelt took with him that master of military strategy and foreign affairs, the Secretary of the Treasury, with his private plan for disposing of the German people after the war. That plan was so clumsy that Mr. Roosevelt himself finally dropped it—but the damage was done.

Plan Prolonged War

The publishing of this plan while everything else was kept secret was just what the Nazis needed. That was as good as ten fresh German divisions. It put fight back into the German army; it stiffened the will of the German nation to resist. Almost overnight the headlong retreat of the Germans stopped. They stood and fought fanatically.

Here is how the military expert of Newsweek described the tragic consequences of this blunder—"this necromancy ruined General Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign now he finds himself faced by resistance he never expected and which, in my opinion, would never have materialized had Allied political warfare been astute instead of idiotic." So says the military expert.

UP Raps Plan

Here's the report from the front by the United Press: "The Home Front talk about stern treatment for a defeated Germany has inspired bitter and fanatical resistance among German troops, in this sector at least, and the GI's are a little bitter about it. Sometimes the Doughboys who are fighting and dying in the mud on this side of the Moselle wish people at home would quit announcing what they think should be done about a defeated Germany. Some soldiers said today that they thought it might be better to win the war first."

What does this mean? It means that the blood of our fighting men is paying for this impoverished meddling which is so much a part and parcel of the Roosevelt administration. And at the very moment when his own confused incompetence has thus prolonged the war in Europe, Franklin Roosevelt goes on the radio and claims for himself the credit for everything our engineers, our war workers, our industry, our farmers and our fighting sons have done.

Will Reach Berlin, Tokyo

We are advancing and we shall reach our goals. Once rid of capricious, personal government, once we give our whole, our united thoughts to victory, we shall reach Berlin and Tokyo quicker—with less cost.

Let me make one thing clear: Your next Administration will never claim personal or political profit from the achievements of the American people or from the sacrifices of their sons and daughters. But it will put a stop to the incompetence in Washington which is costing the lives of American men and delaying the day of final victory.

That's why it's time for a change.

Must Be Last War

The people of this country are determined that we shall not again go through the heartache and sacrifice of these past three years. This war must be the last war. We shall take the lead in the formation of a world organization to prevent future wars. And we know that effort can never be the work of one man or of one nation. It can never be the product of secret agreements worked out in secret conferences between two or three rulers. For the United States, this great effort must have the support and understanding of all our people. And it must, under our constitution, have the support and approval of the people's representatives in Congress.

Yet, Mr. Roosevelt, year after year, has systematically abused and insulted the members of Congress. Having already alienated his own leaders in Congress, he has now gratuitously insulted the Republican leaders of the Senate and the House. Those leaders joined with me in an effort to lift the program for lasting peace above partisanship. They publicly pledged themselves to support the program for world peace on which Secretary Hull and I had cooperated. But this harmonious non-political approach was not politically profitable to Mr. Rooseevit, so he denounced the Republican members of Congress and accused them of erecting "a party spite fence between us and the peace."

Must End Name Calling

The time has come to bring an end to this name calling and abuse. American participation in a world organization for peace can only be built by a President and a Congress—Republicans and Democrats alike—working together in harmony and mutual respect. To achieve that harmony, we must have a new Chief Executive who believes in that fundamental principle and practices it. That's another reason why it's time for a change.

When victory is won, 11 million Americans will return from our fighting forces. They will be looking for jobs and opportunity.

They will want to marry, go to work and get ahead. Twenty million war workers will be looking for jobs in peacetime industries. If we are not to betray those who have fought and worked for victory in this war, we must have here in America a land of opportunity, a land of full employment at high wages, with a rising standard of living.

FDR Made Depression Last

My opponent talks once again of jobs in the future, but he offers us nothing except a repetition of the New Deal policies which failed for eight straight years. This Administration took office when the world-wide depression was nearly four years old. No previous depression in one hundred years of our history had lasted more than five years yet Mr. Roosevelt contrived to make that depression last eleven years—twice as long as any depression in a century.

He had unlimited power; he spent 58 billion dollars; yet in March, 1940, there were still ten million unemployed. Under the New Deal it took a war to get jobs.

We dare not, we must not risk the future of our country in the hands of those who never succeeded in eight peacetime years in even approaching full employment. We need to sweep away the strangling mass of rules and regulations, of petty bureaucratic interferences. We need to sweep away the old dank, wretched atmosphere of hostility and abuse. We need once more to let the American people—industry, labor and agriculture—know that their government believes with them in the American tradition of opportunity for all.

Must Help Little Business

We need an Administration that cares more about little business than it does about big government. We need an Administration that will not be afraid of peace—that will want to bring our fighting men home when victory is achieved—and will keep its promise to do so. And that's another reason why it's time for a change.

There are other reasons. For twelve years we have watched the shifty, slippery nature of the present National administration. It has stood for no principle except self-perpetuation in power. The result has been decay of the moral fibre of government. That decay reached its logical result when Franklin Roosevelt was compelled to admit that it was he himself who sponsored the One Thousand club. This is the scheme which offers in writing for $1,000, "special privileges" and a voice "in the formulation of Administration policies."

Hits New Deal Corruption

Never in our history has corruption been so brazen. Never before has a president admitted sponsorship of such a scheme.

All this is the inevitable result of too many years in power—and the desire for perpetual office. It is precisely what every great American beginning with George Washington and Thomas Jefferson warned against. It is inevitable that it should have produced political leadership which today publicly defines politics as the science of "how who gets what, when and why." I say the young men of America are not fighting and dying for these corrupt and decadent practices. In the name of those men, the American people will rise up and repudiate that whole philosophy of government. The time has come to put an end to government by "who gets what, when and why." That's why it's time for a change.

Party on Auction Block

Today, the great Democratic party, weakened by 12 years of one man rule, is being leased out to men who boast that they owe no allegiance to that party or its principles. It has been put on the auction block, for sale to the highest bidder, and the highest bidders are Sidney Hillman's Political Action committee and Earl Browder's Communists. There is only one way for the real members of the Democratic party to win in this election. That is to join with Republicans in defeating the New Dealers, the Political Action Committee and the Communists. That's why those who believe in our system of government, Republicans and Democrats alike, agree today that it's time for a change.

In this campaign I have set forth a constructive program for the years ahead built soundly, brick by brick. It shows how we can achieve our objectives—each of them, including full employment, high, stable income for labor, agriculture and business, broader old age benefits, tax reduction with an increased national income and freedom of both labor and business from crippling government regimentation.

No Program Offered by FDR

My opponent has offered no program because the New Deal has nothing to offer save more of the same quarreling and vacillation which has marked it longer for 12 long years. We can no longer afford the luxury of a government which spends half its time quarreling with itself and the other half quarreling with one segment or another of our people. In the years immediately ahead, we need new hands to steer the ship steadily through the balance of the war, then into quiet peacetime waters where we can again make progress. We need to learn to work together, again, in unity. We need above all to renew our faith: Faith in the good will of our fellow men regardless of race, color or creed, faith in the limitless future of our country.

Our nation was founded and built by men of great faith and good will, who came here to do great things. They created our institutions in the image of their beliefs. First of all, they believed in almighty God. That was the rock on which they built. They believed in the moral law. They believed in the dignity of man. In the Bill of Rights, they consecrated and established that dignity of man, without distinction of race, creed or color. They believed that man should be free—free to worship after the dictates of his own conscience, free to live in his own home, to raise a family—free to speak his own mind without fear or favor, free to get ahead in the world. They believed that government should be the servant, not the master of the people. Because they believed those things and built upon them, this nation has been richly blest of God.

U. S. Will Fight to End

Our people have known hardship but they have never despaired. They have faced great odds, but they have never known defeat. To them the difficult is never too difficult. With them the impossible can be brought to pass.

Let us in this election send a ringing affirmation to all the world that the love of freedom is still strong in the hearts of the American people. Let us register our faith that in America there is no indispensable man. Let us prove that free government still lives. Let us send the thrilling message around the world that America has changed administrations in order to speed victory and ensure lasting peace — that freedom is the most vital thing in the world—that we intend to have it—to hold it forever.

SOLDIER VOTE IS EMPHASIZED

Role Of Fighting Men May Be Decisive Factor

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—For the first time since the Civil War, great numbers of fighting men will take part next Tuesday in the election of a President of the United States.

There is every indication that their part will be a major one.

Somewhere between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 servicemen—and women of the auxiliary services—will vote by absentee ballot, according to estimates by State election officials. Forecasts of the total vote range from 39,500,000 to 50,000,000.

Civil War Totals

By comparison, members of the Union army cast 150,635 of the 4,024,792 votes in the Civil War election of 1864. Abraham Lincoln received 116,887 of the soldier votes to Gen. George B. McClellan's 33,748.

The soldier vote in that election did not affect the result in any of the Northern States participating. In this election, however, officials of at least 11 States—with 206 of the 531 electoral votes—have expressed the opinion that it could be decisive.

Each of ten other States, with 112 electoral votes among them, expects a soldier vote larger than the plurality it gave to President Roosevelt or to Wendell L. Willkie, his Republican opponent, in 1940.

Importance Emphasized

Thus the soldier vote appears likely to be an important if not a decisive factor in determining whether the 318 electoral votes of 21 States will go to Roosevelt or to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Either candidate needs 266 votes to win.

Although a few States will count soldier ballots received as late as December 5, the deadline for receiving them in most States is election day, and the great majority already have been returned.

How the service men and women will vote is, of course, one of the great questions of the campaign. Four nation-wide polls have predicted that civilian voters will be almost evenly divided between Dewey and Roosevelt, but sampling of servicemen's political opinion is prohibited by law.

Votes Not To Be Separated

In most States the service vote will not be tabulated separately from the civilian vote, and thus the total number of service men and women voting for Roosevelt or Dewey never will be known.

Eleven States will count some or all of their military ballots after election day, giving rise to the possibility that, in the event of a very close election, the outcome might be in doubt for several days or even weeks.

If, for example, either candidate needed Pennsylvania's 35 electoral votes to win, the outcome might not be known until November 22, when Pennsylvania begins to count its estimated 250,000 soldier votes.

Soldier Vote Estimates

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Here, in box score form, is the soldier vote picture in its relation to the 1940 election result. Estimates of this year's soldier vote are based on latest information from State election officials. States carried four years ago by Roosevelt are those marked (R) in the 1940 plurality column. Those carried by Willkie are marked (W).

PARTY CHIEFS VIE IN CLAIMS

Brownell, Hannegan Issue Usual Last-Minute Statements

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Chairmen of both major parties flatly claimed victory for their national tickets in traditional pre-election predictions tonight.

Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., declaring that "at this moment I cannot concede a single State outside the solid South," forecast "a sweeping Republican victory."

Robert E. Hannegan, the Democratic national chairman, announced himself as "more confident than ever of my prediction that Candidate Dewey will do less well than the Republican candidate in 1940—that he will carry fewer States, that both his popular vote and his electoral college vote will be less."

Brownell Sees GOP Trend

Brownell said there had been a steady trend toward the Republican ticket and that it had taken on propositions of "a tidal sweep" in the past few days.

"This has been due to several reasons," he said, "namely: the exposure of the unfitness of the Democratic candidate for Vice President, Senator Truman.

"The shallowness of the New Deal campaign with its cynical failure to offer anything like a constructive program.

"The ludicrous efforts to patch up the differences between Democratic National Chairman Hannegan and Sidney Hillman.

Walsh's Rejection

"Senator Walsh's rejection of leading New Dealers to speak on the air.

"The devastating effect of prolonging the war, resulting from Mr. Roosevelt's blessing of Secretary Morgenthau's plan for the treatment of occupied Germany.

"The bewildering crisis in China, revealing more bungling of the war effort in Washington."

He said "the effect of all this" was that last-minute reports from Mascsachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania indicated that these battlegrounds States now would "be carried with substantial pluralities" by the Republicans.

Foresees "Spontaneous Move"

"There is a spontaneous move afoot to win the war quicker with Dewey and Bricker," he said.

Hannegan said "every day accentuates the trend to the Roosevelt-Truman ticket from coast to coast, and particularly in the Middle West, where Republican strength is ebbing rapidly.

"The farmers," said Hannegan, "have looked Dewey's Trojan gift horse in the mouth and seen some very suspicious characters tucked away inside—all of the 'farmers' friends' from Wall Street, who would erect a high protective tariff to give themselves a favored position and let farm prices fall so that wages can be reduced and margins of speculative profit widened."

"Tricks Prove Boomerang"

"And," the Democratic chairman continued, "from reports flooding into my office, it is obvious that the 'clear it with Sidney' lie, the attempted Klan smear on Senator Truman, the repeated falsehood that men will be kept in the armed services longe rthan required for military purposes (disproved by the official demobilization plan worked out under that great patriot and life-long Republican, Col. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War), the desperate use of the old Red bogeyman and assorted scare crows—all these and other tricks have proved a boomerang to the Republican cause."

"Independents Alienated"

"This ruthless and dangerous technique of attempting to pit group against group, has alienated the great body of thoughtful and fair-minded independents as well as a large and growing number of good Republicans who put the interests of their country above mean party advantage.

"I personally have received thousands of letters from such patriots, and our State chairmen have received even more. Millions of devoted followers of the late Wendell Willkie have been particularly outraged, and many are now actively campaigning for our cause."

Allies Converging On Nazi Industry

By Robert N. Cool

New York, Nov. 4 (AP) — From the German point of view, no threat can seem so grave as that which the Allies are launching against the northern third of the Siegfried Line and the less formal fortifications in Holland.

On the east and south, Allied armies have forced the Wehrmacht back into vital territory. But in the west, alone, a sword has already reached to the industrial heart of Germany and seemingly awaits only a mammoth thrust to be driven home.

Two powerful Allied armies are fighting less than 50 miles from the Ruhr — main German industrial center. Against them the Germans have strong defenses which they are manning with fanatical determination, but many observers believe that an all-out Allied offensive will crash across the Rhine and into the Ruhr as spectacularly as the Normandy offensive succeeded once it got up steam.

Possible Directions Seen

That is not to discount the obstacles of weather, forts and terrain which the last-ditch Nazis may be counted upon to exploit to the utmost. But if progress has seemed slow in this sector, it may reasonably be assumed that the problem of accumulating armor and supplies has had a lot to do with it. There was a long wait in Normandy, too, while a breakthrough was in the making.

Two salients indicate the possible direction of Allied operations. At Aachen, Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodge's United States First Army has wrested an important strong point of the Siegfried Line from the enemy. From Aachen excellent highways lead to Cologne, a major German city at the southern border of the Ruhr. A big rail town, Cologne has been blasted ever since the beginning of the war. It stands on the west bank of the Rhine and for this reason might be easier to take than, say, Dusseldorf.

British Have Good Start

The other Allied salient probes through Holland to a point just north of the West Wall's tip at Cleve. If the British airborne landings at Arnhem had wholly succeeded last September, this salient would then have almost flanked the line. As it is, Lieutenant General Sir Miles Dempsey's British Second Army has a good start for a swinging movement into the Ruhr from the north.

In such an operation Dortmund, on the super-highway to Berlin, might be a logical objective. Or else the drive might be aimed down the Rhine to Duisburg, a key center in the crowded Ruhr constellation.

When the Allies do sweep ahead on this front, they will encounter stiff resistance. But, due to the proximity of Hitler's heavy industries, every mile gained here equals a dozen on any other front the Germans have to watch.

Argentina Will Attend Business Conference

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Argentine business representatives will take part in the international business conference of 50 nations at Rye, N. Y., November 10 to 18, it was announced today.

There was some doubt as to whether Argentine business would be represented because of President Roosevelt's expression of "concern" in September over "the growth of Nazi-Fascist influence in that country," as statement from conference headquarters said.

The Argentine group, however, decided to attend because the conference is of a business, not a political nature, it continued. Their decision, it said, was based on the President's statement that "we all are quite aware that the vast majority of the people of Argentina have remained steadfast in their faith in their own free democratic traditions."

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO-Political Action Committee, made public today a photograph which, he said, showed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, at a 1937 mass meeting in honor of Louis Weinstock, a member of the executive board of the National Communist Political Association.

Hillman said Weinstock sent the photograph to the CIO-PAC because he was "simply fed up with the vicious drivel and anti-Communist filth that is now being circulated by this same Mr. Dewey" and because the picture offered "visual proof of the spiritual insincerity of the Republican candidate."

Officials of the Republican National Committee in New York could not be reached immediately for comment.

ROOSEVELT TELLS BOSTON AUDIENCE HE 'WANTS TO WIN'

He Asks Support as Answer to 'Campaign of Misrepresentation.'

WINDS UP CAMPAIGN

Declares 'Racial, Religious Intolerance' Issue Raised by Opponents

(Address on Pafe 8, Second Section)

BOSTON, Nov. 4 — (AP) President Roosevelt closed his campaign tonight, admittedly anxious to win, but leaving it to millions of voters to judge between his administration and what he termed "a political party which works both sides of the street."

Fighting for a fourth term and New England support, Mr. Roosevelt said he had been "reluctant" to run but now is 'most anxious to win'—for the reason that "never before in my life-time has a campaign been filled with such misrepresentation, distortion and falsehood."

"Never since 1928 have there been so many attempts to stimulate in America racial or religious intolerance," the President said.

To thousands of howling, applauding Bostonians crammed into Fenway baseball park, and to his countrymen by radio, the chief executive delivered the final major speech of his campaign.

Thus, except for a flurry of activity among his Hudson Valley homefolks Monday, he finished writing a record on which he pinned his hopes for four more years in the White House.

In the same city where Thomas E. Dewey declared only three nights ago that Communists are seizing the New Deal and aiming at control of the government, the President sternly asserted:

"When any political candidate stands up and says, solemnly, that there is danger that the government of the United States — your government—could be sold out to the Communists—then I say that that candidate reveals a shocking lack of trust in America.

"He reveals a shocking lack of faith in Democracy—in the spiritual strength of our people."

Seated in an open car, floodlights beating down on him, Mr. Roosevelt spoke on war and peace.

He was sure, he said, that any real American would have chosen, as did the government, to fight when a sneak attack was made on our soil.

"Would Choose Same Thing"

"As for myself, under the same circumstances," he asserted, "I would choose to do the same thing—again and again and again."

All day long, in talks enroute here, the President had been saying he was "very confident" of victory Tuesday.

And, while thousands of prospective voters whooped it up here in the stands, he called for a record outpouring of ballots—at least 50,000,000 of them.

"The American people," he said, "are quite competent to judge a political party which works both sides of the street—a party which has one candidate making campaign promises of all kinds of added government expenditures in the west while a running mate demands less government expenditures in the east."

Police superintendent Edward W. Fallon estimated 40,000 people were in the ball park when Mr. Roosevelt drove through a gateway, hat aloft in greeting. Seated beside him, looking over one shoulder at the manuscript, was National Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

Sen. Walsh Absent

Among the absentees was Senator David I. Walsh (D-Mass.).

The heavily populated stands broke into a salvo of applause when Mr. Roosevelt mentioned the late Al Smith at the start, and again a minute later when the chief executive spoke of his own health.

But there was a bigger hand a few moments later for his "again and again and again" remark about going to war.

Cheers echoed through the park when the President listed fortifications he said had been erected to protect the American people—among them bulwarks to guard the rights of labor.

"No, no!" thundered the crowd when the chief executive asked:

"Can it be that those who financed the bitter opposition to the New Deal have made an about-face and are now willing and able to fight for the objectives of the New Deal?"

His pledge to bring fighting men home as soon as possible—to jobs, farms and businesses—brought on another outburst of applause.

But it couldn't compare with the one that greeted his declaration that "whether I win or lose, I want to see a turnout next Tuesday of the biggest vote in our American history."

Crowd Laughs

The crowd laughed with him when he nodded his head in emphasis and observed that "just the other day you people here in Boston witnessed an amazing demonstration of talking out of both sides of the mouth" and went on to talk of a Boston appearance of "a Republican candidate."

But one of the biggest roars of noise went up when the chief executive said he was "most anxious to win" this year's election.

His "shocking lack of trust" reference got almost as big a volley, however.

As he concluded the crowd cheered again, setting up a chant of:

"We want Roosevelt."

At the end of his speech the President's car circled the ball park twice before leaving by an exit under the stands.

The chief executive's last big campaign address covered his past record, his health, his answers to some Republican campaign arguments and an expression of his aims for a "clean, shining America" after the war.

This, he said, is really a funny campaign. And he elaborated:

"I think I heard some campaign orator say that Secretary Hull and the rest of us had done such a fine job with the good neighbor policy and our plans for a world peace—that it is time for a change.

"I believe I heard some campaign orator say that this incompetent administration had developed a program which was so good for the farmers and the businessmen and the workers of the nation—that it is time for a change.

"I think I heard some campaign orator say that we have so thoroughly shifted the control over our banks from Wall street and State street to the capital of the United States—that it is time for a change.

"And I am quite sure I heard somebody say that this 'chaotic' administration has done such an amazing job of war production — that it is time for a change.

"I think I even heard somebody say that those 'tired, quarrelsome' old men—are waging such a victorious war—that it is time for a change.

"Well—if it is time for a change—the way to get it in this Democracy is by means of votes. Whether I win or lose, I want to see a turnout next Tuesday of the biggest vote in our American history.

"And that means at least fifty million votes."

Speaks of Health

Right at the start, the President spoke of his health. In the 1928 campaign when he was running for governor of New York, he said, people even then were "saying that my health would not permit me to discharge the duties of public office."

"I think that it is by now a pretty well established fact," he remarked, "that I managed to survive my four years as governor of New York."

He said the Democratic presidential nominee, the late Al Smith, remarked publicly in 1928 that the governor "does not have to be an acrobat."

And not many months ago, the President said, Smith told him in Washington that "it is perfectly evident you do not have to be an acrobat to be President either."

All of the bigots were gunning for Smith, the Chief Executive said.

He related how boys of all religious and racial origins were fighting now for their country and declared it "our duty to them to make sure that, big as this country is, there is no room in it for racial or religious intolerance—and that there is no room for snobbers."

Admits Mistakes

Mr. Roosevelt conceded that his administration had made mistakes But he said he thanked God it could not be charged that it made the mistake of "forgetting our sacred obligation to the American people."

For veterans, when they come trudging home from fighting fronts, he promised "honest, self-respecting jobs," a real chance to settle on their own land for those seeking farms, a fair opportunity to others to go into business.

He swung, then, into his discussion of a party which he said works both sides of the street, saying it was "a party which has one candidate making campaign promises of all kinds of added government expenditures in the East."

For the second time during the day—he had done it earlier at Springfield—the Chief Executive gave his answer to Republican contentions that he had broken a 1940 campaign promise made here in Boston.

It was in Boston that the Chief Executive said four years ago that he would say "again and again, your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars."

We got into the war because the Japanese attacked us and Germany and Italy declared war on us, Mr. Roosevelt said, adding:

"I am sure that any real American would have chosen, as this government did, to fight when our own soil was made the object of a sneak attack. As for myself, under the same circumstances, I would choose to do the same thing—again and again and again."

Tracing the administration's pre-Pearl Harbor program, the chief executive said America was better prepared for this war than for any in history, with 2,000,000 men in service at the time of Pearl Harbor, war production rolling, the Navy building, and the nation equipped with "spiritual preparedness."

Furthermore, he said, many fortifications have been erected at home since 1933 to protect bank deposits, living standards, labor rights, natural resources, and to guard against unemployment and old age hazards and against inflation and runaway prices.

BOSTON, Nov. 4 (AP).—Following is the complete text of President Roosevelt's address in Fenway Park here tonight:

My good friend Mayor Tobin and my old friends of Boston:

This is not my first visit to Boston and therefore I shall not review all my previous visits. I should have to go on talking for several days to do that—and radio time costs a lot of money.

But I want to recall one visit, back in October, 1928, when I came here to urge you to vote for a great American, a great American, named Al Smith.

And you did vote for that eternally "happy warrior."

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts—and your good neighbor, Rhode Island—both went Democratic in 1928—four years before the rest of the nation did.

And this year—and I am making no predictions, I just have a little hope—this year we would like to welcome into the family Maine and Vermont.

And while I am speaking of that campaign of 1928, let me remind you that, having nominated Al Smith for the second time for the Presidency, I was then running at his request for the Governorship of New York, and people were then—even then—saying that my health would not permit me to discharge the duties of public office.

Well, you know I think that it is by now a pretty well established fact that I managed to survive my four years as Governor of New York. At the end of that time I went elsewhere.

In this connection, in 1928, that first year that I ran for Governor, Al Smith remarked publicly that the Governor of New York does not have to be an acrobat. And not many months before his untimely death, he remarked to me in my office in Washington: "It is perfectly evident that you do not have to be an acrobat to be President."

Assails Intolerance

When I talked here in Boston in 1928 I talked about racial and religious intolerance which was then—as unfortunately it still is to some extent—"a menace to the liberties of America."

And all the bigots in those days were gunning for Al Smith.

Religious intolerance, social intolerance and political intolerance have no place in our American life.

And thinking back a good many hundred years, here in New England you have been fighting bigotry and intolerance for centuries. I reminded a geneological society, I think they are called ancestor worshipers, I said to them that they knew that all of our people, all over the country, all except pure-blooded Indians—are immigrants or descendants of immigrants, including even those who came over here on the Mayflower.

Today, in this war, our fine boys are fighting magnificently all over the world and among those boys are the Murphys, and the Kellys, the Smiths and the Joneses, the Cohens, the Carusos, the Kowalskis, the Schultzes, the Olsens, the Swobodas, and—right in with all the rest of them—the Cabots and the Lowells.

Now all of these and others like them are the life-blood of America. They are the hope of the world.

And it is our duty to them to make sure that, big as this country is, there is no room in it for racial or religious intolerance, and that there is no room for snobbery.

Our young men and our young women are fighting not only for their existence, and their homes and their families. They also are fighting for a country and a world where men and women of all races, colors and creeds can live and work, and speak and worship—in peace and freedom and security.

1944

'Hard Road to Victory'

If we can shorten the war by one month—even by one minute—we shall have saved the lives of some of our young men and women. We must not let our comforts or conveniences, our politics or our prejudices, stand in the way of our determination to drive—to drive relentlessly and unflinchingly—over the hard road to final victory.

You and I—all of us who are war workers—must stay on the job.

Now although victory over the Nazis and the Japanese is certain and inevitable—and I for one have never had one moment's doubt of our ultimate victory—the war is still far from over. There is tough, hard bloody fighting ahead.

We got into this war because we were attacked by the Japanese—we all know that—and because they and their Axis partners, Hitler's Germany and Mussolini's Italy, declared war on us.

I am sure that any real American—any real red-blooded American—would have chosen, as this government did, to fight when our own soil was made the object of a sneak attack. As for myself, under the same circumstances, I would choose to do the same thing—again and again and again.

And when our enemies flung the gage of battle at us, we elected to fight them in the American way, which meant that we went after them—and we started punching—and we are still punching—and we have driven our enemies into their own corner.

Well it is like a sport in the Navy called a free-for-all. One of the tyrants, Mussolini, has been knocked out for the count and the others are getting groggier every day.

We are made happy by the fact that the Italian people—our long-time friends—are started once again along the paths of freedom and peace.

I think that history will say that we were better prepared for this war than for any previous war in all our history.

On the day of Pearl Harbor, the day before the declaration of war, we had more than 2,000,000 men in our armed forces.

Our war production, started a year and a half before that, was rolling toward the gigantic volume of output that has been achieved.

Our Navy was building for the first time of any length since 1933. It had been building, it started to build up again and we know why it went down. When I first used P. W. A. employment funds to start a naval building program that included our first modern carriers. One of those carirers, by the way, that you've read of, authorized ten years ago, was the Enterprise, a name well known throughout New England, an original Enterprise being hero of the War of 1812. But this new Enterprise, a grand and gallant ship has covered herself with glory all through this war and was in there fighting last week in the great victory in Philippine waters.

But in addition to our physical preparedness we had something far more important—spiritual preparedness.

The American people were ready for it. On the day of Pearl Harbor they rose up as one man with a mighty shout—a shout heard 'round the world—a shout of —"Let's go!"

And we went!

Recalls Days of 1929

Everywhere I go I find that the American citizen is doing some hard thinking these days of what sort of government he wants during the next four years.

The memory of our people is not short. The years from 1929 to 1933 are thoroughly and grimly remembered by millions of our citizens—by workers who lost their jobs and their homes, by farmers who lost their crops and their farms, by families who lost their savings.

Since those dark days early in 1933, many fortifications have been built to protect the people of this country—just as we promised that there would be.

What kind of fortification? Well fortifications, for example, have provided protection for your bank deposits and your investments—your standard of living—your right to organize unions and to bargain collectively with your employers.

Your fortifications protect your soil and rivers and trees—your heritage of natural resources. They provide you with protection against the hazards of unemployment and old age—they protect you against inflation and runaway prices.

Now these fortifications, they are manned by zealous defenders, and these defenders are not Communists and these defenders are not fossils.

Can the citizens of the nation now afford to turn over these bulwarks to the men who raised every possible obstacle to their original construction?

Does the average American believe that those who fought tooth and nail against progressive legislation during the past twelve years can be trusted to cherish and preserve that legislation?

Chides Anti-New Dealers

Can it be that those who financed the bitter opposition to the New Deal through all these years have made an about-face and are now willing and able to fight for the objectives of the New Deal?

We have all heard Republican orators in this campaign call this administration everything under the sun and they promise that they, if elected—and oh, my friends, what a big "if" that is—they promise that if elected they would institute the biggest house-cleaning in history. And it sort of brings to my mind that's just the thing that the outs always say.

What a job that would be, what it would be, that house-cleaning. It would mean, among other things, sweeping out with my administration the most efficient and most patriotic Republicans that could be found in the whole country.

But—despite these campaign promises of wholesale house-cleaning—have you heard one word of specific criticism of any of the progressive [illegible] administration has enacted?

Have you [illegible] sweeping out [illegible]

...ing out any of the agencies which administer them?

...Concerning that subject the Republican politicians are very uncharacteristically silent.

...administration has made mistakes. That I freely assert ...I hope my friends of the ...s will not change that to ...mit." But, my friends, I ...nk it's a pretty good batting ...erage. Our mistakes have been honestly made during sincere efforts to help the great mass of citizens of our civilization. Never have we made the inexcusable mistake, we know some who have, of substituting talk for action when farms were being foreclosed, homes were being sold at auction and people were standing in breadlines.

Pledges Jobs for Veterans

I thank God that it cannot be charged that at any time, under any circumstances, have we made the mistake of forgetting our sacred obligation to the American people.

And, I might add, never will we make that kind of mistake.

Is it conceivable to you that this administration with its record of very deep concern for human welfare could ever be guilty of neglect of the welfare of our fighting men?

When your sons, and my sons, come home from the battle fronts—and they are coming home just as quickly as they are no longer needed for the essential job of this war—we are going to see that they have work—honest, self-respecting jobs.

We are going to see to it that those of them seeking farms, for instance, get a real chance to settle on land of their own.

We are going to see to it that those who hope to establish businesses have a legitimate and fair opportunity to do so.

The American people are quite competent to judge a political party that works on both sides of the street—a party which has one candidate making campaign promises of all kinds of added government expenditures in the West, while a running-mate of his demands less government expenditures in the East.

You know—just as an aside, and I think I can speak freely to my old friends here in Boston—this is really a funny campaign.

Replies to Republicans

I think I heard some campaign orator say that Secretary Hull and the rest of us had done such a fine job with the good neighbor policy and our plans for world peace—that it is time for a change.

I believe I heard some campaign orator say that this "incompetent" administration had developed a program that was so good for the farmers and the business men and the workers of the nation—that it is time for a change.

I think I heard some campaign orator—you can identify him—say that we have so thoroughly shifted the control over the banks from Wall Street and State Street to Washington, that it is time for a change.

And I am quite sure that I heard somebody say that this "chaotic" administration has done such an amazing job of war production—that it is time for a change.

Well—if it is time for a change—the way to get it in this democracy is by means of votes. Whether I win or lose, I want to see a turnout next Tuesday of the biggest vote in all American history.

And that means at least 50,000,000 votes.

We could not find a better way to tell our boys overseas that the country that they are fighting for is still going strong.

Just the other day you people here in Boston witnessed an amazing demonstration of talking out of both sides of the mouth.

Speaking here in Boston, a Republican candidate said—and pardon me if I quote him correctly—that happens to be an old habit of mine. He said that "the Communists are seizing control of the New Deal, through which they aim to control the government of the United States."

However, on that very same day that very same candidate had spoken in Worcester and he said that with Republican victory in November "we can end one-man government, and we can forever remove the threat of monarchy in the United States."

Now, really—which is it—Communism or monarchy

I do not think we could have both in this country, even if we wanted either—which we do not.

No, we want neither Communism nor monarchy. We want to live under our Constitution—which has served pretty well for one hundred and fifty-five years. And if this were a banquet hall instead of a ball park, I would propose a toast that we will continue to live under this Constitution for another one hundred and fifty-five years.

I must confess that often in this campaign, I have been tempted to speak my mind with sharper vigor and greater indignation.

Everybody knows that I was reluctant to run for the Presidency again this year. But since this campaign developed I tell you frankly that I have become most anxious to win—and I say that for the reason that never before in my lifetime has a campaign been filled with such misrepresentation, distortion and falsehood.

Never since 1928 have there been so many attempts to stimulate in America racial or religious intolerance.

When any politician, any political candidate stands up and says, solemnly, that there is danger that the government of the United States—your government—could be sold out to the Communists—then I say that that candidate reveals, and I'll be polite, a shocking lack of trust in America.

He reveals a shocking lack of faith in democracy—in the spiritual strength of our people.

Then, if ever there was a time in which the spiritual strength was put to the test, that time was in the terrible depression of 1929 to 1933.

Our people in those days might have turned to alien ideologies—like Communism or Fascism.

But—our democratic faith was too sturdy. What the American people demanded in 1933 was not less democracy—but more democracy—and that is what they got.

Yes, the American people proved in the black days of depression—as they have proved again in this war—that there is no chink in the armor of democracy.

On this subject—and on all subjects—I say to you, my friends, what I said when first you conferred upon me the exalted honor of the Presidency;

"We have nothing to fear but fear itself."

And today I can add a corollary to that.

And I do not think you will ever cast the majority of your votes for fearful men.

We now face the enormous and complex problems of building with our allies a strong world structure of peace.

In doing that historic job we shall be standing before a mighty bar of judgment—the judgment of all of those who have fought, who have fought and died in this war—the judgment of generations yet unborn—the very judgment of God.

I believe that we Americans will want the peace to be built by men who have shown foresight rather than hindsight.

Peace, no less than war, must offer a spirit of comradeship, a spirit of achievement, a spirit of unselfishness, and indomitable will to victory.

We in this country for generations have waged war against the wilderness—against the mountains and the rivers—against the droughts and the storms. We have waged war against ignorance—against oppression—against intolerance.

We have waged war against poverty—against disease.

Why we fought the Revolutionary War for the principle that all men are created equal—and in those days we pledged "our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor."

This war, which we are now fighting, has been an interruption in the story of our forward progress; but it has also opened a new chapter—a chapter which it is now for us living to begin.

At the end of this war this country will have the greatest material power of any nation in the world.

It will be a clean, shining America—richer than any other in skilled workers, engineers, farmers, business men, scientists.

It will be an America in which there is a genuine partnership between the farmer and the worker and the business man—in which there are abundant jobs and an expanding economy of peace.

Yes, all around us we see an unfinished world—a world of awakened peoples struggling to set themselves on the path of civilization—people struggling everywhere to achieve a higher cultural and material standard of living.

I say we must wage the coming battle for America and for civilization on a scale worthy of the way that we have unitedly waged the battles against tyranny and reaction and wage it through all the difficulties and disappointments that may ever clog the wheels of progress.

And I say that we must wage it in association with the United Nations with whom we have stood and fought—with that association ever growing.

I say that we must wage a peace to attract the highest hearts, the most competent hands and brains.

That, my friends, is the conception I have of the meaning of total victory.

And that conception is founded upon faith—faith in the unlimited destiny—the unconquerable spirit—of the United States of America.

NEW DEAL POLICY ABROAD ASSAILED

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Dr. Felix Morley, president of Haverford College, former editor of the Washington Post and chairman of the Independent Citizens Committee for Dewey and Bricker, said today in a speech prepared for radio broadcast that the American people have been deceived and bamboozled by the administration's foreign policy.

Describing himself as "one of the tens of thousands of Democrats all over the country who have changed their political allegiance since Mr. Roosevelt broke the two-term tradition," Dr. Morley stated that "the mess made by the administration of our foreign policy must be cleared up, if the war is not to lead to greater tragedy and leave us facing international anarchy, even when the present shooting stops."

Of the Chinese situation he said: "Mr. Roosevelt and Gen. Chiang Kai-shek are now in serious and open disagreement. As a result, we confront a very unfortunate situation in the Far East, one which threatens to cancel out all the gains accomplished by our heroic naval and military victories in the Philippines."

Concluding, he said "the charge that isolationism controls the Republican party is utterly baseless. What is not baseless is the probability that four more years of Mr. Roosevelt's personal diplomacy would produce such hopeless international confusion that the American people, embittered and disillusioned, would really turn isolationist, far more profoundly than was the case after the last war."

Communist Plot In Union Alleged

Pittsburgh, Nov. 4 (AP)—Sixteen executive officers of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America were described as "Communist conspirators" whose aim is "to destroy the American system of free enterprise" and set up a "Communistic dictatorship" in a suit in equity filed in Common Pleas Court here today.

The suit was filed by Harry Alan Sherman, former business agent for the union, who was ousted from the union by the executive board in March of 1943 for what he termed "openly opposing the Communistic activities of the officers."

Seeks Reinstatement

In his suit, Sherman is seeking reinstatement.

Sherman said the defendants in the suit "conspired, confederated and agreed together to achieve complete and absolute control" of the Congress for Industrial Organization through controlled delegates to the conventions" and "affiliated labor organizations which are now under complete control of the said Communist conspirators."

Among the members listed by Sherman were Albert J. Fitzgerald, of Lynn, Mass., general president of the union, and Julius Emspak, of New York, general secretary-treasurer.

"Instrument Of Revolution"

The officers, Sherman charged, have perverted the purpose of the union without the knowledge or consent of the membership "into an instrument of revolution." And to those who oppose them, he said, they have "threatened death," forced them out of the union, and prevented them from working in their chosen fields.

The general executive board, Sherman said in his suit, has "openly admitted" it is using the union, whose membership is 800,000, as a "vast political machine, primarily to undermine the Congress of the United States."

BRICKER SEES A 'NEW U. S.'

Vice-Presidential Nominee Concludes His Campaign

Cleveland, Nov. 4 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, concluding his campaign for the Vice Presidency, declared tonight that a Republican victory on Tuesday would "bring a return of confidence and enterprise" to the American people.

The Republican candidate, back on his home grounds after eight weeks in which he traveled 16,000 miles through 31 States and made 173 speeches, said he was confident that at the polls "this long-suffering nation will free itself from the depressing regimentation of the New Deal."

On State-Wide Broadcast

The Ohio Governor appeared here for a State-wide broadcast after delivering speeches earlier in the day at Youngstown, Niles, Warren, Kent and Akron.

Anticipating victory for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee for President, Bricker added in a prepared speech released by his campaign staff:

"That happy event will bring a return of confidence and enterprise to our people everywhere. We shall see an emergence of new inventions and the creation of new shops and factories for making the new products already developed by our industrial laboratories. We shall see money now idle seeking investment in productive enterprise. We shall see our returning soldiers and sailors establishing themselves on farms and in industry and starting businesses of their own. We shall see men from the ranks of labor becoming proprietors of their own businesses.

Sees Jobs Multiplying

"We shall see the expansion of large concerns and the establishment of thousands of small businesses. eW shall see jobs multiplying everywhere because of spreading economic opportunity. We shall see good wages that will purchase at fair prices the products of farm and factory. We shall see a resurgence in the individual citizen of vision and initiative and hard work, constructive planning, willingness to assume risks and unlimited faith in the future of America.

What We'll See, In Short

"In short, we shall again see a hopeful, forward looking and dynamic America."

Bricker asserted that "it is highly essential that Ohio have a Governor whose principles are akin to those of Mr. Dewey," and added that Mayor James Garfield Stewart, of Cincinnati, the Republican nominee, was such a man.

Colored Ink Business Wrested From Germany

Miami, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP)—The United States has wrested control of the colored ink business in Latin America from Germany, and should retain the market after the war, George R. Foster, president of the Lithography Company, of Havana, said today.

The scarcity of materials such as ink, film and paper has meant business headaches for lithographic industry, Foster stated, but his company nevertheless makes most of the wrappers for Cuban cigars. Cigar wrappers get priority over other contracts, he explained, because of the high percentage of overseas distribution.

U. S.-Latin America Travel Wave Forecast

Miami, Fla., Nov. 4 (AP)—Thousands of Latin Americans will visit the United States as soon as possible after the war, Augustin Aquero, technical adviser to the Tourist and Travel Commission of Cuba, predicts.

Aquero, who arrived in Miami last night, said the United States would take Europe's place as a tourist haven for Central and South American citizens.

The travel wave will go both ways, with United States tourists flooding the countries to the south, he said.

"The Cuban Government soon will open tourist information offices in the larger cities of the United States, with branches from New York to Miami," he declared.

TIRED HERO HOME

Miami, Fla., Nov. 4 (A. P.).—Pfc. John H. Zawacki was home from battle today.

The 39-year-old Erie, Pa., soldier's unpressed pants were stuffed into scuffed boots when he stepped off an air transport command plane here yesterday.

Hours of squinting for Nazi snipers had etched crow's feet under his eyes. He was unshaven and admitted he was tired—tired of two years on the battlefield in North Africa, in Italy and in France.

Winner of the Silver Star for gallantry in action, Soldier Zawacki mumbled: "Aw, I just held my gun on them until the rest of my buddies came up." He captured fifty Germans single-handed, the Army reported.

ARMY SEIZES 7 WAR PLANTS

Men In Toledo Factories Are Ordered Back Monday

Detroit, Nov. 4 (AP)—The army today took over seven Toledo war plants and the shell division of another because, an army officer asserted, strikes have "stopped the flow of ammunition, guns, trucks and tanks to General Eisenhower and General MacArthur."

Immediately following the seizure, Matthew Smith, general secretary of the unaffiliated Mechanics Educational Society of America, members of which have walked out in Detroit as well as Toledo, summoned a meeting of his organization's executive committee.

He declined to say what action might be taken at the committee meeting which he described as a "huddle."

Up To Employes

"We are aware that it is against the law to agitate work stoppages in plants seized by the Government," he said. "If the employes want to return to work without settlement of our dispute with the United Automobile Workers (CIO), that will be a question for them to decide."

The Toledo plants were taken over by Col. Phillip R. Faymonville, who sent groups of three officers into each plant to inform the management the army was taking over. He said production would be resumed in all the plants Monday morning and that all employes, regardless of their union affiliation, were to report for duty.

Colonel Faymonville indicated that any employe capable of reporting for work who fails to return would face prompt reclassification by his local draft board.

Those Taken Over

The plants taken over today under Presidential order were Baker Brothers, Great Lakes Stamping Company, Ohio Tool and Die Company, Inshield Products Company, Crescent Engineering Corporation, Toledo Steel Tube Company, Wayne Metal Products Company and the shell division of Willys Overland Motors, Inc.

They were among 52 plants in the Detroit and Toledo areas affected by the MESA strike which stemmed from a jurisdictional dispute between that organization and the UWA. The strikes began with a walkout of 350 employes of the Electric Auto-Lite Company in Toledo on October 24 after six employes, members of the MESA, were discharged because, Smith said, they had failed to maintain membership in the UAW. The UAW had a contract with the management of Auto-Lite covering all production employes.

Auto-Lite Not Involved

Auto-Lite was not involved in today's plant seizures.

About 4,500 MESA members were involved in the Toledo strikes that affected a total of more than a score of factories. In the Detroit area an estimated 8,000 members of the union joined in the work stoppage.

Meanwhile MESA officials said approximately 25,000 members of the union in 15 Cleveland area plants had voted their willingness to join in the work stoppages Monday. Smith emphasized, however, that no order had been given for the Cleveland workers to join in the strike.

Ford Advocates Free Industry To Aid Veterans

Says War Controls Should Be Lifted Early to Give Peace-Time Job Chances

DETROIT, Nov. 4 (AP).—Henry Ford advocated today the earliest possible elimination of wartime controls over materials, production and distribution and asserted that the future is "none too bright as things stand right now" for "the millions of young men and women whose world this will be in a few years."

In a statement given out at his office in near-by Dearborn, Mr. Ford said:

"The inspiration to work hard, to compete strongly with the other fellow in the same business, has almost been destroyed. Wartime controls that tie up raw materials, restrict production and limit the distribution of goods have got to be discontinued as rapidly as possible after the war if our American system of living and doing business is to be resumed.

Prescribes "American Way"

"Today we find some disciples of government preaching a doctrine of continued control over private enterprise and that means control over individual initiative. We had more than 150 years of the American way of life before we began to hear this kind of talk. It must be stopped now."

Mr. Ford said that not all of the problems of today and tomorrow lie with government or business. "A good portion of it," he said, "lies with those who work in the shops and factories of the country."

Asserting that "no real American workman wants anything for nothing; what he wants is a chance to work and to get ahead on his own ability," Mr. Ford continued:

"Idleness is the reason for many of our troubles. My thoughts today are with the young men who are coming home from war with a blank wall of inopportunity facing them. We owe these men, the ones who have been sent abroad, everything we can think of in the way of help and encouragement. They will want this help in the form of a chance to show what they can do—not in the form of a patronizing gift obtained by heavy taxes on their own families.

Hits 'Line Up and Wait' Plan

"What chance, under our present system, have these young men, should they want to express their individual ambition and spirit of invention, or their mere willingness to work hard at a good job? They must, according to current rules, get in line and wait their turn.

"In a land which is distinguished for freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear, any lack of a freedom of job opportunity isn't going to set well with the men who have fought to save us on the battlefields of the world.

"I hope, and I'm sure, that these men and their brothers and sisters at home are going to ask a lot of questions. They are going to want to know the why of everything that has been going on here. And they will get the answers, too. No one else can do it. They alone can put an end to top-heavy governing systems, to restrictive laws which serve no purpose in a nation built upon freedom."

AIR PLAN DROPS SOVIET ROUTES

Deletions Noted In U. S. Outline Submitted At Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP)—The United States, which has taken the position that seats in the executive council of a proposed world air authority should be available to Russia if she wants them, has nonetheless deleted the Soviet from her program for desirable air routes.

This was shown today in a comparison of the 20 routes submitted to the International Civil Aviation Conference with the corresponding list of routes made public by the Civil Aeronautics Board last June as a world pattern of 140,000 miles of American-flag skyways.

The submission of the route pattern to the conference committee dealing with routes followed the presentation of a draft convention or proposed multilateral treaty to the committee in that field in which provision was made for two seats for Russia, a representation equal to that of either the entire British empire or the United States.

New Stops In Three Countries

Along with the removal of points in Russia from its air-transport pattern deemed desirable for American operation, the revised draft showed the addition of stops in Spain, the Netherlands and Romania.

Amsterdam and Bucharest were added to routes extending from New York to Cairo by way of New Foundland or Labrador, Eire, England, the Netherlands, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Romania and Iran.

Helsinki, Leningrad, Moscow, Teheran and Basra were cut off another route originating in New York and reaching Stockholm by way of New Foundland or Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and Oslo.

A proposed route from New York to Madrid was extended to Barcelona; Madrid was added to a segment of a route between Lisbon and Algiers, and Seville and Barcelona were added as stops on a route segment from Natal to Paris.

One Route Segment Dropped

An entire route segment branching out from Alaska to Calcutta was eliminated, apparently because it called for stops in Russia. That route, as announced in June, would have provided for stops at an unnamed point in Siberia, Vladivostok, Mukden, Shanghai, Hongkong or Canton and Hanoi. A leg of the route from Mukden to Peiping and Chungking also was deleted.

The current route pattern retains, however, the segment originating in Alaska and reaching either Hongkong or Canton by way of Unalaska, Kiska, Paramushiro, Tokyo and Shanghai.

The addition of cities in Spain probably resulted from an agreement worked out with that Government by a special mission which went overseas last summer.

Called "Hostile" By Russia

Spain is one of the three countries described as "hostile" in Russia's explanation of her decision to stay away from the conference.

The United States action with respect to routes undoubtedly is tied up with a geographic situation whereby it is not necessary to cross Russia to reach another country. A similar geographic situation exists with respect to Argentina, which was not invited to Chicago. However, the proposed pattern for American flag lines does not add substantially to routes in Latin America already being kown by Pan American Airways and Pan American-Grace Airways, which includes service to Buenos Aires. Additional routes in Latin America are being sought by various United States airlines.

Berle Response To Charge

A story in the Chicago Tribune today charging Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chairman of the American delegation, with backing a plan that would "sell out" United States interests in aviation drew from him this press-conference statement in response to a request:

"I don't have to inform you gentlemen that there is a national election on and a campaign incident thereto, and that a certain local newspaper has taken a very vivid interest therein."

Asked for comment on what has been done in the conference thus far, Berle said that "the greatest goodwill has obtained among all the delegates and officers of the conference so that the overlapping is rapidly being ironed out. In my limited experience I have never seen a group that worked more happily together."

Route Allocation Is Issue

A fundamental difference remains between this country and Canada, primarily the issue of route allocations by an international authority as proposed by Canada, but it appeared that the effort to reach common ground would be centered on the dominion. Canada already has receded from her original position on rate fixing.

In the matter of route allocations it is conceivable that the United States could be brought to some concessions so long as the vast pattern of international air operations built up at great expense before the war is not disturbed.

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chief of the host delegation, made a strong point of each nation's equity in such routes when he outlined the United States' position Thursday.

Provisional Basis

He said today that this country's position with respect to the routes which it is asking be put into operation as quickly as the military situation permits is that they be provisional and be "merged or dealt with under the convention," which eventually should result from the conference.

The conference has completed the outline of its organization and will be ready by Monday to break up into numerous subcommittees serving under four main committees.

Hint Of U. S. Air Concessions

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP)—A hint that the United States might be prepared to make concessions appeared today in unofficial expressions of attitude toward the Canadian draft of a world air authority presented formally to the International Civil Aviation Conference.

Of the four major plans before the No. 1 committee, the group dealing with a multilateral convention on air navigation, the Canadian plan is the nearest to that of the United States. Next to it, but still some distance off, is the United Kingdom proposal, and far beyond that is the joint Australian-New Zealand demand for internationalization of air transport.

Truman Closes Tour With Talk In Home Town

Tells Independence, Mo., Crowd It Is Vital to Send Roosevelt to Peace Table

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 4 (AP).—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, closed his nation-wide campaign tour tonight with an appeal to residents of his home town to "send Franklin D. Roosevelt to the peace table" and "not betray American boys who have made the greatest sacrifice a man can make for his country."

"Ask yourselves if you want a man with no experience to sit at the peace table with Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek," he told a crowd gathered to welcome him home from his stumping trip.

"Or do you want a man to r resent you who can meet these leaders on equal terms, a man who knows these men, a man who has been a member of the team that is winning the war, who knows the innermost thoughts of his teammates, and who is determined to see that his own people gets the best deal?"

Senator Truman told his audience that America won a war in 1918, and continued: "We lost the peace in 1920 when we were misled by the promises of a candidate for the Presidency—Warren G. Harding—who solemnly assured the country he was for a society of nations to preserve the peace.

"History gives us the answer to Harding's promises. His failure is the reason our boys are now dying again on the battlefields of the world. We dare not make that mistake again—we cannot afford to rely on promises—promises of another candidate of the party of Harding, a candidate with no foreign policy of his own, but who, for reasons of political expediency, has been forced to give lip service to the foreign policy of the Roosevelt administration."

Senator Truman said that under Roosevelt leadership America, by January of this year, "had built more than one-third of all the merchant marine tonnage of the world," and enlarged the Navy until it is larger than the world's other combined fleets.

"We are producing planes in quantities of over 100,000 a year. Our tanks are superior to anything produced by Germany, and even more effective than those of Great Britain and Russia.

"The farmer knows that his government has done more to help him than was done by any other administration in our history. The benefits the farmer has received were bitterly opposed by those in Congress who were supporting Mr. Dewey.

"It is your solemn duty to do your part. Go to the polls on Nov. 7 and re-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt."

NATIONAL ODDS UNCHANGED

Dewey Gains In 5 Of 6 States In Which Line Is Altered

St. Louis, Nov. 4 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey gained in five of six States in which election odds changed this week, but national odds announced today by James J. Carroll, betting commissioner, remain unchanged at 5 to 17 for President Roosevelt and 3 to 1 against the New York Governor.

Dewey advanced in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Missouri where the President is favored, and in Michigan, but lost his favored status in Illinois where neither candidate has an edge.

Receding Favorite

In New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts the odds on Roosevelt dropped from 9 to 5 (wager $9 to net $5) to 8 to 5, while odds on Dewey changed from 8 to 5 against him (wager $5 to net $8) to 7 to 5.

Dewey became an even bet in Missouri as compared with 6 to 5 against him last week (bet $5 to win $6). Roosevelt changed from 5 to 7 (bet $5 to win $7) to 3 to 4.

GOP Stronger In Michigan

The GOP nominee advanced in Michigan from 5 to 8 to 5 to 9 (bet $9 to win $5) while odds on Roosevelt changed from 7 to 5 to 8 to 5 (bet $5 to win $8).

The President gained support in Illinois, where the race is now 5 to 6 (bet $6 to n et5$) and pick your man. Previous State odds listed him at even money and Dewey at 5 to 6.

Carroll's listings show Roosevelt a favorite in 32 States, Dewey in 15, with no choice in Illinois.

New A-26 Invader Called Best U. S. Attack Bomber

Army Says Plane Has Proved Deadly in Battle

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 4 (AP).—The new A-26 Invader has gone into battle, the Army announced today, and has proved itself the speediest, deadliest and most versatile American-built attack bomber in the skies.

The report was made to a group of newspaper men invited to Tulsa's big Douglas aircraft plant, from which the bulk of the Invaders ordered by the Army Air Forces are being turned out.

Details of the plane's speed, fire power and bomb capacity were not released by Army authorities conducting the press tour but they declared the A-26 had proved in battle that it could fly with the speed of a fighter, carry the load of a heavy bomber, do the work of a torpedo plane, match the destructiveness of the dive-bomber, hop across oceans and shoot it out with anything on the wing.

The Invader is heavily armored, powered by twin 2,000-horsepower engines and designed to carry an extremely flexible selection of guns, cannon, bombs or fuel which makes its offensive striking power adaptable in almost any combat situation.

One of its most unusual features is an "all-purpose" nose which allows the plane to be equipped on the production line for special missions, avoiding a trip to a modification center.

Its first test flight was in July, 1942. The Tulsa plant now has 15,000 workers employed on a fast-moving production line and has sent out a call for 9,000 more. The plane also is being produced at the Douglas plant in Long Beach, Calif.

Landon Finds Roosevelt Inept In Diplomacy

Cites China as Example; Declares President Has 'Ambition of a Caesar'

OAKLAND, Neb., Nov. 4 (AP).—Alfred M. Landon declared here tonight that President Roosevelt "has the ambition of a Caesar" but in handling foreign affairs has "fizzled . . . the same as he has in domestic affairs."

"China is the latest demonstration of the blundering and ineptness of his one-man diplomatic system," the former Kansas Governor and 1936 Republican Presidential nominee said in a speech at a Republican rally here.

The China situation, "along with Morgenthau's ghastly plan, has prolonged the war many months and cost many thousands of needless casualties," Mr. Landon said.

The President's "quips have become dangerous in international relations," the Kansan said.

"For instance, at a press interview the other day, obviously referring to the fact that the Finnish government had on June 15 punctually paid to the United States the annual installment due on its debt, he stated that 'American foreign policy is not for sale at $160,000.'

"In this statement he expressed a disparagement of honesty itself. It was a needless insult to a tired and imperiled people. . . . The President implies in his slur that the Finnish government met its obligation in order to purchase our support."

Willkie's '44 Committee Urges Dewey's Election

Cake's Statement Approves Republican Policies

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 4 (AP).—The executive committee of Wendell Willkie's 1944 campaign urged Mr. Willkie's supporters today to vote for Thomas E. Dewey.

"We have not attempted, we can not and will not attempt to speak for our late and beloved friend, Wendell Willkie," said a statement released by Ralph Cake, of Portland, Mr. Willkie's former campaign manager.

Mr. Dewey, "in an executive position second in importance only to that of President," has proved his ability to bring unity to the government, the statement said. "We sincerely believe his proven leadership in domestic matters and his definitely expressed policies on international affairs will more nearly achieve our objectives than the policies of the present outworn and disunited Administration."

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS EAST OF BRUYERES, OCT. 31-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE "LOST BATTALION" OF THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY WAS RESCUED IN THE NICK OF TIME TODAY AFTER BEING ENCIRCLED BY GERMANS FOR A WEEK IN THE VOSGES FOOTHILLS.

NOV 5 1944

DURING THE ISOLATION OF LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S DOUGHBOYS, THEY HUDDLED IN COLD FOXHOLES AND FOUGHT OFF NUMEROUS ENEMY PATROLS. THEY WERE HIT BY ONLY ONE SERIOUS ATTACK DURING THEIR SEPARATION FROM MAIN UNITS AND THAT WAS ON THE LAST DAY WHEN THE GERMANS APPARENTLY FIRST BECAME AWARE OF THE SIZE OF THE FORCE.

THE YANKS WENT FIVE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD RATIONS. MEDICAL SUPPLIES AND AMMUNITION FINALLY WERE PARACHUTED IN FROM THUNDERBOLTS AND FIRED IN WITH ARTILLERY SHELLS.

THE 2,270 MEN WERE TRAPPED WHEN THEY DROVE UP A WOODED SLOPE OCTOBER 23 AND THE GERMANS CUT IN BEHIND THEM.

OTHER SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS FOUGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH TO THE BATTALION YESTERDAY. TODAY, THE MEN WERE BROUGHT OUT OF THE WOODS, WHICH WERE STREWN WITH NAZI DEAD. THE ENEMY LOST TEN MEN FOR EVERY ONE OF OUR CASUALTIES.

THE RESCUED MEN TOLD HOW THEY SAWED WITH POCKET KNIVES FOR HOURS TO FELL TREES FOR FOXHOLE COVERS, WORKING SO SILENTLY THAT THE GERMANS WERE PREVENTED FROM REALIZING THE SUCCESS OF THEIR TRAP.

"THEY NEVER WERE QUITE SURE," LT.MARTIN HIGGINS OF 239 UNION STREET, JERSEY CITY, N.J., SAID. "THE FIRST NIGHT WE GOT A BAD SHELLING AND FIGURED WE'D CATCH IT FROM THEN ON, BUT WE DIDNST."

LT.JOSEPH KIMBLE OF 123 NORTH CAMERON AVENUE, SCRANTON, PA., SAID THE DROPPING OF SUPPLIES MUST HAVE GIVEN THEIR POSITION AWAY IF THE GERMANS HAD NOT KNOWN IT EARLIER AND "WE WERE RELIEVED JUST IN THE NICK OF TIME. WE WERE JUST HOLDING OUR OWN WHEN THE TROOPS CAME. THE GERMANS WERE BORING IN FROM ALL SIDES AND WE WERE HOLDING THEM OFF WITH GRENADES AND BAZOOKAS."

AT A 35TH DIVISION COMMAND POST, NOV 4-(AP)-NIGHT PATROLING IS ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT AND DANGEROUS OF AN INFANTRYMAN'S JOBS, BUT IT CAN HAVE ITS MOMENTS OF GROTESQUE HUMOR, AS LT.CONSTANTINE MIMS, JR., 22, OF LAREDO, TEX., DISCOVERED A FEW NIGHTS AGO.

"OUR REGIMENT, THE 137TH INFANTRY, NEEDED INFORMATION ON GERMAN POSITIONS ACROSS A VALLEY FROM A RIDGE WE WERE HOLDING," HE EXPLAINED, "SO I WAS SENT OUT WITH FIVE MEN TO RECONNOITER THE LINES AND BRING BACK A PRISONER.

"WEARING THE DARKEST CLOTHES WE COULD FIND, AND EACH CARRYING A TOMMYGUN, A FRAGMENTATION GRENADE AND A SMOKE GRENADE, WE MOVED A FEW FEET AT A TIME. IT TOOK US NEARLY THREE HOURS TO COVER LESS THAN TWO MILES.

NOV 5 1944

"AFTER MOVING THE LAST COUPLE OF HUNDRED YARDS ACROSS A PLOWED FIELD TO THE EDGE OF AN ORCHARD WHERE WE THOUGHT THE GERMANS MUST BE WE CROUCHED MOTIONLESS FOR FIVE MINUTES ABOUT FOUR OR FIVE YARDS FROM THE TREES, WHILE I WAS NO MORE THAN THAT MANY FEET FROM A BUSH AT THE EDGE OF THE ORCHARD.

"FINALLY I MOVED OVER BY THE BUSH, AND THERE WAS A GERMAN HALF-HIDDEN IN THE UNCOVERED END OF A TWO-MAN DUGOUT. HE WAS STANDING AND AWAKE, BUT STILL HADN'T SEEN US UNTIL I THRUST A TOMMYGUN AGAINST HIM AND SAID, 'HAENDE HOCH', THE ONLY GERMAN PHRASE I KNEW. HE THREW HIS HANDS UP, BUT STARTED YELLING AND KICKING AT HIS BUDDY, APPARENTLY ASLEEP IN THE COVERED PART OF THE DUGOUT, URGING HIM TO COME OUT.

"AS SOON AS HE STARTED THIS FUSS I SENT OUT FLANKERS TO WATCH FOR ANY GERMANS COMING UP, AND WE EXPECTED TO BE FIRED ON IMMEDIATELY. BUT SGT. DAVE BRIGGS OF 344 WEST 11TH ST., CLAREMONT, CALIF., AND I STAYED THERE TRYING TO PULL THE GERMAN OUT AS A PRISONER. HE REFUSED COME AND KEPT YELLING FOR HELP SO FINALLY I HAD TO SHOOT HIM.

"WE WENT TO WORK ON THE MAN IN THE COVERED PART OF THE DUGOUT. I KICKED HIS RIFLE OUT OF REACH. HE SHOWED NO FIGHT, BUT JUST PASSIVE RESISTED WITH HIS WEIGHT, AND HE MUST HAVE WEIGHED OVER 200 POUNDS. FINALLY WE TORE THE PLANKING AND SHEETMETAL TOP FROM THE DUG-OUT, MAKING AS MUCH NOISE AS IF TEARING DOWN A HOUSE, BUT STILL WE DRE NO FIRE. THE JERRY JUST SLUMPED DOWN AND WAS SO HEAVY WE COULDN'T LIFT HIM OUT.

"AFTER AT LEAST 15 MINUTES OF THIS NOISE-MAKING, WE CONVINCED THE GERMAN HE HAD TO GO WITH US OR BE KILLED. BUT JUST AS WE STARTED BACK OVER THE PLOWED FIELD HIS PALS OPENED UP WITH THREE OR FOUR MACHINE-GUNS, HALF A DOZEN MACHINE PISTOLS AND A FEW RIFLES FROM THE ORCHARDS ON BOTH SIDES OF US.

"THEIR TRACERS WERE CONVERGING RIGHT OVER OUR HEADS, BUT TOO HIGH. WE REALLY SWEAT IT OUT CRAWLING ACROSS THE FIELD. AT THE START I WAS IN ONE FURROW, REACHING ACROSS TO THE NEXT, HOLDING THE GERMAN BY THE HAIR AND ALMOST LITERALLY DRAGGING HIM INCH BY INCH. THEN WHEN BULLETS BEGAN ZIPPING ALONG MY FURROW I GOT OVER TO HIS, AND CRAWLED BACKWARD, HOLDING A PISTOL BETWEEN HIS EYES.

"BY THEN WE WERE GETTING NEAR THE CREST OF THE RIDGE AND A ROAD RUNNING TO A VILLAGE THE GERMANS HELD. WE WERE AFRAID THEY MIGHT HAVE A PARTY COMING OUT TO INTERCEPT US, SO I ORDERED THE MEN TO THROW THEIR SMOKE GRENADES AS A TARGET, AND WE SOON HAD A FINE SMOKESCREEN.

"AS WE BROKE AND RAN FOR IT, THAT STUBBORN GERMAN WRENCHED HIMSELF AWAY AND RAN BACK INTO THE SMOKE AND INTO HIS OWN FIRE, WHICH WAS COMING DOWN LOWER AND HEAVIER BY THEN SO WE KNEW IT WAS NO GOOD TRYING TO CHASE HIM.

NOV 5 1944

"WE RAN ON UNTIL WE REACHED THE RELATIVE SAFETY OF A ROAD NEAR OUR CAMP, AND FLOPPED DOWN AND LAUGHED ABOUT THE WHOLE SPECTACLE OF TRYING TO MOVE AND CAPTURE THAT GERMAN. WE'RE CONVINCED NOW THAT IF ALL GERMANS WERE AS STUBBORN AS THAT JERRY, THERE WOULD BE FEW PRISONERS TAKEN BY NIGHT PATROLS. IF THEY WANT TO COME, THEY WILL, BUT IF NOT YOU'LL HAVE A DEVIL OF A TIME MAKING THEM. IT'S EASY TO KILL THEM BUT HARD TO CAPTURE THEM. WE HAD NO CASUALTIES, AND WE LEARNED PLENTY ABOUT PATROLING."

LUXEMBOURG, OCT 30-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE GOVERNMENT OF THE GRAND DUCHY OF LUXEMBOURG, SCATTERED DURING THE YEARS OF GERMAN DOMINATION, IS FUNCTIONING ONCE MORE WITH THE ASSISTANCE OF AN ALLIED CIVIL AFFAIRS MISSION SENT HERE BY SUPREME HEADQUARTERS.

UNLIKE THE OTHER CIVIL AFFAIRS COMMISSIONS DISPATCHED BY SHAEF THE LUXEMBOURG MISSION IS HEADED BY A U.S.ARMY OFFICER.

HE IS COL.FRANK E.FRASER, 726 NORTH CENTRAL AVE., PHOENIX, ARIZ., WHO HAS BEEN IN THE CIVIL AFFAIRS BRANCH OF THE ARMY LONGER THAN ANY OTHER MAN. BRITISH OFFICERS SERVE AS CHIEFS OF ALL THE OTHER ALLIED CIVIL AFFAIRS MISSIONS.

IN FACT A BRITISH BRIGADIER ORIGINALLY WAS SCHEDULED TO HEAD THE SETUP HERE, BUT PRINCE FELIX PERSONALLY ASKED GEN.OMAR N.BRADLEY TO ASSIGN AN AMERICAN BECAUSE THE YANKS LIBERATED THE COUNTRY.

NOV 5 1944

"WE DON'T RUN THE COUNTRY FOR THESE PEOPLE," FRASER SAID IN AN INTERVIEW. "WE MERELY SERVE AS A LIAISON BETWEEN THE GOVERNMENT AND THE MILITARY."

LUXEMBOURG IS A DEMOCRACY OPERATING UNDER A SOVEREIGN, THERE HAS BEEN NO GENERAL ELECTION SINCE 1940. GRAND DUCHESS CHARLOTTE, WHO ESCAPED WITH OTHER MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL FAMILY WHEN THE GERMANS OVERRAN THE COUNTRY IN 1940, STILL IS IN BRITAIN.

PRINCE JOHN, HEIR APPARENT AND THE OTHER CHILDREN ARE IN THE UNITED STATES. FELIX, PRINCE CONSORT, IS LIVING ON THE CONTINENT AND MAKES FREQUENT VISITS TO THE CAPITAL.

OF THE FIVE REGULAR CABINET MINISTERS FOUR ARE NOW BACK ON THE JOB. THE FIFTH, NICHOLAS MARGUE, MINISTER OF INSTRUCTION, WAS TAKEN TO GERMANY BY THE NAZIS, BUT IS BELIEVED TO BE ALIVE.

THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES HAS NOT BEEN IN SESSION SINCE JULY, 1940, AND ONLY 24 OF THE REGULAR 52 DEPUTIES ARE AVAILABLE. YET ALL BRANCHES OF THE GOVERNMENT ARE IN OPERATION, SOME WITH SUBSTITUTE PERSONNEL.

NO ELECTION WILL BE HELD UNTIL ALL LIVING MEMBERS OF THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT RETURN.

"ODDLY ENOUGH THIS WAS THE ONLY COUNTRY IN EUROPE THAT PREPARED FOR INVASION BY THE GERMANS AND THAT WAS FORTUNATE FROM OUR STANDPOINT," FRASER SAID.

"THEY WERE PREPARING FOR THE POSSIBILITY OF BEING OVERRUN BY THE GERMANS AS EARLY AS MAY, 1939--A YEAR BEFORE THE INVASION CAME. THEY GRANTED EMERGENCY POWERS TO THE MINISTERS, PLANNED A GOVERNMENT IN EXILE AND DECLARED A STATE OF SIEGE, WHICH INCIDENTALLY STILL EXISTS.

"WE HAVE HAD TO MAKE MANY APPOINTMENTS TO GET THE GOVERNMENT GOING AGAIN, BUT IT WAS AN EASY MATTER BECAUSE OF THE FORETHOUGHT OF THE GOVERNMENT BEFORE THE INVASION."

NOV 5 1944

FRASER DISCLOSED THAT AS EARLY AS 1938 THE GOVERNMENT BEGAN SHIFTING MONEY AND SECURITIES OUT OF THE COUNTRY AND BUILDING UP LARGE CASH CREDITS IN THE UNITED STATES AND ENGLAND.

"THEN DURING THE GERMAN OCCUPATION LUXEMBOURGERS CONTINUALLY PREPARED FOR THE DAY OF LIBERATION," FRASER CONTINUED. "WHEN THE GERMANS DEPARTED THEY TOOK ALL THE RECORDS, THINKING THEY'D THROW THE COUNTRY INTO A TAILSPIN. BUT WHEN WE ARRIVED WE FOUND THESE PEOPLE HAD MADE DUPLICATES OF ALL RECORDS SECRETLY.

"BY CLEVERLY JUGGLING THE BOOKS THEY WITHHELD MILLIONS OF MARKS WHICH THEY SALTED AWAY AND BROUGHT OUT WITH THE CORRECT ACCOUNTS WHEN THE AMERICANS CAME."

THE GERMANS, WHO CONSIDERED LUXEMBOURG A PART OF GERMANY, INSTALLED THEIR OWN GOVERNMENT, MONETARY AND EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

"THEY INTENDED TO WIPE OUT LUXEMBOURG AS SUCH," FRASER SAID. "NOW WE MUST WIPE OUT EVERYTHING GERMAN AND REESTABLISH THE ORIGINAL SYSTEMS.

"WE DEAL DIRECTLY WITH THE VARIOUS MINISTERS CONCERNING PROBLEMS IN THEIR DEPARTMENTS. THEY ISSUE DECREES IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE DESIRES OF THE MILITARY COMMANDERS."

NOV 5 1944

VIRTUALLY EVERYTHING IS OPERATED BY THE GOVERNMENT ALTHOUGH THE ARMY KEEPS A CLOSE WATCH ON ANYTHING INVOLVING MILITARY SECURITY.

WHILE ALL UTILITIES ARE PRIVATELY OWNED, THE GOVERNMENT NOW CONTROLS THE RAILROADS BECAUSE OF THE SUPPLY SITUATION. THERE IS PLENTY OF FOOD HERE, BUT THE PEOPLE NEED CLOTHING AND COAL. STILL THE SITUATION IS BETTER THAN IN FRANCE OR BELGIUM.

THE MISSION IS COMPOSED OF BOTH AMERICAN AND BRITISH OFFICERS. THE OTHER AMERICANS ARE CAPT.CLAUDE E.BROOM, FORMER DETROIT POLICE INSPECTOR, WHO HANDLES MATTERS RELATING TO PUBLIC SAFETY; CAPT.ALLEN K.BRAMKAMP, MOUNT HEALTHY, CINCINNATI, O., WHO IS IN CHARGE OF TRADE, INDUSTRIES, UTILITIES, COMMUNICATIONS AND SUPPLIES, AND CAPT.FRANK S. AINSA, 1220 REYNOLDS BLVD., EL PASO, TEX., LEGAL OFFICERS.

FRASER ASKED FOR ASSIGNMENT WITH THE LUXEMBOURG MISSION BECAUSE AS A SECOND LIEUTENANT IN THE LAST WAR HE SPENT CONSIDERABLE TIME HERE BEFORE AND AFTER THE ARMISTICE.

THE 49-YEAR-OLD COLONEL, WHO RECENTLY BECAME A GRANDFATHER, WAS DIRECTOR OF EXCISE TAXES IN ARIZONA, MILITARY AIDE TO THE GOVERNOR, AND HEAD OF THE PERSONNEL SECTION OF THE 45TH NATIONAL GUARD DIVISION IN 1940.

HE RETURNED TO THE ARMY WITH THE RANK OF MAJOR AND WAS ASSISTANT CHIEF OF THE PERSONNEL SECTION FOR THE THIRD ARMY AT SAN ANTONIO, TEX., WHEN GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER ASKED HIM TO DRAW UP PLANS FOR A CIVIL AFFAIRS PROGRAM.

THIS HE DID AND WHEN EISENHOWER FIRST ARRIVED IN ENGLAND IN MAY, 1942, HE ASKED THAT THE PROGRAM BE PUT INTO OPERATION. FRASER JOINED EISENHOWER'S CIVIL AFFAIRS STAFF. HE LATER WENT TO THE MEDITERRANEAN IN CONNECTION WITH CIVIL AFFAIRS WORK AND THEN TO WASHINGTON. HE RETURNED TO THE EUROPEAN THEATER IN JANUARY, 1943.

HIS WIFE AND A DAUGHTER, MRS.IVAN MESSER LIVE IN PHOENIX. A SON FRANK, JR., IS A 15TH AIR FORCE LIBERATOR PILOT, AND IS NOW ENROUTE HOME AFTER COMPLETION OF HIS COMBAT TOUR. ANOTHER SON, WILLIAM S. FRASER, IS IN THE MARINES.

WITH THE U.S. SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION, FRANCE, OCT 31-(DELAYED)-(AP) LT.VYRONE ANDERSON IS BACK ON DUTY WITH THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION AFTER A CAPTIVITY STARTED AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF MURDER, CONTINUED THROUGH A TERRIFYING ALLIED AIR, LAND AND SEA BOMBARDMENT, AND TERMINATED UNDER AMERICAN RIFLE FIRE.

ANDERSON, WHO WAS GRADUATED FROM IOWA STATE COLLEGE IN 1942, WAS AMBUSHED AND CAPTURED LAST MONTH WEST OF PONTIVY ON THE BRITTANY PENINSULA, WHEN HIS DIVISION WAS DRIVING AGAINST BREST. ONE OF HIS FIVE COMPANIONS WAS WOUNDED FATALLY WHEN THEIR VEHICLES WERE TORN BY GERMAN FIRE.

HE SAID THAT A SHORT TIME LATER THE PRISONERS SAW THREE CAPTIVE FREE FRENCH SOLDIERS BEING FORCED TO DIG GRAVES FOR TWO DEAD GERMANS.

"YOU CAN IMAGINE HOW WE FELT WHEN WE HAD TO STAND BY AND WATCH THE GERMANS SHOOT THOSE FRENCHMEN AFTER THEY HAD DUG THE GRAVES," ANDERSON SAID.

THEY ALL THOUGHT THEY MIGHT BE DEALT WITH IMMEDIATELY IN THE SAME MANNER, BUT INSTEAD THE AMERICANS WERE LOADED INTO HORSE-DRAWN CARTS, GIVEN BLANKETS AND STARTED TOWARD BREST. THEY REACHED THAT DOOMED CITY AFTER TAKING FOUR DAYS TO COVER 60 MILES, NEVER KNOWING WHEN THE SWIFT AMERICAN COLUMNS MIGHT BLOW THE CARAVAN TO BITS.

NOV 5 1944

"WE WERE PUT IN A CHATEAU ABOUT 200 YARDS FROM THE DOCKS," SAID ANDERSON, WHOSE WIFE LIVES AT 816 DUFF AVE., AMES, IOWA. "BUT WE WERE LUCKY AND ONLY ONE BOMBING DAMAGED THE CHATEAU. BUT DON'T THINK WE DIDN'T KEEP UNDER COVER.

"THE FOOD WAS BAD, WITH COFFEE FOR BREAKFAST, SOUP FOR DINNER AND POOR SAUSAGE FOR SUPPER, BUT THE GERMANS WEREN'T DOING ANY BETTER DURING THE LATTER PART OF OUR 30 DAYS IN BREST."

AFTER THESE WEEKS OF DREADING SWIFT DESTRUCTION BY AMERICAN BOMBS OR SHELLS, THE PRISONERS WERE MOVED ACROSS TO THE CROZON PENINSULA SOUTH OF BREST, AND AFTERWARDS WERE LIBERATED BY ADVANCING U.S. FORCES.

ANDERSON'S PARENTS ARE MR. AND MRS.WALTER ANDERSON, WHO LIVE AT 510 SOUTH 18TH ST., FORT DODGE, IOWA.

FOLLOWING MACARTHUR'S FRIDAY ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE END OF THE LEYTE-SAMAR CAMPAIGN WAS NEARING, THE JAPANESE SENT A CONVOY OF FOUR SHIPS WITH PROTECTING PLANES AND DESTROYERS INTO ORMOC BAY.

AMERICAN AIRMEN HIT THE CONVOY, SINKING TWO TRANSPORTS AND DOWNING 25 ENEMY PLANES. BUT THE TWO OTHER SHIPS SUCCEEDED IN PUTTING JAPANESE SOLDIERS AND EQUIPMENT ASHORE WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

ABOARD A CARRIER WITH THE THIRD FLEET,OCT.30-(DELAYED)-(AP)-IGHT AMERICAN PILOTS, WHO UNHESITATINGLY ATTACKED A FLIGHT OF FROM O TO 75 JAPANESE PLANES, SAVED TWO CRIPPLED AMERICAN WARSHIPS URING EARLY OCTOBER BATTLE OFF FORMOSA AND ROUTED THE ENTIRE ENEMY ORMATION AFTER SHOOTING DOWN 26.

OUTNUMBERED APPROXIMATELY NINE TO ONE, THE AMERICANS LOST ONE LANE AND THE PILOT OF THAT SHIP, ENS.ROBERT B.WILLIAMS, 20, F LOS ANGELES, WAS RESCUED WITH A SINGED EYEBROW AS HIS ONLY HURT.

THREE NEW ACES WERE MADE ON THE BRIGHT, SUNNY OCTOBER AFTERNOON HAT THE EIGHT NAVY PILOTS, ALL FROM THIS FLATTOP OF THE THIRD FLEET'S AST CARRIER LINE FORCE, SAW THE HUGE FORMATION OF ENEMY PLANES PEEDING TOWARD TWO AMERICAN MEDIUM WARSHIPS BEING TOWED FROM THE CENE OF THE FORMOSA STRIKE BY A LIGHT ESCORT.

THERE WERE ALL TYPES OF JAPANESE PLANES--BOTH FIGHTERS AND OMBERS--FLYING IN LAYERS.

ONE OF THE NEW ACES, LIEUT.ALFRED FECKE, 26, OF DUXBURY,MASS., A ORMER UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE FOOTBALL PLAYER, LED THE ATTACK.

"IT WAS 1:30 O'CLOCK P.M. AND TWO CRIPPLED MEDIUM AMERICAN WARSHIPS WERE UNDER TOW IN THE OPEN SEA, AT FOUR KNOTS," HE SAID, TELLING HIS STORY TODAY.

NOV 5 1944

"BEHIND THEM FOR 40 MILES STRETCHED A GREAT OIL SLICK THAT WAS AN EASY TRAIL FOR JAPANESE BOMBERS FROM NEARBY FORMOSA OR CHINA TO FOLLOW.

"FOR 30 HOURS THESE SHIPS HAD BEEN THERE, BARELY OUT OF SIGHT OF ASIA AND WITHIN EASY RANGE OF THE JAPANESE LAND-PLANES.

"WE HAD EIGHT FIGHTERS UP, AND THE JAPS WERE FROM EIGHT TO 15 MILES AWAY. WE MOVED TOWARD THEM, AT ABOUT 10,000 FEET ALTITUDE.

"THE JAPS WERE IN LAYERS FROM 5,000 TO 10,000 FEET--ALL KINDS OF PLANES STRETCHING FOR MILES WITH FIGHTERS ABOVE AND SLIGHTLY AHEAD OF BOMBERS.

"FOUR OF US HEADED FOR THE JAP FIGHTERS AND THE OTHER FOUR WENT BELOW TO HIT THE BOMBERS.

30.24 — 20175

"THE AMERICAN ATTACK WAS SO VIOLENT THE JAPANESE BECAME DISORGANIZED AND SOME GROUPS SCATTERED. WITHIN TWO OR THREE MINUTES OUR FOUR PLANES HAD COME THROUGH THE ENEMY FIGHTERS AND WHEELED AROUND TO DIVE ON THE BOMBERS, FROM THE REAR. THE BOMBERS, MEANWHILE, HAD GONE BELOW THE CLOUD COVER."

FECKE AND HIS THREE COMPANIONS CAME THROUGH THE CLOUDS TO FIND A WILD MELEE IN PROGRESS. JAPANESE PLANES WERE SMOKING, FLAMING AND DROPPING INTO THE SEA.

A GROUP OF AMERICANS HEADED BY LIEUT.MAX C.BARNES OF OLYMPIA, WASH., HAD HIT THE BOMBERS WITH A VENGEANCE THAT EQUALLED THAT OF FECKE'S ASSAULT.

THE JAPANESE FIGHTERS DIVED AND REENGAGED THE AMERICANS.

TWO OF THEM CHASED ONE BOMBER INTO A CLOUD AND LOST IT BUT THERE WAS AN AMERICAN TORPEDO BOMBER ON PATROL, ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CLOUD, PILOTED BY ENS. R. J. MAGHAN OF BRAINERD, MINN., AND HE SPOTTED THE ENEMY.

"I DON'T BELIEVE THE JAP EVER SAW ME," SAID MAGHAN.

HE GOT BEHIND THE ENEMY, FOLLOWED IT 12 MINUTES AND THEN GAVE IT A BURST, SENDING IT DOWN IN FLAMES.

BESIDES THE 26 PLANES THE PILOTS OF THIS CARRIER SHOT DOWN, AN AIR GROUP FROM ANOTHER CARRIER WAS REPORTED TO HAVE SHOT DOWN NINE ADDITIONAL BOMBERS FROM THE SAME ENEMY FLIGHT.

THIS CARRIER'S SCORE WAS: FECKE, FIVE; ENSIGN R. L. BUCHANAN OF CLEMENTON, N.., FIVE; ENS. IRL V. SONNER, PETALUMA, CALIF., FOUR; ENS. ROBERT MURRAY (310 S.NICHOLS), MUNCIE, IND., FOUR; LIEUT. (JG) WALTER D. BISHOP, KANSAS CITY, THREE; LIEUT.BARNES, TWO; ENS. HENRY W. BALSIGER, LOS ANGELES, FORMER SANTA MONICA, CALIF., JUNIOR COLLEGE STUDENT, TWO, AND ENSIGN WILLIAMS ONE.

FECKE, WHO HAD SHOT DOWN A PLANE THE DAY BEFORE, AND BUCHANAN AND MURRAY BECAME ACES.

FIELD MARSHAL SIR JOHN DILL HAS NOT LIVED TO SEE HIS BRILLIANT AND DEVOTED WORK CROWNED WITH ULTIMATE TRIUMPH. BUT HE HAS LIVED LONG ENOUGH TO SHARE OUR CERTAINTY THAT THE FALL OF A CORNERED AND DESPERATE GERMANY IS NOW ONLY A MATTER OF TIME--OF A RELATIVELY SORT TIME.

HE DIED SECURE IN THAT KNOWLEDGE. FOR THIS, AT ANY RATE, WE MUST BE THANKFUL.

IN THE COURSE OF THE PAST THREE YEARS, WE OF THE ARMY AIR FORCES SHOULD PERHAPS HAVE GROWN INURED TO THE DEATH OF FRIENDS. WE HAVE NOT. WE NEVER SHALL. SIR JOHN'S DEATH AFFECTS US ALL AS A BITTER AND PERSONAL LOSS.

BOSTON, NOV. 4-(AP)-JOHN G. WINANT, US. AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN, SAYS THAT "NO ONE LIVING CAN DO SO MUCH TO INSURE LASTING PEACE AS FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT IF HE CONTINUES AS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES."

"THAT", SAID THE THREE TIMES GOVERNOR OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, "IS WHY I SHALL VOTE FOR HIM ON NOVEMBER SEVENTH."

IN A NATIONWIDE RADIO (CBS) ADRESS, DELIVERED OVER STATION WEEI AND SPONSORED BY THE MASSACHUSETTS INDEPENDENT VOTERS COMMITTEE FOR ROOSEVELT AND TRUMAN, WINANT SAID THAT THE WAR IN THE EUROPEAN AREA XXX HAS BEEN AWLY ACCOMPLISHED WITH COMPLETE DISREGARD OF PARTISAN POLITICS OR ADVANTAGES.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE FOR ME TO BELIEVE THE CHARGE THAT THERE HAS BEEN INEFFICIENCY AT HOME," HE ADDED.

"THE COMPOTTENCE OF OUR ARMED FORCES, THE LIMITLESS SUPPLIES OF FOOD STUFFS AND WAR MATERIALS, THE EXTRAORDINARYLX SKILL IN COORDINATION AND COMMAND, WHICH CULMINATED IN THE CHANNEL CROSSING AND THE SUCCESSFUL INVASION OF FRANCE, SURPASSED MILITARY FEATS OFF AL TIMES.

"ANYONE WHO HAD THE PRIVILEGE OF SEEING ANY PART OF THOSE STUPENDOUS OPERATIONS WAS FORCED TO RECOGNIZE THE CAREFUL PLANNING THAT LAY BEHIND IT, AND NO ONE KNOWS THE PROBLEMS OF WAR, REACHING WAY BEYOND THE IMMEDIATE AREA OF BATTLE, BACK INTO OTHER COUNTRIESAND AFFECTING OTHER POINTS, COULD HELP BUT REALIZE THE POLITICAL STATESMANSHIP AS WELL AS THE MILITARY SKILL INVOLVED IN THE HISTORIC EXPEDITION."

WINANT POINTED OUT THAT HE HAD SERVED AS AMBASSADOR FOR THE PAST FOUR YEARS AND HAD "SEEN AT CLOSE RANGE THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR EFFORT IN THE EUROPEAN AREA."

ANSWERING CHARGES BY REPUBLICAN SPEAKERS THAT THE PRESIDENT HAD NOT PREPARED THE COUNTRY FOR WAR, WINANT DECLARED:

"THERE ARE THOSE WHO NOW SAY THAT THE PRESIDENT DID NOT GIVE US SUFFICIENT WARNING AND DID NOT DO ENOUGH TO AROUSE US TO OUR DANGER. BUT LOOKING BACK, I AM STRUCK WITH HIS COURAGE AND VISION."

TURNING TO THE PEACE TO COME, THE AMBASSADOR SAID THAT "IF WE ARE TO SERVE THE CHILDREN OF THE FUTURE, THE WAR AND THE PEACE ARE THE GREAT ISSUES OF OUR GENERATION.

"THERE IS ANOTHER PROBLEM THAT STEMS OUT OF PEACE," HE CONTINUED. "IT HAS TO DO WITH JOB SECURITY. I REMEMBER SPEAKING EIGHT YEARS AGO FROM THIS STATION IN BOSTON IN DEFENSE OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

"BOTH PARTIES HAD SUPPORTED THE LEGISLATION IN CONGRESS, BUT THE CANDIDATE OF ONE REPUDIATED IT IN THE MIDST OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN AND SENT THE CHAIRMAN OF HIS POLITICAL PARTY HERE TO TELL YOU THAT IT WAS A "CRUEL HOAX" IMPOSED UPON THE WORKERS OF AMERICA.

NOV 5 1944

"I HAD HELPED WRITE THAT ACT. I WAS CHAIRMAN AND THE MINORITY MEMBER OF A NON-PARTISAN BOARD APPOINTED TO ADMINISTER IT. I HAD WORKED OVER 20 YEARS TO GET IT WRITTEN INTO LAW.

"I RESIGNED MY POSITION ON THE BOARD AND CAME OUT FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, WHO SUPPORTED IT. I WAS CONVINCED THAT THE PRESIDENT HAD DETERMINED TO ASSIST DEPENDENT PEOPLE, TO HELP THE JOBLESS AND TO USE THE POWERS OF THE FEDERAL ADMINISTRATION TO INCLUDE OUT IN OUR BILL OF RIGHTS 'FREEDOM FROM WANT', WHICH INCLUDES THE RIGHT TO WORK.

"IN THESE BELIEFS HE NEVER CHANGED.

"TODAY BOTH POLITICAL PARTIES SUPPORT THIS LEGISLATION."

Pound Naval Installations at Port, Blast Oil Refinery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — (AP) B-29 Superfortresses thundered a mighty double strike at Japanese power today, hitting Singapore naval installations and the second biggest airplane fuel source in the Far East.

A communique from the 20th airforce which flies the air giants on their world-wide missions called bombing results "good to excellent" both at the former bulwark of British sea power on the tip of the Malay peninsula, and at the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery on the north coast of Sumatra.

Hit Naval Installations

The primary blow, in "substantial force" was against dockyard and repair facilities at Singapore, [illegible] the Japanese are understood to have converted into the chief brace of their navy in the south.

The presumption was strong that a main purpose of the Singapora attack was to hamper the refitting of Nipponese warships which may have escaped in that direction from the great naval battles in Philippine waters.

That theory was supported by the language of the communique which mentioned two direct hits on a "Japanese ship that was in the drydock for repairs." Other direct hits were reported on a control house at the largest drydock and "other vital points." Bombing there was visible.

The flight, from India bases, was reported by the 20th airforce as the longest daylight mission ever flown by military planes. The only longer one—and that by only a few miles — was the August 10 night blow by the same bomber command against the Pladjoe refinery at Palembang, Sumatra.

At least one bomb dropped square on the refinery in the Sumatra strike, the communique said. The 20th airforce described Pangkalan-Brandon as the second most important high octane gasoline source in the Far East, probably exceeded only by the Pladjoe refinery hammered in August.

Meet Weak Opposition

"Only "weak" fighter plane opposition was reported. Anti-aircraft fire was called "moderate" over both targets, and none of the American craft was reported lost in either strike.

The headquarters of the big bombers said nothing about Japanese radio reports of "enemy planes" in unspecified numbers scouting over the eastern seacoast of the main Japanese home island of Honshu.

NOV 5 1944

The Japanese guessed that the reconnaissance flights over the home islands came from the Mariana islands.

Most of the eastern seacoast of Honshu, where Tokyo and most of Japan's heavy industry are located, was covered by the scouting planes, radio Tokyo said.

The text of 20th airforce communique No. 20:

"In the longest daylight mission ever flown by military planes, B-29 aircraft of the 20th airforce today bombed the dockyards and repair facilities of the great Singapore naval base, on the southern tip of the Malay peninsula.

"The strike was made by a substantial force of the 20th bomber command from India bases. It was exceeded in length by only a few miles on Aug. 10, 1944, when the same bomber command conducted a night mission from India against the Pladjoe refinery at Palembang, Sumatra.

"Coincidentally with the attack on Singapore, some elements hit the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery on the Japanese-dominated isle of Sumatra.

Good Results Reported

"Good to excellent results were reported at both primary and secondary targets. At Singapore, the former British naval base now in Japanese hands, the weather was clear enough for visual bombing and direct hits were observed on a control house in the largest drydock and on other vital points. In addition, two direct hits were scored on a Japanese ship that was in the drydock for repairs.

"At Pangkalan-Brandon at least one direct hit was observed on the refinery and other strikes were made within the bombing area. Pangkalan-Brandon is situated on the north coast of Sumatra, just north of the city of Medan. It is probably exceeded only by the Pladjoe refinery as a supplier of high-octane aviation gasoline in the Far East.

"Our planes encountered only weak enemy fighter plane opposition. Anti-aircraft fire at both Singapore and Pangkalan-Brandon was moderate. None of our aircraft was lost to enemy action at either target."

SKY TROOPS DROP BEHIND GERMANS AT VITAL BRIDGE

Two Allied Armies Reach Maas River on 40-Mile Front.

YANKS CAPTURE BERG

Battle to Clear Antwerp Nears End, Walcheren Guns Silenced.

LONDON, Nov. 5—(AP) Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery launched a new assault today near Arnhem—scene of the gallant British Airborne division's stand—and dropped "sabotage parachutists" behind the vital Arnhem bridge, Berlin radio declared tonight.

This unconfirmed report came as two Allied armies punched up to the Maas river to the southwest on a 40-mile front, reaching the river at two points, and virtually ending the bloody battle to clear Antwerp harbor as a supply springboard for offensives into Germany.

Big Guns Silenced

Only two isolated pockets of Nazis remained on Walcheren island, and all big guns there were silenced. Save for minesweeping, the water route to Antwerp had been opened.

There was no Allied word on any operations at Arnhem, a city on the Neder Rhine guarding the northern approach to the Reich.

Berlin said Montgomery's forces attacked the Germans' Arnhem bridgehead under heavy aerial support. The broadcast declared all the parachutists dropped to disrupt German communications had been killed or captured. German strength at Arnhem recently was estimated at five divisions and some armor.

Southeast of Aachen, tank-supported U. S. infantry fought back 500 yards almost to the edge of Schmidt in a bitter battle to regain that bomb-levelled village, and rewon two-thirds of the ground lost earlier to heavy German counterattacks.

The U. S. Third army, lashing out on a long-dormant sector 100 miles below Aachen, knocked the Germans from Berg, eight miles northeast of Thionville, and near the juncture of the French, German and Luxembourg borders.

The grimmest battle was fought by the First army in see-saw actions in the deep-shadowed Hurtgen forest region.

Doughboys driven out of Schmidt Saturday struck back with the reinforcing weight of tanks and mobile artillery. They repulsed new German counterattacks, and made limited advances against strong resistance.

Yanks Bomb Schmidt

Air forces teamed with the ground troops, hurling bombs on already-rubbled Schmidt and then strafing the Germans holding the town. Pilots claimed destruction of 10 enemy armored vehicles, and estimated 12 to 15 German tanks were damaged.

Northwest of Schmidt, the Americans inched ahead against Germans stubbornly determined to prevent an advance to the Roer river, one of the last barriers before Cologne. Minefields and artillery barrages slowed progress. Near Germeter, infantrymen encircled one small but strongly-entrenched German force.

On a 40-mile front along soggy Dutch terrain, the Allies had reached the Maas river at two crossings, and were closing in on the fleeing Germans elsewhere.

The German sack below the river was collapsing rapidly, and a 21st army group officer in the field declared "the Boche obviously has pulled out to the north."

Polish vanguards of the Canadian First army struck to the river at Geertruidenberg, a main crossing point. Fifteen miles to the east, a swift British army advance behind flame-throwing tanks had crushed the last strong German pocket, and drove to the Maas at Heusden, taking that river town.

Seizing village after village, Canadian, American and British troops under Canadian army command were slogging up to the Maas on a 25-mile sector from Geertruidenberg westward to Moerdijk and Willemstad and beyond. Allied troops were reported within half a mile or less of Moerdijk, a main crossing which was seized by German parachutists in the lowlands invasion of 1940.

Field dispatches reported indications the Germans would continue the withdrawal above the Maas and across the Waal Rhine before pegging a main defense line for Rotterdam and central Holland.

On Walcheren island, the Allies had completely won Vlissingen (Flushing) and knocked out all German guns controlling the Scheldt estuary to Antwerp.

Tighten Noose on Middelburg

Scots drew a net tighter on one last German pocket at the city of Middelburg, reaching its outskirts. Other Allied forces closed in on Germans isolated northeast of Domberg.

Supreme headquarters disclosed that the British Marine landing at Westkapelle on Walcheren had been one of the costliest attacks of the Western front, with severe losses in personnel, landing craft and support craft due to point-blank fire of big German coastal batteries. Weather prevented Allied planes from knocking out these guns at the last moment.

Tholen island, northeast of Walcheren, has been in Canadian hands for four days, a field dispatch disclosed.

In the southeastern corner of Holland, British-American troops edged closer to the enemy fortress town of Meijel, 12 miles from the important German-Dutch border city of Venlo. Thickly-studded guns protecting the approaches to the Reich's frontier made progress slow.

Walcheren Landing Costly

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Nov. 5 (AP).—The landing by British marines at Westkapelle, on Walcheren Island, was one of the costliest attacks of the western front, with "severe" loss in naval and marine personnel, Supreme Headquarters disclosed today.

Twenty of twenty-five gun-mounting close-support craft and an unspecified number of troop-landing craft were lost to the point-blank fire of German shore batteries, the announcement said.

The landing force had to smash its way ashore head-on against the giant coastal batteries because at the last minute bad weather prevented the Allied air force from carrying out rocket-firing attacks designed to shield the assault.

Supreme headquarters did not reveal the actual losses in men. Although the personnel landing craft probably were less hard hit than the gun-support boats, it was known that the landing craft suffered heavily.

Berlin Says Spearhead Broke Through Suburbs

Romanian Radio Also Describes Dash Of Red Armor Around City To North

London, Monday, Nov. 6 (AP)—The German radio announced early today that Russian tank spearheads had crashed through Budapest's suburbs and reached the southern metropolitan limits, only two miles from the heart of the Hungarian capital torn by Red army siege guns and planes and Axis demolitions.

A Bucharest broadcast said that other Soviet troops, racing around the eastern side of the city, had smashed into the capital from the north and also penetrated 12 miles beyond.

Hungarian reports quoted by Bucharest indicated that the bulk of the German forces already were fleeing across the Danube to the western side, giving up the greater part of Budapest.

Tells Of Rail Towns

Moscow's bulletin did not confirm these reports, but announced the slashing of a main segment of the enemy's defenses on the southeast along the Budapest-Cegled trunk line with the capture of Ullo, rail town eight miles from the city.

It was along this railway and highway from Ullo that the German transocean broadcast said the Soviet penetration was made, despite "tenacious German and Hungarian resistance."

Berlin said the Russians were using at least 600 tanks and 65,000 men in the assault—three tank brigades, four rifle divisions, a detachment of heavy Stalin tanks and a mechanized corps.

Besides toppling Ullo the Russians announced the capture of Vasad, four miles southeast of Ullo and near the trunk railway, and also Taksony, six miles from Budapest. Taksony was taken by units driving on the city along the eastern bank of the Danube.

Indicates Evacuation

The Budapest radio late last night ordered all owners of small and large trucks to proceed to places assigned them for "prescribed tasks," indicating a total evacuation of the capital was near despite the announcer's assertion that all Russian frontal assaults on the city had been repulsed.

The speaker declared that Russian losses were 50 per cent. of the troops thrown against Budapest.

Capture Budapest Suburbs

A late Soviet bulletin said the Russians had captured a number of enemy fortifications nine miles from Budapest and overcome an intricate Nazi defense system based on a network of canals manned by four German tank divisions and one SS elite troops mechanized division hurled into battle as reinforcements.

A regiment of 3,000 men was wiped out by the Red army units in one day and 28 tanks wrecked, the Bulletin said, in telling of particularly fierce resistance along the highways leading into Budapest from Cegled and Kecskemet.

In heavy fighting around Goldap in German East Prussia the Russians said their troops killed 2,000 Germans in two days and destroyed dozens of tanks, self-propelled guns and armored carriers.

Berlin claimed that German troops had broken into Goldap, 19 miles inside the Reich from the Lithuanian border, and were beginning to wipe out its Soviet captors. Moscow however said the Germans were repulsed there.

The Bucharest radio, attributing part of its information to the Hungarian radio itself, said that Russian tanks had penetrated southern Budapest, and that the German and Hungarian troops were concentrating most of their forces in Buda, the hilly part of the capital on the western side of the Danube.

Capture Another 3,000

The Soviet communique announced capture of 3,000 more Axis troops, making a total of 10,518 since the offensive aimed at knocking Hungary out of the war began a week ago.

Reports via Turkey said many Hungarian troops had turned on the Germans inside the city, and that three great premature explosions on Saturday had destroyed St. Margaret's Bridge across the Danube, hurling refugee-packed street cars, automobiles and pedestrians into the river.

The Budapest correspondent of the Turkish news agency told of the blowing up of St. Margaret's Bridge, one of six spans connecting Pest, the larger district of the capital on the eastern side of the Danube, with Buda on the west.

Blast Believed Accident

"Boats of all kinds went to the assistance of the victims," he said. "The number of casualties is not yet known. It is believed that charges of dynamite, placed at vital points of the bridge to destroy it in case of necessity, exploded by accident."

The bridge connects both sides of the Danube with Margaret Island, a famous spa and park playground of the wealthy, and is only a short distance from Parliament Building on the east bank.

Telling of "indescribable chaos" in Budapest, the Ankara radio in a broadcast said:

"Hungarians are fleeing the town in haste, and it becomes clear the Hungarian army and people wish to cut away from the Germans. The Germans have been talking of attacks on Germans by Hungarian troops. This situation has compelled the Germans to disarm some Hungarians. Only four divisions have remained faithful."

Gestapo Posts On Border

A Moscow broadcast said Gestapo posts had been placed on the Austrian border, 90 miles west of Budapest, "to stop fleeing Hungarians from spreading panic among the Austrians," and to impress refugees into fortification work along the frontier.

In heavy fighting around Goldap in German East Prussia, the Russians said their troops killed 2,000 Germans in two days and destroyed dozens of tanks, self-propelled guns and armored carriers.

Berlin claimed that German troops had broken into Goldap, 19 miles inside the Reich from the Lithuanian border, and were beginning to wipe out its Soviet captors. Moscow, however, said the Germans were repulsed there.

The Germans told of new Russian gains in western Latvia, a front which Moscow did not mention. Berlin said the Russians had breached Nazi lines north of Vainode, 32 miles east of the Baltic port of Liepaja, but that "tough hand-to-hand fighting and forest battles localized the breaches."

Battle Of Annihilation

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP)—The newspaper Red Fleet reported today that a battle of annihilation was being waged against German forces cornered on the Latvian west coast.

"Locked between Liepaja and Ventspils, German divisions are dying without glory under blows from land, air and sea," said an article by I. Yeremashev, the first information from a Russian source of recent developments on the Latvian front.

5 REICH CITIES BOMB TARGETS

2,500 U. S. And British Heavyweights In Raids

London, Nov. 5 (AP)—More than 2,500 United States and British heavy bombers braved bad weather and heavy flak barrages today and pounded five German industrial cities, maintaining an aerial assault for November that may outweigh any yet hurled against the Reich.

British-based American warplanes lost 30 bombers and 23 fighters from the air fleets that roared over Germany, an Eighth Air Force communique announced.

No Nazi Fighters Attack

bulletin said that not a single enemy plane chose to attack in the bad weather. A number of the missing planes, including at least six fighters, were believed to have landed on friendly soil, the Eighth Air Force command reported.

Meanwhile, United States 15th Air Force Fortresses and Liberators flew through a thick overcast to bomb targets in the Vienna area. They also encountered heavy flak and a few enemy fighters.

American Mitchells and Marauders attacked the Brenner Pass railway between Italy and Austria and the two railways connecting northern Italy with Yugoslavia. One Marauder formation was attacked by a group of 12 to 15 Messerschmitts, but results were not disclosed.

Frankfurt, Ludwigshaven and Karlsruhe, with their railway yards and supply depots feeding the southern sector of the Siegfried Line facing the United States Third Army, were plastered by 3,500 tons of bombs loosed by 1,200 Liberators and Flying Fortresses.

RAF Lancasters hammered the industrial city of Solingen, south of the Ruhr, for the second day in a row, while 900 United States heavyweights from Italy struck military targets of Vienna.

Another force of RAF planes blew to bits a torpedo factory at Utrecht, coming over after the Dutch workers had gone off duty.

Pound Dunkerque Garrison

RAF fighters and fighter bombers struck hard at the German holdout garrison at Dunkerque, hitting ammunition dumps, farmhouses and slit trenches with 1,000-pound bombs.

At Ludwigshafen, several Messerschmitt jet-propelled interceptors darted up from their bases, took one look at the 650 Mustangs and Thunderbolts covering the attack, and scooted for the clouds.

Strafe Motor Convoys

The fighter cover for the Vienna raiders had so much idle time on its hands that pilots dropped down below the clouds and shot up motor convoys along the roads leading into the Brenner Pass.

Spitfires running interference for the Solingen raiders again met no fighter opposition, as was the case in yesterday's attacks on the city.

Pilots back from today's Rhineland raids said they met a terrific anti-aircraft barrage over Ludwigshaven, on the west bank of the Rhine. One pilot described it as being "just plain hell for the five minutes we were over the target."

Karlsruhe, to the south, was blanketed by clouds, but the I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical and synthetic oil plant at Ludwigshaven stretched for three clear miles beneath the sights of American bombardiers and made a good target.

Frankfurt Also Visible

The inland port of Frankfurt, largest distributor of oil in western Germany, also was visible through breaks in the clouds and bombardiers watched as river installations and railway yards capable of handling 2,500 freight cars daily went up in giant puffs of smoke and flame.

These attacks came as German industrial cities still blazed from explosives dumped by some 5,000 planes yesterday and last night.

Bochum, coal and iron center in the Ruhr, was hard hit by 1,000 planes, whose bombs last night left fires visible for more than 50 miles. Pilots reported there were three great explosions and then the city became a mass of flames.

34 Lost In Night Operations

Hannover and other objectives in western Germany were also attacked, an Air Ministry communique reported. The British lost 34 bombers in the night's operations.

A Stockholm dispatch said Allied planes were believed to have swept over the Kattegat and attacked German shipping off the Swedish port of Varberg yesterday.

The newspaper Aftonbladet said reports from the west coast told of heavy explosions which shook houses in Varberg and of tracer bullets arching across the sky.

Cologne Is Reported 80 Per Cent. Wrecked

Somewhere in Holland, Nov. 5 (AP)—A German traveler who left Cologne two weeks ago said today that in his opinion the great Rhine industrial city, which is being progressively obliterated by Allied air power, was then about 80 per cent. destroyed.

An army air corps officer pointed out that since then an additional 11,500 tons of bombs have been dumped on the city. Eight of these continuing raids were of 1,000 plane strength in October.

The traveler expressed the belief that about one half of the city's normal population of more than 700,000 had been evacuated. He said most persons remaining in Cologne were foreign workers forced to remain on the job.

'Scarecrow' Planes Used by Germans

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Germans fired "scarecrow" dummy airplanes which explode with a sheet of flame and dense black smoke at British Lancaster planes bombing Solingen yesterday, pilots said.

Hurled into bomber formations the "scarecrows" are intended to give the impression of an aircraft blowing up in the air. They are usually reserved for night use.

PLANES STRANGELY JOLTED

U.S. Attack Fliers, Bombing Nazi Arms Depot, Report Phenomenon

UNITED STATES NINTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, France, Nov. 5 (AP)—American Marauders and Havocs bombed a big ordnance depot at Homburg today and crews experienced a unique sensation, caused probably by unusual atmospheric conditions but possibly, according to the fliers, by some new German secret weapon. All the planes returned safely.

The pilots said their planes bounced up and down from the time they left the target until they crossed the German border back over France. None of them was able to explain the terrific jolts, and no explanation of the phenomenon was forthcoming headquarters.

The attackers bombed warehouses, ammunition dumps and stockpiles at Homburg, fifteen miles northeast of Saarbrucken, without encountering Nazi fighters or flak.

Himmler Implants Hope

Says Nazis Will Get Their Living Space "Now or Later"

LONDON, Nov. 5 (AP).—The German official news agency, D. N. B., said today that Heinrich Himmler, replacing Adolf Hitler as speaker at a celebration in Poznon, declared: "Now or later, we shall again extend over our frontiers and secure the living space which our Germanic country needs."

The "London Daily Mail" radio station, which intercepted Himmler's broadcast speech, said he was given a reception previously accorded only to Hitler himself and that he was introduced as "Reichsfuehrer."

DOORS CLOSED TO NEUTRALS

No Seats For Them At Peace Table, Says Vansittart

London, Nov. 5 (AP)—Lord Robert G. Vansittart, who advocates a hard peace for Germany, today said there would be no peace conference seats for neutral nations—not even those whose neutrality was beyond question.

Lord Vansittart, questioned about reports in the London press that Generalissimo Francisco Franco felt Spain should have a seat at the peace table, said any suggestion that Spain be admitted to the peace talks "is altogether fantastic and reminded that Spain was a signatory of the anti-Comintern pact.

Others Besides Spain

His reply to the direct question about Spain thus included Sweden, Eire, Portugal, Switzerland and Turkey. The member of Parliament did not mention the other neutrals by name, but said the British Parliament had decided they should have no part in the framing of the peace.

Franco was denounced editorially in three London papers.

The Laborite Daily Herald in an editorial entitled "The Hitchhiker" declared "removal of Franco's regime is the price of Spain's reentry into the assembly of free nations."

Other Papers Denounce Franco

The Daily Mail, blasting Franco for what it called "brazen effrontery," declared that Britain "will not forget the substantial help given by Franco's Spain to Germany."

The News-Chronicle said "if we made any deal with, or showed any favors to, Franco we should lose the good will of all who are finest in the new France . . . and destroy any chance of friendship and true collaboration with Russia."

SPAIN SEEKS PLACE AT PEACE CONFERENCE

MADRID, Nov. 5—(AP) The Spanish National weekly El Espanol, which often reflects official Spanish government opinions, today demanded a seat at the peace conference for Spain, and in preliminary postwar discussions.

The newspaper said the peace would not last if "the conquering peoples merely impose their will on the rest of the world" for the collaboration of all the nations particularly the neutrals like Spain was necessary.

El Espanol again held out a hand to the United States saying "the international principles of the United States as officially stated are absolutely unopposed by Spanish ideology."

Liberated Nations Seen In Favor of Harsh Peace

Foreign Policy Association Reports on Study

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Liberated European countries feel that the price of peace is "a settlement that deprives Germany of its potential economic and military supremacy" in Europe, the Foreign Policy Association asserted today.

This viewpoint was reflected in a study made by Mrs. Winifred N. Hadsel, of the association's research staff.

"Anything less, in their opinion, will merely invite a repetition of the events of 1939-'44 in an even more disastrous form, particularly for those nations which are unfortunate enough to be Germany's neighbors," she wrote.

Even at the risk of having to pay for the greater share of their own reconstruction, the "European nations stand for the plan which Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is reported to have submitted to President Roosevelt last September," Mrs. Hadsel said.

"Forced to decide between large-scale reparations and a de-industrialized Germany," she added, "most of the continental Allies do not hesitate to choose the destruction of Germany's industrial potential."

But Germany's neighbors, Mrs. Hadsel reported, believe that it would not be necessary to remove all German industries, since not all of them would have the same potential military value.

Mrs. Hadsel said, "If all the tertorial changes proposed by the French, Dutch and the rival Polish groups were carried into effect, Germany would lose approximately one-fifth of its pre-1938 area.

Labor Administration Forecast For Britain

Bolton, England, Nov. 5 (AP)—Manuel Shinwell, member of Parliament from Seaham, forecast a Labor administration for Britain after the European war ends and said in a speech that Prime Minister Churchill, a Conservative, should be its Defense Minister.

"The war against Japan will not be over next year," he said. "We must make certain that our military affairs are wisely directed, and there is no reason why a Labor government should not include him."

Britain's national election has been deferred until Germany's defeat.

Doughboys Break German Ring To Free 270 Trapped Eight Days

Ten Enemy Casualties for Each One of Ours in Vosges Foothills—Men Without Food 5 Days, Cut Trees With Pocket Knives

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS, East of Bruyéres, France, Oct. 31 (Delayed) (AP)—Trapped behind German lines in the Vosges foothills for more than a week, 270 American infantrymen of the Seventh Army were rescued today by other doughboys who fought their way through the German encirclement ring.

The battalion was trapped Oct. 23 when German troops cut in behind them. The rescuing Yanks said the surrounding woods were full of dead Germans and that the enemy paid ten to one of our casualties.

[A dispatch from Ninth United States Army Air Force headquarters in France said the incident occurred in the Demanaile-de-Champ forest, seven miles southeast of St. Dié, and that the troops were isolated more than 2,000 yards from the main Seventh Army force.]

The isolated doughboys huddled in coid foxholes and fought off numerous attacks but apparently the enemy did did realize the Americans' desperate plight because they made only one determined assault, and that on the last day, just before rescuers reached the unit.

The Americans were without food for five days. Rations and medical supplies finally were parachuted to them from low-flying Thunderbolts and fired in by artillery shells.

To form cover for foxholes the men cut down five-inch-thick trees with pocket knives.

"They [the Germans] never were quite sure," commented Lieut. Martin J. Higgins of 239 Union Street, Jersey City, N. J. "The first night we had a bad shelling and figured we'd catch it the next day, but from then on we didn't have a battle until yesterday, when it looked as though they were coming to get us."

Lieut. Joseph Kimble of Scranton, Pa., said the dropping of supplies gave the Americans' position away and "we were relieved just in the nick of time. We were just holding our own when the troops came. The Germans were boring in from all sides and we were holding them off with grenades and bazookas."

After five days without food, Col. George Lynch of Orlando, Fla., ordered an artillery battery commanded by Maj. Luther Orrick of Italy, Tex., to fire rations to the trapped men.

"We just crouched in our foxholes and sweated out the attack' like we would have done if the Germans had been shelling us," said Lieut. Higgins. "Those shells may have had chocolate in them, but they could have killed you when they landed."

After several failures because of bad weather, Thunderbolt pilots parachuted food and water to the men on Oct. 28. The next day they dropped medical supplies, plasma and ammunition. One water bag caught in a tree and Pvt. Peter Bondor of Utica, N. Y., and a sergeant volunteered to climb the tree and cut it down.

"The men almost cried when the planes came over and dropped food," said Sgt. William Bandork of Scranton.

One pilot dropped food right on the target and Sgt. James McLimore of Owensboro, Ky., said, "We were all shouting, give that guy a Congressional Medal."

COAL DUG NEAR FRONT

Mine Near Alsdorf Opened by Allied Military Government

WITH AMERICAN FIRST ARMY in Germany, Nov. 5 (AP)—A front line coal mine in Germany partly in enemy-held territory and partly behind the American lines has been put into operation by the Allied Military Government detachment attached to the American First Army.

The main opening of the mine is in Alsdorf but there is one shaft opening into territory held by the Germans. This tunnel is sealed off by a twenty-foot bulkhead and while fighting goes on a few hundred yards away civilian miners are digging coal.

Bishop Hobson To Visit First Army Units Soon

With the United States Army, Nov. 5 (AP)—Bishop Henry W. Hobson, of the Southern Protestant Episcopal Diocese, will visit First Army units in Belgium and Germany this week.

The Bishop plans to meet Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, First Army commander, conduct service near headquarters, and confer with many First Army chaplains. Then he will visit an evacuation hospital, many of whose personnel are from St. Luke's Hospital, in New York.

U. S. 20th Army Corps Wins Legion Of Honor

New York, Nov. 5—The United States 20th Army Corps today received the French order of the Legion of Honor from the prefect of the department of the Upper Marne, the London radio reported.

The 20th Corps led the American Third Army in its 600-mile drive through France and fought at Chateau Thierry and Verdun.

Paris to Base Newsprint On Papers' Circulation

French to Get Semi-Monthly Reports of Comparative Sales

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Taking the first step to adjust the distribution of a limited quantity of newsprint among France's papers, the Ministry of Information has instituted a system of semi-monthly circulation reports to gauge the newspapers' popularity.

With liberation, when fifteen dailies sprouted at Paris alone, an emergency system of approximately equal distribution of newsprint was adopted. Many papers have been complaining that they thus were prevented from meeting popular demand while less successful papers continued to receive excess newsprint.

All metropolitan papers are sold at the government-fixed price of two francs (four cents). They still are receiving only enough newsprint for a single sheet, two-page issue.

Spanish Refugees Use French Plan As Model

Paris, Nov. 5 (AP)—The refugee Spanish Republican "Union Nacional Espanola" voted today to form an enlarged national liberation committee which delegates hoped would be recognized by the Allied powers in the same manner in which the French National Committee in Algiers was recognized before the liberation of France.

As the union's three-day congress closed at Toulouse, the union offered a committee seat to each political party and another seat for Spanish refugees in France under the presidency of Gen. Jose Riquelme. Such a committee would be the executive board for the "Junta Suprema" underground Republican headquarters reported operating in Madrid.

Spanish Republicans in Paris interpreted this as a step toward establishment of a government in exile in opposition to the Franco regime.

Again, along French lines, the union voted to convoke a "consultative assembly" of delegates from inside Spain plus refugee groups to act as a legislature in framing a new Spanish charter.

The congress asked the Allied nations to break relations with Franco, according to the Agence France Presse.

Rome, Nov. 5 (AP)—Activity on the Italian battle front was confined mainly to patrol operations, Allied headquarters said today, although both American Fifth Army and British Eighth Army troops made minor improvements in their positions.

The weather over the entire front cleared somewhat after several weeks of heavy rains but mud and flooded streams still hampered operations.

Negro troops of the American Fifth Army in the central sector moved up on a 1,000-foot hill where the Germans are using a church as a strongpoint. The hill is just east of Mount Belmonte which was captured last week by American troops.

British On Forli Airfield

British troops on the Adriatic sector strengthened their positions, although forward elements were under constant German artillery fire. The British gained control of the southern end of the Forli airfields in a 500-yard advance.

Clearing weather enabled fighter-bombers of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force to resume attacks on enemy communications and battle front positions. Shipping in the Adriatic also was attacked.

FASCIST RADIO MAN HELD

Commentator Arrested in Rome Hospital Under Assumed Name

ROME, Nov. 5 (AP)—Mario Appelius, Fascist radio commentator, was arrested last night by the political section of the Rome police in a hospital where he was said to be in a serious condition suffering from a brain tumor.

Appelius, who was transferred today to another hospital under guard, had been living in Rome under an assumed name since the Allies occupied the city June 4.

Before the war Appelius was a foreign correspondent for Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, and became a commentator for the Rome radio when Italy entered the conflict. He was one of the most violent of the fascist propagandists.

U. S. Mediterranean Ace Honored For Heroism

Rome, Nov. 5 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Herschel Green, of Mayfield, Ky., the leading American fighter pilot ace in the Mediterranean with 18 victories, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross today for extraordinary heroism during a strafing attack on the Hajdu Boszormeny airfield in Hungary August 21.

The Legion of Merit was awarded to Sergt. Paul L. Crosson, of Templeton, Ind., and the Silver Star was presented to Lieut. A. Parker, of Milford, N. H.

Brig. Gen. Dean C. Strother, of Austin, Texas, commanding general of the fighter command of the 15th Air Force, was presented the Silver Star for gallantry in action as pilot of a Mustang and task force commander of the Italy-to-Russia shuttle in July. The task force destroyed 120 enemy aircraft in the air and on the ground, the citation said.

Ten To Be Tried For Treason

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—Ten members of the former "Quisling" Greek Government and high-ranking officers will be tried on charges of high treason before a special military tribunal in Greece, the Cairo radio said tonight in a broadcast reported by the FCC.

600 Collaborators Arrested In Salonika

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 5 (AP)—Capt. Marcos Velfiades, one of the first resistance organizers in Greece, is busy today rounding up former Axis collaborators—more than 600 already have been arrested—in this bomb-scarred city. His staff includes a former major in the German army who deserted the day the Nazis pulled out.

200 Jews Left of 60,000

Few Remain in Salonika After Job By Nazi 'Specialists'

SALONIKA, Greece, Nov. 5 (AP).—Salonika's 60,000 Jews have vanished almost completely. The number remaining is estimated at less than 200, but an accurate count has not been made because some of the survivors, hiding for the last eighteen months, have not yet reappeared.

The Germans used special troops to fight the extermination battle against the Jews. They were men from the Rosenberg Division named for the Jew-baiter Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi Minister for Civil Administration of German-occupied regions in Eastern Europe.

Finns Disband Home Guard

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 5 (AP)—Finland's home guard was officially disbanded today under terms of the armistice with Russia, Helsinki dispatches said.

BULGARIAN TERMS GOOD

SOFIA, Nov. 4.—(Delayed)—(AP) Armistice conditions offered to Bulgaria were described as the best possible under the conditions by the chief of the Bulgarian delegates in negotiations, Foreign Minister Petko Stainoff, before a cheering crowd last night on his return from Moscow.

Soviet Press Assails Romania On Armistice

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Russian news agency Tass declared today that the Romanian Government appeared to be in no hurry to fulfill armistice terms under which "all property stolen from the U. S. S. R. would be returned without delay."

Its dispatch from the Romanian capital of Bucharest also complained that the present Government had failed to intern German and Hungarian nationals and freeze their assets. It said the Allied Control Commission had handed the Romanians a memorandum covering both complaints.

REDS SAY RIOTING CONTINUES IN IRAN

MOSCOW, Nov. 5 — (AP) The Soviet news agency Tass in a dispatch from Teheran today said agitation was continuing in northern Iran for the ouster of Premier Mohammed Saed and that one person was killed and another wounded when Iran soldiers fired upon a "peaceful demonstration" against the present government at Tabriz last week.

The dispatch was published in all Soviet newspapers but there was no further reference in the Russian press to the presence of U. S. troops in Iran. Izvestia, the official Soviet government newspaper, declared yesterday U. S. troops were in the country without any agreement with Iran.

(Russia has been critical of the Saed regime since it announced Oct. 19 that all discussion of oil concessions to the Soviet Union, the United States and Great Britain would be postponed until after the war. U. S. and British representatives in the country raised no objections.

(The presence of American troops in Iran, potentially one of the world's richest sources of oil, was announced in 1942. The troops, sent to Iran to aid in furnishing Russia with war supplies via the Persian gulf route, have transported huge quantities of war supplies to Russia.

(Russia and Britain assumed control in Iran in the Summer of 1941, dividing the country into southern and northern spheres of occupation after ousting the pro-Nazi regime.)

Izvestia yesterday said Britain had oil concessions in southern Iran, and Americans had negotiated for concessions, but when Soviet Russia made an offer the Iran government did not even seek to learn the terms.

Besides the shooting at Tabriz "bloody events" occurred at Isfaha and Shahrud, the Tass report said.

Tass claimed 30,000 demonstrators at Geshed, near the Caspian Sea, demanded Saed's replacement and the "establishment of genuine friendly relations with the Soviet Union." Similar resolutions were reported adopted at Resht, Pahlevi and other towns in the Caspian zone.

[A Soviet dispatch from Teheran was reported earlier today in London by Reuters as saying Saed will send a delegation to Moscow next week to discuss the dispute over the oil concessions with the Russian Government.]

Kalinin Honors Stalin With Order Of Victory

London, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that President Michael Kalinin had decorated Premier Stalin with the Order of Victory for "exceptional merit in organizing and executing the offensive operations of the Red army which brought about the great defeat of the German army and a fundamental change in the war in favor of the Red army."

The radio said Stalin also was invested with the Order of the Red Banner for "long service with the Red army."

Russian Ration-Free Stores Slash Prices

MOSCOW, Nov. 5 (AP).—Russian commercial stores, whose entire stocks are excluded from rationing controls, reduced the prices of all articles by 30 per cent today as the nation prepared to celebrate next Tuesday the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The commercial stores first opened early in 1944, selling commodities at many times the price of those obtainable with ration cards.

Rangoon Outskirts Bombed

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 5 (AP)—Heavy bombers of the Eastern Air Command yesterday attacked railway targets at Insein on the outskirts of Rangoon, Burma, it was announced.

The bombers had fighter escort. Other aircraft attacked shipyards and an airfield at Vinh on the gulf of Tongking in French Indo-China.

AMERICAN TROOPS DESTROY BIG AIR BASE AT KWEILIN

KWELIN, China, Oct. 28.—(Delayed)—(AP) The principal advanced base for U. S. air power in the Orient blew up tonight in a series of mighty explosions, touched off by Americans pulling out of Kweilin ahead of the oncoming Japanese.

Brig. Gen. Clinton D. Vincent, commander of the 14th air force Eastern composite wing, gave the order to set the fuses.

Unused Since Sept.

Except for the last-minute delivery of arms to the Chinese at Kweilin, and occasional staging of emergency landings for fighters and bombers, Yangtang airfield near Kweilin had been unused since mid-September. Buried in the field were 218 tons of bombs, ready for the demolition work.

These preparations had been made since the night of Sept. 16, when secondary installations of the base—runways, taxiways, dumps and buildings at Ehrtang and Lichiachen and the adjacent fighter strip at Yangtang—were destroyed.

The code word "Marblehead" — the signal to demolish the field — was received in the communications cave overlooking the Yangtang strip.

Vincent had chosen it in casual conversation with Col. Alton Kenerson, district engineer. Vincent decided the name of Kenerson's home town, Marblehead, Mass., should be the touch-off signal.

The last transport plane into Yangtang carried Capt. Gerald James McAllister, wing public relations officer; John W. Randolph, Birmingham, Ala., OWI correspondent; Technical Sergeant Harold E. Geer, White Plains, N. Y., combat cameraman; Sergt. Selig Soidlir, Jamaica, N. Y., combat cameraman, and myself.

The plane was loaded with radio equipment from the communications cave while we joined one of the demolition teams. Except for the C-64 that carried McAllister, Randolph and the two cameramen away late in the afternoon, the transport that brought our party was the last to leave Yangtang.

"Bitter-Enders" Use Jeeps

Once the radio station was dismantled, the base was out of touch with the outside world and the most pressing concern of the "bitter-enders," as they called themselves, was to destroy the place without destroying themselves. Since there was no chance of aerial rescue with the field blown, they had to hit the road in jeeps.

Our jeep was en route to Kweilin when the field blew up, showering the sky with explosives, debris and dust and sending gusts of wind bowling through the valley.

Leave in Jeeps

We were at the edge of Kweilin, where we were to take the road south, our six jeeps forming a little convoy. Each jeep had three men armed with rifles, carbines, Bren guns, tommyguns and pistols. No one knew whether the road south was still free of the enemy.

The bombs let go one after another over a space of ten minutes.

Leader of the demolition detail was 2nd Lt. Hubert F. Mulcahy, Worcester, Mass. He was a driver short and asked me to drive one jeep. We had to hurry for the runway because the explosives' fuse was already burning.

We went along a curving road past big shallow trenches, where the bombs were laid out, stopping every few hundred yards to let men out to set the fuses.

Finally, alone in the jeep, I reached the appointed intersection where another jeep driven by Tech. Sgt. Robert W. Kelsey, Colorado Springs, Colo., was waiting in the darkness.

I waited for his shout that his fuse was attached. I stood in the headlight of the jeep, eyeing my wrist watch for three minutes to make sure everyone else had time to tape their fuses.

At 5:35 p. m. I fired a red parachute flare Mulcahy had given me, a signal for everybody to pull the igniters. Then I drove slowly back over the same route, making sure to pick up everyone I let off.

Destruction of the Kweilin base permits the disclosure that at the Yangtang main field the radio station and fighter control room was in a house built inside a cave. This also was demolished.

The radio crew, one of the last to be flown out, was Lt. Kenneth A. Mangels, Silva, Kas., and Master Sgt. Leonard Dubuc, 265 Colony avenue, Meriden, Conn.

The final burning and demolition work was given to a handful of picked men under Capt. Albert W. Klika, Green Bay, Wis., resident engineer, and Lieut. Norwood Wilson, of Olanta, S. C., base commander.

Meanwhile the communications cave was hollowed out with a tremendous roar and miscellaneous buildings along the airstrip broke into flames.

Recreation Hall Burned

McAllister caught the contagion of destructiveness and suggested, "Let's burn the recreation hall. It's getting late anyway and I've sat through a year of lousy movies there."

We went to the building, piled bamboo chairs and tables to the ceiling, rolled a gasoline drum to the center, unscrewed the plug and retreated. McAllister tossed a flaming rag through the door and ran.

JAPANESE PRESS CLOSER TO RAIL

CITY OF LIUCHOW

NOV 6 1944

CHUNGKING, Nov. 5.—(AP) Japanese pressing their South China offensive converged on the Kwangsi province railway city of Liuchow from three directions today with the nearest column only 45 miles away on the southeast.

The hard-pressed Chinese still held the Japanese back at Kweilin, 95 miles to the northeast, where the enemy had fought into the eastern, western and northern suburbs.

With the complete destruction of the big air base near Kweilin—a Kweilin dispatch said the demolition charges which blew up the runways were set off Oct. 28—that city lost its military importance, but Liuchow was a strategic prize, since it controls all the main railways in Kwangsi province.

The Chinese high command admitted that the Japanese stormed into Yungfu, 30 miles southwest of Kweilin, and sent a bypassing column 12 miles farther south along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway to within 53 miles northeast of Liuchow.

Japanese forces, seizing Laipo, 75 miles northwest of Liuchow, fought on west to within four miles of Hsiujen, 47 miles from the railway city. Savage fighting was raging on this sector, the Chinese said.

Another Japanese column, advancing 16 miles, fought into the suburbs of the railway town of Mosun, 45 miles southeast of Liuchow.

An independent Japanese drive in southern Kwangsi province, developing along the West river, was intercepted after it had overrun the river port town of Kweinsien, 90 miles southeast of Liuchow.

The Japanese here may be trying to push on 100 miles to the former provincial capital of Nanning and link with forces in Indo-China. The Indo-China border is 80 miles west of Nanning.

CHIANG DECLARES ACCORD REACHED BY U.S. AND CHINA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, in his first statement for publication on the withdrawal of Gen. Joseph Stilwell from the China-Burma-India theater, said in a message to the Associated Press that the "prospects of effective and close Chinese-American military, political and economic cooperation are now excellent."

Sent by radio from Chungking and addressed to Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, the Generalissimo's message was received at the New York office of the A.P. yesterday (Sunday). It's text follows:

"Kent Cooper, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

"Telegram dated Nov. 1, received Nov. 3. Thank you for expression of interest in this situation. According to press reports received here President Roosevelt has already given adequate explanation General Stilwell's transfer to which I have nothing to add. Prospects effective and close Chinese American military political and economic cooperation now excellent."

"Chiang Kai-Shek."

The Generalissimo's statement was in response to a direct request for his views on the Stilwell case and other elements of the China situation, following public discussion of the American general's withdrawal and the publication of stories detailing the background of Chinese-American relations.

Chiang's position that President Roosevelt "has already given adequate explanation" of the reasons for General Stilwell's transfer referred to the President's statement that it was due to a clash of personalities between the General and the Generalissimo, and that it had no connection with matters of strategy or policy in China. Mr. Roosevent's comment was made at a White House news conference on Tuesday, Oct. 31.

"Additionally," Mr. Cooper's message to Chiang said, "the President referred to stories written by newspapermen serving as correspondents in the China-Burma-India theater, these stories purporting to set forth conditions and arrangements respecting China's part in the war and referring particularly to your government's attitude as respects the organization and activities of Chinese communists.

"In view of these public statements and stories I ask and earnestly hope that you will give me for publication through the Associated Press your personal statement on the Stilwell case and any comment you deem desirable on other matters under public discussion, since I believe your views carry the deepest public interest everywhere and will serve to present the situation affecting China in the clearest possible light."

The Generalissimo's personal statement did not refer to the Communist situation, which Foreign Minister T. V. Soong, on Nov. 3, told correspondents was an internal problem of China and respected as such by the United States. Soong acknowledged, however, that the matter of cooperation between Chiang's government and the Chinese Communists had been the subject of "friendly discussion" during the negotiations at Chungking in which Donald M. Nelson and Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley represented the United States.

British Army Newspaper Pays Tribute To Stilwell

Calcutta, India, Nov. 5 (AP)—The British army newspaper SEAC today paid high tribute to Gen. Joseph Stilwell, who was recalled to Washington from the China-Burma theater, and said Admiral Louis Mountbatten, head of the Southeast Asia Command, was the "sorriest man" in the territory to see Stilwell leave.

"All admired Stilwell and many loved that caustic, craggy, tough old bird," the newspaper said.

"Stilwell scorned all who scoffed at talk of a road back to Burma over the mountains beyond Ledo, and history will decide the value of that road, for without it the Japanese still would hold Mogaung and Myitkyina."

U.S. TROOPS TAKE KEY LEYTE TOWN

NOV 6 1944

U. S. Forces Smash Southward Toward Besieged Ormoc Sector.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Monday, Nov. 6—(AP) Battle veterans of the American 24th division yesterday captured Pinamopoan, strategic town on Leyte island's northwest coast, and immediately turned southward toward the besieged Ormoc sector, which Yank long-range artillery began shelling.

Advance units of the division were reported in contact with patrols of the mechanized Japanese reinforcements which two days ago moved northward along the Ormoc-Pinamopoan highway, under ceaseless aerial assault.

No large scale fighting has developed, but a headquarters spokesman said this Japanese force was insufficient to require a determined American effort to rout it.

Meanwhile, a communique reported, elements of the 7th division of the 24th corps punched 14 miles northward along the Baybay-Ormoc coastal highway, reaching a point some 12 miles south of the last major Japanese escape port.

As the 24th division moved through Pinamopoan, 155 MM artillery was brought up, and Japanese positions throughout the Ormoc sector came under fire of the "Long Toms" for the first time.

The climactic battle for Leyte appeared imminent, although the spokesman said it would be necessary to await further developments to determine what the Japanese will do.

Bitterly-defended Ponamopoan fell to infantrymen driving by land from Carigara, seven miles eastward along Carigara bay.

Earlier, a coordinated Yank amphibious assault on the village had been beaten back by determined Japanese rearguards, defending this northern terminus of the key Ormoc valley highway.

All precautions are being taken, the headquarters spokesman said, to prepare against any possible Japanese landing attempts on Carigara bay.

The 7th division's advance from Baybay tightened the squeeze on Ormoc, likely locale of the Japanese last-ditch fight for Leyte. Infantrymen, who reached Baybay after slicing across the island from Abuyogn also pushed southward of that coastal town.

Enemy air activities have dwindled, the communique added, and "were light and ineffectual."

Japanese reinforcements during the past three days have been sent northward along the Pinamopoan-Ormoc highway, under constant American aerial strafing. Yanks of the 24th division apparently were headed toward a direct clash with them.

This northward movement of recently landed Nipponese reinforcements, headquarters has announced, was an attempt to break American encirclement of Ormoc. The Japanese also have prepared hasty defense positions in the hills flanking four-mile wide plains which surround this port.

JAP PLANE LOSSES HIT 167 IN 5 DAYS

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Monday, Nov. 6.—(AP) American airmen, repeatedly hitting Japanese airfields in the Central Philippines, destroyed or damaged 167 planes in five days, blunting the edge of enemy plane attacks on Yank ground troops pressing forward on Leyte island.

While veterans of the 24th U. S. Division assault a bitterly resisting enemy manning the roadblocks on the north coast route to Ormoc, their aerial teammates range from Leyte to Cebu and Negros islands, cratering Japanese airfields and smothering air opposition.

(Tokyo radio today reported a force of about 300 planes, apparently from aircraft carriers, raided Manila, Clark field and Legaspi, all on Luzon island north of Leyte. There was no U. S. confirmation of the raid.)

Gen. Douglas MacArthur yesterday reported 57 enemy planes destroyed on the ground, 10 probably destroyed and 10 more shot down in American fighter plane attacks at treetop-level on airdromes on Negros and Cebu islands, west of Leyte.

On Negros are located Alicanee and Bacolod airfields, the latter one of the major enemy air bases in the Central Philippines.

The score announced by MacArthur yesterday brought to 137 the total of Japanese aircraft destroyed, as reported in his communiques of Nov. 1 to 5. In addition, his tabulations listed 10 more probably destroyed and another 20 damaged or destroyed by American carrier-based planes.

Announced American losses during this period totaled 11 aircraft.

8 NAVY FLIERS BAG 26; SAVE TOWED WARSHIPS

ABOARD A UNITED STATES CARRIER, With the Third Fleet, Oct. 30 (Delayed) (AP)—Eight American pilots, who unhesitatingly attacked a flight of sixty to seventy-five Japanese planes, saved two crippled American warships during the early October battle off Formosa and routed the entire enemy formation after shooting down twenty-six planes.

The Americans lost one plane and the pilot of that aircraft, Ensign Robert B. Williams, 20, of Los Angeles, was rescued with a singed eyebrow as his only injury.

Three new aces were made on the sunny October afternoon that the eight Navy pilots, all from this flat-top of the Third Fleet's carrier line force, saw the huge formation of enemy planes speeding toward two American medium-sized warships that were being towed with a light escort from the scene of the Formosa strike.

All types of Japanese planes, both fighters and bombers, flying in layers, made the attack, and our defense fliers were led by one of the new aces, Lieut. Alfred Fecke, 26, of Duxbury, Mass., a former University of New Hampshire football player.

"Four of us headed for the Jap fighters and the other four went below to hit the bombers," said Lieutenant Fecke.

"The American attack was so violent the Japanese became disorganized and some groups scattered. Within two or three minutes our four planes had gone through the enemy fighters and wheeled around to dive on the bombers from the rear."

Besides Lieutenant Fecke the new aces were Ensign R. L. Buchanan of Clementon, N. J., and Ensign Robert Murray of Muncie, Ind.

Liberators Attack Jap Convoy In Bonin Group

Pacific Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 5 (AP)—American Liberator bombers on Thursday attacked nine transports and two destroyers at Chichi Island and one large transport at Haha Island, all in the Bonin group some 600 miles southeast of Tokyo, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Results of the raids were not observed.

Nimitz gave no indication in his communique whether any of the shipping was hit. The presumption remained that bombs were dropped from such an altitude by the Seventh Air Force bombers that observation was impossible.

The presence of so many transports—one large, four medium and four small—in Chichi harbor indicates the Japanese are reinforcing their garrison in the heart of the enemy's only remaining sizable outpost in the far Western Pacific.

That many ships could carry several thousand troops.

Iwo Airstrip Bombed

The transports probably arrived recently in a convoy, since recent communiques have not mentioned any such shipping in the Bonins.

A navy search Liberator and Seventh AAF Liberators bombed the Iwo Island airstrip on Friday, destroying two planes on the ground and probably a third. Six to eight Japanese fighters took the air, but did not attack. Five Liberators were damaged by anti-aircraft fire, however.

Other Liberators started fires and set off explosions in a heavy attack on Koror Island in the northern Palaus Thursday. Accompanied by Thunderbolts, the big four-engined bombers also raided Pagan Island in the Marianas both Thursday and Friday, damaging the airfield.

Rota, northeast of Guam, and Yap, to the southwest, also were attacked.

Pacific Sailors Assured Of Thanksgiving Turkey

940,000 Pounds Moving Out to Ships and Shore Bases

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 5 (AP).—A Thanksgiving turkey dinner for every American naval officer and man in the Pacific area, afloat or ashore, is the ambition of the Navy service force.

About 940,000 pounds of turkey, with all the trimmings, is moving out to fighting and supply ships and to the men at shore establishments in the Marianas, Caroline, Marshall, Gilbert and Hawaiian Islands.

Other arrangements have been made independently to see to it that men with the southwest Pacific naval force under General Douglas MacArthur and those in the Alaskan theater also get their full share of the holiday goodies.

Navy supply officers handling Thanksgiving dinner arrangements have co-ordinated their plans with those of the Army quartermasters. The latter plan to ship 240,000 pounds of turkey and all the trimmings to various central Pacific bases.

Honshu Scouted, Says Toyko

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said that "enemy planes" in unspecified numbers and of unnamed design scouted over the eastern sea coast of the main Japanese home island of Honshu today.

The Japanese guessed that the reconnaissance flights over the home islands came from the Marianas Islands.

Most of the eastern sea coast of Honshu, where Tokyo and most of Japan's heavy industry is located, was covered by the scouting planes, Tokyo said.

["With this raid, it seems that the enemy completed his objective of scouting for the most part," the broadcast said, according to the Office of War Information. The Japanese recently reported a reconnaissance flight over the Tokyo area. In today's reconnaissance the planes were over the Tokaido area for about an hour, according to the Japanese.

[A Japanese broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said that "approximately 300" planes raided Japanese-held Manila, Clark Field and the Legaspi area Sunday. The broadcast said that the planes "appeared to have come from carriers of an enemy task force operating in waters east of Luzon Island."]

Japanese Cabinet Has Meeting With Advisers

San Francisco, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Japanese Cabinet and its recently appointed advisory group held a two and one half hours' "general discussion" meeting today at Premier Kuniaki Koiso's official resident, Tokyo radio reported.

Nine of the 12 advisers, chosen by Koiso late last month to help the Cabinet deal with pressing war problems, attended the meeting, said the broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Koiso opened the session with a speech requesting the "cooperation of the members" for the successful operation of the new advisory system.

Churchill Plane Opens London-Sydney Route

Wellington, N. Z., Nov. 5 (AP)—A plane used by Prime Minister Winston Churchill on important United Nations missions flew into Auckland, N. Z., today, inaugurating British military air service between London and Sydney.

The new route will be flown twice weekly each day between Sydney and Montreal, where it will connect with the North Atlantic daily service to London.

F.D.R. AND HULL ASKED TO PARIS

French Provisional Government Extends Invitation

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—The French Provisional Government invited President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull to visit Paris the State Department disclosed tonight.

The invitation was extended yesterday in a letter to Hull from Henri Hoppenot, French Minister and delegate to this country.

Hoppenot said that the French Government "as an expression of the appreciation" of the French people for American aid in the liberation would "be happy to receive" the President in Paris.

The letter added that the French "would be particularly happy" if Hull could accompany the Chief Executive.

Hoppenot said the French were hopeful of a favorable reply and asked, in that event, when the visit could be made.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of the French Provisional Government, visited President Roosevelt last July. At the time, de Gaulle was head of the French National Committee.

Linked With Big 3 Meeting

There has been speculation on an impending "Big Three" meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. The French invitation raised the possibility that the President might include a Paris visit on a trip to such a conference.

However, unsettled conditions in France and its capital might preclude any visit there.

BRITISH AIR PLAN OPPOSED

19 Latin-American Nations To Offer Own Proposals

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP)—Nineteen Latin-American countries organized tonight in opposition to British Empire proposals for a world air transport authority with economic powers, and announced they would offer a plan of their own.

The position taken by the Latin-American nations is basically in support of the United States draft, but some differences are apparent and cannot be fully known until the text of their proposal has been completed.

Criticized Interim Plan

The Central and South American republics were frankly critical of the United States outline of an interim executive committee of 15 members.

They joined in support of the idea of an international air navigation council which would be "purely of a technical, consultative and advisory nature," much as Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chief of the United States delegation, outlined in an address to the conference Wednesday.

Statement Issued

Luis Machado, a technical adviser of the Cuban delegation, issued this statement on behalf of the 19 republics which participated in the session, held on a day when no other meeting of the conference was scheduled:

"The Latin-American republics unanimously oppose the establishment of an international air transport authority which would infringe upon their sovereign rights.

"The Latin-American republics, however, are prepared to cooperate in the creation of an interim air navigation council whose sole function shall be purely of a technical, consultative and advisory nature.

"The Latin-American republics are firmly opposed to the proposed executive committee of 15 members permanently chosen primarily by the major powers with double voting powers. This would constitute a discrimination against the smaller nations, a procedure contrary to international precedent.

Submitting Alternate Plan

"The Latin-American republics are jointly submitting an alternative proposal for the establishment of an interim council on aerial navigation, on which every nation shall have its seat and equal voting power."

The executive council to which the statement referred was outlined by Mr. Berle as an interim body of 15 members, comprising two each from the United States, the British empire and Russia, one each from Brazil, China and France, and six chosen from countries not otherwise represented. A similar council would be established under the permanent authority plan to sit constantly and be responsible to the assembly, on which each nation would be represented.

Brazil In Opposition

It is understood that Brazil, despite having an assured seat on the council, was one of the leaders of opposition to it, feeling that her interests would be served better through a plan which would give all of her sister republics seats.

The statement's reference to infringement upon "sovereign rights" may mean lack of complete satisfaction with the United States' proposal for a general exchange of the right to make operational or non-commercial stops in the course of scheduled flights pursuant to agreements between other countries. Panama has stated, for example, that it wants to deal on a recripocal basis.

Meeting Harmonious

The meeting was described as enthusiastic and completely harmonious. The countries represented, most of them by more than one delegate, were Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvadore, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezula.

The International Civil Aviation Conference, which began November 1, has virtually completed its organization work, and will be ready tomorrow to begin detailed discussions in numerous subcommittees established to handle specific phases of the over-all problem.

RUSSIA EXCLUDED FROM U.S. AIR PLAN

CHICAGO, Nov. 5 — The United States, which has taken the position that seats in the executive council of a proposed world air authority should be available to Russia if she wants them, has nonetheless deleted the Soviet from her program for desirable air routes.

This was shown today in a comparison of the 20 routes submitted to the International Civil Aviation conference with the corresponding list of routes made public by the Civil Aeronautics board last June as a world pattern of 140,000 miles of American flag skyways.

The submission of the route pattern to the conference committee dealing with them followed presentation of a draft convention or proposed multilateral treaty to the committee in that field in which provision was made for two seats for Russia, a representation equal to that of either the entire British empire or the United States.

Along with the removal of points in Russia from its air transport pattern deemed desirable for American operation, the revised draft showed the addition of stops in Spain, the Netherlands and Romania.

Pravda Says U. S. Press, Radio Okay Air Stand

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP)—The official Communist newspaper Pravda declared today that press and radio comment in the United States showed an understanding and approval of the Soviet Union's refusal to participate in the international civil aviation conference at Chicago attended by three powers the Russians consider unfriendly—Spain, Portugal and Switzerland.

Pravda cited a statement by one American radio commentator that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, of Spain, openly was preaching war against Russia in defense of Fascism.

Cites Argentina Stand

The newspaper said "some American commentators in approving the position of the U. S. S. R. pointed out that similar motives induced the United States not to send an invitation to Argentina."

Pravda declared the Washington correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph said that Washington circles "understand the charges against Spain, but not against Portugal and such a 'democratic country like Switzerland'."

"The correspondent," the Pravda article continued, "ought to recall the circumstances wherein Finland always appeared in the role of 'an old democratic country,' but this did not prevent her from becoming one of Hitler's most eager satellites.

"Likewise, a democratic reputation did not prevent Switzerland from conducting a pro-Fascist and hostile policy against the Soviet Union for many years.

"This also is why the Soviet Government refused to accept the Swiss Government's offer to resume diplomatic and other relations. The Soviet Union judges the positions assumed by countries first of all by their deeds and not by words."

U. S. May Call Conferences on Foreign Trade

Seek Formation of Board as Front for America's International Commerce

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—More international commercial conferences and establishment of a policy-making United States Board of Trade are being discussed by Commerce Department officials.

The idea is to clear the way, step by step, for a better commercial understanding among nations and to focus all angles of this country's international commerce in one agency.

Three particular international sessions under discussion would:

Draft reductions in tariff barriers throughout the world.

Discuss commodity agreements and establish some kind of international commodity organization to deal with surpluses and promote new industrial uses of such primary products as cotton, wheat, rubber, petroleum, tin and copper.

Discuss cartel problems, the most urgent question being elimination of restrictive practices to which our Justice Department has objected in past cartel agreements.

The suggested international conference on cartels, officials believe, is basic to any post-war pronouncement of United States' policy regarding participation by American private companies in international agreements.

Lacking such a clear-cut policy, some officials fear many of our biggest companies might be enticed by proposals being made to them privately from the British Empire, to shift their main operations to British dominions.

Focal point of national commercial planning, in the program under consideration, would be a group similar to the British Board of Trade, which could serve as a solid front for American business in international trading.

Such a board, it is suggested, should include the Secretaries of Commerce, Treasury, Agriculture, State, the Attorney General and others officials whose agencies now deal with world trade problems.

4 DAYS IN SEA, SAILOR SAVED

Survivor Of Destroyer Sunk Off Samar Tells Story

San Francisco, Nov. 5 (AP)—Quartermaster Third Class Neil Dethless, 20, of Olympia, Wash., survived the naval battle of Samar, after floating in the water four days when his destroyer was sunk, Reg Harris, Australian correspondent, reported today from the Philippines in a press broadcast to three Australian papers.

Delirious and weak, Dethless finally reached the Samar coast, the last of a group of crewmen who started to swim for the island, Harris said in a dispatch to the Sydney Daily Telegraph, the Brisbane Courier-Mail and the Melbourne Sun-Pictorial.

Bracketed By Big Guns

Dethless was aboard a destroyer in a United States fleet unit which fought a Japanese force of four battleships, nine cruisers and 12 destroyers.

30. 24— 20185

"The Japs o pened fire from 15 miles range," Dethless was quoted as saying, "and kept up a terrific barrage as they closed in. Our force was straddled by 16, 14 and 8-inch shells as we fought back.

"My ship (unidentified) was hit first under the bridge, with a lot of casualties. This hit threw our bridge steering gear out of order, and we had to steer by the auxiliary at the stern. Another sashed our port screws, reducing our speed to 16 knots.

Hit In Magazine, Sets Fire

"The third got our magazine and set the ship afire, but we still continued to fight back, with the destroyer a shambles.

"We sustained seven direct hits before we were ordered to abandon ship. Most of our life boats and rafts had been smashed.

"We jumped overboard and swam like hell, to get away from the burning derelict, which the Japs continued to shell while we were in the water.

"I jumped overboard at noon on the 25th and woke up on the beach at noon the 29th. I had been in the water four days."

On Raft At First Seen

At first, Dethless said, he was on a raft with other crewmen, but left it while trying to rescue another sailor.

"During the second day," he continued, "thirty of us in the water together sighted Samar and started to swim for it. It seemed about 16 miles away.

"In the darkness that night we got separated, and at dawn there was only one man with me. Later I lost him too."

Dethless related that Filipino natives found him and took him to the home of a Filipino woman whose husband, now dead, had been an American navy lieutenant and later an American army captain.

A guerrilla leader took him to the Americans on Leyte.

2d Hospital for War Prisoners

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The second general hospital in the United States to be designated for exclusive care of wounded German prisoners of war has been stablishd at Camp Forrest, Tnn., the War Department announced today. The first was Glennon General Hospital at Okmulgee, Okla., which has been in operation for several months.

TOLEDO, DETROIT WORKERS ORDERED TO RETURN TO JOBS

Independent Union Leaders Call on Several Thousand to Resume Work.

52 PLANTS AFFECTED

Action Follows All-Night Parley After Army Takes Over Eight Concerns.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 5—(AP) Mechanics Educational Society of America officials today ordered all idle members of the independent union to return to their jobs at war plants in Detroit and Toledo.

In a formal statement, George White, MESA national president and Matthew Smith, national secretary, urged the 4,500 idle unionists in Toledo and the 7,000 to 10,000 striking workers in Detroit to return to work at starting time of their shirts Monday.

Follows All-Night Meeting

The statement was issued early today after an all-night meeting in which Smith and Earl Streeter, local MESA secretary, conferred with Maj. Daniel L. Bolin, Army labor advisor here.

"Settlemen of the Toledo strike has been arranged," the statement, addressed to all MESA members, said, "and as the settlement is considered adequate by your national officers we therefore call on all members on strike in Toledo and Detroit to return to their jobs Monday at starting time of their regular shifts."

Smith called on fellow unionists to "restore full production as soon as possible."

There was no indication of the terms of the settlement, which began Oct. 24 in the Electric Auto-Lite Co. plant and led to army seizure of eight Toledo concerns yesterday.

Ordered to Jobs Today

Col. Philip R. Faymonville, who directed the Army seizures, ordered all employes, regardless of their union affiliations, to report on regular shifts Monday.

"The full resources of the government will be directed against those (employes) who fail to return," Colonel Faymonville stated.

Fifty-two plants in the Detroit and Toledo area were affected by the strike called in sympathy with 350 Auto-Lite workers who protested discharge of six fellow unionists. A company spokesman said the six MESA members were dismissed from a department in which the CIO-United Automobile Workers held bargaining rights, under a maintenance of membership clause in the CIO-UAW contract.

SOVIET ORGAN CITES 'PHONY' PLOT RUMOR

Izvestia Says GOP May Stage Fake Dewey Assassination Attempt

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP)—Izvestia, Soviet Government newspaper, in an article headlined: "The election of President Roosevelt is guaranteed," said today there was a rumor that Republican interests were plotting a fake assassination attempt against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to sway American voters.

[Governor Dewey, reached in Albany, had no comment to make on the Russian newspaper's story. President Roosevelt was in seclusion at his Hdye Park home.]

"One should not forget that history includes a number of such insolent, crude provocations, beginning with a faked document ascribed to Communists, which appear on the eve of parliamentary election in some democratic countries up to the burning of the Reichstag in Germany," said Izvestia.

[An Associated Press article on Russian newspapers in 1932, described Izvestia as "the official daily of the Soviet Government," as distinguished from Pravda, "the official organ of the Communist party." The article said Pravda led all other Russian newspapers in circulation with 2,200,000 while Izvestia was second with 2,000,000 circulation.

Again in 1937 and in 1942, dispatches from Moscow termed Izvestia, the "organ of the Soviet Government, as distinguished from the party prints.]

Says Result Is Sure

In an unsigned article of two columns long at the top of its third page, the paper declared "never before in the history of the United States have observers on the eve of a Presidential election been so sure of the results as they are now because so clear is the composition of forces supporting each of the two candidates. . . . The chances of the second candidate, Dewey, have been melting before one's eyes."

Izvestia, said Republican hopes were dashed when preliminary data indicated the number of voters this year would at least equal the 50,000,000 in 1940.

"At the beginning of the campaign the Republicans believed 30,000,000 would be cast," the paper reported.

GOP Split Held Growing

"Because of the unfavorable course of the election campaign the split increased in the Republican party" it added, citing the pro-Roosevelt stand of Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.).

"Dewey attempted to divide himself from defeatist, isolationist conceptions and the most compromised pro-Fascist elements such as Hamilton Fish and Gerald K. Smith," the paper said, "but still the pro-Fascist, pro-German ties of those who formed the core of the Republican staff who financed Dewey's election campaign are well known.

"The Hearst newspapers and the publications of McCormick, Patterson and Gannett carried on a campaign for Dewey and simultaneously this campaign was converted into a defeatest, even a pro-Hitlerite agitation. The support of these newspapers betrayed Dewey. Obviously his shattered position induced Dewey to resort to the old method of uttermost reaction—'scare people with the Communist danger.'

"This hopeless attempt by the Republican party is made to cover with scarecrow rags their own political nakedness and lack of a positive program to attract voters. The investment of millions of dollars by Republican headquarters will not bring any political or economic interest.

"In circles of the Republican bosses a feeling of alarm reigns. They understand failure is imminent. Under these circumstances it is no wonder, according to rumors circulating among foreign correspondents, that the Republicans in despair might resort to a big adventure.

"According to these rumors a fake 'plot' against Dewey is being prepared by the Republican party with responsibility for the plot to be fixed on American Communists. The reason for this provocation is clear—to make millions of voters jump in a different direction.

"It has been reported this fake plot will be realized at the very last moment before election with the purpose of leaving no time for denial or investigation."

FRENCH NEWSPAPER FAVORS FDR ELECTION

PARIS, Nov. 5.—(AP) France's leading conservative newspaper "Figaro" said today it favored the election of President Roosevelt and gave as its reason its fear that isolation otherwise might creep back into American policy.

It was the first important French daily to express an opinion although the French press has given the campaign much attention.

BRITISH SEE F.D.R. FAVORITE

Correspondents In U. S. Comment On Campaign

London, Monday, Nov. 6 (AP)—Dispatches from British correspondents in the United States said this morning that President Roosevelt was a favorite to win reelection.

They quoted all kinds of polls and other barometers of public opinion in America, and a few of the correspondents tossed in their own private predictions.

"Odds now are 3-1 on Roosevelt," read a headline in the London News Chronicle.

"F. D. R. Will Win, Say 56 Experts," was the London Daily Mail's caption on a full-column story.

Gripped Imagination

The American Presidential campaign has gripped the imagination of the average Englishman more than ever before.

The British press generally has refrained from taking sides and there has been only sparse editorial comment. Newspapers seemed to be adopting a cautious policy to avoid any accusation of interference.

The Yorkshire Post said editorially this morning, however, "Most of us will be glad when this long hard-hitting contest is over and the American President, whether his name be Roosevelt or Dewey, is free from its distractions and can give his mind to the supreme tasks that face statesmanship."

Comment By Post

"Fortunately," said the Post, "both candidates have made it clear from the start that they advocate American participation in schemes for the establishment of a sound system of world security. This in itself is a reassuring demonstration of the international trend of American opinion.

". . . One of the greatest points of weakness in Mr. Dewey's platform has been the isolationist record of the Republican party. . . . Roosevelt's conduct of the war has not "been seriously assailed and there will be a strong body of opinion among the civilian population as well as among the service men and women in favor of keeping the war leader in office until victory is won. . . ."

Correspondents' Opinions

The London Daily Express' C. V. R. Thompson, cabled the "professional 'pollsters' have begged off this time. I don't blame them: There are too many 'ifs.' If I were asked who I thought would win—and I am asked by Americans hundreds of times a day—I would say it is F. D. R. again. But I am not at all sure that I would lay the current odds of 12 shillings to win four to back my hunch."

The London Daily Mail correspondent, Don Iddon, commenting on Roosevelt's appearance in Boston and Dewey's Madison Square Garden rally, said:

"I listened to both speeches, and my own view is that the President's was the more effective—a slick compound of all-out electioneering emotionalism and jingoism tempered by passages which had the mark of statesmanship.

"Dewey, while vigorous and penetrating, lacked the actor's skill of capturing the heart of his audience."

BOTH CANDIDATES EXPECTED TO URGE TURNOUT AT POLLS

President Returns to Hyde Park to Vote; Dewey to Speak from Albany.

CLOSE RACE SEEN

Polls Leave Outcome in Question with Soldier Vote Likely to Decide It.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey, after a hard-punching campaign finish, settled back yesterday to await the verdict in what may prove the closest election since the 1916 Wilson-Hughes contest.

As the slam-bang campaign came to a close, the rival party chairman put forward the usual pre-election claims of sweeping victory. Republican Herbert Brownell, Jr., said he wouldn't concede a single state outside the Solid South. Democrat Robert E. Hannegan said Dewey would carry fewer states (10) than Wendell Willkie did in 1940.

But the poll takers frankly were throwing up their hands. It was too close, most of them agreed, to make any flat predictions. And most agreed, too, that the Republicans had good reasons for higher hopes at this stage than in any election year since 1928.

Roosevelt at Hyde Park

President Roosevelt went to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home after winding up his campaign before a roaring crowd in Boston's Fenway Park Saturday night. His cheering party members heard him accuse the Republicans of working "both sides of the street" and declare that "never before in my lifetime has a campaign been filled with such misrepresentation, distortion and falsehood."

Today, the President plans to visit with his Hudson Valley neighbors. He will address his supporters by radio tonight and remain at Hyde Park to cast his vote tomorrow.

Governor Dewey, back in Albany, also will make a radio speech tonight. He formally ended his campaign Saturday night in New York's Madison Square Garden where he declared that President Roosevelt's "incompetence" is prolonging the war. The Governor votes in New York City and will go there tomorrow.

One factor troubling the poll takers in this first wartime election since 1864 is the soldier vote. By law, no poll could be made of political views of those in the armed services and state officials estimate 3,462,000 service men and women will vote.

Their votes could be decisive in a dozen or more key states. Conceivably they could result, if the race is close, in delaying final determination of the presidential winner for days, or even weeks. Eleven states, with 123 electoral votes, will not count all their military ballots on election night.

Pennsylvania, whose 35 electoral votes may determine the election in the opinion of some forecasters, will not count its soldier vote until Nov. 22. California, with 25 electoral votes, counts service ballots Nov. 24. The other states with delayed counts are Colorado, Florida, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Utah and Washington. Altogether, these states expect a total of 824,500 service votes.

44 Million to Vote

Along with a President and Vice President, the 44,000,000 or more citizens expected to ballot tomorrow will be choosing 31 governors, 36 senators—three to fill out unexpired terms—and 432 members of the house of representatives. Maine elected a Republican governor and three Republican House members in September.

With Senate Democrats having a holdover membership of 36, Republicans are claiming only a fighting chance to win control of that body. Both sides are claiming they will control the House, but privately some concede that its political complexion probably will turn on the outcome of the presidential race.

All the figuring about the outcome of the presidential race usually started with the assumption that President Roosevelt will get the electoral votes of the "Solid South."

Electors May Bolt

In Mississippi, however, where the fourth term has been a hot issue, the voters will have opportunity to cast ballots for three electors listed on one Democratic slate who have declared that if elected they will vote in the Electoral College for Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

As the campaign wound-up, both sides appeared to be agreed that the major issues are which party gives greatest assurance of a speedy victory, a lasting peace, and productive employment in the postwar years.

So far as the Democrats are concerned, the argument is that there should be no change of leaders in the midst of war, or for the peace negotiations after the war. They contend that Dewey has not had sufficient experience in dealing with national and international affairs. And they say that plans already are well-advanced for meeting postwar economic problems.

The Republican argument runs that the administration is "old, tired and quarrelsome," that Dewey could achieve those aims by getting along better with Congress than President Roosevelt has, that the President, so far as the war and peace are concerned, has bungled things by keeping too much in his own hands; that the Democrats did not produce prosperity in their peacetime years.

A lot of hard words, name-calling and a great deal of stumping went into the development of those arguments. Dewey traveled 20,000 miles in a coast-to-coast swing. Gov. John W. Bricker, his running mate, also made a cros country tour as did Senator Harry S. Truman, the No. 2 man on the Democratic ticket. President Roosevelt made three campaign trips—to New York, to Philadelphia and Chicago, and finally to Boston.

President to Visit Nearby Towns Today

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP) President Roosevelt, home to cast his fourth-term ballot, laid campaigning aside today to spend a quiet Sunday at his Hyde Park estate.

The President came to the Hudson Valley overnight from Boston where he delivered his climactic campaign speech to a shouting, cheering throng in Fenway Park Saturday night.

In that speech—his last major address—he poked fun at the Republican campaign phrase, "it's time for a change," and referred to his opposition as a political party working "both sides of the street" in its effort to capture the presidency.

Although there was no public campaigning in store for today, the Chief Executive will make his traditional trip through the Hudson Valley tomorrow in an election-eve round of speaking.

Many of the political advisors and party officials who accompanied him to Boston left the train upon its arrival here and, for the most part, only White House aides remained with the Chief Executive over the week-end.

To Visit Towns

As he has done in all campaigns, the President tomorrow will visit such nearby neighborhood communities as Beacon, Kingston and Newburgh, the latter in the congressional district of Representative Fish (R-NY), who has been a frequent target of presidential jibes in past campaigns.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to make brief talks in the three communities before he reaches Poughkeepsie, where he is scheduled for a speech from the post office at 5:30 p. m. His last campaign appearance will be on a nation-wide radio hookup on the four major networks from 10 to 11 p. m. (EWT) tomorrow night. The Democratic National committee, sponsoring the program, said the President would make a brief address during the hour-long program.

Most of his Monday talks are expected to be pleas for a big vote. He told his Boston audience Saturday he is anxious to win reelection—although he entered the race reluctantly—because "never before in my lifetime has a campaign been filled with such misrepresentation, distortion and falsehood.

"Never before since 1928," he said, "have there been so many attempts to stimulate in America racial and religious intolerance."

Speaking in the same city which four years ago heard him say "your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars," the President declared last night this country chose war because it had no other choice.

We got into the war, he said, because we were attacked and the Axis declared war on us.

"I am sure," he declared, "that any real American would have chosen as this government did, to fight when our own soil was made the object of a sneak attack. As for myself, under the same circumstances, I would choose to do the same thing—again and again and again.

Dewey Prepares Final Broadcast

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey composed the final broadcast of his presidential campaign tonight after disclosing his voice almost failed him during the final phase of his drive for votes.

Dewey remarked during an impromptu postscript to his Madison Square Garden broadcast in New York city last night that he had "almost lost" his voice in Pennsylvania, despite the careful spacing of his speeches.

He referred to one of the most strenuous days of his campaign — last Thursday—which began with a half hour talk in Baltimore, Md., and continued with platform speeches in York, Sunbury and Harrisburg, Pa., half-hour armory addresses in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton, Pa.

Reporters accompanying the Republican nominee thought they detected a crack or two in his voice at Wilkes-Barre, but they were assured by Dewey's staff at the time that it resulted from a defective amplifying system.

Then, after an 18 mile drive to Scranton through damp night air, he seemed in his usual voice. Last night's disclosure that he nearly suffered the same strain that reduced the late Wendell Willkie's voice to a hoarse whisper toward the end of the 1940 campaign was made during a brief "thank you" speech to the Madison Square Garden crowd.

Plans 15-Minute Talk

Tomorrow night's closing appeal will be a 15 minute talk over all four major networks, starting at 11 p. m., (EWT) from the Executive Mansion. Although no formal subject was announced, it was indicated the governor would urge all registered voters to exercise their franchise.

Dewey's final campaign plea will follow a re-broadcast, over the Mutual Network at 9:30 p. m., of last night's Madison Square Garden speech. In this broadcast, delivered before an applauding crowd that overflowed from the arena into the streets, Dewey declared President Roosevelt's "own confused incompetence" was prolonging the war in Europe.

"Once rid of capricious, personal government," he declared, "we shall reach Berlin and Tokyo quicker—with less cost."

The nominee plans to return Tuesday morning to New York city, where he and Mrs. Dewey will cast their votes.

TUESDAY VOTE MEANS UPSETS

Results May Vary U. S. Political Complexion 8 Ways

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—Voters marking their ballots Tuesday have a choice of eight sharply varying political complexions in determining the makeup of the United States Government.

Thirty-five seats are to be filled in the Senate and 432 in the House. Maine elected three Republican House members in September. The men whose political fortunes are at stake include the chairmen and influential members of several major Senate committees, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, and all the leaders together with the rank and file of the House of Representatives.

Only the most optimisitic Republicans think there is more than a fighting chance of taking control of the Senate, whose membership now includes 58 Democrats, 37 Republicans and one Progressive. The Republicans would have to win 25 of the 35 contests to gain a clear majority in that body, and the Democrats have a big ace in the hole—seven Senators running for reelection from the South.

Closer Margin In House

The margin between the parties is very much closer in the House, however, and there the ballot battle is on in dead earnest. A numerical majority is 218, and today the Democrats hold the hairline lead of 214 to the Republicans' 212, with five vacancies and four minor party members.

The Democrats count on President Roosevelt returning to office, bringing with him a working majority of the House and possibly a more dependable margin of votes in the Senate.

The Republicans, however, point to their gains two years ago in both branches as indicative of a trend they say won't be stopped short of full Congressional control.

Opposition Is Slight

Senator George (D., Ga.), chairman of the Finance Committee and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, has no Republican opponent, while several other Southern Democratic Senators, among them Hill, of Alabama; Pepper, of Florida, and Overton, of Louisiana, encounter only nominal opposition.

Bitter contests, however, confront other Democrats such as Senators Wagner, of New York, chairman of the Banking Committee; Lucas, of Illinois; Gillette, of Iowa, and Thomas, of Oklahoma.

The Republican Senators up for reelection are not without heated contests, too, such as those faced by John Danaher in Connecticut, Gerald Nye in North Dakota and Alexander Wiley in Wisconsin.

Some of the most colorful figures in both chambers are out of the picture this election, either through decisions not to run, or by defeat in the primaries.

In the first category are: Representative Dies (D., Texas), chairman of the Committee Investigating Un-American Activities; Senator Reynolds (D., N. C.), chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, and Senator Bone (D., Wash.), who was appointed a Federal circuit judge.

Primary election defeats eliminated Senator E. D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith (D., S. C.), Agriculture Committee chairman; Senator Clark (D., Mo.), a parliamentary expert; Senator Hattie Caraway (D., Ark.), only woman members of the Senate, and Senator Holman (R., Ore.).

ELECTION RETURNS TO BE SENT TO TROOPS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP) The New York office of the OWI announced today that two of its most powerful East coast transmitters would be turned over to the armed forces radio service to broadcast election returns to Europe for four hours starting at 9 p. m., (EWT) Tuesday.

All regular programs will be cancelled during the four-hour period.

The returns, intended for the peoples of Europe and the troops overseas, will be broadcast in English, French and German.

The special program will be picked up, the announcement said, by the British Broadcasting station; ABSIE, the American Broadcasting System in Europe, and by radio Algiers.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY OF WOMEN CITED

Campaign Shows Awareness Of Size Of Feminine Vote

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—Political parties and candidates hope to reap a bumber harvest of votes as a result of months of cultivating women's participation in campaigns.

Aware of the statistical possibility that more than 60 per cent. of wartime ballots will be marked by feminine hands, campaign strategists have encouraged political activity by prominent women, representative organizations, and every woman worker to the precinct level.

Party leaders know that if you sell a woman a cause, she'll work ardently and unceasingly to put it across. What's more, she's a better drudge than a man, especially for tasks like house-to-house campaigning.

Work To Get Out Vote

Women largely are responsible for rolling up today's record registration at the polls. Campaigners count on these same women to get out the largest vote ever on Tuesday.

Each party has adopted political sub-groups sparked by zealous women, especially groups garnering membership beyond party lines, such as the Service Wives' Organization for Roosevelt headed by Mrs. John G. Palfrey, Jr., granddaughter of Republican President Theodore Roosevelt.

Both major parties have built widespread systems of women's speakers' bureaus.

Hurja, of 'Pathfinder,' Says Dewey, 364 to 167

Was Wrong on Willkie but Right on Five Polls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Emil Hurja, associate publisher of "Pathfinder" magazine, today predicted the election of Governor Thomas E. Dewey by an electoral vote of 364 to 167.

Mr. Hurja, formerly an analyst with the Democratic National Committee but identified with Republican political activity this year, based his forecast on polls in twenty-eight counties in fifteen states which he said had voted for the winner in all Presidential elections since 1900.

On the basis of what he reported as an increase of 7.1 per cent in the Republican showing in these polls, Mr. Hurja predicted a popular vote of 52 per cent for Mr. Dewey. This, with a 50,000,000 vote, he said, would constitute a 2,000,000 majority, so divided among the states as to give a much wider electoral majority.

Mr. Hurja said his forecasting record was: correct—1932, 1936 Presidential, 1934, 1938, 1942 Congressional; wrong—1940 Presidential.

Fortune Poll Forecasts Roosevelt By 53.6%

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Fortune Survey of Public Opinion said today its final poll of the nation's civilian population showed President Roosevelt leading Gov. Thomas E. Dewey Republican Presidential candidate, by 53.6 per cent. to 46.4 per cent.

There were no further reports of changes in other national polls.

Willkie Policy Support

Boston, Nov. 5 (AP)—"Our first responsibility is to reestablish understanding and contentment at home so we can be organized to assume a position of world leadership, Walter E. Edge, Republican Governor of New Jersey, asserted tonight.

Governor Edge, Ambassador to France from 1929 through 1933, spoke over the radio along with Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Senators Sinclair Weeks, of Massachusetts, and Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, in a Republican roundup.

The New Jersey Governor, speaking from Atlantic City, said the Republican party would support the late Wendell Willkie's policy "of asserting world leadership and taking an aggressive stand."

Terms Nation Divided

"The present Administration's domestic policy divides America," he declared.

"Under Thomas E. Dewey we will have a united America with a forward vision rather than a quarrelsome, worn out Administration that has divided the country during the past 12 years.

"With Dewey and Bricker we will have unanimity of thought and action," Governor Edge declared.

"Governor Dewey is pledged to cooperate with the United Nations and to use force, if necessary, to maintain future peace," he added.

Willkie's Ideas Cited

Governor Saltonstall, speaking from this city said that "only by carrying on the late Wendell Willkie's policy of active participation in an international organization for lasting peace can we be hopeful that our country will be secure in a world at peace."

Governor Baldwin, speaking from Hartford, Conn., declared that "the American system of free enterprise has proved its worth during the war and the Republicans, under the leadership of Dewey and Bricker, will go forward with this system."

Senator Austin, speaking from Burlington, Vt., said "Governor Dewey advocates military sanctions to insure future peace and Republicans favor the plans evolved at the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference."

Judd Says F. D. R. Saw Jap Danger, Did Not Drive It Home

Minneapolis, Nov. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt saw the danger of the Japanese situation in 1937 when he made his quarantine speech in Chicago but "would not risk his political career to drive it home to the people," Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) asserted in a radio address tonight.

The former medical missionary to China spoke on a national hookup in support of the candidacy of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for President.

No one, Judd said, could have better described conditions than the President when he said in October, 1937, that "lawlessness in international relations was reaching epidemic proportions and that we had but two alternatives:

"Either to stand together with like-minded, peace-loving peoples and quarantine these lawless elements, or to allow them to spread and let each nation try to quarantine itself with its own armaments."

Was Called Alarmist

Judd said the President was right, but what he said was politically unpopular.

"People of all parties called him an alarmist. And instead of repeating his warnings again and again while Japan was still relatively unprepared, he did not speak plainly again until three and one half years later—in March of 1941, after Congress already had passed the Lend-Lease Act and the die was cast.

"Some statesmen didn't see. That was bad enough. But Mr. Roosevelt did see. However, because what he saw was unpopular, he would not risk his political career to drive it home to the people."

Judd said that if the President had told the people in 1937 they faced one of the greatest crises in history "he would have risked and perhaps lost his political career, but he might have saved his country."

Finds Distrust Of Roosevelt

Asserting there is a "profound distrust of Mr. Roosevelt in Congress, in both parties," Judd said he believed Dewey would stand a "far better chance" of negotiating "with our Allies a sound and workable peace."

Judd said Dewey was not his first choice for the Republican nomination, but that he had made it his business to find out about the candidate and that his study had convinced him that winning the war, getting the nation's economy on a sound basis after the war, and working out the peace "can be accomplished better and more surely under Mr. Dewey's leadership than under any other leadership that is available to us in this election."

ICKES LASHES OUT AT DEWEY

Interior Secretary Says U. S. Can't Believe Promises

Milwaukee, Nov. 5 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes declared tonight that the American people "have no reason to believe in Governor Dewey's professions of devotion to an effective international organization."

In an address prepared for delivery before a meeting of the United Labor Committee of Wisconsin, Secretary Ickes charged that Governor Dewey "is now engaged in an obvious attempt to sabotage the very prospect of that kind of a peace."

Recalls Harding Act

"President Harding waited until he was safely elected before tearing up and throwing it into the faces of the people his solemn pledge to bring about the establishment of a league of nations," Ickes said. "This year the cynical Deweyites do not even wait for election day. This time five days before the election, instead of a month after, the Republicans have decided against endowing the league for an enduring peace with adequate police power. The Republican National Committee—the power behind Dewey—on Friday paid for a full-page advertisement over the signature of Robert Moses, of New York, which attacked the President's proposal for United States participation in world organization for lasting peace."

Mentions Senate Candidates

Ickes charged that Governor Dewey "is also making it impossible for him to carry out his pledge for an effective peace by his support of candidates for the Senate who are bitterly opposed to any sort of international understanding."

"The time is ripe," Ickes declared, "to write, once and for all, the political epitaph of Thomas E. Dewey, the man who talks out of both sides of his mouth on the most vital issue of the day—a world organization for an enduring peace."

Took Hillman Cash, Charge

Ickes charged that Governor Dewey, while a candidate for district attorney in New York, accepted a $5,000-campaign contribution from Sidney Hillman, who as chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, is supporting President Roosevelt.

"For Mr. Hillman to refuse to kick in to Mr. Dewey at this time, seems to the hither-and-yon to be little short of subversive," Ickes said.

Ickes said that the conviction of Earl Browder, Communist leader, on a charge of fraudulently obtaining a passport was obtained by the Roosevelt Administration. But, Ickes added, "it's also worth remembering that he was pardoned upon the urgent recommendation of two Republicans. . . . These two Republicans are George Wharton Pepper, a former president of the American Bar Association and a former Senator from Pennsylvania, and the late Wendell Willkie."

Television Campaign Speech

New York, Nov. 5 (AP)—A television campaign address tonight by Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) was described by his headquarters as probably the first ever made by a political candidate through that medium.

A U.S. NINTH AIRFORCE MARAUDER ASE IN FRANCE, NOV. 4-(DELAYED)--(AP)-"DON'T WORRY--I'LL BRING HER IN ALL RIGHT," LT. RUFUS WILSON, A 23-YEAR-OLD MARAUDER PILOT, RADIOED THE CONTROL TOWER AS HE CIRCLED THIS FIELD WITH A FULL CREW AND BOMBLOAD BUT NO NOSE WHEEL.

OFFICERS IN THE TOWER SMILED GRIMLY AT THE COCKINESS OF THE YOUNG PILOT WHOSE HOME IS AT 1300 WEST 14TH AVENUE, CORSICANA, TEXAS. THEY KNEW PERHAPS BETTER THAN HE THAT LANDING A B-26 MEDIUM BOMBER WITHOUT A NOSE WHEEL IS A TOUGH JOB.

BUT GROUP COMMANDER COL. WILSON R. WOOD OF CHICO, TEXAS, SHARED THE CONFIDENCE OF THE YOUNG PILOT RETURNING FROM HIS ELEVENTH MISSION. THE ENTIRE GROUP HAD BROUGHT BACK THEIR BOMB LOADS BECAUSE THE TARGET WAS TOO CLOSE TO AMERICAN LINES IN WESTERN GERMANY AND THERE WAS AN OVERCAST.

AS WILSON CIRCLED THE FIELD, WOOD RADIOED INSTRUCTIONS APPROVING THE DECISION OF THE OTHER CREWMEN TO STAY WITH THE SHIP AND SUGGESTING THAT THE BOMBS BE KEPT ABOARD TO HOLD THE TAIL DOWN.

EVERYBODY ON THE GROUND CROSSED HIS FINGERS AS WILSON, WHO WEIGHS ONLY 118 POUNDS DRIPPING WET, BROUGHT THE 35,000 POUND AIRPLANE DOWN ON ITS TWO MAIN WHEELS.

FOR TWO-THIRDS OF THE LENGTH OF THE RUNWAY WILSON KEPT BOTH THE NOSE AND THE TAIL OFF THE GROUND. THEN THE TAIL, EXTRA HEAVY BECAUSE OF THE CREWMEN CROWDED FAR BACK AND THE BOMB BAY CONTAINING 2,800 POUND OF BOMBS, BEGAN DRAGGING AMID A SHOWER OF SPARKS.

UNABLE TO APPLY HIS BRAKES BECAUSE OF THE DANGER OF NOSING THE PLANE OVER, WILSON SENT THE SCREECHING MARAUDER OFF THE END OF THE RUNWAY. THE NOSE DIPPED SHARPLY TO THE GROUND AND THE PROPELLERS BIT INTO THE TURF. THE PLANE GROUND ON FOR ANOTHER 50 YARDS BEFORE HALTING, BUT IT DIDN'T GO OVER.

WITH THE 24TH INFANTRY DIVISION NEAR CARIGARA, LEYTE, NOV.5 (AP)-THIS BATTLE-TESTED DIVISION, WHICH DROVE THE JAPANESE OUT OF LEYTE VALLEY IN TWO WEEKS OF THE BLOODIEST TYPE OF FIGHTING, MOVED ON THE DOUBLE TODAY TOWARD THE NORTH END OF ORMOC VALLEY FOR YET ANOTHER CRUCIAL ENGAGEMENT.

THE 24TH ROLLED IN FORCE ALONG THE CARIGARA BAY ROAD OF NORTHWESTERN LEYTE TOWARD PINAMOPOAN, TERMINUS OF THE 20-MILE VALLEY HIGHWAY FROM ORMOC.

UP THAT HIGHWAY, AS THE JAPANESE AROUND ORMOC HASTILY ERECTED HILL DEFENSES, ENEMY REINFORCEMENTS OF TANKS, ARTILLERY AND TROOPS HASTENED TO PINAMOPOAN THROUGH A DESTRUCTIVE RAIN OF BOMBS DROPPED BY P-38S AND P-40S FROM TREETOP HEIGHT.

THE 24TH IS BENT ON MEETING THOSE REINFORCEMENTS AND HURLING THEM BACK DOWN THE HIGHWAY, ALREADY LITTERED BY WRECKED TRUCKS AND TANKS.

JAPANESE IN HILL POSITIONS FLANKING CARIGARA BAY ATTEMPTED TO RAKE THE ROAD WITH MACHINEGUNS AND MORTARS. ELEMENTS OF THE 24TH CLEANED THEM OUT, SUSTAINING SEVERE LOSSES IN ONE BRIEF BUT BITTER FIGHT IN A 50-BY-400 FOOT DEFILE.

BRIDGES DEMOLISHED BY THE FOE SLOWED THE ADVANCE WHILE NEW SPANS WERE THROWN ACROSS STREAMS TO PERMIT BRINGING UP HEAVY ARTILLERY.

AHEAD OF THE MAIN UNITS OF THE 24TH, AMERICAN ADVANCE GUARDS WERE PUT ASHORE FROM SMALL LANDING CRAFT NEAR PINAMOPOAN.

THE 24TH APPROACHED THE NEW BATTLE WITH SELF-ASSURANCE BORN OF HAVING WHIPPED THE JAPANESE AT EVERY TURN SINCE LANDING OCT.20 NEAR PALO--IN A SPOT WHERE THE ENEMY EXERTED TERRIFIC RESISTANCE.

THE 24TH, COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.FREDERICK A.IRVING, SLUGGED IT OUT IN A BATTLE THAT SWAYED FOR A FEW DAYS IN THE PALO SECTOR. IT LUNGED ON TO SEAL UP ONE END OF THE CENTRAL LEYTE VALLEY AT SANTA FE. THERE A FIERCE ENEMY COUNTERATTACK WAS SHATTERED.

NOV 6 1944

THE 24TH FOUGHT ON OUT OF THE LEYTE VALLEY, SHOWING THE JAPANESE AN OLD-FASHIONED BAYONET CHARGE AT THE HIGHWAY JUNCTION CAVITE. IT SWUNG LEFT TO MOVE ON JARO. THE NIPPONESE TRIED TO HALT THE 24TH WITH LAND MINES AND DUG IN TO HOLD JARO BUT WERE PUSHED OUT BY YANKS DRIVING HARD THROUGH WIND AND RAIN.

THEN AT TUNGA, AFTER ARTILLERY FAILED TO ROUT THE NIPPONESE AND TANKS TURNED BACK UNDER POINT BLANK FIRE, THE 24TH MOVED OUT ON THE FLANKS--AND THE JAPANESE RESUMED THE RETREAT.

BACKED BY A TREMENDOUS ARTILLERY BARRAGE, THE 24TH THEN EMERGED ON THE NORTHWEST COAST AT CARIGARA, LEAVING BEHIND A HIGHWAY STAINED WITH THE BLOOD OF A TENACIOUS BUT ALWAYS DEFEATED ENEMY.

THE 24TH IS SUPPORTED IN THE PRESENT DRIVE ON PINAMOPOAN BY THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION OF MAJ.GEN.VERNE D.MUDGE. THEIRS IS THE JOB OF PUSHING THE JAPANESE BACK ON ORMOC WHILE THE SEVENTH INFANTRY DIVISION OF MAJ.GEN.ARCHIBALD V.ARNOLD PRESENTS ITS THREAT 25 MILES BELOW ORMOC AT BAYBAY, ON LEYTE'S WEST COAST.

THE JAPANESE, RAIDING AT NIGHT BY BRILLIANT MOONLIGHT, ARE SENDING PLANES FROM DUSK TO DAWN AT SHORT INTERVALS AGAINST AMERICAN AIRFIELDS AND DOCKS ON LEYTE. TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE, HOWEVER, CARRIED THE CHEERING REPORT THAT THE ENEMY AIRFORCE STAGING BASES WEST OF LEYTE ON CEBU AND NEGROS ISLANDS WERE ATTACKED BY FIGHTERS WHICH WIPED OUT FROM 57 TO 67 ON THE GROUND AND SHOT DOWN 10 MORE AT A COST OF FOUR PLANES.

191 Enemy Warplanes Destroyed in Surprise Attack on Philippines.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 6—(AP) Carrier planes sank a Japanese sub chaser, probably sank a heavy cruiser, damaged a light cruiser and three destroyers in Manila bay Saturday to heap higher Japan's naval disaster in the far Western Pacific, the Navy announced today.

The planes winged from flattops of Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr.'s Third Fleet which only a little over two weeks ago helped sink 24 warships and probably sank or damaged 36 others in the second battle of the Philippines sea.

Cargo Ships Hit

The Saturday raiders also hit several cargo ships and destroyed 191 planes in surprise raids on Manila and southern Luzon to the north of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion armies on Leyte and Samar.

Preliminary reports also show that "much damage" was done to five airfields in the raids Saturday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported in a communique today.

The Japanese rushed 80 interceptors into the air over Clark Field in an effort to turn back the American fighter, torpedo and dive bomber planes but 53 enemy aircraft were shot down.

Nimitz said enemy air opposition became less effective the remainder of the day but that 25 interceptors were shot out of the air over other targets. Five more were drowned in the vicinity of Third fleet carriers and three were destroyed by night fighters over Clark Field. More than 100 planes were destroyed on the ground.

American losses were not reported.

The reference to night fighters might indicate the carrier planes continued their aerial bombings throughout the day and into the night.

Blast Manila Shipping

Nimitz said shipping in Manila Bay was bombed heavily and reported these preliminary figures:

One heavy cruiser burning and left in a sinking condition from several bomb and torpedo hits.

One light cruiser damaged.

Three destroyers damaged.

Several cargo ships damaged.

A submarine chaser was sunk off Lubang island.

Nimitz said there was only light opposition over Manila, indicating the pilots raiding the harbor had little to fear except anti-aircraft fire from the ships they were attacking.

Preliminary reports of damage to ground installations were rather meager but Nimitz listed these:

At Clark Field, oil storage areas, shops and hangars bombed and set afire.

At Batangas, Lipa, Legaspi and Lubang fields ground installations heavily damaged.

Land based planes meantime struck Japanese bases from the northern Kuriles to Nauru, blasting airfields, ground installations and attacking two 180-foot transports at Chichi Jima in the Bonins, south of Japan.. Results of the bombing of the transports were not observed by the high flying Liberators.

JAPS CLAIM 2 U. S. CARRIERS

Broadcast, Unconfirmed, Says Other Ships Also Were Sunk

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (AP)—Submarines, planes and suicide flyers have sunk two American aircraft carriers in Philippine waters Tokyo Raido claimed today, adding that a Japanese sub had sunk "several" oil tankers and transports off the Pacific Coast of the United States.

The broadcasts, recorded by the Federal Communications Commis sion, were totally wi[illegible] Allied confirmation.

"Kamikaze" flyers who dive their planes into targets sank one air craft carrier and heavily damaged a second off the east coast of Luzon Island Sunday, Tokyo Radio said.

Tells Of Two-Hour Battle

In a two-hour running battle, the broadcast added, other imperial aircraft badly damaged another carrier in a task force of eight to ten carriers and battleships northeast of Lamon Bay.

On Friday, the Japanese propagandists related, an unspecified number of Nipponese underseas craft attacked an American task force of three carriers and eight destroyers near Suluan Island in the central Philippines, and sent two torpedoes into "one large type aircraft carrier,' 'identified as of the "Essex class."

"Terrific explosions were heard," the broadcast said, and "it may be assumed this carrier sank subsequently."

Claims U. S. Coast Sinkings

Tokyo Radio told the Japanese people that a "submarine unit" had penetrated to the United States Pacific coast and had sunk American shipping there.

"According to a report reaching the Domei news agency from a certain base in the Central Pacific," the broadcast said, "our submarine unit has advanced to the Pacific coast of the United States since some time ago and has been operating there. Several oil tankers and transport ships were sunk."

A number of American merchant ships were sunk or attacked off the Pacific coast in the first months after Pearl Harbor, and one sub shelled a section of coastline near Santa Barabara with little effect. There have been no announced sinkings since then.

Say They Bagged Superfort

In the first mention from any Japanese source of Sunday's Superfortress raid on the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery on Sumatra, Tokyo Radio said one of the B-29's was shot down and another damaged, and added the usual:

"No damage was incurred on our side."

[The 20th United States Air Force communique said bombing results were good to excellent and that not an American plane was lost.]

The Japanese-controlled Manila radio declared, meanwhile, that 150 "enemy ground planes" were over the Manila and Clark Field areas. This report said the raiders were repulsed.

Tokyo Radio identified the planes which flew over the Tokyo area on a "reconnaissance mission" Sunday as Superfortresses based on Saipan Island in the Marianas.

Yanks Plough Through Mountain Defenses in Drive on Ormoc.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Tuesday, Nov. 7. — (AP) Beating back three bloody night Banzai attacks, the American 24th division plunged through Japanese mountain defenses in a four mile advance from Carigara bay yesterday and raced toward heavily-armed Nipponese reinforcements defending Ormoc, 16 miles southward.

Forward elements of the hard-fighting 24th drove beyond Limon on the narrow winding mountain road through Ormoc valley, and the advance "continues unchecked," today's communique reported.

Long-range Yank artillery threw one of the Pacific war's most punishing barrages at Ormoc and Japanese positions throughout Ormoc valley.

If the armor-led Americans and the well-equipped Japanese reinforcements clash head-on, some of the bitterest fighting of the Leyte battle is expected.

The Nipponese held back their fresh troops, throwing defensive forces into "piecemeal" counter-attacks against the Yank perimeter, four miles south of Carigara bay.

Chanting, shrieking, Banzai-yelling Nipponese charged the Americans in three separate assaults, but failed to pierce the line of veteran Yank infantrymen. Japanese losses were known to be heavy.

Enemy forces were installed in what the communique called "favorable defensive terrain," apparently in hills dominating the highway.

But on one side of the advancing Americans, 155 MM "Long Tom" field guns blasted defensive positions with a thunderous barrage that reached into Ormoc town itself.

Simultaneously, other Yank artillery units blasted bivouacs, gun positions and lines of communication throughout the valley.

A total of 499 rounds of heavy shells smashed at Ormoc in one of the heaviest barrages yet levelled at enemy positions.

The anticipated clash between the 24th and the mechanized Japanese reinforcements has not developed yet, but patrols of the two forces have made contact.

Around Dagami, in central Leyte valley near the east coast, elements of the 96th division reported local clashes with enemy parties.

The communique said "our heavy bombing attacks on enemy airdromes in the Visayas has sharply reduced the scale of enemy air activity" over the Leyte area.

The 24th division brought up heavy artillery yesterday after capturing Pinamopoan, northern terminus of the Ormoc valley highway, and long-range batteries were turned against Nipponese defenses in the Ormoc sector.

Long Toms Rip Japanese Positions At Ormoc

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 6 (AP)—(Via Army Radio)—American 155 mm. Long Toms sent 400 rounds of high explosives whinning into Japanese concentrations at dawn today as Yank infantrymen annihilated a banzai attack in another sector.

The artillery barrage in the Ormoc area posibly presages a bloody fight for that Japanese reinforcing point on the west coast of Leyte island and possibly the final battle of the Leyte campaign.

Fighting Is Bitter

Entrenched Japanese, estimated at 600 to 2,000 and including recently-landed reinforcements that crossed a mountain chain from Ormoc, clashed violently with advancing American infantrymen of the 96th Division west of Dagami, important central valley road junction.

SPENCER

Fighting was bitter. The Americans were pinned down for two days until light tanks, flame throwers and grenadiers were hurled against the Japanese. Then the Japanese made a futile banzai counterattack, led by sword-waving officers. The bodies of at least 500 Japanese littered the battlefield.

Survivors Trapped

Units of the American Tenth Corps straddled the Dagami-Jaro trail, effectively trapping the survivors.

Elmont Waite, Associated Press correspondent, reported from the scene that the Japanese made pathetic efforts to stop the Americans. One Nipponese lieutenant climbed atop a tank and hacked at the muzzle of a barking machine gun with his saber before being picked off.

Col. Macey L. Dill, commanding a 96th Division regiment who first estimated the Japanese at 600, but later 2,000 on information furnished by natives, said:

"I think we've broken their back. We heard 'em groaning and grunting and squealing, dragging back their wounded and dead until 5 A. M. Sunday."

Highway Under Fire

While Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth Army artillery hurled shells into Ormoc, other heavy guns were sweeping Highway No. 2 as it winds through mountain passes to Carigara, making it impossible for the Japanese to move troops over it, even under cover of darkness.

South of Ormoc — the enemy's last escape port—the Seventh Infantry Division was about 12 miles away after a 13-mile drive from captured Baybay.

Guard Against Landing

Pinamopoan, bitterly defended, fell to the Yank infantrymen driving by land from Carigara, seven miles to the east along Carigara Bay, after an earlier amphibious assault on the town had been beaten back.

A headquarters spokesman said all precautions have been taken to guard against a possible Japanese attempt to counterattack by landing on Carigara Bay.

Only light and ineffectual enemy air raids were reported against Leyte.

167 Planes Destroyed

Much of the Japanese aerial sting was eliminated during repeated American bombing of enemy airfields in the central Philippines. In the past five days 167 Japanese aircraft have been destroyed or damaged on the ground or in the air. This compared with 11 American planes lost.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced yesterday between 67 and 77 Japanese planes were destroyed by American fighters in low-level attacks on enemy airdromes on Negros and Cebus Islands west of Leyte. Ten were shot down, 57 demolished and 10 probably demolished on the ground.

JAPS REPORT SINKINGS

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio said today that Japanese submarines operating off the Pacific coast of the United States have sunk several oil tankers and transports. In a broadcast recorded by the FCC, Tokyo quoted Domei, the Japanese official news agency, as saying that the report came from a central Pacific base. It gave no dates for the asserted sinkings.

There have been no announced sinkings by Japanese submarines along the Pacific coast in more than a year, and there was no confirmation of the Japanese report from any American source.

Japs 'Reinforce' Bonins

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 6 (AP)—Liberator attacks on ten Japanese transports in the Bonin Islands, reported yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, created belief that the Nipponese may be reinforcing their only sizable remaining outpost in the Far Western Pacific.

Nimitz' communique said the planes surprised and bombed six transports Thursday in Chichi Jima harbor and four more at nearby Haha Jima, some 630 miles south of Tokyo.

Recent communiques have not mentioned such shipping in the heavily attacked Bonins and apparently the transports arrived lately.

Liberators also bombed the airport at Iwo Jima, in the Volcano Islands, Friday. Japanese fighters rose but did not attack. Two enemy planes were destroyed on the ground and another apparently was damaged. Five American planes were struck by anti-aircraft fire.

In other raids fires and explosions were started on Koror Island, in the northern Palaus, and attacks were made on Pagan Island in the Marianas; on Rota, northeast of Guam, and on Yap, to the southwest.

a story of how the horseless First Cavalry Division regained its mounts.

For almost 18 months since the First Cavalry came overseas it fought on foot like many an infantry division and the Texas and Kentucky boys, who would rather ride than eat (well, almost), felt it was a sorry state of affairs.

Ride Across Race Track

Soon after landing near Tacloban on October 20, the dismounted cavalrymen fought their way across Tacloban's race track and not a man in the outfit missed the sight of several horses roaming near by.

Even the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Vernon D. Mudge, cast an appraising eye on that horseflesh. It wasn't long before Capt. Don Walton, of El Paso, Texas, commanding reconnaissance troops, received an order to round up all available horses in the area.

He delegated the job to First Lieutenant Muir Humphrey, of Louisville.

Familiar Brand On Necks

Humphrey's men picked up seven horses in rice paddies near the race course, and much to their amazement found they were American cavalry horses which belonged to the 26th Regiment at Bataan. On their necks was the familiar Preston brand.

At the same time Filipino guerrillas turned in their ponies and farmers contributed a few more they had corralled.

The equines were turned over to the old quartermaster mule pack train outfit. Then work began making packs for the mounts.

The natives scoured the countryside and brought up all the old saddles they could find, including three regular army saddles which survived the Japanese occupation.

"I always knew those nags were here to stay," mused one contented cavalryman.

WITH TWENTY-FOURTH DIVISION, LEYTE VALLEY, Nov. 2 (Delayed)—The last thing this outfit expected to hear as it walked down a road between a cluster of native shacks was "Elmer's Tune."

The trees still held snipers and a machine gun was chattering a half-mile away, but from a grass hut came the hot rhythm of "Elmer's Tune" from a boogie-woogie piano.

"This may be some new kind of booby trap," said Lieut. Lloyd Price of Dallas, Tex.

Inside the shack was Medical Corpsman Arthur Mendenhall Jr. of McPherson, Kan., at a battered piano. Mendenhall was giving out with all he had, his tin hat at a jaunty angle, cigaret at the corner of his mouth, his face grimy with sweat and dirt.

"Elmer's Tune" was never played better, this outfit vows.

M'Arthur Pamphlets Dropped On Luzon

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 6 (AP)—Pamphlets proclaiming in words and pictures that "MacArthur Returns" were dropped recently by carrier-based planes on Luzon, a future American objective in the Philippines.

The pamphlets show pictures of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines wading throught knee-deep water onto the beach at Leyte on October 20.

REVEALS STORY OF LEYTE AIR BASE

Leyte Airbase, Philippines, Nov. 5 (Delayed) (A. P.).—One reason why land-based fighters were operating from this strip only seven days after the invasion of Leyte was that the ground crews worked for twenty-four hours as engineers, longshoremen and ditch diggers.

The first LST arriving with equipment and men of the forty-ninth Fighter Group had no ramps. The enlisted men, trained to maintain Lightning fighters, filled sandbags and worked waist deep in water until ramps were built and the supplies were rolled ashore, and then they labored in eight-hour shifts doing everything—even working on towers. Among those who played an important part in directing the 150 men was Sergt. Gusta e Salerno of 218 Rhode Island avenue, East Orange, N. J.

JAP USES SABER TO ATTACK TANK

Leyte, Philippines, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Light tanks and infantry attacked the Japanese west of Dagami, in central Leyte valley, and the enemy forces made pathetic efforts to stop the American tanks.

A Japanese officer climbed atop a tank commanded by Sergt. William Carter of 7 Carlton Place, Passaic, N. J., during the fight, and attacked it with his saber.

"I looked out the periscope and there he was hacking at the gun barrel," said Sergt. Carter. Gunners from another tank killed him.

Filipino Disloyalty Probe Started

Tacloban, Leyte, P. I., Nov. 6 (AP). President Sergio Osmena today announced the creation of a board to investigate charges of disloyalty among Filipinos to the Philippine Commonwealth and the United States.

The board, which began deliberations today, will be concerned primarily with investigating alleged acts of disloyalty committed by Filipinos now held in jail in reoccupied Leyte.

The board was also given the task of considering legal problems and matters of policy involving the investigation and disposition of cases of citizens who may be accused later of supporting the Japanese.

The board would thus set the pattern for restoration of political and economic life throughout the Philippines.

Chairman of the board, which began deliberations today, is Major General Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine Army and Secretary of National Defense, who left the Philippines with the late President Manuel Quezon and returned with Osmena. Representing General Douglas MacArthur as an observer will be Colonel Edgar G. Crossman, attorney, of New York City, with offices at 15 Broad Street.

The inquiry board will give every person accused of disloyalty a prompt, free and open hearing. Counsel will be provided for accused persons unable to finance their own defense.

Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo, speaking for Osmena, emphasized that the Commonwealth government is determined to avoid the excesses committed against alleged collaborationists in European areas after the Allied liberation. The board will not act as a summary court. It will be more like a grand jury, sifting all charges and making recommendations to Osmena.

PHILIPPINES PLAN TO DECORATE YANKS

Tacloban, Leyte, Nov. 6 A. P.).—The Philippine Government today announced it would issue two sets of service ribbons, one for the defenders of Corregidor and Bataan and the other for the military personnel who fight for not less than thirty days for the liberation of the islands.

The Philippine Defense ribbon for heroes of Corregidor and Bataan will have a red background with two small vertical blue stripes at each end and three white stars in the center. The Philippine Liberation ribbon will have a red background with two small blue and white stripes in the center.

AMERICANS SCORE SMALL GAINS IN HURTGEN FOREST

German Counterblows Are Beaten Back North Of Vossenack.

NAZIS BLOW UP BRIDGES

Allies Battle into Streets of Middelburg in Holland.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 6.—(AP) American infantry, driven from Vossenack by a vicious counterattack, seized the initiative late today, recapturing most of the lost ground and fought back into the center of this stronghold 13 miles southeast of Aachen.

Two miles to the southeast, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army troops scored small gains in the Hurtgen forest west of Schmidt despite fierce artillery fire. Two miles north of Vosseneck they beat off German counterblows west of the village of Hurtgen.

Fires Rage in Forest

(A front dispatch said fighter-bombers, bent on smoking the Germans from strong points in Hurtgen forest guarding the Cologne plain, set fires raging in the forest and enemy casualties were believed heavy.)

In southwestern Holland, Canadian forces fought up to Willemstad, site of an escape ferry, after the Germans nine miles east blew up the road and rail bridges across the Maas (Meuse) river at Moerdijk to head off pursuit.

Reconnaissance pilots disclosed that two spans of the railway bridge, one of Europe's longest, and one span of the parallel highway bridge were under water.

(An Associated Press dispatch from the front said Poles of the Canadian First Army had driven to within a quarter of a mile of Moerdijk's highway bridge.)

The western extremity of the British-Canadian front, Allied troops fought into the streets of Middelburg, one of the last centers of German resistance.

Another force coming from the west severed the road leading north from Middelburg to Veere, on Walcheren's north coast, but the Germans inside Veere still held out. Thus the remnants of the enemy garrison on the island were isolated into two pockets.

(Allied dredges and minesweepers, now that enemy guns no longer can fire on them, were reported clearing the Schelde estuary so that reinforcements can be unloaded in Antwerp for a big offensive.)

Fighterbombers of the Ninth Air Force flew 650 sorties (individual flights) during the day in close support of the U. S. First Army battling both northeast and southeast of Aachen, losing five planes.

Blast Enemy Troops

They rained bombs and bullets on concentrations of enemy troops and armor in Schmidt, two miles southeast of Vossenack, for the third straight day.

Fifteen miles northeast of Aachen they poured incendiary bombs on Julich, a road center several miles east of front line positions, starting at least ten fires in the center of the town.

Other fighterbombers resumed their rail-cutting offensive, concentrating on networks around Cologne, on the Rhine some 27 miles east of the most advanced American positions. The Second Tactical air force cut rail lines at dozens of places on the Dutch-German frontier.

To the south in the Vosges mountains, German broadcasts said the American and French armies broke through at several points, but they apparently were fishing for information.

The Sixth Army group did register slight gains around Baccarat and in the wooded area west of St. Die, a town which controls the entrance to one of the passes through the Vosges to the Rhineland.

(The BBC said the French First army was reported within two miles of St. Die, NBC monitors said.)

There were no changes reported on the U. S. Third Army front to the north during the day.

LARGE FIRES SET IN FOREST NEAR HURTGEN

Allied Troops Reach The Maas River In Holland On 50-Mile Front

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—United States infantry, driven from Vossenack under German counterblows, fought back tonight into that stronghold 13 miles southeast of Aachen. Fighter-bombers set acres of the forest ablaze to flush the enemy from strong positions guarding the Cologne plain.

A front dispatch, reporting heavy fighting in the heart of the town, said enemy casualties were believed to have been heavy in the cascade of incendiary bombs that set big fires in the Hurtgen Forest.

In the battle for southwestern Holland now nearing an end, the rebuilt 15th German Army, which was more than half destroyed a second time in the struggle, was pulling its last rear guards across the Maas (Meuse) river after blowing up half the bridge at Moerdijk. This was one of the longest bridges in all Europe.

One Bridgehead Left

Canadians, British, Americans and Poles swarmed up to the Maas and its seaward arms along a 50-mile front. The front was broken only by one small enemy bridgehead after withdrawal from the one at Moerdijk.

This bridgehead was nine miles west at Willemstad ferry, and a front dispatch said British troops had fought into the outskirts of the town. No more than 2,000 to 3,000 Germans were believed still in the area.

Mine sweepers and dredges began cleaning up the Schelde estuary approaches to Antwerp's harbor as the once-blockading German garrison on Walcheren Island was squeezed into two pockets at Middelburg and Veere, a small port on the island's northern shore. Two thousand prisoners were taken.

Scots Reach Outskirts

Scottish infantry drove into the eastern outskirts of Middleburg, other forces were closing in from the southeast and south, and one column cut the road leading north out of the town of Veere. German guns still harassed Commandos west of Veere.

The dredging and mine sweeping must be completed before Allied men and supplies can be poured across its docks for the big Allied offensive, which German broadcasts said was about to break somewhere along the 500-mile front.

One DNB commentator declared that all the present Allied attacks, in Holland, in Germany and in northern France, were to secure good platforms for the offensive and that the Allies now were using no more than 25 per cent. of their invasion force.

Closing On Meijel

One of these Allied attacks was in east Holland, where the British were overcoming stubborn resistance in closing in on Meijel, 10 miles from the Maas and 13 miles west of the German frontier.

Another was far to the south in the Vosges Mountains, where the United States Seventh Army seized St. Barbe, a foothill town four miles south of Baccarat and 46 miles west of the German frontier.

The Paris radio said the United States Third Army had opened yet another in Lorraine which overran several towns, but the only official word was supreme headquarters confirmation of the capture of Berg, four miles from the German border near the corner of Luxembourg.

Arnhem Action Hinted

German reports also insisted something was brewing in the Arnhem area, at the northern extremity of the front in Holland.

The United Stafes First Army, in maintaining pressure along a four-mile sector southeast of Aachen, ran into some of the most effective enemy artillery fire of the campaign.

Infantry drove the last Germans from Hurtgen Forest west of Schmidt, two miles southeast of Vossenack, but after persistent American attacks throughout the day the enemy still held on to the ruined village itself.

Just north of Schmidt, the Americans ran into hot fire from artillery, tanks and infantry, and fighter-bombers were summoned. They blasted the enemy positions and the attack was resumed near Kommerscheidt.

Ready For Offensive

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's successes along the Maas put him in position to fight across the water barriers toward Rotterdam, 16 miles north, or to turn east for a drive into the Ruhr Valley.

It was considered likely that the small enemy bridgehead at Willemstadt, four miles wide and two miles deep, would be liquidated quickly.

British field officers estimated that in the battle of southwestern Holland, the German 15th Army which, after being rebuilt, was some 110,000 strong, lost 65,000, 25,000 of them captured.

The 15th, once a powerful force that guarded the robot-bomb coast in France, previously was badly mauled in the battle of France.

On the western flank, Allied troops overrunning Tholen Island and St. Philipsland, a peninsula to the north, met only token resistance.

Fighting To The Last

But the Germans farther west on Walcheren were fighting to the last. Allied troops converging on Middelburg had to wade through water waist deep in the face of enemy fire. They had fought to within about a half mile of the town from the south.

Other forces fought four miles north to Veere.

An Allied announcement disclosed that a new First Tactical Air Force had been created for the support of Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth Army Group in eastern France, just as the Ninth Air Force aids Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army Group to the north.

Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce commands the new air force, one section of which will be a French unit flying in support of the French First Army. The second will support Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army.

Another announcement disclosed that prisoners captured from D-day totaled 302,661, for the 12th Army Group and 198,574 for the 21st.

ALLIES FORCE GERMANS BACK ACROSS MAAS

Foe Loses Half of Army—65,000 Enemy Troops Are Eliminated.

YANKS IN FIERCE BATTLE

Americans Are Pushed Back at Edge of Hurtgen Forest—Lose a Town.

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Model drew his battered Fifteenth German Army back over the river Maas (Meuse) at Moerdijk in Holland today, leaving the Allies in possession of all but one short stretch of the south bank.

The Germans blew up half the spans of the bridge, one of the longest in Europe, as British field officers declared that the enemy army had been half destroyed in the hard-driving offensive in west Holland that began two weeks ago. Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Twenty-first Army group held sway on the south bank for fifty miles, from 's-Hertogenbosh to the sea except for a four-mile pocket at Willemstad.

As the British and Canadians drew up to the water barrier sixteen miles south of Rotterdam on a potential new assault line, the British estimated that 65,000 Germans had been killed, captured and wounded while being driven northward from twenty-five to fifteen miles.

British Army spokesmen said British and Canadian troops had bagged 25,000 prisoners in the drive that opened north of Antwepr on October 22. The campaign freed 1,200 square miles of Dutch territory and 570,000 Netherlanders. Already Allied dredges and mine sweepers were clearing the West Schelde approach to Antwerp.

Yank Face Hard Going.

But on the Aachen front American infantry, running into effective enemy artillery fire, was pushed farther back at the edge of the Hurtgen Forest, and temporarily lost possession of Vossenack, thirteen miles southeast of Aachen and two miles northwest of Schmidt.

The Americans counterattacked, however, and pushed the fighting into the center of the town. Despite a spectacular air attack in which firebombs set acres of forest afire and showered enemy tanks with flames, the Germans still held Schmidt.

The Allies hold all the south bank of the Maas from north of 's Hertogenbosch to the sea except for two small pockets, each four miles long and two miles deep at the Moerdijk bridge and Willemstad ferry sixteen miles south of Rotterdam.

A front dispatch said the Germans have pulled their troops back across the Maas at Moerdijk and have blown up almost half the bridge, one of the longest in Europe.

Lieut. Morton D. Kauffman, 66 West 88th street, New York city, said the Germans made a thorough job of blasting the bridge, blowing it up span by span from the south bank to nearly midstream.

"There is just a steel framework left standing," he reported.

All Walcheren Under Control.

Westward the German rout became more complete as Allied troops swarmed over Tholen Island and the St. Philipsland Peninsula to the north, which forms the southern bank of the mouth of the Maas.

Allied troops seized all of Walcheren Island except the small port of Veere on the north coast and the town of Middelburg in the center.

Marshal von Model attempted to defend southwestern Holland and the sea gate of Antwerp with an army of approximately 110,000, the British said. Of the 25,000 prisoners, 13,000 were taken in the pocket south of the Schelde and 8,000 on the Schelde islands. The two pockets at Moerdijk and Willemstad were believed to hold no more than 2,000 or 3,000 troops.

"There is no doubt Marshal von Model's army has been greatly depleted," a British Army spokesman said, "or that he's been mauled into serious defeat. His divisions have been cut to almost a quarter of their strength."

Fighter-bombers blasted German tanks and infantry near Schmidt in support of the American attack, which was hindered by extensive mine fields south of the town of Hurtgen, and ran into strong tank, infantry and artillery fire near Konnerscheidt.

There was no Allied confirmation of the German radio announcement, broadcast yesterday and repeated today, that the Allies have landed airborne units again in the Arnhem area.

On the Third Army Front, a renewal of offensive action carried American infantry into Berg, a small town on the Moselle River eight miles northeast of Thionville, and near the point where the borders of France, Germany and Luxembourg meet.

Farther south, the Seventh Army's continuing drive in the Baccarat sector scored new gains, the Allied communique reported, including the capture of the village of St. Barbe.

Nazi Reserves Tied Down

To the east the American First Army kept up its hard pressure from Hurtgen to Schmidt. Although gains in the past 36 hours were measured in mere yards, the potential menace tied down hastily mustered German reserves and dipped deeply into the dwindled German supply of tanks.

In probing attacks, Allied infantry and tanks kept pushing the enemy all along the front, scoring gains against stiff resistance around Meijel in eastern Holland, southeast of Aachen, above Metz, and in the Vosges Mountains.

In the Hurtgen forest area southeast of Aachen, where Yank infantry has made the deepest penetration of Germany, American troops who were thrown out of Schmidt by an enemy counterattack mopped up German units in the woods a mile west of that town, and made minor gains elsewhere.

Fighter-Bombers Aid

Fighter-bombers blasted German tanks and infantry near Schmidt in support of the American attack, which was hindered by extensive mine fields south of the town of Hurtgen, and ran into strong tank, infantry and artillery fire near Konnerscheidt.

660,000 GERMANS TAKEN PRISONER SINCE D-DAY

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Nov. 6—(AP) Seven Allied armies have seized more than 660,000 German prisoners since D-day, a recapitulation showed tonight.

The U. S. First army leads the rest with 220,138 captives, while the U. S. Third army has taken 102,823.

The breakdown by groups and armies is based on figures for the Twelth and Twenty-first army groups up to midnight, Nov. 5-6, and for the Sixth army group and the Ninth U. S. army up to Oct. 27.

The Sixth army group's totals now are probably appreciably higher, because it has been on the attack in the Vosges mountains since its totals were compiled.

New Tactical Air Force

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Nov. 6 (AP)—A new First Tactical Air Force will support Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth Army Group in eastern France in the same manner that the Ninth Air Force aids Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army Group.

Supreme Headquarters announced today Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce will command its two sections—a French section under Brig. Gen. Paul Gerardot and the United States 12th Tactical Air Force under Brig. Gen. Gordon Saville, of Winter Park, Fla.

The French unit, with American and British planes, will fly in direct support of the First French Army, while Saville's command will support Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army.

The nucleus of the new force came from the Mediterranean and later was reinforced from the Ninth Air Force.

Jet Planes Destroyed.

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—American fighter-bombers yesterday destroyed ten jet-propelled German fighter planes caught parked on three airfields.

The jet planes, which have been appearing on the western front in increasing numbers during the past month, were among the twenty-eight German aircraft destroyed by a pioneer Mustang group in attacks on airdromes at Halle, Crailsheim and Sachsenheim. The Mustangs also damaged seventeen other planes.

YANKEE-JAP HEROES

Sixth Army Group in France, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—A "lost battalion" of the Seventh Army, which was cut off by the Germans for a week in the St. Die area, was relieved by Japanese-American troops who fought brilliantly in Italy, it was disclosed today. The battalion was of the 141st Regiment of the Thirty-sixth Division.

The Japanese-Americans who fought their way to the trapped men late on the afternoon of October 30 were of the 442d Regiment.

"It really was ironical that we were so glad to see the Japanese," said Private Walter Yattaw, Providence, R. I., "but boy, they are real Americans."

One forty-eight-man patrol of the battalion came back with only six men after its seven-days of isolation.

Goods Flown To Holland Army

Ninth United States Troop Carrier Headquarters, Britain, Nov. 6 (AP)—Twin-engined Skytrains hauled almost 26,000 tons of supplies to the first Allied airborne army in Holland from September 17 to October 31, it was announced tonight, and the opening of Antwerp harbor will free the fleet for use elsewhere.

Paris Pleased By Sales Of Anti-Inflation Bonds

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Government's new bond issue designed to reduce the excessive amount of currency in circulation went on public sale today in the Paris area with what was described as excellent results.

Aime Lepercy, Finance Minister, was unable to give exact figures on the first day's sale but said the response was "favorable."

In a national broadcast Lepercy appealed to Frenchmen to participate in their country's "financial liberation" from inflation by subscribing to the bonds and warned that compulsory measures would be necessary if present money circulation is not sufficiently curtailed.

Banks and postoffices throughout the country had the bonds for sale.

Ex-General Jailed For Life in France

Paris, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Brig. Gen. Armand Pinsard, 57 years old, retired French Air Force officer and a veteran of the last war, was today sentenced to military degredation and life imprisonment for serving under an oath of allegiance to Hitler as a civilian official of the French Volunteer Legion which fought against the Russians.

The soldier, who appeared before a jury of three men and one woman in the Paris Collaboration Court, took the verdict calmly, but as he removed an array of medals and decorations from his blue uniform he commented: "If this is justice, France is lost."

Assembly Will Meet In Paris

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP)—France's revised and enlarged consultative assembly will convene tomorrow afternoon on its first anniversary for its initial session since the liberation of the nation. The assembly last met in Algiers.

The Chamber of Deputies was damaged in street fighting last August, so the assembly will meet in the centuries-old Luxembourg Palace. The Senate met there before the war. The palace also was the Nazi air force headquarters for the Paris region.

Underground Leaders

The National Council of Resistance and other leaders of underground operations predominate in the new assembly of 248 delegates. The "metropolitan resistance" groups, as they are called, hold a clear majority with 148 seats in the new body. The remaining seats are split between former Parliament members and overseas resistance groups.

One of the assembly's tasks will be the drafting of ordinances under which the provisional government will convoke a constitutional assembly to frame France's future basic law.

Criticism Expected

Likely criticism of the Government's recent decision to disarm and disband the Milice Patriotique from the Communist members of the consultative assembly is foreseen.

The Communists also are expected to protest vigorously if Communist Leader Maurice Thorez, already designated among the party's representatives, is not permitted to return from Moscow. The authorities thus far have refused to quash desertion charges dating from his 1939 flight to evade former Premier Edouard Daladier's Communist round-up.

Nazis Counterattack 3 Times Around Schmidt

New York, Nov. 6—An NBC broadcast from Germany said "already this morning the Germans have launched three counterattacks from three directions" in a renewal of the battle of Schmidt.

"German planes are appearing all over the place," the broadcast added. "The seriousness with which the enemy regards this situation is evidenced by the fact that he is opposing us around Schmidt not with second-rate soldiers, but with crack troops, well trained—the very best he has."

Nation Finished? Reich Paper Asks

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—The German newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt today asked, in view of increasing desertions from the German Volkssturm, whether it should not be assumed "that our nation is completely finished," the London radio said.

A Bayreuth paper asked whether the creation of the Volkssturm is not "an admission that our reserves are approaching exhaustion," another London broadcast said.

PEACE BY FORCE URGED BY STALIN

Russian Leader Names Japan, Germany as Typical Aggressors.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(AP) Premier Marshal Stalin, naming Japan and Germany as typical aggressors, urged tonight creation of a special post-war armed organization of peace-loving nations empowered to act immediately "to avert or suppress aggression."

Addressing a cheering Moscow throng on the eve of the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution, the Soviet leader asserted that Germany, although "on the verge of inevitable catastrophe," already was preparing for another war. He added that the task of the United Nations was not only to win the victory but also to make future wars impossible.

There is only one means, he said, to secure peace, namely:

"To create a special organization to defend peace and insure security, composed of representatives of freedom-loving nations; to put at the disposal of the leading organ of such an organization the essential amount of armed forces required to avert aggression, and to make it the duty of this organization, in case of necessity, to apply without delay these armed forces to avert or liquidate aggression, and to punish those guilty of aggression."

Pointing out that peace-loving nations always are ill prepared for war, while aggressive nations usually are better prepared, Stalin said:

"It cannot be considered accidental that such unpleasant facts occurred as the incident at Pearl Harbor, the loss of the Philippines and the other islands of the Pacific, the loss of Hongkong and Singapore, when Japan, as an aggressive nation, proved more prepared for war than Great Britain and the U.S.A.—an example of the advantage of an aggressive policy."

The Russian Premier declared it would be "naive" to think that Germany would not, after defeat, attempt to restore her power and develop a new aggression.

"It is known to all," he added, "the German leaders are already now preparing for a new war. History points to the fact that a short period—20 to 30 years—is sufficient for Germany to recover from defeat and to restore her power."

Stalin asserted that the armed organization which he advocated would be effective "if the great powers, which have borne on their shoulders the main burden of the war against Germany, will act in the future also in the spirit of unanimity and concord. It will not be effective if these essential conditions are violated.."

30. 24 — 20199

Stalin's address was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded in London by the Soviet monitor.

Urges Big 3 Alliance

"The alliance of Russia, the United States and Great Britain is vitally important for all. If it has stood so far, the stronger it will be at this final stage of the war.

"The firm front of the Allied nations has made plans for a secure peace. Some people speak of discord. There are differences of opinion. . . . The amazing thing is not that differences exist, but how small they are and how well they are solved peacefully."

Declaring that the decisions made at Teheran for joint blows of the United Nations against Germany had been carried out with "astonishing exactness," the Soviet leader said "there is no doubt that without the organization of the Second front which pinned down 75 divisions of the Germans, our troops would not have been able in so short a space of time to break down the resistance of the German troops and drive them from the confines of the Soviet Union.

"Thus it is equally without doubt," he added, "that without the mighty operations of the Red army in the Summer of this year which pinned down some 200 German divisions, the troops of our Allies would not have been able so quickly to deal with the German troops and throw them out of the area of middle Italy, France and Belgium."

Stalin said Russian armies had destroyed 120 Nazi divisions during the year and that "only 204 German and non-German divisions stand against us."

30 Divisions Cut Off

He said 30 German divisions now were cut off in the Baltic states and were being hammered to pieces.

[At the present estimated strength of enemy divisions, this indicated that some 1,200,000 Germans had been eliminated on the Eastern Front thus far in 1944, leaving about 2,040,000 Nazis opposing the Red army. The figure of German casualties almost exactly agreed with the total compiled by the Associated Press from day-by-day Moscow communiques — 1,268,000 killed and captured since the big Russian offensive began June 23.]

Paying tribute to the "iron will and courageous spirit" of his own people, Stalin told them they had, by their self-sacrificing struggle, "saved all the nations of Europe from the Fascist pogromists. This is the great service rendered by the Soviet people to the history of mankind."

Cites Dumbarton Parley

Stalin made it clear that the success of an international organization rested with the United States, Russia and Great Britain, and he foresaw peaceful solution of all differences between these great powers.

He cited the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference at Washington as an example of what could be accomplished in friendly talks, saying that "nine tenths of the security questions were solved at this conference in a spirit of complete agreement."

Moscow Premier Declares Germany Is on Verge of Catastrophe.

SAYS PEACE PLAN IS MADE

Calls Alliance of Russia, U. S. and Britain Vitally Important —Praises Western Front.

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Germany is on the verge of catastrophe, Premier Stalin declared tonight in the course of an address in which he also said that Russia, the United States and Great Britain have made plans for a secure peace.

"It is not enough to win the war but we must make any future war impossible," he declared before a Moscow throng commemorating tomorrow's twenty-seventh anniversary of the Russian revolution.

He hailed the invasion of France as the operation which enabled the Russian army to drive the Germans from Russian soil and declared that 120 German divisions had been destroyed during the year.

In a forty-two minute review he proclaimed:

"The United Nations face undoubted victory. But a firm peace is not yet secured. New wars must be made impossible.

Urges Alliance.

"The only way is to create a special organization of the United Nations to preserve peace and security, give it armed forces and make it responsible to apply them immediately to avert or suppress aggression. This is not like the League of Nations, without resources or powers, but will be a new, armed organization to avert new wars. It will be effective if the Great Powers which bore the brunt of the war continue to work unanimously and in concord—and only so.

"The alliance of Russia, the United States and Great Britain is vitally important for all. If it has stood so far, the stronger will it be at this final stage of the war.

"The firm front of the Allied nations has made plans for a secure peace. Some people speak of discord. There are differences of opinion. . . . The amazing thing is not that differences exist but how small they are and how well they are solved peacefully.

"The Red Army now faces its final task," Stalin concluded by saying, "together with our Allies to completly defeat the Germans and raise the banner of victory over Berlin. This will be fulfilled in the near future."

Gets Tremendous Ovation.

Stalin received a tremendous ovation as he addressed the Moscow celebration. His speech was carried by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

"Fighting now is on German territory," he declared after recounting the Allied successes in driving the Nazis from Russia, France, Belgium and the south of Italy.

Asserting that Russia had destroyed 120 German divisions during the year, he went on to declare: "After all the German super-mobilizations, only 204 German and non-German divisions stand against us."

[At present German strength in the east, this indicated the destruction of 1,200,000 men, leaving about 2,040,000 opposing the Russian Army from the Arctic to the Balkans.]

Tells of Allied Help.

"Thirty German divisions have been cut off in the Baltic States and are now being smashed by our troops," Stalin declared. "There is no doubt that without the Second Front, which pins down seventy-seven German divisions, we could not have driven the Germans out of the Soviet Union.

"But without our pinning down 200 divisions, our Allies would not have been able to drive the enemy from Italy, France and Belgium.

"The task is to continue holding Germany between two fronts. That is the key to victory."

Says Russia Saved World.

Of the 204 divisions facing the Russians, Stalin said, 180 were German and twenty-four Hungarian.

"The Red Army was enabled to do its duty because of the support of our entire country," Stalin said. "Our people this year have achieved great results in war economy—our army is sufficiently supplied with food.

"Now that the war is ending, the importance of the Soviet people becomes obvious. They saved world civilization."

Cites Dumbarton Oaks.

Turning to international affairs and the post-war world, Stalin said:

"When you read reports of divergencies of views among the three great Powers about post-war organization, remember that such differences always will exist between different countries.

"If differences have occurred, as for example at Dumbarton Oaks, we must not complain but we must be glad that they were so few. Dozens of points were solved in complete agreement. Therefore I think that Dumbarton Oaks is an indication that peaceful solution is possible.

"There were differences among the Allies about the Second Front but, as everybody knows, they finally were solved in a spirit of complete agreement."

Sees Germany in Vise.

At another point of his address Stalin declared:

"The main fact of the last year is that the Red Army fought not single handed as in previous years, but with Allied troops.

"The Tehran Conference was not in vain. Blows from east, west and south became a fact."

The way to Hungary, Germany's last ally, was opened by the Romanian declaration of war which gave the Russian forces a route and a way in which to help Yugoslavia, he noted.

"In the fourth year of the patriotic war, decisive victories of the Soviet and Allied armies forced the Germans to fight on two fronts and threw them back to the frontiers of Germany," he said. "The Allied invasion of France was a powerful operation, compelling the Germans to fight on two fronts. The Allies made landing operations unprecedented in history. Germany was pressed in pincers between two fronts."

NOV 7 1944

Stalin's speech was delivered on the eve of the anniversary of the Russian revolution. On November 7, 1917, the Military Revolutionary Committee of Petrograd (now Leningrad) seized authority. The next day, the all-Russian Congress of Soviets replaced the Provisional Government which had been established by Alexander Kerensky after the downfall of the Czar.

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP).—The complete text of Premier Stalin's speech marking the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Soviet revolution:

Comrades, today Soviet people celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of the victory of the Soviet revolution in our country. For the fourth time our country is celebrating the revolution in conditions of the patriotic war against the German Fascist troops. This, of course, does not mean that the fourth year of the war does not differ from the preceding three years of war. On the contrary, between them a radical difference exists.

The previous years of war were years of the offensive of the German troops. Their advance deep into our country obliged the Red Army to conduct defensive battles.

The third year of the war was a year of radical change on our front, when the Red Army developed powerful offensive battles, smashed the Germans in a series of decisive battles, cleared the German Fascist troops from two-thirds of our soil and forced the enemy to pass to the defensive.

The Red Army, moreover, still continued to wage war alone against the German troops without serious support from our Allies.

Year of Decisive Successes

The fourth year of war turned out to be a year of decisive victories over the German troops on the part of the Soviet armies and the armies of our Allies. The Germans, forced to wage war on two fronts, found themselves hurled back to the frontiers of Germany.

During the last year there has been achieved the expulsion of German troops from the confines of the Soviet Union, France, Belgium, and middle Italy, and the transference of military operations to the territory of Germany.

The decisive successes of the Red Army this year and the expulsion of the Germans from the confines of the Soviet Union was achieved by the series of crushing blows struck by our troops on the German troops. The blows were begun this year before Leningrad and Novgorod when the Red Army broke down the permanent defenses of the Germans and hurled them back to the Baltic area.

The result of this blow was the liberation of the Leningrad region. The second blow was struck in February and March of this year on the Bug when the Red Army routed the German troops and hurled them back beyond the Dnepr. The result of this blow was that the western Ukraine was liberated from the German Fascist invaders.

The third blow was struck in April and May of this year in the Crimea area when the German troops were thrown into the Black Sea. As a result of this blow the Crimea and Odessa were liberated from German oppression.

The fourth blow was struck in June of this year in Karelia when the Red Army smashed the Finnish troops, liberated Viipuri and Petrozavodsk and hurled the Finns back into the interior of Finland. The result of this blow was the liberation of the major part of the Karelo-Finnish Soviet Republic.

White Russia Freed

The fifth blow was struck on the Germans in July of this year, when the Red Army ground down and smashed the German troops before Vitebsk, Bobruisk and Mogilev, and accomplished its blow on the encircled German divisions in the Minsk area.

The result of this blow was that our troops completely liberated the Bylorussian Soviet Republic (White Russia), reached the Vistula and liberated a considerable part of Poland allied to us; reached the Niemen and liberated the major part of the Lithuanian Soviet Republic, forced the Niemen and reached the frontiers of Germany.

The sixth blow was struck in July and August this year in the area of the western Ukraine when the Red Army smashed the German troops before Lwow and hurled them back beyond the San. The result of this blow was that the western Ukraine was liberated. Our troops crossed the Vistula, and beyond the Vistula formed a powerful bridgehead west of Sandomir.

The seventh blow was struck in August of this year in the area of Chisinau (Kishinev) and Iasi when our troops utterly routed the German Fascist troops and completed their blow by surrounding twenty-two German divisions before Chisinau, not counting the Romanian divisions.

NOV 7 1944

The result of this blow was that the Moldavian Soviet Republic was liberated, that Romania, Germany's ally, was put out of commission and declared war on Germany and Hungary; that Bulgaria, Germany's ally, was put out of commission and also declared war on Germany; that the road was opened for our troops into Hungary, the last ally of Germany in Europe, and that the opportunity was presented for stretching out a hand of aid to our ally, Yugoslavia, against the German invaders.

30 Nazi Divisions Cut Off

The eighth blow was struck in September and October of this year in the Baltic Sea area when the Red Army smashed the German troops before Tallinn and Riga and drove them from the Baltic area.

The result of this blow was that the Estonian Soviet Republic was liberated; Germany's ally, Finland, was put out of commission and declared war on Germany. More than thirty German divisions found themselves cut off from Prussia, caught in pincers in the area between Tukums and Liepaja, and they are now being smashed by our troops.

In October of this year the ninth blow was launched by our troops between the Tisza and the Danube in Hungary which aims at bringing Hungary out of the war and turning her against Germany. The result of this blow, which has not yet reached its culmination, is that our troops have rendered direct aid to our ally, Yugoslavia, in the work of driving out the Germans and liberating Belgrade. Our troops obtained the opportunity of advancing through the Carpathians and stretching out a hand of assistance to our ally, Czechoslovakia, part of whose territory is already liberated from the German invaders.

Lastly, at the end of October of this year, a blow was dealt the German forces in north Finland when the German troops were knocked out of the area of Pechenga and our troops, pursuing the Germans, entered the territory of Norway, our ally.

Such are the main operations of the Red Army during the last year which brought about the expulsion of the German troops from the confines of our country. The result of these operations was that 120 divisions of Germans and their allies were smashed and put out of action. Instead of 257 divisions standing against our front last year, of which 207 divisions were German, today we have against our front, after all the total and super-total mobilizations, a total of 204 German and Hungarian divisions. Of these not more than 180 are German divisions.

It must be admitted that in the present war Hitlerite Germany with her Fascist army turned out to be a more powerful and perfidious enemy than Germany and her armies in past wars. To this must be added the fact that the Germans in this war succeeded in making use of the economic forces of almost the whole of Europe and the pretty significant armies of her vassals.

Tehran "Not in Vain"

And if, in spite of these conditions favoring Germany's conduct of the war, she has, nevertheless, found herself on the verge of inevitable catastrophe, it has to be explained by the facts that Germany's chief opponent, the Soviet Union, has surpassed the efforts of Hitlerite Germany.

What is new in the last year in the war against Hitlerite Germany is the fact that the Red Army conducted its operations against the German troops not in isolation as had been the case in the preceding years, but jointly with the troops of our Allies.

The Tehran conference was not in vain. The decisions of the Tehran conference for joint blows on Germany from the west, south and east began to be carried out with astonishing exactness.

Simultaneously with the Red Army's operations on the Soviet-German front the Allied troops began the invasion of France and organized powerful operations forcing Hitlerite Germany to wage war on two fronts. Our allies accomplished mass landing operations on the coast of France, unprecedented in history as regards organization and scale, and by mass force overcame the German fortifications.

Thus Germany found herself seized in the vise between two fronts. As was to be expected the enemy was not able to stand up to the joint blows of the Red Army and the Allied troops. The resistance of the enemy was smashed and his troops in a short space of time were thrown out of the confines of middle Italy, France, Belgium and the Soviet Union. The enemy was hurled back to the frontiers of Germany.

Two Front War

There can be no doubt that without the organization of the second front in Europe, which pinned down seventy-five divisions of the Germans, our troops would not have been able in so short a space of time to break down the resistance of the German troops and drive them from the confines of the Soviet Union. Thus it is equally without doubt the mighty operations of the Red Army in the summer of this year, which pinned down some 200 German divisions, the troops of our allies would not have been able so quickly to deal with the German troops and throw them out of the area of middle Italy, France and Belgium.

The task is to continue to hold Germany in the vase between two fronts. This is the key to victory.

If the Red Army was able successfully to fulfill its duty to the motherland and drive the Germans from the confines of the Soviet Union, it did so thanks to the fact that it had the supreme support of the rear, the whole country, the whole peoples of our country.

The selfless work of all Soviet peoples, under leadership of our state and party organs, went forward in the last year under the banner "all for the front."

The last year was marked with new successes in industry, agriculture and transport, a new upward trend of our military economy. In the fourth year of the year of the war our factories produced planes, tanks, guns, mortars and ammunition many times more than at the beginning of the war. The most difficult period of the restoration of agriculture lies behind us. After the return to the country of the fertile lands of the Don and Kuban, after the liberation of the Ukraine our agriculture is rapidly recovering, inspired by the victories.

Soviet rail transport stood up to the traffic, which it is hardly likely the transport of any other country could have coped with. The Soviet state, despite the hard times of war, despite the temporary occupation by the Germans of extremely large, economically important districts of the country in the course of the war, did not curtail but increased its supplies to the front of arms and ammunition.

Now the Red Army has tanks, guns, planes in not smaller, but larger numbers than the Germans. As for the quality of our war material in this respect it is considerably superior to that of the enemy.

Just as the Red Army, in hard fighting, single handed won military victory over the German troops, so did the working people of the Soviet rear, in their duel with Hitlerite Germany and her accomplices, win an economic victory over the enemy.

The Soviet people gave up a great deal that was necessary, accepted deliberately serious material privations in order to give more to the front. The tenfold labors of the present war did not break, but made still stronger, the iron will and courageous spirit of the Soviet people.

Our working class strained all their efforts for the sake of victory, constantly perfected the technique of production, increased the capacity of industrial enterprises, erected new factories and workshops.

Our intellectuals proceeded boldly along the road of new inventions in the sphere of technique and culture, successfully developing contemporary science still further, creatively using their achievements in the production of arms for the Red Army. By their creative labor, the Soviet intellectuals contributed an invaluable share to the cause of routing the enemy.

Praises Efforts of Youth

Just as we cannot fight and conquer without modern arms, we cannot also fight and be victorious without provisions. The Red Army, in the fourth year of the war, thanks to care shown by the collective farming peasants, is experiencing no shortage of food. Men and women collective farmers are supplying the workers and intellectuals with food, and industry with raw materials, thus securing the normal working of the factories and plants making arms and equipment for the front. Our collective farming peasantry, actively and with a complete understanding of their duty to their motherland, are assisting the Red Army to achieve victory over the enemy.

The unexampled feats of labor of Soviet women and our glorious young people who carried on their shoulders the main burden of the labor in the factories and plants, in the collective and state farms, will forever go down in history.

For the sake of the honor and independence of the motherland, Soviet women, young men and girls are displaying prowess and heroism on the front of labor. They have shown themselves worthy of their fathers and sons, husbands and brothers defending the motherland from the German Fascist monsters. The feats of labor performed by Soviet people in the rear, equally with the undying military deeds of our troops at the front, have their source in the ardent creative Soviet patriotism.

The strength of Soviet patriotism lies in the fact that it has as its basis not racial or national prejudice, but profound loyalty and the faith of the people in their Soviet motherland, the fraternal friendship of the working people of all nations of our country.

Soviet Patriotism

Soviet patriotism is harmonious: it combines the national traditions of the people and the common vital interests of all the working people of the Soviet Union. Soviet patriotism does not disunite, but, on the contrary, consolidates all nations and nationalities in our country into one single fraternal family. In this should be seen the basis of the indestructible and still stronger friendship of the peoples of the Soviet Union. At the same time the peoples of the Soviet Union respect the rights and independence of the peoples of countries abroad, and have always displayed their readiness to live in peace and friendship with neighboring states.

In this should be seen the basis of the developing and strengthening ties between our states and all the freedom-loving countries.

The Soviet people hate the German invaders not because they are people of a foreign nation, but because they have brought our people and all freedom-loving peoples misery and suffering. It is an old saying of our people: "The wolf is not bad because he is gray, but because he ate the sheep."

For their ideological weapons the German Fascists selected the racial theory of human hatred, calculating that their sermons on bestial nationalism would create the moral-political premises for the domination of the German invaders over the enslaved peoples.

Whole World Anti-Hitler

However, the policy of racial hatred pursued by the Hitlerites became in actual fact the source of internal weakness and foreign political isolation for the German Fascist state.

The ideology and policy of racial hatred is one of the factors making for the downfall of the Hitlerite bandit plot. It cannot be considered an accident that not only the enslaved peoples of France, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and Holland have risen up against the German imperialists, but also the former vassals of Hitler, the Italians, Romanians, Finns, Bulgarians.

By their cannibal policy, the Hitlerite clique has roused against Germany all the peoples of the world. And the so-called "chosen German" has become the object of universal hatred.

In the course of this war the Hitlerites have sustained not only a military defeat but also a moral and political defeat.

The idealogy of the equal rights of all races and nations, which is established in our country, has won a complete victory over the ideology of bestial nationalism and the racial hatred of Hitlerites.

Now, when the patriotic war is proceeding to its victorious conclusion, the historic role of the Soviet people stands out in all its magnitude. Now every one admits that the Soviet people, by their self-sacrificing struggle, saved all the nations of Europe from the Fascist pogromists. This is the great service rendered by the Soviet people to the history of mankind.

I will then turn to foreign political questions. The past year was a year of triumph of the common cause against the German coalition, for the sake of which the peoples of the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the U. S. A. have united in military alliance. This was a year of consolidation of the unity and co-ordination of the operations of the three main powers against Hitlerite Germany.

The decision of the Teheran conference for joint action against Germany, and the brilliant putting into practice of those decisions, constitutes one of the clear indications of the stabilization of the front against the Hitlerite coalition.

Few large-scale planned military operations for joint action against a common enemy can be found in history carried out so fully and exacly as the plan for the joint blow against Germany, drawn up at the Teheran conference, was carried out.

There can be no doubt that without the unity of outlook and the co-ordination of action of the three great powers, the Teheran decisions could not have been realized so fully and exactly.

Sees Allies' Differences Solved

It is also without doubt, on the other hand, that successful realization of the Teheran decisions could not fail to serve to consolidate the front of the United Nations.

The decision of the conference at Dumbarton Oaks on the (word inaudible) organization of post-war security should be regarded as an equally clear indication of the stability of the front of the United Nations.

There is talk of differences between the powers on certain questions of security. Differences do exist, of course, and they will arise on a number of other issues as well.

Differences occur even among people of one and the same party. All the more so should they occur between representatives of different states and of different parties.

One should not be surprised because differences exist, but because there are so few of them, and that they are as a rule solved almost every time after the united and co-ordinated action of the three great powers. It is not a question of the differences, but that the differences should not be solved against the interests of the unity of the three great powers, and that in the final count they are solved in the direction of the interests of that unity.

It is known that more serious differences existed for us on the question of the opening of the second front. But we know equally well that these differences were solved in the long run in a spirit of complete agreement. I can say exactly the same concerning the differences at the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

Characteristic of this conference is not the fact that certain differences were revealed there, but that nine-tenths of the security questions were solved at this conference in the spirit of complete agreement.

That is why I think that the decisions of the Dumbarton Oaks conference should be regarded as one of the clear indications of the stability of the front against Germany.

A still more vivid indication of the consolidation of the United Nations front should be considered the recent negotiations with the head of the British government, Mr. Churchill, and the British Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Eden, in Moscow, held in a friendly atmosphere and in a spirit of complete agreement.

30. 24 — 20201

Throughout the whole course of the war the Hitlerites made desperate efforts to disunite the United Nations and set them one against the other, to cause suspicion and misunderstanding among them, to weaken their military efforts and mutual confidence, and possibly set them at war against each other.

These Hitlerite aspirations are fully understandable. For them there is no greater danger than the unity of the Untied Nations in the struggle against Hitlerite imperialism, and for them there would have been no greater military and political success than to disunite the Allied powers in their struggle against the common enemy.

It is known, however, how much in vain were the efforts of the Fascist politicians to dislocate the alliance of the great powers. This signifies that no accidental transitory motive, but vitally important long-term interests lie at the basis of the alliance of our country, Great Britain and the United States of America.

There is no need to doubt that if the fighting alliance of the democratic powers has stood the trial of more than four years of war, if it is consolidated by the blood of the peoples who have risen up in defense of their liberty and honor, the more so will that alliance stand the trials of the concluding stage of the war.

The last year, however, was not only a year of consolidation of the Allied powers against the German thrust, but a year the extension of that front. It cannot be considered an accident that after Italy, other allies of Germany were withdrawn from the war—Finland, Romania and Bulgaria.

It should be noted that these states not only withdrew from the war, but broke with Germany and declared war on her, thus attaching themselves to the front of the United Nations. This undoubtedly signifies an extension of the front of the United Nations against Hitlerite Germany.

World Security Next Task

There can be no doubt that the last ally of Germany in Europe, Hungary, will also be put out of commission shortly. This will signify complete isolation of Hitlerite Germany in Europe and early catastrophe will follow inevitably.

The United Nations make a victorious combination in the war against Hitlerite Germany. The war against Germany will be won by the United Nations. There can be no doubt at all on that score.

To win the war against Germany means to accomplish a great, historic task. But to win the war does not yet mean security to the peoples of the world in the future. The task is not only to win the war against Germany, but also to make impossible the outbreak of new aggression and a new war, if not forever, at least for the duration of a considerable period.

After the defeat of Germany she will, of course, be disarmed, both in the economic and in the military-political respects. However, it would be naive to think that she will not attempt to restore her power and develop new aggression. It is known to all that the German leaders are already preparing for a new war. History points to the fact that a short period, twenty or thirty years, is sufficient for Germany to recover from defeat and to restore her power. What means are available to avert new aggression by Germany? And if war arises, to stifle it at its very beginning, without allowing it to develop into large-scale war?

This question is the more appropriate because, as history shows, aggressive nations—nations which attack—are usually more prepared for a new war than peace-loving nations, which, not being interested in a new war, are usually too late in preparing for it. This means that the aggressive nations in this war already before the outbreak of war had an invasion army ready, while the peace-loving nations did not even have fully satisfactory armies at the crisis of mobilization.

Aggressors' Advantage

It cannot be considered accidental that such unpleasant facts occurred as the incident at Pearl Harbor, the loss of the Philippines and the other islands in the Pacific Ocean, the loss of Hongkong and Singapore, when Japan, as an aggressive nation, proved more prepared for war than Great Britain and the United States, which pursued a policy of peace.

Neither can we consider accidental such an unpleasant fact as the loss of the Ukraine, White Russia and the Baltic, during the very first year of war, when Germany, as an aggressive nation, proved more prepared for war than the peace-loving Soviet Union.

It would be naive to explain these facts by the personal qualities of the Japanese and Germans, their superiority over the British, Americans and Russians, their foresight, et cetera.

It is not a question of their personal qualities but of the fact that the aggressive nations, interested in a new war, as nations preparing for war over a long period and accumulating forces for this purpose, usually are, and must be, more prepared for war than peace-loving nations who are not interested in a new war. This is natural and comprehensible. This is, if you like, a law of history which cannot be denied.

It cannot be denied that in the future the peace-loving nations may again find themselves taken unawares by aggression, of course, if they do not work out now special measures capable of averting aggression. Thus, what means are there for averting new aggression by Germany, and if war arises in spite of that, stifling it at its very beginning and not allowing it to develop into large-scale war?

There are such means for this purpose. Apart from complete disarmament of the aggressive nations there is only one means, namely, to create a special organization to defend peace and insure security, composed of representatives of the freedom-loving nations, to put at the disposal of the leading organ of such an organization the essential amount of armed force required to avert aggression, and to make it the duty of this organization, in case of necessity, to apply without delay these armed forces to avert or liquidate aggression, and to punish those guilty of aggression.

World Security Organization

There must not be a repetition of the sad memory of the League of Nations, which did not have either the right or the means to avert aggression. It will be a new, special, empowered international organization with, at its disposal, everything required to defend peace and avert a new war.

Can one reckon on the fact that the activity of this international organization will be sufficiently effective?

It will be effective if the great powers, which have borne on their shoulders the main burden of the war against Germany, will act in future also in the spirit of unanimity and concord. It will not be effective if these essential conditions are violated.

Comrades! The Soviet people and the Red Army are successfully executing the tasks which have faced them during the patriotic war. The Red Army has worthily fulfilled its patriotic duty and liberated our motherland from the enemy.

Henceforth and forever our soil is free from the Hitlerite filth. Now the last, final mission remains for the Red Army, namely, to complete, together with the armies of our Allies, the task of defeating the German Fascist armies, finishing off the Fascist beast in his own lair, and raising over Berlin the banner of victory.

There is ground to reckon on this task being fulfilled by the Red Army in the near future.

Long live our victorious Red Army! Long live our glorious Navy! Long live the Soviet working people! Long live our great motherland! Death to the German Fascist invaders!

STALIN'S SPEECH DRAWS FAVORABLE COMMENT IN U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP) Marshal Stalin's Soviet anniversary speech today gave a boost to the fluctuating hopes of American diplomats for a greater display of cooperation by Russia with the Allies.

There is a strong conviction here that the Moscow government intends to play ball with the other Allied nations. But there is almost constant fear that its brusque methods of joining in the game may cost more friendship than good intentions buy.

Reaction Is Hopeful

Official reaction bounces between hope and apprehension. Thus Stalin's words tended for the moment to put down uneasiness aroused by Moscow's loud insistence on oil concessions in Iran and the beating administered to the present Iranian government by the Moscow press.

Stalin's speech, made on the anniversary of the Russian revolution, drew a very favorable reaction in Washington, largely because of its emphasis on cooperation among the great powers for the establishment of a great peace.

His insistence that the existence of differences among London, Washington and Moscow is not so amazing as "how small they are and how well they are solved peacefully," sounded very much like comments which have been made by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

This line suggested that there might be less difficulty than some United Nations diplomats have feared in arriving at a solution of the single remaining major problem for world organization.

There has been growing uneasiness on the part of some of these officials that the choice might be between giving in to Russia's insistence on a veto for each great power on security issues involving itself, or else simply counting Russia out of the picture, which would effectively kill the organization.

Actually recent Russian diplomatic developments set against Stalin's speech appear to illustrate what most authorities here have held as a basic view—that the Russians are following a dual foreign policy designed to provide them maximum security regardless of how the plans for world peace organization come out.

Cooperation Seen

Interpreted in this light it would appear that Soviet policy calls for full cooperation with the United States and Britain in the interest of peace and security; at the same time demonstrations against Iran, recent criticism of the governments of Spain, Portugal and Switzerland as pro Fascist, and policies with respect to Poland and other eastern European countries are designed to surround the U.S.S.R. with friendly territories and promote pro-Soviet governments elsewhere in Europe.

Even so, various incidents continue to be puzzling, among them the reasons assigned by Russia for failure to attend the Chicago aviation conference. The first explanation, which has been accepted as an indication of Soviet policy, was that the Russians did not want to sit down with what they called "pro-Fascist" Spain, Portugal and Switzerland.

Today the Soviet publication, war and the working class, said the reason that decision was so belated was that Moscow did not know until Oct. 24 that those three countries had been invited.

Actually, the list of invited countries was made public by the State department in early September.

Roosevelt Sends Victory Forecast

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message on the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution, today predicted the "early defeat of the Nazi aggressors" and the attainment of a lasting peace.

The President wired President Mikhail Kalinin of the Soviet Union:

"It gives me great pleasure on this national anniversary of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to send greetings to you and to the people of the Soviet Union.

"At this fateful time when the Red army and the armies of the United States and other United Nations are on German soil, we can look forward with even greater confidence to the early defeat of the Nazi aggressors and the attainment of our common goal—a durable and just peace and continuance of close collaboration between all the United Nations."

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., acting Secretary of State, wired V. M. Molotov, Foreign Commissar, "sincere felicitations" and likewise spoke of an early victory and "the establishment of an enduring and just peace built upon the firm foundations of cooperation and mutual understanding which have been wrought so firmly in the crucible of war."

The unsigned two-column survey of the American election asserted such a rumor was circulating among foreign correspondents in Moscow. It declared that "Republican bosses understand failure is imminent" and said that "under these circumstances there is no wonder the Republicans in despair might resort to a big adventure" in the hope of winning votes by "scaring people with the Communist danger."

Gov. Dewey, reached in Albany, had no comment. President Roosevelt was in seclusion in Hyde Park.

Izvestia's Explanation.

"One should not forget that history includes a number of such insolent, crude provocations, beginning with a faked document ascribed to Communists, which appear on the eve of parliamentary elections in some democratic countries, up to the burning of the Reichstag in Germany," Izvestia said.

According to the rumors, Izvestia said, "the fake plot against Dewey is being prepared by the Republican party with the responsibility for the plot fixed on American Communists."

"The reason for this provocation is clear—to make millions of voters jump in a different direction. It has been reported this fake plot will be realized at the very last moment before election, with the purpose to leave no time for denial or investigation."

The paper declared that "never before in the history of the United States have observers on the eve of a presidential election been so sure of the results as they are now, because so clear is the composition of forces supporting each of the two candidates."

Izvestia said Republican hopes were dashed when preliminary data indicated the number of voters this year would at least

Soviet Paper Reports Rumor Of 'Plot' on Dewey's Life

Moscow, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia, in an article headlined "The Election of Roosevelt Is Guaranteed," said yesterday there were rumors that Republican interests might stage a last-minute "fake plot" against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's life and charge it was instigated by American communists.

equal the 50,000,000 of 1940, adding that "the chances of the second candidate, Mr. Dewey, have been melting before one's eyes."

Assails Several Publishers.

The article said "the Hearst newspapers and the publications of McCormick, Patterson and Gannett carried on a campaign for Dewey and simultaneously this campaign was converted into a defeatist, even a pro-Hitlerite agitation."

[In Washington, Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, owner-publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, termed the Izvestia article as crazy. In Rochester, N. Y., Frank Gannett, publisher of the Gannett newspapers, described it as "ridiculous and absurd."]

"This crazy story, as quoted by the Associated Press, makes the close alliance between our present administration and that of Mr. Stalin and the Communist party clearer than ever," Mrs. Patterson declared.

Reds View Dewey Strategy.

The Izvestia article said that Mr. Dewey "attempted to divide himself from the defeatist, isolationist conceptions and the most compromised pro-Fascist elements—but still the pro-Fascists, pro-German ties of those who formed the core of the Republican staff who financed Mr. Dewey's election campaign are well known."

"His chances are insignificant," the article said, "not only because of the activity and growth of his opposition, but first of all because of the political aspects of his sympathizers. The election campaign proved the people who are for Mr. Dewey don't receive the sympathy and support of the broad masses of the American people. The campaign was carried on in the midst of a bloody war, wherein the best representatives of American youth are fighting against Fascism in an alliance with all freedom loving peoples."

Soviet Magazine Sees Japs' Doom

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP)—An editorial in War and the Working Class, Soviet trade union magazine, declared today that Japan's future is grim.

In a most frank discussion here yet of the Pacific war, the article gave this summation of Japan's situation:

"Japan's production cannot compete with that of the Allies. Japan's transport in the southern seas is paralyzed. Air raids of the Allies on Japan's industrial targets continue to increase. Japanese islands themselves have become objects of bombing."

The magazine said the American landings in the Philippines were a serious setback for Japan, giving the United States a springboard for an offensive aimed at destroying the system of Japanese colonization.

It added that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's return to the Philippines proved "the precariousness of Japan's 'great eastern Asiatic coprosperity sphere' proclaimed by the Japanese to cover their aggressive plans.

"The Japanese 'granted independence' to the Philippines but neither the Japanese nor their pro-Japanese president in the Philippines could convince the people that Japanese occupation was able to bring them prosperity or peace," the article stated.

SOVIET CRITICIZES JAPS IN PHILIPPINES

Moscow, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—The Soviet publication War and the Working Classes today declared that the American landing in the Philippines had proved "the precariousness of Japan's 'Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere,' proclaimed by the Japanese to cover their aggressive plans."

It was the most frank discussion here so far of Japanese adventures.

The article said in part: "The Japanese 'granted independence' to the Philippines but neither the Japs nor their pro-Japanese President in the Philippines could convince the people that Japanese occupation was able to bring them prosperity or peace."

Aviation Invitation List Unknown, Says Magazine

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Soviet magazine War and the Working Class declared today Russia did not know until October 24 that Spain, Portugal and Switzerland had been invited to the Chicago civil avation congress.

Moscow announced October 29 it had rejected an invitation to the conference because of the attendance of the three neutrals who do not have diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

The magazine commented that "Argentina conducts a pro-Fascist policy and is hostile toward the United States. These reasons induced Washington to issue no invitation to Argentina. So why did the organizers discover a different line when it came to Spain, Portugal and Switzerland?"

"The Soviet Union knew the representatives of neutral countries would be invited, but truly did not know which ones," said the magazine. "Of course there would be no objection to such neutrals as Sweden and Turkey."

GERMANS HOLD REDS AT BUDAPEST

LONDON, Nov. 6—(AP) Heavily reinforced German shock troops held the Russian besiegers at the gates of Budapest today as Soviet bombers made a dawn-to-dusk attack on enemy strongpoints and communications at the rear of the Hungarian capital.

A two-sentence Moscow communique, perhaps the shortest yet issued since the Russians began their great series of offensives last June 23, said that 'there were no essential changes on the front.'

Stalin Sees Victory

Premier-Marshal Stalin in an order of the day told the Russian armed forces today that the Red army and its Western Allies have taken up the jumping-off positions for the decisive offensive against the vital centers of Germany."

"We now stand on the eve of complete victory," the Soviet commander-in-chief told his troops, part of which are besieging Budapest, Hungarian capital on the Danube.

Stalin's order was issued on the 27th anniversary of the Soviet revolution. Earlier, in a proclamation, he had said that Hungary would be "put out of commission shortly," and that the fall of the last big European Nazi rally would "signify complete isolation of Hitlerite Germany, and early catastrophe will follow inevitably."

Soviet troops were fighting within two miles south of the big Nazi-operated Ferihegy airdrome in Budapest's outskirts after Sunday's capture of Andrassy, four miles southeast of the capital, and apparently were seeking to coil around the eastern part of the city.

Red Troops Checked

Heavily reinforced German shock troops checked the Russians yesterday, however, the Moscow communique announcing no essential change in the situation.

Soviet bombers carried out a dawn-to-dusk attack on the enemy's defense belt and communications at the rear of the capital, and Budapest reports relayed through Turkey said there was no intention of declaring the beautiful city an open one.

In a war review, Stalin disclosed that Russian troops had destroyed 120 German divisions—possibly 1,200,000 men killed or captured—since the big offensive began, and had cut off 30 divisions in Western Latvia.

Conditions inside the capital admittedly were chaotic, with the number of refugees fleeing the city increasing hourly and "seriously hampering" military traffic in the streets and on the roads to the northwest, Berlin said.

One usually reliable source here, with contacts inside Germany said Hungarian troops were being disarmed and their officers interned because of their increasing hostility toward the Germans.

The Rome radio reported reception of a free Hungarian broadcast calling for a general strike inside the capital, and urging the populace to protect the five main bridges still remaining across the Danube.

French and Turkish radio reports—all without Soviet confirmation—said the Russians had broken into the southern side of Budapest; that members of Prime Minister Ferenc Szalasi's Government had fled, and that the Germans had dynamited all the bridges connecting Buda and Pest.

Germans Report Counterattack At Budapest

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Furious fighting raged in the suburbs of shell-torn Budapest today as Russian infantry forces joined armored vanguards which had penetrated the defenses of the Hungarian capital from the north and south on the east side of the Danube river.

The Germans said they had recaptured the East Prussian rail town of Goldap, 19 miles inside the Reich, after surrounding the place. The Russians at midnight reported violent German counterattacks staved off there.

Russians Reported Regrouping

The enemy said also that a counterattack had started south of Budapest and that the Hungarian capital was not yet under a major Russian assault. The Red army was declared regrouping around and reinforcing for the final attempt.

The German radio announced early today that Soviet tanks crashed into the southern metropolitan limits, only two miles from the heart of the city, while a Bucharest broadcast said other Red army units, racing around the eastern edge of the capital, stormed the northern suburbs through Ujpest.

Bridgehead Attempt Expected

Russian troops also threatened to gain a bridgehead across the eastern fork of the Danube, just south of Budapest, and cross to narrow Csepel Island, which divides the river into two arms for 30 miles southward.

The city's German and Hungarian defenders were being captured at the rate of 1,000 a day, Moscow announced. Hungarian reports quoted by Bucharest indicated the bulk of the Nazi forces already were fleeing to the western part (Buda) of the Danube-straddling capital.

Danube Helps Nazi Defenses

The Danube bridgehead, presumably shaping up in the vicinity of the captured town of Taksony, seven miles south of the capital, appeared essential for decisive exploitation of the successful Red army sweep across the marshy plains between the Tisza and the Danube during the past week. The Danube represented a formidable defense for Nazi flanks on either side of the capital and Russian engineers were rushed up to prepare for its crossing.

The Moscow communique said enemy resistance had stiffened temporarily and was particularly furious against the Soviet column striking against Budapest's northeastern communications. It put the total of Nazi prisoners taken in the week's offensive at 10,518.

The Ankara radio said Hungarians were fleeing the city. The Budapest correspondent of the Turkish News Agency told of the blowing up of St. Margaret's bridge, one of the large spans connecting Pest, the larger district of the capital on the eastern side of the Danube, with Buda on the west.

RAF Night Attack On Coblenz Follows 4,000-Plane Day Blow

London, Tuesday, Nov. 7 (AP)—A fleet of RAF heavy bombers raided Coblenz last night after 4,000 Allied warplanes in daylight carried history's greatest aerial Blitz through its third straight day by blasting four German cities and raking communications from Helgoland to the Brenner Pass.

Coblenz, German traffic center behind the Western Front, was hit in a ten-minute saturation raid by high explosives and incendiaries, the Air Ministry said, and pilots reported huge fires and smoke rising nearly 10,000 feet.

The day-long strikes were carried out by 2,500 heavy bombers, who dumped 8,000 tons of explosives on four large cities, and 1,500 fighters and fighter-bombers.

17 Planes Missing

An American Eighth Air Force communique said that seven of its bombers and ten fighters were missing, but "some of the fighters are believed to be safe in friendly territory."

Five RAF bombers are missing, but all British fighters returned, the Air Ministry said.

From England, 1,100 American heavies and 700 fighters left clouds of black smoke puffing up from Hamburg and Harburg in the north, and another 750 RAF heavyweights and 300 escort fighters gave Gelsenkirchen in the Ruhr its fourth blasting in ten days.

Vienna Struck Again

Six hundred and fifty Italian-based United States four-engine bombers pounded Vienna, with 350 fighters clearing the way for them over the Brenner Pass. Continental based American and British fighters and fighter-bombers strafed enemy troops and concentrations in Holland and France.

A few German jet planes were downed by American fighter pilots, but nowhere did the German air force attack the bomber formations.

For three days the most furious aerial Blitz of all time has raged unchallenged by the Luftwaffe. Beginning Saturday more than 12,000 Allied planes have hammered 22 Reich cities, five of them twice, with more than 20,000 tons of explosives unloaded by 7,700 bombers. Fourteen of the more important cities have a combined population in excess of 6,000,000.

132d Hamburg Raid

Yesterday's raid on Hamburg was the 132d time that oil refinery center has been visited by Allied air fleets. The Rhenania Ensail synthetic oil plant at Hamburg received its eighth major bombing.

United States Eighth Air Force formations also hit other targets in western Germany, including Duisburg and railway yards at Neunmunster.

Heavy flak were met in the Rhur, but American bomber pilots picked their way "around the corners" and reported "good results."

Oil Plant Bombed

The Hydrierwerke Schloven oil plant at Gelsenkirchen was hit hard by 750 British Lancasters and Halifaxes, which gave the 1,000-ton-a-day factory its 52d bombing of the war.

The British heavies, escorted by more than 250 Spitfires and Mustangs, left smoke rising to 10,000 feet from their Gelsenkirchen objectives, pilots reported.

Targets in Holland were hit by other Polish, Norwegian, French and British Spitfire squadrons, which dropped hundreds of bombs on rail lines at Utrecht, Zutphen, The Hague and Swelle. Typhoons hurled rockets into a rail yard at Gouda.

In addition to blasting the Vienna area, United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers from Italy dropped a heavy concentration of explosives on an important power station at Bolzano on the Brenner Pass railroad today. Other Italian-based American heavies hit targets in northern Yugoslavia.

1800 U.S. PLANES BATTER REICH

War's Mightiest Air Drive Enters Its Third Day.

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—More than 1,800 American bombers and Fighters again today attacked industrial targets in western Germany as the Allies carried the mightiest bombing siege of the war into its third straight day.

The main force of an armada of over 1,100 Liberators and Fortresses of the Eighth United States Air Forces went for oil refiners in the Hamburg-Harburg region. Others attacked industrial and railroad objectives in the Ruhr valley. The bombers were escorted by 700 Mustangs and Thunderboats.

At the same time a force of probably more than 750 Lancasters and Halifaxes of the Royal Air Force, with fighter cover, hit the Reich a second shattering blow at Gelsenkirchen, in the Ruhr.

Heavy bombers of the Italian-based United States Fifteenth Air Force dropped a heavy concentration of explosives on an important power station at Bolzano on the Brenner Pass railway in the north of Italy, and other American heavy bombers from the Mediterranean attacked military targets in the Vienna area and in North Yugoslavia.

R. A. F. Attacks by Night.

Last night Mosquito bombers of the Royal Air Force sailed deep into Southwestern Germany and attacked the railway city of Stuttgart twice to keep the round-the-clock offensive going.

The Reich was battered over the week end from the west and south by approximately 9,000 American and British planes—virtually unopposed by the German air force—and there was every indication the all-out air offensive was continuing unchecked today.

The double-barrelled attack on Stuttgart brought to twenty-one the number of German cities that felt the weight of hundreds of tons of Allied bombs between noon Saturday and last midnight.

One other place, Solingen, the "Sheffield of Germany" on the southern fringes of the Ruhr, also was bombed twice by R. A. F. heavies.

Setting the pace for the two-way offensive aimed at knocking out Germany's synthetic oil plants and communications centers, were 4,000 American heavy bombers and 1,500 fighters from British and Italian bases.

In two coordinated blows on successive days the 8th and 15th Air Forces struck Hitler's war machine in 13 vital spots, ranging from Vienna and Regensburg, in the south of Hamburg, and Hannover in the north.

Steel, Coal Center Bombed

British heavies, continuing a new series of 1,000-bomber raids, hammered the steel and coal center of Bochum, in the Ruhr, with over 3,360 tons of high explosive and fire bombs Saturday night, while hundreds of American and British fighter and medium bombers roamed the Western Front night and day.

United States Thunderbolts, Marauders and Havocs smashed a hydroelectric dam near Fritzlar and attacked half a dozen railway yards in Germany Sunday. RAF Mosquitos shot up 15 trains in Holland last night.

Large numbers of Nazi night fighters came up in defense of Bochum but nowhere else did the giant armadas encounter much opposition.

Plane Landings Reported

Several planes previously listed as missing are known to have landed safely in France and total losses for all operations are not expected to exceed 120 aircraft. The Eighth Air Force lost 14 bombers and fighters out of a force of 1,900 Saturday, and the Fifteenth and 24 bombers and 13 fighters failed to return.

Fortresses and Liberators ran through intense flak over Frankfurt and Ludwigshaven yesterday and 30 bombers failed to return.

Meanwhile, robots launched from German planes over the North Sea were directed at southern England and the London area during the night, but apparently only a few penetrated the ring of defenses. Several flying bombs were shot down into the sea off East Anglia and at least one robot-launching Heinkel plane was destroyed.

London had an alert, but it was brief. Though several bombs fell inland over a wide area, first reports indicated damage was slight and casualties were few.

Yanks Get Weather Data In British Mosquitos

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Night weather reports from over Europe now are obtainable by an Eighth Air Force reconnaissance group flying British Mosquitos, it was announced today. The RAF formerly supplied the weather information to American airmen.

A Mosquito flown by two American weathermen made a shuttle trip to Russian bases before United States bombers made their first trip several months ago.

Capt. Earl L. Muchway, of California, pilot, and Capt. Lionel A. Proulx, of Massachusetts, navigator, scouted the path and checked weather along the entire route a few days after long-range Lightnings had mapped the course.

GIRLS PARACHUTED BACK OF NAZI LINES

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—The Royal Air Force disclosed today that French and Polish girl demolition experts were among the secret agents parachuted from British planes into the south of France before the Mediteranean D day.

Allied Transport Parley May Adjourn

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—The European Inland Transport Conference today faced adjournment in failure with American and Russian delegates deadlocked over a proposal to grant authoritative power to the new Allied transport organization.

The crisis arose when the American delegate, Robert Hooker, Jr., proposed that the organization's executive board have power to dictate its decisions to the smaller nations without their approval. Major General Obyden, representing Russia, opposed Hooker's proposal, insisting the board should be only consultative and smaller nations should have the right to make their own decisions.

Of the eight small nations represented at the conference, all except Yugoslavia supported the American proposal.

Conference May Adjourn

Unless a compromise can be reached within a few days, reliable quarters close to the various delegates said the conference would adjourn and the whole thing be forgotten for the time being.

The conference opened October 10 and met two to three times a week at the beginning, with members of the Big Three meeting every day.

The entire conference last met October 27. The Big Three suspended consultations almost three weeks ago because of the American-Russian conflict.

Russian Delegates Waiting

The Russian delegates are now awaiting instructions from Moscow before proceeding.

The draft of the proposed transport organization, which would control all European transport—railways, waterways and roads—to assure priority for the military, relief and the return of war prisoners, was submitted to the conference after consultations between the United States State Department and the British Foreign Office.

France Gets Delegate

It proposed that a council, with representatives from all the European allies, meet twice a year. There would also be an executive board with three permanent members—America, Russia and Britain. Two temporary members would be elected by the council for one-year terms.

When the draft was introduced, Rene Massigli, the French delegate, indicated that if France were not given a permanent seat on the executive board, he would withdraw from the parley. The delegates agreed then that France would hold a permanent seat along with the big three.

NEW ROBOT BLOWS

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Robots launched from German planes over the North Sea were directed at southern England and the London area during the night, but apparently only a few penetrated the ring of defenses. Several flying bombs were shot down into the sea off east Anglia and at least one robot-launching Heinkel plane was destroyed.

London had an alert, but it was brief. Though several bombs fell inland over a wide area, first reports indicated damage was slight and casualties few.

ugoslav-Greek Border Now Under Tito's Rule

Albanian Patriots Fighting in Streets of Tirana

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP).—Marshal Tito announced in a communique today that the entire Yugoslav-Greek frontier had been brought under control of his partisan forces with the liberation of Ritolj.

Albanian patriots have gained control of the greater part of Tirana, their capital, in three days of street fighting, the communique said.

[Yugoslav Premier Ivan Subashitch, "who has concluded an agreement with Marshal Tito, is going to Moscow to meet the Soviet government," the Paris radio reported.]

Quisling Gives Power To Lie

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Major Vidkun Quisling, apparently seeking means of easing Allied retribution for his crimes, has relegated full dictatorial powers to Jonas Lie, Norwegian puppet Minister of Police, and secluded himself in his $360,000 "Berchtesgaden" retreat near Oslo.

A Norwegian Government spokesman disclosed today that Quisling had signed a decree giving Lie unlimited power to maintain public order. Lie's new position is similar to that held by Himmler in Germany.

"It appears," the spokesman said, "that Quisling is voluntarily out of the picture in an attempt to persuade the Allies by shifting all responsibility for future conditions in Norway on the plea that he was merely a figurehead."

Norwegian sources here give Quisling little chance of escaping the country. They believe he will die at the hands of patriots.

BRAIN AILMENT, HITLER RUMOR

Latest Report Has Fuehrer Under Care Of Specialist

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—The mystery as to the whereabouts and condition of the long-silent Adolf Hitler gained new piquancy today with a rumor that a brain specialist had been called to him at a hideout near Berchtesgaden.

Hitler supposedly is staying in a huge castle at Klessheim, about seven miles from his usual mountain retreat, while new fortifications are completed in the Salzburg-Berchtesgaden area. It was there that the brain specialist—identified by rumor only as Professor Horster—was reported to have examined him.

Distributed On Grapevine

This story, obviously unauthoritative but distributed on London's European grapevine as "hot" information, at least had the reliable background of Hitler's almost complete retirement from the public eye and ear since the bombing attempt on his life last July 20.

German citizens haven't seen or heard from their Fuerher since a voice, supposedly his, made a broadcast during the early hours of the morning following the bombing. He was conspicuously absent from the state funeral of his favorite general, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Himmler Speeches

He let fast-rising Heinrich Himmler make the vital speech calling all that was left of German manpower into the volkssturm. Again last night he let Himmler grab the headlines with the speech commemorating the fifth anniversary of the seizing of western Poland.

It was reported with some authority that Hitler visited the East Prussian front two weeks ago. If so, the usually voluble German radio did not make much of it.

Reports From Reich

The story that a brain specialist had been called into consultation at Klessheim was given backing today by a former German citizen who is known to receive fairly frequent reports from inside the Reich. His information goes regularly to the British Foreign Office.

He said it had been confirmed also that Hitler had been in seclusion for more than a week in the castle there, while fortifications in the immediate vicinity of Berchtesgaden were being strengthened.

These fortifications were described as part of a much larger scheme under which the whole Alpine region of southern Germany, stretching from the Swiss border nearly to Vienna and encompassing Berchtesgaden, was being made into a fortress that could hold out for months.

Insures Resistance

Hitler, according to this same source, has been persuaded by Himmler to remain in this region and foreswear public appearances in order to protect his life and insure continued German resistance in the event of a large-scale Allied breakthrough into the Reich.

He said the special SS guard had been doubled in the last week.

From another source came a story today that the Fuehrer is now having a new test of strength with his currently top-ranking general, Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt.

Political Interference

Rundstedt, once recalled from France but later given top billing, is supposed to have extracted a promise from Hitler that he would be allowed to handle the Western Front without political interference.

Hitler was said to have encroached on this promise by insisting that Count von Schwerin, first commander of Aachen, be tried for his life on a charge of treason. Schwerin reportedly told Hitler that Aachen could not be defended and was promptly removed from his command. A death sentence for Schwerin supposedly would be a solar plexus blow for Rundstedt, and acquittal, a slap for Hitler.

DARDANELLES TALK IS REPORTED BEGUN

London, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Great Britain, Russia and the United States have opened conversations with Turkey on the future of the Dardanelles, it was reported by a usually reliable informant today.

A Foreign Office spokesman disclaimed knowledge of the development, but it was stated in another quarter that the Turks will face a minimum Russian demand for the demilitarization of the straits which they fortified in 1936. Russia is almost certain, too, to seek an unchallenged warm sea outlet as one of her rewards for victory.

There has been some speculation on the possibility of dealing with the Dardanelles in the future through the creation of a small state incorporating the straits and leaving its administration under international control. The Anglo-American attitude will undoubtedly be tempered by the fact of Turkey's neutrality during the war years when Allied fortunes were at their lowest point, and by her final agreement in August to sever diplomatic and economic ties with Germany.

Lord O'Neill Killed In Action

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Lord O'Neill, 37, was killed in action while commanding the North Irish Horse Troops in Italy, it was announced today.

Post-War Auto Boom Seen

Middlebrough, England, Nov. 6 (AP)—A spokesman for the British automobile industry predicted today there was at least $400,000,000 worth of export business a year waiting for the industry for five years after the war.

Sir Miles Thimas, vice-president of Morris Motors, Britain's largest automobile manufacturing company, made the prediction in a speech prepared for the Chamber of Commerce here, but he complained that the Government was hampering management's preparations by failing to outline the tax program for the industry.

"We urgently want to make the best approach to the world market," Sir Miles said, "but to do so we want to know if we are going to be in a position to build a type of car best calculated to suit the demands of the overseas customer."

Speed A Factor

"The speed with which British goods can be offered on export markets will have a profound effect on the prosperity on this country for years to come," he added. "If we can secure a firm foothold while the markets are still empty after the hiatus of war production we stand a very good chance of creating a volume of trade that can be held in years to come. If we let this opportunity slip, we shall be eternally regretful.

"World prosperity cannot accrue unless the British Empire is prosperous, and American, with her broad outlook, is fully conscious of that fact."

Danes Seize Giant Ferry While Under Nazi Escort

By The Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 6 —A huge Danish ferry essential to the Germans in traffic between the islands of Zealand and Fyn escaped today to the Swedish port of Halsingborg instead of going to Helsingoer, a Danish port just across the channel between Denmark and Sweden, for repairs as had been scheduled.

The ferry carries 1,500 passengers.

The Office of War Information reported yesterday that the Swedish radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said five Danish patriots had taken the ferry to Sweden after overwhelming its unarmed captain, officers and twenty-seven crew members and escaping from a German minesweeper that had been escorting it to the repair yard.

GERMAN PATROLS ACTIVE IN ITALY

By LYNN HEINZERLING

ROME, Nov. 6 — (AP) German patrols jabbed hard at Allied positions in Italy today and enemy artillery laid down heavy fire as a long spell of bad weather broke and gave Iron line troops their first view of the sun in days.

American patrols also were active in testing defenses the Nazis have constructed around the southern approaches to Bologna. Mud and swollen streams still hampered operations.

German troops opposing the British advance up Highway 9 from Rimini to Bologna clung tenaciously both to the village of Ronco, two miles southeast of Forli, and to the northeast corner of Forli airfield. Sharp British artillery fire drove back German tanks at Forli yesterday.

A full moon last night gave the Germans their opportunity to make the monthly small-scale night air raids. Three enemy planes strafed and bombed Highway 65 south of Bologna, causing only minor damage.

American troops took advantage of the sunshine to repair supply roads to the front and dry out their sodden equipment.

An Allied communique disclosed that Allied warships for the past five days had been bombarding German positions near the French-Italian border.

Positions In Italy Still Unchanged

Rome, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Germans began aggressive patrolling of Allied positions in Italy today and several Nazi planes attacked the Fifth Army sector below Bologna, but Allied headquarters said front-line positions were virtually unchanged.

The weather cleared a bit after several weeks of heavy rains but mud and swollen streams still hampered operations.

The Germans clung to the village of Ronco and the buildings on the northeast corner of the Forli airfield. Yesterday the Nazis brought six-barreled mortars into action, but tanks backing up their troops withdrew under sharp Allied artillery fire.

Ships Shell Positions

An Allied communique disclosed that during the last five days Allied warships bombarded enemy positions near the Franco-Italian border.

Americans threw back a small-scale attack near Mount Belmonte yesterday. The Fifth Army troops were using the lull in fighting to repair roads and dry out equipment.

Matteotti Case Reopened

Rome Court Annuls Sentences of Socialist Deputy's Slayers

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Court of Cassation today ordered reopening of the celebrated Giacomo Matteotti case, annulling the sentences imposed by Fascist courts on those convicted of slaying the famed Socialist Deputy in 1926. All were pardoned under Mussolini after serving brief terms.

The motion to reopen the case was made by Mario Berlinguer, high commissioner for punishment of Fascist crimes, who said Fascist pressure prevented a fair trial at the time.

Anti-Fascists have contended for a generation that Mussolini himself was directly involved in the slaying. It is uncertain when the retrial will be held.

Legion Of Merit Won By Sergeant In WAC

Rome, Nov. 6 (AP)—Staff Sergeant Ella C. Wright, of Kalama, Wash., was awarded the Legion of Merit today, the first enlisted member of the WACs to receive the award.

Sergeant Wright was cited for "exceptional and meritorious conduct" as a telephone operator in North Africa and Italy from February 4, 1943, to October 24, 1944, during which time she was responsible for the switchboard at Allied headquarters.

Fascist Prosecutor Arrested

Rome, Nov. 6 (AP)—Michele Isgro, Fascist prosecutor who sent scores of anti-Fascists, including the Communist leader, Antonio Gramasci, to concentration camps during the Mussolini regime, was seized today by police.

Italian Count Flees Nazis

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 6 (AP)—Gen. Count Calvi di Bergolo, a son-in-law of King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, escaped from northern Italy where he had been held prisoner by the Germans, it was reported here today.

The husband of Princess Yolanda was entrusted with the defense of Rome in September, 1943, when the Government of the then Premier Badoglio quit the capital.

James Varnell of Charleston, Tenn., today as the second ranking American ace in the Mediterranean when he destroyed his seventeenth enemy plane. Lieut.-Col. Capt. Varnell has returned to the United States.

Capt. Aulisi, Republican, of Amsterdam, N. Y., was assured re-election for a third successive six-year term by the indorsement of the Republican, Democratic and American Labor parties. The oath will be sent by air mail to the county clerk and Capt. Aulisi will continue his military leave of absence.

Lord Moyne, British Envoy In Cairo, Killed By Gunmen

IN CAIRO ATTACK

Cairo, Nov. 6 (AP)—Two gunmen shot and fatally wounded Lord Moyne, 64, British Resident Minister in the Middle East since 1942, and killed his chauffeur today as Lord Moyne alighted from his automobile at his residence.

Both the attackers were captured, one of them wounded by a constable a. he fled. Tonight the Egyptian Government announced that neither of them were Egyptian but their identities and nationality were not disclosed. They apparently had hidden in the entrance to his residence.

[The London radio, said General Sir Bernard Paget, British commander for the Middle East, had stated that the men who shot Lord Moyne were Jewish.]

Wounded In Stomach And Neck

Lord Moyne was wounded in the stomach and neck when his assailants emptied their revolvers at him. His military driver, apparently killed instantly, slumped over the steering wheel of the car. The Minister died a few hours later at the army hospital where he had been taken for an operation to remove the bullets.

The two gunmen attempted to flee across the front grounds of the residence, but one was shot by an Egyptian constable and the other was captured near by. Both were held by Cairo police.

Neither the Governor nor the police has released any explanation of the attack on Lord Moyne.

Held Several Cabinet Posts

Lord Moyne, Walter Edward Guinness, was born in Dublin in 1880, a member of the family which manufactures the famous Guinness ale and stout. He was educated at Eton and served in the army during the Boer and first World War.

Elected a member of Parliament in 1907, he served as Under Secretary of State for War in 1922-23, Financial Secretary to the Treasury in 1923-24, Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries from 1925 to 1929, Secretary of State for Colonies in 1941-42 and was leader of the House of Lords in 1941-42.

He took his post here in August, 1942.

LORD MOYNE SHOT

they emptied firing at his auto. Lord Moyne fell wounded near the steps leading to his house.

His chauffeur, apparently killed instantly, collapsed over the car's steering wheel.

Their attackers attempted to get away across the front grounds of the home. One was shot, his companion was caught near by.

Walter Edward Guinness, Lord Moyne, is 64 years old. He was born in Dublin and has a long career in public service.

Lord Moyne took his post at Cairo in August, 1942, following a career in which he served as Colonial Secretary in 1941-42, Under-Secretary of State for War in 1922-23 and leader of the House of Lords.

CHINESE HALT JAP DRIVE NEAR LIUCHOW

CHUNGKING, Nov. 6 — (AP) Chinese troops have halted a Japanese drive 45 miles north of Liuchow, Kwangsi province rail center and site of the last U. S. air base in Eastern China, the High command announced tonight.

The Japanese column, one of three closing in on Liuchow, bypassed Yungfu on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad in a swift drive toward Liuchow. The High command said the enemy was checked in fierce fighting.

Yungfu was cut off completely. It is 33 miles south of Kweilin, one-time site of a U. S. air field, where bitter fighting is raging.

Japs In Liuchow Drive Halted

Chungking, Nov. 6 (AP)—Japanese forces which by-passed the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Yungfu in an advance on Liuchow, Kwangsi province rail hub and site of the last United States air base in eastern China, are being fought to a halt 45 miles from their objective, the Chinese high command announced today.

All contact with Yungfu itself, 33 miles southwest of Kweilin was cut, however. The Japanese column advancing down the railway was one of three enemy forces converging upon Liuchow. It previously was reported 53 miles from the city.

Fighting Near Hsiujen

Japanese units driving toward Liuchow from the east received large reinforcements and brisk fighting is in progress in the vicinity of Hsiujen, 47 miles east of Liuchow, it was announced.

Enemy troops were engaged in a continuing battle with the Chinese in the eastern and southern suburbs of Mosun, south of Liuchow. This Japanese column also was only 45 miles from Liuchow.

The Chinese high command said the Japanese attacking the city of Kweilin from the east were engaged in fierce fighting Sunday and were thrown back with "heavy casualties."

Jap Drive Intercepted

An independent Japanese drive in southern Kwangsi province, developing along the West river, was intercepted after it had overrun the river point of Kweinsien, 90 miles southeast of Liuchow, the Chinese said.

The situation remained grave, meanwhile, at Kweilin, Kwangsi province capital 95 miles northeast of Liuchow, where the enemy previously was reported to have fought into the eastern, western and northern suburbs.

Front dispatches said the Chinese still were resisting desperately, but the fate of the city apparently was sealed. Indicating the confidence of the Japanese that their assaults would be successful was the fact that one of their columns already had by-passed the city and stormed into Yungfu, 30 miles to the southeast.

Former U. S. Base Site

Kweilin formerly was the site of one of the most important advanced United States air bases in China. Since mid-September, however, when the Japanese threat to the city began to develop, it had been used as little more than a staging stop for fighters and bombers en route to support Chinese ground forces to the northeast.

Demolition crews at that time blew up secondary installations and a front dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Clyde Farnsworth disclosed that the work of destruction was completed October 28 when runways and remaining buildings were wrecked.

John Curtin Ill; Meetings Off

Minister John Curtin of Australia is ill and is not expected to resume his official duties for several weeks. Meetings of the War Cabinet and War Council scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday were canceled today.

Buenos Aires Press Attentive To Election

Buenos Aires, Nov. 6 (AP)—The press of Buenos Aires for the past several weeks has been devoting columns of space to the United States Presidential election campaign and today's editions carried headlines such as "Yankee election affects world destiny."

Most of the newspapers carried maps of the United States showing the distribution of electoral votes as well as biographical sketches of President Roosevelt and Thomas E. Dewey.

In editorials, the United States was praised for practicing democracy by holding elections despite the war.

EDEN IS SEEN AS NEXT BRITISH PRIME MINISTER

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 — (AP) Prime Minister Winston Churchill and a "host of other people" regard Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden as the next Prime Minister of Britain, but "whether he ever attains it depends on those. . . chances of party fortune, which are such incalculable quantities in politics," Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery here, Mr. MacDonald said no one can really be certain what will be the main development in British politics after the war. There were many alternative possibilities.

A full-blown coalition government might continue in office, or a partial coalition government might be retained. The electors might choose a wholly conservative government, or they might prefer a labor administration.

New Transatlantic Record

Montreal, Nov. 6 (AP)—A transatlantic record of 10 hours 13 minutes—one hour and one minute less than the one set last January—was chalked up today by a Trans-Canada Air Lines Lancaster flying non-stop from here to Britain, it was announced tonight.

There were no passengers aboard the record-setting plane but the aircraft was carrying 6,031 pounds of mail for members of Canadian armed forces overseas.

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (AP)—Diplomatic relations between Japan and Romania have ceased, Domei, Japanese news agency, announced in a broadcast today. FOUR DAYS IN WATER

By Associated Press.

Quartermaster Third Class Neil Dethless, 20 years old, of Olympia, Wash., survived the bitter naval battle of Samar but only after floating in the water for four days, an Australian correspondent reported from the Philippines.

Delirious and weak, Dethless finally reached the Samar coast, the last of a group of American seamen who had started out to swim for the island when their destroyer sunk, the correspondent said in a dispatch broadcast by radio to the Sydney Daily Telegraph, the Brisbane Courier-Mail and the Melbourne Sun-Pictorial. The ship was one of a destroyer unit which gave battle to a Japanese force of four battleships, nine cruisers and twelve destroyers.

SUPERFORTRESSES STRIKE POWERFUL BLOW AT SINGAPORE

Sumatra Oil Plant Blasted Too by B-29s—Manila Reported Pounded.

Washington, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Striking audaciously by daylight, America's gigantic B-29 Superfortresses plastered military targets at Singapore in one of two raids yesterday. The once mighty bastion of British naval power in the Pacific was attacked in substantial force, while other Superfortresses struck heavily at the Pangkalan-Brandon oil refinery on the north coast of Sumatra. None of the gigantic bombers was lost to enemy action in either blow.

[The enemy-controlled Manila radio today announced that the Manila area was raided by 300 American planes yesterday and by 150 more today. The Tokyo radio said that one of the Superfortresses attacking Sumatra was shot down. Tokyo also declared that while the attack on Sumatra was in progress, other Superfortresses were making a reconnaissance flight over Tokyo and the industrial section of Honshu, the main island of Japan. No bombs were dropped in Japan, Tokyo added. All these enemy statements were unconfirmed. They were contained in broadcasts picked up by the FCC and distributed by the Associated Press.]

Record Daylight Assault.

The attack on Singapore was the longest daylight assault ever flown by military planes, and a communique described results as good-to-excellent. The weather was so clear that observers witnessed direct hits on a control house in the largest drydock and on other vital points; in addition, two direct hits were scored on a Japanese ship in drydock.

There was a strong presumption that the long-arm blow of the Superfortresses against Singapore was meant to hinder the refitting of wounded Japanese warships that may have fled to that haven from the naval battles in the Philippine seas.

At Pangkalan-Brandon at least one bomb dropped squarely on the refinery which was described as the second most important source of high octane gasoline in the Far East. No. 1 is the Pladjoe refinery at Palembang, also on Sumatra, which was hit last month. Only weak fighter plane opposition was reported, and anti-aircraft fire was moderate, it was announced.

It was against the Pladjoe refinery that the longest bombing mission, day or night, was flown on the night of August 10—a mission which exceeded yesterday's daylight raids by only a few miles.

Yesterday's communique said nothing concerning Japanese radio reports of "enemy planes" scouting over the eastern seacoast of the Japanese home island of Honshu.

Capt. Watkins Decorated For Submarines' Feats

Gets Legion of Merit as Scourge of Japanese Ships

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP).—Captain Frank T. Watkins, commander of a submarine division which scourged Japanese shipping, was awarded the Legion of Merit at ceremonies today in the office of Navy Under Secretary Ralph A. Bard.

Captain Watkins, a resident of Hollywood, Calif., was cited for leading his division for two years in what the Navy called "a relentless drive toward the disruption of Japanese naval and merchant shipping operations." His command completed forty-five hazardous patrols and sank or damaged a "tremendous amount of tonnage" including many combat vessels, the citation said.

Mr. Bard also pinned the Legion of Merit on Commander Charles H. Crichton, of Loveland, Colo., for skippering a destroyer in the Pacific, and on Captain William B. Jackson jr., of Paulding, Ohio, as chief of staff of the South Pacific Commander Service Squadrons.

President Roosevelt May Visit Paris

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The possibility that President Roosevelt may visit Paris was raised today as the result of an invitation extended by the French Provisional Government.

The invitation was made in a letter to Secretary of State Hull from Henri Hoppenot, French Minister and delegate to this country.

The letter stated that the French would be "particularly happy" if Hull could accompany the Chief Executive to their capital.

There has been speculation on an impending meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, and the President might include a Paris visit on a trip to such a conference. Unsettled conditions in France, however, could prevent such a visit.

6,000 Wounded Reconditioned Weekly

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The army now is able to return wounded soldiers from reconditioning classes at the rate of 6,000 a week, Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk has reported.

In addition, about 2,000 other wounded veterans, who have gone through the course designed to fit them for active life, are being discharged each week.

Of 229,212 soldiers wounded since the beginning of the war, 105,449 have returned to duty, the War Department announced recently.

Burial of the late head of the British joint staff mission in the United States will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

G. I. Bill Likely To Be Revised

Washington, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—Congressional sources predicted today that the G. I. Bill of Rights would be tossed back into Congress, possibly next week, as the first of the post-election legislative moves. The cause for the revival of discussion on the act, which provides various benefits for service men, is an interpretation by the Veterans' Administration which would make disability compensation subject to Federal attachment if the veteran becomes unable to continue his payments on G. I. loans for homes, farm and businesses.

Prisoners of War Cannot Vote

Washington, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—The more than 37,000 United States service men and women who are prisoners of war will not be permitted to vote in tomorrow's election. The War Department said today that the armed forces' privilege of casting absentee ballots is not extended to war prisoners because of military secrecy and matters pertaining to the prisoners' welfare.

Supreme Court Hears Cramer Treason Appeal

Friend of Two German Saboteurs Asks Reversal of His Conviction Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP).—Government and defense attorneys gave varying interpretations of treason today in arguments on the first treason conviction to reach the Supreme Court.

The arguments involved the appeal of Anthony Cramer, naturalized citizen of German birth, who was convicted in the Southern New York Federal District Court of aiding two of the eight German saboteurs landed from a submarine in 1942. He was sentenced to forty-five years' imprisonment and fined $10,000.

Cramer's appeal was argued last spring, but the court ordered a rehearing, with particular reference to the nature of treason.

Harold Medina, counsel for Cramer, told the court that a "mere attempt" to aid the enemy is not treason. Solicitor General Charles Fahy, however, defined treason as an intent to betray one's country, coupled with a visible act to carry out the intentions.

Mr. Medina acknowledged that Cramer and two of the saboteurs, Werner Thiel and Edward John Kerling, drank beer together in a New York restaurant shortly after the saboteurs landed.

"Nobody knows what they said while drinking beer," he told the court. "The whole question depends on what they said, and if there's no proof of what they said, the whole thing comes down to zero."

Mr. Fahy argued, however, that this was "no mere meeting."

"It was a meeting with the known enemy," he said. "Cramer must have known Thiel and Ker-ling were the enemy over here in furtherance of enemy purposes."

Mr. Fahy said Cramer had accepted for safekeeping money brought to this country by the Germans, and his entire course of action, plus his knowledge of the identity of the enemy, proved his intent to aid the enemy.

Mr. Fahy said that Cramer was "that some one" inside this country without whom an enemy plan of sabotage could not succeed.

Under questioning by Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson, Mr. Medina said he would not consider it treason if any American sent munitions to Japan and the ship sank in mid-ocean so that the munitions did not arrive. By the same reasoning, he added, Cramer's "attempt" to aid the enemy did not constitute treason because the saboteurs failed and no actual aid was given.

Of the eight saboteurs, six have been executed. One was sentenced to life imprisonment and another to thirty years.

SUPREME COURT DENIES PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP) A complaint by the Court of Claims that Congress dictated to it and stepped on its judicial toes failed to enlist any sympathy from the Supreme Court today.

By an 8-0 vote, the High tribunal reversed the lower court's refusal to consider a damage suit in compliance with a special Congressional act. The Court of Claims had protested that the act encroached upon its judicial rights.

The dispute stemmed back 17 years when a contractor, Allen Pope, sued the government for $306,000 damages for breach of contract on a tunnel excavation job in the District of Columbia.

Pope was awarded $45,174 in that suit. Then, two years ago, Congress passed a special act directing the court to hear the suit again, regardless of its previous decision and to award a judgment in line with certain specifications in the act.

Pope renewed his suit, this time for $162,102, but the Court of Claims balked at hearing it, contending that Congress could not "effectively direct" it to decide the case again or give Pope a judgment determined by "simple computation."

The Supreme court's opinion, written by Chief Justice Stone, said the act did not set aside the previous judgment, but rather had the effect of creating a new obligation on the government's part to pay Pope's claims. There was no constitutional obstacles, Justice Stone's opinion said, to bar Congress from imposing this new obligation upon the government if it thought that Pope had not been adequately compensated.

"The Power of Congress to provide for the payment of debts extends to creation of such obligations in recognition of claims which are merely moral or honorary. Congress by the creation of a legal, in recognition of a moral, obligation to pay petitioner's (Pope's) claims plainly did not encroach upon the judicial function which the Court of Claims had previously exercised."

Loans $42,000,000,000 Under U. S. Debt Limit

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Government can sell additional securities with face value of about $42,000,000,000 before reaching the present debt limit of $260,000,000,000, the Treasury reported today.

Total gross public debt, including guaranteed obligations, now is a little less than $218,000,000,000, of which about $209,000,000,000 represents obligations subject to the statutory debt limit.

The $260,000,000,000 limit, however, is on face value; that is, the amount the Government would have to repay if all persons held their securities until maturity date. In terms of face value, the $209,000,000,000 debt becomes $218,000,000,000, or $42,000,000,000 short of the limit set by Congress.

HOUSE CONTROL HINGES ON VOTE

432 Seats At Stake Today. 35 Senate Contests

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—While choosing a President, Americans also will name 35 Senators and 432 House members.

House Republicans, now with 212 seats to 214 for the Democrats (there are four minor-party seats and five vacancies), figure they have the best chance in 12 years to take control. They have surged from 89 seats in 1937 to a virtual tie, and all they have to do to reorganize the House is pick up six additional seats. They're talking about 60 or more. But Democrats express confidence, too, predicting a gain in their strength of 25 to 40 seats.

Sixty-one House members — 51 Democrats, including Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Texas), nine Republicans and one American-Labor member—are unopposed, and certain of their seats.

Senate Shift Held Unlikely

In the Senate, most analysts expect the Democrats to retain control. There now are 58 Democrats, 37 Republicans and 1 Progressive in that body. The 35 seats to be filled — including three short-term seats—are held by 22 Democrats and 13 Republicans. There are 36 Democratic, 24 Republican and one Progressive holdovers, who are not up in this election. Thus, the Democrats need win only 13 of the 35 contests to retain control of the 96-member branch. The Republicans would have to take 25 of the 35 contests to gain a clear majority.

Some prognosticators of GOP gains in the House pointed to the 1918 election, within a week of the end of the first World War, when the voters took control of the House from the Democrats and gave it to the Republicans. The Presidency was not at issue that year; Woodrow Wilson had two more years to serve.

Presidential And Off Years

On the other hand, Speaker Rayburn pointed out that each time Mr. Roosevelt has been a candidate the number of Democrats in the House has increased. The Democratic losses have come in off years as in 1942 when the Republicans picked up 44 seats.

Several Congressional contests are drawing major attention.

New York Senatorial—Senator Robert F. Wagner (D.), author of the Wagner Labor Relations Act, opposed by Thomas J. Curran, New York Secretary of State and long associate of Governor Dewey.

Massachusetts Congressional—Fourteenth district, where Joseph W. Martin, Jr., House Republican leader, is opposed by Edwin P. Talbot, Democrat. Martin is slated to become Speaker if the Republicans take control.

Fish Against Bennet

New York Congressional—Twenty-ninth district, with Representative Hamilton Fish battling Augustus W. Bennet. Fish, by the seniority rule, would become chairman of the House Rules Committee if he wins and the Republicans organize the House.

Connecticut Congressional — Fourth district races between Representative Clare Boothe Luce, Republican, and 29-year-old Attorney Margaret E. Connors, of Bridgeport, Democrat.

Illinois Congressonal—Representative Stephen A. Day, Republican, pre-war opponent of Administration foreign policy, against Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas, Democrat, wife of Capt. Paul Douglas, of the marines.

Mrs. Douglas A Candidate

California Congressional—Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, actress-wife of the movie star, Melvin Douglas, now an air corps major, running as a Democrat in the 14th district against William D. Campbell, Republican, Los Angeles businessman.

Hot Senate races include: Kentucky—Senate Majority Leader Barkley vs. James Park, Republican; Connecticut—Republican Senator Danaher vs. Brian McMahon, Democrat; California—Senator Downey, Democrat, vs. Frederick F. Houser, Republican; Iowa—Senator Gillette, Democrat, vs. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Republican Governor; Illinois—Senator Scott Lucas, Democrat, vs. Richard J. Lyons, Republican; North Dakota—Gerald Nye, Republican incumbent, vs. John Moses, Democrat, and Lynn Stambaugh, Independent; Oklahoma—Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, vs. William J. Otjen.

NATION CASTS BALLOT TODAY

Hot Race Closes; Soldier Vote May Be Decisive

Both Democrat, GOP managers predict victory in State Page 24

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—The 1944 political slugging tapered to an inconclusive end tonight, and tomorrow the votes of some 44,000,000 Americans will pick a wartime President.

With those millions of voters, conscious of war, aware that peace must be made to endure, rested the decision between Republican Thomas E. Dewey, bidding for the nation's highest office, and Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt, who already has held it 12 years.

The polling places, 130,000 of them, are opening as early as 6 A. M. (Eastern War Time), to the march of the voters. The last ones close 17 hours later.

In the interval the political fortunes of 1,114 candidates—for President, Vice-President, Governor, Senate and House—will be settled. But it may be days or weeks before America knows all the men who will direct her destinies for the next four years.

Soldier Vote May Decide

The soldier vote, estimated at 3,462,000, may be the controlling factor in a close, bitterly fought campaign. And 11 States are delaying the counting of service selections.

The crescendo of rhetoric and eloquence, which politicians din into American ears every four years, died away tonight. The oratorical spigots were turned off. The name-calling, the invective and vituperation which crept into one of the most hotly contested campaigns in recent political history were discarded at last.

President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey had all the radio networks at their command late last night for final expressions of thanks to party workers and for appeals to the electorate to exercise the Democratic privilege of the franchise.

Polls Leave 'Outs'

For this campaign finale, the Chief Executive returned to his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., after a day touring near-by towns and villages and chatting with his neighbors. "I'm back again, folks, still going strong," he told a crowd at Beacon. Dewey remained at the Gubernatorial mansion a few miles up the Hudson river at Albany.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt vote today at the old, white-framed town hall in Hyde Park. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey go to New York to cast their ballots and wait for returns to start rolling in.

Four of five nation-wide polls showed Roosevelt slightly ahead on election eve. But they left themselves "outs" by pointing to possible room for errors and to a soldier vote which none could sample.

Only The Solid South

Professional politicos stood pat on victory predictions which varied, of course, according to their affiliations. National Republican Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., stuck to a forecast of a sweeping GOP triumph and wouldn't admit Roosevelt would carry a State outside the Solid South. Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan still insisted Dewey would capture fewer than the ten States which went Republican in 1940.

Nevertheless, the politicans would feel a lot more certain of results in their own minds if they had any way of determining which way the bulk of the independent, silent voters will turn. They are the ones who don't tell the man next door how they intend to vote, the ones most likely to split tickets or to ignore nominal party allegiance to favor a candidate they consider the better man.

The politicians, knowing that women may cast 60 per cent. of the total vote, are wondering, too, which way the powder-puff brigade will go.

An Eye On The Weather

And they're keeping an eye on the weather, which sometimes governs the size of the vote. The forecaster's best calculation is that the elements will be no bar to a heavy turnout over most of the country.

While the attention of the nation and most of the world has settled on the Roosevelt-Dewey scrap, the folks back home around the town pump are interested also in Governors, legislators and local issues.

Thirty-one States pick Governors today. Executives of 19 of those States now are Republicans. The other dozen have Democratic administrations.

Thirty-five Senate seats, 22 now held by Democrats and 13 by Republicans, are at stake.

Maine reelected her three Republican Congressmen last September, but in the other States, 432 House seats have to be filled. The voters have 919 candidates to pick from.

Republicans say they have the best chance in a dozen years of regaining control of Congress. Their prospect of capturing the House depends on holding their present 212 members and adding six more for the 218 that means a mathematical edge.

Democrats contend, however, that the Presidential race will have its effect on Congressional contests to an extent sufficient to increase the party's slim margin of control.

To get control of the Senate, Republicans would have to keep their present strength and win 25 of this year's 35 contests.

America and the world will be eying Senate races because of the importance of treaty ratifying powers in the post-war world.

22,321-Mile Campaign

The sphere of interest is much narrower for 126 proposed amendments to State constitutions, referenda, and the like, which face a test in 30 States. Nebraska, for instance, is deciding whether to go back to prohibition. Missouri is voting on a unicameral Legislature, like Nebraska's.

On all these things, national races and local issues, the millions of individual decisions have been made. The campaigns have ended, the candidates have rested their cases with the electorate.

3d Naval District Commandant

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Rear Admiral Monroe Kelly today became commandant of the Third Naval district, succeeding Rear Admiral William R. Monroe, who will assume a command at sea, the naval district announced. Admiral Munroe was appointed commandant last April 1.

4 POLLS GIVE EDGE TO F. D. R.

Say President Has Slight Advantage Over Dewey

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Four nation-wide polls give President Roosevelt a slight lead as the nation's voters prepare to decide between him and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tomorrow, but all agree that the Presidential race is likely to be too close to try to pick a winner.

A fifth poll conducted in 28 counties of 15 States by Emil Hurja, associate publisher of Pathfinder magazine, gives the edge to Dewey. Its validity was challenged by Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, who described Hurja in a statement as an employe of "Republican oil man Joe Pew."

Informed of the poll findings, Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman, told a press conference the Republicans' own canvass "confirms my Sunday statement that we cannot concede a single State outside the solid South."

What The Polls Say

Here are the results reported by the nation-wide polls, all of which accompanied them with the qualification that several factors, including the service vote, could change the picture in a number of "pivotal States":

GALLUP — 51.5 per cent. of civilian vote for Roosevelt; 18 States with 165 electoral votes sure for Roosevelt, 10 with 85 electoral votes sure for Dewey, 20 with 181 in doubt. Total giving doubtful

30. 24 — 20207

States to candidate with slight edge: Roosevelt 292 electoral votes, Dewey 239. (It takes 266 to win.)

FORTUNE MAGAZINE — 53.6 per cent. of civilian popular vote for Roosevelt on basis of "attitude questions," 52.5 per cent. for him in secret ballot poll. Elmo Roper, who conducts Fortune's survey, expresses "personal belief" Roosevelt would win by "comfortable majority."

Crossley And Newsweek

CROSSLEY—52 per cent. of major party vote for Roosevelt, with attempt made to estimate trend of service vote. (Actual polling of servicemen and women is prohibited by Federal law.) Roosevelt 354 electoral votes to Dewey's 177 if present slight indications in pivotal States are borne out.

NEWSWEEK MAGAZINE—249 electoral votes for Roosevelt, 247 for Dewey, Pennsylvania's 35 undecided, on basis of reports from 118 political writers.

The Crossley and Newsweek findings were released last week, Fortune's yesterday and Gallup's today.

Soldier Vote Decisive

Hurja said he believed Dewey would get 52 per cent. of the popular vote and 364 electoral votes to 167 for Roosevelt.

Hannegan said Hurja in 1940 was off "9,000,000 votes in his popular majority and 271 votes, a 75 per cent. error, in the electoral college."

The Gallup poll says Roosevelt "could make a sweep in electoral votes by getting only one per cent. additional in two States — New York and Illinois—where Dewey leads by one per cent. or less" and adds that the soldier vote could turn the tide "in a number of pivotal States."

Thomas Wires Dewey To Clarify Position

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, tonight asked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, whether he believed Germany should be forced to surrender unconditionally.

Thomas said in a telegram to the Governor:

"One of your supporters telegraphed me that you, like myself, have denounced unconditional surrender. Do not so understand your position. You have denounced Morgenthau plan, but accepted unconditional surrender and other semi-official threats which are as bad for our boys as the Morgenthau plan. If I am wrong you should clarify position in immediate public statement."

Harry Fleischman, national secretary of the Socialist party, predicted in a statement tonight that the Socialist vote tomorrow would be the highest the party has received since 1932.

Roosevelt Closes Campaign with Appeal for 50 Million Ballots Today.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 6—(AP) President Roosevelt closed his fourth-term campaign tonight with an appeal for 50,000,000 votes tomorrow so "the world will respect our democracy" and the fight to attain a permanent world peace.

"Our boys are counting on us to show the rest of the world that our kind of government is the best in the world—and the kind we propose to keep," the president said in a speech delivered over all major net works on a program sponsored by the democratic national committee.

NOV 1944

"I do not want to talk to you tonight of partisan politics," the president said. "The political battle is finished.

"Our task now is to face the future as a militant and a united people—united here at home as well as on the battle fronts."

Mr. Roosevelt made the speech at the close of a day during which he toured his Hudson valley home neighborhood, telling the residents of half a dozen communities he was confident of re-election tomorrow.

"Tomorrow," Mr. Roosevelt said, "you the people of the United States again vote as free men and women, with full freedom of choice—with no secret police watching over your shoulders. And for generations to come Americans will continue to prove their faith in free elections."

The president called upon the voters to remember the "all important goals for which we are aiming." He said we must win the war and bring our armed forces home as soon as possible, then assure them "honorable jobs."

And we must create a world peace organization, he said, "which will prevent this disaster (of war) from ever coming upon us again."

Mr. Roosevelt, reminding his listeners Americans have always had a "deep well of religious strength, far back to the days of the Pilgrim fathers," closed with this prayer which he said was sent him not long ago:

"Be thou their strength when they are set in the midst of so many and great dangers. And grant that, whether by life or by death, they may win for the whole world the fruits of their sacrifice and a just peace.

"Guide, we beseech Thee, the nations of the world, into the way of justice and truth, and establish among them that peace which is the reward of righteousness.

"Make the whole people of this land equal to our high trust, reverent in the use of freedom, just in the exercise of power, generous in the protection of weakness.

"Enable us to guard for the least among us the freedom we covet for ourselves; make us ill content with the inequalities of opportunity which still prevail among us. Preserve our nation against all the divisions of race and class which threaten it.

"And now may the blessing of God Almighty rest upon this whole land; may he give us light to guide us, courage to support us, charity to unite us, now and forever more. Amen."

Mr. Roosevelt devoted the bulk of his short, closing campaign address to a discussion of the war-hardships of our servicemen and the war aims of this nation. Saying millions of men overseas already have cast their ballots, the President declared they are now wondering what the outcome of the election will mean to their future lives.

"Sooner or later all of them will be asking questions as to whether the folks back home looked after their interests, their liberties, their government, their country—while they themselves were off to war."

The President said our armed forces have taken on, and outfought, enemies "nurtured since childhood in militarism."

"And it is for us," he said, "to make certain that we win for them—the living and the dead—a lasting peace."

The President said another war could bring air-borne devastation to our civilian population such as that visited upon England, through the munitions developed in this conflict, and declared:

"This Time, we must be certain that the peace-loving nations of the world band together in determination to outlaw and prevent war."

"No one wants to endure that suffering again," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt—with four sons in the armed forces—said concern for the man in uniform "rises above all others in this critical period of our national life."

"Our boys," he said, "are counting on us to show the rest of the world that our kind of government is the best in the world—and the kind we propose to keep!"

Text Of F. D. R. Speech

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's radio speech tonight:

As we sit quietly this evening in our home at Hyde Park, our thoughts, like those of millions of other Americans, are most deeply concerned with the well-being of all our American fighting men. We are thinking of our own sons—all of them far away from home—and of our neighbors' sons and the sons of our friends.

That concern rises above all in this critical period of our national life.

In great contrast to the quiet which is ours here in America in our own secure homes in the knowledge that most of those fighting men of ours have no quiet times, and little leisure at this hour to reflect on the significance of our American election day, tomorrow.

NOV 1944

Some are standing at battle stations on shipboard, tense in the excitement of action; some lie in wet foxholes, or trudge doggedly through the sticky mud, firing as they go. Still others are high above the earth, fighting Messerschmitts or Zeros.

"Giving Everything"

All of them are giving everything they have got to defeat our enemies, and uppermost in all their minds is the one thought: To win the war as soon as possible, so that they may return to the quiet and peace of their homes.

But in the midst of fighting—in the presence of our brutal enemies—our soldiers and sailors and airmen will not forget election day back home.

Millions of these men have already cast their own ballots, and they will be wondering about the outcome of the election, and what it will mean to them in their future lives. And sooner or later all of them will be asking questions as to whether the folk back home looked after their interests, their liberties, their Government, their country — while they themselves were off at war.

Our boys are counting on us to show the rest of the world that our kind of Government is the best in the world—and the kind we propose to keep! And so when our people turn out at the polls tomorrow—and I sincerely hope that it will be 50,000,000 strong — the world will respect our democracy, and the grand old Stars and Stripes will wave more proudly than ever before.

"Battle Is Finished"

These brave fighters of ours have taken on enemies on both sides of our world, enemies who were nurtured since childhood in militarism. These boys of ours, wisely led, and using the matchless weapons which you here at home have sent to them, have outfought these ruthless enemies, outfought them on the land, outfought them on the sea, outfought them in the skies. They are winning the victory for all of us. Many are giving life itself. And it is for us to make certain that we win for them—the living and the dead—a lasting peace.

There is nothing adequate which anyone in any place can say to those who are entitled to display the Gold Star in their windows. But each night as the people of the United States rest in their homes which have been safe from violence during all these years of the most violent war in all history—I am sure that all of them silently give thought to their feelings of deep gratitude to the brave departed and to their families for the immeasurable sacrifice that they have made for the cause of decency and freedom and civilization.

I do not want to talk to you tonight of partisan politics. The political battle is finished. Our task now is to face the future as a militant and a united people—united here at home as well as on the battle fronts.

Twice In 25 Years

Twice in 25 years our people have had to put on a brave, smiling front as they have suffered the anxiety and the aogny of war.

No one wants to endure that suffering again.

When we think of the speed and long-distance possibilities of air travel to the remotest corners of the earth, we must consider the devastation wrought on the people of England by the new long-range bombs. Another war would be bound to bring even more devilish and powerful instruments of destruction to wipe out civilian populations. No coastal defenses, however strong, could prevent these silent missiles of death, fired perhaps from planes or ships at sea, from crashing deep within the United States.

This time, this time, we must be certain that the peace-loving nations of the world band together in determination to outlaw and prevent war.

"Watch And Advise Them"

Tomorrow, you the people of the United States, again vote as free men and women, with full freedom of choice—with no secret police watching over your shoulders. And for generations to come Americans will continue to prove their faith in free elections.

ut when the ballots are cast, yaur responsibilities do not cease. The public servants you elect cannot fulfill their trust unless you, the people, watch and advise them, raise your voices in protest when you believe your public servants to be wrong, back them up when you believe them to be right.

But not for one single moment can you now or later forget the all-important goals for which we are aiming—to win the war and unite our fighting men with their families at the earliest moment, to see that all have honorable jobs, and to create a world peace organization which will prevent this disaster from ever coming upon us again.

To achieve these goals we need strength and wisdom which is greater than is bequeathed to mere mortals. We need Divine help and guidance. We people of America have ever had a deep well of religious strength, far back to the days of the Pilgrim fathers.

And so, on this thoughtful eve, I believe that you will find it fitting that I read a prayer sent to me not long ago:

"Almighty God, of whose righteous will all things are and were created, Thou hast gathered our people out of many lands and races into a great nation.

"We commend to Thy overruling providence the men and women of our forces, by sea, by land and in the air.

Beseeching Thee to take into Thine own hands both them and the cause they serve.

"Justice And Truth"

"Be Thou their strength when they are set in the midst of so many and great dangers. And grant that whether by life or by death, they may win for the whole world the fruits of their sacrifice and a just peace.

"Guide, we beseech Thee, the nations of the world, into the way of justice and truth, and establish among them that peace which is the reward of righteousness.

"Make the whole people of this land equal to our high trust, reverent in the use of freedom, just in the exercise of power, generous in the protection of weakness.

"Enable us to guard for the least among us the freedom we covet for ourselves; make us ill content with the inequalities of opportunity which still prevail among us. Preserve our union against all the divisions of race and class which threaten it.

"And now may the blessing of God Almighty rest upon this whole land; may He give us light to guide us, courage to support us, charity to unite us, now and forever more.

"Amen."

Democratic Campaign a Bald Plea for Reelection, Dewey Declares.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 6—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight that the democratic campaign was pitched on a "bald plea for the reelection—so long as he lives — or whoever happens to be president."

In a speech prepared for delivery in a nation-wide broadcast, the Republican presidential nominee asserted that for the last 30 years the country had gone through "a nearly unbroken period of crisis after crisis in which it could have been argued that the fate of the nation and of the world was so critical that we ought not risk a change in administration."

"In the last analysis," he said, "the whole argument comes down to a bald plea for the reelection—so long as he lives—or whoever happens to be president. But that, we know, is the opposite of a free system of government. So it is clear that if we are going to do our duty tomorrow, we must lay aside every consideration and decide how best our country can be served these next four years."

In an election-eve address in which he urged all Americans to vote tomorrow, the New York governor said it was his opinion that "everyone has been sickened by the constant conflicts and shifting policies" of government agencies" as well as in the handling of war production, of transportation, the problem of rubber and of other strategic supplies."

NOV 1944

"Let me ask you one simple question," Dewey said to a radio audience, shortly after President Roosevelt had talked on the same major networks. "Do you believe the job at home is being handled as well as possible?

Need Improvement

"I think everyone from the housewife who struggles with a new rationing problem every week to the industrial executive who struggles with priorities and allocations—everyone will agree that we need improvement and need it badly."

Reiterating his intention to lift the discussion of international peace objectives "above partisan debate," Dewey reminded his listeners that so far as American participation in security plans is concerned, "the difficult details must be worked out between the Congress and the President."

"I have unlimited faith that it can be done by a president and a congress working together in harmony," the candidate said. "It will take hard work, patience and understanding upon all sides."

The Republican candidate sought throughout his final broadcast of the campaign to dispel the argument that the people "dare not change administrations because our country is in the midst of a great ordeal."

Nothing New in Argument

Declaring "there is nothing new in that argument" and that it was used four years ago when the country was at peace, he said:

"In other countries, this same argument has been the pretext upon which men, originally voted into power by the people, have suspended popular government and maintained themselves indefinitely in power."

"The question is no longer—do we dare to make a change in administrations?" he said. "The question is: Do we dare not to make a change when our every day experience and the testimony of our eyes and ears cries out that a change is desperately needed."

The Governor, addressing the nation over all four major radio networks from the executive mansion, prefaced the traditional election-eve reminder that "it is the duty of every American to vote tomorrow" with a renewed assault on the "confusion and contradiction that exist in our whole civilian war effort."

"General Eisenhower has told us twice," he said, "that the war in Europe would be ended in 1944 if everybody at home would do his part. General Eisenhower has never changed that statement.

"It is Mr. Roosevelt who now tells us that the war has still a long way to go.

"Plainly things have not been going in Washington as well as General Eisenhower expected and had a right to expect. That is the basic reason why we should install in Washington a vigorous and competent administration that will put into the war effort at home a purpose and unity equal to that of our military leaders on the fighting fronts."

In contrast to previous practice, Dewey's speech was withheld from reporters until a few minutes before he was due to go on the air. Heretofore advance copies have been made available to the press hours beforehand.

There was no official explanation, but reporters were not contradicted by members of Dewey's staff in surmising that he wished to listen to President Roosevelt's broadcast before releasing his own talk.

Text Of Dewey Speech

Albany, N. Y. Nov. 6 (AP)—Following is the text of Governor Dewey's broadcast tonight:

We come tonight to the eve of an election that may be the most fateful in our history. It is a test for each of us of our devotion to the American system of government. The great test is whether, knowing we need a new administration, we will make the change necessary to speed victory and to build the peace to come.

These years 1945 to 1949 will be important, difficult years. They will require vigorous, hard-working, harmonious leadership, with abiding faith in America. But there has arisen in this campaign an argument that the people dare not change administrations because our country is in the midst of a great ordeal.

Of course, there is nothing new in that argument. It was used four years ago, when we were at peace. In other countries this same argument has been the pretext upon which men, originally voted into power by the people, have suspended popular government and maintained themselves indefinitely in power.

A Bald Plea

Long ago Thomas Jefferson pointed out that "there will never be a time when real difficulties will not exist and furnish a plausible pretext" for not making a change.

In our own lives we have seen a nearly unbroken period of crisis after crisis for 30 years. We have known war and depression and boom and depression and war again. During much of that time it could have been argfiued that the state of the nation and the world was so critical that we ought not risk a change in administration.

In the last anaiysis, the whole argument comes down to a bald plea for the reelection—so long as he lives—of whoever happens to be President.

But that, we know, is the opposite of a free system of government. So it is clear that if we are going to do our duty tomorrow, we must lay aside every other consideration and decide how best our country can be served these next four years.

In the course of this campaign, I have, honorably, and to the best of my capacity, presented the reasons why I believe so earnestly that the welfare of our country requires a new administration.

No Change In Military

Now, for a f[illegible]inutes, I should like to tatlk to you, not as a candidate, but as a fellow citizen, who is privileged by your courtesy in listening, to come into your home and talk with you.

You are concerned, as I am, about the progress of the war. You are thinking day and night of someone who is facing death and hardship on the far-off battle lines of this war. And so, as you prepare to cast your vote tomorrow, the first question you ask yourself is this: What is the best way to make sure of a speedy and victorious end of the war? Will it help to shorten the war and assure quicker return of our fighting men if we have a change of administration?

I deeply believe that it will. I would have refused the nomination of my party for President if I did not believe so, with all my heart and soul. I have made it altogether clear from the beginning that a change in our civilian Government will mean no change in the military conduct of the war. Our chiefs of staff, Admiral King and General Marshall are doing a magnificent job.

They are directing the movement of troops and of supplies and the grand military strategy that will carry our armies and navies to victory. The other commanders—Eisenhower, Nimitz, Arnold, MacArthur, Halsey and all the others are carrying on to their objectives. Their hands will be strengthened by the end of civilian confusion in Washington.

Everyone Sickened

We all know that the war is being fought, not only on the fighting front but also on the home front. Everyone has had a chance to see the Administration's part in the war effort at home—to watch the operation of the scores of agencies that have to do with the daily lives of our people.

Everyone has been sickened by the constant conflicts and shifting policies of these agencies, as well as in the handling of war production, of transportation, the problem of rubber and of other strategic supplies.

Let me ask you one simple question: Do you believe the job at home is being handled as well as possible? I think everyone from the housewife who struggles with a new rationing problem every week to the industrial executive who struggles with priorities and allocations, everyone will agree that we need improvement, and need it badly.

The things we can see and know about are only a fraction of the confusion and contradiction that exists in our whole civilian war effort. Multiply these a miliion times and it becomes clear why it is that the war is not coming to an end more rapidly.

Eisenhower Statement

General Eisenhower has told us twice that the war in Europe would be ended in 1944 if everyone at home would do his part. General Eisenhower has never changed that statement. It is Mr. Roosevelt who now tells us that the war has still a long way to go. Plainly, things have not been going in Washington as well as General Eisenhower expected and had a right to expect. That is the basic reason why we should install in Washington a vigorous and competent administration that will put into the war effort at home a purpose and unity equal to that of our military leaders on the fighting fronts.

We want to bring this war to a speedy, victorious conclusion, to save unnecessary loss of life, unneedde hardship and sorrow. The question is no longer—do we dare to make a change in administrations?

The question is:

Do we dare not to make a change when our own everyday experience, and the testimony of our eyes and ears cries out that a change is desperately needed?

Now there is another thing that you and I want. We want to make sure that this war shall be the last war; that this tragedy shall never happen aagin. Like a great light in a darkened world shines the nearly unanimous determination of our people to join together with the people of other nations in setting up a world organization for peace.

President And Congress

Much has been done to prepare the general principles that will govern the establishment of such an organization. I have been happy to contribute to our unity for this cause by lifting it above partisan debate. But the hardest part of the task is still ahead. So far as American participation is concerned, the difficult details must be worked out between the Congress and the President.

I have unlimited faith that it can be done by a President and a Congress working together, in harmony. It will take hard work, patience and understanding upon all sides.

In the name of those who are fighting and dying in the cause of freedom, we dare not risk leaving this vital labor in the hands of those who have grown tired and quarrelsome from 12 years in office. History must not repeat itself.

And history must not repeat the breadlines and soup kitchens to our soldiers returned after the last war, under another tired, war-weary administration. After this war is over, eleven million men in our fighting forces will come home. They are entitled to find here an opportunity to realize in peace the things for which they are fighting. How can we best make sure that they will have those opportunities?

No Return To Doles

We cannot—we must not return to leaf-raking and doles. We cannot forget that under the New Deal it took a war to get jobs. Here again the question is not whether we dare to make a change. It is clear that we must not risk failing to make a change.

These, then are the simple tests that must govern the decision of every American tomorrow. When you step into the secrecy of the polling booth, ask yourself these questions:

How can I help shorten the war?

How can I help secure lasting peace?

How can I help give use jobs and opportunity in the years that lie beyond our victory?

If you will soberly ask yourself these questions and will think the answers through in the light of your own knowledge, I have no doubt of the outcome.

And let us agree on one more thing. No matter how you vote—it is the duty of every American to vote tomorrow.

Let on one say: "My vote will never be missed."

Your vote does count—it counts mightily i nthe result—and to you. Your secret ballot is your badge of citizenship. Keep it bright—and secure. If you neglect to vote, you leave your destiny to the decision of others; only you can preserve your own freedom.

A Letter

If everyone will vote, there can be no danger to our country. Of that I am sure—because I firmly believe in the eternal rightness of the people.

And now, may I read you a letter I have just received from a brave American woman whose son will never return. It is brief. This is the entire letter:

"Dear Governor Dewey:

"I am giving you my support, and I hope it will help you to win.

"You cannot bring back my son, lost in the South Pacific, but you can and will, I think, bring back the kind of America he would have wanted to some home to."

It is to that cause that we are dedicated.

We stand today on one of the strange promotories of human history, with the shadows of a dismal, stormy night behind us and the first gray streaks of dawn in the sky beyond us. For 30 years since 1914—nearly half the span of human life—we have seen a series of wars, revolutions, depressions—Communism, Fascism, Naziism, cruelty and sufferings and finally another conflagration that has engulfed the world. At home we have had 12 unhappy years of turmoil and dissension, of group conflicts and class strife, of divisions and hatreds and antagonisms.

Throw Off The Nightmare

Half a generation has grown up knowing no other atmosphere. I believe our children — our whole country can again live in a world where peace, friendship and mutual respite abide. After we're through with the war and get our boys back home, then we must have a period of peace and calm within our own country. Only in that way can we build the unity and strength to meet our problems at home—to support our labors abroad, for the peace of the world.

Let us resolve to put aside these years of cynicism and of conflict. Let us resolve to put aside every antagonism, to throw off the nightmare of past years and breathe once more the atmosphere of courage and good will. Our people then can have a chance once more to build, to create and get ahead.

Under divine guidance, the people of America are stirring with awakening faith—faith in our country—in our future—in our unity.

There is awakening a renewed sense of the dignity of the individual, of trust in the moral law. Once again, may we have and always keep that faith in ourselves and in our neighbors—faith of our fathers—living faith in Almighty God.

Says Soviet Laws Preserve the Family

Boston, Nov. 6 (A. P.).—"America is witnessing the disintegration of the family, while Russia is legislating to preserve it," the Right Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, of the Catholic University of America, holds.

In an address to Emmanuel College's foreign mission society yesterday Mgr. Sheen pointed out that Russian couples with three or more children are tax-free, divorces are costly, and maternity leaves are granted to women industrial workers.

"The family is higher in Russia than in the United States and God, looking down from heaven, may be more pleased with Russia than with us," he declared.

'GHOST SHIP' COMES HOME

USS Philadelphia, In 5 Battles, Was Twice Claimed Sunk

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP)—The navy's "ghost" ship came home today.

The 10,000-ton cruiser Philadelphia, dubbed "The Galloping Ghost of the Sicilian Coast," after the Germans twice reported her sunk, steamed into her home berth with five battle stars on her bridge—but without a scratch on her.

Home for the first time since her 1936 shakedown cruise, the "Ghost" had been through five major campaigns—North Africa, Sicily, Salerno, Anzio and southern France; her main battery of six-inch guns had tossed 9,000 rounds—or more than 450 tons of metal—at the enemy; shells had whistled over her and around her, a torpedo had passed under her and enemy aircraft had raided her 35 times, but aboard her not a man had been killed or seriously wounded.

30. 24 — 20209

Ran Only From Dust

In more than two years in the Mediterranean theater, the ship had "run away" from only one danger—dust.

"For two days we ate dust and slept with it when the volcano Vesuvius erupted," said Lieut. Com. Carl Gesen, of Concord, N. H., executive officer. "Then we got out in self defense and the crew shoveled her off. We had been anchored only 12 miles from the volcano."

"We were weeks eliminating the stuff," said Lieut. Com. Daniel J. Burke, of New York city, the chaplain.

The ship came home for a routine refitting and reconditioning in the Philadelphia Navy Yard where she was built and commissioned.

Invalid To Leave Bed To Vote, Donate Blood

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Francklyn Paris, confined by paralysis to a nursing-home bed for nine years, has two appointments tomorrow.

A cabalance will take her to a polling place, where she will vote, and then to a Red Cross station, where she will donate blood in honor of two nephews in the armed services.

BRICKER APPEALS FOR OHIO VICTORY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6 — (AP) John W. Bricker, on the eve of an election which he hopes will lift him to the vice-presidency, appealed to Ohioans tonight to order a continuation of "the kind of government" he has given during six years as their governor.

The Republican nominee for the No. 2 office in the land spoke over a state-wide radio network after a day's rest from an eight-week campaign that carried him 16,000 miles through 31 states.

Reviewing his three terms in office, Governor Bricker said in a prepared speech released by his campaign staff:

"Ohio has approved the organization and service it has had for six years. I believe we want that kind of government continued.

"Tonight my considered judgment is that Thomas E. Dewey will be elected president of the United States and that James Garfield Stewart will be elected governor of Ohio tomorrow."

2 Nazi Prisoners Killed At Camp

Fort Knox, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP)—Two German prisoners of war were killed at Fort Knox and five were wounded when a guard fired at them during a disturbance in the compound, Fort Knox authorities announced last night.

According to the public relations office, about 20 men climbed the fence around the stockade and refused to return to ranks for routine inspection.

Post Commander Col. N. B. Briscoe said the shots were fired by Pfc. Dewie Merritt, another guard, who tried unsuccessfully to persuade the prisoners to leave the fence.

He said the order was restored after Merritt fired at the men.

Merritt was taken into military custody pending an investigation of the incident.

CANADIANS YIELD TO U. S. PROPOSAL ON AIR TRANSPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—The question of operation of air transport among nations until a permanent agreement can be ratified has taken first place in the International Civil Aviation conference, with Canada apparently yielding to the United States proposal for provisional bi-lateral dealings.

Canada's restatement of its position on the transitional period was interpreted by high ranking conference officials as obviously being in the direction of the American view that interested nations work out between themselves agreements on routes for operation during the interim period. Such agreements would be in accord with the ultimate multilateral convention.

Stirs Brief Debate

This subject stirred a brief debate at the first full meeting of the committee on routes. A second meeting scheduled for this afternoon was called off at the last moment.

In their restatement of position today, the Canadians said:

"In order to prevent any delay in arrangements for provisional services, we should be prepared, if the Canadian convention in general were accepted, to have arrangements for the transitional period arrived at separately, so that they might take effect immediately."

This compares to the statement of H. J. Symington of Canada at the first route meeting. He stated that "we take very strongly the position that interim bilateral negotiations will completely preclude what we are all looking for—a permanent convention."

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., United States delegation leader, discussing that view along with the expressions of Lord Swinton, United Kingdom delegation chief, said he thought that the difficulty was "in language rather than in thought."

The Canadian statement today appeared to bear that out, particularly in view of the explanation by an important dominion official that interim bilateral agreements using a standard form complying with convention aims would be entirely satisfactory. Berle suggested a standard interim agreement form, the idea was adopted by the committee and a subcommittee was chosen to develop it.

Latin Americas Kept Informed

Formation of a Latin American bloc in opposition to the United States proposal for an interim council of 15 and in support of a plan to be detailed later which would give each nation equal representation was described some delegates as representing one of the steps in the direction of reconciling viewpoints in a manner typical of such conferences. It was reported that the United States delegation had been kept in informal contact with the Latin Americans during the development.

The 19 Latin American delegations have submitted their proposal to their governments so that the weight of approval at home can be put behind it when it is given to the conference, probably in two or three days.

The belief was general that the United States was ready to make concessions to some broader plan, and it was learned that the delegation is not bound by the prepared plan which it brought to Chicago.

Latin-American Air Proposal Analyzed

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP)—A new division of delegations confronted the International Civil Aviation Conference today with the decision of 19 Latin-American republics to join in submitting a plan for a world authority limited to technical matters and retaining as a basic proposition bilaterial negotiations of air rights.

The Latin-American countries yesterday adopted unanimously a plan for consideration by the conference along with the proposals of the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom and New Zealand-Australia.

Obvious Differences

This proposal, as outlined in a statement of general principles prepared for the group by its secretary, Luis Machado, a technical advisor of the Cuban delegation, appears to have these obvious differences with other plans:

It is opposed to any economic control such as envisioned in the British Empire drafts, and on its face would not grant the "right of innocent passage" (operational or commercial stops) proposed by this country. There was strong evidence, however, that the Latin-American bloc could be brought to some compromise which would achieve the United States' aim.

Equal Voice Urged

It joins members of the British Commonwealth of Nations in opposition to a proposal for an inter-executive council of 15 members and proposed instead that each country have an equal voice. On that point there is evidence that the United States is ready to negotiate.

Dissatisfaction of the Latin-American countries with some portions of the United States' proposal, while maintaining their historic support, has been in evidence since the draft was placed before the meeting Thursday.

Paralleling the reports of a Latin-American bloc to oppose infringement upon "sovereign rights" have been indications that some of the smaller countries might join that cause, although it was not known how far they might go in organizing such support.

Stilwell And His Wife Reach California Home

Carmel, Cal., Nov. 6 (AP)—Gen. Joseph Stilwell, recently relieved of his command in China, came home today to Carmel for a brief rest.

He was accompanied here by plane by Mrs. Stilwell, who had met him in Washington, D. C. They went immediately to their home at Carmel Point, where the general will rest before taking over what the White House has described as "an important" but undisclosed assignment.

Neither the general nor his wife had any comment on public matters.

VIVIEN KELLEMS SUES FOR MILLION

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6—(AP) Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport, Conn., industrialist who sued the C.I.O. Labor Herald here for $250,000 on Oct. 10, demanded an additional $1,000,000 in a new action filed in Federal court today against the labor paper.

Miss Kellems in her new complaint, said that after she had filed the original libel action because of an article in the Labor Herald concerning her attitude toward the income tax, she was again attacked in the issue of Oct. 13.

The complaint stated that as a result of this renewed attack Miss Kellems has suffered "continuing nervous shock and strain, great mental anguish, mortification and humiliation."

Miss Kellems' brother, Dr. Jesse Randolph Kellems, is a candidate for congress in the 16th California district.

A similar million dollar libel suit against the same defendants also was filed today in Los Angeles.

CLOSE ELECTION MAY BE DECIDED BY SOLDIER VOTE

Nation Faces First Wartime Balloting Since Civil War.

BITTER CAMPAIGN ENDED

Both Candidates to Vote at Homes in New York State.

NOV 7 1944

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A free America, helping fight a global war against aggressor nations, took time out today to choose a president for the next four years.

The voters' major choice was between Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Democratic party's standard bearer, for a fourth term, and Thomas E. Dewey, now governor of New York, the Republican candidate for a first term as president.

Today's balloting was the first time, since the days of the Civil war in the 1860's, that the country had found it necessary to choose a president in time of war.

Campaign Comes to Close

National debate over the issues involved, and the merits of the two principal seekers for the presidency came to a close last night with addresses by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Dewey.

Supporters of both men were confident of the outcome.

Appealing for some 50,000,000 votes to be cast, the President in his broadcast talk said that through the election "the world will respect our democracy."

Mr. Dewey, on the air just a few minutes after Mr. Roosevelt, declared "it is clear that if we are going to do our duty tomorrow, we must lay aside every consideration and decide how best our country can be served these next four years.

"The political battle is finished," Mr. Roosevelt said, reminding the people that today "they again vote as free men and women, with full freedom of choice—with no secret police watching over your shoulders. And for generations to come Americans will continue to prove their faith in free elections."

Dewey argued that because of the "early unbroken period of crisis after crisis" the country had gone through in the past 30 years, it could be argued that it would be unwise to risk a change in administration.

Dewey Says Change Needed

"The question is no longer — do we dare to make a change in administration?" Dewey said. "The question is — do we dare not to make a change when our every day experience and the testimony of our eyes and ears cries out that a change is desperately needed."

From Vice President Wallace in Washington came a prediction that Mr. Roosevelt will carry two-thirds of the states, attain a hundred more electoral votes than the 266 he needs and a margin of at least 3,000,000 in the popular vote.

Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., in New York said late canvasses confirmed his belief that Dewey would get the presidency, despite public opinion sampling which, in four out of five polls, gave Mr. Roosevelt a slight edge.

Prior to his appearance on the radio last night, Dewey had spent a quiet day in Albany, N. Y. The President, observing a usual custom, had made a tour of Hudson Valley towns within the neighborhood of his Hyde Park home.

During the motor trip he predicted he would win the election and took a quadrennial slap at Rep. Hamilton Fish (R.-N. Y.).

Fish represented the President in Congress before a redistricting, and he and the Chief Executive have traded many a verbal hay-maker.

Fish's Defeat Predicted

Invading Fish's domain, Mr. Roosevelt predicted the Congressman's defeat before a Newburgh, N. Y., crowd.

"The Congressman from this district goes almost back to the dark ages," the President said.

It remains for some 44,000,000 voters, conscious of war, aware that peace must be made to endure, to decide today between the President and Dewey.

The polling places, 130,000 of them, are opening as early as 6 a. m., Eastern War Time to the march of the voters. The last ones close 17 hours later.

In the interval, the political fortunes of 1,114 candidates—for president, vice president, governor, Senate and House—will be settled. But it may be days or weeks before America knows all the men who will direct her destinies for the next four years.

The soldier vote, estimated at 3,462,000, may be the controlling factor in a close, bitterly fought campaign. And 11 states are delaying the counting of service selections.

The crescendo of rhetoric and eloquence, which politicians din into American ears every four years, died away last night. The oratorical spigots were turned off. The name-calling, the invective and vituperation which crept into one of the most hotly contested campaigns in recent political history were discarded at last.

Make Final Appeals

President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey had all the radio networks at their command late last night for final expressions of thanks to party workers and for appeals to the electorate to exercise the Democratic privilege of the franchise.

For this campaign finale, the Chief Executive returned to his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., after a day of touring nearby towns and villages and chatting with his neighbors. "I'm back again, folks, still going strong," he told a crowd at Beacon. Dewey remained at the gubernatorial mansion a few miles up the Hudson river at Albany.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt vote today at the old, white-frame town hall in Hyde Park. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey go to New York to cast their ballots and wait for returns to start rolling in.

Four of five nationwide polls showed Roosevelt slightly ahead on election eve. But they left themselves "outs" by pointing to possible room for errors and to a soldier vote which none could sample.

AMERICAN TROOPS, CLEARING THREE MILES OF THE SOUTH BANK OF THE HOLLANDSCH DIEP AT THE WESTERN END OF THEIR SECTOR, ARE APPROACHING MOERDIJK AFTER BRIDGING A CANAL IN THE FACE OF SEVERE MORTAR FIRE.

ALONG THE AMERICAN RIGHT FLANK, POLISH TROOPS HAVE CUT THE ROAD TO MOERDIJK BRIDGE AND ARE 500 YARDS FROM ITS ABUTMENTS. FURTHER UPSTREAM THEY ARE ALONG THE SHORES OF THE MAAS NORTH OF DRIMMELEN AND GEERTRUIDENBERG.

TO THE WEST OF THE AMERICAN UNITS, BRITISH TROOPS HAVE DRIVEN INTO THE OUTSKIRTS OF WILLEMSTAD, A FERRY TERMINAL. CANADIANS WEST OF THE BRITISH HAVE MOPPED UP AS FAR AS THE MARK RIVER, FOUR MILES SOUTH OF WILLEMSTAD.

SCOTTISH INFANTRY ON WALCHEREN ISLAND FOUGHT INTO THE EASTERN OUTSKIRTS OF MIDDELBURG. OTHER FORCES WERE CLOSING IN FROM THE SOUTHEAST AND STILL OTHERS CUT THE ROAD LEADING NORTH TO VEERE, THE ONLY OTHER MAJOR HOLDING OF THE ENEMY ON THE ISLAND.

GERMAN GUNS IN THE NORTH CONTINUED TO HARASS COMMANDOS OPERATING WEST OF VEERE.

LT. MORTON D. KAUFFMAN, 66 WEST 88TH ST., NEW YORK CITY, WHO FLEW OVER THE MOERDIJK BRIDGE IN AN ARTILLERY OBSERVATION PLANE THIS MORNING, SAID THE GERMANS MADE A THOROUGH JOB OF BLASTING THE STRUCTURE.

THE FINAL DRIVE OF THE AMERICANS ACROSS THE MARK RIVER TO THE HOLLANDSCH DIEP WAS CREDITED TO ENGINEERS COMMANDED BY MAJOR ROBERT LORENZ, 1898 DAYTON AVE., ST. PAUL, MINN.

THEY HAD TO WORK UNDER AN ALMOST UNBROKEN BOMBARDMENT OF REMARKABLE ACCURACY. AT LEAST THREE TIMES, RAFTS THEY WERE FLOATING INTO PLACE FOR A LIGHT BRIDGE WERE HIT BY MORTAR FIRE.

LATER IT WAS DISCOVERED THREE GERMANS WITH A RADIO SET WERE HIDDEN BENEATH REMNANTS OF AN OLD BRIDGE ABUTMENT WHERE THEY HAD A CLEAR VIEW OF EVERYTHING THE AMERICANS WERE DOING.

BAESWEILER, GERMANY, NOV. 5-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WITH NAZI TROOPS ONLY 800 YARDS AWAY AND SHELLS CONSTANTLY FALLING INTO THE TOWN, AMERICAN MILITARY POLICE NONCHALANTLY ARE RUNNING THIS LITTLE COAL MINING COMMUNITY ON AN ALMOST "BUSINESS AS USUAL" BASIS.

BAESWEILER, ABOUT 11 MILES NORTH OF AACHEN, WAS CAPTURED BY THE AMERICANS A FEW WEEKS AGO. SINCE THEN IT HAS BEEN CALLED A "HOT TOWN" BECAUSE IT IS UNDER CONTINUOUS SHELL FIRE AND THE FRONT LINE IS RIGHT AT THE TOWN'S LIMITS.

ELEVEN HUNDRED OF THE NORMAL POPULATION OF 6,000 REFUSED TO EVACUATE WHEN THE GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT, SO THE YANKS GOT THE JOB OF TRYING TO KEEP THEM FROM BECOMING CASUALTIES. THE ASSIGNMENT WAS GIVEN TO LT.PAUL UNGER, 31-YEAR-OLD FARMER FROM WEST ALEXANDRIA, OHIO, AND HIS MILITARY POLICE SECTION.

TWO BUTCHER SHOPS, TWO BAKERIES AND TWO GROCERIES WERE DESIGNATED TO KEEP OPEN. ONE MEMBER OF EACH FAMILY IS GIVEN TWO HOURS DAILY TO BUY HOUSEHOLD NEEDS UNDER A RATIONING SYSTEM, AND CARRY THEM BACK TO CELLARS AND AIR RAID SHELTERS IN WHICH THEY LIVE. BESPITE THESE PRECAUTIONS SEVERAL CIVILIANS HAVE BEEN KILLED AND WOUNDED.

A 20-BED HOSPITAL WAS SET UP IN A LARGE BASEMENT FOR CARE OF THE CIVILIANS.

THE NAZI MAYOR WAS ARRESTED AND A NON-NAZI APPOINTED. THE NAZI MANAGER OF AINEARBY COAL MINE WAS ALSO ARRESTED AND TWO DUTCHMEN NAMED TO OPERATE THE MINE, WHICH IS IN FULL PRODUCTION.

THE MPS ARE ASSISTED IN RUNNING THE TOWN BY A FOUR-MAN POLICE FORCE APPOINTED BY UNGER.

"GENERALLY SPEAKING," THE YOUNG LIEUTENANT SAID, "THE CIVILIANS ARE BEHAVING THEMSELVES VERY WELL."

UNGER'S RIGHT HAND MAN IS PFC.FRED HOEHNKE OF SHEBOYGAN, WIS., WHO SPEAKS GERMAN FLUENTLY.

"THE CIVILIANS PREFER THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT TO THE NAZI REGIME," HOEHNKE SAID, "BECAUSE UNDER THE NAZI SYSTEM THEY HAD TO ASK PERMISSION TO DO EVERYTHING."

"THEY LIKE AMERICAN SOLDIERS BETTER THAN GERMAN SOLDIERS," DECLARED T/5 GRADY RASBON OF BOOTHTON, ALA. "THEY SAID IF BY CHANCE THE GERMANS PUSHED US BACK FROM THE TOWN THEY WANTED TO GO WITH US."

with the u.s. third army in france, nov. 6-(ap)-here is one way a green division may be transformed into a real fighting unit:

after the 26th "yankee" division moved into the line recently its 104th infantry regiment under col. dwight colley was given the job of ~~it~~ taking limited objectives, including bois de moncourt.

the regiment quickly gained most of its objectives, but after three days it had cleared only about two-thirds of the moncourt woods and divisional commander maj. gen. willard paul decided to relieve the 104th.

colonel colley, whose home is in sauderstown, r.i., and who commanded a company of the 104th in this area in the first world war, heard that his unit was coming out at 6 o'clock in the morning, so he hurried out to the front, arriving at 4 a.m.

he told his men, in effect, "we are supposed to take that wo and we have two hours left to do it. are you with me?" the answer was a unanimous, "yes."

~~the attack was made with~~ the colonel leading it personally and the woods were taken in an hour and a half.

MOSCOW, NOV 6-(AP)-PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN CALLED ON PEACE-LOVING NATIONS TODAY TO CREATE A SECURITY ORGANIZATION STRONG ENOUGH TO PREVENT AGGRESSOR COUNTRIES FROM DISTURBING AGAIN THE PEACE OF THE WORLD.

STALIN MADE REFERENCE TO JAPAN AS AN AGGRESSOR.

SPEAKING ON THE EVE OF THE 27TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION, THE SOVIET LEADER POINTED OUT THAT JUST AS JAPAN HAD CAUGHT THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN UNPREPARED WITH HER ATTACKS ON PEARL HARBOR, THE PHILIPPINES, HONGKONG AND SINGAPORE, SO RUSSIA WAS SURPRISED BY THE GERMAN AGGRESSOR.

"WE ALL KNOW GERMANY WILL ATTEMPT A NEW WAR," STALIN SAID, DECLARING GERMANY ALREADY WAS PREPARING FOR A THIRD WORLD WAR. HE SAID THAT IN 20 OR 30 YEARS GERMANY MIGHT BE READY FOR AGRESSION AGAIN.

HE THEN PUT THE QUESTION AS TO HOW AGGRESSION MIGHT BE AVOIDED.

"AGRESSOR NATIONS ALWAYS ARE INTERESTED IN NEW WARS," HE STATED. "THIS IS AN HISTORICAL FACT."

THE WAY TO STOP FUTURE WARS, HE CONTINUED, IS TO CHECK THEM IN THE BEGINNING AND TO DO THIS A SECURITY ORGANIZATION--BETTER THAN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS--IS NEEDED.

STALIN DECLARED THAT THIS SECURITY ORGANIZATION SHOULD HAVE A MINIMUM ARMED FORCE STRONG ENOUGH TO PUT DOWN ANY AGGRESSIVE ACTS AS SOON AS THEY BEGIN.

SUCH SECURITY ORGANIZATION CAN BE EFFECTIVE, HE ADDED, ONLY IF THE GREAT POWERS ACT IN THE SPIRIT OF UNANIMITY AND ACCORD. AS A SAMPLE OF HOW THE POWERS CAN GET TOGETHER, STALIN POINTED OUT THE DUMBARTON OAKS CONFERENCE, CALLING IT "A BRIGHT EXAMPLE OF UNITY." THE SOVIET LEADER SAID THERE WAS NINE-TENTHS AGREEMENT ON EVERYTHING DISCUSSED AT DUMBARTON OAKS.

STALIN SCOFFED AT SUGGESTIONS THAT ALLIED COLLABORATION MAY COOL, SAYING IF THE GREAT POWERS HELD TOGETHER IN THE BLOODY DAYS OF WAR THEY WOULD CERTAINLY REMAIN THAT WAY IN ITS FINAL STAGES.

HE REFERRED TO RECENT TALKS WITH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN OF BRITAIN AS INDICATIVE OF THE GOOD SPIRIT AMONG THE ALLIES.

STALIN ADMITTED THAT DIFFERENCES EXIST, BUT HE SAID THE SURPRISING THING ABOUT THEM IS THAT THERE WERE SO FEW OF THEM. THOSE THAT DO EXIST, HE ASSERTED, DO NOT GO BEYOND THE FRAMEWORK OF UNITY.

THERE WERE SERIOUS DIFFERENCES, HE SAID, OVER THE OPENING OF THE SECOND FRONT, BUT THIS WAS SETTLED.

STALIN DELIVERED HIS SPEECH BEFORE MEMBERS OF THE POLITICAL BUREAU, THE COMMUNIST PARTY ORGANIZATION, THE MOSCOW SOVIET AND LABOR LEADERS.

IT WAS DESCRIBED AS "A SOLEMN MEETING," BUT STALIN RECEIVED TWO LONG, RINGING OVATIONS. HE APPEARED MORE AT EASE THAN AT ANY PREVIOUS PRE-HOLIDAY SPEECH DURING THE WAR. HIS VOICE WAS FIRM AND STRONG AND HE SPOKE WITH GREAT DELIBERATENESS, NEVER INDULGING IN FORENSICS.

THE MARSHAL REPEATED HIS CHARGE THAT HITLERITES SEEK TO DRIVE A WEDGE BETWEEN THE ALLIES BUT PASSED IT OFF AS AN IMPOSSIBILITY.

HE GAVE HIGH PRAISE TO THE ALLIED LANDINGS IN NORMANDY AND THE DECISIONS OF THE TEHRAN CONFERENCE.

STALIN SAID THERE COULD BE FEW EXAMPLES IN HISTORY OF SO BRILLIANT A REALIZATION OF AGREEMENT BETWEEN GREAT POWERS AS AT TEHRAN.

IN HIS LONG REVIEW OF THE WAR, WHICH OCCUPIED THE FIRST PART OF HIS SPEECH, HE DECLARED THE SOVIET OFFENSIVE HAD KNOCKED OUT 120 GERMAN DIVISIONS.

STALIN DECLARED THAT INSTEAD OF 257 DIVISIONS ON THE EASTERN FRONT--OF WHICH 207 WERE GERMAN--THE HITLERITES HAVE BUT 204, OF WHICH 180 ARE GERMAN.

HE POINTED OUT THAT THE SOVIET UNION WAS NOT FIGHTING ALONE NOW, REFERRING TO DECISIONS OF THE TEHRAN CONFERENCE TO STRIKE AT THE GERMANS FROM THE EAST, WEST AND SOUTH, AND SAYING THESE DECISIONS WERE REALIZED "WITH AMAZING PUNCTUALITY."

THE MARSHAL SAID THAT WITHOUT THE WESTERN FRONT, WHICH HAD TIED UP 75 GERMAN DIVISIONS, THE RED ARMY COULD NOT SO QUICKLY HAVE DEFEATED THE GERMANS IN THE EAST, JUST AS THE ALLIES COULD NOT HAVE HAD SUCCESS IN SUCH A SHORT TIME OF 200 NAZI DIVISIONS HAD NOT BEEN TIED UP ON THE EASTERN FRONT.

STALIN GAVE GREAT PRAISE TO RUSSIA'S HOME FRONT, REPEATING HIS FAMILIAR SLOGAN--"EVERYTHING FOR THE FRONT"--AND DECLARING THAT THE WORK OF THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE HAD SUSTAINED THE RED ARMY.

HE POINTED OUT HOW HITLER'S SATTELITES NOW WERE FIGHTONG ON THE SIDE OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND PREDICTED THAT HUNGARY SOON WOULD BE PUT OUT OF ACTION.

LIUCHOW, CHINA, OCT. 26-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE LAST AMERICANS ESCAPING FROM THE U.S. AIR BASE AT KWEILIN ARRIVED HERE THIS MORNING IN SIX JEEPS LOADED WITH BAGGAGE AND EQUIPMENT SALVAGED FROM THE FIELD WHICH WAS WRECKED TO PREVENT ANY MILITARY EQUIPMENT FALLING INTO THE HANDS OF THE JAPANESE.

THE 150 MILE RETREAT OF 15 AMERICANS, AN ENGLISHMAN AND TWO CHINESE WAS A WILD, WET AND MUDDY RIDE THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT ENLIVENED BY A REPORT THE JAPANESE WERE NEAR OR ALREADY HAD CUT THE HIGHWAY THEY WERE TRAVELING.

THE CONVOY GOT THROUGH THOUGH WITH ONLY ONE FLAT TIRE AND ONE ENGINE FAILURE. THE GROUP FORMED ON THE EDGE OF KWEILIN. THE DARKNESS WAS BROKEN BY A RUDDY GLOW OVER KWEILIN TO THE NORTH AND THE INTERMITTENT FLASHES TO THE SOUTHWEST AS YANGTANG'S LOADED

30.24 — 20217

BOMBPITS EXPLODED TO OUR TIME FUSES.

I WAS ASSIGNED TO A JEEP DRIVEN BY STAFF SGT.MILO J.BYERS, ROUTE 1 MONONGAHELA, PA., WHO THOUGH A MECHANIC WAS UNEQUAL TO THE IDIOSYNCRASIES OUR JEEP DEVELOPED A LITTLE LATER. THE THIRD MAN IN THE JEEP WAS T/5 ROBERT W.KELSEY, BOX 904 COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. THE REAR OF THE JEEP WAS PACKED WITH SALVAGED AIRPLANE PARTS AND BAGGAGE.

NOV 7 1944

JUST BEFORE WE SHOVED OFF STAFF SGT.ROY A.PAYNE, 4511 1/2 EAST 25TH AVE., LOS ANGELES, CALIF., HANDED US A TOMMYGUN.

THE CONVOY LEADER WAS LT.NORWOOD WILSON, OLANTA, S.C., WHO HAD BEEN BASE COMMANDER AT KWEILIN. HIS PASSENGERS WERE LT.CARL E. ROTHSCHILD, 105 BUCKINGHAM ROAD, BROOKLYN, N.Y., MEDICAL OFFICER, AND WILSON'S INTERPRETER, ROBERT C.HO, A CANTONESE, WHO WAS UNDER TREATMENT FOR MALARIA.

OUR JEEP WAS HANDICAPPED BY HAVING TO PULL A HEAVY FOUR-WHEEL TRAILER TOO VALUABLE TO ABANDON AT KWEILIN. THE LITTLE VEHICLE NEARLY WORE OUT THE CLUTCH IN THE FIRST 20 MILES. THERE WE PULLED OFF TO THE SIDE TO REST.

WHEN WE STARTED TO MOVE AGAIN THE MOTOR OF OUR JEEP REFUSED FLATLY TO START. BYERS AND WILSON WORKED OVER THE ENGINE FOR NEARLY AN HOUR BY FLASHLIGHT. EVERYBODY WAS PRETTY JUMPY AS NO ONE KNEW BUT WHAT A JAPANESE CAVALRY PATROL MIGHT COME RIDING UP OUT OF THE NIGHT.

NOV 7 1944

FINALLY WILSON DECIDED TO JETTISON THE FOUR-WHEEL TRAILER AND HOOK OUR JEEP TO HIS.

RAIN CONTINUED INTERMITTENTLY ALL NIGHT. THE WHEELS OF WILSON'S JEEP KEPT SPRAYING US WITH THIN, RED MUD.

WILSON DROVE LIKE A DAREDEVIL. WE SLID DANGEROUSLY ALONG BEHIND TRYING TO SWERVE WHEN HE DID. ONCE I HAD TO ATTRACT HIS ATTENTION BY FIRING THE TOMMYGUN IN THE AIR SO AS TO CONFESS MY FEARS THAT OUR THREE NECKS WOULD BE BROKEN. AFTER THAT HE SLOWED DOWN A LITTLE.

I MARVELED AT BYERS' ABILITY TO FOLLOW WILSON AND KEEP OUR JEEP ON THE ROAD. AT LIPU WE PAUSED LONG ENOUGH FOR WILSON TO TELEPHONE COL.RICHARD S.WISE, 140 HODGE ROAD, PRINCETON, N.J., AIR SERVICE COMMAND SECTOR COMMANDER, TO TELL HIM WE WERE SAFE.

NOV 7 1944

OTHERS CROWDED INTO THE JEEPS INCLUDED T/4 JAMES E.CHOATE, 914 CAMAY DRIVE, HOUSTON, TEX.; TECH.SGT.JAMES W.CUMMING, 812 BROOKS ST., DALLAS, TEX.; FIRST SGT.CARREL R.AIKEN, 310 NORTH 19TH ST., FORT SMITH, ARK.; CORPORALS GEORGE W.FOGARTY, 510 1/2 FIFTH AVE., VALLEY CITY, N.D.; SILVANO CARBALLO, 165 WEST 88TH PLACE, LOS ANGELES, CALIF.; MAJ.Y.Y.HUANG, 2224 SOUTH 16TH AVE., PORTLAND, ORE., LIAISON OFFICER OF THE CHINESE AIR FORCE; TECH.SGT.W.HAROLD WALLING, 701 WEST BAYLER ST., SAN ANTONIO, TEX., A COMBAT CAMERAMAN.

HOWEVER, OVER NORTHWEST NEGROS, FIGHTER PLANES ENCOUNTERED A JAPANESE GROUP, ENGAGED IT IN A 30 MINUTE BATTLE AND DOWNED SIX FOR A LOSS OF ONE.

AMERICAN PLANES STRIKING SOUTH OF THE INVASION SCENE HIT ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS ON NORTHERN MINDANAO AND DAMAGED A SMALL FREIGHTER NEAR TAWI TAWI.

A BARRAGE OF 400 SHELLS FROM AMERICAN LONG TOMS, THE BIG 155 MILLIMETER GUNS, HIT JAPANESE CONCENTRATIONS BEFORE DAWN MONDAY, PHILIPPINE TIME. OTHER BATTERIES SWEPT THE STRATEGIC ORMOC-CARIGARA BAY HIGHWAY.

A HEAD-ON CLASH BETWEEN UNITS OF THE AMERICAN 24TH DIVISION, CONQUERORS OF LEYTE VALLEY, AND THE LAST-DITCH ENEMY DEFENDERS OF THE ISLAND IS EXPECTED ALONG THE HIGHWAY. THE NORTHERN TERMINUS, PINAMOPOAN, IS IN AMERICAN HANDS AND THE DOUGHBOYS ARE PUSHING SOUTH TOWARD ORMOC.

CAPTURE OF PINAMOPOAN WAS ANNOUNCED MONDAY BY GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR. IT WAS TAKEN BY UNITS OF THE 24TH DIVISION, UNDER MAJ.GEN.FREDERICK A.IRVING, SUPPORTED BY ELEMENTS OF THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION, COMMANDED BY MAJ.GEN.VERNE D.MUDGE.

THE SEVENTH INFANTRY DIVISION, UNDER MAJ.GEN.ARCHIBALD V. ARNOLD, APPROACHED ORMOC FROM THE SOUTH. IT WAS LAST REPORTED ABOUT 10 MILES BELOW ORMOC, WHICH THE JAPANESE HAVE USED AS A PORT OF REINFORCEMENT.

SHARP FIGHTING FLARED AGAIN IN THE LEYTE VALLEY WEST OF DAGAMI, WHERE JAPANESE ESTIMATED AT FROM 600 TO 2,000 WERE BLOODILY REPULSED IN A TYPICAL "BANZI" ATTACK. THE BATTLE OCCURRED AT THE EASTERN BASE OF THE ISLAND'S HILLY BACKBONE, ABOUT 18 MILES EAST OF ORMOC.

SWORD-WAVING ENEMY OFFICERS LED THE ASSAULT, REPORTED AP WAR CORRESPONDENT SPENCER DAVIS, ON UNITS OF THE AMERICAN 96TH DIVISION. THE YANKS HAD BEEN PINNED DOWN FOR TWO DAYS BY MORTAR AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. THEY BROKE UP THE REFORMED ENEMY POSITION WITH LIGHT TANKS AND FLAME THROWERS AND THEN SMASHED THE DESPERATE ENEMY COUNTERATTACK.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT AT LEAST 500 NIPPONESE WERE KILLED IN THE FUTILE ASSAULT. AMONG THEM WERE TROOPS OF AN ARMORED FORCE RECENTLY LANDED AT ORMOC.

THE 24TH CAPTURED STRATEGIC LEYTE VALLEY, WHICH CUT THE JAPANESE FORCES IN TWO AND SPLIT THEIR MAIN DEFENSE INTO SMALL GROUPS, GIVING THEM THE ALTERNATIVE OF DYING OR FLEEING INTO THE MOUNTAINS.

"INDIVIDUALLY THE JAPANESE HAS BEEN A BRAVE FIGHTER IN THIS VALLEY," SAID GENERAL IRVING.

"HE FIGHTS TO THE DEATH, BUT HERE AS ELSEWHERE HE HAS PROVED HIMSELF A SLOW THINKER, A POOR ADAPTER AND A BAD PLANNER."

I ASKED GENERAL IRVING HOW HE EXPLAINED THE JAPANESE MACHINE GUNNER WHO BLEW HIMSELF UP WITH A HAND GRENADE BEFORE HE HAD EXHAUSTED HIS AMMUNITION.

"I SAW SAMPLES OF THAT SORT OF THING, TOO," SAID THE GENERAL. "I THINK THEY SIMPLY LOSE THEIR HEADS AND NERVE. THEY KNOW THEY ARE GOING TO DIE AND WANT TO GET IT OVER AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE."

THE GREATEST WEAKNESS OF THE JAPANESE IN THE LEYTE VALLEY CAMPAIGN WAS HIS USE OF ARTILLERY, GENERAL IRVING SAID.

"HE CANNOT LEARN HOW TO MASS ARTILLERY," HE EXPLAINED, "BUT HE IS GOOD WITH HIS MORTARS."

THE GENERAL SAID THE LEYTE CAMPAIGN WAS "A HARD FIGHT."

SIXTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS,LEYTE,NOV.6-(AP)-(VIA ARMY RADIO)-GEN.WALTER KRUEGER'S 155 CALIBER LONG TOM RIFLES POURED 400 ROUNDS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES INTO ENEMY CONCENTRATIONS AT ORMOC TOWN ON THE WEST COAST OF LEYTE BEFORE DAWN THIS MORNING, WHILE OTHER HEAVY ARTILLERY UNITS SWEPT THE MAIN HIGHWAY TO CARIGARA BAY.

IT WAS ALONG THIS ROUTE THAT JAPANESE REINFORCEMENTS MUST TRAVEL TO COUNTERATTACK OUR FIGHTING 24TH DIVISION AS IT MOVES SLOWLY SOUTH TOWARD ORMOC, WHERE THE ENEMY HAS CONTINUED TO LAND FRESH TROOPS BY BARGE AND TRANSPORT DESPITE ATTACKS BY AMERICAN PLANES.

ADVANCED ELEMENTS OF MAJ.GEN.FREDERICK A.IRVING'S DIVISION MOVED INTO LIMON IN COLUMNS OF BATTALIONS AND TOOK UP POSITIONS 500 YARDS TO THE EAST WITHOUT MEETING MORE THAN ADVANCED PATROLS OF THE ENEMY. LIMON IS ABOUT TWO MILES INLAND FROM CARIGARA BAY.

HARD FIGHTING FLARED UP TWO MILES WEST OF DAGAMI, HOWEVER, WHERE THE 96TH DIVISION BROKE INTO STRONG RESHAPED ENEMY DEFENSIVE POSITIONS. FLAMETHROWER TEAMS AND GRENADIERS LED THE WAY, REDUCING BUNKERS AND MORTAR POSITIONS AND MACHINE GUN NESTS ONE BY ONE IN SOME OF THE TOUGHEST FIGHTING OF THE CAMPAIGN.

DAGAMI, IMPORTANT ROAD JUNCTION NEAR THE WESTERN EDGE OF LEYTE VALLEY, WAS CAPTURED SEVERAL DAYS AGO.

DURING THE NIGHT IN THE DAGAMI AREA THE ENEMY MADE A DESPERATE SERIES OF BANZAI CHARGES IN AN EFFORT TO DRIVE THE AMERICANS OUT. OF AN ESTIMATED 600 JAPANESE ATTACKERS AT LEAST 500 WERE KILLED IN ATTEMPTS TO STORM THE YANKEE POSITIONS. THEIR CHARGES, LED BY SWORD WAVING OFFICERS WERE STOPPED.

SOME OF THE DEAD HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED AS BELONING TO AN ARMORED FORCE RECENTLY LANDED AT ORMOC BAY.

WHILE THE JAPANESE MADE THEIR LAST STAND NEAR DAGAMI OTHER AMERICAN TROOPS MOVED AROUND THEM TO TAKE UP POSITIONS ASTRIDE THE DAGAMI-JARO TRAIL. THIS EFFECTIVELY PREVENTED ENEMY SURVIVORS FROM RETREATING.

GEN.KRUEGER'S HEAVY ARTILLERY WENT INTO ACTION WITH A STEADY HARASSING FIRE, RAKING HIGHWAY TWO AS IT WINDS THROUGH THE MOUNTAIN PASSES TO CARIGARA. BATTERIES ARE SO PLACED THAT THEY COMMAND THE ENTIRE STRETCH OF ROAD.

IN THE SAME MEETING CALLED TO DISCUSS THE PEACE SECURITY PLAN DRAFTED BY THE DUMBARTON OAKS CONFERENCE.

ONE DIPLOMATIC SOURCE SAID THAT ALTHOUGH DEVELOPMENTS HAVE NOT REACHED SO FAR AS TO CONSIDER A DATE FOR THE MEETING, IT COULD TAKE PLACE EARLY NEXT YEAR IF THE GOVERNMENTS DECIDED UPON THE CONVENIENCE OF THE CONFERENCE.

NOV 7 1944

ARGENTINE SOURCES HERE SAID TODAY THAT THE FARRELL GOVERNMENT EXPECTS AN EARLY ANSWER TO THE PROPOSAL.

IT WAS STATED THAT THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT "IS ANXIOUS TO HAVE A REPLY" AND APPEAR BEFORE THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS AND DISCUSS "THE INTERNATIONAL POSITION WHICH THE ARGENTINE HAS MAINTAINED DURING PAST MONTHS."

THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT IS WILLING, THIS SOURCES SAID, TO BRING ALL THE NECESSARY EVIDENCE BEFORE THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS AND "HAVE THEM DECIDE AFTER CONSIDERING THE CASE."

THE RECENT ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT THAT ALL ARMY OFFICERS WOULD RESIGN FROM THE GOVERNMENT BY THE END OF 1944 BROUGHT NO COMMENT FROM DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES HERE.

THE CHUNGKING REGIME HAS BECOME AN ANGLO-AMERICAN "CATSPAW," AND THE RECALL OF GEN.JOSEPH W.STILWELL HAS BROUGHT CHINA "MUCH CRITICISM" FROM THE "INHUMANE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN," JAPAN'S FOREIGN MINISTER, MAMORU SHIGEMITSU, ASSERTED LAST (MON.) NIGHT.

THE FOREIGN MINISTER JOINED PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO AND OTHER JAPANESE LEADERS IN COMMEMORATING THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE SO-CALLED "GREATER EAST ASIA CHARTER" WITH A PROPAGANDA BID FOR INCREASED WAR SUPPORT FROM ASIATICS.

A TOKYO RADIO BROADCAST, REPORTED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID SHIGEMITSU ADDRESSED A "GRAND NATIONAL RALLY" ATTENDED BY 20,000 PERSONS IN THE JAPANESE CAPITAL. AMONG THEM WERE PUPPET REPRESENTATIVES OF JAPANESE-DOMINATED "GOVERNMENTS," INCLUDING "AMBASSADOR" JORGE B. VARGAS OF THE PHILIPPINES.

SHIGEMITSU SAID THAT "BY TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE EMPTY PROMISES" WHICH THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN "HAVE MADE TO CHUNGKING, THEY ARE FORCING CHUNGKING TO CONTINUE A WAR OF RESISTANCE AGAINST US, WHILE ACTUALLY THEY HAVE ALREADY BLUNTLY EXPOSED THEIR DESIGNS TO ENCROACH UPON CHINA MILITARILY, POLITICALLY AND ECONOMICALLY TO MAIM CHINA PERMANENTLY. PITTING ORIENTALS AGAINST ORIENTALS AND RENDERING THEM BOTH ENFEEBLED, THE ENEMIES ARE HIGHLY INTENT UPON ACHIEVING THEIR OWN EVIL DESIGNS."

THE "GREATER EAST ASIA CHARTER" WAS PROCLAIMED LAST YEAR BY A TOKYO CONFERENCE OF PUPPET REPRESENTATIVES FROM OCCUPIED AREAS. IT REITERATED TOKYO PROPAGANDA CLAIMS THAT THE "CO-PROSPERITY SPHERE" IS A VOLUNTARY UNION OF CO-OPERATING STATES.

PREMIER GEN.KUNIAKI KOISO OF JAPAN DECLARED LAST (MON) NIGHT THAT "ANGLO-AMERICAN INORDINATE AMBITION TO DENY THE RIGHT OF EXISTENCE TO JAPAN" HAD FORCED THE ISLAND EMPIRE INTO "THE PRESENT HORRIBLE WAR OF UNPRECEDENTED MAGNITUDE.

THE PREMIER, IN A BROADCAST TO THE PEOPLE OF EAST ASIA, PICTURED JAPAN AS READY TO SUPPORT "ANY INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION INTENDED FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF TRUE AMITY AMONG THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD."

BUT THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH, HE CLAIMED, WERE TRYING TO ESTABLISH A WORLD HEGEMONY "ENFORCING THEIR UNILATERAL INTERNATIONAL ORDER AND MAINTAIN THEIR ORGANIZATION FOR AGGRESSION AND EXPLOITATION THEREFORE, JAPAN WOULD FIGHT ON AS LONG AS THEY PERSISTED IN THOSE AIMS.

IN HIS SPEECH, BROADCAST BY THE DOMEI AGENCY AND RECORDED IN NEW YORK BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, HE ADMITTED THE WAR WAS GROWING IN SEVERITY.

PROSPECTS ARE "NOW EXCELLENT" FOR CLOSE AND EFFECTIVE CHINESE-AMERICAN MILITARY, POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION, GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK SAID IN A MESSAGE TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS IN RESPONSE TO A REQUEST FOR HIS VIEWS ON THE SITUATION SPOTLIGHTED BY GEN.JOSEPH W.STILWELL'S RECALL TO WASHINGTON.

MAKING HIS FIRST STATEMENT FOR PUBLICATION ON THE STILWELL INCIDENT CHIANG SAID HE BELIEVED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S EXPLANATION OF THAT MATTER TO BE "ADEQUATE" AND THAT HE HAD NOTHING FURTHER TO ADD.

HE REFERRED TO THE PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT, MADE AT A WHITE HOUSE NEWS CONFERENCE ON OCT.31, THAT STILWELL'S RECALL WAS DUE TO A CLASH OF PERSONALITIES BETWEEN THE GENERAL AND THE GENERALISSIMO AND THAT IT HAD NO CONNECTION WITH MATTERS OF STRATEGY OR POLICY IN CHINA.

CHIANG'S MESSAGE FROM CHUNGKING WAS ADDRESSED TO KENT COOPER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, AND WAS RECEIVED AT THE NEW YORK OFFICE OF THE A.P.YESTERDAY. ITS TEXT FOLLOWS:

"KENT COOPER, 50 ROOCKEFELLER PLAZA, NEW YORK.

"TELEGRAM DATED NOV.1 RECEIVED NOV.3. THANK YOU FOR EXPRESSION OF INTEREST IN THIS SITUATION. ACCORDING TO PRESS REPORTS RECEIVED HERE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ALREADY HAS GIVEN ADEQUATE EXPLANATION GENERAL STILWELL'S TRANSFER TO WHICH I HAVE NOTHING TO ADD. PROSPECTS EFFECTIVE AND CLOSE CHINESE AMERICAN MILITARY POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION NOW EXCELLENT."

MR.COOPER HAD ASKED CHIANG FOR HIS VIEWS ON THE STILWELL CASE AND OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE CHINA SITUATION FOLLOWING PUBLIC DISCUSSION OF THE AMERICAN GENERAL'S WITHDRAWAL AND THE PUBLICATION OF STORIES DETAILING THE BACKGROUND OF CHINESE-AMERICAN RELATIONS.

"ADDITIONALLY," MR.COOPER'S MESSAGE TO CHIANG SAID, "THE PRESIDENT REFERRED TO STORIES WRITTEN BY NEWSPAPERMEN SERVING AS CORRESPONDENTS IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER, THESE STORIES PURPORTING TO SET FORTH CONDITIONS AND ARRANGEMENTS RESPECTING CHINA'S PART IN THE WAR AND REFERRING PARTICULARLY TO YOUR GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE AS RESPECTS THE ORGANIZATION AND ACTIVITIES OF CHINESE COMMUNISTS.

"IN VIEW OF THESE PUBLIC STATEMENTS AND STORIES I ASK AND EARNESTLY HOPE THAT YOU WILL GIVE ME FOR PUBLICATION THROUGH THE ASSOCIATED PRESS YOUR PERSONAL STATEMENT ON THE STILWELL CASE AND ANY COMMENT YOU DEEM DESIRABLE ON OTHER MATTERS UNDER PUBLIC DISCUSSION, SINCE I BELIEVE YOUR VIEWS CARRY THE DEEPEST PUBLIC INTEREST EVERYWHERE AND WILL SERVE TO PRESENT THE SITUATION AFFECTING CHINA IN THE CLEAREST POSSIBLE LIGHT."

WHILE CHIANG'S REPLY TO THIS MESSAGE DID NOT REFER TO THE COMMUNIST SITUATION, IT WAS TOUCHED UPON BY FOREIGN MINISTER T.V.SOONG IN A CHUNGKING PRESS CONFERENCE NOV.3, AT WHICH HE TOLD CORRESPONDENTS THAT THIS WAS AN INTERNAL PROBLEM OF CHINA AND RESPECTED AS SUCH BY THE UNITED STATES.

SOONG ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT THE MATTER OF COOPERATION BETWEEN CHIANG'S GOVERNMENT AND THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS HAD BEEN THE SUBJECT OF "FRIENDLY DISCUSSION" DURING CONFERENCES AT CHUNGKING IN WHICH DONALD M.NELSON AND MAJ.GEN.PATRICK HURLEY REPRESENTED THE UNITED STATES.

DEWEY CONCEDES DEFEAT BY FDR AS TALLY GROWS

Admits at 3:15 a.m. That President Has Been Reelected.

VOTE SEE-SAWS

Roosevelt Leading in 30 States, Republican Candidate in 18.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey told a press conference at 3:15 a.m. that "it's clear that Mr. Roosevelt has been re-elected for a fourth term."

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Franklin Delano Roosevelt amassed such a lead over Thomas E. Dewey early today that claims of fourth term victory came from the Democratic camp—and concessions from some Dewey supporters.

But the Dewey high command steadfastly declined to concede. Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican national chairman, went on the air in the small hours to declare that "no definite conclusions" could be drawn. Returns from many key states were "inconclusive," he said.

Hower, The New York Herald Tribune and The Daily News, Dewey Supporters both, did concede and The New York Times, backing a fourth term, said it had become an accomplished fact.

At 2 a.m., with some states still see-sawing and the figures subject to change, the electoral votes shaped up:

Roosevelt 329; Dewey 202; needed to win 266.

At this hour the popular vote total of 19,418,425 was divided: Roosevelt 10,529,482; Dewey 8,888,943.

At Hyde Park the President, in happy mood, told neighbors it looked like another victory. Sidney Hillman, celebrating with his C.I.O.-P.A.C. followers at a New York city hotel, declared:

"The American people have reaffirmed the faith and confidence they repose in a great American and an outstanding leader by voting to return President Roosevelt to office.

Solid South for Roosevelt

Roosevelt started off by piling up substantial leads in the solid south. The "big ten" states outside the south gave Dewey the advantage, 6 to 4, in far-from complete tabulations. Roosevelt was in the van in four of the five "border" states.

In most of the far west the early morning trend was toward Roosevelt. He was splitting the six New England states, 50-50, with Dewey, and the mountain area also was divided. Dewey was on top in a number of corn belt states.

In the congressional races, Democrats appeared headed toward continued control of the treaty-ratifying Senate. They were assured of at least eight of the 13 seats they needed. The eight elected were Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky, Tydings of Maryland and six from the solid south.

Republicans elected to the Senate included Aiken of Vermont, Morse of Oregon and Reed of Kansas, Senator Nye, North Dakota, Republican, was running second in a three-way race.

Ham Fish Defeated

Eight Republican places tumbled into the Democratic basket, including the seat of Representative Hamilton Fish, New Yorker unloved by either Roosevelt or Dewey. As matters stood at 2 a. m., the Democrats had definitely elected 101 and the Republicans 13 toward a total House membership of 435. The great majority of the contests were still undecided.

New York, home state of both presidential candidates, see-sawed during the night, but then Roosevelt went into the lead.

Michigan, which gave the Republican ticket a slender 7,000-vote margin four years ago, turned over a heavy outstate vote to Dewey.

In Michigan, the first tabulation came from outside industrial Detroit.

Maryland, a border state, turned out a heavy Roosevelt majority in Baltimore that it was apparent only a Republican landslide elsewhere could overcome.

Massachusetts, with few reports in from Boston, was on the Democratic side, but not by far.

In battles for governorships and seats in Congress, returns were less complete than in the presidential struggle. But in general the candidates appeared to be following the tendencies of the national tickets.

The south, despite its substantial support for Roosevelt, nevertheless provided echoes of insurgencies against the New Deal. In Texas and South Carolina ballots for anti-Roosevelt Democratic slate cut into the chief executives totals but not enough to threaten his chances.

Dewey picked up early advantages in Kansas, Maine, South Dakota and Vermont—all carried by Republican Wendell Willkie four years ago.

NOV 8 1944 NOV 8 1944 NOV 8 1944

man, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, a democrat, who unseated the Republican incumbent, Representative John D. McWilliams, in the second district. Mrs. Woodhouse, a college professor, formerly served as secretary of the state.

Victorious for House seats also were Herman Kopplemann, first district; State Senator James P. But it looked like a photo finish again when Detroit's votes began coming through.

Maine came through for Dewey, definitely putting he rfive electoral definitely putting her five electoral votes in his column, as she did for the Republican ticket four years ago.

Mr. Roosevelt was in the van in such vote-weighty states as Pennsylvania, Illinois and California.

Wallace Gleeful

Scanning the returns, Vice President Henry Wallace asserted in Washington it's "Roosevelt until 1948," but the Dewey camp at New York termed the incomplete early results "very encouraging."

Philadelphia hung up a Roosevelt victory, but by a narrower margin than four years ago, and the President swung out front early in Pennsylvania as a whole.

The early returns from Illinois shoved Roosevelt ahead in that key state, but they were mostly from the Chicago precincts where that outcome was to be anticipated. Downstate, Dewey was leading.

The Republican nominee set the early pace in Ohio, home state of his running mate, Governor John W. Bricker. The greater part of the initial counts came from the rural districts where Dewey and Bricker looked for their heaviest backing.

Dewey also led in Michigan, New Jersey and Indiana — and in Missouri. That's Truman's home state. Missouri, however, had been wavering, jumping first into the Roosevelt column then picking up the Dewey banner as the vote-count proceeded.

Service Ballots Tallied

And, in an election in which some of the forecasters had figured the soldier vote could be the decisive factor, Dewey moved to the front in Ocean County, N. J.—the first to complete its count of service ballots. It was a Republican county in 1940.

Offsetting the Dewey margin there, to some extent, was an edge given to President Roosevelt when the computation of soldier votes was partially complete in Hunterdon county, N. J. That, too, was G.O.P. four years ago.

The biggest vote count in early returns was from Maryland and all of it from Baltimore, where Roosevelt had a 3 to 2 lead over New York's governor.

The tabulations there underscored the importance of big city votes, on which Democrats leaned for picking up pluralities. Heavy turnouts of votes had been reported from most metropolitan areas, where men and women passed through voting booths in some instances at a clip of one a minute.

In contrast, however, many a state—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, for example, had recorded heavy balloting not only in the cities but also in the rural districts.

With an eye out for returns from those areas that might show definitely the way the 1944 political winds were blowing, President Roosevelt kept his own election tables up to date at his home at Hyde Park, N. Y. Dewey received the returns in his apartment in a New York City hotel.

ROOSEVELT LEADS IN 3 N. E. STATES

Maine, Vermont for Dewey; Saltonstall Far Ahead in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Nov. 8 — (AP) President Roosevelt paced along in familiar ballot paths in New England today, taking Rhode Island's four electoral votes and gathering big leads in Massachusetts and Connecticut. He carried the three in 1940.

Governor Dewey won traditionally Republican Maine and Vermont, with their total of eight electoral votes, and held a small lead in New Hampshire.

All major Republican candidates in Vermont won election as did their Democratic counterparts in Rhode Island. Maine chose a Republican state ticket in its preview September balloting.

The President's lead was over 55,000 in 799 of Massachusetts' 1852 precincts. The vote was: Roosevelt 380,808; Dewey 325,648.

In another major Bay State race, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston, Democrat, was 53,000 in front of Lieut. Gov. Horace T. Cahill, Republican. Totals in 612 precincts: Tobin 277,689; Cahill 223,856.

The presidential race in New Hampshire was close with Dewey retaining the advantage, but his lead was only 2,100 with 190 towns of the 296 counted. Totals were: Dewey 51,469; Roosevelt 49,361. Roosevelt carried New Hampshire in 1940 by 15,000 votes, winning largely on his city strength.

A possible surprise was at least indicated in New Hampshire's first congressional district where a "freshman" to politics, Democrat Fortunat A. Normanin, was running strongly against the incumbent Republican, Chester E. Merrow, in 65 towns of 130.

F. D. R. AHEAD IN BAY STATE

City Precincts Give Lead On Early Returns

Boston, Nov. 7 (AP)—Pluralities in city votes tonight put President Roosevelt in the lead over Governor Dewey in early Massachusetts returns.

The first 107 precincts, including ten in Boston, gave Roosevelt 33,886 to 31,487 for Dewey.

Dewey had led in the first votes from small towns, but Roosevelt polled 16,664 to 11,329 for Dewey in 30 of 45 precincts in Lynn. Roosevelt carried Lynn by 6,000 votes four years ago.

Poll Facilities Taxed

Heavy crowds taxed facilities at the State's 1,852 precincts, bearing out predictions that the election would call out a possible record vote.

In Boston, long lines of voters waited their turn at the official closing hour, but election officials said all in line at that time would be allowed to vote.

Lead In Small Towns

The Republican candidate for Governor, Horace T. Cahill, led Boston's Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, the Democratic nominee, by 2,848 to 1,161 in the first 23 small-town precincts.

Governor Leverett Saltonstall, candidate for the United States Senate seat vacated by Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., who went into the army, polled 1,138 votes in the first ten reporting precincts, to 307 for his Democratic opponent, John H. Corcoran.

Maine

Portland, Maine, Nov. 7 (AP)—Maine's five electoral votes went to Governor Dewey, Republican standard bearer, on the basis of unofficial tabulation of returns in today's Presidential election balloting.

The vote in 546 precincts out of 627 in the State was: President Roosevelt, 126,965; Dewey, 138,714.

Vermont

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey maintained an early lead tonight over President Roosevelt in traditionally Republican Vermont as returns mounted in today's election.

With 87 of the State's 246 cities and towns reported, Dewey had 13,675 votes to 7,977 for Roosevelt.

Mortimer R. Proctor (R.) was leading Ernest H. Bailey (D.) in 86 cities and towns for Governor, 12,622 to 5,145.

United States Senator George W. Aiken (R.) seeking reelection, polled 13,353 votes to 4,856 for Harry W. Witter (D.), and United States Representative Charles A. Plumley (R.) received 13,010 votes to 5,304 for Robert W. Ready (D) in the contest for the State's lone seat in the national House, in the first 86 communities reported.

Rhode Island

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt moved in front of the Presidential race in Rhode Island as election results started pouring in from Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket and Central Falls.

In 130 voting districts of 261, President Roosevelt received 60,976 votes, as compared to 56,268 for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Gov. J. Howard McGrath, Democratic incumbent, polled 58,843, as against 51,259 votes for Norman D. MacLeod, Republican, in 120 of 261 districts. Governor Dewey led in the early voting from the small towns and cities, but his lead was steadily cut down by the President as returns started coming in from the larger municipalities.

In 1940, Roosevelt received 3,551 votes, as compared to 6,310 for the late Wendell Willkie in the same ten voting districts.

103, He Votes For Roosevelt

West Palm Beach, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Palm Beach county's oldest voter, Mrs. Lucretia Hanong, 103, cast a ballot for President Roosevelt today, then remarked:

"I'll vote for him again four years from now if he runs."

Her daughter, Mrs. Freddie I. Bettner, 74, added her vote for a fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT TAKES BIG LEAD IN N. Y.

President Has Plurality of 215,651 Over Opponent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 —(Wednesday) — (AP) President Roosevelt took a commanding lead early today over Governor Dewey as approximately two-thirds of New York's presidential votes were tabulated.

Unofficial returns from 6,374 of the state's 9,121 districts gave Roosevelt 2,283,545 against 2,067,894 for Dewey—a plurality of 215,651.

The lead see-sawed throughout the count as the Republican upstate and Long Island votes were stacked against the Democratic plurality in New York city.

A surprising large American labor and liberal party vote put Roosevelt in the van. In the districts reporting, the ALP piled up 332,288 and the liberal party 210,454 for the president.

In 3,724 of the 5,421 upstate and Long Island districts, the vote stood:

Dewey 1,156,965; Roosevelt 880,876.

In 2,650 of New York City's 3,700 districts, the result was:

Dewey 910,929; Roosevelt 1,402,669.

DEWEY LOSING LEAD IN OHIO

Margin Is Cut From 98,170 Votes To 58,398

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt cut sharply into the Ohio lead of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight after the Republican Presidential candidate had piled up a margin of 98,170 votes in early returns.

The New York Governor, however, was still in front by 58,398 votes as tabulation of the Buckeye State's 9,306 polling places reached the half-way mark.

Returns from 4,585 polling places gave: Dewey, 799,167; Roosevelt, 740,769.

GOP Leads In Senate Race

The Republicans were leading, too, for United States Senator, but both aspirants for Governor were engaged in a see-saw contest.

The Buckeye State, which contributed the Republican candidate for Vice- President in Gov. John W. Bricker, favored his Presidential running mate in the first tabulations, and Dewey clung to the lead.

Returns from 3,989 polling places gave: Dewey, 666,645; President Roosevelt, 589,252.

Gubernatorial Contest Close

United States Senator Robert A. Taft seeking a second six-year term, was running ahead of Democrat William G. Pickrel, Dayton attorney.

The count of 99 polling places gave: Taft, 12,423; Pickrel, 9,704.

The race for Governor switched back and forth between Democrat Frank J. Lausche, Mayor of Cleveland, and Republican James Garfield Stewart, Mayor of Cincinnati.

Tabulation of 199 polling places gave: Lausche, 28,182; Stewart, 24,231.

Cleveland, Akron Votes

President Roosevelt, who carried Ohio in his first three bids for office, was finding heavy strength in populous, industrial Cuyahoga (Cleveland) and Summit (Akron) counties, but this was countered by a strong Dewey-Bricker current in Franklin county, site of the State capital, and in rural areas.

Cuyahoga and Summit were giving a two-to-one advantage to Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate Lausche.

Democrats Take New Mexico Lead

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 7 (AP)—Democratic candidates led by President Roosevelt and Gov. John J. Dempsey established early leads tonight in New Mexico's general election.

The unofficial count in 45 divisions gave Roosevelt 6,940, Thomas E. Dewey, 4,788; Governor, 47 divisions, Dempsey (D.), 7,066; Carroll G. Gunderson (R.), 4,830; Congress, two seats, 46 divisions, Ben F. Meyer (R), 4,529; Manuel Lujan (R.), 4,300, and Clinton P. Anderson (D.), 4583 A. M. Fernandez (D.), 7,248.

The bigest Democratic majorities were accumulated in eastern and southern counties, traditionally a Democratic stronghold and earlier in reporting than the heavily populated Spanish northern counties where the Republicans expected to record their greatest strength.

Dewey's Native State Turns Out Record Vote

Detroit, Nov. 7 (AP)—Election officials in Michigan, native State of Republican Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, reported what appeared to be its greatest voter turnout in today's election.

In Detroit, which in 1940 polled 584,000 of the 2,072,908 votes cast in Michigan, Oakley E. Distin, elections supervisor, revised his earlier estimates of a 700,000-vote total in the city, declaring it would probably run to between 750,000 and 800,000. There were 814,000 registrations.

In 1940 Wendell L. Willkie carried Michigan by 6,926 after his out-State lead of 181,955 was whittled down by the Democratic majorities in Wayne (Detroit) county.

Youngest Voter In U. S. Casts Ballot For F. D. R.

Atlanta, Nov. 7 (AP)—Cadet Nurse Gachael Naomi Williams celebrated her 18th birthday today by going to a voting precinct in Atlanta and casting a ballot for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Miss Williams was picked by CBS as the youngest voter in the United States. Radio station WGST arranged to put her on the CBS network for an interview after the polls closed.

DEMOCRATS SWEEP RHODE ISLAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 7.—(AP) The entire Democratic ticket in Rhode Island swept into office tonight by overwhelming pluralities.

Republican candidate for Governor, Norman D. MacLeod and State Senator Charles T. Algren and Charles A. Curran, Republican candidates for the House of Representatives, conceded victory to their opponents shortly after 11 o'clock and "pledged their full cooperation in any way possible."

With 260 of 261 voting districts reported, President Roosevelt, who led by a plurality of 44,706, polled 158,814 votes against 114,108 for his Republican opponent, Governor Dewey.

Rhode Island voters returned Governor J. Howard McGrath for a third term and U. S. Reps. Aime J. Forand and John E. Fogarty, Democrats.

Gov. McGrath received 163,531 votes as against 109,187 for Republican Norman D. MacLeod.

Forand polled 79,848 as compared with 50,247 votes for Curran, Republican, and 94 for Charles R. Napier, constitutional government nominee, in the first Congressional district.

In the Second Congressional district U. S. Rep. Fogarty, Democrat, received 78,893 votes as against 59,438 for state Senator Algren in 133 of 134 voting districts.

More than 25,000 service ballots have yet to be counted but because of the large pluralities political observers said they would have no bearing on the outcome.

Counting of the service ballots will start Dec. 5 and according to state board of election officials probably will not be completed until Dec. 17.

MISSOURI SWINGS TO DEWEY COLUMN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7—(AP) Pivotal Missouri swung toward the Republican column tonight with returns from about one third of the state giving Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a lead of more than 25,000 votes over the fourth-term seeking President Roosevelt.

The entire state ticket rode along in front with Dewey.

Most of the early returns, however, came from rural Missouri where the G. O. P. expected to show its greatest strength. They included only a few precincts in Kansas City and St. Louis, which forecasters predicted would go Democratic.

30. 24— 20229

The vote for President in 1,657 out of 4,543 precincts was: Dewey 232,735, Roosevelt 207,478.

For U. S. Senator, in 1,473 precincts, Republican Gov. Forrest C. Donnell had 206,717 votes and Democratic Attorney General Roy McKittrick 183,708.

In the governorship contest between two rivals from the same little Ozark town of Lebanon, the vote in 1,473 precincts was: Jean Paul Bradshaw, Republican, 202,101; Phil M. Donnelly, Democrat, 188,447.

Missouri voters—lured by expectations of a close contest and favored by generally good weather—turned out in unexpected numbers threatening to exceed the anticipated total of 1,500,000 votes.

DEWEY PILING UP BIG KANSAS VOTE

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 7 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, amassed a growing lead tonight in his bid for Kansas' eight electoral votes, and the G.O.P. candidates for governor, U. S. Senator and Congress were riding along with him.

Returns from 229 of the state's 2,750 precincts in today's general election gave Dewey 19,713 to 10,737 for President Roosevelt.

Republican Governor Andrew F. Schoeppel, running for re-election, was far out in front of his Democratic opponent, State Senator Robert S. Lemon of Pittsburg. Returns from 240 precincts gave Schoeppel, 23,095, Lemon 10,439.

With returns tabulated from 202 precincts, U. S. Senator Clyde M. Reed, Republican incumbent, held a lead of 12,850 to 7,889 over the Democratic nominee, Thurman Hill, in his race for a second term.

All six Republican candidates for Congress, five of them incumbents, had early leads over their Democratic opponents. State Senator Albert M. Cole, only Republican not now in Congress, defeated Representative W. P. Lambertson in the Republican primary last August.

REPUBLICANS LEAD IN OREGON VOTING

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 7—(AP) Governor Dewey held a small lead over President Roosevelt tonight in the contest for Oregon's six electoral votes, with rural Republican counties overcoming the President's small margin in metropolitan Portland.

Returns from 122 of the state's 1,829 precincts gave Dewey a 9,477 to 9,154 lead. Eighty-nine of the precincts were in Portland, where the President had a 322-vote margin.

Republicans held commanding leads in races for all other offices, including contests for two seats in the U. S. senate and four seats in the House.

Wayne L. Morse, Republican, former member of the War Labor board, held a 5 to 3 margin over Edgar R. Smith, Democrat, in the race for the full term, which had been held by Sen. Rufus C. Holman, Morse beat Holman in the primary.

Sen. Guy Gordon, Republican, who was appointed to succeed the late Sen. Charles L. McNary, held the same margin in his fight for re-election to the four-year unexpired term. His opponent is Willis Mahoney, Democrat, who twice has failed to get into the Senate.

DEWEY LEADS IN IOWA BY A NARROW MARGIN

DES MOINES, Nov. 7—(AP) The Republican presidential nominee, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, held a narrow lead over his Democratic rival, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the first scattered [illegible] precincts to report in today's general election.

Reports from 118 precincts gave Dewey 16,359 and Roosevelt 15,958.

Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat seeking reelection, took the lead away from Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper, the Republican nominee, on the basis of reports from one-twentieth of the state's precincts. Returns from 118 precincts gave Gillette 15,116 and Hickenlooper 14,837.

DEWEY SURPRISES IN ARIZONA POLL

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 7—(AP) Thomas E. Dewey waged an unexpectedly strong but losing contest in consistently Democratic Arizona tonight on the basis of early returns, but the balance of the Republican ticket lagged far behind.

Complete returns from 11 precincts and incomplete from 78 of the state's 438 gave President Roosevelt 10,039; Dewey, 7,561.

With Jerrie W. Lee, veteran Republican standard bearer, having withdrawn in mid-campaign, Governor Osborn sailed easily into his third term as governor.

The tabulation gave Osborn 9,855; Lee 3,638.

Veteran Senator Carl Hayden was well in front of Fred W. Fickett, Tucson attorney. The incumbent Democratic congressmen, Richard F. Harless and John R. Murdock, approached a 2 to 1 lead over their Republican opponents, Mrs. Margaret Adams Rockwell of Phoenix and A. M. Ward of Casa Grande.

DEWEY SLASHES FDR'S PENN. LEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—(AP) President Roosevelt swept Philadelphia by a 117,754 majority yesterday, but returns from upstate Republican strongholds early today slashed his Pennsylvania margin to 47,352.

The unofficial tabulation was more than half complete.

With 5,550 of the state's 8,208 precincts reporting, the President had polled 1,207,387 ballots against 1,160,035 for Governor Dewey.

Philadelphia gave the President 455,412 and Dewey, 337,658.

U. S. Senator James J. Davis, Republican, former U. S. Secretary of Labor, slumped behind in his race for reelection, polling 783,798 in 3,786 of the 8,208 precincts against 814,887 for his Democratic opponent, Representative Francis J. Myers.

Roosevelt's Philadelphia majority was the lowest accorded him in the three times he has carried the nation's third city.

His 1940 majority over Wendell Willkie was 177,000. In 1936, his majority here over Alfred M. Landon was 209,876. Herbert Hoover, last Republican presidential candidate to win Pennsylvania, drew a 70,816 majority in Philadelphia in 1932.

TEXAS RETURNS GIVE FDR LEAD

DALLAS, Nov. 7—(AP) In unprecedented numbers, Texans cast their ballots today, and early returns to the Texas election bureau indicated they favored a fourth term for President Roosevelt, the re-election of all state officers and the return to Congress of a complete Democratic slate.

Returns from 57 of the state's 254 counties, one complete showed electors pledged to the president leading by nearly 3 to 1 those pledged to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and the Texas regulars, anti-Roosevelt Democratic group, the total: Roosevelt 88,174, Dewey 15,208, Texas regulars 18,514.

Governor Coke R. Stevenson was leading his Republican opponent, B. J. Peasley, 62,560 to 4,416.

In the only congressional race where the Republicans waged an all-out campaign, Rep. Hatton W. Sumners, Democrat, was leading Republican Charles D. Turner 23,215 to 7,849. The district includes Dallas county.

In nine congressional districts nominees were unopposed.

WALSH CASTS BALLOT STRAIGHT DEMOCRATIC

CLINTON, Mass., Nov. 7—(AP) Senator David I. Walsh (D.-Mass.) said today he had cast his ballot for the "straight Democratic ticket."

Last week the state's senior senator said he resented an assertion by Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic vice presidential nominee, who is an interview, referred to Walsh as "an isolationist."

Walsh said the term was "opprobious" and added that while he would support the Democratic national and state ticket he would take no active part in the campaign.

Last Saturday, when President Roosevelt came to Boston for his final campaign address, Walsh joined the President's train in Worcester and rode to Boston, but did not appear at Fenway Park, where the President spoke.

Wisconsin

Milwaukee, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt, polling a heavy vote in the industrial Milwaukee area, took the lead over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the basis of early unofficial returns in today's election.

In 444 of the State's 2,098 precincts Roosevelt had 100,442 to 89,325 for the New York Governor. The returns included servicemen's votes and 155 precincts from Milwaukee county. Dewey was polling the larger vote in the rural areas but the urban totals for Roosevelt pushed him into the front.

Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican incumbent, whose pre-Pearl Harbor voting record was attacked by Representative Howard McMurray, his Democratic opponent, as isolationist, had a sizeable lead over McMurray and Representative Harry Sauthoff, the Progressive Senatorial nominee.

In 158 precincts Wiley had 16,075 to 7,601 for McMurray and 1,541 for Sauthoff.

Eighty-one-year-old Walter S. Goodland, the acting Governor, a Republican, also took a sizable early lead in his bid for the Gubernatorial post. In 158 precincts he had 18,169 to 7,152 for Daniel W. Hoan, Democratic nominee, and 1,214 for Alex Benz, the Progressive candidate.

Minnesota

Minneapolis, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt tonight led Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican nominee for President, in early scattered returns from Minnesota. During the campaign both the Republican and the new, combination Democratic Farmer-Labor parties concentrated on the Presidential contest. The State has eleven electoral votes. Returns from 217 of 3,703 precincts gave Roosevelt 69,190; Dewey, 49,195.

The Democratic-Farm-Labor party, formed last spring, had a complete slate of candidates in the field, headed by Byron Allen, their nominee for Governor. Allen, a former Iowan, followed Vice-President Wallace into the Democratic party several years ago.

The Republican candidate for Governor was Gov. Edward J. Thye, who succeeded Gov. Harold Stassen in 1943 when Stassen resigned to join the navy.

The State's nine Republican Congressmen all were candidates for reelection.

FDR HOLDS EARLY LEAD IN WASHINGTON STATE

SEATTLE, Nov. 7—(AP) Democratic candidates took an early lead in scattered returns from today's apparently record-breaking turnout of Washington state's approximately 1,000,000 registered voters.

Partial returns from 38 of the state's 3,163 precincts gave President Roosevelt 3,240 to 2,274 for Dewey.

Nineteen of the 3,163 precincts gave Democratic Rep. Warren G. Magnuson 1,547 votes for the seat to be vacated by U. S. Sen. Homer T. Bone to 1,152 for Lt. Col. Harry R. Cain, Tacoma's mayor on military leave in Europe. The same 19 precincts showed Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langle seeking re-election, trailing U. S. Sen. Mon C. Wallgren, 1,497 to 1,284.

EARLY MONTANA VOTE GOES TO ROOSEVELT

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 7.—(AP) President Roosevelt established an early lead in Montana over Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Republican presidential candidate, tonight in the first, scattered general election returns.

Republican Governor Sam C. Ford, seeking his second four-year term, led his Democratic opponent, Supreme Court Justice Leif Erickson, by a handful of votes.

Early predictions of a near-record vote apparently were borne out as clerks tabulated figures. In Silver Bow county where Butte provides the lion's share of the voting, one of the heaviest turnouts in the country's history was reported.

The tabulation in Montana at 8 p. m. (MWT):

President: 7 precincts of 1,175 gave Roosevelt 1,144; Dewey 749.

NORTH DAKOTA GIVES EARLY LEAD TO FDR

FARGO, N. D., Nov. 7.—(AP) Early returns in North Dakota gave President Roosevelt a slight edge over Thomas E. Dewey for President and put Democratic Governor John Moses in the lead for U. S. Senator.

Nine of 2,254 precincts gave Roosevelt 945 and Dewey 904. In the senatorial contest, seven precincts put Moses nearly 200 ahead of U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye, the Republican nominee, and nearly 300 ahead of Independent Lynn U. Stambaugh, former national commander of the American Legion. The count was Moses 542, Nye 362, and Stambaugh 273.

South Dakota

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Nov. 7 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey held a substantial lead in the contest for South Dakota's four electoral votes, and Republican incumbents in Congressional and Gubernatorial races amassed margins approaching or bettering two to one in early returns.

Two hundred of the State's 1,949 precincts gave Dewey 17,061; Roosevelt 12,503.

Senator Chan Gurney led in 137 precincts, 9,904 to 5,430 for George W. Bradshaw, Democrat.

Representative Karl Mundt led Grover Lothrop, Democrat, 11,970 to 6,738 in 163 precincts, and Representative Francis Case held a 410-to-155 lead over H. W. Clarkson, Democrat, in 44 precincts.

Gov. M. Q. Sharpe received 10,119 votes to 5,568 for Lynn Fellows, Democrat, in 139 precincts.

DEMOCRATIC ARKANSAS ON ROOSEVELT'S SIDE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 7—(AP) Traditionally Democratic Arkansas apparently was in the Roosevelt column tonight but the less than three-to-one ratio in scattered unofficial early returns was the narrowest over Republicans in 16 years.

Returns from 80 of 2,087 precincts gave Roosevelt 3,208 and Dewey 1,148.

Arkansas Republicans, who staged their most vigorous fight in a national election since 1928, were joined by anti-Roosevelt Democrats who campaigned for a large protest vote against the New Deal.

A stiff fight was in progress over a proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw the closed union shop.

Returns from 119 precincts gave 3,684 for the amendment to 2,417 against.

Early Connecticut Vote Goes F. D. R.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt jumped into an early lead tonight for Connecticut's eight electoral votes on the basis of unofficial returns from the quick-reporting cities, but his pluralities in the urban centers ran generally lower than those of 1940 when he carried the State by 55,802 votes.

Republicans, banking for much of their support on the late reporting rural areas, made one of the deepest cuts in the 1940 Roosevelt plurality in Waterbury, one of the State's strongest Democratic centers. The unofficial vote there was Roosevelt 22,890, Dewey 19,525, a plurality for the President of 3,365 compared with his 1940 margin of 9,017.

New Haven, the State's second largest city, bettered its 1940 plurality for Roosevelt by about 600 votes. With one precinct missing, the city's unofficial vote was Roosevelt, 44,804; Dewey, 28,348.

The early returns also gave former Gov. Robert A. Hurley (D.) a lead over Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, but the Democratic nominee's plurality was running behind the President.

PHILADELPHIA ROOSEVELT'

President Has Substantia Lead In Whole State

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt swept Philadelphia by a 117,754 majority in the general election today and swung out to a substantial lead in Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania as a whole.

The complete Philadelphia vote:

Roosevelt	455,412
Dewey	337,658

In the State as a whole, 3,112 precincts out of 8,208 gave the President 826,668 and Dewey 713,990.

In industrial Allegheny county, embracing Pittsburgh and its suburbs, 244 precincts out of 1,024 gave Roosevelt 86,480 and Dewey 61,945.

Myers Leads Davis

United States Senator James J. Davis, Republican, former United States Secretary of Labor, trailed his Democratic opponent, Representative Francis J. Myers, in early returns.

The vote from 1,237 of the 8,208 precincts was 259,376 for Myers and 251,783 for Davis.

In Allegheny county, 197 of the 1,024 precincts gave Myers 62,898 and Davis 45,587.

The State's soldier vote was not included in the tabulation. Servicemen's ballots will be counted November 22. Of 652,022 mailed out, 239,185 had been returned.

Pennsylvania's polling places were jammed throughout the day.

ILLINOIS LEAD TO ROOSEVELT

Dewey, However, Is Ahead In Returns Outside Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP)—Early returns in Illinois—the majority of them from the Democratic stronghold of Chicago—gave President Roosevelt a lead tonight, although he trailed his challenger, Thomas E. Dewey, in the normally Republican down-State territory.

Reports from 266 of the State's 8,748 precincts—200 of them in Cook county (Chicago)—gave the President 72,808 and the New York Governor 40,722.

In returns from 66 precincts outside the city, Dewey had the advantage over Roosevelt by 13,880 to 9,345.

Green Also Behind

Gov. Dwight H. Green, Republican running for reelection, was behind Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic State's Attorney at Chicago, in the initial tabulations—but in that race also most of the returns were from Chicago, and the Governor had a margin over his adversary in the down-State districts.

Reports from 212 precincts—160 of them in Chicago—gave Courtney 55,531 and Green 32,057.

The same early pattern was apparent in the duel for a United States Senate seat, matching Senator Scott W. Lucas, Democrat bidding for a second term, against Republican Richard J. Lyons.

Returns from 294 precincts—225 of them in Chicago—gave Lucas 80,124 and Lyons 42,776.

Hope To Offset City

Like Dewey and Green, Lyons set the pace down-State, where Republican leaders expected to gather a heavy harvest of votes to offset the Democratic showing in Chicago.

A tremendous turnout of voters was reported from all sections of the State with indications that the record of 4,262,196, established in 1940, may be equaled or exceeded. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who has charge of the election machinery in Cook county, estimated an all-time high total of 1,970,000 to 2,000,000 ballots were cast in Chicago. The city peak of 1,787,861 was attained four years ago.

The State's soldier vote was fixed at 210,317 during the day, with indications that late ballots rushed to the polls before the 5 P. M. closing hour might increase the total to about 215,000. The service ballots were counted with those marked by civilians.

DEMOCRATS LEAD OKLAHOMA VOTE

Roosevelt and Entire Ticket in Vanguard in Early Returns.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 7—(AP) President Roosevelt and almost the entire Democratic ticket rolled out in front in Oklahoma tonight with little early indication that the state had been rightfully placed in the political doubtful column.

On the basis of unofficial returns from 653 of Oklahoma's 3,672 precincts the Democratic Roosevelt-Truman presidential and vice presidential team led the Republican Dewey-Bricker ticket 67,286 to 47,130.

Elmer Thomas, 18 years a Democratic U. S. senator, took a strong early lead for fourth term re-election, which in later returns was cut down somewhat by William J. Otjen, Republican.

Returns from 638 Precincts gave Thomas 66,222 votes to 45,931 for Otjen, Enid attorney.

In the First congressional district (Tulsa) George B. Schwabe, Tulsa attorney and Republican nominee, trailed Dennis Bushyhead, Claremore Democratic congressional aspirant, 2,543 to 2,208 in returns from 32 of 574 precincts.

Congressional races in the remaining seven districts also were led by Democratic incumbents, with the exception of the eighth, where Ross Rizley, Republican incumbent, led Democrat Phil Ferguson 3,232 to 1,962 in returns from 37 of 493 precincts.

Earliest returns, those from eight counties, showed soldiers and sailors and other military personnel voting better than two to one for their commander-in-chief. The tabulation showed 1,034 for Roosevelt to 481 for Dewey.

Missouri Swings Toward GOP Slate

St. Louis, Nov. 7 (AP)—Pivotal Missouri swung toward the Republican column tonight with returns from about one third of the State giving Gov. Thomas E. Dewey a lead of more than 25,000 votes over President Roosevelt.

The entire State ticket rode along in front with Dewey.

Most of the early returns, however, came from rural Missouri where the GOP expected to show its greatest strength. They included only a few precincts in Kansas City and St. Louis, which forecasters predicted would go Democratic.

Presidential Vote

The vote for President in 1,657 out of 4,543 precincts was: Dewey, 232,735; Roosevelt, 207,478.

For United States Senator, in 1,473 precincts, Republican Governor Forrest C. Donnell had 206,717 votes and Democratic Attorney General Roy McKittrick 183,708.

In the Governorship contest between two rivals from the same little Ozark town of Lebanon, the vote in 1,473 precincts was: Jean Paul Bradshaw, Republican, 202,101; Phil M. Donnelly, Democrat, 188,447.

Missouri voters—lured by expectations of a close contest and favored generally good weather—turned out in unexpected numbers threatening to exceed the anticipated total of 1,500,000 votes.

ROOSEVELT, BARKLEY LEADING IN KENTUCKY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 7—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Senator Alben W. Barkley moved into comfortable leads in returns from scattered Kentucky precincts early tonight.

On the basis of unofficial returns from 767 of 4,304 precincts Roosevelt was leading Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 88,301 to 67,385.

In the senate race, Barkley, (D.) moved into a lead of 84,276 to 62,695 over his opponent, James Park (R) on the basis of unofficial returns from 750 precincts.

CALIFORNIA VOTE LEANING TO FDR

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 — (AP) President Roosevelt took a substantial lead over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in early California election returns tonight.

The ratio in the President's favor was about 3 to 2 in populous Los Angeles, and about the same in San Francisco. War-booming San Diego gave an early lead to Dewey.

The vote in 2642 out of 14,841 precincts was Roosevelt 242,584, Dewey 173,675.

Democratic Senator Sheridan Downey, seeking his second term, led Lt. Gov. Frederick F. Houser, Republican, in 1812 precincts. Downey had 101,643 and Houser 82,438. Downey was strong in the early San Francisco returns and the ratio in his favor in Los Angeles was about 5 to 4. Several smaller counties gave leads to Houser.

First Congressional returns from the hard-fought contest between Rep. Tom Rolph, Republican, and Franck R. Havenner, Democrat, were close: In 10 out of 557 precincts the vote was: Rolph 590, Havenner 585.

GOV. DEWEY HAS SLIGHT EDGE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 7—(AP) Governor Thomas E. Dewey held a slight lead over President Roosevelt with about one-sixth of the ballots cast today tabulated unofficially.

Political observers said the New York governor was running about one per cent higher than Wendell Willkie at the same point in 1940, when President Roosevelt won in the state by 15,000 votes.

With 55 of the state's 296 towns and wards reported, Dewey had 5286 and Roosevelt 3711. In those same towns U. S. Senator Charles W. Tobey had 5245 and his Democrat opponent, Joseph J. Betley, 3266.

Those towns and wards gave Republican gubernatorial candidate Charles M. Dale, mayor of Portsmouth, 5292 and Col. James J. Powers, his Democrat opponent, 3164.

U. S. Senator George W. Aiken and U. S. Representative Charles A. Plumley, both Republicans, were re-elected, the incomplete figures indicated, and Lieutenant Governor Mortimer R. Proctor (R) was assured of election as governor over Ernest H. Bailey (D).

The first 22 cities and towns tabulated gave Aiken 63,773 votes for 31,334 for Harry W. Witters (D).

Plumley received 65,419 votes in 228 cities and towns to 35,758 for Robert W. Ready (R), and Proctor polled 57,889 votes to 28,218 for Bailey in 211 cities and towns.

GOV. DEWEY DEFEATS FDR IN HYDE PARK

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. Nov. 7.—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey defeated President Roosevelt, his Dutchess county neighbor, today in the town of Hyde Park, home of the President, and in the town of Pawling, where the governor owns a farm.

Dewey carried Hyde Park 1,522 to 1,181 and Pawling, 972 to 476. The President never has carried Hyde Park.

HELEN DOUGLAS LEADS REPUBLICAN OPPONENT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7—(AP) A see-saw contest developed tonight in California's 14th congressional district between Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democratic national committeewoman, and William D. Campbell, attorney and Republican.

Soldier Glad to Mark Ballot as Shells Go By

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 7 (AP).—The significance of marking an American ballot while under fire on German soil was described by Corporal Roger M. Olsen, of the United States Army, in a letter to his wife, who is a school teacher here.

The letter, which she read to a reporter, said in part: "As I marked the little X's I could hear the thundering guns and big shells whistling through the air toward the enemy. Each little mark seemed to strengthen the chain of freedom which the enemy, a few miles away, had tried to break. It was, indeed, an honor to vote today."

BARKLEY REELECTED

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 7—(AP) Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky) won re-election today and his Republican opponent, James Park of Lexington, conceded defeat.

Dewey Takes Michigan Lead

Detroit, Nov. 7 (AP)—Outstate Michigan, traditionally Republican, gave the State's native son, Thomas E. Dewey, a strong lead tonight in what appeared to be a record-breaking vote. If the Republican nominee holds the present ratio he will come to Wayne (Detroit) county, the Democratic stronghold, with a margin of about 250,000 votes.

The heavy vote in Wayne county indicated a close finish in Michigan again. In 1940, Willkie carred the State by 6,926 votes in a total of 2,072,908.

Returns from 230 out-State precincts, out of the State total of 3,841, gave Dewey 67,405 and Roosevelt 43,563.

Predicts 750,000 Vote

In Detroit, Oakley E. Distin, the election supervisor, predicted a total vote of 750,000 or even higher compared to 584,000 in 1940, when Roosevelt's big majority in Wayne (Detroit) county almost overcame Wendell L. Willkie's out-State lead of 181,955.

Michigan counted its soldier votes simultaneously with the regular ballots.

Despite chill weather, long lines stood at most of the larger city polls all day long. In some cities the closing time ranged as late as 11 P. M. EWT. Detroit closed its polls at 10 P. M.

There was every indication the total State vote would exceed the record-breaking 1940 total of 2,072,908.

Query About Election Precedes Communique

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP)—When the Army Signal Corps voicecast from the Philippines was set up this afternoon to handle Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique, the first word from the announcer in the islands was:

30. 24 — 20 29

"Have you anything on the election yet?"

When advised it was still too early, the announcer replied, "just break in when you have anything."

F. D. R. IS AHEAD IN W. VA. VOTE

Democrat Ahead In Gubernatorial Contest

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 7 (AP)—West Virginia, which gave its electoral votes to President Roosevelt four years ago, was establishing a trend in that direction again tonight as the first of 2,793 heavily filled ballot boxes were turned in.

In the first 67 precincts, representing tallies from 24 counties and including some in the populous southern coal fields, Mr. Roosevelt had a total of 9,574 while the count for Gov. Thomes E. Dewey was 7,158.

Judge Meadows Ahead

In the contest for West Virginia's Governor, now held by Democratic Executive M. M. Neely, the ratio was about the same. Judge Clarence W. Meadows, of Beckley, in 67 precincts had polled 9,714 votes and the tally for Mayor D. Boone Dawson of Charleston was 6,953.

The early count was totally inconclusive and had little representation from the industrial northern panhandle, but there was nothing in the first returns to indicate that coal miners in the south had swung away from the President in any great numbers.

What few precincts were in from the mining counties of McDowell, Mingo, Logan and Raleigh gave Democratic margins. The same was true for the Gubernational contest and for races for State offices and Congressional seats.

Democrats In Virginia Take Commanding Lead

Richmond, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt and most of Virginia's Democratic nominees for Congress took commanding leads in incomplete unofficial returns tonight from the general election, but in the seventh a nip and tuck fight developed between Representative A. Willis Robertson, Democrat, and D. Wampler Earman, Republican.

In the Presidential race, 875 of the 1,714 Virginia precincts gave the Roosevelt-Truman ticket 101,737 votes to 59,002 for Dewey-Bricker. The votes included soldier as well as civilian ballots.

Lead Of Only 1,828

Representative Robertson had a lead of only 1,828 votes over Earman on the basis of returns from 141 of the district's 256 precincts. The vote was Robertson 11,141, Earman 9,318.

In the six other Congressional races in which there was opposition, the Democrats were well out in front.

Differences, which arose in both the major parties, took the form of a division among the Democrats over support of Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.), who was supported by some other southern States for the Presidential nomination, took no part in the campaign and made no speeches or statements.

North Carolina

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 7 (AP)—North Carolina, traditionally a bulwark of the Democratic party, returned its usual heavy Democratic vote today, and elected a Democratic Senator and Governor and other State officers.

Returns from a third of the State's precincts gave President Roosevelt a 3-to-1 lead over the Republican nominee, Thomas E. Dewey. With returns from 705 of 1,922 precincts counted, the vote was: Roosevelt, 212,056; Dewey, 74,772.

Four years ago the vote in North Carolina was Roosevelt, 609,015; Willkie, 213,633.

No third party was represented on the ballot in North Carolina, which went Republican in 1928 for the first time in recent years, but so-called "Constitutional Democrats" conducted an advertising campaign urging voters to cast their ballot for the Republican national ticket and to support Democratic nominees for other offices.

Clyde R. Hoey, the Democratic nominee, was elected United States Senator, succeeding Senator Robert R. Reynolds, and R. Gregg Cherry, Democrat, was elected Governor.

Louisiana

New Orleans, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt held a four-to-one lead over Governor Dewey tonight in early returns from today's general election.

The vote in 59 of the total of 1871 precincts gave Roosevelt 8,649 and Dewey 2,156.

This did not include any of the New Orleans' vote where the polls remained open until 9 P. M.

Democratic Senator John H. Overton won reelection easily. His independent opponent, Maurice E. Clark, failed to get his name on the ballot.

Electoral System Is Explained

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—When the election returns start rolling in tonight, if you're trying to keep tab, remember: it's the electoral vote in each State that counts.

Technically, when you vote you do not vote directly for President and Vice-President but rather for the so-called Presidential electors chosen by a candidate's party in every State.

Each party has its own set of electors in each State. The electors of a party getting the greatest number of votes in a State vote later for their party's Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates.

Not Provided By Law

They do this automatically, although there is nothing in the law which says they have to. The electors of a party defeated in any State, of course, don't vote at all.

The electors always have to wait a while after election day before casting their votes. This year the victorious electors will meet in their State capitals December 18 and ballot for their party's candidates.

Those votes, in sealed envelopes will be sent to Washington. They will be counted here January 6 in the presence of the new Congress by the President of the Senate.

Soldier Vote Delay

You won't have to wait that long of course, to know who wins today's election. You'll probably know tonight for sure. But if it's very close then the final results may not be known until all the soldier-sailor ballots are counted.

The electoral system may seem a roundabout way of doing a job. It has been called obsolete. But it was set up by the framers of the Constitution.

They thought that the voters could choose electors and that the electors would exercise their own judgment in choosing a President and Vice-President. It hasn't worked out that way. As noted, they follow their party's desires.

Number Of Electors

The electoral system works this way:

Each State chooses Presidential electors equal to the number of its members in the national House of Representatives, plus two Senators. For example:

Arizona has two Representatives and, like every other State, has two Senators. So it is four electoral voters. (Congressmen can't be electoral voters.)

New York, with 45 Representatives and two Senators, has 47 electoral votes, largest in the naton.

531 Electoral Vote Total

Each State is allowed one Representative in the National House for approximately every 300,000 people in its population. There are 435 Representatives in Congress and 96 Senators, a total of 531 Congressmen. To each of the big parties, Democrat and Republican, has named 531 electoral voters.

The successful candidate tonight will need a minimum of 266 electoral votes, just one vote more than half of the 531 total electoral votes, to win.

Mr. Roosevelt almost surely will start out the day with a neat package of Southern electoral votes safe in his pocket. It seems certain that 11 Southern States, with a total of 127 electoral votes among them, will adhere to their long tradition of voting solidly Democratic. That means he would have to pick up only 139 elsewhere to reach the 266 mark.

NOV 8 1944

Prohibition Plan Killed In Nebraska's Referendum

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 7. — (AP) Nebraska voted a resounding "no" today to a state-wide prohibition proposal.

The proposal, which would have banned possession as well as sale of intoxicating liquor, was on the losing side by more than two-to-one with enough returns in to establish the decision.

Returns from 407 of the state's 2,026 precincts showed a 61,765 to 34,922 vote against the ban The proposed constitutional amendment to limit gas tax funds to highway purposes also was losing by a substantial margin, returns from 407 precincts giving 44,048 votes against and 33,843 for the proposal.

Two factors were considered paramount in defeat of the ban: The state's resentment against the proposal being brought up in the absence of Nebraskans in the armed forces, and the dislike for new taxes which opponents said would be necessary to replace liquor tax revenues.

GEORGIA FOR FDR

BY BIG MAJORITY

Dewey and Independent Democrats Far Behind in Early Tabulations.

ATLANTA, Nov. 7—(AP) Georgia, whose Gov. Ellis Arnall has been mentioned as a possible cabinet member in a fourth term administration, plumped hard for the Roosevelt-Truman ticket in today's general election.

Unofficial returns from 207 of 1,735 precincts gave Roosevelt 55,711; Dewey 9,069; and the unpledged independent Democrats 515.

The state also sent back to the Senate without opposition veteran Senator Walter F. George, chairman of the Senate finance committee, and nine Democratic congressmen, including Rep. Carl Vinson, chairman of the House naval affairs committee.

Rep. Robert Ramspeck, Democratic house whip, beat off a challenge by independent Henry A. Alexander with ease to complete the congressional delegation.

First Alabama Absentee Vote Count Democratic

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt polled the customary Democratic majority over Governor Dewey in returns from 55 absentee ballots in Jefferson (Birmingham) county today.

Forty-seven of the 55 were for all Democratic nominees, seven were for Dewey and one for Prohibitionist party nominees. No comparative figures for 1940 were available.

NOV 8 1944

Alabama

Birmingham, Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt, Senator Lister Hill and other Democratic nominees were given overwhelming majorities on early unofficial returns from today's election in Alabama.

With ballots tabulated from 64 of the State's 2,400 boxes, Roosevelt had 6,964 votes to 1,425 for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Senator Hill, on returns from 58 of 2,300 precincts, had 6,533 votes to 1,171 for John Posey, Republican.

Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt held a lead in Tennessee tonight as western majorities overcame Republican strength in the eastern rural areas.

Returns from 1,489 of 2,300 precincts gave Roosevelt 134,492 and Dewey 101,793.

None of the four major cities had turned in its count.

Democrat Jim Nance McCord, who stepped out of Congress to campaign for Governor, led a close race with Republican John Hartley Kilgo.

Returns from 1,301 precincts gave McCord 87,848; Kilgo, 64,322, and Independent John R. Neal 1,525.

NOV 8 1944

Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Florida voters rolled up a two-to-one majority for President Roosevelt on the basis of early unofficial returns from today's general election, but made a close fight out of a proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw the closed union shop.

In the Presidential election, returns from 124 of 1,498 precincts gave Roosevelt 35,262 and Dewey 17,320.

Senator Claude Pepper, New Deal champion, seemed sure of re-election.

New Jersey

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was out in front with a two-to-one lead in early New Jersey returns.

The Republican had an edge of 44,808 to Roosevelt's 23,082 in 86 of the 3,658 State election districts, but 80 of those districts were in Bergen county, a Republican stronghold which has produced, in the past, huge GOP pluralities.

Balloting throughout the State was extremely heavy throughout the day. The first report on the military vote, which came from normally Republican Hunterdon county, gave the Roosevelt-Truman ticket a 224-to-215 edge over the Dewey-Bricker combination. About 600 of the votes remained to be counted.

Complete but unofficial absentee vote returns in Ocean county, normally Republican, gave Dewey and Bricker 746 ballots to 683 for the Democrats.

H. Alexander Smith, Republican candidate for United States Senator, was ahead of his Democratic rival, Elmer H. Wene, 30,326 to 52,474, in returns from 135 of the State's districts.

The opposition vote to adoption of a new State constitution was leading, 18,119 to 15,830, in the returns from 84 districts.

ROOSEVELT LEADS IN SOUTH CAROLINA

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 7.—(AP) Traditionally Democratic South Carolina piled up a huge majority today for President Roosevelt, but apparently not as large as in former years, and a candidate nominated by an anti-New Deal third party was running considerably ahead of the Republican nominee, Thomas E. Dewey.

Returns from 530 of the state's 1,282 precincts gave Roosevelt 54,720 votes; Dewey 3,165 and Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democratic senator of Virginia, 5,086. The southern Democratic party, formed in South Carolina by bolting Democrats who opposed Mr. Roosevelt's domestic policies, designated Senator Byrd as its nominee.

In the last four presidential elections South Carolina piled up the biggest Democratic majority of any state. In 1928 when the rest of the nation gave Herbert Hoover a landslide vote, South Carolina cast 91 per cent of her ballot for Al Smith.

In today's voting the Democrats elected Gov. Olin D. Johnston to the U. S. Senate over two Republican candidates and a candidate of the Progressive (Negro) Democratic party. He will succeed veteran Senator E. D. Smith, chairman of the Senate agriculture committee, whom he defeated in the Democratic primary.

The Democrats also elected six Congressmen, but in one district, the Second, there was a contest between John Riley, Democrat, and T. M. Wannamaker, an independent who refused to pay the Democratic party's filing fee.

DEWEY LEADS F. D. R. IN N. Y.

Roosevelt Cuts Into Up-State Margin, However

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey held a narrow lead over President Roosevelt in New York State tonight, although the President cut deeply into Dewey's expected margin in traditionally Republican upstate.

Unofficial returns from 887 of 9,121 districts in the State gave Dewey 251,413 votes to 220,138 for Roosevelt.

Returns from 800 of the 5,421 districts outside New York city showed: Dewey, 217,343; Roosevelt, 186,689.

Dewey Polls 34,070 Votes

In 87 of the 3,700 districts in New York city, which is strongly Democratic, Dewey polled 34,070 votes to 33,449 for Roosevelt.

The President carried Rochester, Syracuse and Auburn. Normally Republican Syracuse, which gave the late Wendell L. Willkie a 10,064 plurality in 1940, went to Roosevelt by 4,093.

Rochester, which rolled up a Roosevelt plurality of 20,360 in 1940, went to the President by a 19,403 margin.

Wagner Leads Curran

In Erie county, which includes Buffalo, the State's second city, President Roosevelt was running almost two to one ahead of Dewey.

In the United States Senate contest, the veteran Democratic incumbent Robert F. Wagner led the Republican nominee, Thomas J. Curran. The vote in 662 of the State's 9,121 districts was Wagner 179,504; Curran, 169,124.

The Presidential vote gave indications of approaching or exceeding the 1940 record of 6,301,000.

Hamilton Fish Trailing Augustus W. Bennet

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—Partial returns from three counties in the 29th Congressional district tonight gav. Augustus W. Bennet an edge in his contest to unseat Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican aspirant for a 13th term.

Unofficial returns from Delaware (29 of 62 districts): Sullivan (15 of 45) and Orange (5 of 114), showed Benet leading, 11,094 to 8,171. Fish is the candidate of the Republican and Jeffersonian parties; Bennet, Democratic, American Labor, Liberal and Good Government.

Roosevelt Carries Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt carried the normally Republican city of Syracuse by a plurality of 4,093 over Governor Dewey today. Unofficial figures for the 157 districts: Dewey (R.), 47,371; Roosevelt (D.), 51,464.

Slight Iowa Lead In Favor Of Dewey

Des Moines, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Republican Presidential nominee, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, held a narrow lead over his Democratic rival, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the first scattered Iowa precincts to report in today's genera lelection.

Reports from 118 precincts gave Dewey 16,359 and Roosevelt 15,958.

Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat seeking reelection, took the lead away from Gov. B. B. Hickenlooper, the Republican nominee, on the basis of reports from one twentieth of the State's precincts. Returns from 118 precincts gave Gillette 15,116 and Hickenlooper 14,837.

SOUTHERNERS GIVE TO GOP

Thousands Of Dollars Go To Aid Dewey's Cause

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Southern voters made their usual contribution to the Democratic party this year, but they also poured thousands of dollars into Republican campaign chests.

Records on file with Congress today disclosed that the Southerners—particularly a large group of Texans—gave large sums to the GOP national and Congressional committees and to other anti-Administration organizations.

The same records show, however, that the Republicans used nearly all this money for campaigns elsewhere in the nation.

Donations Listed

Among the largest contributions: H. R. Cullen, of Houston—$5,000 to the American Democratic National Committee, an anti-fourth term organization headed by former Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, and $2,500 to the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Margaret Cullen, Wilhelmina D. Cullen and Mrs. Agnes Cullen Arnold, all of Houston—$2,500 each to the GOP Congressional group.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hunt, Dallas—$2,500 each to the GOP Senatorial Committee and the same amount each to the GOP Congressional group.

H. Weiss, Houston—$2,500 to O'Connor's committee.

W. J. Jones, Birmingham, $1,025; W. S. Keese, Jr., Chattanooga, $2,000, and R. D. McGrath, Warrenton, Va., $1,000, all to the Republican Congressional Committee.

Expenditures Given

These expenditures were reported:

GOP Senatorial — $2,000 and $1,000 items to James Park, Lexington (Ky.) opponent of Senator Barkley (D., Ky.); $2,000 to Miles H. Draper, Tampa (Fla.) opponent of Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), and $2,000 to Forrest C. Donnell, Jefferson City (Mo.) opponent of Roy McKittrick, Salisbury, Mo., the Democratic nominee.

GOP Congressional—$750 to Edward W. Greb, Lake Worth (Fla.) opponent of Dwight L. Rogers, Democratic nominee; varying amounts of $250 to $500 to other Republican nominees in Florida, Kentucky and Tennessee.

American Democratic National Committee—$504.95 to Ralph W. Moore, Austin, Texas; field expenses, and payments of $1,000 and $400 to Moore in Washington; $505.30 to Radio Station KRLD, Dallas, and $100 to L. E. Farley, Memphis, Tenn.

Wallace Sees Mandate For 'Full Steam Ahead'

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Vice-President Wallace, interpreting early returns as assuring the re-election of President Roosevelt, issued a statement tonight calling for "full steam ahead."

The Vice-President told the Associated Press:

"Roosevelt until 1948 means a country confident, moving with full steam ahead. The vote constitutes a mandate to Congress to prepare the way for 60,000,000 post-war jobs.

"Corner apple selling disappeared under Roosevelt. The people have determined to lick the dole. Full post-war employment means prosperity to farm and city alike. Our plans will now go ahead for a permanent, enforceable peace."

6 To 1 For Roosevelt

Monticello, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt got six votes and Thomas E. Dewey one in Jefferson county's rural Walker Springs precinct today. In 1940, the precinct gave Roosevelt 12 votes and Wendell Willkie, his Republican opponent, none.

SOUTH BACKS FOURTH TERM

Roosevelt Leads, 3 To 1, In Texas Over Two Groups

Atlanta, Nov. 7 (AP)—From Virginia to Texas the States of the traditionally Solid South came in tonight with early unofficial returns indicating hearty indorsement of a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

From Texas, where anti-Roosevelt opposition had been most vocal, the early count showed the President holding a better than three-to-one lead over the combined vote for the Republicans and the anti-Roosevelt "Texas regulars."

Also In Mississippi

In Mississippi, where another party split brought a last-minute special session of the Legislature to assure voters of a "straight Roosevelt" ticket, the Democratic banner was far ahead of the Republican.

The Roosevelt forces in South Carolina, another hot spot in the pre-election revolt picture, were also piling up a stout majority. The early count gave the Administration near 2-to-1 indorsement.

Overwhelming In Four States

The Roosevelt vote was overwhelming in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia. The Democrats held a slightly less than 2-to-1 lead in Florida and picked up additional ballots as Arkansas returns trickled in.

Along the Southern border Tennessee was piling up a big Roosevelt lead, returns from a fifth of the precincts giving the President a better than 17,000-vote lead.

Roosevelt Still a 'Tree Grower'

President Gives That Occupation as He Casts Ballot 251 at Hyde Park.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 7 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt—"occupation, tree grower"—cast ballot No. 251 in Hyde Park's old Town Hall shortly after noon today.

The President drove to the town hall from his nearby estate with Mrs. Roosevelt who followed him in to the voting booth. Their daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger and 5-year-old son, Johnny, were along for the ride.

After the President voted—at 12:28 P. M.—he stood before the voting booth and posed for photographers. Before he showed up to vote Mr. Roosevelt paid a call at the Hyde Park elementary school where the children sang for him.

"You weren't here four years ago," he told them, "you weren't old enough then."

Tree Grower Again.

As the Chief Executive entered the town hall Miss Mildred Todd, election inspector in charge of the registration book, asked his name, address and occupation.

"Tree grower," said the President. "What did I say last time?"

The election official told him he was a tree grower at the last election and the President, chuckling, said that's right. "For some elections he has given his occupation as a farmer."

The President was the second Roosevelt to call for a ballot in the forty-five-year-old town hall today. About an hour before he showed up Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt, widow of the President's half-brother, showed up to cast her ballot.

With the formalities of his voting qualifications out of the way, Miss Todd—seemingly a bit nervous at her task—held a box of candy before the President.

"Would you like a piece of candy?" she asked.

Munches Candy.

"Thanks very much, I will," the President replied, and dropped it into his mouth. He went into the booth munching the candy.

The hall grew quiet as the green curtain closed around the President while he cast his ballot. He had a little trouble because the lever on the voting machine wouldn't work. An election official reached over the top of the booth and jiggled it.

The President wore a gray suit and the Navy cape which cloaked his shoulders through most of his campaign appearances.

A crowd of Hyde Park neighbors assembled before the Town Hall long before the Roosevelts showed up to vote. They applauded when the President drove up and again when he left the hall. As he sat in the car waiting for Mrs. Roosevelt to complete her voting task the President chatted with Elmer Van Wagner, the Supervisor of Hyde Park.

By the time the President voted about a third of the Town Hall's 379 registered voters had cast their ballots.

President Roosevelt closed his fourth-term campaign last night with a radio prayer for a just and lasting peace.

He wants 50,000,000 voters at the polls today to show the world, as he put it last night, "that our kind of government is the best in the world—and the kind we propose to keep!" A big vote will cause the world to "respect our democracy," he said.

The President made his brief radio address from a studio in his Hyde Park home at the close of a day which took him on a seventy-five-mile tour through neighboring communities in the Hudson Valley during which he repeatedly expressed his own confidence of re-election.

His talk last night was devoted to the war, the future of those now in uniform and the fight for a world organization of nations to preserve the peace.

The President reminded his listeners that they would vote today as "free men and women, with full freedom of choice" and declared:

"Not for one single moment can you now or later forget the all-important goals for which we are aiming—to win the war and unite our fighting men with their families at the earliest moment; to see that all have honorable jobs; and to create a world peace organization which will prevent this disaster from ever coming upon us again."

Plans Customary Snack.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt planned an early dinner for her family and later a scrambled egg snack as the traditional election night fare at the Roosevelt Hyde Park mansion.

She said the household would spend the evening listening to election returns and that she would "stay up as late as the President."

MRS. FDR CALM DURING ELECTION

By JANE EADS

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 7—(AP) Mrs. Roosevelt listened to the election returns tonight confident, she said, that "whatever the people decide will be the best for the nation."

As the polls closed on her husband's bid for a fourth-term in the White House the First Lady said "we've been through so many campaigns that one really just waits for the results, with confidence that whatever the people decide will be for the good of the nation."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had no emotional reactions to the outcome of today's election.

"I've been passing a perfectly uneventful day, doing absolutely nothing this afternoon," she added.

She invited reporters to the Hyde Park mansion late tonight, promising "something to eat—not much but something," while they listened to election results.

Mrs. Roosevelt talked to newspaper women by telephone today after she had gone to the Hyde Park town hall to vote with the President.

Riding in the presidential car was a large black dog instead of the familiar Fala, the President's pet Scotty.

One of the newspaper women asked if the large black dog, a Labrador retriever, was a competitor of Fala in the President's affections.

"No, the dog really belongs to young Curtis," she said, referring to the 14-year-old son of her daughter, Mrs. John Bottiger.

Hannegan Claims Roosevelt Victory

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan at 11.49 P. M. (EWT) tonight claimed the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Hannegan's statement:

"The overwhelming victory of President Roosevelt means national unity on a program of intrational collaboratio for permanent peace.

"The citizens of this country have shown that they are overwhelmingly of mind to get on with the war, win it, plan for the peace, win the peoce and at the same time, to go forward with the program that will secure jobs for our people, including returning vet-peoples, including returning veterans.

"In this campaign, the President and his fellow candidates of the Democratic party, have kept faithfully to those three issues.

"We Democrats are gratified, of course, by the result. But from the beginning, we have looked on this election as a contest transcending party. The stakes were bigger than those of partisan politics. Tehy were the fulfillment of America's hope and America's destiny in the years ahead of us."

Herald Tribune Concedes

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said tonight that it had conceded the reelection of President Roosevelt. The Herald Tribune had supported Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

District Of Columbia's 'Day Of Humiliation'

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Evening Star called this election day a "day of humiliation and mourning" for the "un-Americanized Americans" of the District of Columbia.

It published a black-bordered editorial by Editor Theodore W. Noyes protesting denial of the ballot to the 663,091 (1940 census) Americans who live in the national Capital.

Asserting that the Capital's population is greater than that of 12 States, yet is denied the ballot or representation in Congress, the editorial asked:

"Will not the people of the United States respond so vigorously to the District's appeal that before the next national election this unjust and hurtful discrimination shall be removed?"

BRICKER FAMILY OUTWARDLY CALM

Governor Votes Early, Exchanging Pleasantries

Columbus, Nov. 7 (AP)—John W. Bricker, three-time Republican Governor now seeking the nation's Vice-Presidency, spent Election Day quietly.

Bricker and his family heard election returns in the Governor's office at the State House.

Outwardly, at least, the Brickers were calm as time for the counting approached.

The Governor voted early, exchanged pleasantries with his neighbors and posed obligingly for news photographers.

He spent most of the afternoon conferring with his executive secretary, Bob Barton.

Greeted By Neighbors

As Bricker entered the voting booth of Precinct B, Ward 6, today, a neighbor said. "You look good, John, after all that strenuous life (of campaigning)."

The Governor grinned.

"Looks like a good Republican day," another man called.

"This is a good day for anyone," the candidate answered.

The sun was shining brightly.

In 1940 President Roosevelt carried Ohio, 1,733,139 to 1,586,773 for the late Wendell Willkie.

Records May Be Topped

Ohioans voted in numbers that may top records as well as official predictions.

Some of the State's 9,306 polling places reported votes coming in one a minute, exclusive of soldier votes, which were expected to total 175,000 for the State. The polls closed at 7.30 P. M., Eastern War Time.

Although Edward J. Hummel, Secretary of State, clung to his previous forecast of a total vote of 3,000,000 against the record 3,319,912 in the 1940 Presidential election, some observers expected the total to go over.

Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 7 (AP)—Traditionally Democratic Arkansas apparently was in the Roosevelt column tonight, but the less than three-to-one ratio in scattered unofficial early returns was the narrowest over Republicans in 16 years.

Returns from 80 of 2,087 precincts gave Roosevelt 3,208 and Dewey 1,148.

TRUMAN PLAYS PIANO NUMBER

Nominee Tries Paderewski Minuet To Quiet Nerves

Kansas City, Nov. 7 (AP)—When the radio's election reports slackened momentarily tonight, Senator Harry S. Truman, holding open house for friends in his Hotel Muehlback penthouse, paced the floor with his hands behind him and remarked smilingly "everybody around here is nervous but me."

At this point, a radio announcement blared out that unofficial and incomplete returns indicated Missouri might go Republican.

"Wow," Says Truman

"Wow," exclaimed the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee. "I think this calls for a concert."

With that remark he sat down to the grand piano in his suite and amazed the group of friends and reporters gathered there with a professional-like rendition of Paderewski's difficult "Minuet." The visitors sat spellbound as the Senator played the entire piece without score.

As he finished, Truman turned and told the applauding audience, "Gentlemen, I wish I had stayed with music (pause)—along with politics."

Truman listened to election returns with his wife, daughter, Miss Margaret Truman, and a host of business and political friends and good-natured Missouri informality and friendliness characterized the gathering.

From time to time the Senator was called to one or more of a group of microphones, for remarks over radio hookups.

Dewey Given Lead

There was an almost constant barrage of news photographers' flashbulbs as the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee and his family and friends listened to the unfolding tabulations which might make him Vice-President of the United States. Reporters came and went and other interested Kansas citizens and folk from near-by Independence, the Senator's home town, dropped in, chatted and hurried on.

Some of the first returns gave Dewey a lead in Missouri. "That's amusing," Truman said as he grinned and made note of the figures on a notepad in his lap.

He expressed great satisfaction with the huge turnout of voters over the nation and said he was more confident than ever of a favorable outcome.

Truman Family Is One Vote Up On the Brickers

Senator's Mother Casts Her Ballot at 91 and Tells Son She Needs No Help

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7 (AP).—Governor John W. Bricker, the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, voted with Mrs. Bricker in a tightly packed little booth at Precinct B, Ward 6, on the East Side today.

"Morning, Governor," a man called out as the candidate came in. "Looks like a good Republican day." A warm sun was shining.

Governor Bricker grinned. "This is a good day for anybody," he said.

"You go ahead, Abbie," she told Mrs. Bricker. "And I'm not saying how she'll vote."

Voters, election officials, camera men and reporters packed the coal-heated room. Floodlights were turned on as Governor Bricker signed his name. Tiny Miss Helen Cook, a voter with a handkerchief tied around her head, hid behind the six-foot Governor. "I'm not dressed up," she whispered to her friend.

Wife Votes Quickly

Governor Bricker took the five ballots—a nervous clerk had given him an extra one—and entered the curtained cubicle. It didn't take him long to vote, but Mrs. Bricker was through first.

"You sure did that quickly," some one remarked to the candidate's wife.

"Yes, indeed," she said positively.

Governor Bricker stepped from the booth, took off shell-rimmed glasses, shifted his brown hat to his other hand and returned the extra ballot.

Receiving judge Mrs. J. A. Landers took a wooden stick and pushed the Governor's ballot into the ballot box. "That's the first time," Governor Bricker laughed, "I've actually seen an official 'stuff' the ballot box."

Then he shook hands with all the officials.

"Our next Vice-President," Miss Mabel Snider said.

"Thank you very much," Governor Bricker answered.

The Brickers stepped from the booth, stopped to ask Mrs. M. F. Loofbourrow—who is from Governor Bricker's home town of Mount Sterling, Ohio—how her nephew in the armed forces was, posed for an amateur movie-maker and returned to the mansion.

Trumans Vote Early

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Nov. 7 (AP).—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, cast his ballot—it was No. 102—at 9:35 a. m., Central war time, in today's general election.

Accompanied by his wife, Senator Truman arrived here from Kansas City and drove immediately to the Memorial Building, where he voted in the 7th Precinct of Blue Township.

Entering the building by a side entrance, he was met by a group of friends who greeted him with, "Hi, Harry" and "Hello, Harry."

The candidate acknowledged the greetings by calling many in the group by their first name.

Mrs. Truman's ballot was No. 103.

Henry Bundschu, Federal referee in bankruptcy, a Republican and friend of Senator Truman, was present.

"Well," Mr. Bundschu commented to election officials, "I just killed Harry's vote."

Senator Truman, still in the booth, turned around and said smilingly: "Or else I killed yours."

Mother, 91, Needs No Help

To newsreel camera men and photographers gathered in the polling place Senator Truman had this comment:

"I am sure the President and I have the support of the nation."

Senator Truman's ninety-one-year-old mother didn't need his help in marking her ballot. Mrs. Martha Truman, spry despite her age, alighted from the car and asked her Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate son:

"Which way, Harry?"

"This way, mama," he replied.

Soldier Votes For Nation Put At 3,369,000

40 States Sort the Ballots, North Dakota to Accept Them as Valid Up to Dec. 5

By The Associated Press

The last of approximately 2,652,000 soldier votes which can be counted in forty states were sorted yesterday at civilians trooped to the polls in the nation's third wartime election.

Five of the forty states—New York, New Mexico, Connecticut, Iowa, Kentucky—stopped accepting G. I. ballots on Monday. Thirty-five others accepted them yesterday. Eight states will accept them until various dates up to North Dakota's Dec. 5.

All but eleven states counted their soldier votes yesterday. Few tabulated them separately from the civilian vote.

Latest reports from state election officials indicate that approximately 3,369,000 of the 4,700,000 service men and women who applied for absentee ballots returned them in time to be counted. The 3,369,000 includes approximately 717,000 expected by states which are accepting ballots after yesterday.

Should such a situation arise in any of the nine states which did not count any of their soldier votes yesterday, the nation might have to wait days or weeks to learn who wins the election. This would happen only if neither candidate had a majority of the 531 electoral votes from the thirty-nine other states. Here are the states which count some or all of their soldier votes after Election Day:

	Est. 1944 G. I. Vote	Accepts Ballots Until	Counts G. I. Vote
California	240,000	Nov. 23	Nov. 24
Colorado	30,000	Nov. 22	Nov. 22
Florida	35,000	Nov. 7	Nov. 8
Maryland	50,000	Nov. 7	Nov. 9
Missouri	85,000	Nov. 8	Nov. 10
Nebraska	25,000	Nov. 30	Nov. 13-Dec. 1
North Dakota	12,000	Dec. 5	Nov. 7-Dec. 5
Pennsylvania	250,000	Nov. 22	Nov. 22
Rhode Island	25,000	Dec. 4	Dec. 5
Utah	15,000	Nov. 7	Nov. 7-12
Washington	50,000	Nov. 25	Nov. 27-Dec. 5

States which plan to count soldier votes separately from civilian votes include Colorado, Delaware, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Washington. Individual counties in several other states, including Arkansas, Florida, Indiana and Iowa, may count G.I. ballots separately.

G. I.'s Overseas Calm

Correspondents of the Columbia Broadcasting System in Rome, Moscow, France, Germany and the Philippines this morning reported a complete lack of election fever among American soldiers. The typical front-line reaction seen by five C. B. S. reporters is one of curiosity and interest, but no excitement.

C. B. S. correspondent Howard K. Smith reported from the American 1st Army front near Aachen that Election Day there is distinguished from any other day "only in that it's colder and muddier than ever. In Moscow, George Moorad, C. B. S. correspondent, says this: "About the elections, there will be no newspapers in Moscow tomorrow, so the public will hear the results from a chain of loudspeakers set up in the streets of every city. I guess you know which candidate the Russians support, and they certainly make no secret of it."

Farnsworth Fowle, C. B. S. correspondent, reports from Rome that "the headline in 'Stars and Stripes' this morning reminded us that the election is on. In the lobby of the Red Cross club in Rome a big score board is in position, waiting for the state-by-state results. Voting by Americans in the Italian district has been pretty well cleaned up ahead of time. Over here there isn't any election fever. But there is plenty of curiosity about the results."

Even General Dwight D. Eisenhower manifests no great interest in the election results, according to Larry Lesueur, C. B. S. correspondent with Supreme Allied headquarters in France. Here is Lesueur's report:

"The news of your decision will reach the fighting men sometime in the middle of the night or tomorrow morning. The doughboys will be listening in on captured radio sets. But most of the men who have been fighting all day will be asleep in their pup tents and water-logged fox holes. The sleepless men on duty and the dimly lit command post will get the news first.

"General Eisenhower will get the news at the front. General Ike seemed almost casual about the election when he left Supreme Headquarters today to visit his men in the line. It's not very likely he'll stay up all night to listen to the early returns. He'll find out the results tomorrow morning."

Close Vote May See Soldier Ballots Swinging Election

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Several million servicemen joined today in choosing a President, with the degree of their influence dependent upon how closely civilians divided.

And the direction of that influence — whether for President Roosevelt or Governor Dewey—was a matter for the future to show fully. Eleven States count their service ballots from two days to a month after today.

Might Swing 16 Votes

Figured in advance, on the purely arbitrary basis of the vote in 1940 for Mr. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie, there were at least 16 States where the soldier-sailor votes might be decisive in swinging a total of 235 electoral votes.

The estimated service vote was sufficient, if it went that way, to overcome such a small plurality as Willkie received in six States—Colorado, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Michigan and Vermont.

Conversely, there were enough soldier and sailor votes in sight to reverse, again if they were marked that way, such margins as Roosevelt received in ten States—Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Both Sides Claim Late Ones

Colorado and Missouri are the only States in that 1940 list which delay the service vote count, but there are other late-counting States which both sides are claiming.

Here are the 11 States which tabulate their service votes late, the dates on which they are counted, the total vote and total service vote in each as estimated by State officials: (Electoral vote in parenthesis.)

State	Date	Est. Vote	Est. Service Vote
California (25)	Nov. 24.	3,000,000	240,000

Maryland (8)	Nov. 9 ..	675,000	50,000
Missouri (15)	Nov. 10 ..	1,250,000	85,000
Nebraska (6)	No.13-De.1	450,000	25,000
N. Dakota (4)	No.7-De.5	200,000	12,000
Pennsylvania (35)	Nov.22	3,167,000	250,000

California, Arkansas and Florida Vote on Question; Dry Law Up in Nebraska

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Voters in California, Arkansas and Florida are deciding in special referendums today whether to outlaw the closed union shop within their states.

Up for decision in Nebraska is a proposed state-wide prohibition law. North Dakota is balloting on two liquor-control issues, one to legalize municipal liquor stores and the other to limit the sale of intoxicants to establishments selling soft drinks and tobacco.

These are among the most widely watched of the many public policy and constitutional amendment referendums being held in thirty states in the national election.

The similar California-Arkansas-Florida proposals call for constitutional amendments providing that no person can be denied employment because he is or is not affiliated with a labor organization.

California also put up to the voters a proposed $1,000 property-tax exemption for veterans, and a 3 per cent gross income tax to support the state's retirement insurance system.

Arizona, Oregon and Washington also are voting on imposing gross income taxes for old-age pensions up to $60 monthly.

With an eye to the future, Minnesota proposed to voters a tax on aircraft and aircraft fuel to take the place of personal property levies. A proposed 3 per cent sales tax is up in Oregon.

If Missouri voters approve a proposed unicameral legislature, that Mid-West state would be the second in the nation to adopt the single-house legislative plan, now in operation only in Nebraska.

London Papers See F. D. R. Victory

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Most London newspapers carried stories today predicting President Roosevelt's victory over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the United States Presidential election.

The financial Times, asserting interest in the London Stock Market in the election was "purely academic," added that "it is taken for granted that President Roosevelt will again be returned and probably by a handsome surplus."

If Dewey is elected, the Times said, "there would follow a boom in American common shares. Prices would go up with a bound. We should see the wild excitement to which Wall Street was accustomed in pre-war days."

Communist View

The Communist London Daily Worker carried a front-page editorial which declared "American democracy has made some mistakes. It cannot stoop so low as to choose Dewey today."

The New York correspondent of the Daily Express in what he termed lost-minute election news — by ocean phone—said: "It looks more and more like F. D. R. again." The Daily Mail, over a page one story by its New York correspondent, placed this headline: "Eve of Poll Tip: F. D. R. Will Win — Straw Votes Give Him Majority."

War In Second Place

In afternoon papers Britain's interest in the contest shoved into second space both the war and the assassination of Lord Moyne, British Minister resident in Cairo. The Evening Standard said the outcome depended upon the "closest voting since 1916."

The Star, only evening paper to comment editorially, declared that if Dewey wins, "the Nazis will gloat over Roosevelt's fall, but they know that Dewey will lead a nation not a whit less inflexibly resolved to crush them."

LAST TWO 'GI' VOTES IN LONDON EVENLY SPLIT

LONDON, Nov. 7—(AP) The last two soldier votes cast at U. S. command headquarters polling booths in Grosvenors Square tonight were split between President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey.

With less than a minute to spare before the booths closed, Lt. Hubert Thomas, of Redondo Beach, Calif., voted for Dewey and Lt. Robert Gregory, of Taft, Calif., voted for Roosevelt, they said afterward.

American Election Is Big News In Britain

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—The excitement of the United States Presidential election stirred Britain today, with dispatches sharing front-page play with the war news.

The Evening Standard, heading its story "Roosevent is expected to win," described the President's tour of Dutchess county and quoted briefly from the election-eve speeches of both candidates.

The Evening News predicted the closest presidential race since the Wilson-Hughes campaign of 1916.

DNB TO STAY OPEN

London, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—The official German news agency DNB, which usually closes down nightly at 9 P. M., Eastern war time, told its European subscribers it would remain open all night. Apparently DNB planned comment on the United States election.

A Berlin dispatch to Stockholm quoted Nazi party leaders as saying that Adolf Hitler would make an important speech tomorrow, on the eve of the anniversary of the unsuccessful Munich beer hall putsch of 1923, the OWI reported today.

BIG BATTLE RAGES IN HURTGEN FOREST

Yanks, Nazis Locked in Bitter Fight for Vossenack.

LONDON, Nov. 7—(AP) American and German troops were locked tonight in a swaying, bitter struggle for the center of the German town of Vossenack in Hurtgen forest, with powerful Nazi reinforcements battling fiercely to bar the road to Cologne and the rich Rhine valley only 30 miles away.

After five days of see-saw fighting, Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' First army Doughboys tonight held half of the mile-and-a-half-long town, and the Germans were solidly entrenched in the other half. Shock troops of both sides actually were fighting from opposite wings of the church in the heart of town.

Yanks Take Vossenack

Vossenack, 13 miles southeast of Aachen, was captured by Hodges' forces at the outset of their new offensive last Friday, but repeated counterattacks by German reserves rushed down from the Arnhem sector in Holland knocked the Americans back.

A front dispatch tonight described the fight for Vossenack as "savage as was the struggle for Aachen—and one of much greater scope." It said that fighting of "unexcelled bitterness" was raging continuously over all the Hurtgen forest region. The town of Schmidt, which the Germans recaptured in a counter-attack two days ago, still was in enemy hands.

Despite the house-to-house character of the fighting inside Vossenack, American artillery was blasting away at German positions in the upper part of the town and American fighter-bombers were pinpointing targets along the main street. Special American dynamite units were being used to blow up enemy pillboxes.

"In the Schmidt area alone there are up to 50 German tanks," said Associated Press Correspondent William S. White. "The enemy is holding on all over this front, which covers the approaches to Duren and to Cologne itself, as he has rarely held onto any local area in this campaign."

Doughboys were shivering under a bitter wind, and the rain appeared about to turn into snow.

To the northwest in Holland American and Polish troops of the British Second army captured Willemstadt, ferry terminal on the Maas river, and smashed into the outskirts of Moerdijk on the same stream, virtually closing out the month-long battle to clear the Germans from south of the Maas.

It was authoritatively estimated that the losing struggle to hold southwestern Holland had cost the Nazis from 43,000 to 46,000 troops out of an original force of 100,000. Of these, 26,000 were taken prisoner since Oct. 7.

British and Canadian troops, using assault boats and amphibious vehicles to get at the enemy through flooded streets, virtually had stilled all Nazi opposition in Middelburg on Walcheren island. Veere, on the northeast side of the island, was captured. Only on the northern fringe of Walcheren were the Nazis still making a determined stand.

British troops of the First Canadian army took 2,000 prisoners in Middelburg today, including Lt. Gen. Daser, 60-year-old commander of the German 70th division.

Tonight the Berlin radio said British and Canadian forces had landed on Schouwen island, north of Walcheren and Beveland islands, in their determined progress up the Dutch West coast. Schouwen is one of the largest of the Dutch islands.

A field dispatch said Middelburg, capital of Zeeland province, was in a state of turmoil. The city was filled with refugees who fled to its high ground when R.A.F. bombers blasted open the dykes protecting Walcheren island.

"German troops were milling around Middelburg in confusion, and the streets were jammed with Dutch civilians, Germans and British troops, who were trying to bring some order out of this mad scene," said Ross Munro, correspondent for the Canadian press.

Schelde Estuary Cleared

Allied minesweepers were busy clearing the 50-mile Schelde estuary so Allied convoys could begin unloading supplies at Antwerp.

American and French troops in France maintained their pressure against the enemy. A Berlin broadcast communique reported Allied forces hitting toward the Vosges mountain gaps had reached the west bank of the Meurthe river between Baccarat and St. Die.

Allied Supreme headquarters announced the French had captured three villages in an arc east of Baccarat, where they are closing in on Schirmeck and Saales passes, and that Americans seized St. Remy, Nompatelize and La Salle at the approaches to Saales and Ste. Marie passes.

Along this mountainous front Allied gains amounted to between two and three miles in the past two days. In the far south Allied troops reached the Italian border along several miles of front near Menton, just inland from the Mediterranean coast. Unofficially, it was said that some Allied forward units probably had crossed the border and were established on Italian soil.

YANKS BATTLE FOR ROAD TO COLOGNE PLAIN

London, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—A fierce, swaying battle raged today in the center of Vossenack, strategic town barring the American path to the Cologne plain, with doughboys holding the lower end of the mile and one-half long village thirteen miles southeast of Aachen.

Germans and Americans were fighting hand-to-hand in a church in the heart of Vossenack, and bombers and artillery were beating at Nazis in houses in the northern section, a front dispatch declared.

A Supreme Headquarters dispatch earlier said that First Army troops had won back the last half of the town, lost to a German counterattack yesterday, but front dispatches said fighting of unexcelled bitterness continued there and near the flanking towns of Hurtgen and Schmidt.

"The Germans have strengthened the already formidable forces they had," in Vossenack, said an Associated Press correspondent just outside the town, "and now the struggle is as savage as was the struggle for Aachen, and one of much greater scope."

German strength also was built up around German-held Schmidt, fifteen miles southeast of Aachen. Vossenack, Schmidt and Hurtgen were strongpoints of the German Roer River line barring the way to the Cologne Plain.

To the south, American and French forces advanced two to three miles in bitter progress toward Vosges passes to Germany. In Holland, a front dispatch reported capture of the ferry terminus of Willemstad, leaving only scattered enemy troops below the Maas River. The German High Command indicated a new defense line was being established on the north bank of the Maas.

Berlin's broadcast communique said Allied forces hitting toward the Vosges Mountain gaps had reached the west bank of the Meurthe River between Baccarat and St. Die.

French troops seized three villages in an arc east of Baccarat, closing on the Schirmeck and Saales Passes, Supreme Headquarters said, and Americans won St. Remy, Nompatelize and La Salle at the approaches to the Saales and Ste. Marie Passes.

First Army troops near the Roer River were meeting the most bitter kind of resistance.

In southwestern Holland the last enemy units south of the Maas (Meuse) River were being mopped up. There still were small groups of enemy troops around the southern approaches to the Moerdijk Bridges, which the Germans have demolished, and nine miles to the west at Willemstad, the site of an escape ferry. British troops last night cleared out a small enemy pocket below the river in the vicinity of Empel, just north of s' Hertogenbosch.

Victories on Walcheren.

Virtually all of Walcheren Island in the Schelde Estuary now is in Allied hands. Middlebury in the center of the island and Veere on the north coast have been captured, the Allied communique reported. Field dispatches indicated Middleburg was entered by British and Canadian forces without a surrender from its German garrison.

Enemy units still were hiding out elsewhere in the flooded interior, but Allied mine sweepers and dredges already have begun clearing the fifty-mile Schelde Estuary approach to Antwerp.

In southeastern Holland, where British and American troops have been retaking slowly the positions they lost to a sudden and powerful German counterthrust west of the border city of Venlo, the action had subsided, temporarily at least, into desultory artillery dueling.

Planes Give Close Support

All of these ground operations had close air support. While heavy bombers continued the tremendous blows against Germany's heart that have shattered all records for sustained raids in the last four days, medium bombers and fighters went after close-in targets of enemy troop formations and communications.

Fighter-bombers and rocket-firing fighters attacked rail and supply lines behind the German positions all through Holland and the Rhineland, as well as fuel and ammunition dumps at Duren, tank and infantry columns in the Hurtgen area, and other military targets at Zutphen, Julich and northeast of Gelsenkirchen.

Nazis Using New Gadgets Against Fighter Planes

Paris, Nov. 7 (AP)—The Germans are using jet and rocket propelled planes and various other "new-fangled" gadgets against Allied night fighters, Lieut. Col. Oris B. Johnson, Natchitoches, La., commander of a P-61 Black Widow group, said today.

"In recent nights we've counted 15 to 20 jet planes," Johnson said. "They sometimes fly in formations of four, but more often they fly alone."

Johnson described a new kind of flak which he said might be a phosphorus bomb.

Fire Dripped After Blast

"It exploded in a large ball of fire at 10,000 feet and I could see drops of fire dripping away from it," he said. "The same ball of fire exploded several times, each time at a lower altitude. The dripping process followed each explosion," he added.

The Germans also have a trick weapon which sends a dummy airplane into the paths of daylight bombers purely for a "psychological" effect.

Attempt To Scare

"It looks like the tail or other part of a plane on fire, but it does no damage," Johnson said. "They merely intend it to get you excited."

Capt. Robert Elmore, South Bend, Ind., P-61 pilot who once shot down a flying bomb over the Channel, had a brush with an ME-163 rocket plane recently.

"We went around two or three minutes, each making 180-degree turns, but I finally lost him in a cloud," Elmore said.

Dutch Civilians Face Winter Of Starvation

Eindhoven, Holland, Nov. 7 (AP). More than 3,200,000 civilians in north Holland—slightly less than half of the population of that area—are in immediate danger of starvation this winter, Dutch officials in liberated Holland said today.

Not only do they face acute hunger, but presumably they must live through the biting cold winter without fuel, gas and little electricity and in some vicinities no water supply.

The Germans have literally swept the Dutch flatlands of all harvest

1st Army Jails Woman

She Gets Six Years for Destroying Nazi Party Records

WITH THE UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Nov. 17 (AP).—An intermediate military government court at Kornelimunster today sentenced Mrs. Maria Jansen, forty-seven years old, to six years' imprisonment for concealing and destroying Nazi party records.

It was the most severe penalty so far inflicted in the 1st Army area. Captain Harold F. Strohson, of Merrick, N. Y., former Assistant Prosecutor of Nassau County, was prosecutor.

Recommend D. S. C. For Jersey Soldier

United States 19th Corps Headquarters, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Lieut. Fred Clement Leno, 29 years old, of Salem, N. J., has been recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross for calling for artillery fire on his position during an attack on the Siegfried Line.

Leno was promoted from technical sergeant to second lieutenant in the field on October 29 in recognition of his leadership of a platoon in penetrating the line. He fights with the 30th Infantry Division.

WATER ON TAP, HOT AND COLD

With American Troops in Germany, Oct. 29 (Delayed) (A. P.).—It was dark and the two soldiers were sleepy. Pfc. Otto Kaiser of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Private Thomas A. Gill of Turtle Creek, Pa., dug a deep foxhole and covered the floor with straw. They fell asleep.

They awoke later in four inches of water. Drowsily they baled it out and lay down to sleep again. They awoke once more to find more water, but they were too tired to get up. By dawn they were practically floating around. Their foxhole was on the side of a spring.

Instead of abandoning it, these resourceful troopers dug a channel to let the water escape, hollowed out a basin in which to wash themselves, built themselves a stove and advertised throughout the division: "The only foxhole with hot and cold running water."

France Grants Amnesty To Thorez

Paris, Nov. 7 (AP)—The French Cabinet today granted amnesty to Communist Leader Maurice Thorez. He may return to Paris now from Moscow to take his place as a member of the Consultative Assembly.

The decision culminated a year of agitation by the Communists for the Government to quash desertion charges arising from Thorez's flight from the country during the Daladier Government's Communist roundup in 1939. At that time Thorez was a member of the French army.

Paris Radio Announcer Gets 10-Year Sentence

Paris, Nov. 7 (AP)—Francois de Vibraye, 30, former announcer for Radio Paris, was sentenced today to ten years in prison for having directed messages in English to Britain and the United States during the German occupation.

The prosecutor in the French court said the announcer received 7,200 francs ($144) monthly from the German Embassy as a propagandist. A blond girl member of the French resistance movement testified that she had urged him to continue the broadcasts to cover up her communications with London, but the four-man jury convicted him.

RUSS INACTION HELD OMINOUS

Berlin Sees Lull As Prelude To Drive Toward Tarnow

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Fighting along the winding Eastern front slackened generally today—27th anniversary of the Russian revolution—with Moscow announcing only that "there were no essential changes on the front" and that yesterday 16 German tanks were knocked out in scattered local engagements.

Behind the major sectors, however, there was the promise of big operations to come.

The close siege of Budapest was impeded by a third day of torrential rains, but the Russians used the weather as cover for movement of thousands of infantrymen into the front lines beside their tanks, and Soviet artillery shelled the Hungarian capital's defenses methodically.

Veritable Civil War

The Paris and Brazzaville radios said that inside the city a veritable civil war was raging among dissident Hungarians and German and Hungarian Nazi troops.

Berlin, too, refused to be lulled into any sense of temporary security by the comparative Soviet quiet in the east. The German radio said that for several days past the Russians had been withdrawing mechanized formations from the East Beskids area of the Polish-Czechoslovak frontier. They said this was to reinforce assault divisions preparing for a new large-scale attack toward Tarnow from the Soviet bridgehead on the west side of the Vistula river.

Strong formations have been moved into that area west of Baranow particularly in the past 24 hours, and "the early beginning of a big battle is assumed," Berlin said.

Bridgeheads Across Tisza

Berlin also acknowledged that Soviet troops in northeastern Hungary had pushed two more bridgeheads across the Tisza river 75 and 125 miles above Budapest.

The Germans claimed that in East Prussia they had cleared the western shore of Goldap Lake of Russians, but German pressure appeared to have decreased in the past day, with the Red army still in possession of its hard-won footings on German soil.

In the southwest Latvian area, where Marshal Stalin listed 30 German divisions as trapped and in the process of annihilation, the Germans said Soviet attacks had eased somewhat southeast of Liepaja but were still going strong in the Auce area and had made some small gains.

REDS BATTLING REINFORCED FOE NEAR BUDAPEST

Russians Fight Within Two Miles of Big Airfield South of City.

DRIVE AIMS AROUND CAPITAL

Troops Spurred On by Stalin Pledge of Early Victory Over Germans.

London, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Red Army troops battled strongly reinforced Nazi forces in the outskirts of Budapest today, spurred by Premier-Marshal Stalin's pronouncement that Hungary would soon be out of the war.

In an order of the day issued on this twenty-seventh anniversary of the Soviet Revolution Stalin declared the Red Army and its western allies "have taken up the jumping-off positions for the decisive offensive against the vital centers of Germany" and that "we now stand on the eve of complete victory."

Russian columns were fighting within two miles south of the big Nazi-operated Ferihegy Airdrome in Budapest's outskirts, apparently seeking to coil around the eastern part of the city.

Significant Drive.

In a proclamation preceding the order of the day, Stalin asserted that the defeat of Hungary would signify the "complete isolation of Hitlerite Germany and early catastrophe will follow inevitably."

The regular midnight Soviet communique broadcast from Moscow contained only two sentences: "There were no essential changes on the fronts. During November 5 our troops on all fronts disabled or destroyed six teen tanks."

In a dawn-to-dusk attack yesterday Soviet bombers hammered the enemy's defense belt and communications at the rear of the Hungarian capital. Budapest reports coming via Turkey said there was no intention of declaring the beautiful city on the Danube an open one.

Budapest in Turmoil.

Stalin said in a war review that his troops had destroyed 120 German divisions—possibly 1,200,000 men killed or captured—since the Soviet offensive began on June 23. He said thirty Nazi divisions were cut off in western Latvia.

Berlin broadcasts declared conditions inside Budapest were turbulent, with refugees fleeing from the city in increasing numbers "seriously hampering" military traffic in the streets and on roads to the northwest. The Paris radio reported this morning that Hungarian workers had gone on strike in Budapest and occupied the Manfred Weiss armament works.

Rome Hears of Strike.

Other reports bore out the picture of disintegration as the Russian troops battered at the city. The Rome radio also said it had heard a free Hungarian broadcast calling for a general strike.

Unconfirmed French and Turkish radio reports asserted that the Russians had smashed into the southern side of Budapest, and that members of Nazi-supported Prime Minister Ferenc Szalasi's Government had fled.

New Russian Move Seen In London

Bern, Nov. 7 (AP)—Switzerland's Federal Council today denied Soviet assertions that this country had shown a hostile attitude toward Russia. This was the basis of the Soviet's refusal to resume diplomatic relations with Switzerland. The council indicated it would continue to seek such relations.

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Premier Stalin's reference to Japan as an aggressor nation in his Moscow speech yesterday was welcomed in some quarters here today as an indication of possible Russian aid in the war in the Far East when Germany is defeated.

While official sources refrained from comment there appeared to be a feeling elsewhere that Stalin was setting the stage for some later Soviet move.

New "Jap Headache"

Reflecting this impression Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said editorially:

"He (Stalin) ranges his great country beside Britain and America, not only now, while the task of destroying Naziism in Europe is yet in hand, but in their future undertakings for the ending of aggression in the world.

"And his reference to Japan will bring another headache to the Emperor's advisers."

JAP BLOW SEEN IN STALIN TALK

Soviet O. K. On Allies' War Against Nippon Indicated

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—A congratulatory anniversary message from President Roosevelt to President Mikhail Kalinin, of Russia, said a speedy rout of Nazi aggressors and a continuation of close collaboration between all the United Nations could be expected, the Soviet news agency said tonight.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Japanese officials' nerves, already frayed by naval disasters in Philippine waters, can hardly have been soothed by Marshal Stalin's blunt "aggressive" nation reference to Nippon in his Russian revolution anniversary speech.

Whatever else it might mean, it clearly reasserted Russian approval of Anglo-American proposals for total elimination of Japan as a threat to peace in the Pacific. Tokyo could read into it implications of ultimate Russian participation in that task.

It came, too, at the moment when Tokyo could have small doubt that the war against her was about to be stepped up by the British in the Bay of Bengal area. That was the obvious conclusion to be drawn from the American Superfortress raid on Singapore, and the fact that the dry monsoon now is blowing in Indian waters to invite active Allied air and amphibious operations.

Dockyards Battered

Targets of the big bombers, flying from bases in India, was the dockyard facilities at Singapore. So far as Allied information goes, there is no place other than at Singapore where docking facilities to accommodate damaged Japanese capital ships can be found in South China sea or Dutch Indies waters.

Any Japanese battleship with damage below the waterline inflicted by trpedo-plane attacks in recent actions is of limited fighting value until it can be drydocked for repairs. Denied the use of Singapore docks for that purpose, it is only in Japanese home ports such craft could be restored to usefulness.

Jap Ships The Target

The Superfortress raid on Britain's former naval base at Singapore may have been directed in part at finding and finishing off Japanese naval ships crippled in the furious air-sea battles precipitated by American invasion of Leyte.

Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet carrier planes have been effectively continuing the hunt for those seeking refuge in Philippine harbors including Manila. The moment must be close at hand when General MacArthur's land-based ships, taking off from American improved fields on Leyte, will take a hand in that business as well as in blotting out Japanese air power throughout the Philippines.

B-29's Use Changed

Aside from the specific objectives of the mission, however, the appearance of the B-29's over Singapore, and previously over Rangoon, represents a change in the previous use of this master air weapon. It must be linked with the reported massing of British sea power in the Bay of Bengal and the crushing [illegible] blow to the Japanese fleet off the Philippines.

It has been generally assumed that what is left fo Japan's main fleet has been concentrated northward. To divide it now between the depths of the South China Sea and the American - threatened waters north and west of the Philippines would leave it exposed to complete annihilation.

Stalin Scored Japan.

Moscow, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Premier Stalin branded Japan and Germany as "aggressive nations" and declared last night that aggressive nations must be disarmed completely by a post-war organization established "to defend peace and insure security."

"As history shows, aggressive nations—nations which attack—are usually more prepared for a new war than peace-loving nations," the Marshal said in an address on the eve of the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Russian revolution.

"This means that the aggressive nations in this war already before the outbreak of war had an invasion army ready, while the peace-loving nations did not even have fully satisfactory armies at the crisis or mobilization.

"It cannot be considered accidental that such unpleasant facts occurred as the incident at Pearl Harbor, the loss of the Philippines and other islands of the Pacific Ocean, the loss of Hongkong and Singapore, when Japan, as an aggressive nation, proved more prepared for war than Great Britain and the United States, which pursued a policy of peace.

"Neither can we consider accidental such an unpleasant fact as the loss of the Ukraine, White Russia and the Baltic, during the first year of war, when Germany, as an aggressive nation, proved more prepared for war than the peace-loving Soviet Union.

"It would be naive to explain these facts by the personal qualities of the Japanese and Germans, their superiority over the British, Americans and Russians."

Russ To Aid War In Pacific, Say Observers

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Marshal Stalin's frank discussion of Japan as an aggressive nation brought renewed speculation today that at the strategic moment the Soviet Union will make available some of its resources to the Allies of the Pacific-Asiatic war.

This might range all the way from the use of bases to full participation. But that help will be forthcoming has long been assumed by informed persons here and Stalin's direct reference to the Pacific enemy was interpreted in that light.

Defense Difficulties

Russia will make up her mind as to when and what to do, there being no evidence in any quarters that Stalin has communicated his plans regarding Japan to Washington and London. But Allied authorities, and particularly those in Washington, hope no action will be taken prematurely.

For in some respects Russia's position in Northeast Asia is even more vulnerable than Japan's. Her territories in the maritime provinces and Kamchatka peninsula apparently could be difficult to defend in event the Japanese were in position to react strongly. That is the reason that during the summer of 1942 a Japanese attack on Russia was constantly in the forefront of possible war developments. Tokyo was winning then and could afford to drive for new conquests.

Big Forces On Border

The Russians are known to have kept substantial forces of troops in Siberia throughout the war. In turn they tied up at least comparable Japanese forces. The Japanese are reported to have used the Russian front as a breaking in ground for new troops as well as a station for some of their best units. The Russians probably have followed the same policy.

Russia's Pacific plans will become of even greater importance if China's place in the Allied effort is thrown further off balance by internal difficulties and enemy attacks.

Ports Available

Russian bases would support heavy air assaults on the heart of Japan; Russian ports might facilitate an assault on the enemy's northern flank.

In turn the Soviets would earn for themselves a place with the victors in deciding the future of the western Pacific world. If Allied unity is carried forward after peace, there is no question that Russia would have a powerful voice even without fighting, but a record of having helped to accomplish the victory would add authority that Moscow can hardly afford to pass.

Vodka Prices Dip In Soviet

Moscow, Nov. 7 (AP)—Vodka prices went down 25 per cent. today as Russia celebrated the 27th anniversary of her revolution. Cigarette and tobacco prices tumbled also.

The gilded domes of the Kremlin were polished for the occasion.

Hardly a Muscovite house failed to fly a Red banner.

State stores issued special candy and cooky rations to children from 7 months to 12 years of age.

Bands paraded through the streets. Marching groups swung by from time to time, but the general idea was group singing and the hit tunes were "Moscow, My Moscow" and "Beloved City."

Bad Weather Suspends Record Aerial Blitz

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—The greatest aerial blitz of all time was interrupted by weather today after American and British planes had flown 25,000 sorties in three days, pounding Germany with more than 26,000 tons of bombs.

Aerial activity over the Channel this afternoon led observers at Folkestone to believe the all-out attack was still continuing, but Eighth Air Force and RAF combat planes were grounded today because of weather over Germany.

About 200 RAF Lancasters raided freight yards in Coblentz last night.

Allied Planes Head For Reich Again

London, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Bad weather forced a halt today in major aerial operations against Germany from British bases after a three-day period during [illegible] which 26,000 planes dropped more than 26,000 tons of bombs.

30.24 — 20235

The R. A. F. kept the clock-around offensive rolling last night by bombing Coblenz. British Lancasters and Halifaxes doused three railroad yards in the Rhine city behind the United States First and Third Army fronts. R. A. F. Mosquitoes stung Gelsenkirchen, the Ruhr's fifth largest city.

The RAF kept the around-the-clock offensive rolling last night by bombing Coblenz. British Lancasters and Halifaxes doused three railroad yards in the Rhine city behind the United States First and Third Army fronts. RAF Mosquitos bombed Gelsenkirchen, the Ruhr's fifth largest city.

Skies Overcast

Going out after 4,000 Allied planes dumped 8,000 tons on the Reich in daylight yesterday, RAF pilots were told they would fly through solid overcast to the Rhine, but if they arrived over Coblenz at the right moment they would have ten minutes' good visibility. The bombers reached the area at the exact time, saturated their targets and headed home before the German defenses could hit their stride.

The Mosquitos over Gelsenkirchen found huge fires still burning from the bombs dropped by 700 RAF heavies yesterday afternoon—the city's heaviest attack of the war.

MORE ROBOTS FIRED

London, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—The sky over the English east coast was lit up during the night by a tremendous barrage of anti-aircraft fire and exploding robots as the Germans flung flying bombs in from the North Sea for the third night in a row.

With the loss of their channel robot roosts, the Germans have switched almost entirely now to launching the flying bombs from aircraft over the North Sea.

Leaflets fluttered down after a vivid flash had been seen in the sky. A metal container filled with some fell on a village. The four-page pamphlets contained photographs of war scenes and one of dead children said to have been killed by phosphorus in Hamburg.

56th Fighter Group Leader Made Colonel

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—David C. Schilling, commander of the 56th Fighter Group, highest-scoring American outfit in the European theater with a total of 223 enemy planes to its credit, has been promoted to the rank of colonel.

Schilling's group, formerly led by Col. Hubert Zemek, of Missoula, Mont., who now commands another outfit, has shot down 561 Nazi planes and destroyed 162 on the ground.

Slavs, Bulgars Kill 3,600 Nazi Troops

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—More than 3,600 German and puppet troops have been killed and 930 captured by Yugoslav Partisans and Bulgarian units in recent actions from the Gerek frontier to Slovenia, Marshal Tito announced in a broadcast communique today.

German forces were repeatedly cut to pieces along the Vadar valely communications route and their line of retreat was slashed in many sectors, the bulletin said.

Street fighting was reported in Strumica, 12 miles east of the Vardar and an equal distance north of the Greek frontier.

Knin, the last enemy strongpoint in Dalmatia, was declared being approached from all sides.

Norway Foreign Chief In Moscow For Parley

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Trygve Lie, Norwegian Foreign Minister, has arrived in Moscow for conferences with Soviet officials on questions of "common interest" to Russia and Norway, a spokesman for King Haakon's Government announced tonight.

Lie was accompanied by Terje Wold, Minister of Justice, and Dr. Karl Evang, Director General of Public Health. The delegation, which had been in Stockholm for discussions with members of the Swedish Government, flew to Moscow yesterday.

The spokesman said Lie probably would be received by Marshal Stalin. Diplomatic quarters considered this significant since Russian troops are fighting on Norwegian soil.

Mental Examination Given Hitler, Report

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Speculation over the cause for Adolf Hitler's recent absence from the public spotlight was heightened today by unconfirmed reports that he recently had undergone an examination by a brain specialist at Berchtesgaden.

The reports, via the European grapevine, said the Fuehrer was in seclusion in a castle at Klessheim, about seven miles from his usual mountain retreat pending the completion of new fortifications in the Salzburg-Berchtesgaden area.

Hitler has not been heard from directly since the day following the reported bombing attempt on his life last July 20, when a voice purporting to be his broadcast a message to the German people.

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Bulgaria, whose new Government has professed a desire to act with Russian blessing, has broken off relations with Japan, sofia radio announced tonight.

FAVOR WRITING OFF LEND-LEASE DEBTS

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—A trade survey disclosed today that a slight majority of British business leaders answering it favored the cancellation of any British-owed lend-lease balances after the war and approved the negotiation of export-sphere pacts with American traders.

The survey was conducted by Harold Whitehead and Staff, Ltd., a firm of industrial consultants that sent questionnaires to the heads of 496 British companies, of which 169 replied. Mr. Whitehead, a native of England, was for many years professor and head of the Department of Sales Relations at Boston University's College of Business Administration.

His questionnaire found that 51 per cent of those answering felt that any net debt owed by Britain to the United States on lend-lease account should be totally canceled, but that 25 per cent were prepared to consider repayment in whole or in part by means of goods.

Sixty per cent favored some kind of general post-war arrangement with the United States regarding export-market spheres. Fifty-one per cent wanted pacts at least in their own lines. Fifty-nine per cent suggested arrangements regarding the sources of raw materials.

Married On Leave, Killed Month Later

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Sergt. Michael Sungail, of Kenosha, Wis., member of a famous airborne division, and Miss Jessie Wheeler, of Leicester, had planned to marry last June, but invasions don't wait on romance.

After landing in Normandy by glider on D-day and doing his share of the fighting, Sungail was granted special leave for the wedding. Seven hours after the ceremony Sungail had to report to his unit.

Mrs. Sungail has just been informed, only a month after she became a bride, that her husband died of wounds in Holland.

EIGHTH ARMY NEARS FORLI

Allied Bomber Attack Aids British Push In Italy

HEINZERLING

Rome, Nov. 7 (AP)—British Eighth Army troops, stalled for days outside Forli on the important Bologna-Rimini lateral highway, moved toward the town today aided by a powerful attack by medium bombers.

Large formations of Marauders and Spitfires dropped trousands of fragmentation bombs on troop concentrations and gun positions. Returning pilots said the mission was successful.

Other Allied bombers attacked targets along the Brenner Pass and heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force attacked military targets in the Vienna area and northern Yugoslavia.

Villages Captured

Prior to today's advances Eighth Army troops captured a number of hill features southwest of Forli and took several villages in the mountains farther west, but patrolling, both German and Allied, continued over most of the Italian front.

In the San Stefano area of the Adriatic coastal sector the Germans attempted to infiltrate Allied positions by dark but were driven back. Otherwise in the triangular region between the Bologna-Rimini highway and the sea there was little but enemy shelling and mortar firing.

Poles Clear Marsignano

Polish troops in a 1,000-yard advance south of Forli cleared the village of Marsignano in the hills between the Rabbi and Montone rivers, north of Predappio. In the same area the villages of Monte Maggiore and San Martina also were taken, along with prisoners.

The Germans kept up a heavy harassing fire on Highway 65 running southward from Bologna through the Fifth Army front.

Two years since the American landing in North Africa on November 8, 1942, the Allied armies in Italy are still pushing the enemy back toward the frontiers of the Reich. Some American units which took part in the North African fighting still are in the line, and some British Eighth Army units now in Italy were fighting in the western desert long before the North African landings.

Poles Capture Key Hills In Italy

Rome, Nov. 7 (AP)—Polish troops of the Eighth Army have captured San Martino and Marsignano in the mountains southwest of Forli, Allied headquarters announced today.

Several important hill features were seized.

Elsewhere on the Italian front the main activity of both sides was patrolling.

On the Adriatic sector in the San Stefano region, six miles south of Ravenna, the Germans attempted to infiltrate Allied positions after dark, but were driven back.

Under German Fire

Positions around Forli, 37 miles southeast of Bologna on Highway 9, were unchanged. Eighth Army troops south of the Forli air field were under machinegun and tank attack and an Allied-held lateral road east of the field was under machine-gun fire.

On the Fifth Army front south of Bologna, the Germans maintained heavy, harrassing fire on Highway 65.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force hit communications and close-support targets in the battle area.

MOYNE MURDER PROBE PUSHED

Jewish Terrorists Blamed, Suspects Refuse To Talk

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—British and Egyptian officials tonight pressed an all-out investigation into the origin and associations of the assassins of 64-year-old Lord Moyne, British Minister-resident at Cairo.

Officials in Cairo announced that the assassins were a pair of youthful Jewish terrorists, but the prisoners defied attempts of authorities to discover their accomplices, if any.

It still was not known whether they were members of the Stern extremist organization, which has been blamed for numerous acts of violence on Palestine.

Early solution of the crime was expected after Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today that "very searching inquiries" would be made.

Officials Shun Comment

Official British quarters declined to comment, but hinted that Lord Moyne's assassination might possibly be linked with terrorist activities in Palestine.

Churchill said that he had received no official information fixing the authorship of the crime, or giving a clue to its motives, but he declared that the Egyptian Government had stated the assassins were not Egyptian subjects. A Foreign Office spokesman referred to them as "strangers."

The Prime Minister disclosed to Commons that the killers narrowly escaped lynching.

A colonel in the British police and two assistants arrived in Cairo by plane from Palestine today to investigate the assassination.

Refusing To Talk

Cairo reports said the killers were still refusing to talk after being questioned throughout last night by the police. Their only comment to repeated questions, given in Hebrew, was, "We say nothing. We await the courts."

In his report to Commons, Churchill said Parliament and the nation had suffered a "very heavy loss" in the death of Lord Moyne. He added that Lord Moyne had devoted himself this year to a solution of the Zionist problem, and declared the Jews in Palestine "had rarely lost a better or more well-informed friend."

Lord Strabolgi, president of the newly formed League to Promote Dominion Status for Palestine, suggested to Commons that Lord Moyne was slain by Nazi agents.

Joint funeral services will be held Wednesday for Lord Moyne and his chauffeur, who was slain with him. Lord Moyne's body then will be returned to England by air.

LORD MOYNE KILLED BY JEWISH TERRORISTS

CAIRO, Nov. 7.—(AP) Investigation indicated today that the two men who yesterday assassinated Lord Moyne were Jewish terrorists who had come from Palestine about a week ago, but it still was not known whether they were members of the Stern extremist organization, which has been blamed for numerous acts of violence on Palestine.

Zionists here described the slaying of the British resident minister for the Middle East as "the greatest disaster to our cause" and expressed fear that it would aggravate antisemitism throughout the world.

Joint funeral services will be held Wednesday for Lord Moyne and his chauffeur, who was slain with him. Lord Moyne's body then will be returned to England by air.

A colonel and two other members of the British Palestine police came here today to question the assassins.

[Prime Minister Churchill said in London that he had no official information giving a clew as to the motives for the assassination, or fixing its authorship. He added that Lord Moyne had devoted himself this year to a solution of the Zionist problem, and that the Jews in Palestine "had rarely lost a better or more well informed friend."

[The New Zionist Organization in London issued a statement which said it "emphatically condemns this act of terrorism, which is stated to have been committed by Jews." The statement added that an immediate inquiry "should be ordered into the recent outbreak of terrorism in Palestine, and into its causes."]

The prisoners, one of whom was wounded by an Egyptian constable after the attack on Lord Moyne, maintained a defiant silence under police questioning, muttering in Hebrew: "We say nothing. We await courts."

Moyne's Slaying To Be Probed: Churchill

London, Nov. 7 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today that "very searching inquiries" would be made into the assassination of Lord Moyne, British Minister-resident at Cairo.

Parliament and the nation, Churchill said, had suffered a very heavy loss."

He said he had received no official information fixing the authorship of the crime, or giving a clue to its motives, but that the Egyptian Government had stated the assassins were not Egyptian subjects.

Friend Of Jews

Churchill said Lord Moyne had devoted himself this year to a solution of the Zionist problem, and declared the Jews in Palestine "had rarely lost a better or more well informed friend."

Lord Strabolgi, president of the newly-formed league to promote dominion status for Palestine, said "it is far more probable to my mind that Lord Moyne was murdered by Nazi agents."

Three British officials arrived from Palestine to investigate the assassination.

Police said the prisoners, speaking in Hebrew, told them: "We are saying nothing. We are waiting for court."

Their names were not disclosed immediately. A hearing is expected soon.

King Farouk visited the hospital before Lord Moyne died. Funeral arrangements have not been completed but a state funeral probably will be held. Lord Moyne was 64.

One Gunman Shot

Lord Moyne was shot down as he alighted from his residence here and died in an army hospital. His chauffeur was killed instantly.

One of the gunmen was shot by an Egyptian constable and the other was captured nearby.

Lord Moyne was born Walter Edward Guinness in Dublin in 1880 and was a member of the family which manufactures the famous Guinness stout.

Condemns Act

A. Abrahams, representative of the New Zionist Organization's political department, said in a statement:

"The New Zionist Organization emphatically condemns this act of terrorism which has been reported as committed by Jews and is resolved to do all in its power to bring Jewish youths back to the realization that only by the employment of political instruments of discussion, negotiation and public enlightenment can the legitimate Jewish claim of Jewish statehood be attained."

Later Abrahams asked that his statement be withheld pending a confirmation of the facts.

Jewish Terrorists Blamed

Cairo, Nov. 7 (AP)—Jewish terrorists assassinated Lord Moyne, British resident Minister in the Middle East, yesterday, officials said today.

Their motive was not known. Lord Moyne's duties were concerned almost exclusively with relations between Great Britain and Egypt and did not cover other problems in the Middle East.

Three British officials arrived from Palestine to investigate the assassination.

Police said the prisoners, speaking in Hebrew, told them: "We are saying nothing. We are waiting for court."

Their names were not disclosed immediately. A hearing is expected soon.

REAFFIRMS YANK MISSION IN BURMA

New Delhi, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, in his first speech to American troops as their commander in the India-Burma war theater, said today that recent developments such as the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, have changed "neither our mission nor our strategy."

"Our mission remains an important one," he declared. "It is one of making a positive contribution to the war in the Pacific.

"The Chinese Army in China has tied up numerous Japanese divisions which would be used and could still be used against our forces in the Pacific.

"Our job, therefore, is to open the Burma Road so heavy equipment, impossible to move by air, can be gotten to the Fourteenth Air Force, so that artillery may be gotten to the Chinese armies, so that we may make a last concerted rush, shoulder to shoulder with Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz to end the reign of the Jap once and for all."

Gen. Sultan commended the soldiers, saying:

"Through all the trials and tribulations of long service in a hot alien country you have griped and cursed, you have sworn to return to the United States and never leave, but through it all you have done your job. At times you have accomplished miracles considering the lack of resources at your disposal."

Allies In Burma Gain In Push For Fort White

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 7 (AP). Allied troops have crushed all enemy resistance around Kennedy Peak, southeast of Tiddim in northwestern Burma and have cleared an additional eight-mile stretch of the main road to Fort White, the Allied command announced today.

The British 14th Army drove to within two miles of Fort White on this main route of escape for Japanese troops in this part of Burma, the daily communique said.

Japanese roadblocks were found at this location, and some of them were cleared away.

JAPANESE FORCES THREATEN LIUCHOW

CHUNGKING, Nov. 7—(AP) Japanese troops launching a fresh drive down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway advanced nine miles and reached a point 36 miles from Liuchow, important Kwangsi province rail center, the Chinese High command announced tonight.

The communique also stated the invaders had captured Mosun, 45 miles south of Liuchow, yesterday. The Tokyo radio claimed the Japanese took Mosun Nov. 4.

The High command said there was no change in the fighting for Kweilin, where the Japanese were last reported to have pushed into the suburbs of the city from three sides. Kweilin is 95 miles northeast of Liuchow.

Foreign observers arriving here from the southeastern China combat zone said the Japanese forces were well equipped while the Chinese units opposing them were poorly outfitted and generally outclassed.

A communique from headquarters of the U. S. 14th Air Force said pilots had sunk 23 Japanese ocean going vessels totalling 38,000 tons during October and that 15 others with a displacement of 36,000 tons probably had been sunk. In addition, the communique said, 39 other vessels had been damaged.

Japs Closing In On Liuchow In China

Chungking, Nov. 7 (AP)—Japanese forces closing upon the Kwangsi province defense center of Liuchow now are only about 80 miles apart, the Chinese high command disclosed tonight.

Foreign observers arriving in Chungking from the combat zone said the enemy forces had all necessary weapons for modern war and that the Chinese units opposing them were poorly equipped and outclassed.

Below this active theater Japanese troops pushing westward from Kweihsien were about 20 miles from Pinyang. Capture of Pinyang would be a distinct step forward in the Japanese plan to establish an overland link with French Indo-China.

14th Air Force Sinks 23 Jap Ships In Oct.

Chungking, Nov. 7 (AP)—The United States 14th Air Force sank 23 Japanese ocean-going vessels, totaling 38,000 tons, during October, a statement said today.

The China-based planes probably sank 15 other vessels exceeding 36,000 tons and damaged 39 vessels of more than 68,000 tons, the statement said.

One Japanese cruiser, a 2,23-foot naval vessel and two destroyers sunk, one destroyer was probably sunk and one destroyer was damaged.

Not included in tonnage or naval vessels sunk for the month were a freighter, 92 sampans, 81 barges, 51 boats, 48 junks, 17 steamers, 2 launches, a tug and sternwheeler, all less than 100 feet long.

JAP ASSERTS U. S. ABUSES CHINESE

The Chungking regime has become an Anglo-American "catspaw," and the recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell has brought China "much criticism" from the "inhumane United States and Britain," Japan's Foreign Minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, asserted last night, the Associated Press said today.

The Foreign Minister joined Premier Kuniaki Koiso and other Japanese leaders in commemorating the first anniversary of the so-called "Greater East Asia Charter" with a propaganda bid for increased war support from Asiatics.

Shigemitsu said that "by taking advantage of the empty promises" which the United States and Britain "have made to Chungking, they are forcing Chungking to continue a war of resistance against us, while actually they have already bluntly exposed their designs to encroach upon China militarily, politically and economically to maim China permanently. Pitting orientals against orientals and rendering them both enfeebled, the enemies are highly intent upon achieving their own evil designs."

440 JAP PLANES BAGGED AT MANILA

Two Jap Warships Sunk, Eight Damaged in 2-Day Attack.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 7—(AP) Carrier-based Helldivers, Hellcats and Avengers destroyed 440 Japanese planes, sank two enemy warships, probably sank a third and damaged eight others in a two-day raid on the Manila area of the Philippines, the Navy disclosed today.

Additionally, three cargo vessels and an oil tanker were sunk, 14 others were damaged and heavy destruction was spread among airfields, oil stores and installations.

Sink Sub Chaser

The raids by planes of the U. S. Third fleet were made Saturday and Sunday. An enemy sub chaser went down Saturday and a heavy cruiser probably sunk. An enemy destroyer was sunk Sunday.

A light cruiser and three destroyers were damaged Saturday. Two destroyers and two destroyer escorts were hit Sunday.

At least 191 enemy planes were wiped out Saturday, the bulk of them on the ground. Another 249 were accounted for Sunday.

The enemy warship score increased to at least 72 the total sunk, probably sunk or damaged in actions related to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's invasion of Leyte Oct. 20.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announcing the continued neutralization of the Manila area in a communique today, reported additional "heavy damage" was inflicted on ground installations.

Three oil storage areas were set afire on the north strip at Clark field and a tremendous explosion started another large fire in the northeast area of the same airdrome.

North of Malvar, a railway engine and five tank cars were destroyed.

Five ships were sunk Sunday and five more, plus several cargo vessels, were damaged. One ship was sunk Saturday and five plus several cargo ships damaged.

Adm. Nimitz said the total of cargo ships damaged on both days was 14.

These ships were sunk Sunday: three cargo vessels, one oil tanker, and one destroyer.

Damaged: two destroyers, two destroyer escorts and one trawler and several cargo ships, bringing to 14 the two day toll of these vessels.

Presence of many cargo ships in Manila harbor indicates the Japanese either have been able to slip one or more small convoys into the Philippines or were preparing to rush supplies to other Philippine islands.

The destroyers and destroyer-escorts probably were for escort duty. The two cruisers damaged Saturday might have been refugees from the second battles of the Philippines, Oct. 23-25.

The two-day toll of 440 planes probably was the second highest of the war in the Pacific, exceeded only by the 500 odd record of June 18-19, when the Fifth fleet destroyed 402 in one day and followed up with scores more the succeeding day.

113 Planes Shot Down

Admiral Nimitz said that for the two days 113 Japanese planes were shot out of the air and the astounding total of 327 destroyed on the ground.

"Many others were destroyed on the ground by strafing," he added, making no attempt to estimate the number.

Discovery of so many planes in the Manila area means not only that the enemy has been able to resupply the many airfields there but that he probably has repaired much of the damage done last month to airfields on Formosa and in the Ryukyu islands by the Halsey-Mitscher fleet.

Largest concentrations of enemy planes were found at Nichols, Clark, Nielson, Lipa, Pahlac, Bamban and Mabacalat airfields.

American losses were not reported.

planes, Admiral Nimitz told of a running battle in which three army Liberators destroyed one and probably another of seven Japanese fighters which intercepted them over the Kuriles. Two of the Liberators were damaged. Onnekotan was their target.

Other land-based attacks were made on Otomari, and Tori Shima in the Kuriles, Haha Jima and Anu Jima in the Bonins, Rota in the Marianas and bases in the Marshalls.

66th Jap Warship Hit By Yanks

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 7 (AP)—Six warships of Japan's sea-shy fleet were caught near Manila and sunk or damaged Sunday (Philippines time) by Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers of the United States Third Fleet.

The raid raised to at least 66 the total enemy warships sunk or damaged since Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed October 20 in the central Philippines.

Mustering Point Is Target

Striking at a mustering point for counterblows, the carrier planes definitely sank a sub chaser, probably sank a heavy cruiser, damaged a light cruiser and three destroyers and wiped out nearly 200 enemy aircraft in day and night attacks.

The sub chaser went down off the southeast coast of Luzon. The other five were surprised in Manila Bay. The cruiser was enveloped in flames and started sinking after being hit several times by bombs and torpedoes.

Airfields Pounded

Equally important in relation to the invasion operations on Leyte, the Clark, Batangas, Lipa, Legaspi and Lubang airfields were devastated.

Fifty-eight out of 80 Nipponese planes were bagged over Clark Field by day and three more at night. Twenty-five enemy planes were shot down elsewhere over Luzon and five while seeking to attack the carriers.

More than 100 aircraft were destroyed on the ground.

U. S. Losses Not Reported

"Our losses have not yet been reported," Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported.

(Tokyo radio said 300 American planes staged the attack. It also broadcast extensive claims of damaging blows against American warships off the Philippines, saying that at least two carriers were sunk.)

Yanks in Critical Battle With Japs in Ormoc Valley

SPENCER

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Wednesday, Nov. 8—(AP)The U.S. 24th division is locked in a critical fight in Ormoc valley on Leyte with elements of four Japanese divisions, including three rushed in as reinforcements, headquarters reported today.

This was the crucial battle presaged by Japanese convoy landings at Ormoc while the 24th was capturing Pinamopoan on Carigara bay and swinging south.

Japs Reinforce Troops

Today's communique said elements of the First, 30th and 102nd Nipponese divisions had augmented the badly shattered 16th—the torturers of Bataan—in opposing the 24th. Three strong enemy counterattacks were repulsed.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in these counterattacks, made at night just south of Coastal Pinamopoan on northwest Leyte. The strength of them was great, constituting savage fighting equal to the heaviest encountered on the island.

After they failed, the Japanese infiltrated American positions and some withdrawals were necessary but the ground lost has been recovered by the Yanks.

The scene of the fighting is along the northern section of the narrow winding road from Pinamopoan to Ormoc as well as in adjoining ridge barriers dominating the valley.

A spokesman said the Japanese were well dug in. However, constant artillery shelling has forced the foe to restrict movements of reinforcements and supplies to the night hours.

Less than 1 mile north of Ormoc, Japan's port of last hope on western Leyte, American long range artillery laid down a devastating barrage on the enemy defense at Valenica. The shelling wrecked warehouses and supply dumps. Large fires broke out.

Adding to the destruction, Leyte-based Yank fighters divebombed communications, bivouacs and supply dumps.

Port Palompon Blasted

Planes also blasted Port Palompon which terminates a road on Leyte's west shore leading off the Pinamopoan-Ormoc north-south road at Libongao.

On the eastern side of Leyte, although the main fighting there is over, the Japanese in the hills west of Dagamai still offered opposition to the U. S. 96th infantry division. Headquarters reported today the 96th wiped out pockets in the hills near Patok which is four miles northwest of Dagami.

Off Ormoc, enemy barges and small craft were damaged by American planes.

The recent bombings of Nipponese airfields on Cebu, Negros and Luzon by Army and Navy planes has been so effective that enemy raids against Leyte have been cut down to a negligible factor. The communique said that ground gun defenses on Leyte have shot down a total of 144 Nipponese planes to date.

American ground forces battled reinforced Japanese today for a network of ridges commanding the enemy's retreat route to Ormoc, last escape port for the Nipponese on the west coast of Leyte island.

Bitter Fight Rages

The fighting, bitter at times, raged several miles south of American-held Pinamopoan. The Yanks, advancing slowly but surely toward Ormoc, apparently were near Cabulan, a village about 15 miles north of Ormoc.

Some American units that penetrated the ridge country ran out of ammunition because of difficult supply conditions and were forced to draw back at night or fight it out with numerically superior enemy bringing reinforcements from Ormoc.

Most of the isolated American groups, reported AP War Correspondent Fred Hampson, held their ground but casualties were heavy on both sides. The enemy turned captured American machineguns on the Yanks, taking a heavy toll.

After infantry elements of the American 24th division withdrew from some dominating positions "Long Tom" artillery shelled the enemy. Then fresh troops drove into the ridges again and were reported making good progress against light opposition.

The Japanese were fighting on terrain favorable for defense. The Americans, however, had superior air and artillery support which was giving the enemy in Ormoc and along the road leading north to the frontlines a terrific beating.

Below Ormoc, the U.S. 7th infantry division was closing the southern jaw of the Ormoc trap.

Americans Push Through Japs' Leyte Defenses

MACDANIEL

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 7 (AP)—American battle veterans, already four miles south of Carigara Bay, continued an unchecked advance today through Japanese mountain defenses on the twisting highway toward Ormoc and the finale of the Leyte Island campaign.

Ormoc, last Japanese stronghold on the island, was 16 miles away, after the 24th Division beat off three night counterattacks and punched beyond Limon, on the mountain pass road.

Banzai Charges Crushed

Japanese reinforcements were somewhere along the shell-raked highway through Ormoc Valley, waiting perhaps to launch a final attack which is expected to produce some of the campaign's fiercest battling.

While these fresh troops waited, infantrymen of the original Japanese garrison swarmed from strong hill positions in three fanatical banzai charges against the American perimeter four miles from the coast.

All were repulsed bloodily, without denting the American lines.

Jap Positions Shelled

The Yanks were driving through Japanese positions in what today's communique termed "favorable defensive terrain." Long-range artillery aided the advance, pounding the Nipponese along the valley and in Ormoc.

The southern end of the Ormoc trap presumably also was closing tighter, although the communique made no mention of the Seventh Division, which was some 12 miles south of the port city at last report.

American planes continued heavy bombardment of Japanese airdromes on other Visayan Islands, an offensive which the communique said has "sharply reduced the scale of enemy air activity over the Leyte area."

Heavy bombers followed night harassing attacks on Cebu and Negros Islands with a 72-ton bomb load on Lahub airdrome. Fighters battled for 30 minutes with Japanese interceptors over northwest Negros, shooting down six planes and losing one.

LIBERTY SHIP BAGS JAP ZERO AT LEYTE

SPENCER

The David Dudley Field Brings And Defends Needed Cargo

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 28 (AP—Delayed)—The S. S. David Dudley Field, a Liberty ship with four voyages to her credit, steamed into Leyte Gulf unescorted one day after American troops had landed and claimed to be the first Liberty to arrive in the Philippines.

She began discharging her cargo and before she left on her return voyage had another first to her credit—the first Liberty ship to shoot down a Zero in the Philippines.

It was the night of Oct. plus 4—four days after the landing October 20—when Japanese strafing planes winged in for a heavy attack on shipping in the bay. One plane picked out the Liberty and bored in barely 50 feet above the water.

Gun Crews Open Up

The Liberty's navy gun crews opened up. One gunner was Gabriel N. Gutiarres, 19, from Cuba, N. M. Just off the port side the gunners hit the Zero and a wing caught fire. The pilot sought to crash his plane against the ship, and the gunners frantically attempted to beat it off.

It came on, its wing hit the port gun position and shattered on the starboard side. All guns had stopped firing except that of Gutiarres, who was still blasting away when the Zero spread its wreckage over the bridge. And Gutiarres walked away from the wreck.

The David Dudley Field did a job on this fourth voyage out of San Francisco, under the command of Capt. Albion M. Burbank, 32, of Cambridge, Mass. It carried 750 additional troops for the fighting fronts. Its holds were loaded with 105 and 155 millimeter howitzer shells for the 24th Division artillery. It had hundreds of 50-caliber machine guns and mortars. It was considered one of the most vitally needed ships to reach the Philippines.

There was no dock for the ship and her own merchant-marine crew labored day and night to unload her cargo.

Her Share Of Wounded

The Davic Dudley Field has left the Philippines now, slightly more battered than when she arrived. And after several feverish days of almost incessant raids she is a wiser ship.

Her purser, Joseph O. Labonte, of New York city, who had six weeks' training as a pharmacist's mate, is wiser now in the treatment of wounded. Because the Field had her share of wounded.

The navy gunners, among the least known of America's combat forces, have real war experience to their credit. There were many of these armed guards. Those who fought off the Jap planes include:

William P. Lancer, Little Rock, Ark.; Clyde E. Johnson, Greenfield, Tenn.; Martell M. Ouchley, Farmerville, La., and Paul J. Baker, Jr., Shreveport, La.

Nipponese Turn Captured Gun On Yanks

HAMPSON

With 24th Division on Leyte, Philippines, Nov. 7 (AP — Via Army Radio)—Some units of this division, trapped by Japanese, suffered heavy casualties as the Nipponese brought captured Yank machine guns into action against them yesterday near Pinamopoan where the Carigata coast road bends south toward Ormoc.

Japanese reinforcements, moving north from Ormoc, enemy strongpoint on the west coast of Leyte, joined the fight for a network of ridges commanding the valley from Pinamopoan to Ormoc.

Japs Cut Supply Road

Some of the American units were encircled by the reinforced Japanese after the Yanks had penetrated the ridge country and a tiny winding road, used to supply the advancing Americans, was cut.

Supply trucks tried to get through but ran into a hail of Japanese gunfire. Some of the trucks were lost; a few managed to retreat. None got through.

Meanwhile, a numerically superior Japanese force pressed attacks against the isolated American units. In the main the Nipponese were beaten off with heavy losses, but the Americans soon exhausted their ammunition.

Some Yanks Draw Back

Some of the Yanks managed to draw back under cover of darkness, but others fought on through the night and didn't escape until dawn.

Technical Sergeant Ernest Payne, of Tekemah, Neb., and Private Monroe Boggs, of Webbville, Ky., who were with the trapped forces, said the Japanese used American 50-caliber machine guns which they took from a disabled supply truck.

Sergt. Richard Braun, of Bridgeville, Pa., said one band of Japanese attacked an American mortar position from 30 feet, but all the Japanese were cut down. Another mortar group of 20 was less fortunate. Private Harvell Allen, of Muldrow, Okla., said only five Americans survived.

Charge Beaten Off

One company command post unit beat off a banzai charge with a canister, killing 18 Japanese with a single blast.

American artillery hit the area heavily after the Yanks withdrew and at midmorning fresh troops attacked. At nightfall they were well up the heights again, meeting only light opposition.

PURPLE HEART TO WRITER

War Reporters' Casualties Are Found Greater in Philippines

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, on Leyte, Nov. 7 (AP)—Casualties among war correspondents in the Southwest Pacific are proportionately greater than in any other theatre of action because the aggressive correspondents go in with the troops from one operation to the next with little rest, Col. Legrande Diller, press relations officer, said today.

His statement was made with the announcement of a Purple Heart award to Clete Roberts, Blue Network radio correspondent, by General MacArthur.

Mr. Roberts, who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., was wounded by the same bomb which killed Asahel Bush, Associated Press correspondent, and Stanley Gunn of the Fort Worth, Texas, Star-Telegram and Houston Chronicle correspondent.

The citation of Mr. Roberts was the second general order issued by General MacArthur. The first was to his troops.

Transport-Born Baby Given Vessel's Name

Leyte, Philippines, (AP)—A Filipino baby born during the Leyte invasion has been given the name of the transport on which his birth occurred and $200 by the Yanks who were present.

Lieut. Allen Goodyear, of Stamford, Conn., member of a medical party, rushed the mother to the transport where he and Lieut. David Reulman, of Monroe, Wis., delivered the child.

Yanks of the ship took up the $300 collection and presented it to the mother, Mrs. Gualberto Cribello.

Yank In Hot Seat During Fighting

With the 24th Division, Leyte, Philippines, Nov. 7 (AP)—Private William Nykaza, of Chicago, was high in a palm tree stringing telephone wire when the Japanese counterattacked.

He stayed aloft while the Japs took the position—also stayed there while Americans took it back.

Said Nykaza: "I had a 50-yard-line seat."

U. S. BOMBERS BLAST ISLANDS IN VISAYAN SEA

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Wednesday, Nov. 8—(AP) Liberator bombers dropped 260 tons of bombs on Japanese airfields in islands ringing the Visayan sea during the past 24 hours to keep them from interfering with American invasion operations at Leyte.

Announcing the action in a communique supplement, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said at last 15 parked planes were destroyed, three interceptors shot down and the runways cratered.

Filipino Wants Old P-T Job Back

At an Advanced P-T Base, Leyte Island, Philippines, Nov. 4 (AP—Delayed)—An unobtrusive little Filipino clambered up the rope ladder of the quarterdeck of a P-T tender.

"Alfredo Sarmo, officer's steward second class, reporting for duty, sir," he announced to Lieut. Lloyd Howard, San Marino, Cal.

Howard looked the wiry little fellow over.

In Bulkeley's Squadron

"Are you in the P-T service?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," Alfredo replied. "Squadron 3, Sir."

"Why, that's Bulkeley's old squadron," the officer noted. (The officer referred to Lieut. Com. John T. Bulkeley, who evacuated General MacArthur from Corregidor.)

Sarmo was aboard Lieut. Henry Branningham's boat when it fired its last torpedo into a convoy of enemy transports and their escorting cruiser and destroyer in a battle off Buenaventura, Negros Island.

Out Of The Hills

Three enemy planes finished off the damaged P-T and sank it. The Filipino swam ashore with other surviving members of the crew. He later became a member of a guerrilla organization.

When he heard the Americans had returned to the Philippines he made haste to report.

"You see, sir, I am not a deserter," he apologized. "I came out of the hills to report for duty as quickly as I learned you are here."

Jap Woman Tosser Of Grenades Killed

Advanced Southwest Pacific Base, Nov. 1 (AP—Delayed)—A Japanese woman grenade thrower, whose accuracy equaled that of some American softball pitchers, was among a group of the enemy annihilated near Kantome Village, New Guinea.

Lieut. R. W. Buck, of Warsaw, N. C., and his 20-man patrol chased the Japanese up a ridge and Sergt. John Hulteen, of New Haven, Conn., knocked down four with a tommy gun.

"Pitched With Best"

From the ridge the Japanese tossed down a cascade of grenades. Buck said he saw the woman at close range and "she was pitching grenades with the best of them."

She was about 27 or 28 and dressed in a Japanese air corps uniform.

Not Good-Looking

"She had a mouthful of gold teeth and wasn't much to look at," Buck added.

GETS SILVER STAR

Headquarters, Army Forces, Pacific Ocean Areas, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Sergt. John J. "One-Man-Gang" O'Hara of 75 Prospect street, Little Falls, N. J., has been awarded the Silver Star decoration for gallantry in action against the Japs at Saipan Island.

He was awarded the decoration for repeatedly sending his tank, under fire, behind enemy lines, in a vain attempt to rescue his platoon leader and the latter's crew, trapped in their burning tank.

"On six occasions that day he took his tank deep into the Japanese lines and dismounted, making a personal reconnaissance on foot, under fire, on each occasion, trying to determine their location," the award said. "Each time he ordered his tank crew to remain inside the tank, clearly indicating his realization of the great danger involved.

"Late in the afternoon he discovered the body of the officer and two bodies of the crew members and the burned out tank."

The platoon leader was Lieut. Louis W. Fleck of Racine, Wis., and the two crew members T-4 Emanuel Duhon, Abbeville, La., and Private Henry Kilbride, 2158 Clinton avenue, the Bronx.

Brazil's Aid Promised In War Against Japs

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 7 (AP)—A highly placed Government official said here that Brazil's attitude toward Japan remains unchanged and that he personally felt it is "only natural and logical" that Brazil will continue to cooperate fully with the United States in the prosecution of the Pacific war after the defeat of Germany.

He said Brazil at present had absolutely no intention of declaring war against Japan with which this country severed relations at the Rio de Janeiro conference in January, 1942.

Asked whether after the defeat of Germany, Brazil would continue to allow the United States use of air bases in this country, the official said, "I cannot make an official statement at this time, but I regard that as only logical and natural."

REPORTS ON FRONT

Montreal, Nov. 7 (A. P.).—Col. J. L. Ralston, who resigned last week as Defense Minister, said in a speech today that his recent tour of the western front disclosed that supply and reinforcement problems "have been very difficult.

He made no mention of the cabinet crisis, resulting from his [illegible] demand that Canadian draftees be sent abroad as reinforcements, regardless of whether they volunteered.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton has succeeded Col. Ralston as Defense Minister.

Marianas' Invasion Gas Consumption Told

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Herman Feldman said in a Pearl Harbor broadcast that American naval forces used up more gasoline during the invasion of the Marianas than was consumed by the entire Pacific fleet throughout 1943.

Feldman, who spoke on The March of Time program, said he could not disclose what supplies the navy had to expend in winning the second battle of the Philippines Sea but the Marianas example gave the public a faint idea.

He said it would require four freight trains extending from San Francisco to New York to carry the supplies used in one year of war in the Pacific.

Feldman is one of the top-flight logistic experts on the joint army-navy staff for Pacific Ocean areas.

Jap Girls' Hair For Bombers

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP)—Japanese schoolgirls, Tokyo radio said today, are cutting off their hair to be used in the manufacture of four-engined bombers. The broadcast did not say what specific part of the bomber required the hair.

Tokyo Reports 3d B-29 Visit

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP)—American Superfortresses were over Tokyo and the heavily industrialized Kanto area today for the third time within a week, the Tokyo radio reported. No bombs were dropped.

The same broadcast said 40 more of the B-29s on Sunday raided Iwo, in the Volcano Islands, 750 miles south of Tokyo.

More Rigid Guard Urged

The radio said two B-29s flew over the main Japanese Honshu Island's Kanto region for an hour "for reconnaissance purposes."

Japanese propagandists warned that the B-29s would return in force to bomb Tokyo and other sections of the Kanto area, which, roughly, covers the eastern half of Honshu. Broadcasters said:

"We need further rigid guard against the plans of the enemy."

American sources have not confirmed any of the three reported reconnaissance flights. The first was reported by Tokyo November 1 and the second, November 5.

The broadcast said the planes which came over Honshu and those which attacked Iwo came from the Marianas. One of the Superforts attacking Iwo was damaged, the Japanese claimed.

Hachijo and Chichi Islands in the Bonins, 615 miles southeast of Tokyo, were attacked yesterday by American Liberators, the Japanese reported. They said "several tens of planes" were involved. Japanese Imperial Headquarters claimed Japanese planes raided Saipan and Tinian Islands in the Marianas at dawn today, destroying twenty American planes and starting fires at Saipan.

The Marianas raids were not confirmed by American sources.

Japan To Open Week Of 'Victory' Prayers

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP) — Beginning at midnight tonight, Tokyo time, the Japanese will open a week of "victory" supplication to the Nippon war gods at the Kashima and Katori shrines.

A radio Tokyo broadcast, recorded today by FCC, said the week of praying at the shrines would be conducted by the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, the totalitarian party of Japan.

'Lidice' Atrocities Charged To Japs In East Indies

San Francisco, Nov. 7 (AP)—Emulating the Germans at Lidice, Japanese have wiped out at least two villages of the Netherlands East Indies with virtually their entire populations, headquarters of Netherlands forces in the Far East announced today.

A village near Medan, on Sumatra, was soaked with kerosene and petrol and burned to the ground. Any inhabitants who tried to escape were shot with machine guns.

A village on Java was set afire by incendiary bombs, and machine guns also were turned on those trying to flee.

Drank Soapy Water

Other atrocities were described in a document, "Japanese Atrocities in Occupied Netherlands Indies." It listed cases of savage mistreatment of prisoners of war and civilian populations.

Some people were burned alive; some were forced to drink soapy water until they were bloated, and then soldiers jumped on their stomachs until the water spouted from their mouths. Prisoners were suspended by their feet and their heads were bumped on the ground. Others were forced to stand with their heads thrown back and their eyes opened to the blazing sun.

Javanese women who resisted the advances of Japanese soldiers, the document related, were bayoneted through the breasts.

"The brutality practiced by the enemy during his administration of the islands has been so appalling that this headquarters is making public a few of the instances but by no means the most severe," the document said.

The names of the destroyed villages were not published, but the document said the one on Sumatra was wiped out because it was the home of a newspaper writer who criticized the Japanese in an article in the Medan newspaper.

Bombed As Revenge

The Java village refused to give up its rice crop after two harvests had been seized by the Japanese. The citizens were so enraged they killed a policeman sent to arrest a man accused of being the ringleader of the "opposition." The Japanese surrounded the place immediately, bombed it and watched the population perish in flames.

Prisoners, the document said, are on a starvation diet; they have insufficient clothing to protect them from the weather and no medical attention is provided.

"As a result, the death rate in prisoner of war and internment camps is unbelievably high," it said.

JAPANESE LORDS SWITCH GENERALS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indicating concern over American successes in the Philippines, Japanese war lords have switched generals for that area.

Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, Japan's victorious general at Singapore and Corregidor, will fight it out with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, having been transferred from Malaya to serve as commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in the Philippines, Tokyo radio said last night.

Yamashita, whose change of command was announced in a broadcast recorded in the United States by the Federal Communications Commission, apparently succeeds Lt. Gen. Shigenori Kuroda in the Philippines.

The 59-year-old Yamashita presumably will be responsible, as was General Kuroda, to Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in the southern regions, including the Philippines.

It was Yamashita who replaced Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma when the latter's Bataan campaign dragged on as the result of heroic opposition by Americans and Filipinos. Yamashita was in charge of the Japanese when Corregidor fell in May, 1942. Before then, MacArthur had gone to Australia to head up the offensive now washing back toward Manila.

Yamashita had received the surrender of Singapore the previous February. Back in 1940, he went to Germany to study German war methods.

Domei news agency said the change was announced by the War department and included the appointment of Lt. Gen. Yasuji Timonagao as commander of the Japanese army air force in the Philippines sector.

U.S. Warned Robot Attacks Are Entirely Possible

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP) The War and Navy departments said today that robot bomb attacks by Germany on the United States are "entirely possible."

The departments said the question whether such attacks could be made had been raised in view of continuance of robot bomb use against Great Britain after destruction of launching platforms in France and the low countries.

In a joint statement, the Departments asserted they "consider such attacks by Germany entirely possible."

Robot bombs, the Departments said, "might be launched from submarines lying offshore or from one-way sacrifice flights of long-range bombers controlled across the Atlantic by submarines. It is also possible that attacks might be launched from catapult plane tenders."

"It is extremely doubtful that such attacks could entirely elude Allied sea and air patrols. Reasonable measures are in force to protect the country. However, as has previously been stated, with respect to the possibility of sporadic enemy air attacks on our shores, it is impossible to insure that such an attack will be completely frustrated.

"Any such attacks could have no great military effectiveness and could only serve to stimulate the nation still further in its determined prosecution of the war."

In authoritative quarters, it was explained that the formal statement was not intended to convey the impression that the two departments have reasons to believe robot attacks necessarily are imminent. At the same time, however, there was no disposition to discount the warning that attacks are entirely possible.

STETTINIUS RECOGNIZES JUNTA IN GUATEMALA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — (AP) Acting Secretary of State Stettinius today announced United States recognition of the revolutionary Junta in Guatemala.

Stettinius said it was understood that many other American republics are taking similar action "following full consultation and exchange of information."

The present government of Guatemala is a triumvirate which came into power following a revolution that overthrew provisional President Federico Ponce on Oct. 19.

The new government last week held congressional elections which were described by the Guatemala charge d'affaires here, Enrique Lopez-Herrarte, as "the first free election in the history of the country." A presidential election is scheduled for next month.

Five Steel Men Going To China With Nelson

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson announced today the names of five iron and steel men who will accompany him to China and concentrate on increasing production from existing Chinese facilities.

The iron and steel mission will be headed by Herbert W. Graham, director of metallurgy and research for Jones & Laughlin at Pittsburgh. Other members are Carl Albert Bell, United Engineering and Foundry Company, Newcastle, Pa.; Henrik Ovesen, Lukens Steel Company, Coatesville, Pa.; Harry A. Strain, United States Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh, and E. K. Waldschmidt, formerly of Jones & Laughlin but now of the War Production Board's steel division.

Judge To Study Chinese Laws

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Milton J. Helmick, former judge of the United States court in China, is en route to that country to make a general survey of the Chinese legal system.

A State Department announcement today said Helmick will pay particular attention to commercial laws affecting American firms doing business in China. The Chinese commercial legal code has not been thoroughly clarified since the United States relinquished extra-territorial rights early in 1943.

A new Chinese-American commercial treaty reportedly is under consideration to replace the old one based on this country's former extra-territorial position.

Helmick was judge of the United States Court in Shanghai from 1934 until Pearl Harbor. He was repatriated on the exchange liner Gripsholm in 1942 with American diplomats from occupied China.

'Lucky Lud' Bears A 'Charmed Life'

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Navy men decided today that the U. S. S. Ludlow is carrying this "charmed life" thing so far somebody ought to be told about it.

So they got out a long dossier on the "Lucky Lud" that sounds like a recruiting poster for destroyer men.

She's bouncing around harassing the enemy right now, veteran of the invasion of North Africa, the invasion of Sicily, the attack on Palermo, the shelling of Salerno, the drive into the Anzio beachhead.

Not one of her crew ever has been killed. You couldn't get them to ship out on anything else after that German shell off Anzio plowed through her sheeting.

That shell was the payoff in luck. A six-incher from a shore battery, it singed the hair of Radioman Lawrence P. Halloran, of Waltham, Mass.; knocked a message out of the hand of Executive Officer Philip Cutler, of Marion, Mass.; exploded a box of 20mm. anti-aircraft shells which popped around like firecrackers and came to rest deep in the ship without exploding!

Commander Liles W. Creighton, of Houlton, Maine, went from "boot" ensign to skipper in three years on the Ludlow bridge.

LETTERS HELD BACK BY ARMY ARE RELEASED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — (AP) Approximately 400,000 letters written by soldiers now in the Philippines campaign and impounded for security reasons now are being delivered to families.

The War department said today that the letters, some of which were written far back as past July, were held by Army censorship in the Central Pacific and Hawaii so that no inkling of the Philippine invasion might be conveyed through them.

ARMY CASUAL

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP).—The War Department announced today the names of 2,427 casualties in the European area. Included in the list are the following with their next of kin:

ERIC JOHNSTON CALLS FOR NATIONAL UNITY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — (AP) Eric A. Johnston, President of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said tonight that regardless of the election outcome all citizens must work together to solve the nation's problems.

Saying that neither the presidential winner nor any single group can find the answer to "many perplexing questions," Johnston added in a prepared radio (Blue) address:

"It is a job that can only be done by all of us working together as a team. Today we have been Republicans and Democrats; tomorrow we must be Americans."

He called the wartime election a demonstration to the whole world "that Democracy really works."

Coast Guard Work Inland Cut to Send Men to Sea

Action Also Frees Them for Ports and Overseas Bases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Curtailment of inland Coast Guard activity to release men for duty aboard ship, at oversea bases and in West Coast ports was announced today.

The Navy Department described the order as "not a lessennig of the war effort, but a change in emphasis."

It will principally effect details on inland rivers and lakes, but will also curtail such functions as floating and pier patrols, designation of restricted areas and issuance of identification cards for use in shore establishments at some smaller ports on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The Coast Guard said that where changes in the war picture are speeding up shipping activities, increases are being made in its man power and equipment.

Import Controls Are Ended on 53 Commodities

W.F.A. Taking Over Food Regulation From W.P.B.; Restriction Put on Pepper

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP).—Import controls were ordered lifted tonight from fifty-three commodities including iron ore, fir, pine and thirty-eight food items.

Simultaneously it was announced that the War Food Administration will assume the import regulation of certain foods previously controlled by the War Production Board. The W. F. A. also ordered one new commodity — unground pepper, black or white—under import restrictions.

The release of fifty-three items, effective Nov. 13, was announced as being in line with the policy of "easing controls as supply, shipping and other strategic considerations permit."

The foods affected are corn starch, dried cherries, alfalfa seed, dried buttermilk, canary seed, castor oil, castor beans, castor pomace, dried cream, dog food, certain fatty alcohols and acids, those dried fruits which are not specifically provided for in the import orders, dried grapes, grapes, other than hothouse; glycerin, hydrogenated or hardened oils and fats, whale oil other than sperm; lard oil, mate, mate yerba, murumuru nuts and kernels, murumuru-nut oil, inedible olive oil, edible onions, dehydrated onions, peaches, green, ripe or in brine, pears, racing or fancy pigeons, other pigeons, pimentoes, sheep, lamb, goat and other sausage casings, seal oil, tucum nuts and kernels, tucum oil, prunes, prunels and plums, livestock and poultry feed, wheat and bran shorts.

The W. P. B. removed from control the following articles: Alpaca, llama and vicuna hair; antimony; cottonseed-hull fiber; Spanish cedar logs and lumber; fir, pine and prima vera logs and lumber; silkworm waste; ergot; iodine and iron ore.

In taking control of food imports the W. F. A. issued a regulation which follows the pattern of W. P. B.'s import order and which requires importers of foods to obtain an authorization from the W. F. A. Applications already made to the W. P. B. and authorizations issued by W. P. B. will continue valid.

Relaxation of import controls was announced for a few other items, including alpargatas, deer skins, unmanufactured cow, horse and goat-skin leathers, and unmanufactured hemp (cannabis sativa type only). These still require import authorizations, but their sale in this country no longer is controlled.

PLAN TO MAKE VACATION PAY UNIFORM UPHELD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 — (AP) The War Labor board has upheld the right of employers to make their vacation plans uniform in various plants.

In a unanimous decision the Board approved the voluntary vacation plans submitted by the Interwoven Stocking company, for its Morristown, Tenn. Mill, and the Geneva Steel company, Geneva, Utah, a subsidiary of United States Steel corporation.

"We believe that this policy now adopted will be conducive to stabilization because it will now prevent disturbance of existing standard vacation plans of corporations operating on a nationwide basis," said J. Holmes Davis and Walter T. Margetts, the industry members, in the opinion.

Steelman Quits Labor Post

Washington, Nov. 7 (AP)—Dr. John R. Steelman, the New Deal's "handyman" in labor disputes, has quit his $9,600 job as chief of the United States Conciliation Service, effective November 25.

The resignation was announced before the election returns are counted, Steelman said, so it could not be construed as being politically inspired.

Labor Secretary Perkins received his letter of resignation July 1.

NOV 8 1944

In Lewis Squabbles

Steelman has been in the middle of some of the hottest labor squabbles of the Roosevelt regime—mainly those involving John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers.

Probably the toughest spot he was invited to occupy came during the "captive" mine strike of November, 1941.

Named Arbitrator

The Defense Mediation Board toppled into oblivion with Lewis' departure, his right-hand man, Thomas Kennedy, and Philip Murray. As the three CIO representatives on the board, they walked out in protest to the board's decision against the mine union.

The President then appointed Steelman, Lewis and Ben Fairless, chairman of United States Steel, as arbitrators. Steelman's decisive vote was cast with Lewis in favor of the closed shop. That ended the captive mine strike.

FIRST YANK IN REICH IS KILLED IN ACTION

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7—(AP) Lt. Robert O. Downs, 27, first American to cross into Germany in this war, was killed in action in France Oct. 20 his wife has been notified.

A Sept. 6 despatch from American army headquarters in the French Moselle valley said Downs led a reconnaissance patrol behind the German lines and on Sept. 2 crossed the western border of the Reich.

Post-War World Transportation Plan Urged

Cincinnati, Nov. 7 (AP)—A world-wide transportation system, privately owned, will solve the post-war employment problem and make use of an excess merchant marine to deliver United States products to the world, says Col. Harry A. Toulmin, Jr., decorated author of the army Pearl Harbor report.

Addresing a Cincinnati engineering group last night, Colonel Toulmin declared:

"To meet the dual problem of an excess merchant marine and how to sell the products of our vast factories in order to give 60 million jobs, I propose the formation of the 'Transportation Area Corporation.'

Describes Powers

"This corporation would acquire commercially or by agreement with governments in the areas concerned the right to operate, equip and finance transportation systems by land, air and water in specified areas."

Toulmin said the ownership of such a corporation would be drawn from our industrial, merchandising and transportation companies.

"The nation that controls world wide transportation will be the predominant industrial nation in the post-war world," he asserted.

Toulmin added the world will need American goods but lacks American dollars with which to pay. He proposed America take its compensation in the right to participate in the control of such transportation.

Says Brazil Seeks U. S. Trade

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP).—Brazil's post-war program includes plans for increased trade with the United States, according to Ivo Wolff, director of the Technology Institute of Rio Grande du Sul, who arrived here last night en route to the International Business Conference at Rye, N. Y. With him were the other Brazilian delegates, Paulo Goncalves, professor of agronomy at Rice Institute, and Men de Sa, statistician for the Brazilian government.

Packard Plant Shut as Result Of Racial Row

39,000 Idle After Walkout of Several Hundred Over Upgrading of Negroes

DETROIT, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Packard Motor Car Company said today it has closed its entire plant, which employs some 39,000 workers, because a dispute involving several hundred polishers had produced an "unbalanced material condition" which made impossible the production of aircraft and marine engines.

International representatives of the United Automobile Workers, C. I. O. affiliate, which has a working contract with the company, have been attempting to settle the dispute ever since the polishers walked off their jobs Friday night, a company spokesman said.

Production was not hampered over the week end because no work was scheduled for Saturday, the spokesman said, but on the night shift Monday the same group of polishers walked out again.

He said it will be impossible to operate the plant until the polishers return to work.

The company spokesman described the dispute only as involving a refusal of the polishers to "abide by the union's contract."

George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the U. A. W.-C. I. O., said the dispute centered in objection of the polishers to the upgrading of Negro workers to the position of metal polishers. Urging the polishers to return to work, Mr. Addes said "the union will not tolerate any violation of its constitution, which calls for fair treatment regardless of race."

Two Detroit Strikes Ended

DETROIT, Nov. 7 (AP).—Eight thousand workers resumed production at the Continental Motors Corporation and the Freuhauf Trailer Company today after votes of their United Automobile Workers locals to end strikes.

At Continental, 7,000 had been idle several days because of a strike over an incentive-pay system. Union representatives said they would continue to seek an adjustment.

The Freuhauf workers agreed to submit the discharge of two employees to collective bargaining procedure.

New Plane Based On War Model Is Due For Test

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP)—The maiden flight of a giant air transport, an unusual conversion of a famous military plane, may be announced from the West Coast before the end of the International Civil Aviation Conference.

The big plane, ranking with the largest of the announced commercial models, is ready to take the air, it was learned today, but it has been kept grounded by weather and last-minute checkups. Officials concerned with it expect the initial flight in a matter of days, and the War Department probably will permit some disclosures relative to the plane's development.

Unidentified Publicly

Thus far the aircraft has not been identified publicly by number or name. There is no doubt, however, that many persons would like to have its existence become known during the air conference here in the interest of showing what this country is doing to provide post-war commercial planes.

The plane will be the second transport originating in a warplane to fly this year and represent an approach not heretofore used. The other conversion is Consolidated Vultee's model 39, which is based upon the B-24 Liberator. Like that plane, the new one uses the wings, landing gear and tail of a military model. As designed, it is intended solely for military work, and further changes may be made to fit it to commercial operations after the war. Its potentialities in that field have been carefully evaluated.

Flight Is Welcomed

The impending initial flight, while not timed with the conference, is welcomed by persons interested in an opportunity to show American goods. Manufacturers have been in the background at the conference, at the suggestion of the State Department, which has sought to avoid any implication that the United States was using the meeting as a sales session.

Most of the major air-transport builders are represented by expert sales officials, who say that the interest in United States transport aircraft is such they are frequently approached for information by foreign delegations.

Dinner For Delegates

By informal agreement, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, speaking for nearly every manufacturer, will have but one social affair for the delegates—a dinner Thursday night. The Air Transport Association, representing the airlines, has remained out of the picture, after some early consideration of a plan to join with the manufacturers in the dinner.

Already represented here are Lockheed, United, Douglas, Curtiss-Wright, Glen L. Martin, Boeing, Consolidated Vultee, Republic and Sperry. Others are expected.

Ernie Pyle To Receive Degree From Indiana

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 7 (AP)—President Herman B Wells announced today Indiana University would award the honorary degree of doctor of humane letters to Ernie Pyle, noted war correspondent, at a special convocation November 13.

Pyle, an alumus of the university, is now on vacation at his home in New Mexico.

U. S. Officer Escapes Torpedoed Jap Ship

Minot, N. D., Nov. 7 (AP)—Lieut. Col. John H. McGee, of Minot, N. D., who escaped from the Japs early in September after two and one half years as a prisoner in the Philippines, has arrived in San Francisco, according to word received by relatives here.

He was met by Mrs. McGee, who who has been living in Plymouth, Wis., and his father, George A. McGee, Minot lawyer.

Colonel McGee escaped from the Japanese when a Jap freighter was torpedoed by a United States submarine, being among 83 officers and men who reached shore from the vessel.

STALIN RECOUNTED TEN "GREAT BLOWS" AGAINST THE GERMANS IN THE LAST YEAR OF WAR WHICH HAD CLEARED THE SOVIET UNION, SAVE FOR A LUMP OF LATVIA WHERE HE SAID 30 GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE TRAPPED AND BEING GROUND TO BITS. HE SAID GERMANY'S STRENGTH ON THE EASTERN FRONT HAD BEEN REDUCED TO 180 DIVISIONS PLUS 24 HUNGARIAN DIVISIONS, WHICH HE SAID WERE ABOUT TO BE KNOCKED OUT OF THE WAR, NOW THAT THE RED ARMY WAS BEATING AT THE GATES OF BUDAPEST. HE ALSO CITED THE REVERSAL OF THE GERMAN ALLIES OF FINLAND, ROMANIA AND BULGARIA IN SWITCHING FROM THE ENEMY TO THE SIDE OF THE UNITED NATIONS.

NOV 8 1944

STALIN DECLARED 120 GERMAN DIVISIONS HAD BEEN SMASHED IN THE LAST YEAR OF WAR AND THAT THE SWIFT SUCCESSES OF THE ALLIES WERE MADE POSSIBLE BY THE OPENING OF A SECOND FRONT IN FRANCE AND THE LOW LANDS, OPERATIONS WHICH HE SAID WERE "UNPRECEDENTED IN HISTORY AS REGARDS ORGANIZATION AND SCALE."

HE HAILED THE DECISIONS OF DUMBARTON OAKS LAYING THE FOUNDATIONS FOR THE POST-WAR "UNITED NATIONS" AND DECLARED:

"ONE SHOULD NOT BE SURPRISED BECAUSE DIFFERENCES EXIST, BUT BECAUSE THERE ARE SO FEW OF THEM." HE WARNED, HOWEVER, THAT GERMANY ALREADY WAS PREPARING FOR ANOTHER WAR AND MUST BE "DISARMED BOTH IN THE ECONOMIC AND MILITARY-POLITICAL RESPECTS."

AFTER REVIEWING THE RESULTS OF GERMAN AND JAPANESE AGGRESSION, STALIN SAID:

"PEACE-LOVING NATIONS MAY AGAIN FIND THEMSELVES TAKEN UNAWARES BY AGGRESSION, OF COURSE, IF THEY DO NOT WORK OUT NOW SPECIAL MEASURES CAPABLE OF AVERTING AGGRESSION. THERE ARE SUCH MEANS FOR THIS PURPOSE. THE TWO CRAFT HAD BEEN UNREPORTED FOR 38 HOURS ON PATROL FOR JAPANESE SHIPPING OFF WESTERN LEYTE WHEN A DESTROYER PICKED UP A MESSAGE FROM THEM. THEY HAD HIT A REEF WHILE TRAVELING AT FULL SPEED.

TWO PTS SPED TO THE RESCUE THROUGH INKY BLACKNESS AND HEAVY RAIN TO FIND THEIR CREWS BEING LAVISHLY ENTERTAINED BY FILIPINOS IN JAPANESE HELD TERRITORY.

LT. (JG) ED WAKELIN, (1450 HAMPTON ST). HOLYOKE,

MASS., SKIPPER OF ONE OF THEM, SAID THEY HIT THE REEF WHILE ZIG-ZAGGING BECAUSE OF TWO JAPANESE PLANES OVERHEAD.

WAKELIN'S BOAT HAD ONLY ONE PROP LEFT AND THE SHAFT WAS BENT WHILE THE OTHER WAS COMPLETELY DISABLED.

IN WATER UP TO THEIR KNEES, THE CREWS PUSHED, PULLED AND ROCKED THE BOATS FOR FOUR HOURS.

THE LONE, CRIPPLED ENGINE GOT WAKELIN'S BOAT FREE AFTER A FIVE-HOUR STRUGGLE. THEN HE PULLED THE OTHER BOAT FREE. WAKELIN FOLLOWED FILIPINO GUIDANCE TO A "SAFE ANCHORAGE, BUT THE OTHER BOAT GROUNDED AGAIN IN RIVER MUD.

NOV 8 1944

THEN NATIVES BEGAN A HURRIED CAMOUFLAGING JOB THAT BROUGHT JOY TO THE PT CREW, BRINGING CANOE LOAD AFTER CANOE LOAD OF PALM FRONDS. THESE BLANKETED THE TOPSIDE OF WAKELIN'S BOAT, FISHNETS WERE STRUNG DOWN THE SIDES. JAPANESE PLANES PASSED OVERHEAD WITHOUT SPOTTING THE BOAT.

NEXT DAY THE TWO BOATS WERE JOCKEYED TOGETHER AND AGAIN CAMOUFLAGED. ONCE MORE THE JAPANESE PLANES PASSED OVER.

"BUT THE THING WE REALLY GOT A KICK OUT OF," SAID ENS.W.B. MCDONALD (206 ELM) STRUTHERS, OHIO, "WAS WHEN WE HEARD OUR OWN ARMY SEARCH PLANES REPORT THEY COULDN'T FIND ANY TRACE OF US. WE COULD SEE THEM IN THE AIR."

NOV 8 1944

ALL OF THE CREWS SAID THEY RECEIVED A "FANTASTIC" RECEPTION FROM THE FILIPINOS WHO HADN'T SEEN WHITE VISITORS IN YEARS.

THEY TURNED THEIR HOMES OVER TO THE CREWS AND PUT ON A JIVE SESSION ON THE BEACH AT 2 A.M. THE SECOND NIGHT WITH A STRANGE SAXAPHONE, TROMBONE AND BASSO ORCHESTRA RENDITION OF "SWEET SUE." A ROAST PIG FEAST AND A SCHOOL HOUSE DANCE WERE SCHEDULED FOR LAST NIGHT.

Heavy House to House Fighting Raging for Control of Vossenack

NOV 9 1944

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Thursday, Nov. 9—(AP) Elements of U. S. Third army infantry lashed out in a two-pronged attack along the snake-like Metz-Nancy front yesterday, capturing 16 towns and advancing up to three miles on a seven-mile-wide front.

As that long-stagnant front sprang to life amid the thunder of heavy artillery early in the day, American fighter-bombers systematically knocked out German command posts one by one.

The major American effort was centered midway between the fortress of Metz and fallen Nancy, where the infantry forced multiple crossings of the shallow, muddy Seille river and stabbed on more than two miles at some points.

The towns enveloped included Mailly-sur-Seille, nine miles east of Pont-a-Mousson, Malaucourt, seven miles southeast of Mailly, and Aulnois-sur-Seille, midway between the two. Several hundred Germans were reported killed and hundreds more captured.

(The German radio said Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., had opened "a large-scale attack" in an apparent attempt to break through to the Saar river, which runs along and just within the German border some 30 miles northeast of the site of the assault.")

NOV 9 1944

Once the doughboys in the original jumpoff were firmly across the river at several places, troops to the south moved out in a second thrust 20 miles due east of Nancy and quickly cleared the villages of Montcourt and Bezange La Petite.

Some 15 miles separated the U. S. advances and there were no reports of activity between the two sectors, although Associated Press Correspondent Lewis Hawkins in a dispatch from the Third Army said infantry had pushed eastward along a 25-mile front.

Heavy Artillery Barrage

Frontline dispatches said the first strike across the shallow Seille river and the rain-soaked fields beyond began at dawn after a heavy artillery barrage that lasted a full hour.

Despite the low ceiling, fighter-bombers of the Ninth Air Force flew support for the attack and among other targets hit at least nine German advanced command posts.

First reports reaching headquarters indicated the Americans were meeting only light resistance, apparently having caught the Nazis by surprise at a spot where their forces were spread thin. Unfavorable weather held air support to a minimum.

NOV 9 1944

It was not yet possible to ascertain the weight of the attack, much less its potential development. First reports gave no indication that tanks had joined the battle. If previous experiences were duplicated, the Nazis could be expected to begin throwing their mobile reserves into the battle within a few hours.

Momentarily sidelined by the new American thrust in the south was the First Army's bloody struggle for the Hurtgen forest gateway to the Rhine southeast of Aachen in Germany, which had raged through six days.

(A front dispatch from William S. White of the Associated Press said the Hurtgen attack had "run down," with loss of most of the ground gained in its early phases. Kommerscheidt, a village between Vossenack and Schmidt, was lost Wednesday and Yank infantry was driven back 500 yards to high ground to the northwest.

House to House Fighting

("But considerable progress has been made in clearing Hurtgen forest, and the Germans suffered severe casualties, especially to our superior artillery," White said. Vossenack still was the scene of heavy house-to-house fighting, with each side holding approximately half the town).

A heavy 36-hour downpour hampered operations in the French sector east of Luneville and Remiremont, where American and French troops have been making steady progress into the upper Vosges foothills for several days. Forward points of the Seventh army line were under rocket gun and artillery fire, and the Nazis were hitting back hard around St. Remy in an effort to slow the American advance on St. Die at the entrance to Ste. Marie pass.

Two to three miles west of the Gerardmer entrance to Schluct Pass the Germans counterattacked strongly with two battalions of fresh troops just arrived in the line. French troops beat off the attack after stiff fighting.

There was little change on the Holland front. Fighting still was in progress northeast of Domburg on Walcheren island and near the approaches to the wrecked Moerdijk bridges across the Maas river. American and Polish forces squeezing out the last enemy pocket at Moerdijk were close enough to confirm reports that the Germans had destroyed both spans there. It also was confirmed that both the road and rail bridges at Arnhem were destroyed.

(A staff officer with the British 21st Army Group said the month-old offensive in southwest Holland had netted between 38,000 and 40,000 German prisoners, with an equal number of the enemy killed and wounded. "Now the Boche wants to know where we are going to strike next," the officer observed, "and in good time we shall undoubtedly let him know.)

British troops captured Vrouwenpolder on the coast of Walcheren, three miles northwest of Veere, and were reported making steady progress toward cleaning out resistance on the island.

Hurtgen Lines Unchanged

London, Nov. 8 (AP) — United States First Army troops have repulsed two German counterattacks near the town of Schmidt, 15 miles southeast of Aachen, and positions throughout the Hurtgen Forest area remain generally unchanged, supreme headquarters announced today.

"Fighting still is in progress in the village of Vossenack," the communique said. Latest field reports said the Americans held one half of the village, the Germans the other half.

Single Pocket Below Maas

In the region immediately west of Schmidt the Americans improved their positions yesterday and mopped up pockets of resistance. Fighter-bombers attacked enemy concentrations in that area.

The Germans have now been driven from all but one small pocket south of the Maas river in Holland.

"Allied forces now hold the entire south shore of the Hollandsch Diep and the Maas river with the exception of an area south and east of the destroyed Moerdijk bridges, where a small isolated force of the enemy is still holding out," the communique said.

More Bridges Wrecked

A field dispatch said the retreating Germans had wrecked every river bridge between the sea and Hedel, north of 's-Hertogenbosch.

On Walcheren Island, just north of the Schelde estuary approach to Antwerp, the Germans have now been restricted to an area northeast of Domburg on the north shore, In that region they still had some guns operating.

The fight to clear up the French ports where isolated Nazi garrisons are holding out continued. Rocket-firing fighters destroyed two military buildings yesterday in one of these—Dunkirk.

Foxholes Turned into Wells as Yanks Fight in Mud and Slime.

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

Filipino Guerrillas Hamper Japanese Supply Lines on Island.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, Thursday, Nov. 9 — (AP) Lashed by a raging tropical hurricane, the U. S. 24th infantry division fought in mud and slime yesterday along the winding road to Ormoc against fresh, veteran Japanese troops guarding the approaches to the enemy's port of last hope on western Leyte.

For perhaps the first time since Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces landed on eastern Leyte Oct. 20, today's communique claimed no advance for a 24-hour period ending at noon yesterday. Instead, it told of "heavy fighting" extending into densely wooded ridges overlooking the road where it makes a sharp horseshoe curve at Limon, four miles south of Carigara bay.

Foxholes Become Wells

The communique said a "tropical hurricane is restricting operations." The phrasing was modest. Few Yanks ever have seen such a raging storm of wind and rain which turned their foxholes into wells, soaked them through and through and made life even more miserable than usual.

Men of the 24th peered through the driving storm in an attempt to see the Japs ahead of them on the way to Ormoc, more than 15 miles to the south. The soldiers had to fall into their waterfilled holes when heavy Japanese artillery opened up.

American artillery hammered the Japanese to the rear of the battle, striking at bivouacs, supply dumps and assembly areas ringing Ormoc.

Throughout the Ormoc defense zone, Filipino guerrillas disrupted the enemy's "freedom of movement," headquarters said, by cutting communications.

Prior to the storm which grounded the opposing airforces, Leyte-based fighters blasted bivouacs, supply dumps and assembly areas around Ormoc.

The Nipponese airforce hit back on a limited scale. Seven were shot down.

On American-held eastern Leyte, the 96th infantry division still found enemy pockets of resistance in the mountains west of Dagami.

Spearheads of the 24th infantry division, supported by tanks and heavy artillery, fought doggedly into the enemy's favorable defense positions.

Field dispatches reported the Japanese were using clever defensive tactics and using their artillery to better effect than at any time since the invasion of Leyte on Oct. 20.

Hack Way Up Slopes

The dense undergrowth concealed enemy snipers, machine gunners and mortarmen as the Yanks hacked their way up the slopes that commanded the road to Ormoc. Three-inch tank destroyer guns, firing almost at pointblank range, and fire shells that ignited the undergrowth, helped dislodge the Nipponese.

"Why don't they come out and fight like us?" was the cry of American wounded as they were carried to the rear from the heavily wooded battle area.

One American battalion, reported AP war correspondent Fred Hampson, punched its way Monday to the top of an important ridge against savage resistance. Then it fought, apparently successfully, for high ground that would clear several miles of the Ormoc highway.

All indications were that the battle, hardest of the Philippine liberation campaign, was reaching a climactic stage. Elements of four enemy divisions, including remnants of the chewed-up 16th of Bataan infantry were engaged.

Allied warplanes continued to pin down enemy airfields throughout the Philippines.

campaign to drive the Japanese from favorable defensive terrain flanking the road. Associated Press War Correspondent Fred Hampson reported progress in eliminating Nipponese hillside positions, which would clear several miles of the highway leading to Ormoc.

Battalion Is Cut Off.

Another American battalion punched along the highway. The Japanese, fighting with more skill than the original Leyte defenders, cut behind the column and straddled its communications. The well-equipped American battalion, nevertheless, continued its advance, meeting stiff resistance around the town of Limon, four miles south of Pinamopoan.

The Japs dragged artillery to the ridges they still hold to begin the shelling of Carigara Bay positions. The barrage thus far was described as "harassing," but division officers said the Nipponese reinforcements were using their artillery cleverly.

U. S. Guns Harass Japs.

The fight, roughest engagement since the earliest days of the Island battle, began when American advance parties were cut off in a series of Jap counter-attacks by the Sixteenth Division—Bataan veterans and original defenders of Leyte—and reinforcements from the First, Thirtieth and 102d Divisions. There was no indication of the size of these various re-inforcing parties.

The Americans extricated their isolated units after a night of fighting and American long-range artillery (possibly firing over the Mountains from the Jaro area) harassed the Jap rear at Ormoc and Valencia, starting fires in warehouses and hitting fuel dumps. They also assaulted enemy traffic on the narrow, winding road, north from Ormoc to the current front line.

American fighting planes dive bombed Palompon, on the extreme west coast. This port is the only one from which Jap units north of Ormoc could hope to escape if they were cut off from Ormoc by the southern prong of the American pincers, now moving north toward the town from the Cabatoan area.

The American Seventh Division was reported advancing in that drive.

In eastern Leyte, where large-scale Jap resistance has been crushed, the American Ninety-sixth Division wiped out remaining enemy pockets in the hills near Patok and Dagami.

Japanese Attacks Dwindle.

Off Ormoc, American planes damaged barges and small craft.

Gen. MacArthur's communique also reported enemy air activity has been negligible. Since October 20, American anti-aircraft defenses report a total of 144 enemy aircraft shot out of action, either totally destroyed or probably so.

The communique added that American aircraft had dropped 260 tons of bombs on unspecified targets ringing the Visayan Sea west of Leyte.

Leyte Battle Nears Climax On Ridge North of Ormoc

MCDANIEL

Headquarters, Leyte, Philippines, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—One of the bitterest battles of the Leyte campaign rocked the road to Ormoc today as the American 24th Division and units of four Jap divisions battled in ridges below Pinamopoan.

Savagely fighting Japs slowed down the American advance and, for the first time, shelled Yank positions along Carigara Bay with heavy artillery.

Japan's Toughest General Leads Forces in Philippines

Japan's toughest general, Tomoyuki Yamashita, was reported commander in the Philippines because Japanese militarists view the battle of Leyte as "the decisive battle for our homeland," Tokyo radio and Domei agency said last night.

The Singapore radio, Japanese controlled, went even farther and said Yamashita has been charged with a task "upon whose accomplishment depends the future not only Japan but of every other country in east Asia."

30.24 — 20247

The appointment of Yamashita was announced Tuesday night.

The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, told the Japanese people the American capture of Leyte would enable the Allies to cut the flow of strategic materials from south Asia and provide bases for B-29 superfortresses to attack the Philippines, Formosa, Indo-China and the Netherlands Indies.

The radio said Yamashita had pledged himself to a "last-ditch defense" of the Philippines.

RETURNS ASSURE DEMOCRATS HOLD ON SENATE, HOUSE

President Piles Up Impressive Margin in Electoral Votes.

SOME STATES IN DOUBT

Nip and Tuck Contest Being Waged in Ohio and Michigan.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A flow of stray returns today solidified President Roosevelt's fourth term victory, but Michigan, Ohio and 11 other states held out against him and Utah's Democratic governor battled it out for reelection down the stretch.

The President held a big edge in electorial votes, but his popular vote margin was the narrowest since 1916.

New Jersey, which had jumped to one side and then the other during earlier ballot counting, was securely in the Democratic column today.

In Ohio and Michigan, where Thomas E. Dewey remained the front runner, Roosevelt pulled up within challenging distance last night. Missing tabulations from the last few precincts became the deciding element.

Ohio looked more as if it would stick with Dewey than did Michigan. For in the Wolverine state most of the uncounted ballots were in Wayne county and industrial Detroit, the area of maximum Democratic strength. Late last night Dewey had a lead of only 12,546 in Michigan.

A hundred Detroit precincts had "lost" some 50,000 votes by failing to consolidate civilian and soldier ballots. A board of canvassers was appointed to hunt them up this morning.

Close In Utah

The Utah gubernatorial race was touch and go between Democratic incumbent Herbert B. Maw and Republican J. Bracken Lee. The state had turned up a comfortable majority for Roosevelt and Democratic legislators, but Maw was out front by a mere 1,421 when only 39 precincts out of 872 were missing.

Utah counts an estimated 5,000 soldier votes belatedly, and they ought to leave no doubt about the governorship.

A win for Maw would return a majority of the states to Democratic control. It would mean 25 gubernatorial chairs for the party, against 23 for the Republicans who now have 26.

California, once considered a doubtful state, ticked off 400,000 more votes for Roosevelt than for Dewey and Democrat Sheridan Downey finally clinched his Senate seat for another term.

As for Congress in general, Democrats kept their senate majority and built up one in the House.

The latest computations showed 237 Democrats had been elected to the House, 175 Republicans, two minor party members, and 21 seats were in doubt.

In 35 Senate races, the Democrats had elected 19 members to go with 36 holdovers, giving them 55 altogether. The Republicans had added 20 to their 24 holdovers. Six contests were undecided. One seat is held by a Progressive.

Popular Vote

In the popular vote department, a midnight computation showed Roosevelt had 23,437,274, Dewey 20,628,-46, for a total of 44,065,720.

If it was any solace to him, Dewey piled up a bigger vote in the solid south than did Wendell Willkie four years ago. The southern states went Democratic, of course.

Republican leaders in Louisiana were so set up about the showing there that they even began discussing the chances of establishing a two-party political system in the state.

The Republican presidential nominee, heading back to Albany from New York city, found one thing to be happy about in defeat. He told a news conference it was the "high confidence the people expressed in the state government."

And he was pleased, too, about the manner in which his foreign policy views had obtained support within his own party.

Control Senate, House

But the Roosevelt administration saw the Democrats retain their majority in a Senate which will have to pass on any treaties that emerge from international efforts to guarantee peace. And the party laid a really possessive hand on the House for the first time in months.

Furthermore, Democrats racked up a net gain of three governorships. They ousted Republicans in Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri, Idaho and Washington, but lost to the GOP in Indiana and North Dakota.

The latest congressional tabulations showed the Democrats had raised their House total from 214, past the 218 needed for a numerical majority on up to 234. They counted up 54 Senate seats—five more than a majority.

Seven Senate and 36 House races still were in doubt, but trends pointed to an even firmer Democratic grasp on the national legislature.

For hours, the state and electoral vote scoreboard remained unchanged last night. It showed Roosevelt ahead in 35 states with 413 votes, Dewey in 13 states with 118 votes. Ohio and Michigan clung to Dewey but a possibility remained that they would shift to Roosevelt.

Lagging returns served only to make the Roosevelt victory more certain—a victory which enemy and allied capitals interpreted as one for "Internationalism." And abroad and at home, there was every expectation of an early meeting between the President, Prime Minister Churchill of Britain and Premier Stalin of Russia.

DEMOCRATS 3 GOVERNORS UP

Wallgren Defeats Langlie In Washington State

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Democrats increased their net gain in Governorships to three tonight when late returns from Tuesday's election gave Senator Mon C. Wallgren a decisive lead in Washington State.

Wallgren defeated incumbent Republican Governor Arthur B. Langlie.

Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri and Idaho swept Democrats into top State offices previously held by Republicans. Except in Ohio, yesterday's voting reflected support of Roosevelt in the Presidential race.

Republicans won Governorships in Indiana and North Dakota from the Democrats.

A seesaw race in Ohio finally turned in favor of Democrat Frank J. Lausche, bidding for the seat of Gov. John W. Bricker, the GOP Vice-Presidential nominee. Lausche, Mayor of Cleveland, had in 9,037 of Ohio's 9,306 precincts a vote of 1,525,261, while his Republican opponent, Mayor James Garfield Stewart, of Cincinnati, had 1,439,677.

Gates Wins In Indiana

In Indiana, one of the 22 States which had Democratic Governors, Republican Ralph F. Gates won over Senator Samuel D. Jackson in a race not decided until late today.

Massachusetts Democrats elected as Governor 43-year-old Maurice J. Tobin, Mayor of Boston, who turned back the bid of Republican Lieutenant Governor Horace T. Cahill. Tobin's margin was more than 120,000 with nearly complete count.

Missouri put into the Governor's office Democrat Phil M. Donnelly to take the State out of the GOP column. He polled 20,000 more votes than his Republican opponent, Jean Paul Bradshaw, in 4,278 of 4,543 precincts counted.

Gossett In Idaho

Idaho voters named Democrat Charles C. Gossett over William C. Detweiler to swing Governorship from the Republicans.

Outcome of Gubernatorial contests in four other States was pending, but in each case the candidate of the party in power held a lead.

Incumbent Democratic Governor Herbert B. Maw led J. Bracken Lee, Republican, in Utah, while in New Mexico Gov. John J. Dempsey, Democrat, was ahead of Republican Carroll G. Gunderson.

Minnesota voters gave Republican Governor Edward J. Thye another term over Byron G. Allen, running as a Democrat Farmer-Laborite.

In North Dakota, Fred G. Aandahl, Republican, was elected over William T. De Puy, Democrat.

Other States where the incumbent party remained in power:

DEMOCRATIC

Arizona—Gov. Sidney P. Osborn.

Arkansas—Ben Laney.

North Carolina—R. G. Cherry.

Rhode Island—Gov. J. McGrath.

Tennessee—Gov. Jim McCord.

Texas—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

Florida—Millard Caldwell.

REPUBLICAN

Connecticut—Gov. R. E. Baldwin.

Kansas—Gov. A. F. Schoeppel.

Nebraska— Gov. Dwight Griswold.

South Dakota—Gov. M. Q. Sharpe.

Vermont—Mortimer R. Proctor.

Wisconsin—Gov. W. S. Goodland.

Iowa—Robert D. Blue.

Montana—Gov. Sam C. Ford.

Delaware—Gov. Walter Bacon.

Michigan—Gov. Harry Kelly.

Colorado—Gov. John Vivian.

Incumbent Gov. Dwight H. Green, a Republican, went into the lead in Illinois to defeat Democratic State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, despite the sizable margin the State gave to President Roosevelt.

Wallace Gratified; Silent On Plans

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Henry Wallace, who has only a brief interlude to serve as Vice-President, was far from a forlorn figure today—and he isn't worried about the future.

The man who lost his political fight—for renomination—last summer was cordially at home at his Wardman Park Hotel apartment, but he declined to give out on what his future plans may be.

"Gratified" Over Results

Sure, he was confident all along that President Roosevelt, who consented in the Democratic National Convention to Wallace's removal from the ticket, would win. Further, he had figured on a comfortable working majority of Democrats in both the Senate and House.

And he felt personally gratified over the results of the campaign in which he personally stumped the country to make more speeches for Roosevelt than any other man.

Not Worried About Future

But to a reporter's suggestion that he open up and tell about his personal plans inasmuch as the man on the street has heard that he may become a member of the Cabinet or Ambassador to China, he mostly chuckled and grinned.

"I have resolutely kept any such thoughts from my mind," he said. "I couldn't have done a good job in the campaign otherwise. I'm not worried about the future."

FARM POLICY SEEN AS SAME

Mid-West Vote For Dewey Not Expected To Bring Change

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt is expected by farm leaders to stand pat—at least until war's end—on present farm policies and the top personnel in farm and food agencies.

A heavy out-turn of votes for Thomas E. Dewey in yesterday's election in mid-Western farm States will lead to little if any change in wartime farm programs, farm price supports and food rationing, say agricultural leaders both in and out of the Administration.

Wickard Expected To Stay

Capital observers expect Mr. Roosevelt to retain Claude R. Wickard as Secretary of Agriculture at least until the war emergency is over. Likewise Marvin Jones is expected to be kept on the job as War Food Administrator until that agency is liquidated.

Some believe the President may make a change in the farm secretaryship when peace comes and farm commodity-control programs now under the WFA are returned to the Agriculture Department.

Present farm policies call for continued heavy production of food to meet war needs and for Government support of farm prices at levels considerably above those prevailing before the war.

May Ask Increase In Funds

To carry out the price guarantees, Mr. Roosevelt may soon ask Congress for a $2,000,000 increase in the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation, the agency which has financed the bulk of the war food-production programs.

The reelection of Mr. Roosevelt apparently reassured return AAA crop-control programs w' the war ends.

BALL SEES MANDATE

Washington, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—Senator Joseph H. Ball, Minnesota Republican, today interpreted President Roosevelt's reelection as "a clear mandate" to proceed with the formation of an international peace organiation.

Senator Ball abandoned his party's presidential ticket because of what he said was dissatisfaction with Gov. Dewey's foreign views.

He said in a statement today:

"President Roosevelt's re-election Tuesday was a strong indorsement by the people of his administration's conduct of the war and its plans for United States participation in a strong international organization to prevent wars.

"It is clear that millions of voters crossed party lines on these issues. Our war and peace aims transcend party lines and our task now is to seek national unity in achieving them.

"The next step will come when the charter of a united nations organization is presented to the United States Senate."

LEADER OF A.F.L. SEES 'MANDATE'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — (AP) A.F.L. President William Green today described the election as an overwhelming rejection of "isolationism" by the American people.

Green's comment telephoned from Coshocton, Ohio, where he went to vote:

"The results of the election constitute a mandate not only for the President and his party but for certain basic issues.

"The American people in this election have overwhelming rejected isolationism. That should be clear to everyone and it is best possible augury for the establishment of lasting peace based upon international cooperation.

"Both major tickets promised to drive forward to victory in this war in the shortest possible time and to press for a program of economic security, with jobs for all in the post-war period. These major goals, therefore, have been endorsed by acclamation.

"To attain them, however, it is vital that both sides forget and forgive the bitterness engendered by the political campaign and that all Americans march forward united as never before toward prompt victory and enduring peace.

"It is still too early to judge definitely the outcome of contests in Congress but the returns now in show that an overwhelmingly large number of candidates endorsed by the American Federation of Labor in accordance with its non-partisan political policy have won."

WHAT BECOMES NOW OF PAC?

Future Of Successful Group May Be Decided In Chicago

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—What happens now to Sidney Hillman's CIO-Political Action Committee?

Hillman says it "is expected to be continued" but the decision may be left for the CIO convention in Chicago, November 20.

Flushed with victory in many of its Congressional tilts and quite aware of its contribution to the Roosevelt industrial vote, the PAC has at least three alternatives.

Three Alternatives

These are:

To fold up, drop out of the picture completely, figuring its work is done. (It was formed by CIO President Philip Murray after passage of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act in July, 1943.)

To cut back its personnel, retaining only the nucleus of an organization, which could be enlarged swiftly and effectively for any coming election. (Some curtailment would be expected, regardless of future course.)

To concentrate on continuing and enlarging its younger but bigger brother—the National Citizens Political Action Committee.

The latter course is regarded by some here as the likely one, since it was the original objective of PAC to bring other like-minded labor groups into a national united labor league to include all CIO, AFL, railway brotherhoods and unaffiliated labor unions.

Formation Of NCPAC

Efforts to gain active participation in the plan by William Green and the AFL, the railroad brotherhoods and others bogged down in the fall of 1943, and at the CIO convention a year ago it was decided time was running out and the CIO-PAC proceeded on its own to build its fences for this year.

NCPAC was formed last summer, with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, authors, former Governors regarded as liberals, and a host of others taken into the fold to work for the reelection of Mr. Roosevelt.

PAC has insisted it functioned without any purge list or calendar of favored candidates on a national scale. Decisions as to support or opposition rested primarily with the regional committees, PAC officials here asserted.

NEBRASKA REJECTS STATE PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 — (AP) Nebraska voters decisively rejected statewide prohibition in one of several public questions submitted by referendum in state elections Tuesday.

Returns from 1,890 of the state's 2,016 precincts gave the dry proposal only 119,816 to 358,924 against.

California defeated a proposal which would ban the closed union shop in the state. In Arkansas and Florida the fate of similar measures was undetermined.

The anti-closed shop amendment was leading by about 10,000 votes in Arkansas with about 60 per cent of the precincts reported, while Florida's measure was ahead by about 12,000 votes from approximately 75 per cent of the precincts.

Arkansas voters beat a proposal to repeal a 1935 law legalizing horse and dog racing.

Illinois rejected amendments which would permit sheriffs and county treasurers to succeed themselves.

Arizona, Oregon and California voters apparently defeated a proposal to pay $60 monthly pensions to citizens over 60 through a three-to-five per cent sales tax.

Washington state voters defeated two social security proposals, one the so-called townsend plan for $60-a-month pensions. They also rejected a proposal to permit public utility districts to combine to acquire private utility systems.

Two States Ban Closed-Shop Rule

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A State proposal to ban closed union shops apparently had won approval in Florida and Arkansas in Tuesday's election. A similar measure was rejected in California.

The vote in 1,171 of Florida's 1,480 precincts was 116,723 for the amendment and 103,383 against.

In Arkansas the proposal was ahead by about 10,000 votes, with around 60 per cent. of the precincts reported.

The amendments in all three States provided that no person can be refused employment because he is or is not affiliated with a labor organization.

In another of several public questions submitted by referendum in State elections, Nebraska overwhelmingly defeated a proposal to impose State-wide prohibition.

Returns from 1,890 of the State's 2,016 precincts gave the dry proposal only 119,816 to 358,924 against.

Arkansas voters beat a proposal to repeal a 1935 law legalizing horse and dog racing.

SERVICEMEN'S VOTE FAVORS ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP) Fragmentary returns from a few areas tallying presidential soldier ballots separately give Roosevelt 202,317 votes to 81,789 for Dewey.

However, all of this vote was in states won by the Democrats, and there was no way of telling how the servicemen as a whole divided in the wartime election.

Only a few states are tabulating the service vote separately. In some cases the vote will be counted as late as Dec. 5.

30. 24 — 20249

The returns available:

New York City (all but 10 election districts)—Roosevelt, 175,648; Dewey, 66,434.

Fulton county (Atlanta), Georgia—Rosevelt, 5,189; Dewey, 1,032.

Oklahoma (53 of 77 counties)—Roosevelt, 12,833; Dewey, 8,524.

Broward county (Fort Lauderdale), Florida—Roosevelt, 447; Dewey, 228.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Roosevelt, 8,200; Dewey, 5,571.

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Earl of Halifax, Britain's Ambassador to the United States, said today the reelection of President Roosevelt was "a remarkable vote of confidence by the American people in the President. It shqild have a remarkable effect throughout the Allied world, and also with the enemy who may have been expecting a change in the American policy and Administration."

Russian Embassy Has Celebration

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Diplomats, Government executives and other prominent folk, including Edward R. Stettinius, Acting Secretary of State, turned out tonight for the Soviet Embassy's annual reception celebrating the Russian revolution.

Normally, the anniversary party—one of the capital's top social affairs—is held on November 7.

But it was deferred a day this year because of the elections.

Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko, clad in Russia's new black and gold diplomatic uniform, shook hands with each of more than 1,500 guests.

All the Russian diplomats were wearing for the first time the uniforms recently prescribed by Moscow for important functions. Their double-breasted black suits were heavily decked with gold leaves. Each wore a ten-inch ivory-encased dagger.

Among the hosts was Alexander Novikov, new minister counselor of the Soviet Embassy, who arrived in Washington only today.

Householder Laments Congressman's Victory

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—A telephone caller asked the Washington Evening Star today if Representative Bell (D., Mo.) was reelected.

Told that he was, the caller said: "That's a shame—now I won't be able to rent his house."

The inquirer identified himself as a naval officer.

DEWEY BLAMES DEFEAT ON WAR

Beaten Candidate Without A Trace Of Bitterness

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Without a trace of bitterness or disappointment, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey indicated his belief at a news conference tonight that the war was solely responsible for his failure to win the Presidency. He declined to be quoted directly.

The defeated GOP nominee, who returned to Albany after a day in his hotel suite here, said he planned to catch up on State business during the next few days and then take a vacation with his family.

GOP Achievements

Completely relaxed and obviously glad the campaign was over, Dewey appeared pleased by what he described as these achievements:

That the campaign had united the Republican party more closely than it has been for 16 years.

That he had polled what his managers called a "very close" popular vote, despite an apparently top-heavy electoral majority for President Roosevelt.

That the Republicans had held their own in the New York legislative election, despite predictions by party members that a recent reapportionment would work to the advantage of the Democrats.

"I am very happy over the high confidence the people have expressed in the State government," Dewey said, "by the handsome majorities of Republicans in the State Senate and Assembly.

Tenseness Vanishes

Whatever tenseness has marked his demeanor during the campaign was entirely vanished as the Governor received a score of reporters in his hotel parlor before catching a train for Albany at 6.30 P. M. Eastern War Time.

Aides said Dewey felt that in the course of his campaign he had "got rid of the worst elements in the Republican party." They obviously alluded to the defeat of some Republican members of Congress.

Moreover, Dewey took pleasure in what his friends described as the wholehearted acceptance of his foreign-policy views by GOP leaders in and out of Congress.

Difference In Emphasis

The only difference on that issue between the two major parties, he was represented as feeling, was one of emphasis. His assistants contended that the present Administration emphasized dominance of the three great powers—the United States, Britain, and Russia—in future peace plans while Dewey stressed the importance of giving all peace-longing nations, large and small, a voice in preserving future world security.

At his press conference, Dewey talked as a man who did not seek the nomination, who put up the best fight he knew how when it was voted to him and who had no apologies to offer for the kind of campaign he had conducted.

Just before his train left the station, the Governor went out on the rear platform of his car, declaring:

"I want a breath of air. Even station air feels good."

As the train started he shouted: "So long, fellows."

HANNEGAN THANKS ALL WHO HELPED

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. — (AP) Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, expressed his gratitude at a press conference late today to all groups, political, labor and independent, which aided in yesterday's Democratic victory at the polls.

Hannegan said he had "no plans except to get home and get acquainted with my family."

Queried on the possibility he might be appointed postmaster general, Hannegan said:

"I have read such stories in the papers but we have a fine postmaster general now."

He said he would see President Roosevelt in Washington Monday or Tuesday.

Hannegan said President Roosevelt had told him in a telegram, "We did a great job."

The National committee, he added, was optimistic as to how the committee "will come out financially."

Hannegan recalled it was the first time the Democratic National committee had operated "under restrictions of the Hatch act." He said the net result of such restrictions was that they "necessarily cut down the size of the campaign."

Herbert Brownell, Jr., national Republican chairman, called him on the telephone after Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had conceded the Democratic victory this morning, Hannegan reported. He said Brownell offered his congratulations and that both he and Brownell expressed a desire for a meeting.

Hannegan said the space taken in the Biltmore hotel by the National committee would be given up immediately, but that a small suite would be retained by the State committee on the fourth floor. He added the National committee would continue to function at the Mayflower hotel in Washington.

MINOR PARTIES SWUNG N. Y.

ALP And Liberal Party Threw State To Roosevelt

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt's victory in New York State and the reelection of United States Senator Robert F. Wagner demonstrated today the vote-pulling power and political importance of two minor parties, which between them furnished the winning margins.

With 37 districts still missing, the President's vote reached 3,284,592, against 3,026,688 for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey—a 257,904 plurality. The President carried the State in 1940 by 224,400.

'40 Vote Surpassed

The State vote of 6,311,280 surpassed the 1940 record of 6,301,596.

Dewey's Republican vote in New York State exceeded President Roosevelt's on the Democratic line, just as the late Wendell L. Willkie's did in 1940. This time the minor party role was even more effective in giving the President New York's 47 electoral votes.

Two Parties Poll 800,000

The two parties—the eight-year-old American Larbor party headed by Sidney Hillman, chairman of the CIO Political Action Committee, and the six-month-old Liberal party—polled more than 800,000 votes for Mr. Roosevelt and Wagner. In 1940 the ALP, which then included the men who now are the Liberal party leaders, gave the President 417,000 votes.

LA GUARDIA 'GRATIFIED' AT ELECTION OUTCOME

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. — (AP) Mayor La Guardia said today he was "personally gratified" at the outcome of the presidential election.

"What is more gratifying is that today 130,000,000 Americans have accepted the verdict of the majority and are serenely carrying on their daily tasks with no interruption or delay in war production.

"It is a splendid demonstration of the best in democracy for the oppressed peoples of the world."

FDR SENDS MESSAGES

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 — (AP) President Roosevelt, who a Western Union spokesmen said has "the authority to modify, alter or rescind" the board of war communications' ban on congratulatory telegrams, today wired messages to political associates and opponents on the election outcome. The President sent messages to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Sen. Harry S. Truman.

Roosevelt Statement

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 8—(AP) President Roosevelt, re-elected to a fourth term in the first war-time presidential election since the civil war, said today "we have again demonstrated to the world that democracy is a living, vital force."

Presidential secretary Stephen Early distributed this statement from the president late this afternoon:

"For the first time in eighty years we have held a national election in the midst of war.

"What is really important is that after all of the changes and vicissitudes of four score years, we have again demonstrated to the world that democracy is a living, vital force, that our faith in American institutions is unshaken, that conscience and not force is the source of power in the government of man.

"To that faith let us unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace."

Early said "bundles of telegrams and messages" arrived at the president's Hyde Park estate today. "Many of them contained the phrase, isolationism is dead," he said.

Early made public this message received by the president from secretary of State Cordell Hull, now undergoing a physical checkup in a navy hospital at Washington:

"I extend my warmest felicitations on your reelection to the presidency.

"Under your wise leadership our country will rededicate itself united and strong, to the attainment of complete and speedy victory over our enemies, and to the establishment of a just and lasting peace.

"The kindest personal regards and best wishes."

Reporters asked Early if the President had received any word from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

"Not up to 5 p. m., Early replied.

The fourth-term president spent a quiet day at his Hyde Park estate. He slept until almost noon. During the afternoon he went for an automobile ride with Henry C. Hooker, his former law partner in New York. With his personal secretary, Miss Grace Tully, he worked on correspondence for a time.

Early said the president would return to Washington Friday and would go to his office almost immediately.

A small dinner and a quiet evening at home closed the president's day.

Fish Has 'No Regrets'

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Republican Representative Hamilton Fish's 26-year career in Congress was broken by defeat in yesterday's election.

Fish conceded last night that Augustus W. Bennet, who keyed his campaign on criticism of Fish's pre-Pearl Harbor record, had bested him in New York's newly constituted 29th Congressional district.

Has "No Regrets"

"I particularly wanted to be elected to serve as chairman of the Rules Committee to stop the march toward Communism and totalitarianism in America," Fish said in a statement. "I have no regrets whatever, as I waged the strongest possible fight that I knew how."

Bennet, defeated by Fish in the Republican primary, ran on the Democratic, American Labor, Liberal and Good Government tickets; Fish was indorsed by the Jeffersonian party.

Fish carried his home county, Orange, on the basis of complete unofficial returns, but ran behind in incomplete returns from Sullivan, Rockland and Delaware counties. Orange is the only holdover county from the old 26th district, which Fish represented and which was broken by reapportionment.

Roosevelt Prediction

President Roosevelt, Fish's old-time political enemy, visited part of the district Monday during his tour of Hudson Valley towns and predicted that "Fish will not be a Congressman after January."

Bennet said in a statement, "I know that much is expected of me by those who supported me, and I shall try in every possible way to be worthy of their loyalty."

MAINE, VERMONT ONLY N.E. STATES TO BACK DEWEY

BOSTON, Nov. 8 — (AP) President Roosevelt racked up 32 of New England's 40 electoral votes in yesterday's election, nearly complete returns showed tonight.

Only Maine and Vermont, normally strong Republican states, were carried by Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Boston's Mayor Maurice J. Tobin (D) scored a smashing victory over his Republican opponent, Lieut. Gov. Horace T. Cahill, to succeed Governor Leverett Saltonstall (R) who was elected by a one-sided margin to the U. S. senate.

In losing Maine and Vermont, President Roosevelt showed a loss of strength as compared with his vote four years ago.

Rep. John W. McCormack, Democratic House leader, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican floor leader, both were re-elected in their Massachusetts districts.

Besides Tobin, two other new governors were elected: Mortimer R. Proctor (R) in Vermont, and Charles M. Dale (R) in New Hampshire.

In Connecticut, Rep. Clare Booth Luce and Governor Raymond E. Baldwin survived the Democratic sweep, but Senator John A. Danaher was defeated for re-election by Brien McMahon (D), political protege of former attorney General Homer Cummings.

In New Hampshire, U. S. Senator Charles W. Tobey (R), had a close call in gaining re-election, polling fewer than 5,000 votes more than his Democratic opponent, Joseph J. Betley, a political newcomer.

U. S. Senator George W. Aiken and U. S. Representative Charles A. Plumley, both Republicans, had little trouble gaining another term in Vermont.

TOBIN ELECTED MASS. GOVERNOR

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—(AP) Massachusetts elected a Democratic governor and that party still had a chance tonight of increasing its minor office strength after giving President Roosevelt its 16 electoral votes in yesterday's election.

The Republicans elevated Gov. Leverett Saltonstall to the United States Senate, re-elected Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook and elected Robert F. Bradford, district attorney of Middlesex county, lieutenant governor.

Latest returns indicated that State Auditor Thomas J. Buckley (D) had been re-elected and John E. Hurley (D) held a commanding lead over Fred J Burrell (R) in the battle for state treasurer.

Latest available figures for state wide offices, of 1852 precincts, gave:

President—1,834 precincts, Roosevelt, 1,015,038; Dewey 932,245.

Governor—1,573 precincts, Tobin (D) 864,376; Cahill (R) 740,498.

U. S. Senator—1,328 precincts, Saltonstall (R) 859,248; Corcoran, 455,862.

Representative John W. McCormack, Democratic House Leader, and Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican floor leader, were re-elected in their districts.

Mrs. Luce Says Futile Purge Left No Malice

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP)—Representative Clare Booth Luce (R.), successful in her campaign to return to Congress from Connecticut's Fourth district despite direct aid given her opponent by President Roosevelt and Vice-President Wallace, said today "the purge that failed leaves us without rancor or malice."

Mrs. Luce, playwright and magazine writer, defeated Margaret Connors, 29-year-old Fairfield lawyer by an unofficial total of 102,070 to 99,767, in the nation's only all woman Congressional contest.

ROOSEVELT WINS

NEW HAMPSHIRE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 8—(AP) After more than 90 per cent of the ballots had been tabulated, President Roosevelt came from behind in an eleventh hour surge to win New Hampshire's four electoral votes in yesterday's election.

The final vote was Roosevelt 120,549; Dewey 110,592.

In the 1940 presidential race the President polled 125,202 votes to 110,127 for the Republican candidate, the late Wendell Willkie.

Republican Senator Charles W. Tobey gained a second term by defeating a newcomer to state-wide politics, Joseph J. Betley, Democrat, 110,472 votes to 106,960.

Mayor Charles M. Dale of Portsmouth, Republican, won the governorship over Col. James J. Powers, Democrat, now on duty with the Army Medical Corps. The vote was: Dale, 116,169; Powers, 102,433.

U. S. Rep. Merrow, Republican, was given a stiff battle for re-election in the first Congressional district by Fortunat Normandin, Democrat who kept it a close fight right to the finish. The final vote was: Merrow 57,636; Normandin, 55,444.

In the second Congressional district, Sherman Adams (R) won handily from Harry Carlson, Democrat, 52,077 to 42,880.

FDR LOSES MAINE FOR FOURTH TIME

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 8.—(AP) President Roosevelt polled more votes in losing Maine's five electoral seats for the fourth term than in any of his presidential campaigns except that of 1940.

And Governor Dewey's margin—about 15,000 in a total slightly over 294,000—was slimmer than that given any of the President's opponents except Wendell Willkie, who had a 7,500 edge in 1940's record 320,000 total.

With practically all returns in tonight, the unofficial tabulation gave Dewey 154,410 and Mr. Roosevelt 139,666.

Dewey polled about 52.5 per cent of the vote, the President 47.5 per cent.

Four years ago the final figures were: Willkie 163,951 and Roosevelt 156,478, or 51.1 and 48.8 per cent (Earl Browder, Communist, got the odd one-tenths of one per cent.)

Eleven of the state's 21 cities and 12 of 16 counties were in Dewey's column this year. In 1940, Willkie took only nine cities and 11 counties.

The city shifts were Portland, the state's metropolis, from the Republican to the Democratic list, Auburn, Calais and Saco from the Democratic to the Republican side.

NEW CONSTITUTION VOTED DOWN IN JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP) New Jersey's voters rejected a new state constitution by a margin of more than 140,000 votes yesterday.

The document was prepared by a predominantly republican legislature's committee and was bitterly attacked by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, state democratic boss.

The religious issue was brought into the campaign by Hague who said that the proposed constitution could result in taxation of church property.

Governor Walter E. Edge, a proponent of revision, accused Hague of telling the Roman Catholics that the documents would change the relationship between priests and their parishes and that it would make divorce easier. Edge said the new constitution would not change church relationships or divorce laws.

LEAD OF ROOSEVELT INCREASES IN JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 8—(AP) President Roosevelt increased his afternoon lead over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as lagging returns tonight gave him an edge of more than 25,000 votes over New York's governor.

Eleven districts out of New Jersey's 3657 were missing and between 35,000 and 40,000 servicemen's ballots still were to be tabulated.

The latest tabulation gave the President 967,617 and Dewey 941,819 in a combined count of military and civilian ballots.

The recorded military vote so far gave 76,809 to Roosevelt and 50,697 for Dewey, which favors the President by more than 26,000, and leaves the total civilian vote practically even.

ROOSEVELT'S MARGIN 11,000 IN DELAWARE

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 8. — (AP) Delaware voters split their ticket and with only one district still to report assured President Roosevelt three electoral votes, re-elected Republican Gov. Walter W. Bacon and defeated incumbent Republican Representative Earle E. Willey.

Other than the governorship, Democrats made a clean sweep of the state—save for one Republican coroner elected in New Castle county.

Returns—including soldier votes—from 249 of the 250 precincts gave Mr. Roosevelt, with 66,901, an 11,485 edge over Governor Dewey. Dr. Philip A. Tryanor unseated Representative Willey, 62,284 to 59,177. Governor Bacon polled 63,183 votes to 61,405 for Lt. Gov. Isaac J. MacCollum.

PRESIDENT CARRIES WEST VA. BY 70,000

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 8. —(AP) West Virginia added up the odds and ends of its 1944 election tonight with President Roosevelt secure in a 70,000 vote majority and a lone Republican among the major office seekers.

Although the majorities of the President and newly elected governor, Judge Clarence W. Meadows, did not reach the levels of 1940, they were heavy enough to virtually wipe out Republican gains of two years ago.

Representative Hubert S. Ellis of the Fourth district appeared to be the sole Republican winner. With only a few scattered precincts to report, he held a slight margin over E. B. Pennybaker of Parkersburg.

TRUMAN WILL RETURN TO WASHINGTON SOON

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 8. — (AP) Senator Harry S. Truman spent most of today receiving friends and reading congratulatory messages upon his election as Vice-President, then made plans to return to Washington Sunday to resume his senatorial duties.

The senator arose at 6:30 a. m. today, with less than three hours sleep, when the congratulatory telegrams and telephones began pouring into his penthouse apartment at a downtown hotel. Included in the stacks of messages was one from the President. It read:

"I am very happy that things have gone so well. My thanks and congratulations for your splendid cooperation. I will see you very soon. Roosevelt."

Later the Vice-President telephoned the President to congratulate and thank him for his message.

REPUBLICANS GAIN VOTES IN SOUTH

ATLANTA, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Voters in the Solid South gave a hearty endorsement to a fourth term for President Roosevelt in Tuesday's election but the Republican vote in several states was larger than four years ago.

Republicans nearly doubled their voting strength of 1940 in Georgia, giving 44,687 votes to Thomas E. Dewey compared with 23,932 for Wendell Willkie. Dewey's vote in Tennessee, on the basis of nearly complete, unofficial returns, exceeded that given any Republican candidate except on two occasions since the Civil war. Incomplete returns indicated Dewey would poll a larger vote in Louisiana than did Willkie.

Pre-campaign opposition to Roosevelt in Texas, Mississippi and South Carolina was buried under an avalanche of votes for Roosevelt. The President piled up nearly a five to one lead in Texas and nearly a 14 to one in Mississippi. Revolters failed to attract a large following in South Carolina. Alabama and Arkansas were heavily in the Roosevelt colmn.

Republicans fared better in Virginia, North Carolina and Flordia. Roosevelt's popular vote in Florida was 69 per cent compared with 74 in 1940.

DEMOCRATS CARRY GOVERNORSHIP IN LATE OHIO SURGE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8.—(AP) A flood of votes out of northern Ohio's industrial area propelled a Democrat into the governorship today, sliced to a small margin a once-heavy lead held by the Republican national ticket in the state, and for a time threatened U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft's bid for reelection.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche, a touseled haired, smiling man of 48 overcame a lead built up by Republican Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati and rode into office on a majority approaching 100,000. He bore the endorsement of the C.I.O.-Political Action committee.

Returns from 9,061 of 9,306 polling places gave Lausche 1,529,754, Stewart 1,444,546.

The flooding of votes that put Lausche across bit deep into a large lead that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey held all last night for the national Republican ticket, and cut to a slender margin the once-large advantage that Taft, Republican, held over William G. Pickrel, Dayton Democrat.

On the basis of nearly complete returns, however, it appeared that both the Republican ticket and Taft would squeeze through.

Returns from 9,123 polling places out of 9,306 gave Dewey 1,547,081, Roosevelt 1,525,842.

In the senatorial race, 9,081 polling places gave Taft 1,448,364 and Pickrel 1,424,059.

The Democrats increased their representation in the national House from three to five members.

Lausche will be the first Democrat to take over the statehouse since Gov. John W. Bricker defeated Martin L. Davey in 1938 and began the first of three two-year terms. Bricker passed up seeking a fourth term to seek the presidency, and emerged as Dewey's running mate.

GOV. GREEN WINS IN ILLINOIS VOTE

Chicago, Nov. 8—(AP) Republican Gov. Dwight H. Green retained his job as the chief executive of Illinois today, while the state gave its 28 electoral votes to President Roosevelt for the fourth time in a row and sent Democratic Senator Scott W. Lucas back to Washington for his second term.

Those were the highlights of the election in the nation's third most populous state, as the virtually completed count of ballots pointed up these other results:

Democrats gained four seats in Congress by ousting Republican Representatives Dewey and Busbey in the Chicago area and Calvin Johnson, downstate, and removing Stephen A. Day from the congress-at-large position.

Emily Taft Douglas, Democratic wife of Marine Corps Capt. Paul Douglas and daughter of the late sculptor, Lorado Taft, defeated Day. She termed him an "isolationist and obstructionist" from the campaign platform.

Governor Green trailed his Democratic challenger, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, until breakfast time today, and then moved out ahead. His edge was 65,000 compared to his 256,945 plurality four years ago.

President Roosevelt's advantage was 145,000 against 102,694 in 1940.

Senator Lucas, bested Republican Richard J. Lyons, a New Deal critic. The senator's margin was 210,000 compared with 95,588 in 1928.

The total vote topped the 4,000,000 mark for the second time in the state's history. It was particularly heavy in the Democratic stronghold of Cook county (Chicago), where it was figured at 2,209,802, a record.

The tremendous turnout in Chicago proved the turning point in the contests won by the Democrats, who compiled huge totals there while running behind the Republicans downstate.

NYE DEFEATED IN SENATE RACE

FARGO, N. D., Nov. 8—(AP) Senator Gerald P. Nye and Congressman Usher L. Burdick will be among the missing when the new Congress convenes in January.

Both today conceded defeat in North Dakota's general election, Nye to three-time Gov. John Moses, the first Democrat to be elected to the Senate from North Dakota by popular vote, and Burdick to Congressman William Lemke and former Congressman Charles R. Robertson, both G.O.P. Nominees. Burdick ran as an independent after losing the Republican senatorial nomination in the June 27 primary.

Replacing Gov. Moses at the helm of the state, meanwhile, will be a Republican, Fred G. Aandahl, Barnes county farmer, to whom both his Democratic and Independent candidate opponents conceded his election to the governorship today.

With 1,099 of the state's precincts reported, Moses had 58,867 for the senatorship as compared to 40,184 for Nye.

REX BELL DEFEATED

RENO, Nev., Nov. 8 — (AP) Berkeley Bunker, a young Mormon bishop running on the democratic ticket, defeated Rex Bell, cattle-rancher husband of former film actress Clara Bow, in the race for representative-at-large from Nevada.

Incomplete returns from Tuesday's balloting gave Bunker 30,997 votes and Bell, a republican, 18,355.

The victory gives Bunker his second trip to Congress. He served by appointment the unfinished term of the late Senator Key Pittman.

Bell, film cowboy of two decades ago, operates a large cattle ranch at Searchlight, Nev. Miss Bow in the 1920's was among the foremost of the motion picture stars. She was known as the "It" girl.

SPEAKER RAYBURN HAILS VICTORY OF FDR

DENISON, Texas, Nov. 8.—(AP) Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) today hailed the election outcome as "an overwhelming and gratifying victory that will have a stabilizing effect throughout the world."

"Now the four great leaders can go ahead with plans for another four years of war and peace," he asserted.

Rayburn asserted he was happy especially with the increase of Democratic control of the House by 40 votes. He had predicted a gain of from 25 to 40.

Foreign Views On Election

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Provisional Government, sent his congratulations today to President Roosevelt and added, "My entire sympathy is with you in the very great tasks which await you after those you have so magnificently fulfilled."

Praise From Uruguay

Montevideo, Nov. 8 (AP)—Foreign Minister Jose Serrato said today that Uruguayans welcomed President Roosevelt's reelection, adding:

"I am sure that if Uruguyans had voted in the United States elections they would have supported Mr. Roosevelt to the last man" because of the good-neighbor policy, "an honorable, humane, democratic policy that entailed deep understanding of the aspirations of the Latin-American peoples."

Greek Papers Applaud

Athens, Nov. 8 (AP)—Athens newspapers gave much of their very limited space today to news of the reelection of President Roosevelt.

Typical of comment was that in Anexartissia: "We admire Roosevelt not only as a pioneer of freedom but also as a man who did much to alleviate the distress of the starving Greek population. We also believe he will do everything to help our cause."

Swedish Prediction

Stockholm, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt's victory "will be greeted with the greatest satisfaction," Aftonbladet said today.

Cuban Congratulations

Havana, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Cuban House of Representatives approved a formal resolution of congratulations today on the reelection of President Roosevelt.

Madame Chiang Wires

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek, here recovering from an illness, today told President Roosevelt in a telegram that the American people, in reelecting him, were "but expressing in their way what every people in every land feels regarding your vision and passionate concern for the common men."

From Naziland—Phooey

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The German Foreign Office, commenting on President Roosevelt's reelection, said "it is superfluous to comment on the result. The situation in Germany is clear. Roosevelt is the declared enemy of the German people."

The Berlin broadcast added that the results of balloting for seats in Congress showed "a tendency to depart from isolationist principles and a stronger tendency of interventionism in European affairs. We shall have to take this fact into future considerations."

Another German broadcast, seeking a propaganda twist to the election results, said the key to the Administration's foreign policy "remains the victorious end of the war against Japan" and asserted: "Roosevelt's leading motive is to avoid everything that may displease the Kremlin. He is even ready to sell his Chinese allies to the Bolshevists" to get Russia into the Pacific war.

FOREIGN PRESS PRAISES VICTORY OF FDR FORCES

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foreign comment, both enemy and Allied, yesterday (Wed.) treated the reelection of President Roosevelt as a victory for internationalism in the United States.

The British press, anticipating a conference in the near future among Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, said the election results should strengthen Roosevelt's hand in such deliberations.

Dispatches from London said the British "man in the street", diplomats and the press all were relieved at the results, not because they disliked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey but because they knew where Roosevelt stood.

The German foreign office quoted in a Berlin broadcast, said the election results showed "a tendency to depart from isolationist principles and a stronger tendency to interventionism in European affairs. We shall have to take this fact into future considerations."

Election Surprises Japs

Tokyo propagandists, in broadcasts recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, declared it made no difference to the Japanese which candidate won and implied surprise that Americans should take time out in the midst of a "decisive war" to select a new president.

Russia, frankly favoring Roosevelt's reelection, greeted the result with elation, the Soviets having been chilly toward campaign discussion of the "Communist danger" within America and fearful that a change of presidents would have temporarily weakened Allied cooperation.

Other reactions in summary:

France: Assembly members interpreted the outcome as a guarantee of American participation in a World peace organization.

Italy: Rome press greeted the election as endorsement of the President's international policies.

China: Chungking was described as happy at Roosevelt's success.

Sweden: the once pro-German paper Aftonbladet, said Roosevelt's victory would be "greeted with the greatest satisfaction throughout the world."

Greece: Curtailed Athens papers gave much of their space to the election, with admiring comments on the President.

Brazil: most papers described the result as a triumph for maintenance of American internationalism.

Cuba: papers in Havana said "We consider Roosevelt's triumph as our very own."

Bermuda: general satisfaction was expressed by this British colony.

U.S. troops in Italy: interviews or quotations forbidden, but the Stars and Stripes banner lined the results.

U.S. troops on the western front: relaxation of previous strict prohibition against questioning troops on the election brought generally favorable comment on Roosevelt's victory although front-line troops still showed no great interest.

British second army in Holland: Tremendous British and Dutch interest displayed but American troops on that front were described as primarily interested in the outcome of various bets.

Varied Interest At Front

With the British Second Army in Holland, Nov. 8 (AP)—The United States Presidential election evoked tremendous interest on this front among both British troops and Dutch civilians, but Americans in this sector just couldn't be bothered.

A survey among American soldiers attached to the British Second Army disclosed that their greatest interest centered on its betting possibilities. There was some disappointment that Roosevelt had triumphed so handily that the soldier vote would not settle the issue.

Asked whether there had been much conversation about the Presidential race, Sergt. Karl Theis, of East St. Louis, Ill., replied, "Ninety-nine per cent. of the talk is about women and the rest is devoted to getting the war over with."

Americans in Reich Glad About Result; Those in Front Lines Happy Vote Is Over

WITH UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY in Germany, Nov. 8 (AP)—With the Presidential election decided, the strict Army censorship that has prevented any sort of poll or questioning of the troops on its political aspects was relaxed today.

In the areas around Aachen the soldiers discussed the election, many of them expressing approval of President Roosevelt's re-election.

Pfc. Dick Jamison of Omaha, Neb., listened to radio reports of Mr. Roosevelt's victory, and said: "Well, I'm glad to see they left the old boy in office."

Up in the front lines there was not a great deal of interest, because those men are fighting for their lives. But one sergeant drawled:

"Well, I'm glad the election is over. Maybe now the people will remember we have a little war on over here that we think is important."

In battered Aachen a group of soldiers discussed the election.

Lieut. Robert A. Latchaw of Martinez, Calif., grinned and said:

"My dad probably will be sore about the results, but I'm glad it came out that way."

Staff Sgt. Glenn Faus of Williamsport, Pa., declared "I'm mighty glad the people kept the President in office," and Pvt. Russel Miller of Elkhart, Ind., said, "I knew they'd never turn the President out of office at a time like this."

It was not unanimous, however, for there were some who were disappointed that Governor Thomas E. Dewey failed to make the grade.

Political Leaflets

With American Forces in Germany, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Germans took note of the United States Presidential election yesterday by bombarding American lines in this sector with shells containing propaganda leaflets bearing the slogan:

"Jews govern, suckers fight;
"Vote for Roosevelt's Hebrew might."

Moscow Elated.

Moscow, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—Early election bulletins showing President Roosevelt leading were received with elation in the Soviet Union early today. The Russians had frankly favored his re-election.

Gov. Dewey was regarded here as compromised by the support of anti-Soviet factions in the United States. His utterances concerning the "communist danger" within the United States created a chilly atmosphere among Russian observers.

Session Held Certain

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—A new grand-scale conference of the Big Three before Christmas was regarded in diplomatic quarters today as an almost certain follow-up to President Roosevelt's reelection.

It was believed highly probable that the conference would be preceded by a meeting in Paris by Mr. Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

It's FDR Again, GIs Told

Rome, Nov. 8 (AP)—Stars And Stripes, the United States soldier's newspaper, bannered today "It's F. D. R. Again" and devoted its first three pages to the election. Army public relations officers notified correspondents the War Department had ruled that soldiers could not be interviewed or quoted on political aspects of the election.

LONDON HAILS FOURTH TERM

U.S. Election Results Called Win-the-peace Mandate.

London, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—London's three evening newspapers all bannerlined President Roosevelt's re-election, and editorials hailed the result.

"Above all," said the London Star editorially, "he has now authority to act, without fear of electorial contradiction, in the setting up of the World Security Council. He can meet Mr. Churchill and Marshal Stalin again backed by a terrific vote of confidence to win the war outright—and the peace."

The Evening Standard said: "The triumvirate whom all the world regard as the supreme architects of victory face future tasks every whit as colossal and inspiring as the grim conduct of the war."

The Evening News, saying that Britain had kept its lips sealed in an attitude of elaborate impartiality during the campaign, observed.

"It would be hypocritical to pretend that President Roosevelt did not have our friendly, if unspoken wishes in the fight."

"America will hit even harder now that all her belligerency can be used for export," the News declared.

Acclaimed in Belfast.

Belfast, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—The Belfast telegraph said today that President Roosevelt's re-election "is heartily acclaimed outside his own country."

"In the final crisis of the greatest war in history, which is still to be won in the west and east, his removal from office would have been unfortunate and upsetting. For these reasons, Allied peoples will openly rejoice that he has re-established himself as the leader of American liberalism and as one of the great architects of the world's future."

Russians Win In U. S.: Nazis

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The American people must "bear the consequences of Roosevelt's reelection," which surprised no one, the Berlin radio said today.

"Roosevelt's leading motive is to avoid everything that may displease the Kremlin, and he is even willing to deliver his Chungking Chinese ally into the hands of Communism," the official DNB agency commented. "This servile attitude was rewarded by Moscow with support of Roosevelt's reelection.

"The American people will be burdened with very great sacrifices in view of Roosevelt's well-known tendency to stake all on one single card without remembering former election promsies. Europe will answer Roosevelt's reelection by doubling its efforts to frustrate eastern Communism and western capitalism."

Japan War Called Hinge

Berlin asserted that "victorious termination of the war against Japan is and will remain the hinge around which Washington's foreign policy revolves."

"Everything is subjected to this aim with the hope that the Soviet Union still will be persuaded into the war against Japan, or at least that the Soviet Union might grant bases in Siberia for the war against Japan. Japan will know how to reply to somebody who was induced, by a press campaign only, to send back a letter-opener made out of bones of dead Japanese soldiers."

"The large number of votes received by Dewey testify to the fact that Roosevelt's policy is worrying wide circles of the American people," said the German broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

A majority of the voters seem to have felt that the responsibility for a change in political and military leadership of the country in the present crucial stage of the war was too heavy a burden."

Chungking Pleased

Chungking, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt's reelection put Chungking in a happy mood today despite the worsening South China military situation. The news spread quickly throughout the capital and burdened its meager telephone system.

Australians Approve.

Melbourne, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's re-election appeared to win unanimous approval in Australia today.

Australians were primarily interested in the international aspects of the campaign, and the press had said repeatedly that Mr. Roosevelt's re-election was essential for the solution of post-war problems.

Pinero, Of Puerto Rico, Defeats Colonel Font

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 8 (AP)—Jesus T. Pinero of the Populare party was elected yesterday as Puerto Rico's resident commissioner in Washington, defeating Col. Manuel Font. The incumbent, Socialist Bolivar Pagan, did not run. The Populare (Popular Democratic) party won most of the island Legislature's seats.

The national Democratic and Republican parties as such do not function here.

AP's Global Vote Data

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Associated Press World Service kept cable lines and wireless channels busy with an unprecedented volume of election news being distributed to foreign countries.

Never before had other nations displayed such intense interest in the outcome of a national election in the United States.

The vast AP election service was lashed constantly to London, Paris, Stockholm and to AP's many subscribing newspapers in Latin America.

Extra members of the World Service staff were on duty in New York and Washington.

For Decisive Blow at Reich

LONDON, Nov. 8.—(AP) Russian armies were moving into position tonight for the blows described by Premier Stalin as "the decisive offensive against the vital centers of Germany."

The massing of men and materials along the eastern front has brought a lull in the fighting, and for the third consecutive day the Soviet communique said only that there were "no essential changes at the front."

Already, however, the flames of new great battles were flickering in strategic sectors, and the Berlin radio said, "if one can speak of comparative calm on the Eastern front, it is certainly the calm before the storm."

Premier Stalin, in his order of the day for Tuesday, 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution, asserted, "the Red army and people are ready to strike new blows at the enemy.

One of the first of the new blows may be struck at Budapest, under close siege by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army tonight and in increasing danger of being surrounded.

Berlin reported new concentration of Soviet tanks in the outskirts of the Hungarian capital, while a German military commentator stated the Russians had attacked from Tisza river bridgeheads north of Szolnok and succeeded in advancing toward Budapest from the east.

Another quick advance along the Danube river valley north of Budapest was reported by the Morocco radio in a broadcast heard in London.

Heavy rains have interfered with operations southeast of Budapest for four days.

Revolt in Budapest?

Stories of open revolt inside Budapest continued to come from European radios. The Paris station said street fighting took place in the Pest section of the city on the East bank of the Danube and that some Hungarian soldiers and workers joined the Russian forces. Quoting neutral correspondents, the Brussels radio stated Soviet artillery had been installed in Pest. There was no indication from Moscow, however, that Soviet troops actually were inside the capital.

The Germans have described heavy Soviet troop movements in southern Poland west of the Vistula, saying an offensive soon will be aimed toward Krakow.

Another front where heavy new blows may soon be struck stretched from Tukums southwest to the Baltic port of Liepaja in western Latvia. West of this line the Russians have more than 30 German divisions trapped.

The Germans contended tonight the first stage of this battle had ended in a defensive victory for the cut and beaten northern army corps, which they said warded off blows of 60 infantry divisions and 18 tank divisions—an astounding number of men, probably in excess of 700,000.

Moscow dispatches said the Red airforce was joining the battle of Annihilation. The Germans are cut off from East Prussia by a barrier driven to the sea by Soviet troops north of Memel and south of Liepaja. Those who escape must get out by ship from Liepaja and Ventspils, or by air.

East Prussia also was expected to be a theater of violent battle this winter.

Guns Duel In East Prussia

A supplement to the Russian communique said artillery and machine-gun duels occurred in East Prussia during the day and that Germans who tried to cross the Niemen river in motor boats near Tilsit were mowed down and two boats were sunk.

More than 200 Germans also were killed as the Red army repulsed a series of Nazi attacks near Pulutsk, north of Warsaw. Four German tanks were knocked out.

Another 150 Germans were killed in a Soviet attack that siezed a favorable position west of Uzhorod in Czechoslovakia, the supplement said, while south of Budapest an enemy attempt to land on the east bank of the Danube near Baja was "luquidated," with "hundreds of dead German officers and men left on the river bank."

where for the past two days Moscow has announced there have been no essential changes.

Torrential rains hindered Red army troops jabbing at the outskirts of Budapest. The Russians were moving infantrymen into the front lines beside their tanks, while Soviet artillery plumped shells into the city.

Drive For Tarnow Predicted

Berlin said the Russians were preparing for a new large-scale attack toward Tarnow in southwest Poland from the Soviet bridgehead on the west side of the Vistula river. The Nazis declared the Russians have been withdrawing mechanized formations from the East Beskids area of the Polish-Czechoslovakia border to reinforce assault divisions, and "the early beginning of a big battle is assumed."

Ultimate aim of an offensive in this direction would be a penetration of German Silesia.

Soviet troops in northeastern Hungary have pushed two new bridgeheads across the Tisza river 75 and 125 miles above Budapest, the Germans admitted.

Reconnaisance In E. Prussia

A supplement to the broadcast Soviet communique said a reconnaissance in force was carried out in East Prussia, and that 600 Germans were killed in East Prussia and eastern Czechoslovakia.

The Budapest radio said Russian troops were repulsed in an attempted landing on 30-miles-long Csepel Island in the Danube river, but admitted a landing was effected on a near-by smaller island. Csepel Island reaches into Budapest's precincts.

Budapest Radio Tells Of Soviet Tanks In City

Bern, Switzerland, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Budapest radio, as heard here tonight, called upon the inhabitants of the Hungarian capital to remain calm and not lose faith "just because one or two Russian tanks have penetrated into the city."

The speaker assured his listeners that Hungarian counterattacks southeast of Budapest had gained ground and claimed the Russian bridgehead at Tisza-Lok had been broken and 10,000 prisoners had been taken with 675 tanks destroyed or damaged.

He declared Russian efforts to enter Budapest from the south had been repulsed after weeks of fighting during which the Russians had reached the southern fringe of the city.

NORSE REGULARS BATTLING NAZIS

Norwegian Army regulars are now fighting alongside the Russian Army against the Germans in Norway, Foreign Minister Trygve Lie of the Royal Norwegian Government declared in a broadcast from Moscow reported by the Norwegian Information Service in New York today.

NAZI OIL CENTERS SMASHED BY BOMBS

Fortresses and Liberators Over Reich Meet Little Opposition.

LONDON, Nov. 8 — (AP) Allied heavy bombers hit twice today at Nazi oil production.

An American force of more than 350 Fortresses and Liberators, accompanied by more than 850 fighter planes spoiling for a fight, went back to the Merseburg area and bombed the Leuna synthetic oil works. They encountered neither strong enemy fighter opposition nor heavy flak.

Five bombers and 42 fighters did not return, a communique said.

R.A.F. Lancasters concentrated a load of bombs on the synthetic oil plant at Homberg, in the Ruhr, and left great clouds of smoke hiding the factory. They met no enemy fighters, but anti-aircraft fire was intense.

Both Merseburg, about 100 miles southwest of Berlin, and Homberg were attacked last Thursday.

The R.A.F. assault was designed to interrupt repair work on the Homberg plant, which had a normal capacity of about 16,000 tons a month. A clear patch over the target allowed visual bombing.

The raiding fighters fanned out on strafing tours in the Merseburg, Brunswick, Halle and Hannover areas that accounted for at least 60 locomotives, 90 railway cars, 16 motor vehicles and four barges.

NAZI OIL PLANT HIT BY U. S. BOMBERS

London, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—A force of 350 American heavy bombers, guarded by 850 fighters, flew deep into central Germany today and attacked a synthetic oil plant at Merseburg, while British Lancasters carried out a daylight attack on another Nazi synthetic oil plant at Homberg in the Ruhr.

A large railway [illegible] at Goch, just across the Dutch frontier, southeast of Nijmegen, and an oil storage tank and railway sheds at Emmerich were smashed by Rocket-firing Typhoons of the Royal Air Force, and the Air Ministry disclosed that R. A. F. Lancasters had again drained the Dortmund-Ems Canal, Germany's most important inland waterway, last Saturday. The canal was hit at exactly the same point—where it divides into two branches—as on September 23.

Nazis Claim New V-2 Rocket Is Bombarding London Area

LONDON, Nov. 8—(AP) The German high command declared today that the London area was under bombardment by the vengeance weapon V-2, reported to be a long-range rocket which propels a ton or more of explosives over a 50-mile high trajectory at 700 miles an hour.

Neutral sources have said the enemy also intended to use the weapon against New York.

The announcement was the opening paragraph of the daily communique broadcast from Berlin.

"The area of greater London has been under fire by the V-1 (robot bombs) since June 15 with short interruptions and in varying strength," said the Nazi announcement.

"The fire has been intensified for some weeks past by the use of a second and far more effective explosive missile, V-2."

The possibility of robot bomb attacks on the United States was acknowledged by the War and Navy department at Washington yesterday.

These bombs might be launched by submarines or catapult plane carriers lying offshore, a joint statement said, or from one-way sacrifice flights by long-range bombers controlled across the Atlantic by submarines.

(British censorship apparently forbade any direct comment on the German announcement as to whether the V-2 missiles were doing any damage).

German propagandists filled the air tonight with boasts that the V-2 is more devastating than the V-1 flying bomb, and suggested it would be fired at targets other than the British isles.

The Transocean News Agency chief, Georg Schroeder, said the new missile "can neither be seen nor heard before it explodes" and its explosion "causes an enormous blast." Schroeder made these claims of V-2 damage in London:

"The Euston Railway station in London was completely destroyed in mid-October. Camberwell, a London suburb, was badly hit, with whole rows of houses demolished. A railway bridge in southern London was completely destroyed, and these are only the first reports of the effect of V-2."

The German official news agency DNB told the German people in a home news broadcast that "it is clear from the British press that the problem of the newly-developed German weapons is becoming increasingly urgent. Naturally, no reports of the technical details of the V-2 are available at present."

DNB said "the British government has again postponed the return of evacuees to London in the face of the new danger."

The Germans offered no description of their reported new weapon of hate, but this was not lacking from neutral sources. Associated Press War Correspondent Austin Bealmear, quoting U. S. Third Army sources, wrote Sept. 29 from "Somewhere in France":

"The latest of the Germans' vengeance weapons is a 14-ton projectile with an explosive radius of three kilometers (1.8 miles). Information on V-3 (Bealmear unquestionably meant V-2) was obtained by the American Third Army troops' drive into Germany."

Weighs 14 Tons

According to this information, the projectile is 20 yards long, five and a half feet in diameter and weighs 14 tons at the take-off.

"It is propelled by a mixture of liquid air and alcohol and is shot into the air vertically," Bealmear

Swedish reports have described V-2 as a "flying telegraph pole" with tail fins like an ordinary bomb. Some 50 feet long, it was said to have a comet's tail behind it and travel faster than sound, so that it strikes before it is heard."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, British minister, warned last week that the people of the United Kingdom must be prepared for attacks by "weapons militarily less futile than the flying bomb."

"We are watching them," he said of the Germans. "They will not take us by surprise."

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet declared the German command's announcement "means that V-2 is definitely out of the experimental stage and will be used against London to its full."

A threat of still more "surprises" from the Germans was broadcast by the German-controlled Budapest radio.

"The German high command will show that it has many such cards up its sleeve and the enemies of Germany and Hungary may find many a surprise," it said.

The Nazis used buzz bombs as leaflet distributors over England this week, the propaganda sheets saying that "bombs now burst on England and nobody knows where they come from."

V-2 In Use, Nazis Say

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—The German high command announced today that London had been under bombardment by a new secret weapon, V-2, "for some weeks."

The Berlin broadcast of the German communique said "a new weapon, much more effective," than the V-1 flying bomb has been launched against the British capital.

The V-2 has been described in dispatches from Stockholm as a missile resembling a "flying telephone pole" with a range of more than 250 miles. The weapon, according to Stockholm reports, is said to have possibilities of being developed into a rocket bomb capable of spanning the Atlantic.

Commons Told Nazis Leave Ruin In Retreat

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, reporting on his journeys after the Moscow conference, told Commons today the Germans were systematically destroying everything in withdrawing toward Germany.

"The purpose of this systematic barbarity is to bring to a standstill the whole life of a nation," he said. "That is what the Germans told the Greeks they would do as they left.

"All communications, all bridges, all telegraphs are destroyed. All means of transport, lorries and even in many instances pack animals, are removed. All harbors are mined, blocked and blown up."

RADIO GHOST VOICE MOCKS NAZI REGIME

LONDON, Nov. 8—(AP)—The German radio announced tonight that "because of Germany's total mobilization" the annual Nazi party celebration at Munich of the abortive 1923 Munich Beer Hall Putsch would not be held tonight as usual but "will take place at a later date." Date of the postponement was not given.

Thus it appeared that for the first time Adolf Hitler would let this greatest of Nazi party holidays pass without making his usual speech.

Earlier in the day neutral correspondents in Berlin cabled that they had been informed the party expected Hitler to speak.

When he had not gone on the air by 8 p.m. (3 p.m., EWT), a ghost voice interrupted the German program, asking, "why doesn't Hitler speak? Why does the Fuehrer keep silent? What is the matter with Hitler?"

Hitler has been absent from the microphone since July 21, when he made a brief broadcast telling his following that he was safe after the bomb attempt on his life.

Iran Prevents Unionists Observing Soviet Event

London, Nov. 8 (AP) — Iranian trade unionists who planned to hold a mass meeting in Teheran to celebrate the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution were arrested today by military authorities, the Moscow radio reported.

The incident added a chill to the relations between the Soviet Government and that of Iranian Premier Mohamed Saed, already strained by Saed's refusal to grant the Russians oil concessions in Iran before the end of the war.

In a broadcast recorded in London by the Soviet monitor, the Moscow radio said the quarters of the Teheran trade unions were occupied by detachments of troops and police despite protests by several members of the Parliament and that all representatives of unions and social organizations found in the buildings were jailed.

Otto Hopes for Throne

Archduke Reported Encouraging Negotiations With Austrians

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP).—Archduke Otto, pretender to the Austrian throne, was described today by a source close to his family as entertaining high hopes of returning to Vienna and a position of leadership. It was learned that the Archduke, who recently arrived in Lisbon from the United States, has decided against coming to London.

The Archduke was reported to have cabled his brother, Archduke Robert, who is in London, to join him in Lisbon. Otto is understood to have told Robert that he could carry on negotiations with his countrymen, looking to a possible restoration of the monarchy in Austria better in Lisbon than in the United States.

German General Killed

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—The DNB agency reported tonight that Gen. Arthur Phleps, former commander of the Prince Eugen SS. (Elite Guard) Division, had died "a hero's death in the battles in the southeast."

FOR ANGLO-U. S. TRADE

London, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—C. R. Attlee, the Deputy Prime Minister, told a group of British industrial and business leaders today that British and American cooperation should maintain in peace the civilization it saved in the war. He denounced economic isolation as just as dangerous for the world as political isolation.

He spoke at a luncheon which heard a trade survey calling in part for the cancellation of British-owned lend-lease balances after the war.

Mr. Atlee said that only expansion of export trade by one nation did not necessarily mean its contraction by another.

Philip Reed, head of the American Mission for Economic Affairs here, said that the world must accept the idea of economic interdependence, removing national barriers as a condition for bettering general welfare.

British Trade Leaders Give Lend-Lease Views

Slight Majority Opposes Debt Payments After War

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP).—A trade survey disclosed today that a slight majority of British business leaders answering it favored cancellation of any British-owed lend-lease balances after the war and approved negotiation of export sphere pacts with American traders.

The survey was conducted by Harold Whitehead and Staff, Ltd., a firm of industrial consultants who sent questionnaires to heads of 496 British companies, of whom 169 replied. Whitehead, a native of England, was for many years professor and head of the department of sales relations at Boston Pniversity's College of Business Administration.

His questionnaire found that 51 per cent of those answering felt that any net debt owed by Britain to the United States on lend-lease account should be totally canceled, but that 25 per cent were prepared to consider repayment in whole or in part by means of goods.

Sixty per cent favored some kind of general post-war arrangement with the United States regarding export market spheres. Fifty-one per cent wanted pacts at least in their own lines. Fifty-nine per cent suggested arrangements regarding sources of raw materials.

Cut Cigarette Ration For A. E. F. in Britain

London, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—Weekly cigarette rations for American troops stationed in England will be cut from seven to five packs beginning on Monday, the Army announced today. The order is expected to assure more for the front line troops.

Unlucky Fridays

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, Nov. 8 (AP)—Friday is an unlucky day for 44-year-old Seaman Tommy Scraggs. These things have happened to him since 1916—always on Friday; one ship he sailed on was sunk by mines, three went aground, three collided with other ships, one with an iceburg, and three were sunk by torpedo.

Poles Make Gain In Forli Sector

Rome, Nov. 8 (AP)—Polish troops "continue to make good progress" south of Forli near the eastern end of the Italian battle front, the Allied command announced today, but Germans still clung to shattered buildings on the Forli airfield.

The Germans held on at the airfield, two miles southeast of Forli, in the face of persistent bombing by the Desert Air Force and a sharp attack by medium bombers yesterday on German positions closer to the town. Near Forli British troops remained in close contact under heavy enemy shelling.

Weather Spurs Action

With improving weather Eighth Army troops were increasingly active all along the front. Polish troops in the hills between the Rabbi and Montone rivers south of the Rimini-Bologna highway captured Monte Casaluda and several other dominating features. They were in contact with the Germans about five miles southwest of Forli.

Farther west, San Rufillo, on Highway 67 running southwest of Forli, was cleared of the enemy and forward troops pushed up the road a mile toward Dovadola, about ten miles from Forli.

Fifth Army units generally confined their activity to vigorous patrolling, although in the extreme west Negro troops of the 92d Infantry Division followed up a slight German withdrawal.

Africa Landing Anniversary

General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean theater, declared today in an order marking the second anniversary of the Allied landing in North Africa, that "the importance of our share in the war in Europe is as great as ever and will remain so until the end."

He praised the Allied troops for their "great victories" and told them that "victory is certain; let us see to it that it is not long delayed."

'Italy Victory Certain'

Rome, Nov. 8 (AP)—General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, commander in chief of Allied forces in the Mediterranean, told his troops in Italy today victory was certain and urged: "Let us see to it that it is not long delayed."

In an order of the day on the second anniversary of the landings in North Africa, he praised the Allied troops for "great victories."

An Allied headquarters communique disclosed that Polish troops of the Eighth Army captured Monte Casaluda and progressed in the high country between the Rabbi and Montone rivers south of Forli.

U. S. Bombers Active

Activity elsewhere on the Italian front was restricted to patrolling, the communique added.

Escorted heavy bombers of the United States 15th Army Air Force, "in great strength," bombed bridges and rail targets in northern Italy and troop concentrations in Yugoslavia. Fighters bombed and strafed targets in southern Yugoslavia, and RAF medium and heavy bombers hit rail yards in Serbia.

Troop concentrations and bridges in northern Italy were hammered also by Tactical Air Force medium bombers.

15th A. F. Blasts Yugoslav Escape Routes and Brenner Pass

ROME, Nov. 8 (AP).—American 15th Air Force Liberators attacked enemy troop concentrations along the escape routes through Yugoslavia from Greece today for the second successive day.

B-25 Mitchells continued attacks on the Brenner Pass railway line in northern Italy, and Thunderbolts were reported to have taken a heavy toll of enemy transport in the Bologna and Vernona areas in day-long assaults.

Nazis Lost 11,200 Planes

ROME, Nov. 8 (AP).—Two years of areial warfare in the Mediterranean area have cost the Germans 11,200 planes and left their air force impotent in the war in southern European, the Allied air command announced today.

TWO CONFESS MOYNE KILLING

Jewish Prisoners Acted For Nationalistic Stern Group

Cairo, Nov. 8 (AP)—Police announced today that two Jewish prisoners had confessed they assassinated Lord Moyne, British Minister of State resident in the Middle East, on orders from the Stern group of extreme Jewish nationalists.

The confessions were obtained, it was announced, after 36 hours of questioning by members of the British Palestine Police, who flew here for the continuing inquiry.

Meanwhile an elaborate military funeral was held for Lord Moyne and his chauffeur, Lance Corporal Fuller, who were shot dead two days ago as they drove up to the minister's residence here.

Rabbi Among Mourners

The Grand Rabbi of Egypt and the vice-president of the Jewish community of Cairo were among the mourners.

British, American, French, Polish, New Zealand and Egyptian troops escorted the flag-draped caskets through the streets on gun carriages drawn by armored cars.

Police said the prisoners, one of whom was wounded by Egyptian police as they fled across the residence grounds, had declared, "We are members of the fighters for freedom of Israel and what we did was on instructions from this organization."

Called Policy Prejudicial

They gave their names as Moshe Cohen and Itzakch Salzmann and contended that Lord Moyne's policies were prejudicial to Jewish aspirations for a national home in Palestine.

Zionist leaders, however, have made numerous expressions of horror over the assassination and condemned the terrorists' policies in Palestine and elsewhere.

Authorities here said there probably were "several dozen" other members of the gang at large with missions similiar to that of the two who slew Lord Moyne.

2 Confess Moyne Murder: British

Cairo, Nov. 8 (AP)—British officials announced today that two Jews from Palestine, claiming membership in the Sternist organization, had confessed the assassination of Lord Moyne, British Resident Commissioner in the Middle East.

The confession was given to two members of the Palestine police, who arrived here yesterday, a day after the diplomat member of the Guiness brewing family had been shot down at his residence, the British said.

Murder Trip Reported Admitted

The men were quoted as saying they came to Egypt with the express purpose of killing Lord Moyne. His chauffeur also was killed.

"We are members of the Fighters for Fredom of Israel organization and what we have done was done on the instructions of this organization," the prisoners were quoted.

Officials said this organization was the Stern Gang, which has been charged with numerous acts of terrorism in Palestine.

Blame Opposition To Home

The police also quoted the men as declaring that the policies of the Resident Minister were prejudicial to Jewish aspirations for a national home in Palestine, and giving that reason for the assassination.

Their names were announced as Mosche Cohen Itzak and Ch. Salzmann.

An official statement quoted the two prisoners as saying that they had been sent to Cairo for the express purpose of killing Lord Moyne "because he headed a political department of the British Government and was pursuing a policy which was against Jewish nationalism."

The Hebrew name for their organization was stated to be Loch May Therott Itzrael.

Foe in Burma Stiffens

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 8 (AP).—Allied troops have encountered stiffening Japanese resistance in the Fort White area in their advance along the Tiddim-Kalemyo road in the Chin Hills sector of northwestern Burma, Allied headquarters announced today.

On the Arakan front to the south, West African forces cleared an enemy strong point north of Paletwa after an air attack upon the position, the announcement said.

CHINESE REPULSE LIUCHOW ATTACKS

CHUNGKING, Nov. 8—(AP) Japanese columns continued their advance on Liuchow from the east and south today, but the Chinese hurled back four assaults on their positions astride the Hunan-Kwangsi railway 36 miles to the northeast, the high command announced tonight.

Japanese forces attacking from the east took Hsiuwen, 47 miles from Liuchow Nov. 5 and the next day continued toward Liuchow itself. Other enemy forces attacking from the south after a westward slash through the heart of Kwangsi, reached points only 35 miles southeast of Liuchow. They were being held in brisk fighting on the west bank of the Liu river today.

Meanwhile, the Japanese launched "violent attacks" in the eastern, northern and southern suburbs of Kweilin Monday night. The assaults on the northern suburbs were repulsed, while "grim fighting" continued in the western suburbs, the Chinese reported.

The Japanese evacuated two positions dominating the Burma road southeast of Lungling Monday after persistent hammering by Chinese artillery and American planes for several days.

HONGKONG DOCKS HIT BY BOMBERS

CHUNGKING, Nov. 8 — (AP) Docks at Hongkong were bombed by Liberators of the U. S. 14th Army Air Force yesterday, a communique from Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters said today.

Other raids were made on Ft. Bayard on Luichow peninsula and in the Kweihsien area on the West river in Kwangsi province, and on the Salween river front in the Lungling-Mangshih-Chefang area. Only one plane was lost in all operations, the communique said.

Three Attacks on Kweilin

CHUNGKING, Nov. 8 (AP).—Japanese troops launched three attacks on encircled Kweilin and appeared to be making headway in the eastern and western suburbs, the Chinese high command announced today, while other enemy troops to the south captured Hsiujen and were developing a new thrust toward Liuchow.

Liuchow, site of the last major 14th United States Air Force bases in Kwangsi Province, was being threatened by three columns, one along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway from Kweilin, another from the southeast from Mosun, capture of which was announced yesterday, and a third from Hsuijen, forty-five miles east of Liuchow.

The Japanese captured Hsuijen on Sunday night, the Chinese announced. The enemy continued his westward advance on the Liu River, which runs north and south below the city to a point sixteen miles east of Liuchow, where it turns sharply westward. The enemy is "being halted," the Chinese said.

'Our Job Is to Kill Japs' Declares Gen. Wedemeyer

CHUNGKING, Nov. 8—(AP) Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, in his first interview since arrival in Chungking to succeed Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, described the military situation in China as unfavorable "but not irretrievable," and he made it clear that he would not interfere in any way in Chinese politics.

He disclosed that his command of American forces embraced French Indo-China as well as China, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek as overall supreme Allied commander.

Non-commital on the Stilwell episode, Gen. Wedemeyer scored American criticism of the Chinese, and Chinese criticism of the United States, as hindrances to the conduct of the war.

"Our job," he emphasized, "is to kill Japs." He sidestepped a question as to whether he thought a major continental campaign was necessary to defeat Japan.

On the question of Chinese politics, Gen. Wedemeyer said "After the war the people of China can determine by whom they will be governed." He said he had come to China to serve with the Chinese and to do everything possible to bring the most effective employment of Allied power against Japan.

"An initial survey," he said, leads me to believe that we should not be pessimistic." He said that the Allies had the strategic initiative of all fronts, as they did not have two years ago.

He said Gen. Douglas MacArthur's success in the Philippines had made a very important contribution to the China theater, and that within a fortnight or a month he would be able to operate on a large scale from Leyte and Samar.

Says China Situation Is Not Irretrievable

Chungking, Nov. 8 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said today that China's military situation was unfavorable, "but not irretrievable."

The successor to Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell as commander of United States forces in China said Gen. Douglas MacArthur's success in the Philippines had made a very important contribution to the China theater, and within two to four weeks MacArthur should be able to operate on a large scale from Leyte and Samar islands.

Wedemeyer said his job here "is to kill japs."

JAP AIR RAID DOES NO HARM

Three Enemy Planes Downed In Marianas Attack

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 8 (AP)—Eleven Japanese planes raided American-held Saipan and Tinian islands in the Marianas shortly after midnight Monday without inflicting damage or casualties, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Anti-aircraft shot down three and probably a fourth.

Second Raid Within Week

It was the second enemy raid within a week on the Marianas, where Tokyo claims, without confirmation, that there is a base for American Superfortresses which reportedly are reconnoitering Japan.

Of nine Japanese planes which raided Saipan's Isely airfield and Tinian's northern airstrip, three were shot down.

Today's communique also reported that army Liberators bombed Iwo Jima in the Volcanos, north of the Marianas, Monday, starting a large fire and probably destroying two parked twin-engined bombers.

Destroy Radio Station

Other Liberators destroyed a radio station and gun positions on Marcus Island the same day and navy search planes bombed and strafed the Japanese on Wake Island. Large fires were started on Wake.

Army Thunderbolt fighter planes rocketed and strafed Pagan Island, in the Marianas, and marine aircraft attacked small enemy surface craft in the northern Palau Islands. Neutralizing raids continued against enemy positions in the Marshall Islands.

Nippon Losses Grow

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 8 (AP)—Hundreds of carrier planes from the Third Fleet, in two knockout blows at Manila, increased to 1,000 the total Japanese aircraft they have destroyed and to 71 the warships they have helped sink or damage since Gen. Douglas MacArthur invaded the Philippines.

In his latest communique, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said Saturday-Sunday blows by Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers:

Destroyed 440 Nipponese planes.

Sank two warships (a sub chaser, a destroyer).

Probably sank a heavy cruiser.

Damaged eight other warships (a light cruiser, two destroyer escorts, five destroyers).

Sank three cargo ships and an oil tanker.

Blasted Nichols, Clark, Nielson, Lipa, Tarlac, Bamban and Mabalacat airfields, bases which must be kept neutralized to protect Yank invaders of Leyte.

Wiped out three oil storage areas, destroyed a railway engine and five tank cars and inflicted heavy damage on ground installations.

Nimitz's Tuesday communique added 249 planes to the 191 he had reported destroyed Saturday. It added the destroyer to the warships sunk; two destroyers and two destroyer-escorts to the warships damaged.

327 Bagged On Ground

"Figures on our own losses are not yet available," the communique said.

Emphasizing air domination of the attackers over Manila, the raiders accounted for 327 of the 440 planes on the ground.

Most of the 72 enemy warships which have been sunk or damaged since MacArthur's landings were blasted in the second battle of the Philippines Sea.

Date Back To October 20

During that battle, 423 enemy planes were erased, most of them by carrier planes. Other enemy aircraft adding up to a total of at least 1,000 were bagged in carrier-based attacks dating back to October 20.

The Saturday-Sunday blows constituted the first sizable carrier thrusts at Manila since flattop planes went over that area October 28-29, destroying 90 enemy aircraft, probably sinking a heavy cruiser and damaging two others.

Heavy Shells Rationed, Ordnance Man Asserts

Toronto, Nov. 8 (AP)—Lieut. Col. F. H. Higgins, United States Army ordnance officer, said today that a shortage of heavy shells has necessitated rationing on the Western Front.

Addressing workers of the John T. Hepburn war plant, Higgins said shells for the 240-mm. or 8-inch guns—those used to knock out the super fortifications of the Germans' west wall—were rationed to a limited number a day.

"Sergeants in charge of the big guns' crews count off the shells, call 'That's all for today, boys,' when a limited number have been fired," he said. "It is very important that we supply General Eisenhower's men with all the shells they need. There's a big push in the offing from one end of the west wall to the other. The Allies stand a good chance of ending this thing with that push. It's up to us to see that they do."

Windsors Back in Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor returned to Nassau by boat from Miami today after their longest visit to the United States.

Japanese Shake Up Philippine Command

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP)—Five new Japanese generals and admirals have been named to take over command of Nipponese forces in the Philippines in an effort to stop the American invasion, Tokyo radio reported today.

Bullet-headed Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, one of Japan's most successful field commanders, was named commander in chief of Nipponese land forces in the archipelago.

Heads Naval Forces

Admiral Denshichi Okochi, who led landing parties in "the Shanghai incident of 1937," was appointed to command Nippon's naval forces in the Philippines area. Vice-Admiral Shigeu Fukutome and Vice-Admiral Takijiro Onishi were named joined commanders of naval air units in the Philippines.

Broadcasts also announced appointment of Lieut. Gen. Yasuji Tominaga as new air force commander in the Philippines. Other broadcasts claimed destruction of 65 American planes and reported a new Japanese campaign to increase airplane production.

Conquered Singapore

Conqueror of Singapore, the 59-year-old Yamashita is known throughout Asia as a ruthless, driving general, callous to the casualties of his men. He already has reached Manila, the controlled radio in that capital revealed by broadcastig his first official interview after the new appointment, during which he said "that this is the first time he has set foot on Philippine soil."

Presumably, he now succeeds Lieut. Gen. Shigenori Kuroda in the Philippines, under the direct command of Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, commander in the southern regions.

45 Planes Claimed

Tokyo radio broadcast an imperial communique today which claimed 45 American planes were set afire or destroyed on Leyte and 20 more set aflame on Morotai, in the Halmaheras. Loss of three Japanese planes in the two raids was reported.

Simultaneously, the Imperial Rule Assistance Association, Japan's single patriotic party, publicized an outline for increasing airplane production, because of "the urgent necessity" for a larger output.

Japs Evacuating More Civilians

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Japanese Government has decided to increase evacuation of non-essential civilians from Japan's largest cities in preparation for "inevitable air raids," Tokyo radio reported today.

A domestic broadcast said the Cabinet yesterday ordered "young and old and pregnant women" to move out of 11 major cities to live with relatives in the country "as far as possible."

Three Flights Reported

Cabinet action followed unconfirmed Tokyo reports of three reconnaissance flights over Honsu, the main island of Japan, by Superfortresses within a week.

The new decentralization program, scheduled to start November 15, includes Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe, Kawasaki, Yokosuka, Nagoya, Moji, Kokura, Tobata and Yamada.

In previous mass evacuations more than 1,000,000 have been reported evacuated from greater Tokyo, where blocks of houses were said to have been leveled as an air-raid precaution. Important industrial units, Government offices and schools were removed from large cities to less-populated areas.

Japan Has New Small Ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8 (AP).—Japan has a new, small streamlined wooden ship which will use a "substitute fuel," Tokyo radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Japs Study Stalin Speech

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP)—Japanese official circles are examining "with care and deliberation" Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin's speech Monday in which he termed Japan an "aggressor nation," Tokyo radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

JAPS LOSING 100 WARPLANES A DAY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Destruction of Japanese warplanes is running at the highest rate of the war—more than 100 planes a day for the first six days of November.

If anything like this continued, November will set a new high for enemy aircraft losses for a single month. October, with destruction of around 1,900 aircraft, holds the record.

Official communiques show 612 Nipponese planes were destroyed in the first six days of November—594 of them in the Philippines.

In the Philippine action land-based planes got 64 enemy aircraft in combat and 88 on the ground. Carrier planes bagged 113 in the air and 327 on the ground.

British Control Of Imports Advocated

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Wallace B. Phillips, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in London, said he believes it would be necessary for British economy to establish "fairly rigid control of imports" for several years after the war.

He said the controls would be necessary as a result of the shortage of dollars in England and declared that not only would it be desirable to reduce tariffs, but "multilateral trade must come to the rescue."

BIG 3 MEETING ON SCHEDULE

Roosevelt Soon To Confer With Churchill, Stalin

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt is slated to meet Churchill and Stalin within a few weeks in a post-election conference on speeding victory in Europe and hastening plans for a world organization.

Final arrangements for the session with the British Prime Minister and Soviet Premier had waited on yesterday's voting. Roosevelt's sweeping fourth-term triumph made it evident that he would attend the meeting with heightened prestige and a hand greatly strengthened in international affairs.

There was some speculation that Gen. Charles de Gaulle, of France, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, of China, might be counted in.

President's Foreign Policy

Guesses on where the gathering might occur ranged from Teheran, scene of the meeting a year ago, to one of Europe's liberated capitals. Wherever it is it will furnish the focal point of international events until it begins, and will shape the course of affairs long after it ends.

The President has already laid down the following foreign policy:

1. Fight the war in Europe to unconditional surrender as quickly as possible—this year if it can be done—then concentrate all needed resources, American and Allied, on Japan.

2. Organize the peace on the basis of Dumbarton Oaks plans, with the United States committing itself to use force, under a general Congressional sanction, at the call of a world security council. Essential to this objective is continued harmony among the United States, Britain and Russia, with France and China in great power positions which has stressed force primarily in maintaining world security, and Britain with its colonial empire.

3. Permanently suppress Germany and Japan as war-makers by Allied military occupation and industrial controls.

4. Champion the cause of the smaller nations and recognize the rights of subject peoples everywhere to freedom. This point is more likely than any other to bring a conflict of interest with Russia,

To Champion Smaller Nations

5. Promote freer international trade. This particularly is an objective of Secretary Hull who has told associates that relaxation of trade restrictions must go right along with organized controls for peace.

Hull's intimates expect that he will remain as the President's senior Cabinet officer as long as his health will permit, and certainly hopes to hold the post until after the Dumbarton Oaks plan has come up for formal action.

State Department officials say that the Secretary's health has not been basically impaired by the throat ailment which put him in naval medical center at Bethesda, Md., over three weeks ago.

America's position in foreign affairs is regarded here as strengthened by the fact that Hull, on the Democratic side, and John Foster Dulles, Dewey's foreign policy adviser, on the Republican side removed discussion of the Dumbarton Oaks plan from political controversy.

Foreign reaction to the Chief Executive's victory failed to startle diplomatic Washington, which believed that the real results abroad, especially in enemy countries, would be days or weeks showing up.

The Berlin radio's comment was an effort to link the President's re-election with his friendship for Stalin and to claim that as a result "the American people will be burdened with very great sacrifices."

Military authorities here are watching carefully for Germany's real reactions—as expressed in acts. There is some belief that the Nazi high command had staked a part of its strategy on prolonging the war until after the election to see whether there was any remote chance of obtaining thereby an easier peace.

Allied governments were generally reported to favor Roosevelt's reelection, although foreign officials kept quiet on this strictly internal affair of the United States.

'Big 3' Meeting Possibly This Month Seen

By John M. Hightower

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt's reelection makes it virtually certain that he will hold an early meeting with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Turning on key questions of post-war cooperation, the conference will largely shape the course of Mr. Roosevelt's fourth-term foreign policy.

The proposed second session of the Big Three, a year after their first meeting at Teheran, becomes possible now because the outcome of the voting has restored to diplomacy the stability lost during hectic campaign weeks. Then foreign governments did not know whether they would have to reckon with Mr. Roosevelt or Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the weeks ahead.

May Meet This Month

Consequently diplomatic authorities here now expect an acceleration in international affairs beginning with the projected big-three session, which some officials hope may even be held this month.

It appears certain that attempts will come soon to speed organization of the proposed world security organization and to get agreement with Britain, Russia and the other Allies on control of a defeated Germany.

The great political issue to be settled in the Big Three meeting is basic to American foreign policy: How far are Russia, Britain and the United States willing to go in harmonizing their interests? Since the United States and Britain have had long experience and share much confidence in their bilateral solution of this problem, the question really boils down to Anglo-American vs. Russian interests.

Questions Posed

Stalin is believed to be looking to Roosevelt and Churchill for answers to these two fundamental questions: (1) Will the United States take part, this time, in a world-security organization? And (2) can Britain be depended upon to work with Russia rather than against her in Europe?

These questions also pose for the President one of his greatest domestic problems—holding popular support for the proposed new world organization against the attacks that are certain to develop. These are due to come to an issue in Congress over Senate approval of treaties committing the United States to join the proposed new league and over legislation governing the use of American armed forces to help prevent aggression.

May Depend On Hull

Secretary of State Hull has been the author of the world organization campaign to date and, despite his age and illnesses, the President is expected to continue to rely on him for this and similar work as long as Hull is able to remain in office.

The top item on the agenda of a Big-Three conference is expected to be settlement of the voting-procedure dispute left over from the Dumbarton Oaks world security planning.

The fact that Mr. Roosevelt now is assured four more years in office is regarded by diplomats, rightly or wrongly, as the strongest possible guarantee to Britain and Russia that United States policies will move forward generally unchanged so far as the Chief Executive is concerned.

Basic Principles Listed

Basic principles of the President's foreign policy which may be expected to continue into the fourth term are these:

1. An early Allied victory over Germany, this year if possible; then concentrate knockout forces against Japan.

2. Continued "Big-Four" collaboration after the victories to secure a maximum period of peace. This aim is expressed in the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a new league and in such economic agreements as the Bretton Woods monetary treaty.

3. A tough, but not necessarily destructive policy in controlling Germany; probably prolonged occupation of Germany to the extent that Congress will approve.

4. Continued advocacy of the principles of the Atlantic Charter as guiding principles for the post-war world modified by what may be considered the political necessities of the moment in the interest of international cooperation and the like.

Washington, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—Possible but not necessarily imminent—that's the appraisal of the War and Navy Departments as to the possibility today of robot attacks against the U. S. A.

The Germans might launch the destructive missiles from submarines lying offshore, from one-way sacrifice flights of long-range bombers or from catapult plane tenders, they say.

A formal statement to this effect, issued yesterday, was not intended to imply that robot attacks necessarily are just around the corner, authoritative sources said, but there is no inclination to disregard the possibility.

White House Flag At Half-staff for Dill

Washington, Nov. 8 (A. P.).—The flag over the White House flew at half-staff today out of respect for Field Marshal Sir John Dill, who died here on Saturday.

At the British embassy the standards were similarly lowered as funeral services for Sir John, head of the British members of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, were conducted at the National Cathedral this afternoon, followed by internment in Arlington National Cemetery.

Army, Navy Have 22 Hospital Ships In Use

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—The army now has 22 hospital ships in operation to bring back wounded from European and Pacific battlefields.

Six of the vessels are converted Liberty ships which War Department spokesmen said are "comparable in every respect" with those built specifically for hospital service.

In addition to 19 ships operated by the army, three navy-owned and navy-manned hospital ships are presently in army service. Two more ships now under construction will increase the army's hospital fleet to 24.

Gen. Julius Ochs Adler Given Legion Of Merit

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler, for nearly three years assistant commander of the Sixth Infantry Division, was awarded the Legion of Merit today.

Under Secretary of War Patterson presented the medal at a ceremony in the Pentagon, "for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service."

General Adler, in civilian life vice-president and general manager of the New York Times and president and publisher of the Chattanooga Times, was recently returned to this country for hospitalization after a serious illness in New Guinea. The War Department said today he will revert to inactive military status on November 17.

WAR SURPLUS PLAN OUTLINED

Clayton Seeks To Avoid Disruption Of Markets

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP) — Disposal of war surpluses without disruption of markets or dislocation of the nation's economy was called for today by W. L. Clayton, Surplus War Property Administrator.

In a report to James F. Byrnes, War Mobilization Director, Clayton said it was "fundamental" that any large disposal program, both for the sake of the general public interest and for the sake of the financial success of the disposal program itself "must be so conducted as not to disrupt the market or otherwise dislocate the economy."

Much Property Disposed Of

He added, however, that the necessity to avoid market disruption did not "mean that surpluses should be frozen until they rot, become obsolete, or their values are dissipated in storage charges."

Clayton reported that from the time his office was created by executive order, February 21, 1944, to September 30, $85,007,000 worth of surplus property had been disposed of, with $465,207,000 on hand for disposal.

A Surplus Property Board has been created by Congress to succeed the Surplus War Property Administration. Until the board has been named, Clayton will continue to administer the disposal of war surpluses.

No production would be expected in the near future, but the move would clear away obstacles to piecemeal reconversion of those two giant industries when machines, parts and labor finally become available.

Reconversion Speedup Seen

This disclosure by WPB sources coincided with forecasts in other official quarters that reconversion planning would speed up despite the military stalemate in Europe, now that the political heat is off the Administration and Congress is due to reconvene next week.

At least, President Roosevelt is expected to name shortly the heads of two key reconversion agencies, the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion and the new Surplus War Property Board. Delay in the latter case has stalled sales of land and war plants for more than a month.

More specific steps are expected from WPB. They include:

1. Expansion of the "spot" list by addition of 21 new products, including electric and gas refrigerators, motorcycles and farm machinery, in addition to passenger automobiles and non-military planes.

2. Issuance of a major new priority order, which, in effect, will lay down a blueprint of procedures and rules for V-E-day and, it is unofficially reported, streamline the "spot" plan.

3. Announcement before the year ends of a second month-long "holiday" from war-alcohol production for the distilling industry.

Expansion of the "spot" plan was interpreted as a tacit admission that the war will last into spring and that this device—rather than a wholesale loosing of controls on a given day—will become an increasingly important vehicle for the industrial transition.

Can Grant Permission

Under this mechanism WPB field offices may grant permission for peacetime production to those factories which can prove they have machinery and labor not needed for war work.

Spokesmen for the automobile industry here were pleased with the new proposal, commenting that: "It won't make any automobiles for a long time, but it's a get-ready step."

Machine-Gun Electronic Gunsight Is Developed

New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corporation announced today the development of an electronic gunsight which it said was capable of directing .50-caliber bullets from speeding bombers at enemy craft with an accuracy "as when firing at a stationary target from a stationary platform."

Erwin Hale, engineer in charge of airborne fire control instruments for the company and coinventor of the gunsight, said it had extended the effective range of .50-caliber machine guns to more than 1,000 yards.

DAILY BOMBINGS NEAR FOR JAPAN

Operations Depend on Capture of Land Bases, Gen. Arnold Says.

DETROIT, Nov. 8—(AP) Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Forces commanding general, declared tonight that the time will come "when the Japanese will experience the daily visit of thousands of bombers with the same death and destruction that has made life hardly worth living in Germany."

In a talk to the Detroit Economic club, Arnold said operations in the Pacific "depend on the capture of land based masses suitable for the use of air power, moving relentlessly forward—until areas are secured from which we can exert our full aerial strength against Japan—and that is something for we now have thousands of bombers available to move."

He asserted that the "men who are doing the fighting in Europe don't believe that the war is nearly over or that we can all take a 'breather' before finishing off Japan." He warned that "now is the time the going is toughest," and he described the difficult fighting in Europe where "we have to blast the enemy out of his defenses time and time again in order to make it possible for the foot soldier to make his way forward. Those Germans fight like fanatics and must be treated as such."

The AAF, he said, was "increasing our attacks on Germany," striking the Reich "with short punches and long punches" and "hitting targets just behind the lines and deep in Germany" until the "German air force has been beaten so badly that but a small fraction of its planes are now flying."

"We have never given the Germans a breather," he said. "We have pushed the Luftwaffe back on their heels—and they are still there—struggling to regain their balance and make a comeback."

Anzac Civil Air Plan Is Dropped

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—The New Zealand-Australia proposal for an international company to own and operate world trunk air routes was dropped from consideration by the international civil aviation conference today upon the motion of Brazil that there was lack of the unanimity necessary to achieve such a goal.

The plan was the first to be placed before the convention in such a manner, just as it was the first to be brought to world attention during the events which led to the present conference. Its removal leaves only the United States, Canadian and United Kingdom proposals now before the conference.

Disposal Was Aim

The action came in a voice vote at a plenary session of the committee on multilateral air navigation agreements.

It seemed apparent the meeting was called and the presentation made in a manner designed to dispose of what has been freely described as a goal too distant for consideration at this time.

Daniel Giles Sullivan, New Zealand Minister of Commerce, presented the joint plan as a motion before the committee and its was seconded by A. A. Drakeford, Australian Minister for Air and Civil Aviation. Max Hymans, French director of air transport, said his country supported the plan.

Berle Supports Amendment

The Brazilian motion to put aside the proposal was made by Dr. Hahneman Guimaraes and seconded without discussion by Jose A. Correa, of Ecuador. Portugal let it be know that it supported this amendment.

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., head of the United States delegation, supported the amendment.

That was all of the discussion and the call of John Martin, codelegate from the Union of South Africa, who was presiding, for a vote brought a scattering of ayes, followed by a few loud noes.

Venereal Disease Conference Convenes

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (AP)—Experts on venereal disease from various parts of the world gathered here tonight for a conference which United States Public Health Service officials declared "should mark the turning point in the centuries-old struggle for supremacy between medical science and syphilis and gonorrhea."

Declaring reports would be read to show that the drug, penicillin, science appears to have at last found a "rapid, safe and effective means" of treating those two scourges, Senior Surgeon C. J. Van Slyke, assistant chief of the Public Health Service venereal disease division, said in an interview on the eve of the three-day meeting.

"We now have facilities for the rapid treatment of gonorrhea and early syphilis, which is the most infectious type of the latter disease—so that treatments now can be given in days and even hours for diseases which once required up to 18 months."

Sees New Conference, Dumbarton Oaks Style

Abilene, Texas, Nov. 8 (AP)—Senator Tom Connally (D., Texas) said tonight that there will be another conference to follow the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference, an organization "on a higher level" to construct the framework of a peace organization.

Addressing the 27th annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce directors, Senator Connally said he hoped the peace organization to be formed would be "able to agree on a treaty that will enforce peace in the only language aggressors know—with iron and steel."

"I hope I shall be able to lead the fight for ratification of such a treaty," he declared.

1,000 More B-29s Ordered

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 8 (AP).—The Boeing Aircraft Company has received a new contract from the War Department for 1,000 B-29 Superfortresses, bringing its backlog of unfilled order to approximately $1,145,000,000, the company announced today. C. L. Egtvedt, Boeing chairman, asserted that the new order means a continued need for man power at Boeing plants.

WPB Studies Plan To Include Planes, Cars On 'Spot' List

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Addition of passenger cars and civilian planes to the list of goods which could be manufactured under the "spot" authorization plan is now under study by WPB.

LONDON, NOV 8--(AP)--THE STRONG AMERICAN ATTACK LAUNCHED LAST THURSDAY IN FOREST LAND SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN HAD RUN DOWN TONIGHT WITH LOSS OF MOST OF THE GROUND GAINED IN ITS OPENING PHASES, A FRONT DISPATCH SAID.

THE LATEST U.S. REVERSE WAS LOSS OF THE VILLAGE OF KOMMERSCHEIDT TO A VIOLENT GERMAN COUNTERATTACK. DOUGHBOYS WERE DRIVEN BACK 500 YARDS TO HIGH GROUND TO THE NORTHWEST.

THE GERMANS STILL HELD ONCE TAKEN BY AMERICANS, AFIELD SCHMIDT, 15 MILES SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN, NORTHWEST. AND PART OF VOSSENACK, TWO MILES TO THE

TO THE SOUTH, AMERICAN BETWEEN METZ AND NANCY CROSSED THE SEILLE RIVER AND SEIZED FOUR LIGHTLY-HELD VILLAGES IN ADVANCES AVERAGING UP to A MILE.

30.24— 20257

DESPITE THE SETBACKS FROM THE GERMAN VILLAGE STRONGHOLDS, THE FIRST ARMY HAD MADE CONSIDERABLE PROGRESS IN CLEARING THE HURTGEN FOREST SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN.

A BRITISH STAFF OFFICER MEANWHILE DECLARED THE GERMANS HAD LOST FROM 35,000 TO 40,000 PRISONERS AND HAD BEEN DRIVEN FROM AN AREA 20 MILES DEEP ON A 40-MILE FRONT BY THE MONTH-OLD OFFENSIVE IN SOUTHWEST HOLLAND UNDER FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY.

THE THIRD ARMY "SUBSTANTIALLY IMPROVED" ITS LINE BETWEEN NANCY AND METZ, A FRONT DISPATCH SAID. MIDWAY BETWEEN THE TWO FRENCH CITIES, THE AMERICANS CROSSED THE SEILLE RIVER. RESISTANCE RANGED FROM LIGHT TO MODERATE.

IN HOLLAND, THE GERMANS RETREATING TO THE NORTH BANK OF THE MAAS RIVER HAD WRECKED EVERY RIVER BRIDGE BETWEEN THE SEA AND NEDEL, NORTH OF 'S-HERTOGENBOSCH, A FIELD DISPATCH SAID.

LITTLE ACTION OCCURRED YESTERDAY ON THE AMERICAN THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMY FRONTS IN FRANCE AS A COLD RAIN BLANKETED THE AREA. ONE STRONG GERMAN COUNTERATTACK WAS REPULSED.

FRONT DISPATCHES SAID THE BATTLE IN AND AROUND THE GERMAN TOWN OF KOSSENACK WAS "AS SAVAGE AS THE STRUGGLE FOR AACHEN--AND OF MUCH GREATER SCOPE."

NOV 9 1944

THE BATTLE APPARENTLY STILL WAS INCONCLUSIVE ON THE SIXTH DAY OF FIGHTING.

LATE REPORTS LAST NIGHT SAID THE AMERICANS HELD ONE-HALF OF THE MILE AND ONE-HALF LONG TOWN. THE GERMANS WERE SAID TO BE SOLIDLY ENTRENCHED IN THE OTHER HALF. IN THE HEART OF THE TOWN, THE AMERICANS WERE IN ONE WING OF A CHURCH, THE GERMANS IN ANOTHER.

FIGHTING OF EQUAL INTENSITY RAGED THROUGHOUT THE HURTGEN FOREST REGION. THE TOWN OF SCHMIDT, HIGH WATER MARK OF THE FIRST ARMY'S NEWEST THRUST TOWARD THE RHINE, STILL WAS IN GERMAN HANDS. IT WAS RECAPTURED THREE DAYS AGO BY RESERVES RUSHED DOWN FROM THE ARNHEM AREA BY THE ENEMY HIGH COMMAND.

INSIDE VOSSENACK, 13 MILES SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN, AMERICAN ARTILLERY AND DIVEBOMBERS SHELLED GERMAN POSITIONS YESTERDAY DESPITE THE PROXIMITY OF FRIENDLY FORCES.

WITH THE APPROACHES TO THE GERMAN CITIES OF DUREN AND COLOGNE AT STAKE, THE ENEMY THREW HEAVY CONCENTRATIONS OF TANKS INTO REPEATED COUNTERATTACKS. A FRONT DISPATCH SAID POSSIBLY 50 WERE MASSED IN THE SCHMIDT AREA ALONE.

IN HOLLAND THE ALLIED CAMPAIGN TO CLEAR THE GERMANS FROM THE REGION SOUTH OF THE MAAS (MEUSE) WAS VIRTUALLY CLOSED OUT. FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S FORCES WERE SMASHING INTO THE OUTSKIRTS OF MOERDIJK, LOCATION OF TWO DESTROYED BRIDGES ACROSS THE STREAM.

AS THE GERMANS FELL BACK BEYOND THE RIVER--APPARENTLY TO NEW PREPARED POSITIONS--AUTHORITATIVE ESTIMATES PLACED THEIR LOSS IN SOUTHWESTERN HOLLAND IN THE PAST MONTH AT BETWEEN 43,000 AND 46,000 TROOPS--INCLUDING 26,000 TAKEN PRISONER.

THE GERMANS ON THE DUTCH ISLAND OF WALCHEREN FINALLY WERE CUT DOWN CHIEFLY TO ONE POCKET NEAR THE NORTHERN SHORE. THE BERLIN RADIO MEANWHILE REPORTED A NEW ALLIED LANDING ON SCHOUWEN ISLAND TO THE NORTH.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, NOV 8-(AP)-BREAKING THE LULL ON THE THIRD ARMY FRONT, LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON'S INFANTRY STRUCK ACROSS THE SHALLOW SEILLE RIVER TODAY BETWEEN NANCY AND METZ, GAINING UP TO THREE MILES, CAPTURING MORE THAN A DOZEN VILLAGES AND INFLICTING NUMEROUS CASUALTIES.

THE GERMANS OFFERED LIGHT TO MODERATE OPPOSITION AND THE AMERICANS KILLED SEVERAL HUNDRED OF THE ENEMY AS WELL AS TAKING A SIMILAR NUMBER PRISONER.

MAJ.GEN.HORACE L. MCBRIDE'S BLUE RIDGE (80TH) DIVISION ADVANCED APPROXIMATELY THREE MILES EASTWARD AFTER THE JUMP OFF AT 6 A.M., TAKING EPLY, RAUCOURT, MAILLY-SUR-SEILLE, ROUVES, NOMENY AND AULNOTS IN A LINE FROM 12 TO 16 MILES NORTHEAST OF NANCY.

THE RAINBOW (42ND) DIVISION FORCED THREE CROSSINGS OF THE SEILLE IN ITS AREA, ALTHOUGH 36 HOURS OF RAIN HAD INCREASED THE STREAM'S WIDTH FROM 200 TO 500 FEET AT POINTS WHERE BRIDGES HAD TO BE ERECTED.

TO THE SOUTHWARD THE SANTA FE (35TH) INFANTRY DIVISION, UNDER COMMAND OF MAJ.GEN.PAUL BAADE, FOUGHT ITS WAY THROUGH JALLAUCOURT AND MALAUCOURT ABOUT 14 MILES NORTHEAST OF NANCY AND INTO FRESNES-SUR-SEILLE IN THE SAME AREA.

THESE THRUSTS AGAINST THE FIRE OF MORTARS AND SMALL ARMS ALSO RAN INTO THICKLY SOWED FIELDS OF TANK AND ANTI-PERSONNEL MINES.

ON THE 35TH'S RIGHT FLANK THE YANKEE (26TH) DIVISION STRUCK SWIFTLY TO SECURE A BRIDGE ACROSS THE SEILLE 18 MILES EAST OF NANCY

BEFORE THE GERMANS COULD BLOW IT AND THEN PUSHED UP TO THREE MILES NORTHWARD INTO HIGH GROUND DOMINATING CHATEAU SALINS.

THE YANKEE DIVISION, UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF MAJ.GEN.WILLARD PAUL, ALSO OCCUPIED VIC-SUR-SEILLE, MOYENVIC AND FOUGHT ITS WAY INTO SALLONNES, WHICH LATE THIS AFTERNOON WAS ABLAZE. UNITS OF THE 36TH AND THE SECOND CAVALRY GROUP TOOK BEZANGE, LA PETITE AND MONCOURT AND THRUST PATROLS EASTWARD FOR A MILE OR MORE.

THE ATTACK, LAUNCHED AT DAWN, WAS PRECEDED BY AN HOUR OF INTENSIVE ARTILLERY PREPARATION DIRECTED AT ENEMY BATTERIES AND STRONGPOINTS. IT WAS SO INTENSE THAT 5,500 ROUNDS FROM PIECES VARYING FROM 75MM TO 240MM WERE HURLED INTO A SINGLE DIVISIONAL AREA.

GEN.PATTON ALSO MADE A TOUR OF THE FRONT AND WHILE HE HAD NO COMMENT HE ALSO APPEARED HAPPY ABOUT THE SHOW.

DOUGHBOYS SMASH ACROSS MOSELLE NEAR SAAR BASIN

BATTLE TO FLANK METZ

U.S. Bombers Pound Enemy Positions in Support of Offensive.

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP) The U. S. Third army hurled four more divisions today into a major offensive along a 55-mile front in northern France. The assault by three infantry divisions broke across the Moselle 18 miles north of the mighty fortress of Metz as a crack tank division roared into battle from the south.

NIGHT

Enemy lines were ripped by more than 1,300 U. S. heavy bombers, thundering over in the first close support on such a big scale since the St. Lo breakthrough that won the battle of France. By sundown the Germans had yet to send a tank into the struggle.

Overrun Dozen Towns

A dozen towns were overrun as Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., sent the infantry divisions and the Fourth Armored division—one of the architects of the St. Lo victory—into the spreading battle to join the three infantry outfits that seized 16 towns and 1,000 prisoners in the opening assault yesterday.

After the bombers loosed 4,000 tons of anti-personnel bombs on the sleet-covered German positions the veteran 90th division struck for the first time north of Metz.

Commanded by Brig. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, the infantry crossed the rain-swollen Moselle river at two points and seized Koenigsmacher and Haute-Ham, 19 and 18 miles north of Metz and 11 miles from the Saar—70 square miles of coal fields, iron works and German war plants.

NOV 10 10

Meanwhile the Fourth Armored, which also had been held in check yesterday, stormed into the fighting, driving four miles northward to near Delme and Viviers in a dangerous salient 18 miles south east of Metz and 25 miles south of the Saar frontier.

Berlin propagandists called the attacks the opening phase of an Allied Winter offensive. Patton they said, was bent on outflanking fort-girt Metz and crushing the Saar basin. The northern anchor was at Berg, on the west bank of the Moselle nine miles from the Saar border.

Battle in Sleet, Rain

Allied sources said nothing but slogging through the sleet and rain the Third Army was shaping up an arching line some 35 miles from Saarbrucken, heart of the basin.

The Fourth Armored division swept through the towns of Lemoncourt and Oriocourt and broke across the main highway from Metz to Chateau Salins, a road center 25 miles southeast of Metz.

The 35th Infantry division, one of the three in the initial attacks, stepped aside to let the tanks through, then moved on and seized both towns.

An unidentified division also pushed across a tributary of the Moselle river at an undefined point north of Metz, to keep up the pressure on both sides of the city.

A Third Infantry division, the Fifth, under Major Gen. Leroy Irvin, plunged across the Seille river and occupied the town of Cheminot, 10 miles south of Metz.

Three miles east the village of St. Jure fell, as did Phlin and Craincourt, three and six miles farther southeast. Another force took Morville-Les-Vic, 1 1-2 miles east of Chateau Salins.

Patrols probed into the forest of Chateau Salins where Germans were believed to be holding strong positions.

While the Germans were offering only moderate resistance and conserving their tanks, several hundred Allied fighterbombers following the heavies knocked out four tanks not far to the rear. Medium bombers also joined the attack to bring the total sorties to 2,500.

Front dispatches identified the three infantry divisions which opened the attack yesterday as the 26th, 35th and 80th. Their southernmost positions are at Moncourt, 33 miles southeast of Metz.

Advances also were scored at the northern end of the front at Berg, 22 miles northeast of Metz.

Berg Near Border

Berg, on the west bank of the Moselle, is three miles southwest of a juncture of the French, Luxembourg and German frontiers.

To the north inside Germany, the U. S. First army lashed out in limited attacks southeast of Aachen.

The communique reported small gains in the face of heavy enemy pressure south of Vossenack, 13 miles southeast of Aachen, and said Germans still were being cleared from Hurtgen forest west of Schmidt, two miles farther south.

The Berlin radio declared an all-out offensive was in preparation on this front. It said the Americans used smoke screens and began a heavy artillery barrage north of Aachen.

An Associated Press front line dispatch said the battle for southwest Holland ended at dawn today in the Winter's first snowfall as Allied troops wiped out the last German rearguards south of the Maas river at Moerdijk, seizing 350 prisoners and several self-propelled guns.

Polish troops in the forefront of the last assault arrived at the Moerdijk bridge, one of the longest in Europe, and confirmed RAF reports that two spans had been destroyed by the enemy.

Walcheren Nazis Surrender

On flooded Walcheren island, only two pockets of from 100 to 150 Germans remained north of Middelburg, and these were marooned and signalled they wanted to surrender. Another force on the north shore gave up without even asking for terms.

On the southern end of the Western front, the U. S. Seventh army, driving deeper into the Vosges mountains, captured the village of Les Baraques and fought to within three and a half miles of St. Die, guarding one of the main passes through the mountains to the Rhine.

In a push two miles northeast of Reherry, Doughboys on the northern limits of the Seventh army front seized Migneville, which is 15 miles southeast of where the Third army is operating around Moncourt.

NINE TOWNS TAKEN AS TANKS ADVANCE

FRYE

1300 Bombers Blast Pathway for Yanks—Push Carries to Within 18 Miles of Metz and 16 of Nancy.

NOV 10 1944

London, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton's attack toward the Rhine blossomed into a roaring offensive with heavy bomber support today as armor and infantry rolled forward on both sides of Metz, and counted the capture of twenty-five towns and a gain of six miles for the two-day drive.

The attack was going forward at at least four places along a fifty-mile front, while gains of the Seventh United States Army stretched the activity an additional thirty miles to the south.

RAF

Gen. Patton threw the veteran Fourth Armored Division into the drive, alongside six infantry divisions. The Fourth, attacking northeasterly from captured Malacourt, slashed toward the rear communications of Metz, cut the main Metz-Chateau Salins road, shot its way through Lemoncourt, Oriocourt and Delme and reached the vicinity of Viviers, sixteen miles northeast of Nancy and about eighteen miles southeast of Metz.

1300 Bombers Attack.

Nine towns were captured in the drive today as 1,300 heavy bombers laid a carpet of explosives on the enemy's front-line positions in direct tactical support similar to that given when the First United States Army made its historic breakthrough at St. Lo in July—a breakthrough that sent the Germans in pellmell retreat out of nearly all France.

Berlin's radio commentators declared Gen. Patton, striking from just below the Luxembourg border to the Rhine-Marne Canal east of Nancy, was signaling the prelude to "the big offensive" aimed at bursting open "the historic gate to the Palatinate which was chosen by Napoleon as the marching route for his battalions and regiments."

Divebombers Also Attack.

The Fortresses and Liberators, timing their blow at mid-morning, synchronized their attack with hundreds of dive bomers which hit the same area, and swept to unusually low levels to pinpoint their targets. It was one of the few times the heavy bombers have flown against tactical targets in this theater. A notable previous strike was in the St. Lo breakthrough in Normandy in July.

Pilots said snow blanketed many of the battle areas.

Front line dispatches said Gen. Patton sent two divisions into action north of Metz this morning and that fresh progress had been made in the area of Berg, just below the Luxembourg border, A Third division joined the three which attacked south of the city yesterday on a twenty-five-mile front and gained up to three miles.

Sixteen Villages Captured.

At least sixteen villages were captured in the combined advance of the Third and Seventh armies, with two Third Army Corps, the Twelfth and Twentieth, in action. Several of the villages had been previously captured, however, and relinquished in the face of counter-attacks.

South of Metz the attack spread all the way from Cheminot, ten miles south of Metz and four miles east of the Moselle, to the

30.24— 20263

Chateau-Salins area where the infantrymen hammered a mile-deep wedge north of the Rhine-Marne Canal at a point twenty miles east of Nancy and an equal distance west of Sarrebourg.

The Germans said the "Americans are making feverish preparations for a new offensive in the Aachen region" also and were seeking to eliminate German artillery observation posts by dropping smoke canisters on them. Artillery fire was intensified on both sides, the Germans said.

In Holland where the first snow of the season fell last night, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Twenty-first Group had seized all of Walcheren Island at the mouth of the Schelde except a tiny pocket around the villages of Buttinge and St. Laurens, two miles northwest of Middelburg. This pocket was isolated from the coast.

South of the Maas (Meuse) Poles had blown their way through the concrete defenses around the southern end of the Moerdijk bridges and were attacking an enemy bridgehead one and one-half mile long and three-fourths of a mile deep.

The American First Army was slowly regaining some of the ground lost this week southeast of Aachen to strong German counter-attacks.

The Allied communique said the Americans were advancing slowly against heavy enemy pressure in the area south of Vossenack and southwest of the town of Hurtgen against "very heavy resistance." West of Schmidt, which the First Army reached before being thrown back, enemy pockets are being mopped up, the announcement said.

Below the Third Army zone Lieut.-Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army captured Migneville, twenty-nine miles southeast of Nancy and two miles beyond Reherry, which was taken last week end. Gen. Patch's troops also won Les Baroques, within three and a half miles of St. Die, first town in the Saales Pass which leads northeastward to Strasbourg on the Rhine.

The Third Army's Push

The Third Army divisions that attacked this morning near Metz met opposition that ranged from light to moderate.

The 19th Division crossed the Moselle river in two places north of Metz. Another fresh division, not yet identified in dispatches, established a bridgehead over a Moselle tributary, also above the city.

The Fifth Division pushed across the Seille river and occupied Cheminot, 10 miles south of Metz and five miles northeast of Pont-a-Mousson on the Moselle, which the Americans captured recently.

Weather Getting Worse

Reports from this front indicated that the Germans had not yet caught their balance from the first shock of the assault, and there were no counterattacks. Patton's men, however, were fighting across a sodden terrain in the face of worsening weather.

Berlin broadcasters called the Third Army attack a large-scale one apparently aimed at breaking through to the Saar river just inside Germany some 30 miles northeast, but the direction of Patton's thrusts suggested an attempt to cut in behind Metz—a technique he employed weeks ago to capture Nancy.

War Correspondent Hawkins said the doughboys attacked yesterday at 6 A. M. and by dusk had made gains up to three miles, capturing more than a dozen towns and killing and capturing about 1,000 Germans.

Patton's Line

The line of the Third Army's first attacks stretched generaly southeast from a point ten miles south of Metz to 20 miles east of Nancy. The northern end was anchored in the vicinity of the captured town of Nomeny, eight miles east of Pont-a-Mousson. The southern end swung through the villages of Bezange la Petite and Moncourt for a mile or more.

The infantry thrusts were supported by some tanks but none of Patton's famous armored divisions was in action.

The Towns Captured

The 80th Division took the villages of Eply, Raucourt, Mailly-sur-Seille, Aulnois-sur-Seille and Rouves in the Nomeny region. The 35th fought its way through Jallaucourt and Malaucourt and into Fresnes-sur-Seille.

On the 35th's right flank the 26th Division, striking swiftly, secured a bridge across the Seille before the Germans could destroy it, and fought northward into high ground dominating the city of Chateau Salins. In that area the villages of Vic-sur-Seille and Moyenvic were occupied and Salonns was reported ablaze.

captured but relinquished in the face of counterattacks.

South of Metz the attack spread all the way from Cheminot, ten miles south of Metz and four miles east of the Moselle, to the Chateau-Salins area, where the doughboys hammered a mile-deep wedge north of the Rhine-Marne Canal, at a point 20 miles east of Nancy and an equal distance west of Sarrebourg.

The Germans said the "Americans are making feverish preparations for a new offensive in the Aachen region" also and were trying to eliminate German artillery observation posts by dropping smoke canisters on them. Artillery fire was intensified on both sides, the Germans said.

Single Walcheren Pocket Left

In Holland where the first snow of the season fell last night, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 21st Army Group had seized all of Walcheren Island at the mouth of the Schelde except a tiny pocket around the villages of Buttinge and St. Laurens, two miles northwest of Middleburg. This pocket was isolated from the coast.

South of the Maas Poles had blown their way through the concrete defenses around the southern end of the Moerdijk bridges and were attacking an enemy bridgehead 1½ miles long and three fourths of a mile deep.

First Army Regaining Ground

United States First Army doughboys began slowly regaining some of the ground they lost this week in Hurtgen Forest, southeast of Aachen.

The Allied communique said the Americans were advancing slowly against heavy German pressure in the area south of Vossenack and southwest of the town of Hurtgen. West of Schmidt, which the First Army reached before being thrown back, German pockets are being mopped up, the announcement said.

Eisenhower Speaks to Belgians

GREENE

Tells Parliament in Brussels Allies Will Send as Much Aid as Possible.

NOV 10 1944

Brussels, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told the Belgian Parliament today that the Allies were fighting "an enemy who understands only one thing—force—and we intend to apply force to the utmost."

The Allied Supreme Commander received a tumultous ovation as he entered the packed Chamber of Deputies to address both houses. He was accompanied by top Allied Army, Navy and Air Force commanders including Lieut.-Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Admiral Bertram Ramsey, Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, Lieut.-Gen. W. B. Smith, Major-Gen. S. W. E. J. Erskine and Major-Gen. F. W. de Guingang.

"We are sensible of sacrifices you have made," Gen. Eisenhower said, "and as far as possible consistent with military operations, I pledge that you will get everything we can bring you. I only ask that you understand we are doing our best."

Crowds Cheer Roosevelt.

The General's promise of aid was interpreted as indicating his concern over the current shortage of civilian supplies in Belgium, where the bulk of the people face the prospect of a heatless and hungry winter.

The ornate chamber was crowded to the top tier of its white columned balconies, and it resounded with spontaneous cheers at the mention of President Roosevelt's re-election.

"The fact that the American people have elected him to a fourth term ... head of the United States is definite proof that the country will support him in the task of international reconstruction," said Frans Van Cauwelaert, president ... Chamber of Deputies.

Premier Hubert Pierlot stressed the long period of suffering of the Belgian people under German occupation and, in a voice ringing with emotion, said to Gen. Eisenhower.

"General, you launched the greatest battle of all times, and you won it. You conquered in three weeks what was occupied by the enemy during fifty-two months. Belgium, for the largest part, was liberated in eight days."

Visit Soldier's Tomb.

Robert Gillon, president of the Belgian Senate, emphasized German barbarism in his speech of welcome, declaring the Nazi overlords were "the most frightful oppressors who tried to impose on us the new order which ignored human dignity and individual liberty."

After a rousing farewell, Gen. Eisenhower and his aids went to the tomb of Belgium's Unknown Soldier and stood at attention in a driving rainstorm while a bugler sounded "The Last Post."

Before returning to headquarters, Gen. Eisenhower attended a reception at the Royal Palace given by Prince Regent Charles, brother of King Leopold, who is a prisoner in Germany.

Eisenhower Addresses Belgian Parliament; Given Ovation

GREENE

Brussels, Nov. 9 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower received an ovation from the Belgian Parliament today when he told its members that the United Nations were fighting "an enemy who understands only one thing—force—and we intend to apply force to the utmost."

The Allied commander in chief was lauded by Premier Hubert Pierlot as the man who "launched the greatest battle of all time, and . . . won it."

Pledges All Aid Possible

Addressing both houses of Parliament in the Chamber of Deputies, General Eisenhower told the Belgians that, "consistent with military operations, I pledge that you will get everything we can bring you. I only ask that you understand we are doing our best."

Except for what assistance they can be given by the Allies, the bulk of the Belgians face the prospect of a heatless and hungry winter.

Eisenhower was accompanied by other high Allied army, navy and air force commanders, including Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsey, Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, Lieut. Gen. W. B. Smith, Maj. Gen. S. W. E. J. Erskine and Maj. Gen. F. W. De Guingang.

Roosevelt Election Cheered

Cheers greeted the mention of President Roosevelt's reelection by Frans van Cauwelaert, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

"The fact that the American people have elected him to a fourth term as head of the United States is definite proof that the country will support him in the task of international reconstruction," Van Cauwelaert declared.

Later General Eisenhower and his aides stood at attention at the tomb of Belgian's unknown soldier while a bugler sounded "The Last Post." Tonight they were guests at a reception given at the Royal Palace by Prince Regent Charles, whose brother, King Leopold, is a prisoner in Germany.

How War Has Affected One Family In Holland

NOV 10 1944

By William F. Boni

Middelburg, Holland, Nov. 8 (AP—Delayed)—This city, whose population now is swollen to 40,000 by flooded-out refugees from all over the Island of Walcheren, at present is an island on an island.

On the west it is hemmed in by floodwaters that rushed in when the RAF breached the Walcheren dike. On the east it is cut off by a canal which is spanned by a pontoon bridge, but when the tide is low no vehicles can pass, because the bridge approaches drop down too steeply even for jeeps.

A thousand of Middelburg's 5,000 houses were made uninhabitable by floods. During the last days of the artillery bombardment that preceded the British attack on the city's Nazi garrison 20 people often were crowded into a single cellar. The city finally was captured by about 300 British troops.

Finds Old Friends

This afternoon I located some friends whom I had not seen in 18 years.

(Boni was born in Holland but came to the United States with his parents in 1915.)

Perhaps their story illustrates what life has been like for moderately well-to-do Dutch families during four and one half years of Nazi occupation.

Piet, the head of the family, spent 20 months as a hostage in a Nazi internment camp in eastern Holland, from which he was released less than a year ago.

Piet and his wife, Marietje, don't know where their daughter is. They know only that she is in some part of Holland which is not yet liberated and is living under an assumed name, because the Nazis held her in jail for two weeks for campaigning for better treatment of the Jews.

Piet has two sons who went underground long ago to escape being sent to Germany in labor detachments. One of them has been to Germany twice but was released each time.

Until two days ago they still had a house. But on November 6 one of our shells hit the building. The Germans had stored munitions there. There is nothing left now.

Piet and his family lived on Walcheren for a long time and he had worked up a reasonably prosperous business. But much of that business depended on the farmers, who make up the bulk of the population on this agriculturally rich island. Now the salt in the sea water washing over the island will kill off trees and grass in the meadowlands and it will be two years before the land is ready again for planting.

REFUGEE PROBLEM HITS HOME AT LAST

WITH U. S. FORCES ON THE WESTERN FRONT — (AP) As American doughboys wrest German soil from the Nazis town by town, there is an ever-present headache of providing for thousands of German civilian evacuees from the battle front who naturally are not received with open arms by the French and Belgians who have suffered under Hitler's rule for four years.

However, it will be simpler when the Yanks advance farther in the Reich and German officials can be made to house and feed evacuees, far enough behind the lines not to endanger the security of military operations.

125 Dutch Die In Blast

Says Nazis Use Spanish Ships

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP)—Spanish ships are being used to supply German garrisons holding out on the Garonne estuary and other points along the French Atlantic coast, the newspaper Combat said today in a dispatch datelined "inside Spain."

De Gaulle Pledges Early Elections

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP)—In his first speech to the newly convened, revised consultative assembly, Gen. Charles de Gaulle today pledged early elections and a restoration of Republican institutions. He demanded respect for his Government's authority.

Wildly acclaimed as he mounted the rostrum in the glittering Palais de Lumexbourg, the chamber of the old French Senate, General de Gaulle stressed that his Cabinet desired to collaborate with the assembly and asked its cooperation in the tasks of rebuilding the national economy and reforming the social structure.

"It is the duty of the Government to call upon the citizens to express themselves through universal suffrage," de Gaulle told the members of the provisional assembly, which will act as France's legislature until elections are held.

"It seemed necessary to the Government—pending elections—to constitute the assembly and give it advice and support," he said. "This assembly is formed with representatives of the leaders of resistance who have proved themselves in tragic hours."

The general emphasized that meanwhile it was France's task to pursue the war beside the Allies until Germany's defeat.

Editor Suarez Dies Before Firing Squad

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP)—Georges Suarez, 48-year-old editor who was the first collaborationist condemned in the Paris purge trials, died at dawn today before a firing squad at the fort of Montrouge.

Suarez, editor of the daily newspaper Aujourd 'Hui during the occupation, was convicted two weeks ago of collusion in writing editorials urging closer collaboration between France and the Nazis. Three others of 16 tried in Paris so far also have received death sentences.

Paris Editor Executed

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP)—Georges Saurez, 48, editor-in-chief of the daily newspaper Aujourd'hui during the Nazi occupation, was executed by a firing squad at the Fort of Montrouge at dawn today as a collaborationist—the first to receive the death penalty.

Suarez was convicted two weeks ago by a four-man civil jury of collusion with the Germans in writing editorials advocating closer collaboration between France and Germany.

Three others of 16 men tried in Paris thus far have received death sentences.

JAPANESE THROW RESERVES INTO BATTLE FOR LEYTE

Enemy's 16th Division Smashed as Fighting Unit, MacArthur Says.

RAIN SLOWS YANKS

American Forces Smash Through Ridge Positions Near Limon.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, Friday, Nov. 10 — (AP) Weatherbeaten Doughboys drove over rain-lashed ridges for extensive gains south of Carigara bay today as the Japanese poured reinforcements into Leyte island to replace an estimated 35,000 men lost in the campaign which Gen. Douglas MacArthur termed the key to the Philippines.

Grim veterans of the 24th division broke the stalemate to make "extensive gains on a wide front" along the typhoon-swept road leading to Ormoc, Japan's last stronghold on the island, now roaring with fires set by bombs and artillery shells.

16th Division Smashed

Japan's 16th division—conquerors and torturers of Bataan—has been smashed as a fighting unit, MacArthur reported, and an estimated 35,000 reinforcements have been landed to rebuild the original force.

The 35th Imperial army has been sent to Leyte, the General said. The fresh troops are pouring into Ormoc, on Leyte's western coast, from Cebu, Mindanao and other adjacent Philippine islands.

The enemy, said the communique, "is making a desperate effort to retrieve the strategical position which he lost in eastern Leyte in the first phase of the campaign, and which threatens his entire hold on the Philippines."

Most of these fresh troops are massed in the narrow, ridge-bordered valley north of Ormoc, down which the Yanks are driving. The Americans hold better than a two to one numerical superiority.

Under constant shelling and bombing, Ormoc's "usefulness to the enemy as a supply base has been greatly reduced," the communique said.

The veterans of the 24th smashed through Japanese ridge positions south and east of Limon, four miles from Carigara bay, near where the Americans had been stalled for nearly four days by cyclonic weather and desperate Nipponese delaying tactics.

Seize Key Hill

The Yanks seized commanding terrain on a key hill, identified as No. 1525, and near the mountain village of Minoro, about six miles east by south of Limon. Minoro lies at the foot of a 517 foot high ridge.

Simultaneously, elements of the 96th division, which has plunged westward across the mountains from eastern Leyte, destroyed numerous Japanese strongpoints. "Our patrols," said the communique, "have penetrated deep into the central mountain range."

As the weather cleared, aircraft again swept the skies. American Leyte-based fighters made numerous low-level bombing and strafing attacks on enemy installations, shipping and concentrations.

The Japanese are reinforcing Leyte on a scale unprecedented in the Pacific campaign, underlining MacArthur's analysis of the island's importance.

The estimate of enemy losses includes both dead and wounded and approximately 5,000 men dispersed into the foothills who no longer are considered a unified fighting force.

Land During Night

The fresh troops have come by every type of vessel from barges to warships. The largest concentration was landed at Ormoc during the night of Nov. 1.

The reinforcements have built up the Japanese force to the 35,000 men who were in the original garrison. But in announcing that the first Leyte island defensive troops, backboned by the 16th division, has been "practically destroyed," MacArthur reported completion of one of his goals—elimination of this division.

The Yanks were bogged down south of Limon by the worst fighting weather of the campaign. A howling typhoon brought sheets of rain, knee-deep mud and slime.

At nightfall Thursday (Philippine time) the issue still was stalemated, reported Fred Hampson, AP war correspondent with the field forces, the 24th division.

Forward units of the division, said Hampson, were forced to conserve both ammunition and food because of the precarious supply situation, due to almost impassable roads.

Yanks Drive Ahead

Wet, cold and hungry as they were, however, the determined Yanks had made some progress. Supported by a barrage from heavy artillery and howitzers, they pushed the foe from an observation post astride one important ridge that commanded enemy territory for several miles.

The fight for this ridge was described by Spencer Davis, another AP war correspondent with the 24th division. He said the barrage fairly shook the hogback. When it lifted, the infantry toiled to the summit against sporadic enemy fire that took virtually no casualties.

The battle of "Horseshoe Bend" raged for three days along the highway where it turns from Limon toward Ormoc. The area is less than two airline miles from coastal Pinamopoan, American supply base, which was captured from the Japanese last Monday.

Why the Nipponese had not attacked Pinamopoan and its coastal supply road from Carigara was a mystery. They were in a position to do so, said Maj. Gen. Irving, 24th division commander, but apparently had been caught off balance or were having supply troubles of their own.

Rains, Shortage Of Arms Slow Leyte Push

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Nov. 9 (AP—Via Army Radio) — Weather-beaten Yanks, their lines spread thin and their supplies bogged down, are fighting extremely tough Japanese opposition and a 100-mile-an-hour typhoon in the battle for the road to Ormoc today.

Elements of four Japanese divisions, including the crack First, are making the Americans pay dearly for every ridge in the Pinamopoan area.

Only a trickle of supplies is reaching the Yanks, because of roads made impassable by the storm, while many advance units are conserving their ammunition and in some cases going without food.

More Supplies Needed

Major General Irving, 24th Division commander, told Fred Hampson, Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th, he was convinced a heavy Japanese concentration is across his front and that it will take a powerful assault to clear it out.

He added that the Carigara coast road is in such bad condition, because of mud and washouts, it cannot supply such an attack until a stockpile of supplies is built up at Pinamopoan.

The general said Japanese failure to attack the American coastal holdings may mean that he has been caught off balance or his supplies, too, are bogged down.

"Toughest Terrain"

The Americans are fighting "in the toughest terrain I ever saw, and this storm hasn't helped," said Irving. "Because of the size of the Jap force we've had to spread ourselves a bit thin."

Spencer Davis, another Associated Press war correspondent with the 24th, in a dispatch filed yesterday but delayed in transmission, described an assault by American troops on one of the Ormoc Valley ridges during the height of a howling wind and rain storm. The Japs fled, leaving shattered mounds of unburied dead behind.

Still indecisive the battle centered in ridges abutting a horseshoe bend, with the tiny village of Limon as its focal point. Neither side claimed victory. General MacArthur's communique stated simply that "heavy fighting on the ridge lines is taking place on the winding road."

Japs Sound Warning

The Japanese commander, newly appointed Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, declared only that the Americans "will find out that conditions here in the Philippines are entirely different. Here in the Philippines . . . we can give free play to our warfare." His broadcast significantly failed to mention actual progress of the western Leyte fighting.

Aerial warfare was brought to a standstill by the hurricane; but before it struck, American fighters swarmed above the Japanese supply and bivouac areas on the Ormoc plateau and continued their offensives against other targets on islands adjacent to Leyte. Seven enemy planes were shot down.

Strongpoints Reduced

No mention was made of important engagements on Leyte except the major tussle of the 24th Division. The communique said the 96th Division still was reducing enemy strongpoints west of Dagami, but the Seventh Infantry and the First Cavalry divisions went unmentioned.

The communique did single out the guerrillas for more mention. These Filipino units, working in the mountain areas, were reported harassing the Japanese day and night and hampering the enemy's freedom of movement.

YANKS DESTROY 30 JAP AIRCRAFT

Bombers, Fighters Active from Solomons to Philippines.

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Friday, Nov. 10—(AP) American aircraft ranging over thousands of miles from the Solomons to the Philippines destroyed seven enemy aircraft in the skies, 23 on the ground, and probably destroyed seven others in a series of sweeps during the last 24 hours.

The toll claimed today in General MacArthur's supplemental communique also included one small freighter and a barge sunk, various small craft destroyed and numerous buildings, anti-aircraft positions and supply dumps hit.

Three American aircraft were lost.

At Negros in the Philippines where bombers dropped 56 tons on Alicante and Fabrica airfields, destroying six parked planes, four of 11 intercepting fighters were downed. Two others were probably destroyed. Two American bombers were lost.

Japs Rush Planes To Philippine Sector

At a Leyte Air Base, Philippines, Nov. 8 (AP—Delayed) (Via Army Radio)—From all indications, the Japanese are rushing considerable air strength into the Philippines from Chinese and Japanese bases in an attempt to break the American stranglehold on Leyte, American pilots declare.

Many types of Japanese planes from radial-engined Oscar fighter-bombers to twin-engine heavy bombers have been encountered in the hectic days since American army fighters took over the job of air cover from the navy.

Most of the planes are first rate, the American pilots say, but the Japanese pilots range from extremely clever and daring to timid. In some cases, Japanese pilots have been known to run even when they outnumbered attacking Americans.

Japs On Philippines Again Feel P-40 Sting

A Leyte Air Base, Philippines, Nov. 7 (AP—Delayed) The mighty little P-40, America's first-line fighter plane in the Philippines when war broke out, made a dramatic return today.

The first unit of the "Kittyhawks" to arrive on Leyte, under Capt. Rubel Archeleta, San Francisco, celebrated its return by bagging three Japanese fighters in the first dogfight.

Captain Archeleta shot down one plane and got a probable. Second Lieutenants Martin Regan, Philadelphia, and Harry Johnson, Atlanta, Ga., bagged one each.

Former Baltimore Radio Announcer Leads Unit In Drive On Leyte

By Spencer Davis

With United States 24th Division, Leyte Island, Nov. 8 (AP—Delayed)—Strong spearheads of this division fought the enemy over terrain of his own choosing today, third day of the "horseshoe bend" battle in northwestern Leyte.

Almost without exception, the American wounded growled:

"Why don't they come out and fight like us?"

The wooded ridges provide ideal cover for Japanese snipers, machine gunners and mortarmen, commanding the road below, along which fired Americans are pushing toward Ormoc, last Japanese stronghold on Leyte.

Deployed On Ridges

On a grassy knoll, Major Francis R. Dice, of Baltimore—showing the strain of day and night fighting—deployed his men on low ridges, then sent them forward to clean the Nipponese from gullies directly ahead.

When the high voice of Japanese light machine guns echoed across the gully, Capt. Julian Van Winkle, of Louisville, Ky., commanding a tank unit, ordered two Shermans to advance and assist.

A walkie-talkie report said one tank had been hit by a land mine, and the rear hatch was blown off. None was wounded, but the tank had to retire.

Japs Dislodged

Dice called on a mortar battery to plaster enemy targets. When the second tank drew back to the knoll the attack seemed stalled.

His tank destroyers sent their 3-inch shells volleying at almost point-blank range. This succeeded in dislodging the Japanese, who promptly opened sniper fire.

"Persistent devils, aren't they?" said Dice. "Let's burn them out."

Fire shells were dropped on the ridge. Grass standing eight feet high quickly caught fire and sent a great blaze rolling up the ridge. There was no more fire after that.

Former Radio Announcer

Major Dice, 40, a former member of the Maryland National Guard and an announcer with radio Station WCAO at the time he entered the army, is the husband of Mrs. Dorothy Dice, of 208 Oak avenue, Pikesville.

His wife stated today that Major Dice went overseas about six months ago.

A guardsman for approximately 12 years before the war with Japan broke out, Major Dice was a captain when the guard was federalized in 1940. He attained his present rank in 1942.

With 29th On Maneuvers

Major Dice was with the 29th Division when it went on maneuvers in South Carolina, but when the Blue and Gray went to England he remained behind and was assigned to several camps in the West.

A native of Eastport, Pa., Major Dice has lived in Baltimore since 1922. He attended City College for one year and was graduated from St. John's College, where he was a pre-medical student, in 1926. He continued the study of medicine at the Johns Hopkins University, but left after one year to enter radio.

Son Of A Minister

His father, the Rev. Walter J. Dice, is a minister in Hagerstown.

He has two children—Claire, 17, a student at the Maryland Institute, and Phillip, 13, a pupil at the Franklin High School.

Japs Will Demand Full Surrender

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP)—Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, new Japanese army commander in the Philippines, is going to demand "unconditional surrender" from Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the Tokyo radio announced today.

Yamashita, who conquered the Malay peninsula and captured Singapore early in the war, told Jose P. Laurel, puppet Philippine president, according to the broadcast, that the "only words" he spoke to the British commander during the negotiations for the surrender of Singapore were "All I want to hear from you is 'yes or no.'

"I expect to put the same question to MacArthur."

The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

In another broadcast Tokyo radio said a "mass rally" was held yesterday at Taihoku in northern Formosa as part of a Japanese campaign "to stir to action the 100,000,000 people for the destruction of the United States and Britain."

PACIFIC FLYERS ATTACK WIDELY

Police Jap Bases on Arc Extending 3000 Miles.

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—The biggest aerial "police boat" in the world is being maintained over Jap bases in the Pacific while ground forces concentrate on retaking the Philippines.

A Wednesday communique of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and one issued today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported activity by a wide category of Navy and Army planes directed at fifteen island groups this week. The targets were spread over as much as 3,000 miles from north to south and an equal distance from east to west.

Raiders ranged as far south and west as Soemba Island in the Lesser Sundas; as far north as Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands—750 miles from Tokyo; as far east as the Marshalls.

Jap Destroyer Hit.

Planes of Nimitz's command area hit the Volcanoes, the Marianas, North Palau, Marcus, Wake and the Marshalls. Planes of the MacArthur sector raided western and southern Philippines, Dutch Celebes, Halmahera, Boeroe, the Lesser Sundas, New Guinea, New Ireland, New Britain and Bougainville.

Several damaging hits were scored on a Jap destroyer in the southern Philippines. A freighter was sunk in the western Philippines. A freighter-transport was damaged in the Lesser Sundas. A coastal vessel was hit off Boeroe.

Thirty-five to thirty-nine enemy planes were shot down in the western Philippines. A parked plane was wrecked in the southern Philippines. Two grounded bombers were erased in the Volcanoes.

Shipyards Blasted.

Shipbuilding yards were damaged severely at Malili, Dutch Celebes. Airfields were cratered in the Philippines, Halmahera, the Volcanoes and Wake. Anti-aircraft batteries and a radio station were attacked on Marcus.

The raids reported extended over a period of days dating back to Sunday.

On the enemy's side eleven Nipponese planes raided American-held Saipan and Tinian in the Marianas on November 6, of which three, possibly four, were shot down. A single Jap plane raided Morotai, south of the Philippines.

The announced American raiding losses included a bomber and three fighters.

Pearl Harbor Raider Bagged In Solomons

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP)—Radio Tokyo disclosed today that the Japanese flying boat which "surprise-raided Pearl Harbor" on March 4, 1942, was shot down during the second battle of the Solomons and all five members of its crew killed.

The Tokyo broadcast, quoting the agency Domei, was recorded by the FCC. It said the five flyers, all warrant officers, drew posthumous decorations and promotions.

Domei said the flying boat was shot down off the Solomons "while conducting a reconnaissance against an enemy task force."

The United States War Department, telling of the March 4, 1942, raid, said "a single enemy plane dropped several bombs near Honolulu. . . . The bombs were dropped from above the clouds and did no damage."

MARINES OBSERVE 'BIRTHDAY' TODAY

HONOLULU, Nov. 9—(AP) With the United States Marine corps observing its 169th anniversary tomorrow, it was disclosed today that the Leatherneck's First Defense battalion has partially avenged the loss of its famous Wake Island detachment.

The battalion participated with other Marine, Army and Navy units in seizing Majuro Atoll in the Marshalls last February, while other American forces conquered Kwajalein in the Marshall group.

Wake fell to the Japanese Jan. 24, 1942, after the vastly outnumbered bulldog detachment from the First Defense battalion had put up a heroic defense.

Col. L. A. Horn of Bowling Green, Ohio, and San Diego, Calif., led the battalion in the Majuro attack. He was the officer who set up the Wake island defenses and turned them over to Maj. James P. Devereux of Washington, D. C., who was made prisoner when the Japanese overran the island.

Sgt. William C. Harris, Savannah, Ga., Marine combat correspondent and formerly a reporter on The Washington, D. C., Post, said a secret U. S. airfield and base have been built on Majuro near the enemy's remaining Marshall holdings on Mili, Jaluit, Wotje and Maloelap atolls.

The Japanese reconnoitered Majuro occasionally, but never bombed it.

The First Defense battalion also seized Arno Atoll near Mili, and near Maloelap and Erikub six miles from Wotje.

Lt. Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commander of the Marine corps, sent the Pacific Marines anniversary greetings expressing "deserved pride in our role as the spearhead of the great amphibious drive against a formidable enemy."

"Today, as new blows are being readied, we stand prepared for further action," Vandegrift added. "Whatever obstacles confront us, we shall destroy them and press on to our goals."

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific ocean areas, told the Marines, in his anniversary message, "the Pacific fleet is proud of its land fighting arm, its Fleet Marine force. You will continue in the forefront of our drive against Japan."

REDS CROSS TISZA ON 40-MILE FRONT

Troops Launch Drive to Encircle Besieged Budapest.

LONDON, Friday, Nov. 10—(AP) Russian troops in a new encircling move on besieged Budapest yesterday swept across the middle Tisza river on a 40-mile front northeast of the Hungarian capital, advancing 17 miles to a point less than a mile from the key Budapest-East Slovakian railway, Moscow announced last night.

A late Budapest broadcast recorded in Bern, Switzerland, said other Soviet units had renewed their onslaught in the capital's southern suburbs, where fierce house-to-house fighting raged.

100,000 Nazis Killed

A special Soviet information bureau announcement said Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army had killed more than 100,000 Germans and Hungarians and captured 42,160 since Oct. 6, when the invasion of the last big Axis satellite nation began.

This total of 142,160 made a grand total of 1,400,891 enemy troops killed or captured since June 23, on the basis of official Moscow statements.

The Russians smashed through the enemy's Tisza river line at a time when it apparently had been weakened in order to try to reinforce and save Budapest itself, and their nearest units were 60 miles northeast of the capital.

A midnight Moscow communique said that one enemy unit, the 27th Hungarian infantry regiment, was routed after losing three-quarters of its personnel, as the Russians swept to within easy artillery range of the Budapest-East Slovakian railway connecting the Hungarian and Czechoslovakian fronts.

Berlin implied that the Russians already had cut the Budapest-east Slovakian railway, a development which might force the Germans to begin a slow withdrawal into central Czechoslovakia and hasten the expected fall of Budapest.

In a wide encircling move on Budapest other Soviet troops were reported by Berlin to have crossed the Danube river at Dunafoldvar, 43 miles south of the bomb-battered capital whose reinforced defenders still are holding the Russians on the southern rim of the city.

Reds Penetrate Buda

French radio reports said Russian units attacking in Budapest's outskirts had crossed the Danube and penetrated into Buda district, but neither Moscow nor Berlin told of any Soviet entry into the prize city on the road to Austria and Germany.

In Yugoslavia another Red army once more was on the move. Berlin's communique said, without Soviet confirmation, that units of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine army had crossed the Danube at Apatin, 15 miles south of the Hungarian frontier and gained a foothold on the west bank only 15 miles northeast of the big communications center of Osijek and 142 miles east of the Croat capital of Zagreb.

Allied Mediterranean air force headquarters estimated that 100,000 Germans were in danger of being trapped in southern Yugoslavia and Albania, and that 250,000 other enemy troops were clinging to the northern part of Yugoslavia.

The entire German front in northeastern Hungary was nearing a collapse with the new Soviet strike across the Tisza. The Russians captured 50 localities in that area and east and southeast of Budapest, the communique said.

Russians Capture Igrici

At the top of a front moving westward between Polgar and Abadszalok the Russians took Igrici, eight miles beyond the Tisza and 15 miles southeast of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth city.

Mezokeresztes, nine miles southwest of Igrici, was the deepest penetration achieved by the Russians. It put them within a mile of the Budapest-Ungvar trunk railway connecting the Hungarian and Czechoslovakian fronts, and five miles northeast of Mezokovesd, a large town on the railway.

Berlin said that fresh armored columns hurled into action at Mezokovesd had halted the Russians outside that town.

Farther south other Soviet units, crossing from Tiszafired, captured the west bank town of Poroszlo, advanced nine miles beyond and captured Mezotarkany, and nearby Besenyotelek. Both these localities are within five miles of the railway.

Russians Cross Danube At Apatin

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The German high command said today the Russians had crossed the Danube at Apatin, in northern Yugoslavia, 15 miles south of the Hungarian border and 125 miles south of Budapest, and a "battle is still raging there."

The broadcast communique said the Russians had penetrated that part of Apatin which is on the west bank.

Mass Forces During Lull

The Russians were reported massing men and materials along the Eastern Front for the "decisive action against the vital centers of Germany" promised by Premier Stalin.

A brief Soviet communique dismissed developments by noting "no essential changes at the front," but the German radio described the comparative quiet as "the calm before the storm."

Besieged and strife-torn Budapest was considered the most likely target for a fresh and heavier assault. The Berlin radio reported new concentrations of Soviet tanks in the outskirts of the Hungarian capital.

Reds Protest To France

Russia has lodged a protest with the French Government over treatment of Soviet war prisoners in France, the Moscow radio said last night.

"A considerable number of Soviet citizens transferred by the Germans to France during Hitler's occupation did not receive the rights of nationals of an Allied power liberated from captivity," declared the broadcast. "They found themselves in prisoner-of-war camps together with German prisoners."

(Field dispatches from the Western front frequently have mentioned the capture of Russians, Poles and soldiers of other nationalities who have been impressed into the Germany army. These have been treated as prisoners of war pending clarification of their status. Whether the Russian broadcast referred to these was not clear.)

Drive Has Slowed Down

The Russian drive on Budapest slowed two days ago in the face of desperate German and Hungarian resistance and heavy rains.

The Paris radio said street fighting took place in Pest on the east bank of the Danube and declared some Hungarian soldiers and workers had gone over to the Russian forces. The Brussels radio quoted neutral sources as reporting that Soviet artillery had been installed in Pest. Moscow has not confirmed that Soviet troops are inside the capital.

Nazis Claim Defensive Victory

New blows also were expected against the 30 German divisions reported trapped in western Latvia beyond the Baltic port of Liepaja. The Germans contended last night that the first stage of the battle at this front was a defensive victory for their army, which, they said, warded off blows of 60 Russian infantry divisions and 18 tank divisions.

East Prussia, expected to be a theater of violent battle this winter, was the scene of localized fighting along the Niemen river yesterday. The Russian communique said Germans who tried to cross the river in motor boats near Tilsit were mowed down and two boats sunk.

Russian Official Visits Bucharest.

Moscow, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—Soviet Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs A. Y. Vishinsky arrived in Bucharest today to check on steps taken by the Romanian Government to fulfill the terms of the armistice.

Red-Day Celebration 'Broken Up' In Iran

Moscow, Nov. 9 (AP)—Iranian militia and police were reported today by the Tass news agency to have broken up a planned celebration at Teheran by the Labor Union Council and other organizations Tuesday on the 27th anniversary of the Soviet Union.

The Tass dispatch from Teheran said labor union officials had been arrested.

November 7 is Russia's biggest and most solemn holiday. The reports of the discord put an even greater strain on relations between Russia and Iran, already strained over the question of oil concession.

Iranian Premier Quits, Turkish Radio Reports

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Premier Mohamed Saed, whose Iranian Government has been under attack from Russia for refusing to grant oil concessions to the Soviet Union, resigned today, the Turkish home radio reported.

The radio, quoting a broadcast from Teheran, said the resignation was accepted by Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, 25-year-old ruler of Iran. The broadcast was recorded by the FCC.

This report came after an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow said a new strain had been placed on Soviet-Iranian relations because police at Teheran broke up a planned celebration of the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

Announcement of the arrest of officials of the Labor Union Council and other organizations, carried by Tass, was published in Moscow.

Report Hammerfest Is Left Uninhabited

Stockholm, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—The Germans have evacuated the Norwegian town of Hammerfest, the northernmost town in Europe, and have removed the civilians, the Berlin correspondent of the Aftonbladet reported today.

An Arctic Ocean port, Hammerfest, was recently attacked by planes of the British Home Fleet, and is threatened now by the Russian columns that captured Petsamo and Kirkenes.

EXILED POLES SUBMIT REPORT TO AMERICANS

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP) Poland's exiled government was reported tonight to have submitted indirectly to the United States department certain suggestions aimed at establishing an accord with Russia which would guarantee Poland's independence.

A reliable Polish quarter said the government's proposals were handed to Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, this week and probably were forwarded immediately by the British government to the Americans.

It was learned that the Polish government is insisting that any settlement of the Polish question should insure Poland's freedom.

Prime Minister Churchill has spoken on the desirability of a three power guarantee of an independent, sovereign Poland. The London Polish view is that such a guarantee should cover the inviolability of the new Polish frontiers as well as Poland's freedom from outside interference in her internal affairs.

Poles Declared Ready To Accept Curzon Line

New York, Nov. 9—The Bern radio said today that the Polish Government in London now was ready "to accept the Curzon line as the definite frontier between Poland and the U. S. S. R."

This account said the exile Government was ready to accept the line, under which Poland would lose some of its pre-war eastern territory, with a modification which would put the city of Lwow inside the new borders of Poland.

NEW PARLEY LIKELY SOON

Churchill Says Election Results Improved Prospect

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today "it is high time" that he, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin had another conference. He declared that "the prospects of such a meeting have been vastly improved by the results of the Presidential election in the United States, for which we waited so breathlessly on Tuesday last."

A new tri-power conference "might easily bridge the sufferings of mankind and stop the fearful process of destruction which is now ravaging the earth," he said.

The Prime Minister spoke at the annual luncheon for the Lord Mayor of London, this time for Sir Frank L. Alexander. It was an historic occasion, glittering with the pageantry of the city's past, bright with the scarlet and ermine robes of its officials.

Calls For Full Exertion

"Now we stand on the threshold of Germany," Churchill cautioned, "it will take the full exertions of the three great powers, every scrap they can give, to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist at last beaten back to his own lair."

The Prime Minister held out no hope of swift victory. He said instead that "no one can be blamed, provided he does not slacken his efforts for a moment, for hoping that victory may come to the Allies and peace may come to Europe in 1945."

Urging upon Britain's men and women a new surge of strength, he said flatly "I cannot offer you an easy future on the continent of Europe. It is always in the last lap of the race that great efforts must be forthcoming. It is no moment now to slacken."

Says Pause Is Inevitable

Churchill said that a pause in the Allied advance was "inevitable." He pointed out that in the last few months the supreme command had concentrated upon bringing up supplies and reinforcements and improving harbors, in addition to directing the fighting in Holland and Italy.

Grimly he declared that the operations in Italy, Holland and Belgium had cost the British and Canadian forces "very heavy losses."

"I think it right to point out in a precise and definite manner," he added, "that these two important battles . . . are only the prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come."

Tribute To Both Parties

In discussing the American election, he paid tribute "to both the great parties for the manner in which the interests of the Allies and the prosecution of the war have been held high above the dust of partisanship" and to Dewey for his "sportsmanlike manner" in defeat.

"America," he said, "has given an example to the world of how democratic institutions can be worked with the utmost vigor and freedom without injury to the permanent interests of the state."

Praising the British press, Parliament and public officials for refraining from "mixing ourselves up" in the American campaign, he said he felt free now to express "on personal grounds the very great joy it gives me to know that my wartime and intimate cooperation with President Roosevelt will be continued in the months that lie immediately before us."

"These are months profoundly interwoven with the future of both our countries, and also, we trust, the future association of our two countries will be interwoven with the peace and progress of the whole world," he said.

THREE-POWER PARLEY URGED BY CHURCHILL

Prime Minister Expresses Joy Co-operation With Roosevelt Will Go On.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO GOV. DEWEY

Hails Conduct of U. S. Elections as Democracy's Proof—Sees British Poll in 1945.

London, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill said today that it was "high time we had another triple conference." Such a meeting of himself, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin, he declared at the Lord Mayor's luncheon, might easily bridge the sufferings of mankind and stop the fearful process of destruction which is now ravaging the earth.

"The prospects of such a meeting," he continued, "have been vastly improved by the results of the presidential elections in the United States."

After pausing here for a moment, while the audience applauded, Mr. Churchill added: "And for which we waited so breathlessly on Tuesday last."

His auditors also applauded when he declared that Field Marshal Montgomery had opened the estuary of the Schelde, thus opening to Allied shipping the great Belgian port of Antwerp, and putting Antwerp "at the disposal of the northern flank of the Allied armies which will presently move into Germany for the final struggle." But the operation had cost heavy British and Canadian casualties, he added.

He spoke at the inauguration of the new Lord Mayor, Sir Frank Alexander.

Praises Gov. Dewey.

Praising the British press and Parliament for refraining from mixing in the American campaign he said that he felt free now to express "on personal grounds the very great joy it gives me to know that my wartime and intimate cooperation with President Roosevelt will be continued in the months that lie immediately before us."

"These are months profoundly interwoven with the future of both our countries," he said, "and also we trust that the future association of our two countries will be interwoven with the peace and progress of the whole world."

British Election Forecast.

Declaring that the United States had given an example to the world of how democratic institutions can be worked "with the utmost vigor and freedom without injury to the permanent interests of the State," the Prime Minister went on to say: "We know that we in Britain have in the Republican party of the United States vast numbers of friends and well-wishers and that the upholding of Anglo-American friendship is cherished by tens of millions in both of the great parties over there."

It seemed almost certain, Mr. Ch[illegible] said, that Britain would have a general election in 1945. He expressed the belief that it would be conducted "with all the liveliness and robust vigor which will gratify the political emotions of our public, without destroying that marvelous underlying unity and sense of brotherhood which has long existed in this country and has reached its highest degree among the perils from which we have been delivered."

At an earlier point in his address Mr. Churchill said that no one could be blamed for hoping that victory would come to the Allies and peace to Europe in 1945, provided "he does not slacken his or her efforts for a moment."

Britain's dominant thought is to end the frightful slaughter and devastation in Europe within the shortest possible time, he said, adding: "Although it is our duty to work hard — and we have worked hard — to produce large schemes of social improvement and advance, although it is our duty to make preparations for the change over from war to peace, or from war in Europe to war in Japan, in far distant Asia, although we are bound to work as hard as we can, nothing shall stand in the way of the prosecution of the war to its ultimate conclusion."

Text of Churchill's 'Big-3' Address

LONDON, Nov. 9 (U.P.)—Text of Prime Minister Churchill's talk at the Lard Mayor of London's luncheon today:

When I look back over these wartime years I cannot help feeling that time is an inaccurate, even capricious, measure of the duration of it. At one time it seemed so long, and at another so short. Sometimes events are galloping forward at a breathless speed, sometimes there are long, hard pauses which we have to bear. Anniversaries like this seem to recur with extreme rapidity when you get to one and look back to the other It seems such a very brief span, and yet the intervening months are so packed with incidents and so burdened with toil; as you retrace your steps mentally over them, you cannot believe they have been.

It is hard to remember how long ago this war began. One can never be quite sure whether it has lasted a flash or an age. I had a very shrewd suspicion, my Lord Mayor, when I received your gracious invitation, that you would probably propose the health of His Majesty's Ministers, and I must say I held myself in readiness for the task of making some reply. I thought I would see whether I should not get some hint out of what I said last year when this agreeable event and festival was also celebrated.

I saw then that I was congratulating you on the year of victory of 1943. I was congratulating the City of London on the memorable, exhilarating year of almost unbroken success, and I was recounting the long succession of places and countries which have been cleared of the enemy. All of Africa, Sardinia, Corsica and one-third of Italy were in the hands of the British and United States armies.

The mighty war which the United States were waging and are waging in the Pacific had prospered, and in Russia Marshal Stalin's armies were already rolling triumphantly forward to cleanse their native lands of the German invader. But the events of 1943 have been far surpassed by those of 1944.

Rome and Athens, Paris and Brussels all have been rescued or by their own exertions have freed themselves of German oppression. All of Hitler's satellites have turned against him. Not only have they been struck down, but they have actually turned their arms against his baleful coercion.

They who have been driven so far against their interests, against their honor, and, in many cases, their inclinations, have had a chance to turn upon their slave driver and may now wreak the vengeance which is due them, as from so many of the free countries which fought from the beginning.

Both in the east and in the west, Allied vanguards stand on German soil. The U-boat menace has for the time being been practically effaced. There was one month in which up to the last day they had not sunk a single ship. On the last day they got one, and therefore the matter was hardly of the character to be specially mentioned.

That great peril which hung over us so long and at times concentrated the whole attention of the defense organization of this country and of the United States has been effaced, and from the air there rains down upon the guilty German land a hail of fire and explosion of ever-increasing fury.

We have had our own experience, and we know how severe the ordeal may be, but I can assure you that we have not suffered one-tenth and we shall not suffer one-tenth of what is being meted out to those who first started and developed this cruel and merciless form of attack.

Such are some of the fruits of 1944, and no one can be blamed, provided he does not slacken his or her efforts for a moment, for hoping that victory may come to the Allies and peace may come to Europe in 1945.

When I was here last year I could not tell you that I was about to start for a meeting of three great Allies—the heads of three great governments—Teheran. There it was that the plans were made and agreements and decisions taken which were executed with so much precision and with a degree of combination to which Marshal Stalin referred in his wise and weighty speech of a few days ago.

Now I don't mind saying that it is high time we had another triple conference and that such a meeting might easily abridge the sufferings of mankind and the fearful process of destruction which is ravaging the earth. Prospects of such a meeting have been vastly improved by the results of the Presidential elections in the United States, and for which we waited so breathlessly on Tuesday last.

I thought, looking back on my past records, that when I was here last year I appealed to the British and American public to be very careful that election year did not in any way ruffle the good-will that exists throughout the English-speaking world and which was of so great aid to our armies. It is certainly gratifying that it should have been carried through without any disturbing of the ancient, moth-eaten controversies which are to be found in history books between Great Britain and her American kinsmen, now brothers-in-arms.

We must be very careful ourselves to avoid mixing ourselves up in American political affairs. I offer my thanks to Parliament, the press and to public men of all parties—perhaps especially to them—for the care and restraint which have made all potential indiscretions die upon their lips.

Now that that event is over and the results have been declared, there are a few things I should like to say about the American Presidential election. Let us first of all express our gratitude to both great parties for the manner in which the interests of alliance and prosecution of the war have been held high above the dust of partisanship. America has given an example to the world of how democratic institutions can be worked with the utmost vigor and freedom without injury to the permanent interests of state. We know that we in Britain have in the Republican party of the United States a vast number of friends and well-wishers and the upholding of Anglo-American friendship is cherished by tens of millions in both great parties over there.

I am sure that everybody will be moved by the sportsmanlike manner in which Governor Dewey in the moment of his defeat offered his congratulations to his opponent and pledged his party to work wholeheartedly for the world cause. What a model this would be to those States where political differences are not solvable by word and vote and where the question of who is to be in and who is to be out may be one of life and death, to be settled by violence, and where there may be but a short gap between being a ruler and being a victim.

Here in this country—foremost in all democratic and parliamentary conceptions of modern times—we in this country who are very old in the game of party politics have learned how to carry through and debate great, fiercely contested political issues without the severance of national life or even, in most cases, without severance of personal and private friendship.

However we may regret it, it seems almost certain that this old island will have its first general election in 1945, and I am sure that it will be conducted by all concerned with all liveliness and robust vigor which will gratify the political emotions of our public without destroying that marvelous underlying unity and sense of brotherhood which has long existed in this country and which has reached its highest degree among the perils from which we have been delivered.

I said a few moments ago that we have strictly avoided any question of opinion about party issues in the United States, but at this moment, now, I feel free to express, on personal grounds, the very great joy it gives me to know that my wartime and intimate cooperation with President Roosevelt will be continued in the months that lie immediately before us. These are months profoundly interwoven with the future of both our countries, and also, we trust, the future association of our two countries will be interwoven with the peace and progress of the whole world.

We have here in General Koenig and in Burgomaster Dr. van de Meulebroeck living representatives to bring home the splendid events which have so recently taken place.

The interest of the world has been dominated by the decisive battle in Normandy in which the Anglo-American armies destroyed and pulverized the structure of German military resistance in France. A brilliant exploitation of victory enabled the Americans to sweep the enemy from France, aided by the audacious and gallant Maquis, and enabled the British to clear the Channel coast and to drive the enemy out of Belgium and out of a large portion of Holland.

How many times, when a great battle has been won, have its results been thrown away? Here we have seen the highest result, surely and firmly seized and held at every stage. There comes a time when the pursuers outstrip to the utmost limits their supplies. An enemy falling back on his own territory is enabled to once again form a front, and this shows itself very plainly by the furious and continuous fighting which has broken out on the Moselle and in that neighborhood when the Americans advanced forward with so much impetus and then came up against the hard core of recovered enemy resistance.

A pause in the Allied advance was inevitable, and during that last few months the bringing up of supplies and reinforcements and the improvement of harbors have been the main preoccupation of the Supreme Allied Command, apart from the heavy fighting I have spoken of on the Moselle. But during these last eight or ten weeks two considerable operations have been fought by armies under British command in both of which Polish and Canadian forces were represented and in both of which a large proportion of United States troops fought with their customary skill.

The largest of these two great operations was in Italy under General Alexander. They have surmounted the terrible barrier of the Apennines and the Gothic Line, and this has carried us into the Valley of the Po. The progress of the year—of the season—has brought us bad weather, quite unaccustomed weather for this time of year, and we are facing a strongly fortified line held by an army which is practically as large as our own. It was a great fall feat of arms.

The second interim victory has been in the Netherlands under Field Marshal Montgomery, and it has opened the Schelde and will very shortly place the great port of Antwerp at the disposal of the northern flank of the Allied Army which presently moves into Germany for the final struggle.

In these two operations in Italy and Holland and Belgium very great losses have been sustained, in the greatest proportion by the British and Canadian forces. In both we have been aided by our valiant allies. In both opportunities have been offered for superb feats of heroism, and deeds have been done which, when they are known and can be studied with the attention they deserve, will long figure in song and story and will long light the martial annals of our race.

I think it is right to point out in a precise and definite manner that these two important battles, one in the Apennines and the other in the west, are only a prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come. Now we stand on the threshold of Germany, and it will take the full exertions of the three great powers and every scrap of strength they can give to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist, at last beaten back to his own lair.

Any more than on former occasions I cannot offer you an easy future on the Continent of Europe. It is always in the last lap of the race that great efforts must be forthcoming. It is no

---

Elsewhere in reference to the war he said: "Now we stand on the threshold of Germany, and it will take the full exertions of the three great Powers, every scrap of strength they can give, to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist at last beaten back to his own lair."

Promises No Easy Time.

Urging upon Britain's men and women a new surge of strength, he said flatly: "I cannot offer you an easy future on the Continent of Europe. It is always in the last lap of the race that great efforts must be forthcoming. It is no moment now to slacken."

Mr. Churchill said that a pause in the Allied advance was "inevitable." He pointed out that in the last few months the Supreme Command had concentrated upon bringing up supplies and reinforcements and improving harbors, in addition to directing the fighting in Holland and Italy. Grimly he declared that the operations in Italy, Holland and Belgium had cost the British and Canadian forces "very heavy losses."

"I think it right to point out in a precise and definite manner," he added, "that these two important battles . . . are only the prelude to further great operations which must be conducted in the months to come."

"When I was here last year I appealed to the British and American public to be very careful that election year did not in any way ruffle the good will that existed throughout the English-speaking world, and which was so great an aid to our armies," the Prime Minister recalled.

"It is certainly remarkable that all this turmoil of the United States election should have been carried through without any disturbing of the ancient, moth-eaten, threadbare controversies which are to be found in the history books between Great Britain and her American kinsmen, now brothers in arms.

Thanks For Restraint

"We must be very careful ourselves to avoid mixing ourselves up in American political affairs. I offer my thanks to Parliament, press and public men of all parties and no parties—perhaps especially to them—for the care and restraint which have made all potential indiscretions die upon their lips."

Churchill praised Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for sportsmanship in defeat, saying: "What a model this would be to those states where political differences are not solvable by word or vote, where the question of who is to be in and who is to be out may be one of life and death, to be settled by violence and intrigue and where there may be but a short gap between being the ruler and being the victim."

Air War On Reich

Describing air attacks upon Germany, the Prime Minister asserted "we have not suffered one tenth, and we shall not suffer one tenth, of what is being meted out to those who first started and developed this cruel and merciless form of attack."

He said no one could be blamed for hoping that victory would come to the Allies and peace to Europe in 1945, provided "he does not slacken his or her efforts for a moment."

Churchill expressed "great joy" that his cooperation with President Roosevelt would be continued.

"These are months profoundly interwoven with the future of both our countries," he said, "and also we trust that the future association of our two countries will be interwoven with the peace and progress of the whole world."

Churchill said the United States had given an example to the world of how Democratic institutions can be worked "with the utmost vigor and freedom without injury to the permanent interests of the state."

British Election Seen

"We know," he continued, "that we in Britain have in the Republican party of the United States vast numbers of friends and well-wishers, and the upholding of Anglo-American friendship is cherished by tens of millions in both of the great partes over there."

The Prime Minister said it seemed almost certain that Britain would have a general election in 1945. He expressed belief it would be conducted "with all the liveliness and robust vigor which will gratify the political emotions of our public, without destroying that marvelous underlying unity and sense of brotherhood which has long existed in this country and has reached its highest degree among the perils from which we have been delivered."

Britain's dominant thought is to end the "frightful slaughter and devastation" in Europe within the shortest possible time, he said, adding:

Speaks Of War In Asia

"Although it is our duty to work hard—and we have worked hard—to produce large schemes of social improvement and advance, although it is our duty to make preparations for the changeover from war to peace, or from war in Europe to war in Japan, in far distant Asia, although we are bound to work as hard as we can, nothing shall stand in the way of the prosecution of the war to its ultimate conclusion."

moment now to slacken. Hard as it may seem after five long years of war, every man and woman in this island must show what they are capable of doing, and I am sure our soldiers at the front will not be found incapable of that extra effort which is neceessary to crown all that has been attained, and, above all, bring this frightful slaughter and devastation in Europe to an end within the shortest possible period of time.

I can assure you that that, at any rate, is the dominant thought in His Majesty's Government. Although it is our duty to work hard—and we have worked hard—to produce large schemes of social improvement and advancement, although it is our duty to make preparations for the change-over from war to peace or from war in Europe to war in Japan in far distant Asia. Although we are bound to work as hard as we can, nothing shall stand in the way of the prosecution of the war to an ultimate conclusion. If we are to fail in that we should not be worthy either of your confidence or of the kindness which has led you to drink our health this afternoon.

Western European Pact Talks Foreseen

Paris, Nov. 9 (AP)—The semi-official Agence France Presse indicated today formation of a regional pact among western European nations will be discussed at the coming Paris meeting of Winston Churchill, Gen. Charles de Gaulle and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

AFP's diplomatic editor, discussing a world organization for peace, said de Gaulle had stressed recently France's unwillingness to join any "bloc."

World Cooperation

The statement said French policy aims at cooperation between Britain, the United States, Russia and France within a world organization, but added:

"However, past experience has shown that a universal formula cannot be workable without regional agreements among nations interested in the same geographic, economic or political problems.

"In this sense and to the exclusion of any other more particular objective, official French circles would view with satisfaction closer unity of these western European nations—Belgium, Holland, Great Britain and France."

HEAVIES BOMB REICH TROOPS

EUNSON

33 Planes Are Lost Backing Up Patton's New Offensive

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—More than 1,300 American heavy bombers poured 4,000 tons of explosives and thousands of fragmentation bombs onto German troops near Metz today in close support of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army offensive.

More than 2,000 planes, including escorts, patrols and others, joined in the operation, an Eighth Air Force communique announced, and 14 bombers and 19 fighters failed to return.

While Patton's tank-riding veterans crouched on the west banks of the Moselle, wave after wave of Liberators and Flying Fortresses of Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Eighth Air Force roamed the skies ahead, their bombs paving the way for the ground troops.

The bomber fleet was covered by 500 long-range Mustangs.

No Air Opposition

Opposition from the air was lacking again. The Luftwaffe has not attacked the Eighth Air Force since the Germans lost 208 planes last week.

RAF Lancasters attacked targets in the Ruhr, and two bombers were downed. Spitfires and Mustangs escorting the big British bombers all returned. RAF fighter pilots said their eyelashes froze and ice formed outside their cockpits.

It was the second time since the July Blitz at St. Lo that Eighth Air Force bombers had handled the task of pin-pointing their bomb loads on enemy troops. The same bombardiers smashed a hole in the Siegfried Line near Aachen about a month ago.

Roads And Bridges Wrecked

Bombardiers wrecked roads and bridges with 2,000-pounders, showering buildings and supply depots with incendiaries and ripping troop areas with thousands of 100-pound anti-personnel bombs.

When the Liberators and Fortresses turned off their bomb runs and headed home, the Mustangs buzzed inside Germany at deck level, strafing communications.

Returning pilots claimed destruction of 61 locomotives, 227 railroad cars, 65 motor vehicles, five half-tracks, five parked planes and a various assortment of radio towers, dumps and bridges.

About half of 42 fighter planes missing after yesterday's strike are safe, an air force spokesman said. Today, 19 pilots lost yesterday reported from fields in France where they had made forced landings.

ALLIED BOMBERS STRIKE AT RUHR

London, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—The aerial bombardment of western Germany went on today with an attack on objectives in the Ruhr by a force of escorted R. A. F. Lancasters.

No targets were named, but the attack probably was aimed at further crippling Nazi communications lines to the front. Two bombers were lost.

The German radio reported another flight of bombers approaching the Reich from the South. By mid-morning several Nazi stations, including Cologne, had gone off the air.

A small force of R. A. F. Mosquitoes attacked Hanover and other objectives in western Germany during the night without loss.

A damaging double-barreled blow was struck at German synthetic oil plants yesterday at Merseburg and Homberg at a cost of six bombers—five American and one British. Two of about a dozen German jet-propelled fighters were shot down.

One R. A. F. fighter was lost and forty-two American fighters failed to return, but most of them were reported to have landed in France because of the weather.

R. A. F. rocket-firing Typhoons yesterday blew up a German headquarters building near the Reichswald Forest southeast of Nijmegen.

NAZI V-2 ROCKETS BLAST ENGLAND IN NEW ATTACKS

JONES

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP) A sharp flurry of robot bombs which kept Southern England antiaircraft and fighter defenses busy during the night and killed at least five persons stirred speculation today that the Nazis have established new launching sites in northern Holland.

The German radio again declared that the "flying telegraph pole" long range rocket V-2, was being used against England.

"Speculation on where the launching sites of V-1 and V-2 are situated is fruitless" said a broadcast by Transocean, Nazi propaganda agency. "The sites are most skilfully camouflaged. It is impossible to find out where they are."

The robot bombs came over the channel from the northeast. Anti-aircraft guns destroyed some in the air, fighter planes chased others, and at least one bomb fell into the sea.

The spectacular action was watched by many persons, but others hurried for shelters. One couple and their two children buried under the wreckage of their home were rescued.

Blast damage to houses was heavy over a wide area. Rescue work continued all night.

A Transocean broadcast implied that V-2 rockets might be directed against the United States.

"England and other far distant objectives are to be bombarded on an increased scale," the propaganda organization declared. "The technical development of modern long range warfare has entered a new phase."

"It may be that the huge explosions behind the Allied fronts which recently became known and the cause unexplained, thus causing great concern in the Allied camp, can be brought into connection with V-2," it said.

The agency said the Allies must wait before being able to judge the influence of German secret weapons on the course of military events. It declared Germany remained in the race for technical advantages.

A Stockholm report said experiments with V-2 might be going on in isolated sections of Norway.

The Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet wrote that V-2 was "at least as much the theme of general conversation" in Berlin as the re-election of President Roosevelt and the silence of Hitler.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported from a private source that V-2 could be launched from a plane, but said the launching blast blew two out of five planes to bits.

5 Britons Killed By Robot Bombs

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—At least five persons were killed and scores injured during the night when flying bombs crashed in residential areas in southern England.

London was alerted for the first time in three days.

A number of the missiles were shot down over the east coast in a fierce sky display.

Three out of nine injured persons uncovered by rescue squads working all night died en route to hospitals.

The German radio—which yesterday proclaimed that the Nazis' new "V-2" rocket projectile already has been launched against London—declared today that attacks with this weapon will be stepped up. Other secret weapons of great explosive power also will be unleashed, a Berlin broadcast declared.

German Ace Reported Killed In Aerial Fight

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The German communique said tonight that Major Walter Novotny, air group commander credited with bringing down 258 planes, had been killed in aerial combat. He last was reported in action on the eastern front.

"The Luftwaffe loses in him one of its most successful fighter pilots," the communique said.

Nazis Evacuate Yugoslav Valley

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The German high command said today German forces had evacuated the Strumica Valley in southern Yugoslavia, "according to plan."

The withdrawal apparently was a continuation of the retreat from Greece. The Strumica is a passageway through the mountains between Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

The Germans declared in the broadcast communique that they had repulsed Allied forces which landed on Melos Island off the Greek southeast coast "after many days of hard fighting." The Germans reported the landing several days ago.

Netherlands To Claim Part Of Prussia

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Netherlands Government has informed Britain it reserves the right to claim a "suitable part" of adjoining Prussia in compensation for damage caused by the Germans in Holland.

The territory would either be ceded or brought within the economic orbit of the Netherlands on a provisional or permanent basis, Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told Commons today.

Commons cheered when Attlee declared "so far as the British Government are concerned, all just claims for territorial compensation at the expense of Germany which the Netherlands Government may decide to put forward, will be given energetic support."

Quisling Minister Resigns

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—William Hagelin, Minister of The Interior in Premier Vidkun Quisling's puppet government in Norway, has resigned because of poor health, the Oslo radio said today.

U-BOAT PRODUCTION STOPPED

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (AP) The Berlin news agency, International information bureau, quoted Nazi naval authorities as saying that construction of U-boats had been discontinued in favor of greater production of land weapons.

EDEN HINTS REPORT ON PALESTINE ISSUE

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today he would consider issuance of a White Paper dealing with terrorism in Palestine as an outgrowth of the assassination of Lord Moyne, British Minister of State Resident in the Middle East.

Conservative Earl Winterton had inquired whether a White Paper was contemplated, "especially in view of the fact that malicious rumors are being put about in London that the Government are hesitating to publish such a paper because it might create anti-Semitism and do mischief with our Allies in America."

Mr. Eden said Lord Moyne, a member of the wealthy Guinness brewing family, ordered discontinuance of his police escort and house guard in Cairo several months ago. He said the assassins gave the names of Moshe Cohen Itzhak and Chaim Saltzmann and were members of the Stern group of Jewish terrorists.

Dutch See a Market For Natural Rubber

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 9—The Netherland Government was described today as believing there will be ample room in the post-war world for both natural and synthetic rubber and as expecting only "healthy competition" between the two markets.

"American, British and Dutch Government representatives will meet in the United States the first of the year for mutual discussion on post-war supply and demand of natural rubber," said P. H. Westermann, Trade Commissioner of the Netherlands East Indies.

"Although the synthetic rubber industry has become colossal, especially in the United States, we do not look for it to disturb natural rubber production greatly. There is plenty of room for both, and America and Britain are in full accord with us."

De Valera Answers Allies

Dublin, Nov. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera told the Dail today representations had been received from, and replies sent to, Allied governments about the possibility of war criminals seeking refuge in Eire, but he declined to give further information.

ALLIES THREATEN TO FLANK FORLI

HEINZERLING

British Attack on Three Sides of Provincial Capital.

ROME, Nov. 9—(AP) British Eighth army troops, overcoming bitter German resistance, fought across a wide canal forming the eastern boundary of Forli airfield and advanced to within 500 yards of the village of Bussecchio, a mile southeast of Forli, it was announced today.

(A German news broadcast declared two British divisions attacked on a narrow front east and southeast of Forli after a heavy artillery barrage, but said there had been no breakthrough.)

Battles For Airfield

Heavy fighting was reported in progress for the extreme northern end of the airfield, with British infantry and tanks meeting Nazi infantry supported by 60-ton Tiger tanks. One enemy strongpoint nearly a mile southwest of the field was overrun.

While the attack around the airfield gained momentum, other Allied troops advanced up a secondary road leading into Forli from the south. Especially heavy fighting took place between Grisignano and San Martino before San Martino was captured and Allied infantry pushed on within two miles of Forli's southern outskirts.

Polish troops, driving in on Forli from the north, captured Dovodola after stiff street fighting and tonight were moving into hills northwest of the town against heavy opposition.

Forli Faces Encirclement

Thus Forli, a provincial capital 38 miles southeast of Bologna at the edge of the Po valley, was closely invested from three sides and appeared to be in some danger of encirclement.

On the American Fifth army front south of Bologna action remained limited to patrolling and artillery exchanges. American positions in the Monte Grande and Monte Cerere areas came under heavy enemy mortar fire. Rain which has bogged the American front for several weeks continued to fall occasionally in the hills.

In the western coastal sector, where American negro troops have been engaged in hard fighting for dominating features about four miles southeast of Massa, the villages of Fabbiano and Basanti were captured in an advance of more than a mile.

British Advance In Fight For Forli

Rome, Nov. 9 (AP)—British troops of the Eighth Army have advanced to within 500 yards of Bussecchio, about one mile from the bitterly contested Po Valley communications center of Forli, Allied headquarters announced today.

The British crossed the "king of ditches" canal forming the eastern boundary of the Forli airfield and captured the shattered buildings on the north side of the field. Eighty prisoners were taken.

Battle For Airfield

The Germans fought tenaciously for the airfield, using Tiger tanks to support their infantry, which still held the northern tip. The landing strips command the approaches to Forli from the southeast, a short distance from the Rimini-Bologna highway.

Other Allied troops advanced on a secondary road leading into Forli, a city of 66,000, from the south along the Rabbi river.

Heavy fighting took place between Grisgnano and San Martino, and the latter town was taken, placing the Allies within two miles of Forli from the south. Poles to the west captured Dovodola and moved into the hills northwest of the town in heavy fighting.

Infantryman Gets An Air Lesson

By Sydney A. Feder

United States 15th Air Force Headquarters in Italy, Nov. 6 (AP—Delayed)—Lieut. Faine Fairbank can tell you how it feels for an infantryman to find himself sailing around in a Flying Fortress with 2½ engines gone and the other 1½ not acting too healthy.

"It's just a helluva situation for an infantryman to be in," he said upon his return from serving as a waist gunner on a bombing raid against the Maribor rail yards in Yugoslavia.

In Pesonnel Swap

Ordinarily Fairbank, who hails from Lexington, Ky., and formerly lived at Topeka, Kan., is executive officer of a front-line infantry company. He took a turn with the air force in one of the temporary trades the air force and ground troops have been making recently so that each can see how the other half lives.

Also making the flight in the same personnel swap was Lieut. Clarence J. Wilson, Jr., tank platoon commander, of Norristown, Pa., who said his mission was what flyers call the "milk run."

That is to say, all he got was an ack-ack barrage close enough to wound one member of the crew of the bomber piloted by Lieut. Ellsworth S. Minner, of Los Angeles.

Pilot Does The "Impossible"

But Fairbank had the entire works. Two engines on his plane—both on the same side—conked out. It is supposed to be impossible for a B-17 to fly under such circumstances, but the impossible was done by Pilot Lieutenant Edward C. Stock, of Pueblo, Col., with the help of Copilot Alan L. Grout, of Mount Lebanon, Pa., and Engineer Sergeant Douglas W. Iven, of Paterson, N. J.

"I wasn't scared," said Fairbank, "because I've been in some tough spots in this Italian campaign. But I'll admit that when Lieutenant Stock told us to remain quiet and hold on it sure helped to smooth a few rough edges."

"You're My Friend For Life"

Then, 100 miles from home, the third engine began to lose power. The strain also began to tell on the fourth motor. The exhaust stack snapped and the flames of the exhaust glowed against the cowling. But finally, the ship limped in to its home base.

"I just climbed into that cockpit, threw my arms around Stock and said, 'Boy, you're my friend for life,'" Fairbank related.

The most impressive incident of the whole trip came on the way home. While two of the engines were dead and the third was sputtering, Fairbank saw one of the crew members sitting at his position and quietly reading.

"Out of curiosity, I glanced over his shoulder," said Fairbank. "He was reading the Bible."

Yank With Empty Gun Captures Two Nazis

With the United States Fifth Army in Italy, Nov. 9 (AP)—Pfc. Charles L. Winkler, of Yale, Mich., captured two German paratroopers in the mountains south of the Po Valley and marched them nearly a mile to military police and then discovered his gun was not loaded.

Winkler, "armed" with a carbine, surprised the Nazis in a fog. One had a machine pistol and the other a revolver. They came calmly when they saw Winkler's rifle.

Winkler discovered his gun was empty as he began the march back to his company. He kept it secret.

ARMY DESERTERS TERRORIZE ITALY

Two Gangs, One Led By Pennsylvanian, Rounded Up

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The court-martial of ten American Negro soldiers was interrupted today while the judge advocate aroused one of the defendants from a nap. All ten—including the one who dozed off—are charged with murder, the aftermath of a shooting which brought death to two MPs and the wife of an innkeeper.

Rome, Nov. 9 (AP)—Two gangs, composed in part of deserters from the American and Canadian armies and the French Foreign Legion, have been rounded up by military police after terrorizing Rome and Naples for several weeks, it was announced today.

Allied headquarters said in an official announcement that the gangs were charged with kidnapping military policemen, stealing their motorcycles and committing "many other holdups and robberies."

One of the gangs, led by a 23-year-old American soldier from Pennsylvania, was made up entirely of soldiers—six Americans and two Canadians, all AWOL.

Second Led By French Legionnaire

The second, led by a Yugoslav and a Corsican, both deserters from the French Foreign Legion, included five other deserters from the Legion, one American deserter and five Italian and Spanish civilians.

The American and Canadian soldiers face court-martial.

The all-soldier gang is accused of a number of holdups and other acts of violence, including the theft of the automobile of Lieut. Gen. Vladyslaw Anders, commander of the Polish army corps, and the kidnapping of several military policemen between Rome and Naples.

Wreck Of Jeep Broke Up One

The breakup of this gang came after a jeep was wrecked in Rome and one of the Canadian members was injured. Military police charged that he carried a revolver taken from an American MP on the Rome-Naples road.

A guard was placed on the jeep and that night another Canadian, dressed as a United States officer, and an American dressed as a staff sergeant, came to get it. Arrested, they tried to shoot their way out, but were overpowered. The prisoners were found to be ill and they were confined in a Rome hospital.

Then fellow-gangsters appeared at the hospital attired as military policemen in an effort to "spring" the prisoners, but police scared them off.

Rome Cafe Raided

From the three men in custody the police learned about the haunts of the gang and captured four more of the deserters at a Rome cafe.

The larger gang, which used United States Army weapons as part of its equipment, was taken into custody on information from a Spanish civilian.

Lieut. Col. Geoffrey White said the fact that many men AWOL were stranded without funds was responsible for the crimes.

Gangs Of Deserters Rounded Up In Rome

Rome, Nov. 9 (AP)—Military police have rounded up two gangs, made up in part of deserters from the United States and Canadian armies and the French Foreign Legion, believed responsible for a wave of holdups and slayings in Rome and Naples, officials announced today.

NEW GREEK CURRENCY

Athens, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—Greece, her paper money almost valueless as a result of inflation, is going to start all over again on Saturday with a new drachma unit which will be stabilized at 600 to the British pound. That would mean that the new currency, to be issued on November 11, would be worth nominally about two-thirds of an American cent, the same as in 1940.

It will take 50,000,000,000 of the old drachma notes now in circulation to buy one new drachma. The Government said that gold and foreign exchange totaling 43,000,000 British pounds sterling would be behind the new issue.

EGYPTIANS BEGIN PROBE INTO DEATH OF LORD MOYNE

CAIRO, Nov. 9—(AP) The Egyptian government took over today an investigation of two Jewish terrorists accused of assassinating Lord Moyne, British minister of state resident in the Middle East.

(Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in commons the assassins gave the names of Moshe Cohen Itzhak and Chaim Saltzmann, members of the Stern group of Jewish terrorists, and that they singled out Lord Moyne because he was carrying out a policy against Jewish nationals.)

Officials cut off further information on the inquiry, probably until the case goes to trial. Sir William Croft is temporary in charge of the minister resident's office.

The Stern organization, which Cairo police assert ordered the assassination, is a group of Jewish nationalists who employ the methods of American gangsters for allegedly patriotic reasons.

Its Hebrew name means "fighters for the freedom of Israel," and its professed objective is to secure Palestine as a national home for Jews. British intelligence believes fewer than 400 men belong.

Its means of achieving its objective includes murder, dynamiting, blackmail, kidnaping and versions of the "protection racket" directed at both Jews and non-Jews and its strongest opponents are Zionist and other Jewish groups who also want to make Palestine a Hebrew state.

A few hours after Lord Moyne was shot down Monday, J. J. Giltin prominent Zionist official, declared "the council takes this oportunity to state that every responsible, reputable section of world Jewry views with abhorrence the activities of these terrorists."

(Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish agency for Palestine, in a letter to Prime Minister Churchill made public in London tonight deploring "political crimes of this kind," said "I can assure you that Palestine Jewry will go to the utmost limit of its power to cut out, root and branch, this evil from its midst.")

Unlike gangsters, the Sternists are willing to die for what they believe. It is possible that Abraham Stern, for whom the organization was named, ordered his own death. He was shot through the head by unknown killers after police seized him in Haifa last year.

An ultra-nationalist, Stern was even more radical than Vladimir Jabotinsky, with whom he broke in 1939 when the latter ordered a suspension of terrorism for the duration of the war.

With that split a crime wave broke over Palestine, buildings in Jerusalem were dynamited and wealthy Jews were kidnaped or forced to pay for "protection." It ebbed when the Germans threatened Alexandria, but broke again when this enemy drive was smashed.

(Eden said the Government would consider publishing a White Paper on Jewish terrorism after a conservative member of Commons asked if such a step were possible "in view of the fact that malicious rumors are being put about in London" that the Government hesitated to publish such a paper "because it might create anti-Semitism and do mischief with our Allies in America.")

CHINESE CROSS IRRAWADDY RIVER

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 9 — (AP) The Allies campaigning to open a land route to China have driven a third prong into Japanese-held territory in northern Burma, crossing the Irrawaddy river midway between Bhamo and Katha and threatening to outflank both of these enemy strongholds, the Allied command announced today.

Chinese troops carried out the new drive, occupying the town of Shweku on a high cliff on the south bank of the Irrawaddy. The newly-won position is 40 miles southeast of Mawlu, where British troops are operating in the first prong of the new offensive, and about the same distance southwest of Myothit, where Chinese forces thrust the second prong.

The new advance was made over extremely difficult terrain and was conducted with great secrecy. It places the Chinese 22 miles east of Katha, railhead on the Irrawaddy toward which the British are driving, and about 20 miles west of Bhamo, toward which Chinese troops are moving from the north.

Ineffective enemy opposition along the Irrawaddy indicated that the Japanese were taken by surprise. They withdrew rapidly, as they had done along the Myitkyina-Bhamo road to the northwest and along the Myitkyina-Mandalay railroad corridor to the northeast. Only a few minor casualties were suffered by the Allied forces, the daily communique said.

In the Allied advance southeastward from the Tiddim area in northwest Burma, troops of the Fifth Indian division after two days of heavy fighting captured Fort White, the communique announced. The Japanese were pursued four miles farther east.

JAP LIUCHOW DRIVE GAINS

Six Enemy Columns Encircling Chinese Rail Center

Chungking, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Japanese, redoubling their drive to wipe out American air power in south China, rolled up today to within 15 miles of Liuchow—Chinese stronghold and railway center in Kwangsi province—and steadily were encircling the city.

Five columns bore down and a sixth cut around to head off Chinese retreat to the old provisional capital of Yungning (Nanning).

The Japanese were bent on snipping all the railway lines radiating from Liuchow.

Nearest Moves From North

The Chinese high command said that the closest column, moving down from the north, was only 15 miles away, but the peril from other directions appeared almost equal.

A companion column struck to Liucheng, railway town.

The fall of Liucheng would be a heavy blow to the Chinese defenses, for mainly along the railway to Kweichow province lies safety in retreat and hope of reinforcements.

The other main railways lead southwest into Japanese-occupied French Indo-China and south into the overrun province of Kwangtung

Fought To Halt, Chinese Say

The high command asserted that these two most menacing moves were being fought to a halt.

Japanese driving down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway were conceded to have reached the outskirts of Loyung, 20 miles northeast of Liuchow.

[The Japanese agency Domei said forces seizing Loyung had pressed on and were now "launching an attack against the outer defense positions located in the northeastern sector of Liuchow."]

Further advances also were scored by a Japanese force pressing westward from Hsiujen, 47 miles east of Liuchow, and by another swinging up from Mosun, 45 miles southeast.

Make 15-Mile Advance

A 15-mile advance was scored by a Japanese force which drove to within six miles of Laipin, southwest of Liuchow, in an attempt to cut the railway from Liuchow to Yungning.

Ninety-five miles northeast of Liuchow the Japanese were beaten back in five tank-led assaults on encircled Kweilin, like Liuchow a former American air base.

Heavy fighting was reported in the suburbs on the north, south, east and west. (Tokyo radio quoted a front correspondent as saying the Japanese had launched a "general offensive" against Kweilin, which was declared defended by five Chinese divisions.)

Strike At Supply Lines

Chinese attempting to disrupt enemy supply lines into Kwangsi province from the north scored "appreciable gains" in attacks on the suburbs of Tungan, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin, the high command said.

Japanese in the area of Paoching, 63 miles west of Hengyang in Hunan province to the northeast, advanced to a point about seven and a half miles from the city but were beaten back, the Chinese said. Paoching is one of the main points protecting the right flank of the Japanese drive into Kwangsi province.

The high command also reported fighting flared around the fallen East China port of Foochow, with the Japanese moving inland seven and a half miles southeast of the city.

Japs Peril Key Defense Point In S. China

Chungking, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Japanese closed in today on Liuchow, once powerful bastion of American air power in the Orient, with the Chinese high command indicating one enemy spearhead was only 15 miles from that key point in the defenses of South China.

(A Tokyo broadcast said the Japanese were closing in on points barely nine miles from Liuchow, and also announced a general offensive against Kweilin, employing tanks, planes and infantry.)

New Gas Charge

Chinese military authorities asserted the Japanese had used "large quantities" of poison gas at Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi province.

The attempt failed to dislodge the defenders, "who held their positions grimly," the authorities said. Earlier the Chinese high command reported "violent attacks" by the Japanese in the eastern, northern and southern suburbs of Kweilin.

(A broadcast Japanese Domei agency dispatch said the Chinese had constructed artillery emplacements in the suburbs of Kweilin and stocked them with a two-month supply of food and ammunition.

(The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said five Chinese divisions were defending the city.)

Columns Strafed

United States 14th Air Force flyers, active in support of Chinese ground forces, strafed and bombed Japanese columns moving westward on the West river front in South China and on the Salween river front in Yunnan province and attacked Japanese positions on the Burma Road.

Villages near Mangshih, enemy strongpoint on the Burma Road, and gun positions and installations were hit.

New Zealanders Host To Polish Children

Wellington, New Zealand, Nov. 9 (AP)—More than 700 homeless children, war refugees from Poland, have arrived in New Zealand as guests for the duration of the war.

Ranging in age from 5 years to the late teens, they had to flee their homes at the outbreak of war and finally reached far-away Iran.

At Teheran, New Zealanders became interested in the children and invited them there. With them were about 100 doctors, nurses, teachers, priests and attendants.

ARGENTINA CURBS AXIS-OWNED FIRMS

Buenos Aires, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—The Argentine Government adopted today a series of measures designed to enforce stricter surveillance over the activities of firms controlled by Axis capital.

A decree transferred responsibility for the exercise of such vigilance to the recently created Department of Industry and Commerce from the Department of Internal Revenue. Adolfo Silenzi de Stagni resigned from the latter department a few days ago after being admonished for failure to maintain adequate watch over "certain foreign companies."

The decree empowers the department to expropriate firms which are "unable to operate because of conditions inherent in the present war." Presumably these include those on the British and American blacklist. Complete and permanent control over banks and insurance companies directly or indirectly dependent upon countries with whom Argentina has severed relations also was ordered.

German Food Supply Called Quite Adequate

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—John M. Cassels, special assistant to the director of food programs of the Foreign Economic Administration, said today that Germany would not starve this year "even if cut off from all imports."

Cassel, who returned here by transatlantic plane from a food survey in London, declared:

"Germany is comparatively well off on food supplies. Long before the war she began building up agricultural reserves and later she also accumulated supplies from occupied areas. If her crops continue to be good, she will not starve next year, either."

He said that, on the whole, European peoples "were very badly off" for food this year, and the condition was aggravated by "very acute transportation difficulties."

Eisenhower's 'Stars' Top Prize

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—General Eisenhower's four "lucky stars"—the insignia of a full general which he wore during the invasions of Africa, Italy and France—will be awarded as a prize to New York State's top war-bond salesman during the Sixth War Loan.

Japs Reported Offended By Stalin

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP)—Premier Marshal Stalin's speech this week, in which he branded Japan an "aggressor nation," surprised and offended the Japanese people, Domei, Japanese news agency, reported today in a radio broadcast.

The broadcast said that the Russian Premier's address has become the "central topic of discussion of all Japan . . . but Government circles are refraining from making any comments."

"War Of Liberation"

Japanese propagandists reiterated their theme that Japan was fighting the war to "free the peoples of Greater East Asia from the imperialism of America and Britain" and added that the Japanese people were surprised by Stalin's statement since "liberation and aggression are two opposite things and one cannot confuse the two kinds of philosophies."

The Domei broadcast added that "it is naturally expected that the foreign policy of Russia will change as new situations demand. Consequently, it is the firm belief of the Japanese general public that Japan must also adopt a realistic policy which will conform with any new situation created by the Russians. . . . Premier Stalin in his speech did not allude to the Chungking regime. This fact is noteworthy."

Stalin's reference was to "aggressive nations," but the Domei broadcast said, "Premier Stalin branded Japan as an 'aggressor nation.'"

Later the Tokyo radio announced the general staff of the Japanese army has established a bureau to "study the secret of certain victory." The bureau will be headed by Gen. Yoshijiro Umezu, chief of staff, with Gen. Hikosaburo Hata second in command.

FDR WILL RETURN TO CAPITAL TODAY TO RESUME DUTIES

Tremendous Reception Awaits Arrival of Fourth Term Winner.

FACES BIG TASKS

Problems Dealing with War, Domestic Issues Feature Docket.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP) President Roosevelt returns triumphantly to Washington tomorrow, to a tremendous reception and to tremendous tasks.

Waiting for him at the end of a parade from Union station to the White House is a hefty array of problems that will cram his schedule from now until his fourth term starts.

They centered around:

Faces Many Problems

Another Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference on war and world security, vacancies in the Administration, possible cabinet changes, demands for remodelling the Little Steel Wage formula, whipping together annual and budget messages for congress. And those weren't all.

But, for the time being, Washington itself wasn't interested in them. The National Capital hatched spur-of-the-moment plans to turn out the town—with bands, bunting and ballyhoo. Vice President-Elect Harry S. Truman flew eastward from Missouri to join the procession.

Just for the record, still incomplete tallies showed Roosevelt and Truman topping challengers Thomas E. Dewey and John W. Bricker by:

36 states to 12.

432 electoral votes to 99.

The winners had 24,184,832 popular votes to 21,180,685 for Dewey and Bricker, with some 10,000 precincts to go.

Thus their margin in popular ballots was the narrowest since 1916. The electoral lead jumped when tabulation of some of the final Michigan precincts in the Detroit industrial area swung the state into the Democratic column.

Michigan was one of the 10 states that went Republican in 1940. All the other nine were Republican again this year.

Retain Senate Majority

Along with the Democratic win at the top of the ticket went retention of the party's comfortable majority in the Senate, a firm grasp on a House majority, and more Democratic governors. The few races still in doubt couldn't alter that picture.

The role that the new Congress will play in fashioning America's post-war programs for peace and war became the subject of major speculation.

The returns assured the Democrats:

A House membership of 241 and a margin of at least 49, with four races in Missouri and one each in New Jersey and Washington in doubt.

A Senate membership of at least 55 and a plurality over the Republicans of 15, with races in Nevada, Missouri and Pennsylvania in doubt.

Tuesday's ballot flood, which inundated such Roosevelt foreign policy foes as Senator Nye (R-ND), Danaher (R-Conn) and Representatives Fish (R-N.Y.) and Day (R-Ill), apparently had neared its crest.

A late House accounting gave the Democrats 241 members, 23 more than an actual majority as against the 214 they now have, the Republicans clinched 186, in contrast with their present 212.

While the election results seemingly enhanced President Roosevelt's prospects for winning two-thirds Senate approval of the peace and other treaties, Congress still will contain such critics of Roosevelt foreign policy as Senators Wheeler (D-Mont), Johnson (R-Calif), Shipstead (R-Minn), Langer (R-N.D.), and others.

As for the President's docket, some things can wait, but a decision must be made promptly on the date and spot for the parley with Britain's Prime Minister and Russia's Premier.

Tied closely to this projected get-together is the forthcoming United Nations meeting to implement the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a world peace organization.

Russian-Polish differences, a ticklish Argentine situation, a program for handling a conquered Germany, and an invitation to visit Paris are among additional foreign affairs likely to require early consideration by the Chief Executive.

Will Attend Parley

With the American-Russian-British parley in the books before Christmas, Mr. Roosevelt will be cutting close the time required to shape his budget and annual messages.

In his spare time, the Chief Executive can think about picking a new ambassador to China to succeed Clarence E. Gauss, who resigned, and a man to take over James F. Byrnes' place at the presidential elbow. The War Mobilization Director says he wants to practice law back home in South Carolina.

A board to handle disposition of surplus war property also has to be appointed.

Washington harvested the usual crop of post-election rumors about cabinet shakeups, including the perennial that Secretary of Labor Perkins was quitting. Whether well founded or not, there also has been talk that 73-year-old Secretary of State Hull might resign because of his health.

Secretary of Interior Ickes handed in his resignation, as he does every four years, just in case Mr. Roosevelt might want to make a change. But there was no indication the President had one in mind.

The most likely development would be the resignation of Postmaster General Frank Walker to make way for Robert E. Hannegan, the Democratic national chairman. The Chairman customarily has gone into the cabinet to head up the Postal department. Walker, himself a former chairman, did that. So did James A. Farley.

BIG ISSUES FACE FDR ON RETURN TO CAPITAL TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP) A decision on United States policy toward postwar control of Germany is one of a half-dozen top-drawer foreign questions awaiting President Roosevelt's return from the political wars.

Probably the most urgent decision on the President's desk, awaiting his arrival from Hyde Park tomorrow, is his choice of a time and place to meet with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. The final time and place, of course, will be by agreement among the three.

The greater part of the pending foreign problems are coupled with this meeting.

Faces Many Issues

Here are some of the issues with which Mr. Roosevelt may be expected to deal as rapidly as he can consider the facts and consult with his advisers and department heads:

1. Arrangements for advancing the Dumbarton Oaks plan of world organization to the point where an international conference can be held early next year, possibly in January. The British, Russian and American leaders are expected to try to agree on the big power veto issue at their own imminent meeting.

2. Also linked to decisions on the tripartite gathering is the pending invitation from General Charles de Gaulle for the President and Secretary of State Hull to visit Paris.

3. German control policy has to be given its final form so far as the United States is concerned before it is subjected to final agreement with the British and Russians. Having scrapped the Morgenthau plan for deindustrialization of defeated Germany, the President is expected to go along with the State department's proposals for control of Germany's war-making resources through selective elimination and restriction of its industries.

Faces Argentine Issue

4. Another pressing question is that of the policy to be followed with respect to the Argentine situation which apparently is now building up to a consultative meeting of American foreign ministers. The United States has not relaxed its insistence that the Argentine government is a hotbed of Fascist activities in this hemisphere, so this government must be prepared to press its case fully at such a gathering.

5. The position of Ambassador to China is open as a result of the resignation of Clarence E. Gauss and the President's advisers on Chinese affairs concede that it will be difficult to find a successor with the requisite abilities and prestige for the extremely difficult job. There is also the problem of an assignment for General Joseph W. Stilwell, whom the President relieved of his China-Burma-India duties at the personal request of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

6. Mr. Roosevelt evidently will be pressed, too, for a more active American participation in the efforts to settle the differences between Russia and Poland. So far the United States has participated only informally and to the extent of making its good offices available for seeking a solution, an offer which the Russians rejected. Certainly the subject of Polish settlement would be on the agenda of the Big Three meeting.

Firm Peace, Jobs Seen As Work Facing F. D. R.

Managua, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Nicaraguan Government declared a two-day holiday today to celebrate the reelection of President Roosevelt.

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—The fourth successive Roosevelt Administration will take office January 20 pledged to the most comprehensive program in any nation's history.

And the President, just reelected along with a stronger Democratic Congress than he has had for several years, can get down to work immediately on that program without waiting for the routine inaugural ceremonies on the Capitol plaza.

Future Course Outlined

As outlined by Mr. Roosevelt in the recent campaign, the Administration policies of the future will point mainly to these general courses:

1. An "orderly" reconversion to civilian production in due time.

2. Demobilization as rapidly as is permitted by military necessity.

3. A world security organization with America's representatives endowed in advance with "authority to act" in halting aggression.

4. An America at peace, though kept "prepared" for any threat to peace.

5. A post-war economic goal of 60,000,000 productive jobs in a nation freed of wartime controls over wages, prices and production.

Perhaps the most frequently mentioned aim mentioned by the Chief Executive in his campaign concerned mustering out of the men and women in uniform. Time and again he promised to bring the fighting men home as rapidly as possible—this time to jobs, farms and businesses.

To Avoid "False Boom"

By carrying out plans already made, he said, the nation can provide jobs for veterans and war workers and "avoid another false boom like that which burst in 1929 and a dismal collapse like that of 1930 to 1933."

But before this can take place, he emphasized, the country must get on with the business of defeating its enemies quickly. The Allies, he said, are "entirely agreed" not to bargain with the "Nazi conspirators" or leave them a shred of open or secret control of instruments of government, or of military power.

Although the President is due back in the White House tomorrow, foreign policies and international security probably will await another conference with Churchill and Stalin.

Housing Program

Domestically, the Administration program looks ahead to a demand for "well over a million homes a year for at least ten years." Such construction would be privately financed for the most part, with the Government stepping in where needed.

New highways, parks, thousands of new airports, planes, new low-priced cars, hospitals and health clinics—all these are on the construction charts for checking the usual job-slackening after wars.

Other Roosevelt pledges for the future:

1. A merchant marine big enough to meet expanded world trade.

2. Easier business taxes to spur industrial development.

3. Special capital and credit for small business, with every facility to buy Government-owned plants, equipment and inventories.

4. Collective bargaining must be the main reliant for pay adjustments.

5. Elimination of poll taxes.

6. Expansion of the TVA idea into similar developments for Missouri, Arkansas and Columbia river basins.

Popular Vote Closest In 28 Years

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt's fourth-term victory, sweeping in the electoral vote, was won by the smallest popular vote margin since 1916, the nearly complete returns indicated today.

With 44,353,855 votes reported, the President's edge over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey stood at 2,867,319: Roosevelt, 23,610,587, and Dewey, 20,743,268.

The President was leading in 35 States, with 413 electoral votes, and Dewey in 13 States, with 118. Where Michigan's 19 votes eventually would wind up was in doubt, although Dewey held a slight lead.

Two Million Less Than 1940

Four years ago the President won by 4,938,711 over Wendell L. Willkie in a total popular vote of 49,815,312. In 1936, he defeated Alf Landon by over 10,000,000 and in 1932 won from Herbert Hoover by more than 7,000,000.

Hoover's margin over Alfred E. Smith in 1928 exceeded 6,000,000, Calvin Coolidge won over John W. Davis in 1924 by more than 7,000,000 and Warren G. Harding defeated James Cox in 1920 by over 7,000,000.

Woodrow Wilson's margin over Charles E. Hughes in 1916 was only 591,385.

House Majority Increased

Swept into office along with the President was a strengthened Democratic majority in the House. On the basis of late returns, the Democrats held a plurality of at least 49 seats with 13 contests still undecided. By contrast, the Democratic margin over the Republicans in the present House is only two seats, with minor party members holding four and five vacancies.

With five Senate contests undecided, the Democrats seemed assured of maintaining at least their present strength.

Meanwhile, the nation settled down to a let's-get-on-with-the-war attitude.

"Let us unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace" was the solemn request of Mr. Roosevelt as he prepared to return to Washington from Hyde Park. This was the attitude, too, of Governor Dewey.

GOP Loses Three Governors

Late returns showed that Democrats unseated Republican Governors in Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri, Idaho and Washington, while the Republicans captured Governors' chairs from their opposition in Indiana and North Dakota.

Left in doubt, possibly until next week when all the State's service vote will be counted, was the Utah Governorship. It was a neck and neck race by Democrat incumbent Herbert Maw and Republican J. Bracken Lee.

Vacation In Georgia

Governor Dewey made plans for a vacation in Georgia, a State which almost doubled its Republican vote over 1940. Indeed, the Southern Republican vote increased sufficiently to start New Orleans partisans talking of a strong two-party system in Louisiana.

There was no bitterness, nor any sign of sullenness, on the part of Dewey as he said farewell to the reporters who traveled with him the country over in his campaign.

Word Battles End

And the post-election quiet brought amity between Republican Chairman Brownell and Democratic Chairman Hannegan, who had tossed many a rough word back and forth.

As for Senator Harry S. Truman, who will become Vice-President January 20, he set as his goal: To develop a warm friendship between the White House and Capitol Hill.

Popular-Vote Margin Closest Since 1916

By The Associated Press

Thomas E. Dewey came nearer to winning the Presidential election, from a standpoint of popular votes, than any other defeated candidate since 1916, nearly final returns indicated today.

President Roosevelt's margin was 3,053,800, with 45,444,396 votes reported. The President had 24,249,098, Governor Dewey 21,195,298.

The late Wendell Willkie lost to Mr. Roosevelt in 1940 by a margin of 4,938,711, with a total popular vote of 49,815,312.

In 1916 Woodrow Wilson defeated Charles Evans Hughes by only 591,385 votes.

Service Votes Running 67%

For Roosevelt

This Figure Comes From Poll in Scattered Places; Actual Ratio Unavailable

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt polled about 67 per cent of that part of the service vote counted separately and thus far reported.

The popular vote in the nation, including some military ballots, gave Mr. Roosevelt 53.2 per cent of the vote and Governor Thomas E. Dewey 46.8 per cent.

It is impossible to tell how the soldier and sailor vote as a whole divided, since it is counted separately in only a few states. And in states where service ballots were segregated returns are yet far from complete. In some instances the final count will not be available until Dec. 5.

All of the figures now available are from states carried by Roosevelt. The returns showed:

New Jersey, with 21,000 ballots still uncounted—Roosevelt, 83,482; Dewey, 56,264.

Multnomah County, Ore. (incomplete)—Roosevelt, 2,377; Dewey, 1,935.

New York City (ten election districts missing)—Roosevelt, 175,648; Dewey, 66,434.

Buffalo—Roosevelt, 8,200; Dewey, 5,571.

Fulton County (Atlanta)—Roosevelt, 5,189; Dewey, 1,032.

Oklahoma (fifty-three of seventy-seven counties)—Roosevelt, 12,833; Dewey, 8,524.

Broward County (Fort Lauderdale), Fla.—Roosevelt, 447; Dewey, 228.

Total—Roosevelt, 288,176; Dewey 139,988.

Electoral College Casts Its Formal Vote Jan. 6

Congress To Be in Joint Session for Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—This may start an argument with groggy election boards, but the Presidential vote hasn't been counted yet.

Citizens didn't vote Tuesday for Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey. They voted for electors, George Spelvin or Joe Doakes, pledged to one or the other.

These electors, under the Constitution, meet on Saturday, Jan. 6, 1945, and solemnly cast the vote in the "electoral college."

Only then is it official that Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman won. (They're reasonably sure now, though.)

All this is because of the second, twelfth and twentieth amendments to the Constitution, saying how, when and where an election becomes official.

It says that the electors chosen in each state must meet and cast their ballots "on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December." That is Dec. 18 this year. They must make and sign six certificates. Three go to Washington. One goes to the president of the Senate, the others to the Secretary of State.

It says further that Congress must be in joint session Jan. 6, 1945. The president of the Senate presides over both bodies. The electoral votes are counted, and the presiding officer, in this case Henry A. Wallace, announces "the state of the vote, which announcement shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice-President of the United States."

Some people think this procedure meaningless. There have been several proposals to abolish the electoral system and make Presidential voting the same as other balloting.

ICC EXPLAINS COLLISION OF GOV. DEWEY'S TRAIN

WASHINGTON, NOV 1 9 44 — (AP): The Interstate Commerce Commission said today the collision involving Gov. Dewey's campaign train was due to inadequate safeguards for trains moving against the normal current of traffic.

The rear-end collision near Castle Rock, Wash., Sept. 19, resulted in one death and 58 injuries.

The Commission attributed the mishap to the fact that the automatic block signals protecting the two-track system "did not provide protection for movements against the current of traffic."

East-bound trains, the ICC said, were being forced to move on the normally west-bound track, due to another accident which had rendered the eastward main track "unfit for service."

PRESS' EFFECT ON VOTE CITED

Trade Magazine Says Papers Wielded Big Influence

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade magazine, will say in an article tomorrow that "a close analysis of the election returns, county by county, will reveal that the newspapers of this country on the whole wield dominating influence."

Commenting on the assertion of Harold L. Ickes, Interior Secretary, in Washington today that there was a "decline in reader confidence" in the nation's press, the article, written by Robert U. Brown, editor, said:

"It is as nonsensical to indict the entire American press because a majority of the newspapers supported a losing candidate as it is to state that Mr. Roosevelt's success was due entirely to the 22 per cent. of the papers that supported him, neglecting to state the fact that 20 per cent. were independent and neutral and that practically all of the newspapers gave an honest presentation of all political arguments in the news columns."

"Invites Again"

Ickes declared:

"I wish again, as four years ago, to invite, in friendly fashion, American newspaper publishers, through their editorial columns, to give the country their explanation of facts which seem to me to indicate a progressively unhappy and dangerous decline in reader confidence without which a free press lacks strength.

"This nation has again questioned in ringing tones the right of the press to represent readers' opinion by selecting a President supported by only 17.7 per cent. of the press and actively opposed by 68.5 per cent., with only 13.8 per cent. representing themselves as neutral."

Ickes said the figures were taken from an Editor and Publisher poll on November 4. (The figures, Brown said, represented the proportions of the total daily circulation of the newspapers polled.)

Metropolitan Areas A Factor

The Editor and Publisher article said "in practically every instance it is found that the large voting population in the metropolitan areas, where many factors in vote-getting must be considered, were controlling in the final count."

"In New York State," the trade publication continued, "the E. & P. poll showed 75 per cent. of the dailies supporting Dewey.

"He captured 54 counties in the State, leaving only eight to Mr. Roosevelt, who won by virtue of those metropolitan districts.

"The same holds true in Pennsylvania, where 50 counties were for Dewey and only 17 chose Roosevelt. Our poll showed 71 per cent. of the papers for Dewey.

New Jersey Situation

"In New Jersey 12 counties went for Dewey and nine for Roosevelt with the E. & P. survey showing a 57 per cent. backing for the Republicans.

"Dewey took 82 counties in Illinois, with Roosevelt winning the State by virtue of 18 counties. Two were unreported at the time of this writing. That State in our poll showed a 72 per cent. support for Dewey.

"Instead of a waning influence, these figures prove that our community newspapers are quite avidly followed by their readers."

Papers Surveyed

The Editor and Publisher survey of November 4 reported that Dewey was supported by 796 newspapers, comprising 60.1 per cent. of these surveyed, with a circulation of 26,654,996, or 68.8 per cent. of the total circulation involved in the survey.

Mr. Roosevelt was supported by 291 newspapers, or 22 per cent. with a circulation of 6,902,243, or 17.7 per cent. of the total circulation involved in the survey.

Independent newspapers numbered 237, or 17.9 per cent. of those surveyed. They had a circulation of 5,356,807, or 13.8 per cent. of the total circulation involved.

BROWNELL PLEDGES G.O.P. TO VICTORY

NOV 10 1944

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP) Herbert Brownell, Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, today pledged the party to national unity for Victory in a post-election statement recorded for broadcast to civilian populations overseas.

"In the greater campaign for that goal there are no parties," Brownell said. "We are all Americans."

The recording, the Republican chairman said, was made for the Office of War Information.

Brownell said Republicans waged the presidential campaign "fairly and constructively, always with the best interests of our country uppermost in mind."

Regarding the statement by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, on Wednesday morning in which the defeated Republican presidential nominee expressed hope that President Roosevelt's reelection would speed victory and that divine providence would "guide and protect the President of the United States, Brownell said: "In that moment Gov. Dewey was the voice of America."

The text of Brownell's statement:

"The people of the United States of America have just completed here at home the most vital process of the democracy for which its men are fighting so valiantly on the far fronts of this world war—the holding of an election of their president.

"Approximately 48,000,000 ballots are estimated to have been cast to determine, who, as president, shall lead our country in the four crucial years ahead.

"Into that pool of ballots have poured votes of men in our armed forces from Europe, Asia, the South Pacific, Alaska, or wherever our fighting men are stationed. They who wage this war for preservation of our free institutions also have played their part in the operation of one of the greatest—the free ballot.

"President Roosevelt has been re-elected for a term extending from January, 1945 to January, 1949 — years which we fervently hope will be predominantly peacetime years.

"For months Governor Dewey, the opposing candidate and a great American, led the Republican campaign. That campaign was waged, in the true American spirit, with all the vigor he could command. It was waged fairly and constructively, always with the best interest of our country uppermost in mind.

"Republicans are proud of the confidence reflected by the more than twenty-one million who voted the Republican ticket — approximately 48 per cent of the total votes cast.

"When the decision was reached, the Republican candidate broadcast his congratulations to President Roosevelt, expressed hope his re-election would speed victory and a lasting peace, and asked divine providence to guide and protect the President of the United States.'

"In that moment Governor Dewey was the voice of America.

"Earlier, as Republican national chairman broadcasting a statement to our people here at home, I had said that, whatever the result might be, Republicans would accept it in the spirit of sportsmanship that is the essence of the American system.

"Solemnly and sincerely, I repeat that pledge.

"For never in this presidential campaign have we lost sight of the supreme objective of our United Nation — the attainment with the help of God, of a speedy victory and a durable peace.

"In the greater campaign for that goal there are no parties. We are all Americans."

RADIO TO BROADCAST FDR'S CAPITAL RETURN

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP) President Roosevelt's post-election return to Washington tomorrow will be broadcast by major networks, but it was not known definitely tonight whether the President would speak on the program.

The networks will go on the air at 9 a. m., Eastern War Time, with a description of Mr. Roosevelt's arrival from Hyde Park, N. Y., where he received the election returns.

The National Broadcasting Company said it expected the President would make a brief speech. Spokesmen for other networks said they weren't certain what procedure he would follow tomorrow.

FDR SPENDS QUIET DAY AT HYDE PARK HOME

NOV 10 1944

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Nov. 9. — (AP) President Roosevelt looked over the farm of his Dutchess county estate early today and then spent a quiet afternoon in the Franklin D. Roosevelt memorial library.

He will return to Washington tomorrow morning to take up again the White House office hours interrupted a week ago by his final campaign trip of his successful fourth term race.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, told reporters there was "nothing in sight now" so far as he knew about a future meeting between the President, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, although the President himself had indicated at several news conferences that another "Big Three" meeting would be held, possibly this year.

SUCCESSOR TO FISH TO SIT WITH G.O.P.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP) Augustus W. Bennet, the man who ended Republican Representative Hamilton Fish's 24-year congressional career, said today he would sit on the Republican side in the new House of Representatives, but that his vote would be "independent."

"I was elected by tens of thousands of Republican votes," Bennet said, "and I have always enrolled as a Republican."

"Nevertheless," he added, "I am grateful to the Democrats, without whom I would not have been elected. I have already written the Democratic chairmen of the four counties in my district thanking them for putting me on their ticket and supporting me at the polls."

Bennet ran on the Democratic, American Labor, Liberal and Good Government tickets after losing to Fish in the Republican primary election for the 29th congressional district.

DEWEY RETURNS TO ALBANY DUTIES

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP) Governor Dewey returned to his full-time duties as Chief Executive of New York state today, but a hint of his future political plans appeared likely to be delayed until after a scheduled "family vacation."

The defeated Republican presidential nominee was at his desk at 10 a. m. Aides said he probably would catch up on state business by this week-end, when he was expected to head for Sea Island, Ga., for two or three weeks rest.

During the day he took time to inaugurate the annual Christmas Seal drive in the state by buying five sheets of seals from the Albany County Tuberculosis association.

Many observers expect the Governor, as titular head of the minority party, to assume a forceful and outspoken role as leader of the "loyal opposition."

These sources pointed out that Dewey would continue in the limelight as Governor until 1946, when, many believed, he would seek re-election.

As to 1948 and the presidency, there was little disposition to speculate. Although observers agreed Dewey had greatly increased his national prestige in polling more than 20 million presidential votes, they felt there were too many unpredictable factors to forecast what would happen four years hence.

ROOSEVELT PLURALITY IN N. Y. IS 316,000

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 9—(AP) President Roosevelt's unofficial New York plurality stood at 316,013 over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey tonight with all of the state's 9,121 districts reported.

Complete returns gave the President 3,293,869 votes and Dewey 2,977,856.

Dewey's margin in traditionally Republican upstate and Long Island was 453,836 as compared with Mr. Roosevelt's New York city lead of 769,849.

A total of 807,067 votes cast by two minor parties—the American Labor and the Liberal—were more than twice enough to determine the President's margin of victory.

BRICKER TO CONTINUE ACTIVE IN POLITICS

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 9. — (AP) Gov. John W. Bricker, unsuccessful Republican candidate for Vice President, said today that he would maintain an interest in politics, though not necessarily as a candidate, when he completes his third term as Ohio governor Dec. 31.

Asked at his first press conference since his defeat if he plans to continue in politics, Bricker said he would return to his law firm but added:

30 24 — 20273

"I'm always interested in politics. That doesn't always mean being a candidate, however."

Bricker agreed with presidential candidate Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that "the Republican party came out of the campaign revitalized" and devoid of "factionalism."

MICHIGAN'S VOTE SWINGS TO FDR ON LATE RETURNS

DETROIT, Nov. 9—(AP)—Michigan's 19 Electoral College votes for President slipped precariously into the Democratic column tonight on the basis of unofficial returns from all but 16 of Michigan's 3,841 precincts.

The correction of a nightmare of errors by inexperienced Wayne county (Detroit) election workers wiped out the slender lead previously held by Republican Thomas E. Dewey, a native of Michigan, and sent President Roosevelt into the lead by a margin of slightly more than 17,000 votes.

The Wayne county Board of Canvassers, with a staff of 80, conducted the recheck under watchful eyes of both Republican and Democratic observers and of John C. Lehr, United States district attorney, as it unraveled slowly the mistakes which workers at the polls had made.

Still to be conducted is a recheck of 13 Wayne county precincts, from which the official tally books are missing, while efforts were being made to locate the ballot boxes and tally books of three other precincts which simply had disappeared.

Mrs. Marguerite Montgomery, chairman of the Board of Canvassers, said it might be necessary to count the votes in the 13 precincts if the tally books are not found in the ballot boxes which will be opened by the board tomorrow.

Every outstate precinct for President had been tabulated unofficially.

The 3,825 precincts counted of the state's total of 3,841, gave Roosevelt 1,097,581 votes, and Dewey 1,080,503.

In 1,367 of 1,383 precincts in Wayne county, Roosevelt amassed a vote of 543,962 to Dewey's 313,246. Mrs. Mortgomery cautioned that "there still may be other major errors" in precincts not yet challenged and which may bob up as the official canvass of the votes progresses in the next two or three weeks.

President Roosevelt's comeback, after having trailed through the early tabulations, was amazing. Dewey had piled up outstate a lead of 213,638 votes, which in any normal year would have been sufficient to win. Wayne county, casting a record of nearly 860,000 votes, however, gave the President a majority of nearly 231,000 in the returns as they now stand on the election workers' semi-official records. Wayne is a traditionally powerful stronghold of the Democratic party.

Yet the Republican state ticket had swept the state by landslide margins, from top to bottom.

Progressives Poll Only 6% of Wisconsin Vote

Once Powerful Party of the La Follettes May Merge With One of Big Parties

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 9 (AP).—The Progressive party, once the brightest star in Wisconsin's political sky, neared a total eclipse today.

Founded ten years ago, the party that sent Robert La Follette to the United States Senate and twice elected his brother, Philip, Governor of Wisconsin, polled only 6 per cent of the vote in Wisconsin's election on Tuesday.

The vote for Senator showed Alexander Wiley, Republican, incumbent, 581,224; Howard McMurray, Democrat, 493,602; Harry Sauthoff, Progressive, 67,707.

The votes for the House were:

1st District—Lawrence H. Smith, Republican, incumbent, 50,785; Jack H. Kyle, Progressive, 12,687.

2d District—Robert K. Henry, Republican, 69,684; John W. Nash, Democrat, 31,121; Herbert C. Schenk, Progressive, 20,704; Margaret D. Gray, Socialist, 645.

3d District—William H. Stevenson, Republican, incumbent, 55,206; William D. Carroll, Democrat, 18,267; Olaf H. Johnson, Progressive, 2,137.

4th District—Thaddeus Wasielewski, Democrat, incumbent, 102,422; Robert Blackwood, Republican, 52,381; Stanley Budny, Socialist, 4,234.

5th District—Andrew J. Biemiller, Democrat, 87,629; Lewis E. Thill, Republican, 78,405; Edwin W. Knappe, Socialist, 4,705; Irwin Aaron, Independent Progressive, 2,083.

6th District—Frank B. Keefe, Republican, incumbent, 48,521; Henry Danes, Democrat, 25,437.

7th District—Reid F. Murray, Republican, incumbent, 47,056; William H. Ludwig, Democrat, 18,631.

8th District—John W. Byrnes, Republican, 40,071; Lavern R. Dilweg, Democrat, incumbent, 29,568; Frederick W. Giese, Progressive, 2,595.

9th District—Merlin Hull, Progressive, incumbent, 28,559; Adolph Maasen, Socialist, 5.

10th District—Alvin E. O'Konski, Republican, incumbent, 28,816; Elizabeth Hawkes, Democrat, 16,715; Harry P. Van Guilder, Progressive, 4,936.

Nearly complete returns in Tuesday's election showed that Alex O. Benz, the Progressive candidate for Governor, received 67,611 votes while Governor Walter S. Goodland, incumbent Republican, polled 641,225 and Daniel W. Hoan, Democratic nominee, had 493,654.

The Progressives salvaged only one major office—a Congressional seat won by Merlin Hull, who had no opposition from the major parties. To the legislature that it once controlled it sent only six assemblymen and five senators. It failed to elect a candidate to a state office.

Admitting the implications of Tuesday's defeats, influential Progressives have set out to weld the remnants into a cohesive group and leave to the future the questions of continuing as the Progressive party.

Although Senator La Follette and Glen D. Roberts, party chairman, declared their determination to carry on a fight for progressive principles and made no reference to possible disbandment of the party itself, it is known the high command has been under heavy pressure to go into some other party.

10,000 VOTE 'ERROR' CHANGES HOUSE RACE

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 9. — (AP) — Discovery of a 10,000-vote tabulation error in Hennepin county (Minneapolis), largest in the district, today gave William Gallagher, Democratic-Farmer-Labor candidate, a 2,260-vote margin over Representative Richard P. Gale, Republican congressman from Minnesota's Third district.

A re-check of the Hennepin county tabulation showed that a worker had entered 23,726 votes for Gallagher when the figure should have been 33,726.

The count is now complete in all precincts, but is not official in Hennepin county. It gives Gallagher 71,279 votes to 69,019 for Gale. The error had shown Gale to be re-elected to a third term by nearly 8,000 votes.

Foreign Reaction On F. D. R.'s Election

NOV 10 1944

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Times said in an editorial today that "comfortable Democratic majorities" in the United States Senate and House of Representatives "are a striking testimony to Mr. Roosevelt's hold on the confidence of the American people."

"Crude attempts to invoke the 'Communist' bogey—whether in the form of Mr. Roosevelt's alleged subservience to Marshal Stalin abroad or to Mr. Hillman's Political Action Committee at home—seem to have conspicuously missed fire," the Times added.

Tweedledum And Tweedledee

New Delhi, Nov. 9 (AP)—The first editorial comment on President Roosevelt's reelection came today from the strongly nationalist Hindustan Times, edited by Mohandas Gandhi's son, Devadas, which said:

"As far as India's own immediate interests are concerned, it was all tweedledum and tweedledee, for neither the Democrats nor Republicans are in the least worried about the freedom of this country. Both party platforms maintained scrupulous silence about India."

"Danger Of Break Averted'

Melbourne, Nov. 9 (AP)—Reelection of President Roosevelt averted danger of a break in the long-range planning being carried out by the United States and the British Empire, Sir Owen Dixon, former Australian Minister to Washington, declared today at a meeting of the Royal Empire Society.

Chiang's Congratulations

Chungking, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Chiang Kai-shek in a message to President Roosevelt today said that his reelection was a "welcome guarantee" of final victory and an augury for closer Chinese-United States relations.

The message said:

"On behalf of the entire Chinese nation, I beg to offer your Excellency my warmest congratulations upon your reelection as President of the United States for a fourth term. This happy event is a complete vindication of your Administration and an unmistakable demonstration of the American people's determination to dedicate themselves to the upholding of the democratic cause throughout the world under your inspiring leadership.

"A Welcome Guarantee"

"Your reelection is a welcome guarantee that the Allied powers will succeed in winning the final victory and establishing a just and durable peace at an early date.

"I have no doubt that your country will attain new heights of greatness and prosperity during your continued tenure of office and am eagerly confident that, with your deep and abiding sympathy with China, the traditional ties of Sino-American leadership will be further strengthened and the cooperation between our countries enhanced.

"Please accept my most sincere wishes for your good health and for the well-being of the American people."

Hailed As "Indispensable"

The official Central Daily News today hailed President Roosevelt as "indispensable, not only to the United States but to the world."

"The world needs him in the war against aggression and the building of an edifice to safeguard permanent peace," the Chinese paper said.

The newspaper Ta Kung Pao said "Roosevelt led the world crusade against aggression and laid the foundation for victory of the Democratic nations." It added, "Mankind waits for this extraordinary man to accomplish greater and more extraordinary deeds."

Filipino Interpretation

San Francisco, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Commonwealth said today Filipinos interpreted President Roosevelt's reelection as indorsing his foreign and domestic policies and expressing "unmistakable approval of his liberal policy toward the Philippines."

The statement was made over the "Voice of Freedom" radio on Leyte Island and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

DUBLIN PRESS IS ELATED

Roosevelt Record Is Praised in De Valera's Paper

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 9 (AP)—Dublin newspapers today acclaimed the re-election of President Roosevelt, and the Irish Press, organ of Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Fianna Fail party, said Mr. Roosevelt had shown "daring and quick action."

"In twelve years of office he has brought a nation through the worst financial crisis in its history," the newspaper declared. "He has given a new philosophy to worker and employer * * * he organized American economy in the certainty that war would engulf the nation and when it came the nation was all but prepared."

Roosevelt Paris Trip Hinted

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—A British Foreign Office spokesman asked today whether Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would be accompanied to Paris by any other officials, replied: "No, unless President Roosevelt goes along."

FDR VICTORY ENDS JAP HOPE FOR COMPROMISE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—(AP) Radio Tokyo told the Japanese people that reelection of President Roosevelt means "there can be no compromise peace negotiation in the greater East Asia war."

"Our only path is to clearly recognize the beastly character of the American people and to renew our determination to crush America," Tokyo said.

The domestic broadcast for homeland consumption, recorded by Federal Communications Commission, expressed amazement at gains of the Democrats in Congress. It added "the election of Roosevelt who is the intimidator and the spearhead of the war, proves that Roosevelt's ambition for world domination is the representative principle of the American people. x x x

"The beastly nature which the American people have for the continuation of the war has maintained Roosevelt."

REVITALIZING OF LEAGUE IS URUGUAY PLEA

Nation's Memorandum Is Critical Of Dumbarton Oaks Proposals

NOV 10 1944

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—The first official criticism of the Dumbarton Oaks world security plan by a small nation came today from Uruguay, which proposed instead that the League of Nations be revitalized.

Uruguayan Ambassador Juan Carlos Blanco presented the proposal to the other American republics at a meeting of Latin diplomats with E. R. Stettinius, Jr., Acting Secretary of State. The session was the third to be held on the general subject of Dumbarton Oaks' accomplishments.

The first small nation to make an official answer to the American British - Russian - Chinese proposal for a peacetime United Nations Uruguay asserted it would be advantageous to conserve the old league with reforms to strengthen its military, political, and judicial power.

Guarantees Urged

If that is impossible, Uruguay said, then guarantees for small nations should be incorporated in any new organization to preserve the world's peace.

What to do about the league was one of the most important questions left unanswered by the big four at Dumbarton Oaks. It still lives in theory, although it stopped acting as a clearing house for international conflicts when the war spread over Europe.

The last full session of the league ended inconclusively December 14, 1939, but small committees kept going for sometime after that. Russia, Germany, Japan and Italy had all withdrew long before the war, however, and the United States never joined.

Two Are Absent

Absent from today's diplomatic conference were Argentina and San Salvador, whose present governments are not recognized by Washington.

Following the meeting of diplomats, Acting Secretary Stettinius said that it had been "a fruitful discussion."

"We are encouraged by the support that the American republics are showing for the basic ideas embodied in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals," Stettinius said in a statement released by the State Department.

Assurances Cited

"We received assurances today that all the American republics are giving careful study to the proposals and are going to bring their comments to the group.

"Some of the heads of missions have already placed the views of their governments before the group."

The Uruguayan plan said it would be enough "to introduce in the structure of the League of Nations . . . reforms which may be deemed expedient, in order that it be able to apply and satisfactorily fulfill" the promotion of world security.

World Unit Advocated

However, the memorandum continued, Uruguay would accept a new league if the old one could not be revived and modernized.

The new league should "make of the world a unit where law and order will prevail," the statement declared.

Doctrines of racial superiority and the use of force, the document added, should be repudiated by the new organization which should consolidate in itself "respect for human dignity."

If a new organization is established, Uruguay declared its executive council should provide for "no differences in prerogatives or treatment among members."

The memorandum added that "under present circumstances, but on a temporary basis, the Uruguayan Government would accept" the arrangement that Britain, the United States, Russia and China have places on the organization's security council.

For Permanent Places

The Dumbarton Oaks plan contemplates permanent places on the council for these four nations.

Normally, Uruguay suggested, nations should become members of the directing council "with identical rights through designation by the assembly."

Uruguay, it was stated, "would consider with the keenest sympathy," the inclusion of France on the council, and would support inclusion of Latin-American nations "which adhere to the ideals that inspire the international organization."

[There was no explanation for the latter statement. However, Argentina has shown concern at being left out of the peace plan.]

The council of the world organization should have specific rules to guarantee the rights of small nations, Uruguay declared.

Possible Rules Suggested

These possible rules were suggested:

1. Requiring special majorities for important decisions.

2. According nations not represented on the council the right to have "voice but not vote" in council deliberations directly concerning them.

3. Specifying beforehand the precise powers of nations on the executive council "which will be elected by the assembly."

4. Fixing the number of nations on the council "in order to avoid any contingencies contrary to the rights and personalities of the small nations."

Voting Procedure Unsettled

The Dumbarton Oaks plan left unsettled the question of voting procedure on the council, although it provided for six elected members, four permanent members at the start and "in due course" a permanent place for France.

Another of the points which Britain, the United States, Russia and China failed to settle at Dumbarton Oaks was how to liquidate the League of Nations and the mandates held under it. Theoretically, the old league still lives.

Other points made by the Uruguayans:

1. "All differences, oppositions, or conflicts among nations, whatever their nature, must of compulsion be submitted to the international court of justice." Dumbarton Oaks provided only for legal questions to be settled by the court.

No Advancement Seen

If the court were to fall into distinctions between political and juridical disputes, Uruguay maintained, "it would not be appreciably advanced beyond the similar institutions created by the Versailles treaty."

2. Uruguay is against "a superstate with its own police force and other elements of coercive power." It supports maintenance of military forces by all member nations "in readiness for joint action whenever necessary."

3. The league should guarantee, "even with arms, the integrity of the rights and the frontiers of nations which may be threatened or attacked."

4. The Pan-American system of cooperation should be incorporated in the world organization.

Argentine-Status Parley Seen

NOV 10 1944

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—A public airing of Argentina's role in the Western Hemisphere by Foreign Ministers of American republics now seems assured, and the United States may unlock its secret files on the subject when the projected conference convenes.

President Roosevelt's reelection gave the green light to many Latin diplomats who were holding off a decision on the Argentine request for a meeting. The President's return to the White House, they feel, rules out the possibility of a change in United States policy.

The question remaining is one of timing and tactics. Some diplomats think a Foreign Ministers' meeting on post-war security should exclude Argentina, with Buenos Aires to be called in later to present her case. Others favor acting on the Argentine question first.

Should Be Called Soon

There appears general agreement that the conference should be called quickly.

It promises to be perhaps the most spectacular inter-American meeting yet held, because of the likelihood that details on Argentine activities and those of Axis agents in Argentina may be fully published for the first time. War progress has removed the strong security factor against letting the Axis know what information was in Allied hands.

In asking for a meeting to discuss her diplomatic isolation, Argentina specified conversations on foreign policy and that there should be no investigation of internal Argentine questions.

Limited Scope

The showdown may come over an Argentine attempt to limit the scope of the talks. It is felt in Washington that domestic questions are so thoroughly interrelated with Argentina's foreign policy that such restrictions would be impossible. Furthermore, the 1942 agreement at Rio de Janeiro pledged the American nations to take internal moves to curb Axis agents. Officials say failure to comply is an integral part of Argentina's lack of fulfillment of the Rio promises.

Between now and the time the conference is called, diplomats said they expect Argentina to take some minor moves against the Axis to show that Buenos Aires is anxious to cooperate with other American nations.

Possibilities are that Japanese language newspapers may be shut down and arrangements made to repatriate Japanese diplomats.

Move Against Axis Firms

Buenos Aires, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Argentine Government adopted today a series of measures designed to enforce stricter surveillance over the activities of firms controlled by Axis capital.

A decree transferred responsibility for the exercise of such vigilance to the recently created Department of Industry and Commerce from the Department of Internal Revenue. Adolfo Silenzi de Stagni resigned from the latter department a few days ago after having been admonished for failure to maintain adequate watch over "certain foreign companies."

The decree impowers the department to expropriate firms which are "unable to operate because of conditions inherent in the present war." Presumably these include those on the British and American blacklist. Complete and permanent control over banks and insurance companies directly or indirectly dependent upon countries with whom Argentina has severed relations also was ordered.

PROMISES AID TO FREED LANDS

Roosevelt Tells Lehman They Will Be Rewarded.

Washington, Nov. 9 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today declared his determination that "the sacrifices of liberated peoples shall be rewarded" through supplies needed "to star t life over."

In a letter to Herbert H. Lehman, director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration on the first anniversary of that organization, the President said:

"We are determined that the sacrifices of the liberated peoples shall be rewarded and that, to the extent we have it in our power to help, tbese people shall promptly receive the clothing, food, and other supplies which they need to start life over."

Former Gov. Lehman, who is leaving for London soon, told a news conference today that the UNRRA would deal with the authorities in effective control of any liberated territory regardless of whether they were a recognized government.

He said a mission is going to Poland and will probably be based at Lublin, headquarters of the Soviet-backed Polish National Committee, which is still at odds with the Polish government in London.

While Russia has not yet given visas to the UNRRA representatives who must travel through Soviet territory to reach Poland, Mr. Lehman said he felt sure permission would come through from Moscow.

To Visit Liberated Lands.

The director is going to London to consult on problems of organization in the European office. He expects to visit liberated countries on the Continent.

Of the UNRRA's accomplishments during the past year, he said: "We've come a long way."

Some UNRRA representatives are already in Greece co-operating with military authorities there, he said, and many others are in Italy and Egypt awaiting word from military officials to go into Yugoslavia. An agreement is being negotiated with the Yugoslav Government, he said, for post-war relief operations.

New UNRRA offices are going to be opened in Chungking and in Sidney, Australia. The UNRRA has also asked the Soviet Government to submit a program of its estimated relief needs, as other nations have done, but Moscow has not yet replied.

PACIFIC POST TO INGERSOLL

Admiral To Direct Supply Flow On West Sea Frontier

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, who proved his ability to convoy vast quantities of supplies across the Atlantic, now will direct the pouring of men and material against Japan.

Secretary Forrestal, at a news conference today, announced the transfer of Ingersoll from command of the Atlantic Fleet to duty as commander of the western sea frontier effective about November 15.

To Manage Supply Flow

In the news assignment, Ingersoll, whose home is at La Porte, Ind., will "manage the flow of supplies to the Pacific Fleet through West Coast ports," Forrestal said.

The Navy Secretary added that appointment of Ingersoll is an "indication of the increased importance of the task" of moving supplies to the Pacific for the war against Japan.

Ingersoll will be succeeded as commander of the Atlantic Fleet by Vice-Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, who has been commander of the Fourth Fleet in the South Atlantic.

Jonas Ingram Advanced

In the new command Ingram will be advanced to the rank of admiral. He will be succeeded by Rear Admiral William R. Munroe, of Waco, Texas, who has been commandant of the Third Naval District, with headquarters in New York.

Vice-Admiral David W. Bagley, of Raleigh, N. C., who has been commander of the western sea frontier, Forrestal said, will be transferred to the Hawaiian sea frontier succeeding Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, of Moscow, Idaho, those new asignment has not been announced.

Forrestal disclosed, also, that he had presented to Ingersoll today a Distinguished Service Medal for his services as commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet. A citation accompanying the medal said that Ingersoll "conducted a sustained offensive against enemy submarines in this vital combat area and, as a result of his unfailing judgment, resourcefulness and initiative maintained an uninterrupted flow of United States troops and their supplies across the Atlantic."

In the new command, Forrestal said, Ingersoll will have the status of a deputy commander in chief of the United States fleet.

German U-Boat October Activity Lowest Of War

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—German submarine activity this past October was materially lower than any other month of the war, an Anglo-American Government statement said tonight.

The following statement was issued by the Office of War Information under authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill:

"The scope of the German U-boats' activities in October, 1944, was materially below that of any other month of the war; in consequence of which the number of United Nations' merchant vessels sunk by German submarines during the month was also the lowest of any month of the entire war.

"Although the number of German U-boats destroyed was less than what has come to be considered a good monthly 'bag,' it compares very favorably with the number of Allied merchant vessels sunk by U-boats.

"The Allies continue to supply on schedule their ever-growing armies in Europe."

BATTLE CASUALTIES PASS 500,000 MARK

Army's Total Put at 437,356, That of Sea Forces at 71,839 Since Pearl Harbor

NOV 10 1944

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Almost three years of war have cost more than a half million American battle casualties—dead, wounded, missing or prisoners.

The Army said today that its casualties, from Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, through last Oct. 28, totaled 437,356. The latest report for Navy, Marine and Coast Guard personnel accounts for 71,839.

The Army total represents an increase of 20,235 since the report a week ago which covered the period through Oct. 21. Secretary Stimson said part of this increase was due to a revision now being made in the casualty information system so as to bring the figures up to date. It was explained later that about 25 per cent of the increase resulted from the bookkeeping change over.

This would mean that new casualties occurring in the period of about one week and ending around mid-October were about 15,000. (The reporting of casualty figures to the War Department is usually about two weeks after the casualties occur.) Heavy fighting was taking place in the Aachen sector in Germany, as well as elsewhere on the Western Front, at that time, with a comparative lull on the Italian front.

Of the total Army casualties reported today, 84,811 were killed and 243,054 wounded, an increase for the week of 4,145 killed and 13,742 wounded.

30.24 — 20275

The overall casualty total of 437,356 does not represent a loss of strength equal to that amount because 112,814 of th wounded have been returned to duty. This is a far higher percentage than in any previous war.

Automatic Sight Helps In Bagging Foe's Planes

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—The navy disclosed tonight that automatic sights keeping guns aligned on fast-moving targets are a part of the answer to success in shooting down attacking enemy planes.

The sights, operated on a gyroscopic principle, the navy said, originally were used on smaller guns and forced the enemy to stay away from American ships. Subsequently, they were added to equipment of larger anti-aircraft guns, and:

"This move enabled United States ships to reach out and blast the enemy planes even before they could go into their attack run."

The navy disclosed that in addition, "a revolutionary new sight based on the same gyroscopic principle is now in production by the navy for use in army and navy planes."

Roosevelt Predicts Early Dutch Freedom

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—President Roosevelt in a message to Queen Wilhelmina today predicted that Allied forces would soon accomplish the total liberation of the Netherlands.

The President sent this message to the Queen at London:

"I have been inexpressibly shocked by the reports which have reached me of the savage and wilful destruction being carried out by the Nazi barbarians in the Netherlands.

"I am confident, however, that the blows being struck by our united forces will soon result in the total liberation of your country and in the meantime you may be sure that all possible steps are being taken to insure that relief will be made available to the people of the Netherlands."

Output of 'Critical' Arms Raised, but Not Enough

W.P.B. Making Complete Survey to Speed Lagging Items

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—Production was stepped up in each of the "critical" munitions programs in October, but still fell far short of requirements, J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board, said today. He asserted a complete survey of "basic needs" now is being made.

Representatives of the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission are meeting twice daily with W. P. B. officials to analyze the reasons for the lagging programs. The meetings here will be followed by conferences next week with management and labor at key plants in Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland.

Stressing that the "critical" programs represented a comparatively small percentage of the whole war program, Mr. Krug said the W. P. B. was trying to adjust cut-backs to give maximum help to the lagging items.

Paper Control Let-Up Asked After V-E Day

Industry Urges a Revision of Rules, but Says Some Restrictions Must Stay

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—The paper industry has recommended a reduction in control over pulp and paper after V-day in Europe through revocation of some orders and modification of others, the War Production Board announced today.

The trade group, designated as the Over-All Paper Industry Advisory Committee, said certain controls must be retained after German collapse if the industry is to meet continuing war needs and provide employment as more man power becomes available.

The committee made the following recommendations for action after V-E Day:

That as soon as declining military demands assure enough chlorine, the order limiting the whiteness of pulp and paper be revoked along with restrictions on the use of chlorine for bleaching.

That allocation be discontinued except as necessary to meet Army and Navy paper demands.

That the withholding of pulp from integrated mills—those which produce their own pulp but which have not been permitted to use all of their production during the war—be reduced "as quickly as demands are curtailed."

That the pulp conservation order be revoked as soon as mills have accumulated a twenty-five-day inventory of market pulp.

That the order which simplifies and standardizes the types and sizes of paper produced be studied with a view to removal of all provisions not contributing to the prosecution of the war.

That limitations on the use of wire cloth used in pulp manufacture and controls on paper mill machinery be revoked.

That the special allocation control over pulpwood in critical shortage areas like Puget Sound be studied to determine whether it is now a deterrent to the industry, and that it be revoked if it proves to be such.

WORLD NEWS PLAN EVOLVED

Kent Cooper, Associated Press Director, Suggests Setup

NOV 10 1944

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—A positive program with adequate enforcement machinery to assure unfettered flow of news and information around the world is urged by Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, in an article in the current issue of Life magazine.

The article describes the former world news monopoly of the European news agencies, and the controlled press of the totalitarian countries, and asserts the aggressor countries could not have driven their peoples to war without systematic perversion of the news.

"A heavy duty rests upon the Allied peoples," Cooper concludes. "If they are not convinced that the adoption of free-news principles is their responsibility, then once again, the next war is their war."

"Equal Access To News"

Cooper cites the recent action of Congress in unanimously indorsing the idea of world-wide freedom of news, and suggests that if the British Parliament followed the example of Congress it would "help enormously" to promote the unhampered flow of free news.

He writes that the peace negotiations, "on the positive side," should guarantee "equal access to news wherever it occurs or wherever it is disclosed.

"On the negative side there should be two provisions: One that forbids the intentional transmission of propaganda from one country to another; and a second that forbids peacetime censorship in any form.

"And in no country should there be preferential transmission rates, whether by radio or telegraph or telephone; for it is as easy to stop news at its sources by putting prohibitive prices on wordage as by outright censorship. It is obvious that radio news involves similar problems that will require similar answers."

To enforce the plan, Cooper writes "one important step would be to give diplomatic immunities to news correspondents working abroad — independently, however, of any diplomatic missions.

"These immunities would mean, in effect, the right to report news without hindrance, and protection against being expelled—should a correspondent become persona non grata—except by the officials of his own country.

Right To Appeal

"Besides this, each correspondent should be guaranteed access to all the governmental news that the foreign country makes available to its own newspapermen; and each correspondent should have equal chance to transmit his copy."

In cases of violations of the international code, Cooper urges that "correspondents should have the right to appeal through diplomatic channels to the proper branch of whatever international authority comes out of this war.

"In the important capitals, where there are foreign correspondents' associations, these could weigh the grievance first; and if the complaint were justified, the petition could be made with the authority of the whole foreign-press corps.

"If the Dumbarton Oaks agreement results in establishing an economic and social council, it could be this council that would look into violations. The council could establish its own code, make certain that abuses are corrected, and—if they are not corrected—make them punishable by international force.

"Force, in such a case, would mean cutting the offending country off from other nations, or else invoking sanctions against it.

"This may seem severe, but who can say it is really drastic if we are to attain the goal at which we are aiming? More drastic methods have been suggested to end wars and many of them have not even pretended to get at the basic causes."

Lightweight Gas Drums Give More China Fuel

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (AP)—The Aluminus Company of America today announced the development of a new lightweight gasoline drum that will facilitate and increase the supply of aviation gas to the China front.

The new drum, weighing 21 pounds, which is 31 pounds less than the old, has been accepted by the Air Transport Command, Alcoa officials said. An allotment has been flown to India, where they will be used to step up supplies needed by the 14th and 20th Air Forces fighting the Japanese in Asia.

These drums will increase the supply by many hundreds of thousands of gallons each month, according to Alcoa.

Captured B-24 Nazi Decoy

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP)—Capt. Frederick A. Munder, of St. Louis, Mo., told today how he and another Mustang fighter pilot swooped to the rescue of an apparently battered B-24 bomber over Berlin—and were blasted by a barrage of anti-aircraft fire for their trouble.

"The B-24 was a decoy, a captured American plane flown regularly by a German crew," Captain Munder explained at the AAF redistribution station here.

Although both American pilots had lowered the wheels and flaps of their Mustangs to reduce flying speed to that of the "crippled" bomber, they escaped from the barrage. They shot down one of two ME-109s lurking outside the ring of fire to polish them off.

Captain Munder holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with 10 Oak Leaf Clusters.

Boot Saves Flyer Falling From Bomber

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 9 (AP)—The story of how a leather flying boot saved him from hurtling 6,000 feet to death from a Liberator bomber, is told by First Lieutenant Roy V. Whiting, of Chicago, Illinois.

En route to Vienna last June, his plane was jumped by four ME-109's and one engine was shot away.

As the bomber lost altitude, Lieutenant Whiting tried to salvo the bombs, but some stuck.

Leaving his parachute forward, the 26-year-old bombardier crawled into the bomb bay, dislodged the bombs—and fell through himself.

"My boot jammed on a projector. The zipper ripped, then held," the lieutenant recalled at the AAF redistribution station here. "It was only a few seconds that I dangled there, head down, but it seemed like hours."

As his waist gunner hauled him to safety, the boot ripped loose and fell straight down.

AVIATION PARLEY MAKING PROGRESS

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP) H. J. Symington, president of Trans-Canada Air lines and temporary head of the Canadian delegation, said today he felt progress had been made toward agreement at the International Civil Aviation conference and made it clear his country is willing to bargain around the framework of its proposal for a world air authority.

Holding his first press conference, Symington said he was hopeful the principles of the United States, United Kingdom, and Canadian proposals could be drafted into a plan for control of the air which would be fair to all. The result will not necessarily be the Canadian proposal, he said.

A practical airline operator in a country which has adopted the "chosen instrument" method of air transport operation, Symington declined to discuss specific points on which give and take already has occurred.

Symington said Canada during its studies had rejected a return to the prewar situation of "hard bargaining between countries," had rejected the idea of an advisory council (such as this country suggested) as "merely a return to the prewar situation with a little tinsel and dressing," had rejected the idea of an overall international operating company, had decided that national sovereignty must be preserved, and then decided on these three principles as a foundation:

1. Security and world peace.
2. The International theory of decision.
3. A permanent board of advisory and regulatory.

The United States Civil Aeronautics board was taken as a model for the international body.

National Control

Path Taken At Air Parley

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP)—The effort to reach a world aviation agreement proceeded today along a path limited to separate national operation of airlines.

The issue of an international company to own and operate aircraft on global routes was eliminated yesterday when the joint proposal of New Zealand and Australia was discarded by the International Civil Aviation Conference.

The United States plan, built around the theory of freedom of flight; the Canadian proposal, based on assignment of routes through a world agency, and the United Kingdom plans calling for a division of traffic formula, remain for discussion.

NOV 10 1944

Action By Voice Vote

The decision to abandon the Anzac idea was on a voice vote in support of a motion by Brazil, and no effort was made to poll the delegates for an actual count.

With that touchy issue disposed of and the national election ended, the United States delegation, headed by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., was prepared to deal more directly with the proposals regarded as likeliest framework for a world aviation authority.

The Anzac plan, adopted at Canberra early this year, was tied in closely with the thought of postwar security, a thought which the United States, at least, feels belongs in the Dumbarton Oaks meeting rather than here. Thus the decision not to consider the Anzac idea because of a lack of "unanimity" represents a step in the direction of the United States.

British Attitude

The British Empire countries and some others came here feeling that efforts should be centered primarily on setting up a permanent world authority now.

The Canadian plan still is the one most nearly acceptable to the United States, but Canada finds little support for the idea, even among members of the British Commonwealth.

Just as Canada stands nearly alone on route allocation, the United Kingdom finds small support for traffic division.

Venereal-Disease Jump Forecast

St. Louis, Nov. 9 (AP)—The change from war to peace may intensify the nation's venereal disease problem, a United States Public Health Service official said today.

"The impact of demobilization reconstruction upon people uprooted and weary of restraint may have very serious implications for a control program over the next several years," declared Dr. J. R. Heller, Jr., chief of USPHS's venereal disease division, in an address presented for the opening of a three-day national conference on post-war VD control, sponsored by Public Health Service.

"We have based our appeal for repression of prostitution upon win-the-war psychology," he said. "Are we prepared with factual arguments (on the dangers of the disease) when war is over and inevitable reaction sets in—when commercialized vice comes out of hiding?"

Asserting that about 230,000 new cases of syphilis alone are now being contracted annually in this country, that only three fourths of those are discovered and treated, Heller said that major need for present and post-war control was increased emphasis on case finding and public education.

Gonorrhea Figures Inaccurate

(He said it was impossible to give accurate figures on incidence of gonorrhea, but that conservative estimates placed it at three times that of syphilis.)

Stating that one of the functions of the conference was to consider methods of making newly established penicillin treatments for VD available to the general public, Heller said new, effective treatments would be of little value to public health unless infected persons were found early and brought under care.

While he declared the ideal means of case-finding would be universal blood-testing and clinical examination of all young people in the nation, Heller said that might be impractical at present.

But he added that health officers and private physicians should consider suggestions that have been made concerning opportunities for blood clinical examination among new-born; persons being married, graduated from high school or college, or admitted to hospitals; those being examined for insurance policies, and those undergoing medical examinations for industrial, civic or Federal positions.

Better Gas Foreseen Soon After War Ends

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 9 (AP)—High quality gasoline will be made available to civilian motorists again almost immediately after the war ends, B. E. Sibley, of the Continental Oil Company of Ponca City, said today.

Sibley addressed a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers which opened today and will continue through tomorrow.

"As soon as hostilities cease," he said, "refiners will be in a position to supply civilian motorists with the high octane and high volatility gasoline available before the war."

He added, however, that changes in octane rating will be gradual, as a great proportion of the automobiles in service the first year after the war will be old models operating best on gasoline designed for their particular engines.

Engine designs after the war will tend gradually toward use of higher octane fuel, he said.

BING SAYS SINATRA UNKNOWN IN PARIS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9. — (AP) Actor-crooner Bing Crosby, returning today after a European camp tour, said ruefully that the French populace didn't seem to know who he was.

But he brightened up when he added:

"I asked some teen-age Paris girls if they knew Frank Sinatra and they said they'd never heard of him."

Bomber Survives War, Crash-Lands At Home

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP)—Veteran of 81 missions in the South Pacific, the Liberator bomber "Bolivar" met disaster in a peaceful Southern California flight today when it crash-landed at Consolidated-Vultee Field, injuring a crewman.

Army authorities, announcing the accident, said the crewman suffered a broken leg. His name was not disclosed.

LONDON, NOV 9-(AP)-THE DUTCH GOVERNMENT WAS DESCRIBED TODAY AS BELIEVING THERE IS AMPLE ROOM IN THE POST-WAR WORLD FOR BOTH NATURAL AND SYNTHETIC RUBBER AND EXPECTS ONLY "HEALTHY COMPETITION" BETWEEN THE TWO MARKETS.

"AMERICAN, BRITISH AND DUTCH GOVERNMENT REPRESENTATIVES WILL MEET IN THE UNITED STATES THE FIRST OF THE YEAR FOR MUTUAL DISCUSSION ON POST-WAR SUPPLY AND DEMAND OF NATURAL RUBBER," SAID P.H. WESTERMANN, TRADE COMMISSIONER OF THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES, IN AN INTERVIEW. "ALTHOUGH THE SYNTHETIC RUBBER INDUSTRY HAS BECOME COLOSSAL, ESPECIALLY IN THE UNITED STATES, WE DO NOT LOOK FOR IT TO DISTURB GREATLY NATURAL RUBBER PRODUCTION. THERE IS PLENTY OF ROOM FOR BOTH, AND AMERICA AND BRITAIN ARE IN FULL ACCORD WITH US.

"ONE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE IT WILL MAKE TO DUTCH INTERESTS IS THAT BEFORE THE WAR CUSTOMERS CAME TO US FOR OUR RAW RUBBER BUT AFTER THE WAR WE SHALL HAVE TO GO TO THEM," HE ADDED.

WESTERMANN SAID THAT BEFORE THE JAPANESE INVASION THE INDIES WERE PRODUCING NEARLY 650,000 TONS OF CRUDE RUBBER YEARLY, HALF OF WHICH WAS SENT TO AMERICA.

"ONCE WE GET THE NECESSARY EQUIPMENT TO START WORK, IT WILL TAKE ONLY A SHORT TIME AFTER THE WAR FOR THE INDIES AGAIN TO REACH THIS RATE OF OUTPUT," WESTERMANN SAID. "WE SHALL FIRST SUPPLY ALL NATURAL RUBBER THE U.S. REQUESTS. BUT SINCE GERMANY'S SYNTHETIC INDUSTRY PROBABLY WILL BE BLASTED TO USELESSNESS, WE ALSO LOOK FORWARD TO OPENING BIG MARKETS IN EUROPE, AS WELL AS IN BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND CHINA."

ORIOCOURT, FRANCE, NOV 9-(AP)-AMERICAN TANKS AND INFANTRY LANDED THEIR ONE-TWO PUNCH TODAY ON THIS LITTLE VILLAGE 20 MILES SOUTHEAST OF METZ AND PRESSED ON EASTWARD AGAINST STRANGELY SKETCHY RESISTANCE. CORRESPONDENTS MOVED UP FROM JALLAUCOURT TO ORIOCOURT A COUPLE OF HOURS AFTER THE DOUGHBOYS HAD MOPPED UP THE COMMUNITY IN THE WAKE OF MAJ.GEN.JOHN (TIGER JACK) WOOD'S TANKS WHICH HAD PASSED ON

THROUGH THE TOWN.
I STOOD OUTSIDE A FRESHLY VACATED GERMAN COMMAND POST TALKING TO COL.WILLIAM MURRAY OF NOGALES, ARIZ., COMMANDER OF THE 137TH INFANTRY REGIMENT, AS THE FIRST BATTALION, COMMANDED BY LT.COL. JOHN STOWERS OF NATCHEZ, MISS., MOVED ON EAST AND NORTH ACROSS THE METZ-CHATEAU SALINS HIGHWAY FOLLOWING THE ROUTE OF THE TANKS. THE CLEAN UP OF THIS TOWN NETTED MORE THAN 100 PRISONERS.
THE RELATIVELY QUICK CLEANUP OF ORIOCOURT WAS IN SHARP CONTRAST TO THE TOUGH FIGHT THE FIRST BATTALION HAD IN JALLAUCOURT WHERE FIGHTING HOUSE BY HOUSE AT BAYONET POINT OCCURRED.
LT.COL.ALBERT BUTLER OF PASADENA, CALIF, COMMANDER OF A BATTALION OF THE 35TH DIVISION, WAS IN THE TOWN WHEN WE ARRIVED AND SAID SOME GERMANS HELD OUT UNTIL 9:30A.M. TODAY ALTHOUGH THE VILLAGE WAS OVERRUN YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

WITH THE 35TH DIVISION AT JALLAUCOURT, NOV 9-(AP)-IT WAS BETWEEN 5 AND 6 A.M. THE MORNING AFTER ELECTION WHEN TECH.SGT. WILLIAM E. HANNAN, OF CHICAGO, BATTALION SERGEANT MAJOR, ANSWERED THE FIELD TELEPHONE. AN ATTACK WAS JUST JUMPINT OFF ALONG THIS SECTOR AND SHELLS WERE FLYING BOTH WAYS.

NOV 10 1944

"IT WAS ABOUT THE WORST BARRAGE I'VE SEEN YET," HANNAN SAID. "SO I WAS NOT THINK ABOUT MUCH EXCEPT THE NEXT ONE OVER WHEN I ASKED THE GUY WHAT HE WANTED. IT WAS A RIFLE COMPANY COMMAND POST CALLING. THEY WANTED TO KNOW WHO WAS WINNING.

"'WINNING WHAT?' I ASKED. "'WHY, WINNING THE ELECTION, OF COURSE' THIS GUY SAYS--RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE WORST BARRAGE WE'VE HAD."

THAT INTEREST SEEMS TO BE THE EXCEPTION AMONG THIRD ARMY TROOPS. BUSY OPENING THE ATTACK ALONG THIS FRONT THEY HAD OTHER THINGS ON THEIR MINDS. GENERALLY SPEAKING REGARDLESS OF THEIR HOPES AS FAR AS THE ELECTION WAS CONCERNED, THEY SEEMED TO BELIEVE THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT PROBABLY WOULD BE RE-ELECTED AND THAT WOULD BE THAT. SOME OF THEM HAD VOTED PREVIOUSLY DURING A LULL IN THE ACTION. OTHERS HAD NOT, EITHER BECAUSE THEY WERE UNABLE TO GET BALLOTS OR BECAUSE OF LACK OF INTEREST.

FOR INSTANCE, PVT.CHARLES A.HENDRICKS, OF INDIANAPOLIS, AND PFC. RALPH WYATT, OF KNOXVILLE, TENN., DIDN'T VOTE BECAUSE THE BALLOT PAPERS NEVER CAUGHT UP WITH THEM. THE SAME WAS TRUE OF STAFF SGT.HOWARD LARSEN, GREENVILLE, MICH., WHILE PFC.ANTHONY PANAGAKOS, OF BROOKLYN, "JUST DIDN'T GET AROUND TO IT." PFC. WILLIAM V.NOBILING, OF WESTSIDE, IOWA, PUT IT MORE BLUNTLY: "I JUST DIDN'T BOTHER."

NOV 10 1944

PFC.WARREN ELLIS, OF CHICAGO, WAS INTERESTED IN THE ELECTION OUTCOME BUT BECAUSE OF WHAT HE SAID WERE ILLINOIS ELECTION RULES HE WAS UNABLE TO VOTE. THOSE IN THIS PARTICULAR OUTFIT WHO DID TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THEIR FRANCHISE INCLUDED LT.WILLIAM P.JOHNSON, BROOKLINE, MASS., PLATOON LEADER, AND STAFF SGT.BERNARD ROWN, HOLLAND, MICH.

ALMOST EVERYWHERE, HOWEVER, THE REACTION GENERALLY WAS THE SAME. THEY EXPECTED MR.ROOSEVELT TO WIN FOR THE MOST PART, EVEN IF PERSONALLY BACKING GOVERNOR DEWEY.

ALL THESE MEN ARE FRONTLINE SOLDIERS. FARTHER TO THE REAR THERE WAS CONSIDERABLY MORE ACTUAL EXCITEMENT EXHIBITED IN THE ELECTION OUTCOME. IN SOME INSTANCES WHERE MEN WERE ON DUTY WITHOUT COMMUNICATIONS, RUNNERS TOOK THE NEWS TO THEM FROM THE NEAREST RADIO.

HEADQUARTERS, U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE, NOV. 8-(DELAYED)-(AP)-IN ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE AIR BATTLES IN THIS THEATER FIVE AMERICANS IN P-40 PLANES TACKLED A FORMATION OF 32 ZEROS, DOWNED AT LEAST 10 AND PROBABLY DESTROYED TWO MORE, AT A COST OF ONE AMERICAN PLANE.

DETAILS OF THIS STORY HAVE BEEN KEPT SECRET IN THE FILES OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE AS A GUARANTEE AGAINST PERSONAL VENGEANCE BY THE ENEMY ON FOUR FLYING TIGERS WHO SURVIVED THE BATTLE AND CONTINUED THEIR MISSIONS, IN THE EVENT THEY SHOULD BE CAPTURED.

THE TALE UNFOLDED WITH A CITATION CONFERRING THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS ON CAPT. LYNDON MARSHALL, 312 GRAND AVE., FREEPORT, N.Y. THE SLIM, 24-YEAR-OLD OFFICER IS CREDITED WITH AT LEAST FOUR ENEMY PLANES CONFIRMED, ONE PROBABLE AND ONE DAMAGED WITHIN AN HOUR'S DOG-FIGHTING.

MARSHALL'S P-40 LED FOUR OTHERS INTO THE HEAVILY WEIGHTED CONTEST OVER YUNGNING (NANNING) AIR BASE IN KWANGSI PROVINCE ON A SUNNY AFTERNOON LAST APRIL 5.

THE ENEMY HAD COME TO WIPE OUT A FORWARD FIGHTER BASE, BUT HE FAILED MISERABLY, THANKS TO THE AGGRESSIVE DEFENSE PUT UP BY MARSHALL AND HIS FOUR COMRADES. AS OPERATIONS OFFICER FOR A FIGHTER DETACHMENT, MARSHALL WAS NOT REQUIRED OR EXPECTED TO SHOW SUCH PERSONAL LEADERSHIP.

IT IS POSSIBLE NOW TO TELL THE STORY BECAUSE ONLY ONE OF THE FOUR SURVIVORS STILL IS IN THIS THEATER, AND HE HAS GIVEN A PERSONAL RELEASE FOR THE USE OF HIS NAME. MOREOVER, HE IS LIKELY TO GO HOME SOON.

HE IS LT.ALLAN G.PUTNAM, 2514 FRANCIS ROAD. SWAMPSCOTT, MASS., WHO SHOT DOWN THREE CONFIRMED THAT DAY TO WIN THE AIR MEDAL FOR THAT AND OTHER MISSIONS. PUTNAM ALSO HOLDS THE PURPLE HEART FOR A WOUND IN ANOTHER ACTION.

LT.SAM LAMON BROWN, 24, ROUTE 1, MESA, ARIZ., IS DEAD--THE AMERICAN CASUALTY IN THE BATTLE. HIS P-40 COLLIDED WITH A ZERO AND BOTH FEEL IN FLAMES IN THIS BATTLE. HE WAS AWARDED THE DFC POSTHUMOUSLY AND WAS CREDITED WITH THAT ZERO.

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE PHILIPPINES,OCT.3-(DELAYED)-(AP)-NAVY LIEUT.(JG) PAT SUTTON AND ARMY LIEUT.ED DEVLIN WERE CURSING AND THEY WERE SCARED, TOO. THEY HAD WALKED INTO A NEAT JAPANESE TRAP.

THEY HAD BEEN FOLLOWING THE TANKS IN THE 24TH DIVISION'S RAPID ADVANCE TOWARD JARO IN THE GREEN LEYTE VALLEY OF THE PHILIPPINES WHEN THEY CAME TO A BRIDGE.

AN OFFICER WANTED TO KNOW IF THE ENEMY HAD MINED THE BRIDGE. SUTTON AND DEVLIN HAD THE JOB OF FINDING OUT.

THEY WERE JUST TO THE BRIDGE WHEN ONE OF THE TANK MEN SAID HE COULD SEE A PILLBOX NEARBY. "WAIT," HE SAID, "UNTIL I KNOCK OUT THAT BOX."

THE TANK'S CANNON OPENED UP AND SO DID THE JAPS. THEY WERE ON TWO SIDES AND AHEAD AND THEY HAD MORTARS, MACHINEGUNS AND RIFLES. SUTTON AND DEVLIN DROPPED TO THE GROUND AND BEGAN TO CRAWL BACK, HUGGING THE WET EARTH EACH TIME A MORTAR BLASTED OR A MACHINE GUN CRACKED.

THEY GOT BACK--AFTER ONE HOUR AND 30 MINUTES.

NOV 10 1944

SUTTON COMES FROM LAWRENCEBURG,TENN. AND DEVLIN WORKED FOR A BOOK BINDERY IN PHILADELPHIA (1629 SO.TANOY.) BETWEEN THEM THEY HAVE REMOVED MORE THAN 500 MINES AND BOOBY TRAPS.

IT WAS SUTTON WHO FOUND THE BOOBY TRAP CLEVERLY CONCEALED IN THE TELEPHONE IN A HOUSE WHICH THE JAPANESE THOUGHT PRESIDENT SERGIO OSMENA OF THE PHILIPPINES MIGHT USE. IT HAD THREE POUNDS OF EXPLOSIVE, ENOUGH TO KILL EVERY PERSON IN THE ROOM, AND IT WAS FIXED TO EXPLODE WHEN THE TELEPHONE WAS CRANKED.

IT WAS SUTTON WHO WAS GIVEN THE TASK OF "DELOUSING" THE BUILDING SELECTED AS GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, BUT HE FOUND NO TRAPS THERE.

"THE JAPS ARE USING A VERY POWERFUL MINE MADE FROM A COCONUT," HE SAID. "THEY FILL IT WITH BLACK POWDER AND THEY PLACE A HAND GRENADE ON TOP OF THE POWDER. IT IS POWERFUL ENOUGH TO BLOW THE TRACK OFF A TANK.

"THEY HAVE ANOTHER ONE IN A SQUARE BOX WHICH IS FILLED WITH BLACK POWDER AND A GRENADE ON TOP. IT CONTAINS 15 POUNDS OF EXPLOSIVES OR ENOUGH TO MORE THAN BLOW THE TRACK OFF A TANK."

THE JAPANESE ALSO HAVE A MINE MADE OF PLASTIC WHICH CANNOT BE LOCATED BY A MINE DETECTOR. THEY HAVE FOUND NO CASES WHERE JAPANESE LEFT BOOBY TRAPS ON THE BODIES OF THEIR DEAD, BUT THIS PROBABLY IS BECAUSE THEY HAVE BEEN RUNNING TOO FAST TO DO THE JOB.

"WE HAVE HAD NO CLOSE CALLS IN REMOVING THE MINES," SAID DEVLIN.

THAT IS UNLESS YOU CONSIDER ONE HOUR AND 30 MINUTES OF BEING UNDER HEAVY JAPANESE FIRE A "CLOSE CALL."

ON ORMOC VALLEY FRONT, NOV. 8 (DELAYED)-PRECEDED BY A DEADLY, ACCURATE BARRAGE FROM 155 MM LONGTOMS AND 105 MM HOWITZERS, INFANTRYMEN OF THIS 24TH DIVISION, IN A WILD, TYPHOON-DRIVEN RAIN TODAY PUSHED THE JAPANESE FROM AN ADVANCED OBSERVATION POST ATOP A RIDGE ON THE ORMOC ROAD.

WHEN THE AMERICANS REACHED THEIR OBJECTIVE THEY COULD LOOK DOWN ON THE FERTILE VALLEY STRETCHING TEN MILES TOWARD THE TOWN OF ORMOC.

THEY FORCED THE JAPANESE TO WITHDRAW TOWARDS THE LOWLANDS LEAVING SHATTERED MOUNDS OF UNBURIED DEAD BEHIND THEM.

HOVERED UNDER A PONCHO ON TOP OF AN INTERMEDIATE RIDGE, SOME 600 YARDS FROM THE YANKS' OBJECTIVE, LT. COL. SEYMOUR MADISON, DENVER, COLO., BATTALION COMMANDER, TELEPHONE BACK TO ARTILLERYMEN:

"I WANT PLENTY OF FIRE POWER POURED ON THAT RIDGE. COMMENCE THE BARRAGE AT NOON."

AS THE INFANTRY ASSAULT TROOPS, LED BY 1ST. LT. ROBERT KILGO, DARLINGTON, S.C., WAITED FOR THE BIG GUNS TO GO INTO ACTION, RAIN DROVE DOWN ON THEM IN SHEETS. THEY DUG SHALLOW FOXHOLES IN THE RED EARTH, WHICH SOON RESEMBLED HALF FILLED BATHTUBS.

THEN HE HEARD THE ROAR OF BIG GUNS IN THE DISTANCE AND THE SHELLS BEGAN WHISTLING DIRECTLY OVERHEAD.

FIRST LT. HAROLD JORGENSEN, POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., 10TH CORPS OBSERVER, WHISPERED, "LOOK THERE ON THE RIDGE. THEY ALL LOOK ALIKE AROUND HERE."

THE SHELLS BURST DIRECTLY ON THE TARGET. THEY RIPPED THROUGH THE ENEMY POSITIONS WITH DEVASTATING EFFECT. THE ENTIRE RIDGE SEEMED TO TREMBLE UNDER THE IMPACT.

AFTER THE BARRAGE LIFTED KILGO'S MEN ADVANCED THROUGH THE TALL COGON GRASS AND UP THE BANKS OF THE RIDGE UNDER MACHINE GUN FIRE, PASSING PERHAPS 50 JAPANESE WHO HAD BEEN BLASTED OUT OF CAVES AND DITCHES.

WHEN THE YANKS BEGAN THE CLIMB UP THE HILLSIDE TOWARDS THE OBSERVATION POST THEY MET ONLY SPORADIC BURSTS OF MACHINEGUN FIRE FROM THE RIGHT FLANK.

THE ARTILLERY HAD DONE ITS JOB WELL. THE ADVANCE WAS STEADY AND THE INFANTRYMEN GAINED THE TOP A FEW HOURS LATER WITH VIRTUALLY NO CASUALTIES.

WITH 24TH DIVISION NEAR PINAMOPOAN, LEYTE, NOV. 9-(AP)-(VIA ARMY RADIO)--JOHNNY DOUGHBOY IS FIGHTING FOUR ENEMIES TODAY ON THE DRIPPING RIDGES AND FLOODED RICE PADDIES THAT MAKE UP THE PINAMOPOAN "CORNER POCKET" BATTLEFIELD.

IN HIS STRUGGLE TO CAPTURE THE JAPANESE REINFORCEMENT PORT OF ORMOC AND END THE LEYTE CAMPAIGN, THE DOUGHBOY BATTLED A HOWLING, 100-MILE-AN-HOUR TYPHOON; SOME OF THE WORST TERRAIN IN THE PACIFIC; KNEE-DEEP MUDDY ROADS THAT ARE OPEN ONLY SPASMODICALLY, AND ELEMENTS OF THE CRACK JAPANESE FIRST DIVISION WHICH ARE PUTTING UP A SAVAGE, CAGEY, WELL-ORGANIZED FIGHT.

THE BATTLE WHICH FELL TO THIS 24TH DIVISION AFTER IT CONQUERED THE VITAL LEYTE VALLEY, WAS STILL STALEMATED AT NIGHT FALL. ONLY A TRICKLE OF SUPPLIES COULD MOVE OVER THEROAD. FORWARD ELEMENTS CONSERVED AMMUNITION AND SOME OF THEM TIGHTENED THEIR BELTS AT CHOW TIME.

THOUGH WET, COLD AND HUNGRY, THEY NEVERTHELESS FOUGHT ON DOGGEDLY, TRYING TO CLEAN OUT A STRONG JAP FORCE AT THE LIMON ROAD BEND WHICH TWICE HAS CUT OFF ADVANCED AMERICAN BATTALIONS.

ONE FORCE WHICH CAPTURED THE HIGHEST RIDGE TRIED TO FLANK THE ROAD AND HIT A HEAVY JAPANESE CONCENTRATION. AT MIDAFTERNOON IT WAS IN A TOUGH SPOT.

MAJ. GEN. FRED IRVING, COMMANDER OF THE 24TH, SAID HE WAS CONVINCED THAT A STRONG JAPANESE FORCE WAS ACROSS HIS FRONT AND THAT IT WOULD TAKE A HIGH-POWERED ATTACK TO CLEAR OUT THE POCKET.

IN ITS PRESENT CONDITION, HE SAID, THE CARIGARA COAST ROAD CANNOT SUPPLY SUCH AN ATTACK UNTIL A STOCK PILE OF SUPPLIES HAS BEEN BUILT UP AT PINAMOPOAN.

ALTHOUGH THE JAPANESE APPEAR TO BE IN POSITION TO ATTACK THE AMERICAN CARIGARA COASTAL HOLDINGS, SO FAR THEY HAVE MADE ONLY SMALL FORAYS. THIS MAY MEAN THE YANKS HAVE CAUGHT THEM OFF BALANCE OR THAT ENEMY SUPPLIES ON THE ORMOC ROAD ARE AS BADLY BOGGED DOWN AS THE AMERICANS ON THE CARIGARA ROAD.

GEN. IRVING SAID THAT SOME 155MM GUNS HAD BEEN BULLDOZED FAR ENOUGH INTO THE HILLS SOUTH OF JARO TO SHELL ORMOC.

"IT IS THE TOUGHEST TERRAIN I HAVE EVER SEEN, AND THIS STORM HASN'T HELPED," SAID IRVING WHOSE COMMAND POST NEAR THE FRONT BLEW DOWN ON HIM LAST NIGHT. "BECAUSE OF THE SIZE OF THE JAP FORCE WE HAVE HAD TO SPREAD OURSELVES A BIT THIN."
